Atheist Sues The Pope To Prevent Public Mass

By United Press International Charging Pope John Paul II's upcoming visit to the United States is enmeshed in politics, outspoken atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair and her son have filed suit to prevent the pope from holding what they call a "stupid, archaic" mass on the Washington Mall and other public

Mrs. O'Hair and Jon Garth Murray filed separate suits, which were mailed last week to a U.S. District court in Washington, against "Karol Wojtyla, alias John Paul II. a.k.a. the Pope of Rome" and the Secretary of the Interior and U.S. Parks Service to prevent any Roman Catholic mass from being held on publicly owned land specifically the park between the Capitol and Washington

Doing so would violate constitutional principles of separation of church and state, Mrs. O'Hair and Murray told a news conference Monday at the American Atheist Center in Austin, Texas.

Jetliner Loses Tail Cone

BOSTON (UPI) — The National Transportation Safety Board today tried to determine how a DC-9 Air Canada etliner tail cone fell into the Atlantic Ocean at 25,000 feet, eaving a gaping hole in the plane's fuselage. The accident, reminiscent of a scene in the movie "Airport," forced an emergency landing. One minor injury was reported to the 43 people aboard. Flight 680 took off from Logan International Airport about 12:20 p.m. Monday. It was about 60 miles toward its Yarmouth and Halifax, Nova Scotia destination when the incident occurred, said Mike Ciccarelli, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman.

Thousands Seek Disaster Aid

PASCAGOULA, Miss. (UPI) — Thousands of stormweary Mississippi coastal residents jammed federal disaster aid centers Monday and officials announced that four more centers would be open by midweek. Officials in Harrison, Jackson and George counties said victims of Hurricane Frederic began lining up at the centers Sunday night. Most of the victims were reportedly seeking food stamps.

Several thousand Mississippians were left homeless counties into extreme southeastern and eastern portions of the state. No formal damage estimate has been made along the neon-lit vacation resort area, but civil defense officials said losses could be more than $200 million.

Judge Evicts Reporters

BEAUMONT, Texas (UPI) — A federal judge has again evicted reporters from a racketeering and drug smuggling trial - this time during testimony that a defense lawyer said would be extremely prejudicial. Although he has instructed jurors to avoid reading about the trial in newspapers, U.S. District Judge Joe Fisher Monday required reporters to leave four times while he screened testimony outside the jury's presence. Reporters were readmitted after each specific section of testimony was completed. Last week the judge ordered a reporter from the courtroom for chewing gum and at one point told journalists not to listen to testimony or at least not to report what they heard. The reporters present at the time walked out of the courtroom.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Supreme Court Justice William Brennan returned to work this week, under orders to do exercises to restore the use of his right hand which was impaired by a slight stroke two weeks ago. Cary said Monday Brennan was diagnosed as having Upcoming Humdinger?

Suddenly Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is seen as an active contender for the presidency. The nation's columnists and commentators can scarcely speak of anything else these days. A Kennedy bid has become almost a given in 1980.

To be sure, the senior senator from Massachusetts still adheres to that mystique of presidential politics wherein leading candidates coyly refrain at first from openly acknowledging their ambitions. But there's increasingly less doubt about it. As summer has eased into early autumn and President Carter's afflictions have appeared increasingly to be terminal, Sen. Kennedy has flashed unmistakable signals of his intentions.

Excitement over the emerging Kennedy candidacy was such at the recent New Hampshire Democratic rally that Gov. Jerry Brown was forced to play a weak second fiddle in his campaign appearance there.

Sen. Kennedy's announcement a few days ago that his possible presidential candidacy now has the blessings of his family removed his last obstensible reason. for remaining aloof. Predictably, this news sent Kennedy partisans and the liberal elements of the Democratic Party into an organizing stampede.

A firm Kennedy declaration has been promised no later than December and perhaps in November. It could come even sooner. Certainly it will be no later. By the time of the Jan. 21 Iowa caucuses, the filing dealines in five states already would have passed, including Illinois, New Hampshire and Massachusetts. And, although Kennedy enthusiasts promise smashing write in victories in New Hampshire and Massachusetts, by Feb. 26. the day of the New Hampshire primary filing deadlines would have passed, with access to the ballot closed in such key states as Florida, Pennsylvania and New York.

Clearly, President Carter's continuing weakness at the helm and his apparently irretrievable loss of public esteem have emboldened Sen. Kennedy and his followers to calculate that the risk of dividing the party and thereby delivering the White House to the Republicans is no longer significant. In fact, it appears more and more Democrats believe the greater risk now lies with Mr. Carter.

The Kennedy phenomenon seems to rise from a mass yearning for decisive action by a vivid personality — characteristics so lacking in the Carter makeup. Moreover, there's the nostalgic turning again for recaptured glory from the last of the magical brothers — the Chappaquiddick tragedy and other Kennedy problems notwithstanding. It arises, too, because the president has failed to build a reliable base for himself — not among the liberals who now constitute the Kennedy storm troopers, not among the conservatives, and not even among his fellow Southerners.

The result is a political mutiny without precise parallel in modern American history. Whereas Presidents Truman, Johnson and Ford all faced major challenges from within their ranks that helped to bring defeat or resulted in an earlierthan-planned retirement from the White House, they had one thing in common, not shared by Mr. Carter. They were vice presidents who became presidents by accident. Among recent presidents facing apostasies, only Mr. Carter was elected originally by the American people. No president so chosen within living memory has been renounced by his own party while still an incumbent.

If Mr. Kennedy succeeds in wresting the nomination from President Carter, as now seems probable, the stage will be set for the American people to decide. between the liberal foreign and domestic policies espoused by the senator and an unusually conservative platform being predicted for the Republicans. 1980 promises to be a hum-

"Show 'em · Greyhounds," said the slightly balding, middle-aged man as he watched Lyman knock off Lake Brantley last weekend. Satisfaction has been coming for a long time for Lyman boosters and it showed on the man's face.

The story in Longwood seems to be that coach Bill Scott, in his second year as head mentor, has the Greyhounds think "win." Scott says he doesn't know that it's so much different now than when he was an assistant coach, "but I know we are 2-0. That's different." At Seminole, things are about on schedule despite a 1-1 start.

said coach Jerry Posey. "I don't know who we are going to play against Edgewater. I'm too old, or I'd put on the pads myself."

Posey would prefer to have Arthur Jackson, a swift and elusive runner who hits with the power of a fullback, carrying the ball Friday night in the Tangerine Bowl against Edgewater.

WASHINGTON (NEA) - After speeding to the scene of a major train derailment, volunteer firefighters from the nearby rural community are confronted by an overturned tank car spewing acrid fumes over the countryside.

A ominous-sounding, five-syllable chemical name is stenciled in 4-inch-high letters on the other side of the ruptured car, but it provides no answers to the countless questions racing through the fire chief's mind as he struggles to avert disaster.

Tennis By LARRY CASTLE

All Hail New King, Queen

The U.S. Open is over for another year. The king and queen of American tennis have been dethroned and two bright and brash stars have emerged to reign as U.S. Open Champions.

The 1978 winners, Jimmy Connors and Chris Evert Lloyd, gave little resistance in relinquishing their titles and for the most part played lackluster and uninspired tennis. Chris looked tired and even bored with it all and Jimmy just could not manage to recapture the spark that in the past allowed him to pull himself up and pull out the win.

I suppose that when you have already won a couple of million dollars, been No. 1 in the world, won Wimbledon and the U.S. Open, there are few worlds left to conquer. The fierce drive is gone, the hungry all possessive desire to win seems to be weaker, it becomes easier to lose. We can all relate to this because once a goal is achieved in sports, business or whatever, we have a tendency to relax and live off the fruits of our labors.

for one feel that this is what has happened to Jimmy & Chris. am in no way convinced that Tracy Austin is as good as Chris or that John McEnroe is as good as Jimmy, and I'm betting that the next time they meet that the decisions will be reversed. They will be reversed, that is, if Chris and Jimmy have been sufficiently iolted out of their complacency. If not, then the young lions will

Austin is the youngest woman ever to win the U.S. Open. At 16 she is making a serious run at being ranked No. 1 in the world this year. A delightful, sunny, tenacious stroking machine, Tracy is a joy to watch. Her two-fisted backhand and forcing forehand are ultra steady and, unlike Chris at the same age, Tracy is not afraid of the net. Since the age of two Tracy has been stroking tennis balls, often seven or eight hours a day. Everyone knew from the time she was 10 or 12 that she was going to be good, few knew how the court and will wear her crown well. It may be only the first of

McEnroe is not as easy to love as Tracy or Chris or even Jimmy. In fact, he is downright hard to love. The fans at the U.S. native New Yorker. There is something about the young man that just turns people off. He is a raging, scowling, pompous and pampered brat on the tennis court. He seems to poison the air for all around him. I love to watch him play while the point is going on but hide my eyes between points. Off the court, McEnroe is quiet, almost shy. He is intelligent, articulate and generally a squared
