Kirk Is Right

It isn't often that we find our thinking going along the same lines that attract the mental capacities of our Republican Gov. Claude R.

Even rarer are the instances when we can whole-heartedly step along for at least two paces with the trend of his public utterances. But it did happen in Miami a few days ago -when he spoke out on two issues. These are the fundamentally important ones of vocational education and its status in the world of education and that of wise spending.

With characteristic boldness the governor asked: "Why should a youth be trained for a master's degree if he is going to work in masontraining - "job readiness" - be given its due has been made even in the hallowed Halls of Harvard.

It was at the same event that the discussion of education ran into a most usual critique - that of lack of funds. Governor Kirk, however, had this come-back as reported in the Miami Herald: "Shortage of money isn't the problem. The critical problem is the spending of the money properly!" We agree!

Such sayings have a habit, however, of performing the boomerang trick. In this instance we would trust that the governor would recognize that proper expenditure of money is, also, most welcome in the executive branch.
