Car Being Chased By Constable Hits Curve, Crashes

An automobile, being chased from Volusia County, went out of control as it hit the curve from Seminole Blvd. into French Ave. early Sunday morning.

However, the car, after skidding sideways for 50 to 60 feet and then skidding around, was not damaged.

Two Negroes, the driver and a woman passenger, were thrown from the car onto the pavement; another stayed in the car.

Constable O. D. Papineau chased the automobile from DeBarry when the driver left the scene after the owner of the car was arrested by a Florida Highway Patrol Trooper.

Papineau said "I have no idea how fast we were traveling."

Seminole County Deputy Sheriff Marion Driggers was awaiting at the French Ave. intersection for the speeding car. "It happened so fast I don't know how that automobile skidded into the position where it had stopped."

The Negro man, Richard Rogers, 44, of Daytona Beach, jumped from the pavement and ran into the woods west of French Ave.

The unidentified Negro woman was taken to Seminole Memorial hospital for treatment of a face and shoulder injury.

About 1:44 a. m. Sunday morning, Florida Highway Patrolman J. L. Sikes spotted the driver of the automobile. He was chased to Lake Monroe.

Sikes, Constable Papineau said, after the Negro climbed back over the road from Lake Monroe, was turned over to the Volusia County Constable.

Charges against Rogers, said Papineau this morning, are: No driver's license, reckless driving, willful and wanton, driving under the influence of intoxicating liquors, and unauthorized use of an automobile.

Family Argument Ends in Apparent Suicide Last Night

A 31-year-old auctioneer, Frederick Butler, who lived in the Westwood section of Seminole County, apparently took his own life shortly after 7 o'clock last night, climaxing a family argument.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UP)—A federal banking official today predicted that the South, once the nation's No. 1 economic problem, can climb close to the nation's per capita income level within 25 years.

Earle L. Rauber, vice president and director of research for the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta, made the forecast in a speech prepared for delivery before about 600 business and industrial leaders attending the opening session of a two-day conference on Dixie's economic future.

The meeting, sponsored by the Southern Research Institute here, sought to determine the prospects over the next quarter century for a state region stretching from Virginia to Louisiana.

The conference was built around the theme "30 million consumers" and Rauber laid the groundwork for following addresses by estimating population and income up to 1985.

Rises 22 Per Cent

Rauber said that the South's per capita income has risen 22 per cent between 1946 and 1956 as compared to 66 per cent for the nation.

Moreover, if existing trends continue to hold until 1985, per capita personal income in the South will then amount to $5,818 or 97.8 per cent of the national figure which would be $5,978," he said.

But, Rauber said, the South's financial improvement "is precisely because population in the South has not grown as rapidly as it has in the nation."

"Had the South retained most of its natural increase in population, its currently produced personal income would have to be divided out among more people and the per capita share would, therefore, be smaller.

Capital Investment

"The very optimistic income figure that gave for 1985 depends upon the persistence of two existing trends or rates of change . . . a rate of capital investment no smaller than at present, a rate of population growth that remains below that for the nation."

The Seminole County Chamber of Commerce Long Range Highway Planning Committee will meet Thursday night at 8:30.

Bratley Ockham, chairman of the county-wide committee, called the dinner meeting at Jim Spencer's Restaurant, in order to discuss Seminole County's road problems with J. Rolle Davis, Road Board member for this district.

Davis, who succeeded William A. Dial on the State Road Board, will meet members of the committee for the first time since his appointment.

Also expected at the meeting will be the engineering staff of the DeLand office of the State Road Department.

Reservations for the meeting should be made with the Chamber of Commerce office no later than Wednesday.

Municipalities Urged To Reject Constitution

Jaycee Scrapbook Wins First Place Honors In Contest

The Sanford-Seminole County Junior Chamber of Commerce came back from Tampa and the state convention of Florida Jaycees with honors in the scrapbook contest.

The local Jaycee organization won first place with its scrapbook on "Youth Welfare", "Activities", "Christmas Activities", and "Extension."

This year, for the first time, the Sanford-Seminole County Jaycee entries were judged in a population category of 15,000 to 50,000.

M. L. Raborn Jr., president of the local Jaycee organization, this morning said "I want to thank Dave Kligenamith who was in charge of preparing the scrapbooks and all who assisted him."

The new state president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce is Urie "Bunky" Blount of Deland, who is municipal judge there.

The principal speaker for the banquet was Senator George Smathers, who told the statewide Jaycee organization "I prepared an address on the place of young men in government." Senator Smathers discarded his prepared address in favor of discussing the South American situation.

The State Jaycee organization went on record opposing the proposed new State Constitution.

Local Jaycees attending the convention were: Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Tom McDaniel, Mr. and Mrs. G. Andrew Speer, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Raborn Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Bill Brunkey, and Dave Kligenamith.

GAINESVILLE (UP)—More than 2,000 Florida municipalities today received a report by the Florida League of Municipalities urging them to reject the new proposed constitution.

Chairman Sam Dell, Gainesville attorney, said the cities and towns received the reports today. The report, mailed by the League's executive committee, said the most objectionable feature of the proposed charter, which will be voted on in November, was a section authorizing the Legislature to enact general laws prohibiting local laws on any other subject.

League Executive Director Gordon Butler, Jacksonville, said the report did not concern the controversial reapportionment issue which has brought objections from other state organizations.

"We didn't discuss it from that angle," he said. Butler said the provision to which the league objected would enable legislators from areas far away from a municipality to prohibit enactment of local laws.

The league will also oppose a provision eliminating the 30 days notice through publication of the intention to apply for a local bill. He said it would be "disastrous" to municipalities because local officials would not be aware of legislation which would affect them.

In making the report, the executive committee confined its study to the sections of the proposed charter which deal directly with the constitutional status of municipalities.

Bartender Thought Hold-Up By Armed Bandit Was Joke

"I thought it was a joke," bartender Charles McLane, 44-year-old operator of the Deck Bar on 11-92, told investigating officers Saturday night, as he described the armed robbery of his bar.

McLane was shot in the right shoulder when a lone bandit walked into the bar shortly after 9 o'clock Saturday night and announced "This is a stick-up." The bartender told the lone gunman to "Go ahead, Buddy—there it is," as he pointed to the cash register.

The bandit took more than $100 from the cash register then shot McLane in the right shoulder with what is believed to be a 410 gauge shotgun pistol. After blasting McLane down he ripped open the bartender's pants pocket and took his purse.

McLane told officers that he believed the bandit got away in a coupe but didn't know in which direction the gunman fled.

Road blocks were set up at the Orange County line by deputies. The injured bartender was taken to Seminoles Memorial Hospital by Florida Highway Patrolman J. L. Sikes. He was later transferred to an Orange County hospital.

Other investigating officers included Deputy Sheriff Carl Smith and Marion Driggers.

Sanford Grown Gladioli To Be Displayed At Meet

Mervin Crandall left Sanford Saturday night with a load of flowers grown in the Sanford section to be used to publicize the local area.

Crandall will attend the National Association of Bank Auditors and Compilers convention as a delegate for the East Central Florida conference of bank auditors and controllers to be held in Rochester, N. Y.

A special bouquet of gladioli was sent to the Mayor of Rochester, Peter Barry, by Mayor Merle Warner.

There will be 30 dozen gladioli, all furnished by grower W. E. Kirchoff, on display in the lobby of the Powers Hotel where the convention headquarters is located.

"Crandall, the manager of Florida State Bank's Naval Air Station bank, said "There won't be a delegate to the convention that won't know that Florida, and especially Sanford, raises beautiful flowers."

He said "I hope that we'll have enough gladioli to give one to every delegate attending the national affair."

The convention extends through Wednesday. On his return, Crandall expects to bring back some of the beautiful lilacs grown in the Rochester section.

Gladioli for the convention left by plane and were slated to arrive in time to set up the Sunday display in the Powers Hotel lobby.

County Nurse Club's Speaker

Members of the Sanford Lions Club will hear a County Nurse tell about the activities of her department.

Mrs. Hulda Kibbe will be the principal speaker at the Tuesday noon luncheon meeting of the club. Ben Wade will preside at tomorrow's meeting in the absence of the club president W. Hugh Duncan.

Building Permits Drop Last Week

Building permits issued by the Seminole County Zoning Commission took a sudden drop last week.

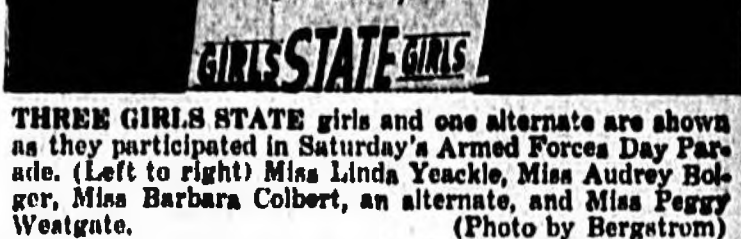

According to a report from the office of Robert S. Brown, director of the Seminole County Zoning Board, only 14 building permits were issued with revenue of $181 and an estimated valuation of $110,702.

In addition, said Brown, there were 17 electrical permits with revenue to the county of $127.50 and 14 plumbing permits with revenue of $113.

However, last week's permits will still put the county's home building above the $1 million mark for the last three weeks.

Resolution Urges Lions To Oppose Tax

Members of the Sanford Lions Club left for Sarasota Saturday morning to attend the annual Florida Convention of the Lions International.

W. Hugh Duncan, president of the local club, said he will present a resolution before the convention "urging the Lions Clubs of Florida to go on record opposing the application of the state sales tax to the sale and purchase of merchandise from which profits go to charity."

The resolution pointed out the Office of the Comptroller of the State of Florida has decided to make application of the "use or sales tax" applicable to the purchases made by the Lions Clubs for merchandise to be used in money raising activities. Duncan also emphasized that profit from the sale of merchandise is used to purchase eye glasses and other articles given to blind persons and in sight restoration.

It was revealed in the resolution that the Office of the Comptroller had taken records and books of the Winter Park Lions Club, Colonialtown Lions Club, and the Holden Heights Lions Club.

Duncan said in the resolution, which is also signed by Jim Cassidy, president of the Colonialtown Lions Club and Tom Kirchoff, State Secretary of Lions, that clubs have been billed for taxes and in some instances "tax warrants would be issued for force payment."

The convention is scheduled to end tomorrow at noon.

Other officers of the local club accompanying Duncan to the convention are D. H. Whitmore, director, and H. W. "Buddy" Rawls, president-elect.

Open Letter To People Of Sanford

By Commander Lewis D. Tamny, Acting Commanding Officer

On Saturday, May 17, 1958, the people of the United States were joined with their brothers and sisters in uniform in observing the ninth annual Armed Forces Day. The 1958 Armed Forces Day program had a direct impact upon more than 24 million people in the United States and abroad who participated in the observance of Armed Forces Day. In addition to the millions of others who learned more about our "Power for Peace" through newspapers, radio, television, and other media, the Armed Forces Day was established in 1950 by the Secretary of Defense, with approval of the President, to give official recognition to a single presentation by the Armed Forces of the United States in lieu of different dates previously observed by individual services.

From the first, the Armed Forces sense system. Capable of providing immediate retaliatory action either with conventional or nuclear weapons, these units are a mighty powerful deterrent to any act of aggression. The Naval personnel here at Sanford are proud to play a vital role in the defense of our country and doubly proud to be in an area where community/military relationships are on such a high plane. Armed Forces/Community relations can not be overstressed; we are both a part of the same team . . . the United States of America.

NAS Sanford is expanding and growing just as the civilian community of Sanford is expanding and growing. Conclusive proof of this is the construction now in progress at the Station. Over three million dollars has been appropriated for this and other programmed construction.

We are also growing in number of aircraft and personnel assigned. VAH-3 has already completed their transfer here and when VAH-1 reports aboard, NAS Sanford will then truly be the home of Heavy Attack Wing One. All Heavy Attack Units of the Atlantic Fleet will then be stationed aboard.

The support provided by NAS Sanford and its allied fleet units will then be a more grave responsibility than it is now. The wonderful community spirit and support which the people of Sanford and surrounding communities have shown us in the past will, of course, increase in like proportion.

We both, therefore, have an obligation to the Heavy Attack Squadrons and personnel. Our primary job is to provide material support to these units; yours—to provide warm welcome and hospitality and to accept these personnel into your community life. The City of Sanford is truly "Many Towns. We have worked and played together for the past seven years, and please believe us when we say "May the next seven years be equally enjoyable."

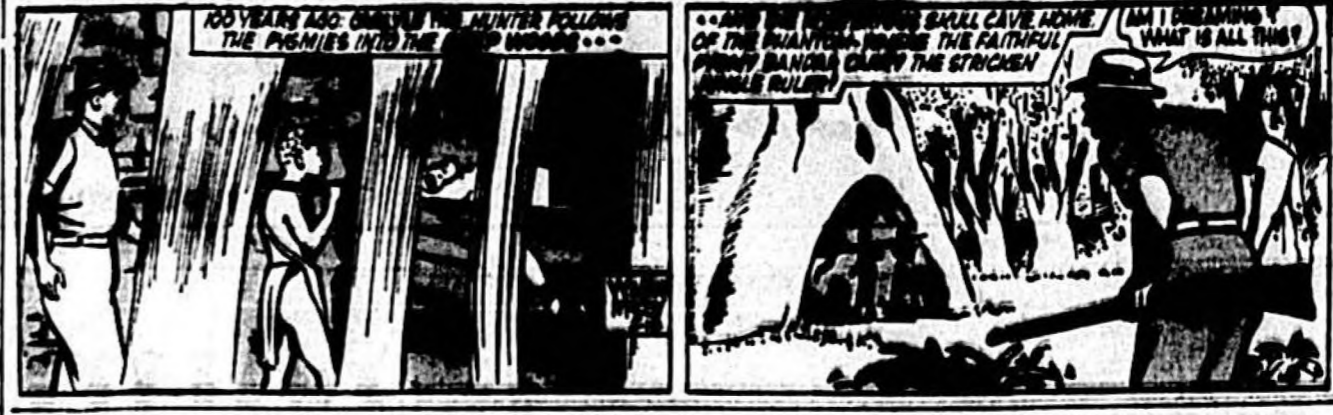

I hope we may celebrate together many more Armed Forces Days . . . in PEACE.

By Barry Locke

WASHINGTON, Va. (AP)—Nate W. Flint is celebrating his 62nd birthday by having a party in anticipation of his death.
The lumberman says "I'm going to die next week I may as well have a good time before I go."
Flint, who was born May 20, 1896, thinks he has good reason for his insistence that "My time to go has come."
"It's something that runs in my family," he said.
Family Died at 62
"My brother, George, died in 1931 at the age of 62. Another brother, Lucius, died in 1949, also at 62. My sister, Anne, and both my parents died in their 62nd year. The only choice I have is to believe I'm next. It must be something that runs in the family."
Far from brooding, the husky-voiced Flint has planned an "all-welcome" birthday party Sunday on the Washington school grounds. "I'm having the party two days early," he said, "to make sure I'm around for the occasion."
Flint already has distributed 1,000 leaflets announcing the party and plans newspaper advertisements "to make sure nobody misses out." The party will be from noon to 3 p. m.
Expecting about 2,500 guests, Flint has arranged for two bands to play "loud, gay music" while ice cream and cake is served to all concert.

THE LONE DEPUTY

WHAT HAS HAPPENED
Price Regan, town marshal of Reddie Rock, Colo., and deputy sheriff of Fremont county, has more on his mind than Laura Madden, even though she has announced that she is marrying her. Price would be willing enough to marry her, but if he mustn't the man, the middle in a struggle of power and pride between Laura's father, Harry Madden, Reddie Rock's banker, and Cole Weston, a cattlemen whose riders do not respect any laws.
Madden found out he didn't owe Price when he offered him a house as a wedding present in return for finding his horse-stealer, Price had Cronin out of the country. Price refused. What he really wanted was one of Cole Weston's stallions, the cowboy's Curly Blue. Price had a fight with Price. Blue came out second best, so Weston ordered a saddle horse, persuaded Weston to allow him to take the horse to Price's line without penalty.
Weston drove west settlers coming into the valley and obtaining land from Weston has been holding by force. Weston wants to make a forbidding example of Cronin. Price, his motives misunderstood by the horse-stealer, is now the object of the hostility of both sides in the struggle.

CHAPTER 11
"BRUCE," Susie Farnum called. "Come over here and ride with us."
Lizzie Potter started in object, but Jean broke in, "Sure, you go ahead, Bruce," and Lizzie was too worn out to do anything more than grumble at the object.
Dora Farnum rode on the seat with her father. There was barely room in the back for Bruce and Susie along with the beef carcass that was covered with canvas. The Potters had gone ahead. They'd pick up Frank Evans to ride with Jean. Lizzie had been trying to get them married for a year now, saying they'd all be better off because they could run both places together. That showed how stupid she was. Bruce thought "You didn't make one good farm by putting two poor ones together."
Dusk turned to night before they reached West Cronin's bar. Bruce and Susie didn't talk. They just sat holding hands, with Dora turning around to look at them every now and then. Bruce didn't like Dora. She was big and coarse, and thought Bruce was a sissy. Maybe he was, the way Dora looked at things, but it wasn't any of her business. Besides, he had his opinion of her. Susie was different. She was small and pretty and sweet.
When they went into the store, Lizzie was already at the dry-goods counter. Jean and Dora Farnum drifted over to stand beside her. George Farnum took a look at West Cronin's battered face and said, "What happened to you, son?"
"Met up with a bear," Cronin said. "You oughta see the bear. I'll bet." Farnum jerked a head. "Well, I've got three quarters of a beef in the wagon. Want me to fetch it in?"
"Sure. Bring it in."
Lizzie whirled from the counter. "Walt, it's stolen just like all the beef we eat is stolen."

A Child Contracting Polio Now Is "Tragic And Unforgivable"

Special emphasis is being placed on the danger of polio this summer. National figures have been quoted from time to time in this column and now some of our state officials are strongly pointing to the advisability of salk vaccine shots.

The state public health officials have again warned Florida citizens of the danger of polio attacking unimmunized children. State Health Officer Wilson Sowder and Doctors C. M. Sharp and James O. Bond all speak out sternly, reminding parents that immunization is available and that the terrible cripple can strike down the unprotected child.

Dr. Sowder issued the call for renewed efforts by professional and volunteer workers alike to complete the job of educating the population of the value of immunization. "We have a duty we cannot shirk," said Dr. Sowder. "Salk Vaccine is available and with it we can wipe the scourge of polio from our communities," he said.

No words would be too strong if they served to bring our people to action. We must, by all means, get our children and adults under forty to the physicians' offices and clinics, and make them safe from polio before the summer polio season begins.

Dr. Sharp, director of the Bureau of Preventable Diseases of the State Board of Health, was just as emphatic as was Dr. Sowder. "We've had our warning shot from the enemy," he said. And then went on to

Is Freedom A Dead Duck?

It is heartening to report that there has been a vast amount of protest over the ruling of the Internal Revenue Service concerning certain institutional advertising placed by the taxpaying electric utility companies of the country.

This advertising, in general, has presented the private enterprise side of the power question as against the socialized power side. And the IRS said that it could not be regarded as a legitimate business expense in making tax returns.

A typical view is found in a resolution passed by the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association: "... such a ruling... is a threat to freedom of speech, freedom of the press, and freedom to communicate, and this ruling infringes upon the constitutional rights of independent power companies, other businesses and individuals, and is a violation of the fundamental principles upon which this country was founded and which

Foreign News Commentary

By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

Last week's good and bad news on the international balance sheet: Riot and rebellion in Venezuela, Lebanon and Algeria and a threatened political explosion in France made newspaper headlines this week.

In all four countries, anti-American outbreaks were part of the picture.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon was stoned, cursed and spat upon by Communist-incited mobs in Caracas, capital of Venezuela, at the wind-up of his "good will" tour of Latin America.

President Eisenhower regarded the incident as so serious that he ordered Marines and paratroopers down to Caribbean bases within easy reach of Caracas for use if the Venezuelan government "requested assistance" in keeping order.

Gen. Charles de Gaulle, wartime leader of free France, threw the French political situation into turmoil by announcing: "I hold myself ready to take over the powers of the Republic."

De Gaulle, "strong man" regarded by many as a potential dictator, issued his statement after French troops, demanding a fight to the finish against the rebels, took charge in Algeria and called for a De Gaulle government.

Pierre Pflimlin had been confirmed by Parliament as France's

27th postwar premier when De Gaulle made his statement. Mobs had rioted in Paris, demanding that De Gaulle be put in power, and had tried to storm the National Assembly and the U. S. embassy.

Tough paratroop Gen. Jacques Massu led the Army movement in Algeria.

Watching a state grow like watching a child grow, especially if it is your state and your child. You don't notice much change from day to day but the change is occurring just the same and before you realize it both have grown up.

Most of us live in a sort of restricted circle. We know what is happening in our own backyard or down the street but we do not grasp the overall picture of growth and development taking place all over the state.

With this thought in view the Florida State Chamber of Commerce recently issued a comprehensive story that gives us a word picture of what has and is happening in Florida.

From it we learn that Florida has over four million permanent residents whose combined incomes total over six and a half billion dollars and that's a lot of lettuce in anybody's language.

We are gaining new residents at the amazing rate of 2,800 each week. As they are scattered over the state, this influx is hardly noticed but if they all located in one place it would create a new city the size of Chicago, Frostproof or Ocala. Think of 28 such communities being established in Florida every year and you will begin to get the idea.

Add to this number of newcomers from other states our present internal population increase of about 1,100 births and you have a total of 4,000 new people that require food, shelter, clothing, etc. These are new consumers and greater buying power.

Some of these new residents are older folks with income or pensions that permit them to retire, but the larger number are executives, business men and laborers who need in constantly increased number to work in the many new industries, large and small that are being established and older ones that are constantly expanding.

While tourism and the citrus industry are still strong factors in our economy we now have many other avenues of income and employment found in our growing cattle industry, pulp and paper industry, commercial fishing, truck farming, garment and textiles, and countless others.

Big corporations such as Chemstrand near Pensacola and the United States Sugar Corporation at Clewiston employ many thousands while small industries give work to anywhere from a dozen to several hundred workers.

The commercial production of rams in the Everglades gives promise of providing us with another giant industry in the production of this valuable fiber which has several times the strength of cotton. About 2,500 acres are now being grown and much larger acreage is contemplated.

The years ahead are bright with promise for Florida. Top financiers of the nation have their eyes on us, the country's leading industries

85,000 Families Will Be Displaced In 1959

By LOUIS CARROLL
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Arrangements are being made to relocate the residents of the project area.

That sentence usually appears prominently in the public announcement of a new slum clearance project. To people who are not directly affected, it carries the reassuring implication that no one will be hurt by the municipal face-lifting operation.

But to slum dwellers whose homes are marked for destruction, relocation is an ominous word. It means they have to move from a neighborhood which, however "blighted," is at least familiar. For many of them, there is no place to go—except to another slum.

The plight of these urban DP's attracted little public attention in the past, when slum clearance projects were few and far between.

Today, however, virtually every city in the country has one or more major civic improvement projects in progress or on paper.

Federal housing officials estimate that about 85,000 city families will be uprooted from their homes during the next year as a result of "government action."

About one-third of them will be displaced by slum clearance projects carried out with federal financial aid under the Urban Renewal Act of 1954. As of March 31 there were 325 such projects in various stages of planning and execution in 317 cities.

The remaining two-thirds of the families will be ousted to make way for new highways, schools and other public buildings, or as a result of condemnation proceedings against dwellings that violate municipal building codes.

To qualify for federal financial aid a community must demonstrate that it has a "workable plan" for relocating the displaced families.

Theoretically, the "workable plan" must show that "decent, safe and sanitary" housing is available in the community for each displaced family, at a price or rental that family can afford.

In actual practice, the community sets up an official relocation agency which does its best to help each family find quarters at least as good; and if possible better, than the slum housing being evacuated.

Have Priority
About half of the families displaced by urban renewal projects are in the bottom income brackets eligible for admission to low-rent public housing. They have a priority on available vacancies in such housing. But a government survey last fall showed that only 34 percent of the evacuees from urban renewal sites actually move into public housing.

Where do the rest go? The survey showed that 12 per cent buy homes. About 10 per cent move into private rental units which they find for themselves—but which the relocation agency later inspects and certifies to be "standard" housing.

The rest scatter far and wide, some into known slums, others into borderlines housing. A substantial number—about 10 per cent —already sleepers. In official reports, they move into "substandard" dwellings, the location of which is not known.

A few cities go beyond the minimum requirements of federal law and provide relocation services to all families displaced by government action—the evacuees from highway rights-of-way and other projects as well as those in "urban renewal" areas.

New York, Philadelphia, Cincinnati and New Haven, Conn., are among the cities that have attempted to help relocate all types of displaced families.

SHM Becomes Mariner
Housing officials agree that the shifting is becoming harder all the time. The number of new public housing units that can be built each year is limited by law to a maximum of 35,000. During the past two fiscal years, actual construction averaged only half of that.

Section 221 of the Housing Act authorizes 40-year-no-down-payment mortgage guarantees for private builders who put up homes costing $9,000 or less for families displaced by urban renewal projects. But to date, construction commitments have been made on only 5,000 such units in the entire nation.

The law also authorizes long-term government loan guarantees for mortgagee agencies or non-profit private groups that will undertake to build rental housing for slum displacées. But only three such projects are underway in the country—two in Columbus, Ohio, and one in Pittsburgh.

One complicating factor in the relocation problem is that about 60 per cent of the families displaced from condemned slums are members of minority groups. For them, income is not the only barrier to finding a "decent, safe and sanitary" home elsewhere.

The Mosquito Problem Is Your Concern, Too

By HERMAN H. BUNDSEN, M. D.
MOSQUITOES are pretty much like the weather: everybody talks about them, but nobody does a great deal about them.

Oh, I know that many communities conduct extensive mosquito control programs and many of these are highly successful. But except for slapping at one of the pests who happens to be biting you, most of you do little about ridding your own neighborhood of these hungry insects.

Mosquitoes are your enemies. From May until about October they make things pretty annoying for almost everyone who ventures outside.

Stamp Them Out
Like an enemy, they should be stamped out as thoroughly as possible. Killing one or two here and there helps, of course, especially if accomplished early in the season. But you can do a lot more simply by eliminating any mosquito breeding places around your home.

Mosquitoes require water. Because of this, you should remove all rain barrels, stagnant pools, even tin cans from your home. In short, get rid of anything that can collect water.

Although mosquitoes do not actually reproduce in shrubbery and tall grass, they frequently can be found nesting there.

Spray Screens
Best way to keep them out of your house, of course, is to keep windows and doors screened. As an added precaution, you can spray the screens with aerosols such as DDT and pyrethrum.

These aerosols are also good for spraying the inside of the house. For best results, clean all windows and doors tightly while you spray and keep them closed for about 15 minutes after you have finished the job. This will give the insecticide enough time to destroy the insects wherever they may be hiding.

A little thought early in the season will prevent a lot of annoying itching later on.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
Mrs. T. H.: My child is now recovering from a liver infection due to a virus. Should I disinfect his room?
Answer: It is not likely that the infection can be spread by objects in the room. Therefore, disinfecting the room would not be of help.

Chamber Of Commerce Week— 'Your Business Is Our Business'

By GEORGE BELL
Staff Assistant, Seminole County
Chamber of Commerce

"They're a chamber of commerce just about every town in Florida. Just what do they do?"

Up to this point in the interview with the thin faced youngster from Georgia I had asked the questions. He had come to our office with a hungry look and less than fifty cents in his pocket after a fruitless search for work that had taken him as far south as Tampa. Somewhere along the line he had picked up a myth about a labor drawing $30.00 a day in Seminole County.

Female curiosity bolstered by my interest as a mother in any footloose boy of sixteen had prompted me to dig pretty deeply into his personal affairs. Now it was his turn to ask something, and he chose a question that rocked me back on my wedges almost as violently as that one from the victim of hay fever, "What's the reason you come to Sanford?"

The lad has long since, I hope, returned to fatback, cornbread, biscuit and other bone-padders of the land of cotton (his gaunt little frame was badly in need of an additional fifteen pounds), and I am still searching for a simple one-sentence answer to his question. But the functions of a chamber of commerce, genus Florida, are like the points of a palmetto frond; all radiate from a common center and they're hard to package!

What do they do . . . these chambers of commerce throughout the state? Primarily, one might pontifically explain to the Georgia boy, a chamber of commerce is organized to promote and publicize the advantages of a certain area, an accomplishment that may be brought about by one salaried employee who does his own janitoring or a staff of thirty.

Obviously a chamber can no more profitably advertise quality and then produce less than it advertises than the corner haberdasher can spread word around that he offers class merchandise . . . which turns out to be class, but D. For this reason, chambers of commerce constantly work to improve what they are trying to sell. The first motion written up in many a minute book to record plans for a community project is the one about asking the chamber of commerce to help.

In the minds of some, alas, the name chamber of commerce still has a connotation carried over from an earlier day when it was synonymous with beauty contests and/or exaggerated statements about business, weather, employment and the number of bass caught yearly on the first cast. There was perhaps a time when Florida Chambers depended a great deal upon leg art and brush statements for publicity. But that adolescence is behind them now. Florida is competing with other southern states for industry and the year-around resident, and she is not doing it with these-saks . . . although there is a place for that too.

The figures which interest industry have nothing to do with bust and hip measurements. Industry wants statistics . . . very dry bones compared with something about 5'8" tall, weighing 150 pounds counting the spike heels. Unless it is related to an annual weather report, the poetic phrase describing tropical moonlight on the water (with little license to exaggerate) is of little value in material assembled for some manufacturer.

The larger chambers now employ technical experts to cope with industrialists who are investigating new territory for expansion. Graphs and solemn columns of figures often impressively bound in leather are the order of the day for presentation to the company which is "looking around."

And for the thousands of families shopping for a place to establish their retirement homes, the chambers no longer prepare brochures featuring nothing but cover girls without much cover. Since comparatively few of the middle-aged have madrides that are at their best when bared to the sun, they much prefer shots of "Toujours" town chambers employ especially trained men and women to arrange entertainment for visitors, and it's not to be good because the next town may be offering something pretty ambitious. Today's tourist is not satisfied just to sit in the sun and get tanned; he is younger than the tourist of twenty or thirty years ago and there is plenty of life in the old boy yet. Programs to keep him busy are now so varied that his problem is not to find something to do but what to choose.

To carry on their many activities Florida chambers of commerce very in also from the small cross-roads organization with a voluntary secretary to those with as many as fifteen specialized departments. The in-betweeners, such as the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, answer the mail, plan the publicity, make the outside contacts, compile statistics and bone up on the latest goings on as reported in local newspapers in preparation for inevitable questions such as, "Who is head of the Garden Club?" and "Will the social security man be here this week?"

Mail received by Florida chambers is prodigious. It is not unusual for one of the larger organizations to receive and answer 7,000 to 10,000 pieces of mail in one month. That, in anybody's post office box, is a heap. And from my own experience I can practically guarantee that about 4,000 of those letters began something like this: "My wife and I are coming to Florida to live. Please send us a list of available jobs. We can do anything." Doubtless a fourth of the inquiries asked about the price of a small home on a half acre of land near churches, shopping district and good lakes for fishing. Hundreds of letters would be from school kids whose teachers sliced 'em onto Florida chambers as assignments in geography or social studies. One woman would want help locating the green topper she left at a fruit stand . . . the name of which has slipped her mind but it was on the left side of the road going north somewhere between Winter Haven and St. Augustine. And there would be requests for everything, including a banana plant (just a teeny little one) and free samples of the products "for which your city is famous."

So far this year at Sanford we have answered mail from 66 states, Brazil, Canada, Germany, and Hawaii. Once in a while, oh, joyous day! an office caller risks flattening us all out in a faint by announcing, "I've come to Sanford to look around because I liked the information you sent me when I was in Japan."

There is no business like chamber of commerce business, especially in Florida, but for good definition of it someone will probably have to run one of those contests . . . "A chamber of commerce is . . . (to be completed in 35 words or less)!"

Tax Assessor, Collector Declare More Space Needed

The Seminole County Tax Collector and Tax Assessor both appeared before the Board of Seminole County Commissioners this morning asking for "more space."

The needs are urgent and now. Tax Collector John Galloway told the commissioners.

"We are pressed for space because the county is growing to such an extent additional equipment has been added to take care of the demand and we don't have room to put it," Galloway said.

"I know that the commissioners are considering building a new Court House," explained Galloway, "but additional space is needed badly to carry on the operation of the two county offices."

Galloway recommended that the Board of Commissioners consider extending the two offices east to the alley. "I think that this additional space would help us greatly at the present time."

Commissioners talked over details of the proposed expansion with Tax Collector Galloway at noon today.

Excise Tax 'Unfair' Says Phone Official

Of every dollar collected from a subscriber last year for telephone services, the Winter Park Telephone Company paid out 27.7 cents for various taxes. J. K. Galloway, Executive Vice President, told the Winter Park Kiwanis Club, Monday night.

Of this portion, he explained, 8.1 cents was for Federal excise taxes, 2.3 cents for city utility taxes, three cents for "other taxes" and 6.3 cents went to pay the company's income taxes on operating income.

Labeling the Federal excise tax on telephone subscriber bills as "unfair," Galloway reminded his audience that the tax was imposed as a "war-time" tax years ago and still remains, "while many such excise taxes have been discontinued." There is, for instance, he continued, "no Federal excise tax on electricity, water or other utility bills."

"This unfair tax," he insisted, "should be discontinued and I suggest that you write Senators Smathers and Holland and Congressman Herlong and tell them so."

Of each dollar paid by a subscriber he said "24 cents was collected for the Federal Government, the City Government and the Bell System. That is over one-third of the total you pay for telephone services."

In further analyzing the "breakdown" of a subscriber's dollar paid for telephone service, Galloway reported that 38.6 cents was used for operating expenses last year, amounting to $615,000 of the $1,594,000 subscribers paid the company last year. Operating expenses, he showed, consisted of wages, replacement parts, postage, water, electricity, depreciation and other miscellaneous necessary items.

Turning to the financial structure of the company, Galloway reported that dividends paid to holders of preferred stock last year amounted to $42,000 and dividends on common stock were about $45,000. After these were paid, $37,000 was left in the business as a part of the common equity.

In explaining how the Company undertook its heavy expansion program during the past few years, Galloway showed that money was raised through the sale of bonds and debentures and through negotiating bank loans. First mortgage bonds, debentures and bank loans totaled 48% in long-term debt. He also reported that the company recently arranged for the sale of two million dollars in company bonds to finance future expansion plans.

Discussing telephone subscriber rates, he explained how the Florida Railroad and Utilities Commission

Flames Destroy Oviedo Home This Morning

A frame dwelling and all of its contents were destroyed this morning in Oviedo shortly after 3 o'clock.

The home, owned by J. Emmet Priest, is located in Oviedo just across from the Oviedo Methodist Church.

Elbert Beasley, who lives next door to the building which was destroyed, was the first at the scene. He had gone to the fire station and secured one of the fire trucks and returned to the blaze.

Mr. and Mrs. Priest were in South Florida at the time of the fire. A son was the only occupant of the house. He had roused the Rev. George H. Carlton, pastor of the Methodist Church.

The one story frame dwelling was almost destroyed when fire apparatus arrived.

The two fire trucks were used to keep the fire from spreading to other homes in the area.

There was no estimate of the damage available.

FHA Officials Talk To Builders

More than 30 interested realtors and builders heard FHA officials last night suggest ways of "getting government aid in housing and developments for DeBary."

V. R. Hollis Jr., of the Tampa FHA office, told the group that he was impressed with what he saw in DeBary. "I feel that this part of the state is the backbone and center of Florida," he said.

"I would like to see government aid here in DeBary to encourage better housing conditions with sound mortgage markets and longer term loans to older people,"

Dulles: U. S. Will Ignore Soviet Threats

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles served notice on Russia today that the United States will do what it considers is right and proper in any area of the world, regardless of any Soviet threats.

Dulles' statement was a direct answer to weekend warnings by Russia that it could not stand idly by if the West intervened in strife-torn Lebanon.

Dulles told a news conference he does not consider it likely under present conditions that Lebanon will need any help in putting down threats from outside the country.

Dulles also indicated that the administration feels it has broad authority under the Eisenhower Doctrine to help in the Middle East, but he said the doctrine was understood, he referred to the Mansfield amendment to the doctrine which declared that a threat to the security of any nation is illegal to U. S. security.

Dulles said he assumed Congress had a special reason for legislation. But he refused to say flatly yes or no when asked whether the wording gave the administration authority to go in the defense of the Middle East nation without further recourse to Congress.

The secretary said the United States expects France to find a solution to the French crisis in line with past traditions of the country. But Dulles said it would be inappropriate for him to comment directly on France's troubles.

Five Criminally Insane Saw Way Out Of Hospital

RALEIGH, N. C. (UP)—Five criminally insane patients, including one who once threatened to kill former President Harry S. Truman, sawed their way to freedom Monday night from the Dix Hill State Hospital here.

A hospital spokesman said the five inmates sawed their way out of an upstairs window in the criminally insane section of the hospital.

He said the escape took place between 7:15 p. m. and 8 p. m. and was discovered at about 9:45 p. m.

The spokesman said he was not familiar with the case histories of savings and loan association at Albemarle, N. C. Shadrick, who claimed his brother was the first American soldier killed in the Korean War, said he wanted money to finance a trip to Independence, Mo., to kill Truman, whom he blamed for his brother's death.

The other fugitives were identified as L. C. Riley, 32, Hobby Hallance, 20, Sydney P. Buckette, 29, and A. E. Walden, 30.

The men and "could not say" whether they were considered dangerous.

Chapman Named To Zoning Board

A new member has been appointed to the Seminole County Zoning Board to replace Col. S. G. Jarline who resigned because of "press of business" and absence from the city.

Bert Chapman was named this morning by the Board of Seminole County Commissioners, as a member of the County's Zoning Board.

Chapman was recommended to the Board by Commissioner Homer Little.

School Board Opposes Special Registration

The Seminole County Board of Education, represented this morning before the Board of Seminole County Commissioners by its attorney, Douglas Stenstrom, requested that "no further consideration be given to the request for a special registration of freeholders for a special bond election to be held in the fall."

The Board has decided that it is best to go into the next election with the present registration just completed by the Supervisor of Registration, Senator Stenstrom told the Board of Commissioners.

Also at this morning's meeting, in addition to Senator Stenstrom, were Seminole County Superintendent of Public Instruction R. T. Milnes, and John Hunsley, chairman of the Board of Education, and W. E. Patrick, member of the Board of Education.

It was first announced this morning at the commissioner's meeting that "there is some disagreement between the Board of Education and the County Commissioners regarding the proposed special registration."

Resolutions requesting the special registration were to be prepared and submitted at this morning's meeting for approval of the Board of County Commissioners. However, the request that no consideration for the special registration be given, eliminates the necessity for resolutions and further steps to be taken setting up "special lists" of freeholder voters for bond elections to be held in Seminole County.

Freeholders already registered with the Seminole County Supervisor of Registration, and registrations completed during the time registration books are open, will be eligible to vote for the special school bond election on Sept. 9.

Commission Will Not Waive Ruling On Pipe Installation

The Board of County Commissioners refused to budge from his regulations requiring certain types of drainage pipe to be installed in subdivision development.

Hugo Wolf, representing Prairie Lake Manor, asked that the board of Commissioners waive its rules requiring installation of pipe in line of curb and gutters which he said "would drain the area into Prairie Lake."

W. M. Hoag, county engineer, told the Board of Commissioners "We have regulations to follow set up by a registered engineer employed by the county."

"We went into this thing with our eyes open," said the consulting engineer employed by the County, and now "are we going to lower our sights or are we going to raise them?"

Commissioner Fred Dyson explained "I see no reason to employ an engineer to set up standards and then change them."

Acting Commission Chairman Homer Little told the developers "We have rules to go by and reputable engineers to make them and I for one will go by them."

Wolf explained to the Board of Commissioners that if "he was required and the waiver not considered "We will install open ditches instead of curb and gutters."

The Board of Commissioners refused to change its regulations.

Pay Station Phones Ripped From Walls

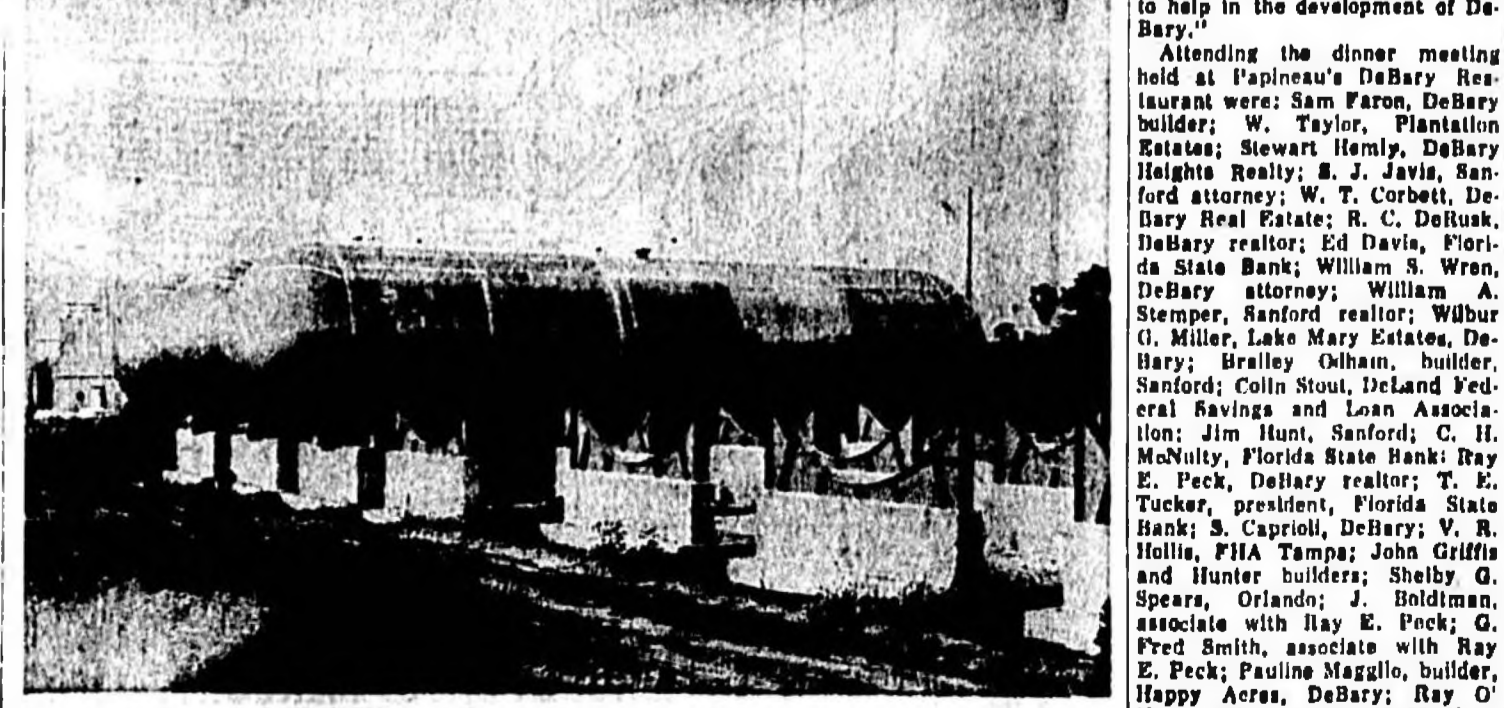

A telephone just isn't any good unless it is connected to other telephones by a series of wires.

That's the reason a couple of No-r-d-walls will be terribly disappointed when they break open a couple of telephones literally ripped from the walls, and find 20 cents or less in them.

Group Manager Bob Shelden of Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Co. in Sanford revealed yesterday that pay station telephones were yanked off the walls at the Municipal Swimming Pool and at Seminole Memorial Baseball Stadium.

The missing telephones were reported to Shelden by City Manager Warren E. Knowles when on opening the municipal swimming pool to put it in shape for summer use it was found there was no telephones. On investigation it was found the pay station phone had been removed in the same manner from the baseball park.
