Advanced Radar System Called Key To Air Safety

NEW YORK (UP)—Huge radars with 40-foot-wide antennas, mounted on 75-foot-high steel towers, may hold the key to safer and more efficient flights in the impending jet age of civil aviation. Steelways, official publication of American Iron and Steel Institute, said big radars, 75 of them, would span the skies in circles of 300-mile diameter and give controllers a picture of en route air traffic in almost every part of the country. Other types of radar would help break the costly present-day bottlenecks at airports. The publication said that whether these and other improvements in our obsolete air traffic control system come into being depends on putting into action a proposed billion-dollar government program to adapt the system to present and future needs. The government modernization calls for expenditures by 1962 of $810,000,000 for new radars, navigation aids and other airway improvements with the additional sums going mainly for a more-than-doubled corps of personnel who operate and maintain America's airways.

Home Buyers Will Get More For Money

CHICAGO (UP)—The 1958 home buyer won't be paying any less but he'll be getting more house for his money, according to the United States Savings and Loan League. The league said the recession has prompted many leading builders to add "real value" to their product in the form of better locations, better design, better equipment and more space. The league also said that approximately 10 million American families move from one house or apartment to another every year. It noted that one million of these movers buy new houses, providing a "huge, ready-made market" for builders who can construct a house that is considerably better than an old house, and which sells at a reasonable price.

European Schools System Not Comparable To American Plan

To make general comparisons between the European and American educational systems is difficult because each is based on a different concept of education.

That is the opinion of the editors of Changing Times magazine.

The timely article points out that the European systems are for the intellectual elite where tough testing programs tend to favor children from upper social and economic brackets and classes. The American educational system, on the other hand, is geared to educating every child.

The only fair comparison between the two systems is with our bright students who may attend our best colleges and make honor societies.

At the professional level, training in the United States is as good as it is abroad, often much better. Witness the fact that here in our country we enroll more foreign students than Europe does Americans—over 40,000 a year.

The magazine article points up another important fact: At the age of 16, less than 90 per cent of European youths are in school, while in the United States some 70 per cent are studying. At the ages of 18 to 20, about 25 per cent of our boys and girls are in school. In Europe, fewer than 10 per cent are receiving academic training.

Suppose the American youth were faced with this: As early as the age of 10 or 11, the European youth takes a tough national examination. If he does well he is permitted to attend an academic high school where he prepares for the university. If he doesn't, he takes a general course, perhaps a vocational course, and then drops out of school at about 15.

Youngsters who do get into the academic high schools and stay the full time receive the rough equivalent of an American high school academic course plus two years of college. But the going is rocky, and a great many drop out—in England, some 80 per cent.

At the age of 17 or 18, European students who have survived take another stiff national examination. Anyone who fails cannot go to the university and is also shut off from the best government and executive jobs.

European schools work children very hard. A French 10-year-old, for instance, puts in about 45 hours a week on school and homework. Youngsters are drilled endlessly on basic subjects. Students going to college seem to have a better academic background than the American undergraduate. But, keep these differences in mind when you are comparing the systems.

European students get stronger doses of traditional subjects. Ours get a bigger and a better grounding in the social sciences—economics, political science, sociology, psychology.

Relations between teacher and student are easier in America. European schools are more formal and discipline in lower grades is tougher.

We train our children more conscientiously than Europeans do in non-academic things—how to understand and get along with people, how to take an active part in the political and economic world in which they live. Our students can develop special talents through extracurricular activities such as student government, dramatics, publications.

Although the European educational standards are better than ours, it doesn't automatically follow that their school systems are better than ours.

As the editors in Changing Times point out, there is no doubt that our schools need improvement and could pick up a few pointers from the Europeans. But quite a few people over there are dissatisfied with their schools, too.

As for the Russian educational system, that is something else again. Everyone hears how efficient the Russian schooling is supposed to be. But remember that all USSR students take rigid national examinations in order to pass the fourth, seventh and tenth grades. Above the secondary level, the government fixes quotas for enrollment in various fields and assigns graduates to jobs in industry.

Political supervision and indoctrination permeate all schooling in Russia. Boys get regular military instruction. Tenth graders practice with live ammunition.

School and home assignments are so heavy that physicians complained publicly that students were suffering from "chronic overexhaustion."

There are no schools in the world compared to schools in America. And to be convinced each citizen should have an opportunity to talk to even just one of the 40,000 foreign students who enroll in United States schools every year. Their appreciation of our democratic and educational standards go beyond description.

Americans love their schools—and the continued growth each year is proof that education is predominantly ahead of every child capable of attending school whether poor, average or wealthy.

There is no comparison—American schools are better schools and will remain that way as long as we maintain our individual rights and each state maintains its rights to make schools better and better—because American citizens want them so.

Too Late To Classify

By Russell Kay

The desire to know is keen in all of us, yet much of the information we claim to possess is faulty. Whenever people congregate to talk, they will argue. We glibly state that such and such a point is the highest, that such a location is the oldest, a bridge is the longest, an airplane the fastest and so on. Claims and counter claims are made, based on something we have read or heard but have never attempted to verify.

Last week while visiting my friend J. L. Edgerton in Atlanta I found a book in his library that had just about all the answers and it was truly fascinating.

"The Guinness Book of Superlatives," published by Superlatives Inc., 170 Madison Ave., N. Y. 16, N. Y. tells you what is the largest, smallest, highest, fastest, slowest, rarest, richest, hottest, coldest, oldest, loudest, mostest, etc. The limits of everything in, on, and beyond the earth are defined. The extremes of human endurance and endeavor, and the extent of man's achievement are all recorded.

From the most distant heavenly bodies to the oldest known cat, from the most popular "pop song" to the recorded number of divorces, this book gives the answer.

Florida is listed as having the longest coastline of any state in the U.S.A. St. Augustine is listed wholly within the limits of the United States in Lake Superior and not Okechobee as some claim.

The rarest bird in the U.S.A. is the North American Ivory-billed woodpecker which may be extinct but was last seen in Florida.

While St. Augustine has long claimed the Oldest House, the oldest dwelling is a 12th century adobe Indian structure located in Santa Fe, N. M., dated before 1180 A. D. The Oldest frame house is the Fairbanks House in Dedham, Mass. built by Jonathan Fayrbanks in 1636, still standing in its original form. The brightest Lighthouse is the Hillsboro Inlet light in Florida. Marine Studios at Marineland is listed as the world's first oceanarium. Cypress Gardens is the world's Water Ski capital.

The highest altitude attained by the sun in the continental U. S. is 88 degrees in southernmost Florida. The lowest recorded sea-level barometric pressure was at Long Key, Sept. 2, 1903. Lakeland can claim title as having the most thunder storms of any city in the U. S. The annual average of thunder storms in the Lakeland area is 101 days. Florida is listed along with Arizona, California and Nevada where weather stations have reported the least fog.

The highest elevation in Florida is listed as a location in Walton County, 348 feet. The largest lake

Han River Bridge Back To Pre-war Condition

By MANUEL KIM
United Press Staff Correspondent

SEOUL—(UPI)—One of this capital city's few remaining major scars of the Korean conflict was erased with the completion of reconstruction of the historical Han River bridge.

The 2,702-foot-long highway bridge was reopened to traffic after several months of repair work which brought it back to pre-war condition.

Following a brief ceremony on the sand bank just below the bridge, President Syngman Rhee cut a multicolored tape and became the first man to cross the bridge since it was closed last fall.

Built by the Japanese in 1937, the highway bridge has been the southern gateway to the city of Seoul, spanning the historic Han River across which many a bloody battle was fought during the three-year Korean conflict.

"OK army engineers blew it up immediately after North Korean Communists entered Seoul in the early morning hours of June 28, 1950, only three days after the war broke out.

Temporary repairs

The demolition helped keep the Communist troops from advancing beyond the river for a week, giving badly battered South Korean forces valuable time to regroup.

But the engineer officer who gave the order later was court-martialed and executed for knocking the bridge off a little too early, thereby cutting the escape route for thousands of friendly troops and fleeing civilians.

After the United Nations forces recaptured Seoul for the second time in the summer of 1951, the bridge was repaired for temporary military use.

With the return of the ROK government to Seoul from the wartime capital city of Pusan in 1953, Korean officials began drawing up plans to rehabilitate it.

Necessary materials began to arrive early in 1957 under the American aid program, and the work to build the historic span and steel spans that were knocked out started in March the same year.

Foreign News Commentary

By CHARLES H. MCCANN
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The East German Communist puppet government apparently is about to win a diplomatic victory over the United States.

The victory lies in the fact that the United States is being compelled to deal directly with the Red regime, which it does not recognize, to effect the release of nine American soldiers who landed their last helicopter in East Germany in a storm on June 7.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles made the decision to deal directly with the puppet government, emphasizing as he did so that his action will not mean diplomatic recognition.

In the past, in frequent incidents like the present one, the United States has dealt with Soviet Russian negotiation forces in East Germany.

This time, the Russians refused to act. They said that the East German government alone was competent to negotiate the soldiers' release.

Reparable Fact

This was a flagrant repudiation of Russia's obligations under the four-power agreement under which Germany was partitioned after World War II.

On the surface, the incident means little. It is simply one of the innumerable disputes that have arisen between the United States and Soviet authorities in divided Germany.

Everybody knows that the East German Reds are the most servile of Russia's puppets. The territory which, with Soviet support, they keep under subjection is occupied by 400,000 Russian troops. Moscow directs every move that the East German regime makes.

The nine American soldiers are being held as hostages with Russian connivance. Their ransom price in United States consent to deal with the East Germans instead of Russia for their release, in agreeing to direct negotiations, Dulles explained that in a kidnapping case it is necessary to deal with the kidnapers.

But Dulles' action has roused considerable misgiving in United States Army headquarters in Frankfurt, West Germany, and in the West German Capital of Bonn.

Might Set Precedent

The Army men are looking ahead to possibly more serious incidents in the future in which Russia, for instance, might use the present precedent to impede communication between Berlin and West Germany, which are separated by a 110-mile belt of Red-ruled territory.

The Bonn government is concerned because it feels that every concession to the Russians and the East Germans sharpens the division of Germany between East and West.

This anxiety was shown clearly when President Tito of Yugoslavia recognized the East German regime last October. Tito did that largely to improve trade relations. He knew West Germany would be annoyed but thought he could get away with it. He was wrong—West Germany abruptly cut off diplomatic relations with Yugoslavia.

There is nothing West Germany can do in the present instance. But it depends on the United States as its main support against any encroachment by Russia and it does not want to see the United States make any concessions to Russia through the East Germans.

There is one encouraging thing. Dulles evidently believes that negotiations with the East Germans will not lead to any weakening of the United States position.

TV Habits of Parents Affect Their Children

By NORMAN M. BRUNSON, M. D.

CHILDREN can benefit a lot from television providing their parents govern the family's viewing habits with a little common sense.

A while back, everyone was worried about TV's adverse effect on the kids. It interfered with their school work, increased nervousness, caused eye fatigue, disturbed their eating habits and cut down on their reading.

Problems Lessened

Recently, Dr. Paul Witty, professor of education at Northwestern University, reported that an eight-year study shows these problems either have been corrected or are diminishing.

Moreover, he said, television is now viewed as a potential helper in the rearing of children.

It is a great builder of vocabulary. If you doubt it, just listen to your youngster rattle off the names of the various breakfast cereals sometime. Actually, though, it does teach him the meaning of countless new words. TV also teaches him to follow a story.

Broader Horizons

In short, TV broadens a child's horizons tremendously. However, don't think of the television set as a convenient electronic baby sitter. You must—and I want to emphasize this—regulate your child's viewing habits.

To do this properly, of course, you have to regulate your own TV practices. Your viewing habits, remember, help greatly to determine how your youngster reacts to television.

In far too many homes, I'm afraid, the TV set is the focus of family life. If you dawdle

The marriage of Miss Peggy Ann Kilgore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kilgore, Winter Park, and Robert Talley Hattaway, son of Mr. and Mrs. Talley Hattaway, Altamonte Springs, was solemnized at 8 p. m. last Saturday, June 14, at the East Side Baptist Church, Winter Park. The Rev. C. E. Patch officiated.

The bride wore a floor length gown of Chantilly lace and tulle over white satin. The neck line was embroidered with iridescent paillettes; the sleeves were beaded and edged with lace. Her finger tip veil of white Alencon lace fell from a bandeau of sequins and pearls. She carried a white satin Bible festooned with white satin streamers, stephanotis, and a white orchid.

In the party of attendants was Miss Bus Kilgore, sister of the bride, as maid-of-honor. She was gowned in a yellow organza ballerina length frock and carried a satin fan with blue daisies attached to it. The five bridesmaids wore blue gowns styled in the same fashion as the maid of honor and carried fans of yellow daisies.

The flower girl was a miniature of the maids, and the ring bearer's attire was a junior edition of the ushers in dinner jacket ensemble.

The church was beautifully decorated with large bouquets of white gladioli and chrysanthemums on a background of greens, all high-lighted by stately candelabra.

The reception was held at the church immediately following the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Ben Kent, Maitland, acted as the wedding cake; Mrs. Richard Joyce, Caseberry, and Miss Patricia Worrell, Mobile, assisted with the serving of the punch.

Out of state guests were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kesley, Knoxville, Tenn., Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Kilgore and Sherry, Chattanooga, Tenn. and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Worrell and Miss Patricia Worrell, Mobile, Ala.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold H. Knatner entertained in their gracious home on Twin Lakes in honor of their future daughter-in-law, Miss Jennifer Carroll Castello. The reception was an event of Sunday afternoon between 2 and 4 o'clock.

The floral decorations, created by Andy Ramsey, were admired by the guests and added to the festive occasion. In the entrance hall of the Knatner home was placed an unusual arrangement of roses. Consisting of a full spread of a deep, rich variety, the display filled the hallway with a delightful fragrance.

The serving table was a decoration in itself. The large table was overlaid with an exquisite pale blue linen and lace cutwork covering which was imported from Belgium where it was handmade by an order of Catholic nuns. A long low spray of pastel shades of pink, blue, and white chrysanthemums complemented the color of the lovely table cloth.

Graced with crystal appointments the serving table held two lovely punch bowls in which floated fruit-shaped ice floats. Served with the fruit punch were dainty cakes, salted nuts, and an assortment of pastel sandwiches cut in the shape of small hearts.

Floral decorations in the living room where the 400 guests met Miss Jennifer Castello were arrangements of yellow chrysanthemums and white pom pom mums.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Castello of Eau Gallie, parents of the bride-elect and J. M. Joyer of Gainesville.

Miss Castello will become Mrs. Eughan Kelly at Our Lady of Lourdes Church in Melbourne on June 22.

Today's Sports Parade

By OSCAR FRALTY
United Press International
NEW YORK (UPI)—Washington is about to wash its hands of the boxing writers' association today.

Old Wash out the man most quoted in recent times to cover the national aspects of the sportswriting business. Any box writer who wanted to cover the sportswriting business immediately needs Rip Van Winkle's look like an inmate on a diet of pop.

But, as the fight manager said when his warrior asked for 50 per cent of the purse, strange things are happening.

The heavyweights are actually beginning to gather momentum and hold on to your hats—even Floyd Patterson is getting ready to go to the post. Patterson, in case you have forgotten, is the heavyweight champion of the world although he hasn't bested his dupe in a hostile since last August.

Give Ultimatum
 The World Boxing Federation tossed a jolt into the sleeping giants when it ruled that Patterson would have to defend the title by September or forfeit his long-earned throne. The result is that all those in the napping line want to get out and center.

Harold Carter started it off by leading Will Beamanoff last Friday. This week it is Mike De John who has had one bout this year, against Bob Baker, who has had none. In July, Felix Rademacher will clutch and clout against Zora Folley and then—millennium—Patterson is being ready to go against Roy Harris in August. Eddie Machon, the top-ranking challenger, sits out this flurry of action with a bum shoulder.

Added proof that there really are heavyweights around, in physical stature, at least, is a fellow named Willie Pastrano. Not so confused with a delicatessen sandwich, Pastrano won three bouts in Europe and has come home to join the standees.

There is slight doubt in this corner that Patterson, the man not the myth, is the best fighter in the whole pack. He is in his seventh year as a pro boxer and, while he has had only 24 bouts and hasn't climbed through the ropes in 10 months, Harris isn't taking an unfair advantage. The Tucson hasn't fought in eight months.

Defeated Baker
 Harris is from a town called "Cut and Shoot." Don't get the idea from this that he is either A or B basketball player or B one who does battle with six shooter and Bowie knife. He is undefeated in 20 contests and has conquered such as Baker, Pastrano and Beamanoff.

Actually, Harris and Folley have been the most active of the lot. Harris, despite his recent napping, won 11 bouts in the previous two years. Folley may sound like a burly dancer but he has been just as busy. Zora is unbeaten in the last two years, and, in that time, has won 19 bouts against one draw.

The most imminent battle is the Friday tussle at Syracuse between De John and Baker. De John is the fellow who scored the big upset of last year by strolling out in the first round and flattening undefeated Alex Mitoff. He'll have to get past the veteran Baker to stay alive but he has a big edge. After all, De John had a fight this year.

So the unbruised bruisers seem to be stirring up their beauty rest. And you can't be blamed if you think they've been sleeping longer than Rip Van Winkle.

Ed Bouches Wants To Return To Baseball

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—First baseman Ed Bouches, the promising Phillies rookie sidelined to a psychiatric hospital by a brush with the law, sought to return to baseball today, confident he can ignore any decision from the stands.

"Baseball is my life," he said during a workout.

The highly regarded first baseman was arrested on a morals charge last winter in Spokane, Wash. He was placed on probation and entered the Institute of Living in Hartford, Conn., where he underwent psychiatric treatment.

Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick must decide if Bouches' return to the active playing ranks would be in the best interests of baseball.

Frick emphasized he would judge the case only on its merits. "This much is certain," Frick said. "I am not going to restore the boy to active service just because the Phillies need a first baseman; nor am I going to persecute him just to prove I'm against sin."

Phila's owner Bob Carpenter said the return of Bouches to the lineup would be a big boost for the team, but he will not request his reinstatement until he gets the approval of Bouches' doctors and probation officers.

Bouches said he is physically and mentally ready to return. He said he has kept in condition physically with workouts at the stadium under the direction of Phillies coach Bennis Bengough since his return from Hartford on June 4, and his mental treatment, he prepared him for abuse from the fans when he takes the field.

ROCKY TO REFEREE
BOSTON (UPI)—Former world heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano will be the third man in the ring at Barget Field, New Bedford, June 23 when former featherweight champion Willie Pep meets Pat McCoy. Marciano also will serve as referee the following night at Athol for the Gordon Parker-Lou Corama bout.

Whatever Happened To Wild Bill Hallahan

Wild Bill Hallahan
By United Press International
 In the days when the old St. Louis Cardinals Gas House Gang was at its gasiest, one of the venerable characters of the cast was Wild Bill Hallahan, a left-handed pitcher. He never did learn enough control to be called anything but Wild Bill even after 13 years in the majors and four World Series. In 1931, he led the National League in victories with 19, led in strikeouts 120 and he led in walks, too, with 112. He led the league in walks three different times but his speed made him tough to beat. In the 1941 World Series he trimmed the lofty Philadelphia Athletics twice, allowing only one run in his two starts. Hallahan, traded to Cincinnati in 1938, went out of the majors after the 1950 season.

Whatever happened to Wild Bill Hallahan? Now 53, he is back in his native Binghamton, N. Y., as a foreman at the Ossoli Film Manufacturing Company.

Brenner Seeks Return Bout For Ryff, Tibbs

NEW YORK (UPI)—Promoter Teddy Brenner will try to match lightweights Frankie Ryff and Tommy Tibbs for a return TV fight at St. Nicholas Arena, July 21, because of much dissatisfaction over the decision favoring Ryff.

Ryff of New York, 136 1/2 pounds, was awarded a unanimous 10-round verdict over Tibbs of Boston, 134 1/2. But many of the 1,000 fans booed the decision, and a poll of 10 sports writers at the ringside favored Tibbs unanimously.

"The disagreement calls for a rematch," Brenner said today. "And I'll try to make it for July 21."

Ryff, favored at 15-5, was awarded the eighth round on a foul when Tommy was penalized for a low left hook.

Blood Frankie said, "I thought I won big. I was too fast for him."

Frankie was fast—running away from Tibbs, who beat his body with left hooks and his head with overhanded rights. He buckled Ryff's knees in the fourth and ninth rounds and also brought blood to his nose in the ninth. There were no knockdowns.

The three ring officials favored Ryff on a rounds basis as follows: Referee Miller, 8-1-1; Judge Tony Castellano, 6-4; and Judge Mike Davidowitch, five for each on rounds, but six points for Ryff and five for Tibbs. The United Press International had Tibbs ahead, 6-3-1.

Player Of The Day

By United Press International
Joe Cunningham
 Jersey Joe Cunningham is back at it for the St. Louis Cardinals—delivering those clutch hits when the team needs 'em most.

A part-time first baseman and part-time outfielder, Cunningham was the National League's most dependable pinch swinger last season. And Monday night he showed he hasn't lost the touch.

Cunningham singled home two runs in the ninth to produce a 3-2 tie and the Cardinals went on to beat the Cincinnati Redlegs, 6-5, in 11 innings.

A native of Saddle River Township, N. J., Cunningham must come pretty close to being the best ball player who's never won a regular job in the big leagues.

New Pill Speeds Hurt Athletes Back To Field

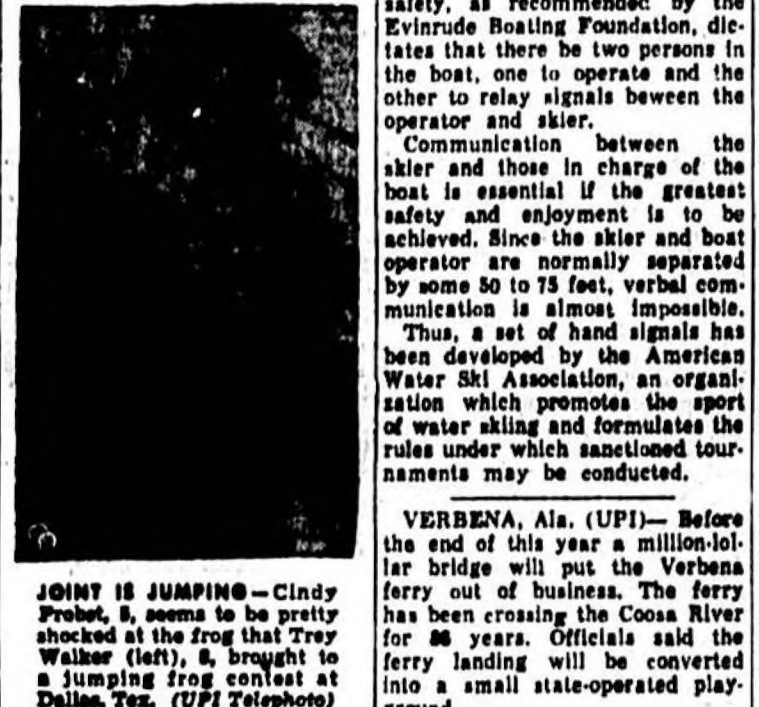

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—A medical researcher says a new type of pill has been invented which promises to help speed up the return of injured athletes to the playing field.

Dr. Fred Pasternack of New Orleans made the disclosure before some 150 members of the National Athletic Trainers Assn. at that group's sixth annual convention.

Pasternack said the pill has proved effective in treating severe swelling resulting from sprains, bruises and other athletic injuries. He pointed out that the pill provided a "new convenient form of administering valdeane, a drug already known, which contains enzymes and helps accelerate the healing of an injury."

He added that the pill is not swallowed, but allowed to dissolve in the patient's mouth.

The drug is also helpful in treating swellings connected with bronchitis, abscesses and other inflammatory conditions.

THE LONE DEPUTY

CHAPTER 20

STRANGE, Price began to think grimly, that in his talk with Weston nothing had been said of Cronin's hanging or the murder of Sam and Lennie Potter. He had a strong feeling that if he had mentioned either, he would not have left the Nothing O alive.

Still, he had no way of knowing what went on inside Cole Weston's head, now that he had gone this far. But one thing was sure. Weston had to remove a deputy he could not control, and he knew beyond any doubt by this time that he could not control Price Regan.

Price was dead tired when he reached town, worn down both physically and emotionally. He had to fall into bed at once, wishing there was some way to make his last order. He got into bed, saying quietly, "I've got bed now for you both of you parents were shot and killed today. I don't know who did it, but we'll find out."

She was very pale, but she didn't seem to become hysterical. She simply looked at him, her hands tightly clasped on her lap, then she said, "I've had a terrible feeling ever since I left home. I should have stayed."

He shook his head. "You couldn't have helped. You'd have been killed, too. Now I want you to stay here inside this house. I don't know if you're in danger or not, but we don't want to take any chances. I could put you in jail for your own safety, but I won't if you promise to stay here."

"I promise," she said automatically, as if she didn't really know what she was promising. "Mr. Regan, ever since I was a little girl I can't remember anything but moving around, being pushed by men like Cole Weston. He said we'd never move again. If she was killed, she said her blood would soak into the ground. Maybe she knew what was going to happen."

Price rose. There was nothing more he could say or do. She was suffering the shock that sudden, terrible death brings to those who are left. The full sense of loss would come to her later.

She looked up at him. "Mr. Regan, I can't stay here. I'll have to go to the funeral."

"Your neighbors took care of it today."

She bowed her head and the tears came. Price moved to the door, and as he opened it he saw that Laura had set down beside Jean and put her arm around the other girl. Price stepped into the hall and closed the door. Then he saw that Harry Madden was waiting for him.

"Come back to the study, Price," Madden said. "I want to talk to you."

"It was a preliminary order, given in the typewriter, saying that Madden was nervous, as Laura had said. Price had never seen him this way before. He was pale, his pulse leaping in his temples, and even his hands were trembling."

"We use, Barry," Price said. "I can't do anything for you. You were the only one who could have helped yourself, and now it looks to me like you've waited too long."

"I don't expect you to do anything for me," Madden said bitterly. "If you won't come back to the study, I'll tell you here. You're not marrying Laura. You're going to drop this whole business before it ruins me and all of us. First your things and leave town on the morning train. I'll demand your resignation as marshal here and now."

"Do you really think I'll do that?" Price asked.

"You have no choice. You'll resign, or I'll call a meeting of the town council tomorrow and we'll fire you. Then I'll go to the county seat and have Ralph Carow recall you. Meanwhile, stay away from Laura."

"Barry, you can't be as stupid as you're talking. You've got some decency in you."

Flushing, Madden said, "Good night," and turned away.

Price caught his arm. "In case you don't know what happened today, I'll tell you. Five people have been killed, and I'm convinced Cole Weston was responsible for every murder. That's your side, Barry, the side you picked."

He walked out, leaving Madden standing in the hall. He went to the hotel, wondering how much Madden had known, and how he would go, now that he did know. There was still something he couldn't put his finger on, something that was behind Madden's blind following of Cole Weston. It wasn't loyalty or devotion or friendship or any of the things that ordinarily prompt one man to back another.

Any way Price looked at this situation, it seemed a strange and unnatural alliance, with both men being impelled to do things as they were. No, there was something else, and he was convinced that Laura didn't fully understand what it was.

When he stepped into the hotel lobby, the clerk said, "That woman Barry De Long brought in. She's in Room 14. Says she wants to see you."

"She wanted to cry. He could see no future, no hope. Everything had been destroyed today..."

Russia Ends Diplomatic British Negotiations

LONDON (UPI)—Russia broke off diplomatic negotiations for a cultural agreement with Britain today in the first sign that Moscow's new cold war may take the West for a target as well as Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito.

Native reports that the Soviet Communist Party central committee is now meeting in the Kremlin. It was believed to be drafting an over-all policy to defeat "revisionists"—those who would defy Moscow's all-out control of their affairs—among the satellites.

The new policy was expected to underscore the fate that might be expected by those tempted to follow the path of executed Hungarian former Premier Imre Nagy, whose death provoked heated anti-communist reaction throughout the world.

Kremlin policy appeared suddenly to be hardening against the satellites with the execution of Nagy and his companions. Now the new chill was being turned on the West as well.

The British foreign office announced it had received a curt note from the Soviet Union abandoning efforts toward an Anglo-Soviet cultural agreement on the pattern of the agreement signed with the United States several months ago.

Chief Operator Hears Emergency Call; Gets Ambulance For Man

When a real service is performed, those who are assisted usually let it be known that such services are appreciated.

Such was the case recently when a young man, working at a Sanford subdivision, was taken ill and needed emergency medical assistance in a hurry.

in the normal discharge of her duties, secured the necessary emergency service so that a person in physical distress could be relieved.

The emergency came about when a young man was stricken suddenly. The local hospital was phoned "telling them it was an emergency and a doctor was needed at once."

"I phoned three different doctors' offices only to be told the doctors were not in on Wednesday afternoon," wrote Mrs. Garrison.

"I imagine how relieved I was to have a cheerful voice break in and inform me that she was the Chief Operator in Sanford, Miss Betty Wolfram, and had heard my emergency call and she had secured an ambulance and they were on their way," she said.

2 New Methodist Ministers Greeted At Reception

Two new Methodist Ministers were introduced to Sanford last night at a reception given in their honor at the First Methodist Church in Sanford.

Members of the Women's Society of Christian Service and the Wesleyan Service Guild were in charge of the reception that introduced and Rev. Thomas C. O'Keefe, new pastor at the First Methodist Church and the Rev. W. Thomas Parsons Jr., pastor of Grace Methodist Church in Pinecrest.

The Rev. O'Keefe is a graduate of the University of Florida. He attended Union Theological Seminary in New York and Garrett Biblical Institute, at Evanston, Ill. before he began his ministry.

He is a native of Georgia and has served in the following churches: First Church, Daytona Beach; Murray Hill, Jacksonville; College Park, Orlando; Grace, St. Augustine; Tabernacle Memorial, Miami; Live Oak and Hollywood First Church.

The Rev. W. Thomas Parsons Jr. will serve Grace Methodist Church in Pinecrest. He is a graduate of Duke University Seminary and was recently the associate pastor at Community Methodist Church, Daytona Beach. He is a native of Charleston, S. C. and served in the capacity of associate pastor to several congregations during his ministerial training at Duke University.

It accused the "British council," which has charge of British overseas cultural projects, of taking a "negative position." The British negotiators had insisted that Russia stop jamming British broadcasts.

The Soviet decision generally was considered by diplomats as a firm sign that Russia is about to pull back into a Stalinist shell. There were other indications, too, that the West as well as Tito will be targets of the new Soviet cold war offensive. These included: East Germany refused to release nine American soldiers whose plane had been shot down and whose plane had been shot down and whose plane had been shot down.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev put all the blame for a delay in summit talks on the West in his latest message to the western Big Three last week.

Check Forger Held In Jail

A check forger is in jail "due to the quick thinking of our bank people," Sheriff J. L. Hobby said this morning.

Marcus Dennison Beck, 36, has been charged with forgery, threatened assault, and passing bad checks after being apprehended last night at Seminole Fish Camp where Beck had gone into hiding.

Beck was accompanied by a woman who has been identified as Marie Wilson, said Sheriff Hobby.

The alleged check forger has a string of sentences to his credit in North Carolina. He served 3 1/2 years for grand larceny when he was convicted in April of 1942; three years for breaking and entering when convicted in 1944; and four years for grand larceny when convicted in November of 1953.

Beck's operations in Florida came to a sudden halt when alert bank employees spotted the forgeries and had check, reporting them immediately to authorities.

Florida State Bank found check discrepancies and reported them to Sheriff Hobby who immediately began investigations, notifying also, merchants of Sanford to be on the alert.

A drugist at Roundhill and Anderson spotted the alleged forger when he returned to attempt another "check cashing." The Sheriff was notified and Ben Davis, a druggist, gave chase but was able only to get the license number of the car in which he and Marie Wilson drove off.

Law enforcement officers were able to locate the woman who accompanied them to the Seminole Fish Camp hide-away.

So far five checks have been involved in the forgery spree. Four of the checks are said to be forged signatures, the other is a check which Beck wrote on himself and passed.

An official at Florida State Bank said "This is where the alertness of our bookkeepers and immediately turning over the information to law enforcement officers for investigation" resulted in the prompt arrest of the parties involved.

De Baryite Keeps Busy With Many Activities

Work doesn't dampen the spirits of Mrs. Christopher E. Butler of Delray.

The record of accomplishments she has compiled for herself seems to be one of constantly going from one thing to another for there is no other way she could have "crammed so much" into a mere 24-hour a day.

Mrs. Butler, who by the way, makes her home at 24 Valencia Circle, moved to DeBary from New Rochelle, N. J. in 1954.

She is an accomplished pianist. At Radio Station WKBO in Jersey City, N. J., she was hostess and pianist. Over Radio Station WOR she was a member of the "Fortune Tellers" trio, and over Radio Station NYC she was a member of the trio "The Cotton Blossoms."

In her spare time Mrs. Butler collects salt and pepper shakers and has a unique collection from all over the world. She does some painting on china, knits "throws" for the veterans in hospitals, and has been active in the VFW Auxiliary.

Mrs. Butler has a keen interest in amateur theatricals and loves to be around people.

This Delray lady is active in the Home Demonstration Club, is treasurer of the Delray Civic Association, and finds time to bowl with her team.

She belongs to and is an active member in the Auxiliary Volunteer Fire Department and is the National Defense Chairman of the Sally Harrison Chapter of the D. A. B.

Mrs. Butler, as one can readily see, is an inspiration to all who know her.

Bridge Collapse Death Number Rises To 18

VANCOUVER, B. C. (UPI)—The death toll in the collapse of the partly completed 16-million-dollar bridge over the Burrard Inlet rose to 18 today, police reported.

Fourteen bodies had been recovered and four were missing, but police listed the missing as dead and said "it's just a matter of finding their bodies now."

Two sections of the huge structure spanning the Second Narrows collapsed Tuesday, plunging 40 workmen 145 feet into the Burrard Inlet. Twenty men were hospitalized.
