Hotel owner found guilty

A New York hotel chain owner whom Mayor Ed Koch once referred to as "The wicked witch of the west," was convicted on tax evasion charges Wednesday.

Leona Helmsley, who was painted as a modern day Lucretia Borglia by prosecution witnesses during the proceedings, faces a jail sentence and fines following her conviction on charges she tried to hide personal purchases in company accounts to avoid paying taxes on them. She was once quoted as saying "Only the little people pay taxes."

It wasn't a good homecoming for John McEnroe.

The fiery former ruler of the professional tennis world saw his hopes for a U.S. Open title go down the drain Wednesday at the hands of the 115th-ranked player in the world.

McEnroe was one of two upset victims during second-round action at Flushing Meadow Wednesday. The other was defending champion Mats Wilander, who lost a five-set match to an 18-year-old Californian.

Drivers still on picket line

LONGWOOD — For the third day in a row, Seminole County school district bus drivers have taken up placards to protest what they feel is poor management within the transportation department. Today they took their complaints to the street in front of the department's district center in Longwood.

The bus drivers were joined today by a group of parents who also felt that the management at the transportation department needed to be changed. The group is not a part of the Seminole County PTA, according to PTA president Judy Smith.

The bus drivers complaints stem from what they say are poorly planned bus routes. They also say mentally handicapped children have been mainstreamed onto buses where drivers have no assistance and no training on how to deal with the special needs of those children.

"Our ultimate goal is to see that Benny Arnold is fired," said Nancy Wheeler, executive director of the Seminole Education Association. Arnold is the district's director of transportation.

Wheeler said district officials have told her they must first work out the problems in bus scheduling before they can conduct an investigation into management problems within the transportation department.

While the cause is gaining momentum, the group has not yet decided if they will continue their protests tomorrow.

Bakker money missing

Longwood business the target of police, federal investigation

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — City police here are investigating whether telephone operators diverted money intended as donations to the television ministry Jim and Tammy Bakker recently established in Orlando.

Police Investigator Steven Falk said today the Bakkers' New Covenant Ministry has complained that checks mailed to the televised ministry were diverted into the bank account of the Longwood business and allegedly cashed by unauthorized persons.

The business, identified as Geneva Roth Holding Co., located on County Road 427 in Longwood, is closed and the proprietors have left the state, Falk said. He said that several federal agencies have also entered the probe.

Falk said the proprietors allegedly operated the toll-free telephone lines through which supporters made donations solicited by the Bakkers' ministry, which moved to Orlando from Charlotte, N.C. earlier this year.

Falk said ministry workers told police that donations were supposed to be sent to the ministry at an Orlando address, but instead some callers were told to send their donations to an unauthorized Longwood address.

Some of the donors noticed the endorsement on their checks was different from what they had Architect Barry Segal (left) met with local Park on Park organizers Wednesday to go over plans one final time before construction on the downtown park begins in November. With Segal are Butch Strine of the Sanford Public Works Department and Martha Yancey, Sanford SIB chairperson.

Park on Park architect ready to begin project in November

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — A representative from the Robert Leathers architect firm of Ithaca, New York met yesterday with members of the Park on Park playground core committee for a final meeting before construction begins in November.

Barry Segal, an architect with the firm designing the playground at Park Avenue and Ninth Street, met with the committee for an organizational meeting at the park. He then met separately with the nine committees to outline how to coordinate volunteers for the construction week Nov. 1 through Nov. 5.

"Volunteers will be the key to this whole project," Segal said. Extras for the park, like benches and trash cans, will depend on how many volunteers — not how much money — the committee can round up, he said.

Martha Yancey, Scenic Improvement Board chairperson, said 350 volunteers have already signed up to work during the construction week. More than 1,500 are needed to help with construction, child care, food preparation and other tasks that will go along with the construction work.

Judy Wimbish, chairperson of the SIB playground committee said volunteers determine how creative the playground can be. She recently visited two Leathers playgrounds built in Central Florida to survey the differences between them.

"Sanford does not want a Merritt Island; Sanford wants a Port Orange," Wimbish said, noting the difference between a basic structure and one with details.

The playground project got underway in April when a Leathers architect met with local

Local legislator says Martinez' call 'premature'

From staff and wire reports

CASSELBERRY — A state legislator from Seminole County said today that a call by Gov. Bob Martinez to make time during the October special session on abortion to consider a $4.4 million child abuse package is premature.

Rep. Frank Stone, R-Casselberry said the additional question could be handled by lawmakers, if needed, during next spring's regular session.

"I don't really think it's appropriate at this time," Stone said. "I'm not sure that this couldn't be handled by the Legislature next spring."

Rep. Martinez announced during a speech at a conference on infant mortality that he was expanding the call of the special session scheduled for Oct. 10-13 to include reform of Florida's child protection laws and increased funding to expand the number of child abuse investigators.

McClanahan uses police records to dispute black group's claims

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — In disputing claims made earlier this week by a group of black citizens, City Commissioner A.A. McClanahan yesterday used police records to show the extent of the city police presence in black neighborhoods.

"We're out there," said McClanahan, who had remained silent during the hour-long dispute at a city meeting on Monday.

He presented to the city commission a breakdown of police calls according to city zones.

The greatest number of the 18,677 police calls reported from May 1 to July 31 were in Zone 1, which is bounded by Lake Monroe to the north, U.S. 17-92 to the west and Celery Avenue to the south. The police responded to 5,128 calls in that zone, which includes the predominantly black Georgetown neighborhood.

The police responded to 4,346 calls in Zone 2, which lies between Lake Monroe, U.S. 17-92 and Airport Boulevard. Goldsboro is located in this zone.

The least number of calls were reported in the Hidden Lake area, where police responded to 1,741 calls. Police responded to 2,176 calls in the Pinecrest and Sanora areas, and 3,291 in the zone which includes Idylwild subdivision.

At the city commission's regular meeting Monday, a group of about 30 black citizens complained that police give priority to predominantly white neighborhoods. The group said police either ignore calls in black neighborhoods or fail to take action when they do respond to calls in those areas.

"I didn't even look at those statistics because they have nothing to do with moving drugs from our neighborhood. If it were in the white neighborhoods, they would clean them out if they had

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Jobless benefits stingiest here

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Florida is the stingiest state in the nation when it comes to paying unemployment benefits to the jobless, according to a recent report.

Only one in five jobless persons — 17.3 percent — earned unemployment benefits in Florida last year, said the study issued by the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, a non-partisan and non-profit research center.

The state's unemployment insurance coverage rate was barely half the national average of 31.5 percent in 1988 — which means that 31.5 percent of the nation's 6.7 million jobless received benefits.

According to the Tallahassee Democrat, Florida officials said the state's ranking is illustrative of a good program with stringent eligibility requirements.

"Our law is quite strict (and) we make no bones about it," said Michael Switzer, assistant director of the state's unemployment compensation department. "It is not intended to be an income-guarantee program — it is not welfare."

Switzer said jobless workers are required to have been unemployed at least part or all of 20 weeks in a year in order to qualify for compensation, a standard that keeps many agriculture workers from qualifying.

Florida also rules out more workers than most other states because it disqualifies applicants who have been fired for job-related misconduct.

Another reason is that the state has closed 31 of its 40 part-time unemployment offices to save money.

"The one area we most regret is accessibility, because we know there are people out there who won't come in," Switzer said.

Water management districts coordinate

BROOKSVILLE — Florida's five water management districts have scheduled a September meeting to co-ordinate water conservation efforts and irrigation restrictions.

The Southwest Florida and the St. Johns management districts have imposed mandatory water conservation measures, but the measures differ. Another set of mandatory restrictions are in effect in parts of the South Florida district, and voluntary restrictions are in force in the Suwannee River district.

Water managers said they must make sure enforcement authorities know where the boundaries are and how to enforce them.

The North Florida district, which has been deluged with rain this year, is the only district with no restrictions in effect.

Owners try to get boats out of Nicaragua

TARPON SPRINGS — Two fishing boat owners from the Tarpon Springs area are trying to get their boats out of Nicaragua.

The boats were stopped by the Sandinista Navy Aug. 23 and hauled into port. The owners were charged with illegal fishing and fined $75,000 each. They must pay the fines in order to get their boats back.

The nine crewmembers on the two boats were not charged individually and can leave when they want. But most have no money and no way to get back to Florida unless the boats are released.

The crews are living aboard the boats in the port of Bluefields, eating canned goods and on fish they catch in the harbor. The owners have hired an intermediary and are trying to negotiate with Nicaraguan authorities.

Prank may mean student's expulsion

KISSIMMEE — Three Ocoola High School students face possible expulsion from school after a hunchtime prank injured nine people.

The students filled a glass bottle with chemicals Wednesday, hoping it would explode and produce a loud bang. But the bottle shattered, striking bystanders in the face with glass shards.

Three students were taken to hospitals and six others were treated at the scene by paramedics.

School officials said the three students behind the prank had been charged with unlawful placement of a destructive device, a second-degree felony. Their names were not released.

Investigators said one of the chemicals used was a common acid used in swimming pools. Principal Chuck Paradiso has recommended that the three students be expelled, though one of them broke down in the school office and said he did not intend to hurt anyone.

Forensic expert to identify Americans

GAINESVILLE — A University of Florida forensic specialist traveled to Ethiopia last week to identify the remains of the nine Americans killed when the plane carrying Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Texas, crashed in Africa.

"We're quite confident we've identified all of the bodies," said William Maples, curator of the C.A. Pound Identification Laboratory at the Florida Museum of Natural History, which is located on UF's campus.

Maples was called in by the chief medical examiner of the U.S. Armed Forces and conducted his examination in a temporary morgue set up at the Addis Ababa airport in Ethiopia. He then accompanied the remains of the nine Americans to Andrews Air Force Base in Washington, D.C.

Maples said he was consulted because of his expertise in dealing with "special problems" associated with identifying the dead.

"All attempts at identifying remains have special problems," he said. "When you have an airplane that impacts into the side of a mountain with the resulting destruction, it's always difficult to identify some of the remains."

Maples said he did not visit the site of the Aug. 7 crash and played no part in determining the cause of the accident.

Copper stripped from city hall

OPA-LOCKA — Metal thieves stripped 300 feet of copper and aluminum piping from the Opa-Locka City Hall, a pink Arabian-style building inspired by the pages of 1,000 Arabian Nights.

Interim City Manager L. Dennis Whitt discovered the crime when he walked into the men's bathroom last week and noticed the light bulbs and aluminum were missing from the ceiling fixture. He then noticed part of a copper pipe also was missing.

Public works employees checked the entire building Tuesday and found the copper flashing that defects water from the building's seams also had been stripped away.

Police suspect the rip-off is the work of crack addicts who sell scrap money to raise money for drugs.

Greenpeace fights inland waste

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Greenpeace, the international organization that has confronted whaling ships and nuclear submarines on the high seas, announced Wednesday it is moving inland to tackle Florida's hazardous waste problem.

The organization, whose regional office for the southeast is in Fort Lauderdale, plans a 12-day bus tour of Florida beginning Sept. 5 in Pasco County. The tour will focus on the dangers of hazardous waste, and will also highlight municipal incinerators, which have been cited as one of the causes of the high levels of mercury in Florida's waters and fish.

Gov. Bob Martinez and Florida lawmakers have decided to build the first hazardous waste treatment plant and have selected Union County near Gainesville as the site. A private company has proposed building the plant in Polk County.

The 10-stop itinerary includes both counties, as well as stops in Pensacola, Jacksonville, and Gainesville, Fla.

"Florida is facing a critical juncture in its environmental policy," said Brian Hunt, who is coordinating the Greenpeace toxic campaign in the southeast. "The state government is clearly steering us down the wrong path with respect to hazardous and municipal waste by promoting construction of more disposal facilities instead of reducing toxic waste at its source."

State environmental officials have defended incineration as a responsible and safe means of destroying hazardous wastes if done properly. Raoul Clark, of the state Department of Environmental Regulations, said reduction can be only one part of an effort to safely handle hazardous waste.

"We feel it is important to reduce the amount of waste, but it's not practical to reduce all of it," said Rick Wilkin, division director for DER's Hazardous Waste and Reduction Section. "We have to reduce the amount generated and provide for the waste that remains."

Florida's hazardous waste problems were further compounded Tuesday, when Alabama's governor signed a new law banning the shipments of hazardous waste from Florida and 21 other states to its only hazardous waste facility. Florida exported 17,848 tons of hazardous waste to the Alabama facility in 1987, a little more than one-third of the total amount of hazardous waste exported from Florida that year.

State administrators, including Clark, have been meeting privately in Atlanta with officials from seven other southern states and the federal Environmental Protection Agency to discuss development of a regional plan for hazardous waste.

"What has been happening throughout the south, is that state governments and the EPA are engaging in negotiations in secret to divvy up the hazardous waste stream, and they've been doing this without the public participating," Hunt said. "In this whole process they have focused on removing barriers to the siting of hazardous waste facilities, landfills and incinerators principally."

Instead, Hunt said, the state should be "doing what the law requires," promoting reductions in the amount of waste generated.

"The EPA's own studies clearly indicate we can achieve a 50 percent reduction in hazardous waste within five years," Hunt said.

"Essentially they're creating a demand for hazardous wastes."

Crawford seeks farm post

United Press International

Tallahassee - Senate President Bob Crawford, D-Winter Haven, filed Wednesday as a commissioner.

Crawford, who had said earlier he would not file for the seat until after two special legislative sessions this fall, was traveling in his district Wednesday and could not be reached. But he acknowledged his candidacy in a brief statement.

Friends and lobbyists close to Crawford told the Miami Herald he felt pressure to file from other Democrats who were interested in running for the commissioner's seat.

Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner announced Aug. 9 he will not seek re-election when his term expires in January 1991.

Audit: Needy not getting family planning advice

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's Family Planning Program is missing most of the women who need it because of restrictions against serving minors and because needy women don't know the program exists, auditors said Wednesday.

A report released by Auditor General Charles Lester said the most efficient way of reducing unwanted pregnancies among teenagers — thereby reducing related problems including birth defects and welfare dependence — would be to repeal restrictions on family planning services for minors.

Another approach, said the auditors, who acknowledged the move would be controversial, would be for the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services to at least provide family planning counseling to teens through private or school sex education programs.

Of course, lawmakers could also do nothing. But the auditors warned "this would probably be the least effective way to address these issues and would continue

Officials evaluate sewage spill

United Press International

HOLLYWOOD — State inspectors were conducting tests Wednesday to determine the extent of environmental and health dangers caused by a broken pipe that spilled 200,000 gallons of raw sewage into the Intracoastal Waterway.

Officials had an determined when the spill would be finished, but said the spill Tuesday probably was finished.

"It's fairly certain," said Jon O. Henson, Hollywood's deputy director of utilities.

The 18-inch city pipe underneath the intracoastal carries 1 million to 1.5 million gallons of sewage a day. Workers discovered a hole Monday and patched the sewage flow to a secondary pipe. That pipe apparently became overloaded and burst about 10 a.m. Tuesday.

Indian museum planned

United Press International

MIAMI — The Seminoles plan to build a $10 million museum and cultural center in the Everglades to attract tourists and help the "Indians of Florida stand tall," tribal leaders said.

The center, which will include seven exhibit buildings, a burial site, a nature trail and a historic Seminole village, will be built on 60 acres of the Big Cypress Reservation, 65 miles west of Fort Lauderdale.

Tribal leaders hope to open the museum by 1991, with ground-breaking expected to begin soon. Tribal leaders said they are now applying for federal and state grants to defray the cost.

The museum will be named Ah-Tha-Thi-Ki, a Miccosukee word meaning "a place to learn, a place to remember."

"We've been wanting to develop a museum for many years," Tribal Chairman James Billie said. "We want the Indians of Florida to stand tall."

The center will be across a dirt road from the tribe's $3 million Big Cypress Bingo, a money-loser since its opening in March 1987.

to result in higher rates of pregnancy, abortion and neonatal care, and increased use of welfare and other social programs that require the use of additional state resources."

The document said the program has trouble reaching women of majority age in need of its services because promotion relies almost exclusively on word of mouth. It recommended public service announcements and enlisting outreach workers to spread news about the program.

State family planning services include contraceptive counseling, examinations, lab work, treatment for complications arising from contraceptive use and post-birth counseling. It is supposed to focus primarily on low-income women.

According to figures provided by the Family Planning Program, it served only 39 percent of those estimated to be in need in 1988 — or, approximately 184,729 of the 474,111 persons who appeared to qualify for assistance.

The program's planned budget for the 1987-88 fiscal year was $20.43 million.

Suspect sought in beating

SANFORD — A 33-year-old rural Sanford man is being sought by Seminole County sheriff's deputies for questioning in connection with the "severe" beating of his two stepchildren at home Wednesday afternoon.

Deputies said the 10-year-old boy and the 9-year-old girl were struck many times on the back and buttocks with a switch taken from a tree. The youngsters suffered severe welts and bruises, deputies said.

Their mother reportedly said the youngsters were spanked, allegedly by her husband, after they failed to clean a bedroom after they got home from school.

Charges added against forgery suspect

SANFORD — A woman arrested earlier this week for allegedly stealing, forging and cashing checks in Sanford, now faces additional charges.

Sanford police added six counts each of forgery, uttering a forgery, dealing in stolen property and theft against Wilma Lynette Jones, 36, 1229 W. 13th St., Sanford, Wednesday at the county jail.

Jones is accused of stealing several Burma Bridge Busters company checks from Hugh Eckel, and using those checks at local businesses to get cash and goods for herself.

Burglary suspect caught in store

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Altamonte Springs police, responding to a silent burglary alarm at Sear's in the Altamonte Mall, reported nabbing a suspected burglar in the store at about 4:30 a.m. today.

Police said Eugenio Reyes Rodriguez, 26, of Orlando, allegedly had a burglary tool in his hand. He was wearing gloves and had socks on over his shoes. Police said Rodriguez told them he had moved a video recorder and a camera to another location in the store. Police recovered the items and charged Rodriguez with burglary, possession of burglary tools and grand theft.

Lake Mary city hall construction could begin by late September

By VICKI BUCHANAN
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary's new city hall could enter the first phase of construction as early as mid-September and cost the city nearly $50,000 less than they had originally anticipated.

Bids on the project, which will be built on Country Club Road north of Lake Mary Boulevard, were received from 11 companies, according to City Manager John Litton. The low bid of $957,000 was submitted by General Constructors Company of Altamonte Springs.

Litton said the city is checking the references of the company to "be sure they are as good as they say." According to Litton, General Constructors has done some work for other government agencies in Central Florida, so he does not anticipate that there will be any problems with that. The awarding of the bid to do the work is on the agenda for the Sept. 7 commission meeting. Construction, which is expected to take about nine months, could begin as soon as two weeks after that.

The one-story Colonial-style structure will house the commission chambers as well as the water, planning, recreation and building departments. Also in the 14,000-square foot building will be the offices of the city manager, the city clerk, the director of finance and the director of personnel.

An additional city complex, which will house a police station, fire station and public works garage is currently under construction on Rinehart Road. Litton said the buildings are almost complete and will be dedicated Sept. 23.

The Lake Mary City Commission will meet in joint session with the Seminole County Commission this evening at 7 p.m. in their chambers on Country Club Road.

The address of a woman who was killed by Joseph Robert "Crazy Joe" Spaziano was stated incorrectly, because of an editing error in a story yesterday, about a death warrant being signed for Spaziano. Laura Lynn Harberta, who was murdered by Spaziano in 1973, lived in Orlando. Her body was found in Altamonte Springs.

A headline in the Florida Briefs column yesterday erroneously identified Florida Power and Light as the subject of a Public Service Commission investigation. The investigation is being conducted on Florida Power Co.

Unhappy pair picket for judge's ouster

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Idabel Bickley mopped her brow with a handkerchief in the hot August sun. A car passed by the County Services Building where she stood, its horn tooting. She waved her sign at the driver — "Impeach Judge Davis" — as it drove by.

Bickley and her companion Bea Polk have begun to appear regularly in different locations near downtown Sanford during the last month, always bearing the signs seeking the ouster of Seminole County Circuit Judge S. Joseph Davis. They have appeared in front of the county courthouse, the County Services Building and along the lakefront of Lake Monroe.

"We'll be here every Wednesday unless we have something else to do," Polk said from her post in front of the County Services Building Wednesday. "We'll be here until people begin to take notice."

Polk, of Titusville, said she and her friend Bickley, also of Titusville, are protesting a decision by Davis last year in her son's divorce case. Polk said unknown to her during a hearing, Davis ordered that she and her husband seek family counseling. Polk said she was never sent a copy of the order.

The only comment Davis would make was, "All she has to do is request a hearing."

According to court records, Polk's son Dale Polk Jr. and his wife, Carol Marie Polk, were granted a divorce by Davis in March 1988. The current complaint involves visitation rights.

Bridge extension may improve Lake Jesup's water quality

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Officials are considering a drawdown of Lake Jesup to improve water quality. To do this, they suggest extending the State Road 46 bridge to allow water from the St. John's River freer access to the lake. The river water would provide a flushing action, officials said.

A bridge extension may allow the state environmental agencies to restore the lake circulation altered in 1951 when the 482-foot bridge was built, a state official said Wednesday. One of the two natural channels leading into the lake from the St. Johns River was filled, restricting the flow of fresh river water in and out of the lake.

After the circulation is restored, it might provide a continuing flushing action to help keep the lake clean after draining, said Carol Fall, an environmental specialist with the St. Johns River Water Management District studying the possibility of draining Lake Jesup. But restoring the circulation alone will not clean the polluted 10,000-acre lake, she said.

The 120-foot bridge extension would cost an estimated $260,000, said Gerald Brinton, executive director of the Seminole County Expressway Authority. The authority is planning to build another bridge for the expressway that will skirt the western portion of the lake. One proposal considered is draining the lake during the construction of the expressway bridge.

Officials from several state agencies have met several times to consider lowering the level of Lake Jesup southeast of Sanford to allow the bottom to harden along the shoreline. Called a "drawdown," a hardened bottom would help aquatic plants to grow, offering a habitat for game fish. The entire cost of the drawdown is estimated to cost between $3.4 million and $6 million.

Lake Jesup, larger than Lake Monroe, is largely a backwater of the St. Johns that is fed by Soldier's Creek, Howell Creek, Salt Creek and Six Mile Creek. Several drainage canals also lead into the lake. In the past, several sewage treatment plants discharged into the creeks leading to the lake but have since stopped the dumping.

Fall said the sewage treatment plants have contributed to the pollution of the lake. She said by extending the SR 46 bridge and opening the second channel from the St. Johns into the lake, the water quality may remain high after the drawdown.

Fall said all the discussion are very preliminary in nature and more study of the lake bottom and amounts of water flowing into the lake are needed before a drawdown could be considered feasible. Only once a drawdown is done would the agencies consider the bridge extension, she said. Simply extending the bridge without a drawdown will produce little improvements, Fall said.

State road officials have not been consulted on the bridge extension, Fall said.

Kandu's lesson

The death of Kandu, San Diego Sea World's star killer whale, raises a host of issues about the benefits and drawbacks of keeping marine mammals in captivity. The immediate question is whether Kandu's death was the result of aggression caused by the stress of confinement.

As usual, there are few facts and much speculation. All that is certain is that Kandu died to death after fracturing her jaw in a collision with her larger female rival, Corky. The two killer whales have been aggressive toward each other since they first met two years ago. Their altercation is thought to have been what a Sea World staff veterinarian called "a normal, socially induced act of aggression by Kandu to assert her dominance over Corky."

Fair enough. It is generally accepted that these huge orcas, members of the dolphin family, are top-line predators that hunt other marine mammals. It is quite normal for young animals to challenge older leaders for dominance over the pod.

The evidence suggests, therefore, that Kandu's death was a freak accident.

Nevertheless, the effects of unnatural confinement cannot be lightly dismissed. After all, in the spaciousness of the natural ocean environment, the challenged female, Corky, might have had room to swim away and avoid the encounter.

It is possible that Sea World officials should have been more sensitive to the possibility of such an aggressive encounter. In 1987 Kandu and Corky roughed up a male trainer and sent him to the hospital with internal injuries. Kandu also had seized female trainers in her mouth on two occasions and pinned a male trainer against a wall.

The larger issue is whether the practice of capturing and confining marine mammals is justified by the knowledge scientists gain from studying them at close quarters and the unique educational opportunities afforded to spectators.

Some private resort and theme parks are currently the targets of fierce criticism for programs in which paying customer are towed through pools by Atlantic bottlenose dolphins. Capturing wild dolphins for purely commercial exploitation is a loophole in the Marine Mammal Protection Act that should be plugged.

Sea World's killer whale program cannot escape accusations of commercialism. But this must be balanced by the unquestionable scientific and educational benefits. The knowledge biologists gain from orcas and other marine mammals in captivity is an invaluable aid to their preservation.

Critics rightly question the necessity of making these splendid creatures perform unnatural antics in a circus-like atmosphere. Why not simply study them and let them go? The answer is that educating the public through entertainment does a greater service to marine mammals than scientific research alone. Allowing people close contact with killer whales establishes a bond that nothing else could achieve.

There are, of course, gaps in our knowledge and many gray areas in which scientific opinion differs. But Kandu's death may add to our store of knowledge. As long as our relationship with marine mammals is conducted with sensitivity, as long as the knowledge we gain from the captivity of a few continues to aid the preservation of the entire species, there is no need to curtail popular programs such as those pioneered by Sea World.

Bush keeps his promises to rich

WASHINGTON — To commemorate the 30th anniversary of man's first landing on the moon, President Bush recently made a speech proposing that this country establish a base on the moon, send an expedition to Mars and begin "the permanent settlement of space."

The president did not even attempt to explain, however, where the federal government would find as much as $400 billion needed to finance that ambitious plan in an era of deficit spending and tight budgets.

When the Supreme Court ruled that burning the flag was a constitutionally protected act, Bush addressed a hastily planned ceremony, proclaimed the flag to be "one of our most powerful ideas," and warned that "if it is not defended, it is defamed."

The president urged prompt adoption of an amendment to the Constitution prohibiting flag burning — a simplistic solution to an almost non-existent problem and an action that might itself be unconstitutional.

On countless other issues — ranging from aid to education to support for Poland's new government — Bush's rhetorical reach often exceeds his financial and programmatic grasp. Indeed, he is gaining a reputation as a politician quick to make promises but slow to implement his pledges, perhaps because he has no intention of doing anything more than paying lip service to popular causes.

On one issue, however, the president clearly has a strong commitment — helping his fellow "country club Republicans" secure the lowest possible rate of federal taxation on the capital gains they enjoy after selling securities and other assets that have appreciated in value.

Bush has made no major speeches on that proposal, presumably because he is well aware that it has very little support among the vast majority of people who lack the funds necessary to make substantial investments. For many of them, scraping together the money to pay their monthly bills is often a struggle.

Eschewing public appeals, the president proceeded in a manner he knew would be likely to produce results instead of hullabaloo: He telephoned individual members of the House Ways and Means Committee and personally lobbied them on behalf of the wealthy.

Internal Revenue Service statistics show that those with annual adjusted gross incomes of $100,000 and up account for more than 80 percent of all long-term capital gains. Thus, that small but rich fraction of all taxpayers would reap 80 percent of the benefits of the change Bush is promoting.

At the other end of the scale, those with yearly incomes below $50,000 — a category that includes almost all of the country's low- and middle-income taxpayers — account for less than 25 percent of all capital gains.

The Congressional Joint Committee on Taxation estimates that a capital gains tax cut would initially generate about $4 billion in additional revenues for the federal Treasury. But after the first year or two, the losses would range from $4 billion to $11 billion annually.

A simplistic solution to an almost non-existent problem.

Why not have a good time?

SAGAPONACK, N.Y. — In the Hamptons, where money talks as loudly as it does anywhere, a certain stillness has descended. In the sister town of Quogue, someone spend at least $1 million on a party. That someone was Gayfyrd Steinberg, wife of Saul Steinberg, the head of Reliance Group Holding Inc.

For his 50th birthday, Gayfyrd showed all the Hamptons that, in the neither reaches of wretched excess, a record still waited to be broken. This was Gayfyrd's personal best. Also for poor Gayfyrd, her record may not have lasted the month.

From Tangiers (no Hampton) came reports that Malcolm Forbes, publisher of Forbes magazine, had spent upwards of $2 million on a party. He, too, it turns out was having a birthday — his 70th — and for it he flew a reported 800 guests all the way to North Africa. To paraphrase an old Bing Crosby song, like Webster's Dictionary, the rich were Morocco bound.

What's going on here? What accounts for the fact that, within a single month, $3 million or more may have been spent on two parties? And not secretly, mind you, but in full view of the press. Forbes has permitted at least one reporter (from the Washington Post) to join his guests and Steinberg not only invited Liz Smith, the gossip columnist for the New York Daily News, but agreed to let her write about it. These parties were semi-public events and, from what everyone says, you and I missed a hell of a good time.

Let us not question the professional ethics of journalists who think they can be both guests and reporter. Let us not wonder if the gift they bring is the rave review they later give the event. (Smith on the Steinberg party: "Yes, having money helps, but this party demanded also a rare creativity, good intuition and considerable talent.")

And let us not have our criticism gagged by the rejoinder that these people also give huge sums to charity. So what? We all give to charities. Let us ask, instead, how such seemingly sophisticated people could have had such a lapse in taste.

Neither the Steinbergs nor Forbes, after all, are yokels or rubes, oil-patch millionaires who had a hunch, sunk a well and became instantly rich. These are college graduates who, we may suppose, have a passing acquaintance with both the rules and the literature about wealth. Surely, F. Scott Fitzgerald was on their college reading lists and the term "Gilded Age" would bring a nod from them. Yet they and others of their set have turned "Breakfast at Tiffany's" into a gluttonous event.

What produces such behavior? In part, the answer is politics. During the Reagan years, we were told that almost no social problem was amenable to money: To spend is to "throw money at the problem" — as if there is no such thing as spending wisely or, even, experimentally. To complain about inequality is to practice the divisive "politics of envy." The cause of crime is criminals. The cause of teenage pregnancy is lack of values, the cause of dope addiction is the failure to "just say no" and the cause of poverty is poor people.

By and large, the country has gleefully accepted this dopey prescription for what ails us — and George Bush, against his better judgment, has endorsed it. Reagan lowered taxes (Why not? The money would just be wasted) and Bush will not raise them. But the Reagans set the style. They lived lavishly in the White House. It was Nancy Reagan who could not say "no" to designer dresses and who partied with some of the same people who any happy birthday to Saul Steinberg and Malcolm Forbes. The Reagans celebrated wealth.

Reagan's point, the essence of what was grandiloquently called an ideology, was succinctly stated by Carolynne Roehm, a guest at the Steinberg party: "All of us have worked very hard for our money and we can spend it however we want." Reagan said substantially the same thing: His money was his. He had felt that way ever since, as a movie actor, he was in the 90 percent marginal tax bracket. In his political dotage, Reagan went soft on Russia, but never on taxes.

It probably helps that both Steinberg and Forbes live in New York. The city's problems are so overwhelming, seemingly so intractable, that a person could be forgiven for agreeing with Reagan that money is not the answer. Since it is their own anyway, and since it can do little social good, it might as well be used for a good time. Come to Quogue. Come to Morocco.

There is, however, one final thought. The party spending of the Steinbergs et al is a pie in the face to us all. It produces momentary blindness and then a shock of self-recognition — a sense that there is a bit of the Steinbergs in many of us.

The country has gleefully accepted this dopey prescription for what ails us.

Soviets work for equality of sexes

YAROSLAVL, U.S.S.R. — Soviet premier Mikhail Gorbachev — up to his hip-boots in economic reform — appears to be leading a fledgling feminist movement.

Ironically, equality of the sexes was once a feature of Russian life but now has turned into a matter of simple survival.

Beginning with a 1918 decree by Lenin and continuing through the 1977 Soviet constitution, equality has been enshrined in Soviet law. The case of Valentina Tereshkova, who rates a small museum in this, her hometown, tells part of the story. Tereshkova was a young textile worker whose fan letter to the Soviet space program in the early 1960s catapulted her into a three-day space flight in 1963, the year the Soviets claimed a special political coup: putting a woman in space for longer than all of the American men put together.

It wasn't until 1982 when the Soviets were trying to pre-empt the first American woman in space, Sally Ride, that a second female cosmonaut was hurled toward the stars.

Soviet officials boasted to us that women comprise a full 51 percent of the labor force. Most of the secondary school teachers and staffs are female, along with three-fourths of the country's doctors.

The rub is that both professions in Russia have a relatively lowly status and pay poorly. Women only earn two-thirds of the pay men will earn in the same positions. Nor do women often reach upper-management positions.

In most households, both the husband and wife work. But the husbands have taken a page out of Archie Bunker's book — passing on housework and leaving women to stand in food lines.

Small wonder that one out of every three wives in this city will divorce her husband. They become fed up with drunken husbands and the drudgery and confinement of sharing small, two-room apartments with parents while waiting for private apartments. However, to Gorbachev the family crisis could be the death knell for the Soviet empire itself. Gorbachev's view of feminism is inspired as much by national survival as by lofty altruism.

The crisis in the Soviet family has depressed birth rates of Russian children, raising the specter that already restive Soviet minorities will one day outnumber Russians. Gorbachev is offering cash incentives for couples with large families. Gorbachev's celebrated anti-alcohol campaign is another major family initiative. (Heavy drinking ranks first here in polls of why wives left husbands.) He castigates husbands who don't help their wives, but expect to be waited on themselves. And he's increasing child allowances, and both the quality and quantity of day-care centers.

Gorbachev is also concerned about abortion and birth control, but not in the same context in which these divisive issues are debated in the United States. Soviet birth control is crude. Five-cent condoms are widely available but are spurned by men. Women regularly have up to four abortions. Only the rarest of young couples have more than two children; most can't afford more.

Martinez

He said he wanted lawmakers to take up a package of legislation filed for the regular legislative session last spring, but which never cleared committee.

"Florida's lawmakers will be in Tallahassee focusing their attention on the importance of life and I see this as an opportunity to right a wrong that has resulted in the death of an innocent life," the governor said.

He referred to the 2-year-old boy, Bradley McGee, who died July 28 of head injuries sustained when his stepfather plunged his head into a toilet after the boy soiled his diaper. The stepfather and mother, Thomas and Sheryl Coe, have been charged with first degree murder.

Stone said while the death was tragic and some change to state rules or laws is needed to prevent additional deaths, more consideration should be given to the response. "That was a tragic death, but that was one incident in who knows how many millions of cases that are handled correctly," Stone said.

Martinez said the matter should be addressed promptly.

"Legislators may not have seen the need to change this law in time to save Bradley McGee, but I am determined that they will see the need in time to prevent even more tragic deaths."

Bradley was removed and then returned to the home despite reports from his foster parents and his mother's family that he would be subject to abuse there. An investigation showed the boy might have been saved had the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services followed its own rules regarding such incidents.

Martinez and HRS Secretary Greg Coler have placed part of the blame on a state law that requires caseworkers to make the re-verification of families the top priority when possible.

A bill filed in the spring session would have changed the law to make the child's best interests the paramount concern. Democratic lawmakers have said the bill was filed too late to be taken up in the 60-day regular session and that the Republican administration did little to push the proposal.

Stone said he agrees the child's welfare should be the top priority, followed by family togetherness second. He said the priorities might be changed without legislation, but an HRS rule change.

Martinez said Wednesday he wants the law changed so that before a child could be returned home, a judge must determine that the reasons for removal have been remedied so that the child is no longer in danger.

Martinez is seeking $3.4 million for 126 new positions in HRS to investigate child abuse and provide family counseling. He wants an additional $983,274 for 36 foster care counselors.

Martinez called the special session to consider a range of new restrictions on abortion because he feared that volatile issue might overshadow other matters before the next regular session next spring.

He rejected earlier calls from lawmakers to expand the call of the abortion session to permit debate on increased social spending for poor and abused children.

"Where was he for all the other cases HRS screwed up on?" demanded Rep. Elaine Gordon, D-North Miami, an ardent abortion rights supporter overruling the House abortion hearings.

Gordon said the existing state abuse law was passed at the insistence of conservatives and fundamentalist Christians who didn't want the state interfering with families.

She added that the governor vetoed a House abuse prevention package approved in the regular session, and may be supporting reforms now as a face-saving device in case lawmakers reject his abortion package. "This way he's going to look like a hero," Gordon said.

Senate President Bob Crawford supports the abuse package, but fears it will be difficult to give it a fair hearing when the Capitol is packed with the huge, emotional crowds expected during the special session, an aide said.

"He has some concerns that it will be difficult to give the child abuse statutes a thorough review during the chaos of the abortion special session," said Crawford spokeswoman Michelle McLawhorn. "But if that's the governor's will, he's willing to do that."

Other elements of the governor's abuse package would require HRS to notify judges of conflicting evidence about the child's welfare and ways to resolve such conflicts, give foster parents first consideration as adoptive parents, bring state's attorneys into dependency cases when criminal abuse prosecutions are underway, and giving independent legal guardians a say in all stages of dependency hearings.

Thomas also said, "I don't blame the police. They take their direction, to a large measure, from us...Without the police we couldn't even move around."

Credentials of VA doctors not checked

United Press International

WASHINGTON - The Veterans Administration hired doctors without making required background or competency checks and employed scores of resident physicians who had been arrested on charges that included drug and sex offenses, the General Accounting Office said.

"This report contains some extremely troubling results," said Sen. Frank Lautenberg, R-Alaska, who requested the study. "The integrity of the medical care system is built on trust, and the VA must improve their programs so that veterans will know their doctors are competent."

The report, released Wednesday, examined procedures in eight VA hospitals during 1987-88 for reviewing an applicant's license, education and training, a process called "credentialing," and for evaluating a doctor's experience, competence and health, a process known as "privileging."

A 1985 VA inspector general's report said VA medical centers did not adequately check credentials and had no procedures for making sure all doctors were privileged. The VA told Congress in 1986 it would review its procedures and the GAO report checked on its progress.

The GAO found the VA failed to verify doctors' licenses with state medical boards, assure background checks were completed on medical residents, review doctors' privileges in a timely manner, document how privileging decisions were made, reduce privileges of incompetent doctors and submit the names of incompetent doctors to appropriate licensing boards.

Donna St. John, spokeswoman for the Department of Veterans Affairs, said the VA is now known, said most of the failures involved local facilities not following procedures.

Hotel queen guilty of tax evasion

United Press International
NEW YORK — Billionaire Leona Helmsley, who boasted her posh hotel suites were fit for a queen, could be sentenced to less regal surroundings following her conviction on federal tax evasion charges.
 Helmsley, 69, was found guilty Wednesday of hiding in company accounts everything from the price of girdles to lavish furnishings for her suburban mansion.
 She faces up to five years in prison for each of the 33 felony counts of which she was convicted — more than 100 years in all — and fines ranging up to $7.75 million.
 A U.S. District Court jury, after five days of deliberations, convicted the hotel magnate of tax evasion, mail fraud and conspiracy to defraud the government. Her two associates, Frank Turco and Joseph Licari, were found guilty of assisting in the tax scheme.

 Helmsley, who once boasted "only the little people pay taxes," and Turco were acquitted of conspiracy to commit extortion.
 Sentencing for Helmsley, who remains free on her own recognizance, was set for Nov. 14. Her attorneys said they would appeal the verdict.
 Helmsley's husband, Harry, 80, was also indicted on tax evasion charges but was not tried because a judge ruled he has suffered severe memory loss.

 The 41-count indictment charged that the couple evaded $1.2 million in income taxes in 1983, 1984 and 1985 by charging off $4 million in personal items — including renovations and furnishings for their 28-room Dunes Hall estate in Greenwich, Conn. — to their hotel and real estate companies.
 Helmsley was found guilty of 33 counts. Turco, 45, of Lutz, Fla., and Licari, 51, of Oyster Bay Cove on Long Island, were convicted on 39 counts.
 Helmsley controls the hotel empire which includes 21 hotels in 15 cities around the world.

Bakker prays for collapsed witness

United Press International
CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Television evangelist Jim Bakker got a chance to show a judge and jury an aspect of his character not previously apparent at his fraud trial — that he is able to forgive.
 That opportunity came Wednesday as Steve Nelson, a former vice president at the PTL ministry that Bakker founded, collapsed while testifying against Bakker, who is charged with 24 counts of fraud and conspiracy during his heyday at PTL.
 Nelson gave two hours of highly critical testimony, saying he warned Bakker that his fund-raising was becoming a pyramid scheme. The witness was being cross-examined by defense lawyer Harold Bender when he clutched his chest and lost consciousness, slumping forward in his chair.

 A juror, Nancy Summey, a nurse at Charlotte Memorial Hospital, leaped to her feet and said, "He has fainted." She rushed from the jury box to Nelson's side. "I'm a nurse," she said.
 A marshal lifted Nelson, 39, from the witness stand to the floor and Bakker rushed to his side, knelt on the marble floor and began to pray.

 "This is the real Jim Bakker — praying for his enemies," said the Rev. Paul Mays, a friend from Jacksonville, Fla., who attended Wednesday's session.
 Nelson recovered consciousness a minute later and clutched Bakker's hand. The television evangelist continued to pray until paramedics arrived.
 Bakker, a charismatic, is a spiritual man who believes in the gifts of the Holy Spirit — prophecy, speaking in tongues, the power of prayer and faith healing. But the PTL founder did not claim faith healing when Nelson appeared to recover instantaneously. Instead, he trembled in silence.

 Nelson was taken to Presbyterian Hospital, where he was treated for dehydration and released three hours later. A hospital spokeswoman said Nelson had not eaten for two days because he had suffered a bout of stomach flu.
 Nelson was to be the first witness at Thursday's session.
 Until Bakker fell to his knees in prayer, he had appeared cold and sullen as former employees testified against him during the first three days of the trial.

Noriega evidence sent to OAS

WASHINGTON — Administration officials, preparing evidence to give the Organisation of American States today, completed a lengthy dossier that they say shows Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega's deep involvement in drug trafficking.
 At a meeting of the OAS the U.S. representative, Deputy Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger, was expected to focus on Noriega's alleged links with drug traffickers and money-launderers. The meeting was being held one day before a new government was supposed to assume power in Panama City.
 Noriega, who as chief of the Panamanian Defense Forces in de facto leader of the Central American country, refused to step aside for a civilian democratic government, despite a three-month mediation effort by the OAS.
 As an OAS commission reported its failure on Aug. 23, Eagleburger said, "General Noriega has turned Panama into a haven for drug traffickers and a center for money laundering and the trans-shipment of cocaine."

Two indicted in racial slaying

NEW YORK — Prominent black leaders and the parents of a teen slain in a racially motivated attack said they would meet today with Brooklyn District Attorney Lis Holtzman to discuss the case.
 A Brooklyn grand jury, meanwhile, indicted two suspects Wednesday for second-degree murder and other charges stemming from the attack.
 The murder charges were unexpected because police have said they still were seeking the suspected gunman.

Japanese leader arrives

United Press International
SAN FRANCISCO — Japanese Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu acknowledged that economic friction has caused sparks between Japan and America but said it must not be allowed to weaken the bond between the two economic superpowers.
 Kaifu, opening a 12-day tour of North America, told a dinner audience of about 800 people Wednesday night that the nature of the relationship between the WWII adversaries has changed.
 "The U.S.-Japan relationship is no longer the protector-protected, teacher-pupil bond it once was," he said. "Especially in the economic aspects, this bond has become an association of partners cooperating, and occasionally competing, on an equal footing. This is a fact whether one likes it or not."
 "Friction has occasionally arisen between us," Kaifu said. "At all costs, however, we must prevent this friction from rocking the foundations of our bilateral bond."
 Kaifu, in office just three weeks, said relations between the two nations are "all in all, excellent" and it is time for them to "address together problems facing all human beings such as world peace, managing the global economy and dealing with environmental dangers."

Murderer executed

United Press International
RICHMOND, Va. — Alton Wayne, baptized the night before he was executed for murdering a 61-year-old widow, peacefully accepted his fate but made one point clear in his last words: "What's about to occur here is a murder."
 With 10 years of appeals exhausted, the 34-year-old Army veteran skipped his final meal Wednesday to take communion and looked skyward for inspiration from his newfound God while being strapped to the golden oak electric chair.
 "I would like to express that what's about to occur here is a murder," Wayne said. "I want everybody to know I forgive the people involved in this murder, that I don't hate nobody, and I love you."

Cambodia peace talks end in impasse

PARIS — A 19-nation conference on peace in Cambodia was suspended, with organizers concluding that four warring Cambodian factions were not ready to compromise on a power-sharing formula to end the 11-year-old conflict.

The monthlong conference set out to chart a peaceful future for Cambodia after the withdrawal of Vietnamese troops, but ended Wednesday without finding a solution.

"It is not yet possible to achieve a comprehensive settlement," the participants noted in a brief final communique.

The communique said conference co-presidents, Foreign Minister Roland Dumas and his Indonesian counterpart, Ali Alatas, would continue to work with parties involved in the conflict and begin consultations within six months toward reconvening the conference.

Dumas said France would like to host another conference "as soon as possible."

Major differences still separate the parties in the conflict and it was "preferable to wait until conditions, currently insufficient to provide hope for a real compromise, come together," Dumas told reporters after the closing session.

Alatas and Dumas both refused to characterize the conference as a diplomatic failure.

Solidarity, communists wrangling

WARSAW, Poland — Solidarity stepped up efforts to limit the communist role in Poland's new government, with a senior movement rejecting a Communist Party bid to control the foreign affairs, justice and information ministries.

Solidarity parliamentary caucus leader Bronislaw Geremek's statement Wednesday was the strongest indication yet that the Solidarity-led non-communist coalition has hardened its stance against broad communist influence in the government, which still is being formed.

"The public would not understand wide participation of communists in the new government," Geremek said.

The Communist Party already has been guaranteed the vital defense and interior portfolios, which control the army and police, but the once-monolithic party recently indicated it wanted other ministries.

President Wojciech Jaruzelski discussed the coalition situation Wednesday with Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki, offering his assistance to form a "government of grand coalition," the official news agency PAP said.

The meeting indicated Jaruzelski, a communist, is insisting on greater participation by his party.

Jews to boycott peace day in Auschwitz

WARSAW, Poland — Poland's chief rabbi said he will boycott a "World Prayer for Peace" marking the 50th anniversary of World War II to protest a Catholic leader's recent statement in the dispute over a convent at the Auschwitz death camp.

Rabbi Pinkas Menahem Joskowicz said Wednesday he was astounded by a sermon Saturday by Cardinal Jozef Glemp, which he said could stir up anti-Semitism in Poland.

"There is no sense to join in prayers with those who do not allow us to pray (in Auschwitz)," he said in an interview with United Press International.

Glemp, speaking to 150,000 people Saturday at the southern shrine of Czestochowa, said Jews present themselves as a nation "elevated over other nations."

"If there is no anti-Polishness, there will not be anti-Semitism," he added.

Glemp said 14 nuns situated in a Catholic convent at the former Auschwitz death camp have the right to pray for all dead, despite the disapproval of Jews over the convent's presence on what they say is hallowed ground.

The convent has been a volatile issue since February when a deadline for moving the nuns passed without any action by Polish Catholic authorities.

Princess Anne separating from husband

LONDON — Princess Anne and Capt. Mark Phillips are separating after 15 years of marriage but there are "no plans for divorce proceedings," Buckingham Palace announced today.

May Peter Phillips, the captain's father, revealed Wednesday night that the couple would live apart under the terms of an amicable arrangement that might lead to a legal separation, although they had no immediate plans to divorce.

A Buckingham Palace spokeswoman said in a prepared statement, "Her royal highness, the princess royal, and Capt. Mark Phillips have decided to separate on terms agreed between them. There are no plans for divorce proceedings."

Tanks enforce Medellin curfew

United Press International

BOGOTA, Colombia — Tanks rumbled through the powerful Medellin cocaine cartel's home town, supporting a curfew enforced by 4,000 police and soldiers, as American diplomats reportedly prepared their families for evacuation.

In Washington, the State Department Wednesday issued a stern travel advisory saying Americans "should consider seriously leaving" Colombia, where the country's drug lords have declared war against the government.

The U.S. Embassy plans to pull about 15 spouses and children of diplomats from Colombia "as soon as possible," leaving between 30 and 40 envoys, a State Department source in Bogota said.

The department "strongly recommended" the action, the source said.

Pressure from concerned parents prompted the early return to the United States of American students on a foreign studies program in Bogota.

Members of the so-called "Extraditables," the armed wing of the cartels, have threatened to kill five Americans for every Colombian extradited to the United States.

Medellin Mayor Juan Gomez imposed a 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew on his city in response to 15 bomb explosions that have citizens "corralled by fear," said a city official who asked not to be named.

About 4,000 police and soldiers patrolled the neighborhoods of the city of 2 million and tanks cruised the streets of the industrial sector, witnesses said.

Officers found four rockets in a taxi they intercepted Tuesday night in Medellin. The weapons apparently were to be used to attack giant tanks of alcohol at the state-owned Antioquia Liquor Factory.

Medellin, 150 miles northwest of Bogota, has been the site of three waves of bombings since the cocaine cartels declared war on the government, police, judges, industrial leaders and journalists.

Strikers oppose language proposal

MOSCOW — Railway employees in Moldova joined a strike by 80,000 workers protesting legislation that would eliminate Russian as the official language of the Soviet republic, the official news agency Tass said.

A reporter for the Communist Party newspaper Pravda said Wednesday he was harassed by the Moldavian Popular Front in the republic's capital of Kishinev for his articles criticizing the nationalist movement.

Moscow considers the anti-Russian legislation pending in Moldova and a surge of nationalism in the Baltics to be threats against the Soviet Union.

The Moldavian Supreme Soviet for a second day debated the proposed law that would make Moldavian the republic's official language and replace the Russian Cyrillic alphabet with the original Latin script.

Chinese begin hoarding rice

United Press International

BEIJING — Fears of a poor autumn rice harvest have triggered widespread grain hoarding in Beijing that has sent prices climbing and caused shortages of high quality rice at free markets throughout the city.

Hoarding of grain and other commodities last summer led to the cancellation of planned free market price reforms, a key element of now deposed Communist Party leader Zhao Ziyang's urban reform program.

The reversal of the policy by conservative hardliners was seen as the beginning of Zhao's downfall.

South African police raid union offices

United Press International

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Police raided the offices of South Africa's largest trade federation and the home of its general secretary today in what they said was a pre-emptive strike against plans to disrupt next week's parliamentary elections.

The government also announced it has smashed a terrorist ring bent on disrupting the election, and in Natal province police detained a fifth prominent anti-apartheid leader in 24 hours without charge.

Police also fired tear gas and rubber bullets to break up a rally on a Johannesburg university campus students said.

The actions extended one of the largest crackdowns on anti-apartheid activity since the declaration of a state of emergency in June 1986 and came less than a week before Sept. 6 parliamentary elections that exclude the country's 28 million black majority.

Law and Order Ministry spokesman Brig. Leon Mallet said the detentions were aimed at activists defying government-imposed restriction orders and those police wanted to question in connection with actions aimed at disrupting the elections.

At least 12 union members were arrested outside the offices of the Congress of South African Trade Unions during spontaneous protests against the raid as up to 10 police searched the downtown Johannesburg building in the presence of Cosatu General Secretary Jay Naidoo.

Police also banned a student rally at Johannesburg's University of the Witwatersrand at the same time hundreds of black students began gathering on campus. Riot police warned the crowd to disperse and opened fire with tear gas, when dozens ignored the order, witnesses said. Students said rubber bullets also were fired but no injuries reported.

Acting President Frederik de Klerk, leading his National Party into its toughest election battle since it won power in 1948, announced in Pretoria today that authorities had smashed a "terrorist" network intending to disrupt the polls.

De Klerk, speaking before a police college ceremony, said nine guerrillas of the outlawed African National Congress and 10 "collaborators" had been arrested over the past week and a large quantity of weapons seized, including limpet mines, grenades and AK-47 rifles.

"Information indicates that some of these terrorists entered the country solely to disrupt the elections," De Klerk said without disclosing details.

A Cosatu spokesman said police occupied Naidoo's home for more than two hours, then escorted him to the downtown Cosatu offices to continue the search.

Seattle adds to Brewers woes

MILWAUKEE — Ken Griffey Jr. drove in three runs Wednesday night with a home run and a single to lift the Seattle Mariners to a 7-3 victory over the slumping Milwaukee Brewers.

The loss was the eighth in nine games for the Brewers. Milwaukee has fallen seven games behind first-place Baltimore in the AL East after being within a half-game of the lead on Aug. 20.

Randy Johnson, 6-5, allowed three runs on five hits in 6 2-3 innings for his first victory since July 29. Mike Jackson pitched the final 2 1-3 for his sixth save.

Milwaukee rookie Jeff Peterak, 0-2, was rocked for five runs on six hits in three innings.

Seattle won for the second straight game after a 12-game losing streak.

In other action Baltimore belted Cleveland 7-4; Toronto tipped Chicago 2-1; New York outlasted Oakland 8-5; California clubbed Boston 4-0; Minnesota trounced Texas 7-3; and Kansas City downed Detroit 6-1.

Notre Dame back transfers

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Former Notre Dame running back Tony Brooks has registered for fall classes at Holy Cross Junior College in South Bend, school officials said Wednesday.

The second-leading rusher for the Fighting Irish's national championship team last season was denied admission to Notre Dame this fall despite being academically eligible.

Brooks was involved in a hit-and-run automobile accident during the offseason, but he has not said why he was dismissed from Notre Dame.

"I don't think anybody in our office has seen him, but he did check to see what courses would transfer and apply to his major," Notre Dame academic advisor Mike DeCicco said. "He has to sit out at least one year. I think he would be eligible for readmission in the fall."

USSR to compete in next race

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — The Soviet Union has accepted an invitation to enter the 1,150-mile Anchorage-to-Nome Iditarod Sled Dog Race and plans to send competitors to Alaska this fall to start training, race officials said Wednesday.

The Iditarod Trail Committee also is proposing another race to the Soviets — one that would send sled dog teams dashing across the U.S.-Soviet Bering Strait border.

The proposed Soviet-Alaska Sled Dog Race would be run in March 1991, beginning in Nome, Alaska, across the frozen Bering Strait, finishing in the Soviet coastal town of Anadyr.

A protocol calling for such a race was signed this week by Iditarod Trail Committee Executive Director Rosemary Phillips and was to be hand-delivered to Soviet officials next month in Magadan by Alaska Gov. Steve Cowper, who begins a two-week visit to the Soviet Far East this week.

Scott registers 18th win

CHICAGO — Mike Scott hurled a four-hitter Wednesday night to tie the major-league lead with his 18th victory and Gerald Young banged out four singles to give the Houston Astros a 8-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Scott, making his fifth attempt at his 18th win, struck out nine and walked one in posting his eighth complete game of the season. Three of the four hits he allowed were home runs.

The 18 wins equalled his career-high and tied him for the major-league lead with Joe Magrane of St. Louis and Oakland's Dave Stewart. Scott, 18-7, also singled in a run.

Rick Sutcliffe, 13-11, failed to make it through the fourth in ning for the second consecutive game. He was rocked for five runs and eight hits in 3 1-3 innings. He also walked two, threw two wild pitches and committed a balk.

Elsewhere on the diamond Wednesday, San Francisco tripped Philadelphia 3-2; Pittsburgh downed Atlanta 7-5; Cincinnati topped St. Louis 2-0 in 13 innings; Montreal defeated San Diego 5-1; and New York belted Los Angeles 9-3.

Boys' volleyball spikes on County schools start second season of play

Seminole should be more competitive this year in boys' volleyball, having a team to start the season after only playing the last half of the 1988 season. With only three players back from last year, newcomers like Nick Jones (center) make up most of the 1989 Seminole roster.

By MARK BLYTHE
 Herald sports writer

After its rookie season, Seminole County's boys' volleyball teams are looking to step up their level of play this year and build respectable programs at each of the schools.

Last year Lake Mary and Lake Howell enjoyed banner seasons. Lake Mary posted a near-perfect record, its only loss coming to Lake Howell in the final match of the year while the rest of the teams followed.

This year, the teams look to be evening out and the talent at all the schools seems to be growing as more athletes are getting involved in the sport.

Seminole, which started in the middle of the season last year, returns three players and is looking to increase its level of play this year. The Tribe was competitive last year but had trouble in game situations against the already tested teams throughout the county.

"We're looking better than last year," Seminole coach Sylvester Wynn said. "We're still having trouble getting practice time. With the renovation going on at the school, we haven't been able to get in the gym."

Seniors Jeff Derr and Scott Scukup return for Seminole this year along with junior Van Kao. The three will lead the Seminoles into their second season and could help make them a competitive squad in the conference.

Lake Mary returns a great deal of size and a pair of quality setters, but will need to work on the fundamentals of the game to be as dominating as it was a year ago.

"We have real good size but lack fundamentals," Lake Mary coach Bill Whalen said. "If we can learn the fundamentals, we will be very competitive."

Seniors Chris Davidson, Jeff Draughton, Dale Whitman and Mike Clifton provide most of the size for the Rams and give their team some very strong hitting.

Davidson, 6-6, is the tallest player and has experience as he played every game last year. Draughton is 6-3 and adds more strength in the hitting department. Juniors Matt MacDonald, 6-4, and Jon Brown, 6-5, add more strength for Lake Mary along with Keylor Chan.

Juniors Dale Whitman and Mike Clifton will be the setters for the Rams this year and have the responsibility to get the ball to the big men.

"We have to work on the little things that show up in games," Whalen said. "Basically we have good setters and good hitters. We just need to improve on our passing and transition. To win the conference, we must have good fundamentals."

Lake Howell returns five players from last year's team but only one starter. The Silver Hawks are working on the fundamentals also and not worrying about the other parts of the game just yet.

"This is a whole new team," Lake Howell coach Christi Scott said. "We have just one returning starter so we're just working on the fundamentals instead of learning offenses and defenses."

Scott is hoping her troops will come along during the course of the season to form a potent attack. She is also having her team remember three words throughout the season.

"We must remember concentration, consistency and control," Scott said. "If we do those three things, we should be all right."

Jamboree to feature offense

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald correspondent

If you like offense, Thursday night's preseason football jamboree at Lyman High School should be the place to be.

Featured tonight will be the leading passer and the No. 2 and 3 rushers in Seminole County last year. Throw in one of the best running back prospects from Volusia County and you have the makings of a very exciting night.

The jamboree has the Oviedo Lions taking on the Fighting Seminoles of Seminole for one half starting at 7:00 p.m. In the second half, the Deltona Wolves will play host Lyman Greyhounds.

Junior quarterback Kerry Wiggins of Seminole led the county in passing last year and he has his two favorite targets from last year, Brandon Cash (24.4 yards per catch last year) and Bernard Eady (10.5 yards per catch) back. They are joined by Robert Moore (second in the triple jump at the 3A state track meet last spring) at tight end.

But Coach Emory Blake has let it be known that his team will definitely do more than pass. He plans on running a lot of man-in-motion and sprint out plays. Junior tailback Henry Williams (who rushed for 423 yards last year) and senior fullback Julius Bennett should make the attack that much effective.

Oviedo is another veteran team with 12 starters back from last

The Barn's 16 hits whip Mobilite

Creative invasion, the Wrecking Crew, and The Barn stayed on the winning track in Sanford Men's Class C Slowpitch Softball action at Chase Park Wednesday night.

Wilander, McEnroe dumped in second round

United Press International

NEW YORK — Eighteen-year-old Pete Sampras made defending champion Mats Wilander an upset victim of historic proportion at the U.S. Open Wednesday night with a five-set victory just hours after four-time U.S. Open champion John McEnroe was also a surprise loser in the second round.

Sampras, ranked No. 91, scored a 5-7, 6-3, 1-6, 6-1, 6-4 over the fifth-seeded Wilander. Not since 1973 had the Open defending champion lost so early, when Ilie Nastase lost in the second round to Andrew Pattison.

Sampras, from Rancho Palos Verdes, Calif., charged the net at every opportunity, forcing the Swedish baseliner to try for passing shots on almost every point.

Before the match, Sampras' hope was "to put a lot of pressure on him to pass me and to serve well." He said Wilander "wasn't on his game."

The defending champion, who came into the match with a 14-1 record when a Grand Slam match went five sets, said Sampras "made me play bad, but that's my own fault."

Qualifier Paul Haarhuis, ranked No. 115, combined a powerful serve with precision passing shots to dispatch McEnroe, the fourth seed, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, 7-5.

The winner of three Grand Slam titles in 1988, Wilander had an emotional meltdown after becoming the top-ranked player last year. This year he has not won a tournament and reached only one final.

Wilander said Sampras "obviously can play some good tennis at times, as he showed here."

but added, "I was disappointed to be playing that badly."

Sampras had two match points, both in the final game, but double-faulted on the first one. "I admit I choked," he said. On his next match-point opportunity, Sampras won when Wilander's service return went wide.

Sampras finished with 72 placement winners and 42 unforced errors. He came to net 175 times against just 36 by Wilander.

McEnroe, working for three years to regain the form that made him the world's best in 1981-84, came into the tournament seeded fourth and said his ouster was also the result of his own poor play.

"To lose to a guy I've never seen before, that's pretty bad," said McEnroe, who struggled with

McCloud comes to terms with Pacers

INDIANAPOLIS - George McCloud, the seventh pick in the NBA draft, signed a multi-year contract Wednesday with the Indiana Pacers and made his first discovery about professional basketball.

Terms of the contract were not released but agent Bill Pollack and Donnie Walsh, Indiana's general manager, said they were never far apart in terms despite offers from Europe.

Pollack said McCloud never seriously considered such overtures because he wanted to be a point guard, the same position the Pacers want him to play.

Browns' Mack pleads guilty to cocaine use

CLEVELAND - Cleveland Browns fullback Kevin Mack pleaded guilty Wednesday to a reduced cocaine-use charge that will likely keep him out of prison.

His lawyer also said that since it was his first offense, he also would escape punishment by the NFL. League rules specify players undergo a 30-day drug rehabilitation program for their first offense, which Mack completed at the end of July.

Mack had been indicted on four counts, including drug trafficking, and could have faced up to 20 years in prison. But in an agreement his lawyer said had been in the works almost since he was arrested June 28, prosecutors agreed to drop the three more serious counts of the indictment.

And the wording in the count to which Mack pleaded guilty was changed from "obtain and possess" cocaine to simply "use" cocaine - a fourth-degree felony.

The maximum penalty for a fourth-degree felony is 18 months in prison and a $5,000 fine. Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Just Richard McMonagle deferred sentencing pending a probation report, but Mack's lawyer, Gerald Gold, thought it was unlikely he would get any prison time.

"The minimum he could get would be probation," Gold said, adding that probation is "normal in such cases (first-time offenders)."

Later, at the Browns' training facility in Berea, Mack said he was still worried about what sentence he would receive.

"I'm very concerned, more than I can say right now," he said. "I'm a little nervous. It brings back memories of when I was arrested."

He added, "I think after the police investigated and stuff, they came to their own conclusion that I wasn't involved with trafficking and selling."

Browns owner Art Modell thought the plea bargain was a positive development.

"What's important is that Kevin has admitted he used cocaine and he has taken dramatic measures to fight against ever using that drug, or any other, for the rest of his life," Modell said. "He knows that his effort will be a day-to-day commitment and we're all pulling for him to succeed."

"We never believed he was a trafficker and the prosecutors obviously did not either. All of the facts of this case are being forwarded to the commissioner's office and we will wait for the league's response to the resolution of this case."

Mack, 27, a two-time Pro Bowl selection, gave barely audible "yes" and "no" answers when McMonagle questioned him about the plea bargain. He left as soon as the 10-minute hearing was over, accompanied by his wife, Ava, and the Browns' security chief, Ted Chappelle.

Mack was arrested June 28 in one of the city's most notorious drug trafficking districts, allegedly with $600 worth of cocaine.

But Gold said the cocaine was in the pocket of a size-40 jacket, indicating it could not have been in Mack's possession.

"He wears a size 50," Gold said. "The police didn't know who had what. I'm not saying they 'over-charged' him, but it turned out the (other counts) were wrong."

Asked if Mack remained in good spirits despite his problem, Gold said, "I think he was scared today. I think he would rather face the San Francisco defense than be in court."

Gold said he expected NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle would act quickly in hearing Mack's case. The league announced after Mack's arrest it would take no action until the court had reached a determination on his guilt.

"We're going to make sure we give him (Rozelle) all the facts and background in the case," Gold said. "This should be viewed as a first offense, meaning 30 days in a drug rehabilitation program."

In game two Creative Invasion trailed 7-8 entering the sixth inning when they exploded for four runs and then held off a determined come back by Ken Kern's Transmation to post a 10-9 victory.

Invasion now stands at 8-1 and can finish no worse than a tie for first. Kern's falls to 4-5.

Creative wound up with 20 hits in the contest and was led by Bryan Hartman with two doubles, two singles, two runs scored, and one RBI. Others who contributing were Kirk Allen (double, two singles, run scored, two RBI), Vic Dibartolo (double, single, run scored, RBI), Blake Murray (two singles, run scored, RBI), Joe Perpe (two singles, run scored, RBI), John Raynor (two singles, run scored, RBI), Kyle Brubaker (two singles, run scored), Ron Lange (single, run scored, RBI), Joey Dibartolo (single, run scored, RBI), and Nick Perpe (single, RBI).

In the final game of the evening the Wrecking Crew scored five runs in the first two innings then held off Heathrow to post a 7-4 victory.

The Wrecking Crew improves to 6-3 while Heathrow fell to 1-9. his concentration. "I've got no one to blame but myself. I let all the distractions affect me. I should know better, growing up in New York. I should have kept my concentration."

Haarhuis, from the Netherlands, came into the match an unknown, to both the fans and McEnroe.

Haarhuis, 23, playing in his first U.S. Open, won the first set by breaking McEnroe's serve in the 10th game. In the fourth set, both players held serve until the 11th game, when the Dutchman broke the New Yorker. Haarhuis held his serve at 15 to win the match, blasting an overhead off the court on his first match point.

Although describing McEnroe as "one of the all-time greats of tennis," Haarhuis was confident in himself. "The main reason you win or you lose is you believe you can win."

Haarhuis attended Armstrong State College in Georgia from 1984-86 before transferring to Florida State, where he graduated in 1988.

Second seed Boris Becker came within a netcord of also being an upset victim. The West German fell two sets behind and faced two match points before subduing Derrick Rostagno.

Becker, averting what would have been his second successive second-round dismissal from the Open, struggled for 4 hours and 27 minutes for a 1-6, 6-7 (1-7), 6-3, 7-6 (8-6), 6-3.

Rostagno, ranked 65th, had double match point serving at 6-4 in the fourth set tie-break. But the 23-year-old Californian sent a forehand volley long and Becker followed with a forehand net cord to draw even.

Given this M. Becker captured the next two points on a service winner and backhand lob to even the match, and he swept to a 4-0 lead in the final set to take control for the first time.

In sharp contrast to the Center Court marathon, top seed Ivan Lendl required merely 33 minutes to complete some unfinished business and advance to the second round, while top women seeds Steffi Graf and Martina Navratilova moved to the third round with their typical flourish.

year's 8-3 regional championship team. The big gun on offense for the Lions is senior fullback Frank Diaz, who rushed for 12 touchdowns and 1,162 yards last season, third best in the county.

The game will also feature the debut of senior Brian MacInnes at quarterback and sophomores Simon Harper and Darcy Garrett at wide receiver. How well they play will go a long way in determining the success of the Lions this year.

Coch Bob Wallace has gone back to the basics with his offense this year in an effort to cut down on the number of mistakes.

"We want to keep things simple until we can do them in our sleep," said Wallace. "Our biggest concern will be preparing to play 10 varsity games this season."

The offensive threat for the Wolves is Lea Hewitt, a 5-10, 152-lb. running back who is very highly thought of by college recruiters. Last year, he rushed 92 times for 667 yards (7.3 yards per carry). The quarterback is senior Tony Niemeah. Others to watch are fullback Mitch Miller, linebacker Damon Johnson, linebacker Dominic Scorpio and receiver Scott Stevens.

The host Greyhounds will rely on junior running back Cedric Bouey, who finished second in the county in rushing last year with 1,234 yards. He averaged 6.4 yards per carry and 15 touchdowns.

starter returning to the team with seniors T.J. Zimmer and John Caportera joining him in the leadership roles. Junior Joe Casalece and sophomore Aric Jennings also return after seeing playing time last year.

The top newcomers to the Silver Hawks are seniors Chris Storm, Anthony Cabrera, Pete Logan and Mark Thompson.

"We're not doing anything fancy," Scott said. "We're just working on the little things as of right now."

Oviedo is looking to move up in the pack this year after finishing fourth last season. The Lions return several experienced players and have received some new talented faces to the lineup.

"I really expect us to finish higher than we did last year," Oviedo coach Terry Rzepkowski said. "We are definitely farther ahead than we were at this point last year."

Oviedo also has some size in seniors Bill Barto and Tom Ezell, who are both 6-4. David Gould and Chris Hartsfeld should add power to the hitting game along with Zach Hodgins. Setters John Pasiteri, a senior, and Eddie Pizzano, a junior, will be the key to the attack.

"We're about where we were at midseason last year," Rzepkowski said. "We still have a ways to go but we look much better than last year when none of the players had played at all."

Disease, heredity can cause early hair loss

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm losing hair very fast and would appreciate any help you can give. I'm only 31.

DEAR READER: Hair loss can be due to scalp disease, such as seborrhea or psoriasis. It can also be genetic. In particular, many young men who note — with alarm — thinning hair at their temples and on top have an inherited tendency to hair loss. Many scalp conditions can be treated successfully by dermatologists, thereby arresting hair loss. In the past, male-pattern genetic baldness was untreatable, except by hair transplants, the results of which were inconsistent. Now there is real hope for people who are growing prematurely bald: Rogaine (minoxidil) topical solution, a prescription drug, has been proved effective in restoring hair growth, when used strictly according to the manufacturer's directions. Ask your doctor about this new product.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What are the effects of the drug called bromocriptine?

DEAR READER: Bromocriptine (Parlodel) is a drug used for several different conditions, including infertility, amenorrhea (lack of menstrual periods), prevention of lactation and some forms of Parkinson's disease.

The medicine acts by enhancing the body's production of dopamine, a nerve hormone, which controls lactation (and, secondarily, menstruation); Parlodel stimulates dopamine receptors in the brain (thereby reducing the tremor of Parkinson's disease). The drug has many side effects, including nausea, headache, dizziness, fatigue, cramps, constipation and drowsiness. Occasional patients may experience low blood pressure, hallucinations, trouble walking and circulatory disturbances.

Parlodel is a useful drug but its administration should be carefully monitored by appropriate medical specialists. (C)1989 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
North's jump to four diamonds was a splinter bid. It showed a singleton diamond plus four-card support for hearts, the last suit bid by South. And it also implied slam interest. When South asked for aces, the five-spade response showed two aces plus the queen of the agreed-upon trump suit — unlike traditional responses to Blackwood. Against six hearts, West led the ace of diamonds. If West fails to continue diamonds, declarer can pitch a diamond on dummy's ace of clubs, draw three rounds of trumps and then play spades. Even though spades do not split, a spade can be ruffed in dummy and the rest of the spades will be good. But what about when West plays a second diamond? Now declarer must ruff in dummy and the hand gets tricky. If declarer plays two rounds of hearts right away and then plays ace and king of spades, West will ruff. But there is a way for declarer to succeed. After ruffing the second round of diamonds, declarer should ruff a club high and lead a low heart to dummy's nine. Then he ruffs a second club and leads a heart to dummy's jack. A third club can be ruffed with declarer's last heart, and a spade is then led to dummy's ace. Now the queen of hearts can take West's last trump, and dummy's clubs will be good after the ace is cashed. There will be no need for the spade suit to split, since declarer will have enough tricks for the contract.

By Bernice Bode Cool
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Sept. 1, 1989

Friendships are likely to take on new meanings for you in the year ahead. A number of new associations will be formed and closer bonds will be established with several old friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Friends will comply with your wishes to a limited degree today. If you are too dictatorial or demanding, even people who are usually supportive could work against you. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your hunches could provide you with valuable insights today, but they will still require some monitoring on your behalf. Be able to distinguish between positive impulses or wishful thinking.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Chances are if you pay a lot of money to have a good time today, you won't. Conversely, activities that are free or very inexpensive could turn out to be really fun.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's admirable to be independent and have strong self-identification, but don't go to foolish lengths today to prove your point. Victories of this ilk will have a hollow ring.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Although you mind will be keen and your intentions good today there is still a possibility you might do or say something thoughtless that could hurt a sensitive friend's feelings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be willing to share today because it will encourage the person with whom you're involved to do likewise. Both will come out winners.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today you are likely to be more at ease with companions who are thoughtful and gentle. Aggressive or abrasive types will make you feel very uncomfortable and their behavior might embarrass you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You won't go wrong today in whatever you do if you operate in accordance with your highest standards. If you start to hedge a bit, complications are possible.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Social conditions should be to your liking today, but you might not feel as happy about financial arrangements. Be extremely cautious today as to how and where you use your money.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There is a delicate balance that must be maintained in your commercial affairs today so that you do not swing from a favorable position to a negative one. Subdue impulsiveness.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) No matter how hard you try today you'll find it will be impossible to please everyone with whom you'll have dealings. Don't get upset, instead be grateful for the happy arrangements.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your possibilities for personal gain continue to look encouraging again today, but what you eventually get might be less than your expectations.

Impotency made him better husband

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Abby is off on a two-week vacation, but she left behind some of her favorite letters taken from her best-selling book, "The Best of Dear Abby.")

DEAR ABBY: Three years ago, my 58-year-old husband had a brief affair with his secretary. It was no secret, and all the tongues in this little town were wagging a mile a minute.

Once I found a motel key in his coat pocket, and he had the gall to tell me that he got tired driving so he checked into a motel to take a little nap. (Three miles from home!)

Well, last year he had an operation that left him practically impotent, and since then I couldn't ask for a more devoted husband. He phones me if he knows he's going to be half an hour late. He buys me presents, sends me flowers, and even takes me on business trips, which he never did before. Of course I'm enjoying all this, but why in your opinion has my husband suddenly turned over a new leaf?

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Probably because there's not much left under the old one.

DEAR ABBY: I saw a man on the commuter train reading a book titled "Dear Abby," and he sure seemed to be enjoying it. I suppose you wrote it. Please send me the book, and if it's any good I'll send you a check.

RUSSELL

DEAR RUSSELL: Send me the check, and if it's any good I'll send you the book.

I am very uncomfortable and I resent using my time (and yours) on such matters.

I value your services and don't want to seem unkind, but I prefer to keep our relationship strictly impersonal and professional.

YOUR BOSS

DEAR ABBY: I hope you will print this. There must be other executives who have this problem and don't know how to handle it tactfully.

Take a letter, Mrs. Brown: You are an excellent secretary, but I wish you would leave your personal problems at home. I am not a marriage counselor or a financial adviser, and I have neither the time nor energy to listen to problems concerning your children.

When you confide your personal problems in me, although I may appear interested and sympathetic, the truth is, I

I don't know how many bosses share your view, but I'm sure many of their wives do. When a secretary starts crying on her boss's shoulder, she frequently ends up in his arms. The only way to discourage personal conversations (in the office and out) is to abort them at the onset.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69448, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.)
