The compact Votamatic way with computer cards

Votamatic: High Marks By Users

By DONNA BYRNE

Before time comes around for the March presidential primary in 1980, Seminole County's registered voters may be using a different method of casting ballots.

It's a new way for Seminole County — the Votamatic way using computer cards and a stylus to punch out the choices. But a number of counties in Georgia are into the second decade of voting on computer cards.

Two supervisors of elections in Georgia, say the system is great and they wouldn't have voting any other way. Two other elections supervisor's office staff in Florida, who were polled feel the same way, even after one of them had trouble with the punch cards in a recent election.

Georgia was one of the leaders in the south in trying the ultra-modern method.

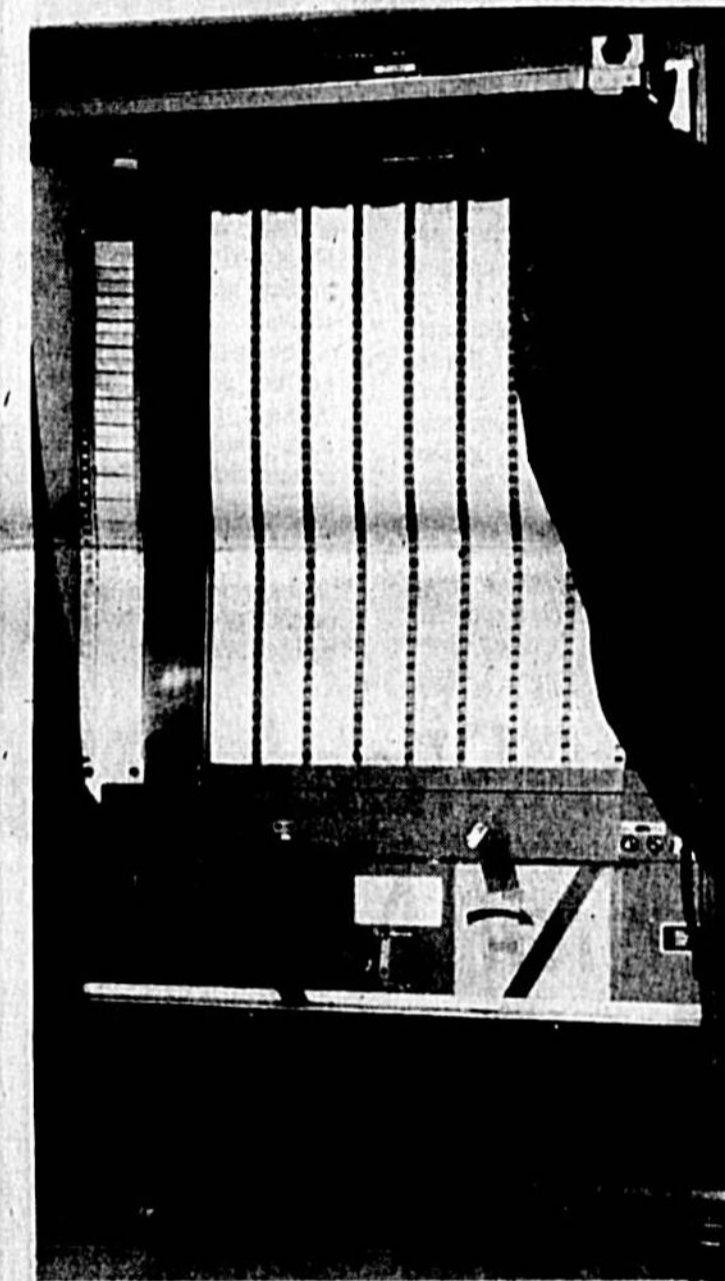

Currently, Jeff Eichberger, director of the Office of Management, Analysis and Evaluation (OMAE) at the Seminole County Courthouse, and his staff are gathering information on the concept to submit to county commissioners for their consideration.

One of the reasons Seminole County is looking at the new method of voting is because of the snafus in conventional lever-type machines in the first primary election last September.

Mistakes resulted in number of voting machines at the polls when rubber bumpers in the locks on the machines melted, making it impossible to open them. Complaints were also heard of slipped ballots.

"We'll have a memo and work papers ready for distribution to the board next week," Eichberger said, in preparation for a work session to be scheduled at a future time. After the work session, if commissioners like, a test will be arranged to nearby counties using the system.

A decision could be made by the commissioners in the next 30 to 60 days, Eichberger said.

Linda Beasley, Augusta, Ga's supervisor of elections in Richmond County admits her feelings about the Votamatic sound almost like a paid commercial.

"They're great," she said. "Our county purchased the entire system including a mini-computer for my office. We conduct schools for poll workers. We run copies of the

20 Miles Inside Neighbor

China Captures 3 Viet Capitals

United Press International Chinese tank-led forces have pushed 20 miles into Vietnam and captured four provincial capitals in the week-old war, intelligence sources in Bangkok said today.

But the counterattacking Vietnamese may have pushed the Chinese back to some points along the 450-mile border from the former Communist allies, intelligence and U.S. government sources said.

The Soviet Union sent six large transport planes and the flagship of its Pacific fleet to Vietnam in a show of support for Hanoi, with whom it concluded a "friendship and cooperation" treaty in November.

At the United Nations, China told the Security Council it does not want a single inch of Vietnamese territory and will withhold its army after punishing Hanoi for its aggression.

Chinese Ambassador Chen Chu proposed the immediate opening of negotiations with Vietnam but there was no immediate response from Vietnam.

Although Chinese planes preceded the ground attacks, a Chinese government spokesman denied reports his nation carried out an air strike in the suburbs of the port city of Haiphong, Japan's Kyodo news agency reported from Peking today.

The "high" government Chinese official who was not identified, was quoted by Kyodo as saying: "There has been no fighting yet by the air force. There is only fighting in the border areas."

With the war a week old today, intelligence sources in Bangkok, said it looks like the Chinese want to take the capital of every province on the border.

The only provincial capital still definitely in Vietnamese hands was Lang Son, 90 miles northeast of Hanoi and 15 miles south of the Chinese border, where regular Vietnamese Army troops have been thrown into the defense, the sources said.

Intelligence sources in the Thailand capital said in addition to Lao Cai, which fell on Tuesday, the Chinese Army looks as though it has control of Cao Bang, Lai Chau and Mong Cai.

Hanoi has admitted losing only Lao Cai and today the Japanese Communist newspaper Akahata, which has a correspondent in Hanoi, reported Vietnamese authorities have denied losing Cao Bang.

But Japanese foreign sources said reports from their embassy in Hanoi indicated the town had fallen and intelligence sources said, "Cao Bang is definitely gone."

DEANSCHREIBER...dead at 59

Late Dean Lauded

Dr. Earl Weldon, president of Seminole Community College, said today the college has "suffered a great loss" with the death Friday of Dr. Robert A. Schreiber, dean of students.

"Dean Schreiber was the first certified employee of the college when it opened back in 1966," Dr. Weldon said. "He was employed by the school in February 1966 and the college opened the following September."

"He was always deeply interested in the welfare of the students," the college president said.

Dr. Schreiber was one of four teachers who received a letter to Mr. Weldon: His responsibilities included student registration, athletics, student government and discipline.

Dr. Schreiber entered Florida Hospital South, Orlando, 12-10-78 days ago, according to family friends, for a problem that was not considered serious and died of a blood clot at the hospital Friday.

Many students at the school over the years fondly remember the dean personally assisting them in registering for various courses. He was a self-spoken man, who conveyed his personal interest to the students.

"He was a fine man," Ray Milwee, assistant to President Weldon, said today. "He was an excellent man with youngsters and the people on campus — very fair and very cooperative."

"We are going to miss him on campus because he was a leader for all of us," Milwee said. "Dean Schreiber headed the counseling department, and built it up to where it is an outstanding one among junior colleges in the state today."

Economic Forecast For Central Florida Bright And Sunny

While the rest of the nation is anticipating some degree of recession by mid-1979 Central Florida's economic performance should be well above the national level, according to a survey conducted by the University of Central Florida (UCF).

Indeed, the East Central Florida region, which includes Seminole, Orange and Ocala counties, is expected to take off on a growth surge which will exceed, it is predicted, all but a few other regions in the United States between 1979 and 1985.

This prediction is contained in a report submitted recently by the East Central Florida Regional Planning Council (ECFPRC) of Winter Park.

"They're great," she said. "Our county purchased the entire system including a mini-computer for my office. We conduct schools for poll workers. We run copies of the planning council report notes. The report predicts the major expansion projects since could produce as many as 40,000 permanent jobs throughout the East Central Florida region.

Says the UCF report: "In the fourth quarter of 1978 passengers arriving at the International Airport declined by 11.1 percent, gross retail sales were down by 8.4 percent, industrial electricity consumption fell by 11.8 percent, and gasoline sales dropped by 4.6 percent.

"However, in spite of their current weakness, each of these indicators has shown healthy growth over their corresponding 1977 levels. Tourism advanced by 18.6 percent, gross retail sales grew by 10.4 percent, the industrial sector increased its consumption of electricity by 12.4 percent, and gasoline sales were up by 6.0 percent.

"Moreover, total employment, which dropped by 1.3 percent, from the third to the fourth quarter of 1978 was on an annual basis, ahead by 6.5 percent."

The report continues: "Since each net residential meter connection reported by the utility companies represents at least one ad-

Altamonte's Loomis: I'll Find Amelia Earhart Plane

By HARRY DILLON
 Special To The Herald

Within three weeks an Altamonte Springs man says he'll leave for the Marshall Islands where he feels confident he'll solve the 67-year-old Amelia Earhart mystery.

The man, Vincent Loomis, 41, will be attempting to find the wreckage of the plane which 42 years ago was flown by Amelia Earhart and her navigator Fred Noonan. Loomis says he believes he knows where her plane crashed.

Loomis, a retired U.S.A.F. officer who has researched the Earhart story for 30 years, Mrs. Loomis said the U.S. Government is doubting it for the eight-year venture. Despite those funds, Loomis has financial difficulties. If the Government was to supply more aid, they would assume all rights to the findings.

The 67-year-old mystery began on the 16th anniversary of Charles Lindbergh's transatlantic flight. On May 29, 1927, Earhart and Noonan, departed from Oakland, Calif. in a bid to attempt to circle the world at the equator. On July 28, 1927, the couple planned the second-to-last leg of their journey from Lau, New Guinea, to Howland Island, a trip of over more than 2,000 miles. The flight was estimated to take 16 hours. At least 20 hours and 15 minutes later the last transmission from the Lockheed Electra was made — at 8:40 a.m.

"There have been extensive searches and explorations over the years, but the problem is that they have been conducted in the wrong location," Loomis claims. "Earhart and Noonan had maps which would do in case they missed Howland Island. They would have had this plan into effect in time (but being considered) to locate landfall. The only good landfall was to the southwest — Marshall Islands."

The primitive islands, covering an area of approximately 60 square miles, are the arena of exploration for Loomis.

"In 1968, in an expedition effort during the first U.S. search in the Marshall Islands, I believe I located the Sunday flyer's plane. I have convincing evidence by substantial numbers of citizens of the island to corroborate that a white American woman flew and her male companion did indeed crash-land in the Marshall Islands in 1927," Loomis stated.

Several witnesses on the island support Loomis' theory of the crash and all maintain an exact location, he said. "The Japanese, being masters of the Marshall Islands transported the damaged plane to an isolated island and took the ill-fated couple to Japan, Kwajalein, Japan," Loomis said.

"Dr. John, a retired businessman on Makira, told me that when he was a young man he saw an airplane crash land in a lagoon approximately 200 feet off shore," said Loomis. Citizens on the island agreed with Dr. John. He was convinced that his was the plane because "the Japanese came and no one was allowed to talk," Loomis said.

Senator Amata Kabua, chairman of the Marshall Islands political status commission and a direct descendant of Kabua the Great, First King of the Marshall Islands, is an affluent citizen and property owner on the "Sunset" side of the Marshall Islands, Loomis noted. "Upon learning of our mission to his homeland, he said he too believed the airplane was in the Marshall Islands."

During the 18-hour testing in 1968, when Loomis claimed to have seen the plane, further investigation was hampered because, in his own words, due to a tight schedule "I was not able to investigate it at that time."

In the Spring of 1978, Loomis and an expedition party set out for the Marshall Islands to verify the location of the plane. "It is too had weather conditions and transportation problems prevented my expedition from actually locating the island where I believe we would have found the plane," Loomis stated.

'Searches...have been conducted in the wrong locations'

Restricted to Makira Island Loomis reported to interviews and research in regard to the validity of his sources. Loomis had this to say: "Every attempt was made to verify all statements and in all cases we found parts of those we talked to had something to gain

WORLD IN BRIEF

Nova Scotia Mine Blast Labeled A 'Major Disaster'

GLACE BAY, Nova Scotia (UPI)—An explosion ripped through the 12th level of a coal mine early today and officials said a number of miners were killed and many injured. Officials of the Cape Breton Development Corp. mine refused to give details of the blasts.

One report said two hospitals, the Glace Bay General Hospital and the Community Hospital, have declared the explosion a "major disaster." But local radio reporter Carol McDade said the mine officials, in this town of 25,000 said: "It is not a major explosion and that all men have been taken out of the mine."

Armed Men Enter Tehran IBM

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI)—A spokesman for International Business Machines said armed men entered the downtown IBM building early today but denied earlier reports that two Americans had been seized. The spokesman said three armed men he understood to be from the Islamic vigilantes of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini had entered the building and asked to see the general manager. "They made certain inquiries, were given the information they required, and left," said Veli Mashour, personnel and communications manager for IBM in Tehran.

Baker Iran Charges Disputed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The State Department has rejected charges by Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker that the security of secret U.S. documents and sensitive military equipment in Iran was endangered during the revolutionary takeover.

"We don't think that is true," State Department spokesman Tom Reston said Friday. "We disagree with him because we don't think anything was compromised."

Swift Woodcock OK Forecast

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States may be spared the embarrassment of having to open its embassy in Peking without an official ambassador to head it. The Senate Monday opens debate on the nomination of Leonard Woodcock to be ambassador to China — and approval is expected in time for the Thursday opening of the embassy.

Weekend Peace Talk Session

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U.S. mediator of the Egyptian-Israeli peace talks Secretary of State Cyrus Vance remained at Camp David and his wife joined him for the weekend. Both delegations planned to stay through Saturday, according to a State Department spokesman.

The only information about the talks, which are under a news blackout, came from official statements put out in Washington, which said the conversations continued "serious and friendly... with serious exchanges on all sides." In the Middle East, however, news accounts speculated the talks would end with the U.S. assuming a major "linkage" role in further talks.

Queen Visits Abu Dhabi

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (UPI)—Queen Elizabeth arrived in Abu Dhabi today a warm welcome from government officials, a folk-dancing group and thousands of cheering citizens. Arriving at Port Zayed aboard the royal yacht Britannia, the queen was met by United Arab Emirates President Sheikh Zayed Bin Sultan, Vice President Sheikh Rashid Bin Said Al Maktoum and the other five supreme council members of the seven-state federation.

Lawyer Pleads For Bhutto Life

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (UPI)—The lawyer for Zulfikar Ali Bhutto pleaded with the Supreme Court today to commute the former prime minister's death sentence because of the narrowness of the court's split decision upholding Bhutto's conviction. Attorney Yahya Bakhtiar said as far as he knew there has never been a case in Pakistan in which a conspirator not present at a murder was still condemned to death.

Bhutto was convicted in March 1978 by the Lahore high court of ordering the murder of a political opponent in 1974. In the attack, the opponent escaped, but his father was killed.

A County Gets Its Ag Act Together For The Fair...

By JANE CASSELLBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

FRANK JASA IN THE CABBAGE PATCH

Responsible for getting together an exhibit is the County Agricultural Agent Frank Jasa. Jasa is being assisted by Urban Horticulturist Tom Davis and former Horticultural Agent Reggie Brown, who will be in charge of the ornamental plants.

Once the fair opens for its two-week run members of the Extension Homemakers Clubs in the county will man an information booth handing out literature on Seminole County.

Funding from the exhibit comes from the County budget and the Central Florida Fair.

Jasa explained why the county fair exhibit no longer features industry, but concentrates on agriculture. "The problem is that three years ago the fair management requested exhibits be restricted to agriculture," he said. Another reason is that the county now has so much manufacturing it would be impossible to just select a few.

"Although the amount of land devoted to agriculture has shrunk in the last few years, the dollar value has grown," Jasa pointed out. "Use of the land is more intensive. For instance, one ornamental-plants nursery would bring in more in a year than all the cattle on pasture land in the county put together."

"The on-farm value of produce in the county was more than $90 million last year," Jasa said. "It's with agriculturally related businesses such as fertilizer, plants, seeds, transportation and pesticides," he said, "that add up to $80 million in agri-business."

The timing of the fair following the winter cold spells has caused problems for Jasa in finding attractive vegetables. "Cabbage is scarce and because of the freeze it is smaller in size and the leaves are brown on the edges," he said.

"Although some crops are available in the county at this time, others commonly grown here during the rest of the year will be supplied for the display by a Seminole County producer from farms in South Florida. Corn, soy beans, water, cress, cucumbers, squash, eggplant, green onions, celery and lettuce will be among the crops shown.

A variety of citrus now available will be displayed along with citrus by-products such as concentrate and citrus pulp. Eggs and honey produced in Seminole will also be shown.

The county exhibit will not be judged as are the displays by communities. Jasa said none of the communities in Seminole will be having exhibits this year, but there will be entries by individuals and he expects some of the rabbit growers to show their rabbits.

After numerous sketches and long hours, they selected an emblem of the community's heritage on an oak tree with man, the orange — representing Ocala's citrus industry, citrus — representing the stock and moccasins.

Mrs. Allen is a graduate of OCF (Ocala FDU) and was originally from Argentina.

"One problem was that the computer cards were stored in a non-air-conditioned area for a couple days before the election," Jack Smith, an officer in the supervisor of elections office there, said.

"We had an inordinate number of cards jam in the computer because they were damp from picking up moisture from the air. Then, too, we do not have the equipment CES sells for tabulating the cards. We did, however, buy the computer program," he said.

"Even with the problem we had, we are really enthused about the system. We used to be on the lever type voting machine and this new way is much better," Smith said. "There is not an immense amount of difference at all. The ability to add machines is much lower — considering about $300 for Votomatics compared to $2,000 for the conventional machines," he said.

Hillsborough has 24,000 registered voters. Smith said even with the problem of some damp cards, they were easily counted by hand.

"It's the sweetest thing we ever did," Esther Amor, executive chief deputy to Elections Supervisor Charles J. Kanias of Clearwater, Pinellas County, said.

Pinellas County went on the computer system last year. First, the new equipment was used in a fire district election and later in the first and second primary and the general election.

"It's a beautiful system and we've had no problems," she said. "We had lever machines and had a lot of trouble with them."

"We have outreach voter registration at many of the banks and savings and loan institutions. Prior to an election we put a votomatic in each of those for the public to see and try. At every polling place there is a demonstrator and someone there to show anyone who needs help how it is used."

"At the polls on election day, there is no waiting line because we have many more units — two to three times as many units. With the conventional machines voters had to stand in line for 15 to 20 minutes. Now they are in and out in 10 to 15 minutes. It's a beautiful system and we've had no problems," she said.

"We have outreach voter registration at many of the banks and savings and loan institutions. Prior to an election we put a votomatic in each of those for the public to see and try. At every polling place there is a demonstrator and someone there to show anyone who needs help how it is used."

"Initially, the acquisition cost is much less and we don't need as many people working at the polls."

"With the lever machines, there is no way to recount ballots, no way to reconstruct ballots. This way we know how many ballots we have and, if necessary, we can count them by hand," she said.

Pinellas County has 411,000 registered voters. Etchberger said that depending on the scope of the county commissioners wish to go with the new voting method, it could be possible for printouts of voter registration lists to be brought back to Seminole from Orange County.

With a mini-computer in Supervisor of Elections Camilla Bruce's office even the purge of voters, who have not cast ballots in the past four years, could be accomplished much more efficiently, Etchberger said.

The life of the Votomatics is undeterminable, Etchberger said, adding there are no moving parts in the machines and no parts to wear out. If a rivet on a lock breaks, repair and replacement cost would be low, he said.

"Storage of the machines is another factor that has to be considered," Etchberger said. The Votomatic can be collapsed into a carrying case about the size of a large attaché case, he said.

ballot pages in the newspaper prior to elections. We are able to have more voting machines and to operate the elections cheaper. We do not have maintenance, storage or mechanical problems anymore," she said.

Mrs. Beasley said a Georgia legislative committee discovered recently, while studying a bill concerning the salaries of probate judges, that a paragraph had been inserted calling for the use of hand lever voting machines. "When the section on voting machines was discovered the bill was killed in committee," she said. "We don't want those big monster voting machines back again," Mrs. Beasley said.

Richmond County has 58,000 to 60,000 registered voters, about the same number of qualified voters as Seminole County.

Mrs. Beasley said the Votomatics have been used in her county since 1966.

Carolyn Hatcher, elections supervisor in Albany, Dougherty County, Georgia is "very happy with the machines." The county, somewhat smaller than Seminole, has about 30,000 registered voters in 28 precincts.

Tampa, Hillsborough County, also has the CES Votomatic and has used the computer system of voting in elections since 1976. There was a problem in a recent election there.

"One problem was that the computer cards were stored in a non-air-conditioned area for a couple days before the election," Jack Smith, an officer in the supervisor of elections office there, said.

SMH Has Proper Devices

Public Able To View Eclipse

By MAX ERKLELETIAN
Herald Staff Writer

An astronomical event will take place Monday that has not occurred in seven years and will not be witnessed here for the remainder of this century.

It will begin with a gradual darkening, like a huge thick cloud shifting across the sun. In the northwest, the darkness will mount until the horizon is aglow and only a black spot surrounded by a burning corona is visible in the sky.

It is an eclipse and it will begin around 10:30 a.m. and last until almost 2 p.m., according to Ann Cole, an amateur astronomer and manager of Seminole Memorial Hospital's laboratory.

Mrs. Cole and other hospital officials will provide a unique view of the eclipse from an observing area they will establish in a field between Seminole Boulevard and First Street Monday. The area will include several safe ways of viewing the eclipse — ranging from homemade devices to telescopes with protective filters.

Dean Schreiber was instrumental in setting up the scholarship program at the school. If a youngster really wanted to go to school, Dean Schreiber would help anyway he could to see to it that student had a way of attending college," Milwee said.

"Speaking not only for myself but for every employee, Dr. Schreiber was a fantastic person, a wonderful boss and we all respected and loved him as a human being," Dr. James Sawyer, Dr. Schreiber's assistant, said Saturday.

"The thing he was known for by the students was his open-door policy. There was never a time a student with a problem or concern had to wait. Students always came first."

Dr. Schreiber moved to Sanford in 1966 from St. Augustine, where he was dean of student affairs of St. John's Junior College.

He was an ordained minister and member of the Winter Park Church of the Brethren.

An Army veteran, he was a Mason in St. Augustine and a member of the American Personnel Guidance Association and the Association of Community Colleges.

Dr. Schreiber is survived by his wife, Marion; one daughter, Mrs. Josephine Frankham Sanford; a grandson, Robert Neville, Sanford; five brothers, Wayne and Russell, Little, Pa.; Charles, Quarryville, Pa.; Harold, Akron, Pa.; and Lester, New Holland, Pa.

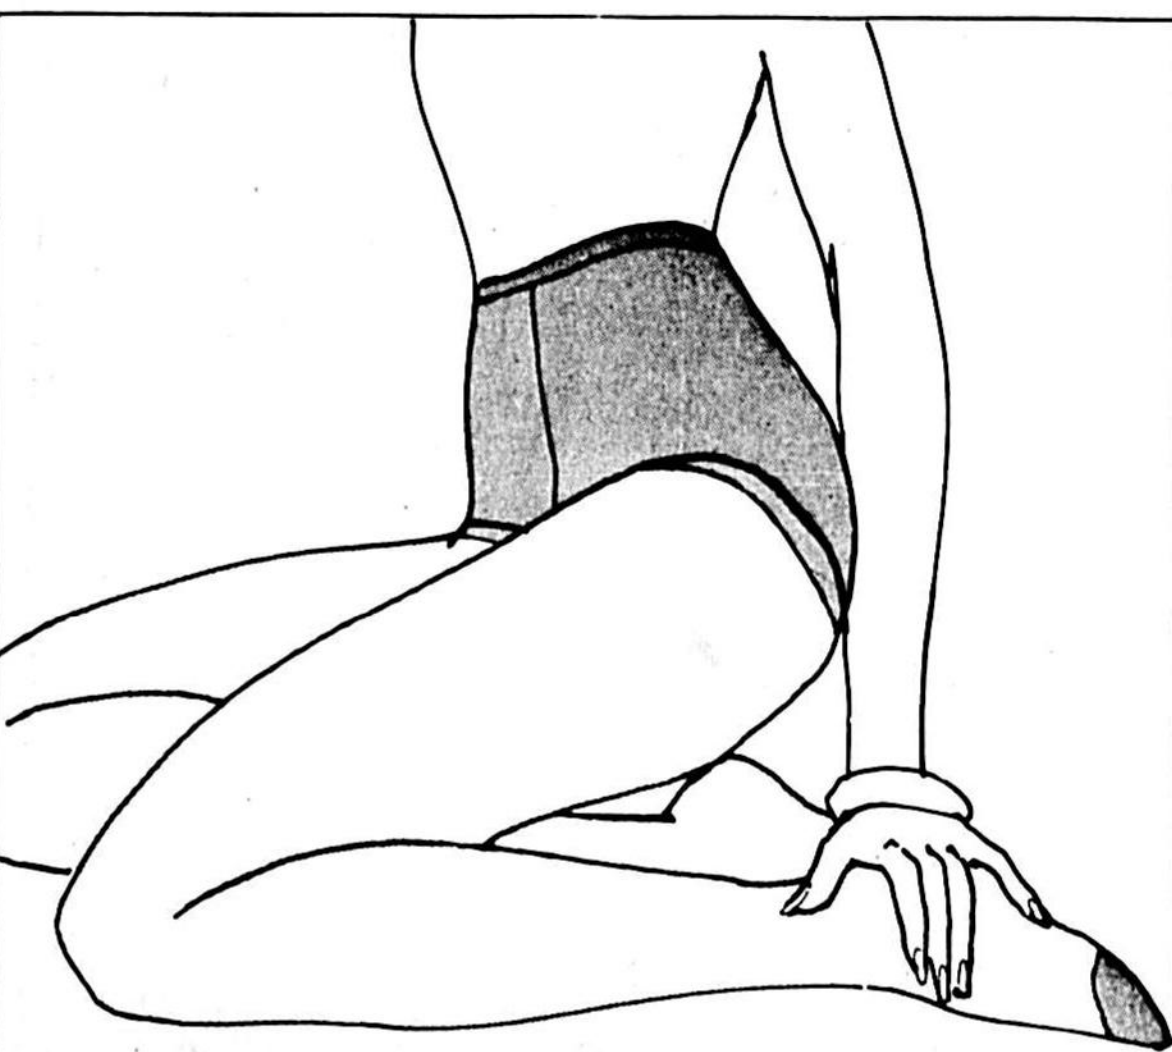

Funeral services will be 11 a.m. Monday at the Gramlow Funeral Chapel, with the Rev. Guy R. Buch officiating. Cremation will follow.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the Robert A. Schreiber Student College Fund or the Seminole Community College Foundation.

NATION IN BRIEF

Did Nixon And Gang Want To Rule Public Broadcasting?

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Nixon Administration reportedly sought to partially mute criticism of the former president and his policies by gaining control of public broadcasting. The New York Times today reported that the efforts to control public broadcasting were detailed in files from the White House Office of Telecommunications policy, which the newspaper obtained through the Freedom of Information Act.

The Times said that while no single memo contained a master plan, taken together they traced a strategy that included takeover of the Public Broadcasting System through the presidential appointment process to the PBS board.

'Biggest Funny Money Bust'

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — The Secret Service and local police confiscated four suitcases bulging with counterfeit $100 bills and forged $20 American Express checks Friday, in a two-pronged arrest that began in Warwick and ended in Providence. "It was the biggest funny money bust in the history of New England," said Assistant U.S. Attorney James O'Neill.

The suspects arrested were identified as Travis E. Parker, 33, a native Texan now living in Providence; his wife Karen Parker, 26, of Providence; Edwin Travis Fletcher, 39, also known as Travis Williams, of Omaha, Tex.; and Forester O. Robertson, 40, of Wichita Falls, Tex. A spokesman said the arrests stemmed from information developed by Warwick police.

Pot, Coke, Cash, 11 Arrests
MIAMI (UPI) — Police drug raids on two homes near Miami that brought seizure of a ton of marijuana, a kilo of cocaine and $107,440 in cash resulted in arrest of 11 persons at the two dwellings and five others were arrested when they allegedly tried to trail a truck confiscated by the raiders. Officers also seized four handguns, a rifle and a shotgun — all loaded — several police radios, a late model luxury car and 200 Quaaludes during the pre-dawn raids.

Carter: No Room At The Inn
WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter, his mountaintop retreat occupied by Middle East peace negotiators, planned to spend the weekend in the White House catching up on paperwork and staying in touch with developments in Indochina and Iran. Whether Carter's personal diplomatic appeals for restraint in the China-Vietnam conflict will bring an early halt to the hostilities "remains to be seen," said Press Secretary Jody Powell.

Hawaii: $6 Million Damage
HILO, Hawaii (UPI) — Damages from this week's devastating rain and flooding on the island of Hawaii have been estimated at more than $6 million. Authorities said Friday damage to roads and highways was $2 million, crop losses went as high as $2.7 million with damage to homes and businesses on Hilo along at more than $500,000.

Rain, Melting Snow A Peril
United Press International
More snow moved out of the Rocky Mountains into the Plains and Great Lakes states today and many southern and eastern areas braced for flash flooding from rain and melting snow. Snow fell across portions of the northern Rockies, extreme Northern Plains, eastern Missouri and northern Illinois.

Altamonte Store Security Push
Last year in the city of Altamonte Springs, there were 25 robberies or attempted robberies. This year thus far there have been 16 already. Concerned about the rapid increase, police department is "working back-to-back" with convenience stores and any establishment that could be a target of an armed robbery, reports Officer Edna Abell.

Thieves Take Dodge Van At Dealership

A 1979 Dodge van, valued at $4,754.95, was taken from the new car lot of Bob Dance Dodge, U.S. 17-98, Longwood, between Wednesday and Friday, according to Seminole County sheriff's deputies.

The dealership did not learn of the theft until Friday when it was going through an inventory of its cars, according to Walter D. Green representing the dealership, reported the theft to deputies. There was no indication of how the vehicle was started.

MONKEY, JEWELRY TAKEN
Charles Gustav Sjoberg, 46, of 1814 Holly Ave., Sanford, reported thieves entered his home late Friday or early Saturday and took $140 from a pair of pants in his bedroom and jewelry valued at about $100, according to Sanford Police.

DIAMOND THEFT
Doris Shaffer, 25, Chateau Le Mans Apartments, Altamonte Springs, reported someone took $100 in cash and a diamond valued at $200 from her apartment late Friday or early Saturday, according to sheriff's deputies.

BURGLARY REPORTED
Three watches and two cameras were reported stolen during a burglary at 79 Spring St. in the Orange Estates subdivision near Altamonte Springs. Mary Richardson, 32, reported a window screen was removed by burglars to get into the house. The merchandise was valued at $177.

STUDY IN THEVEERY
Gert Beth Wilson, 52, 714 "Alphas" Drive, Altamonte Springs, reported someone took her car wallet while she was studying in the Seminole Community College Library Friday, according to police. The wallet contained about $10 in cash, according to police.

TOOLS TAKEN
A total of $400 in tools was reported stolen from a construction site at the Wekiva Presbyterian Church on Wekiva Springs Road north of Altamonte Springs.

POOL-HALL RAUL
Burglars got $400 in cash during a break-in at Sonny's Pool Room, 501 Sanford Ave., Sanford.
Burglars apparently forced open a back door to gain entry to the establishment sometime Wednesday or Thursday between 6:45 p.m. and 8:15 a.m. Allan Mitchell, 44, of Sanford reported $400 in cash, 48 packages of gum, carton of cigarettes; two boxes of Johnson's baby powder and two life insurance policies.

For Marine Sgt. Kraus: Hugs, Kisses, Salutes, Handshakes
WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the Marine Band playing and the honor guard standing at attention, Mrs. Jayne Kraus of Landsale, Pa., dashed out onto the tarmac as her son, Marine Sgt. Kenneth Kraus, arrived at Andrews Air Force Base Friday.

Kraus swung her off her feet in a bear hug, then kissed his fiancée, Nina Trongone, and his three sisters. He then saluted and shook hands with Navy Secretary W. Graham Claytor, Marine Corps Commandant Gen. Louis Wilson and others, who presented him a Navy Commendation Medal "for heroic achievement" and a Purple Heart for a shotgun pellet wounds he suffered defending the U.S. Embassy in Iran from heavily armed guerrillas who sacked it Feb. 14. He also had been kidnapped from a hospital and threatened with execution for his actions at the embassy. "Times were tight but I never gave up," he said later.

First Black Marine General
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Col. Frank E. Petersen, a veteran Marine aviator with service in both the Korean and Vietnamese conflicts, will be the Leathernecks' first black general. The 46-year-old native of Topeka, Kan., currently is chief of staff of the 9th Marine Amphibious Brigade in Okinawa. He is one of nine Marines President Carter has nominated for promotion to brigadier general.

Tallahassee 1st For Bundy
LAKE CITY (UPI) — Columbia Circuit Judge Wallace Jopling has agreed that Theodore Bundy should be tried first in the Tallahassee coeds murder case before facing kidnap and murder charges in Lake City. Jopling ordered Friday that Bundy's trial on charges stemming from the kidnap-slaying of Kimberly Diane Leach, 12, of Lake City be postponed from March 12 to July 9. That clears the way for the Tallahassee trial of the 32-year-old former Utah law student to begin on May 21.

No Sons, He Throws Baby
ROOSEVELT, N.Y. (UPI) — A man angry at his common-law wife because she has given him three children, all girls, grabbed their 7-month-old baby, threw her at his wife and then stuffed the infant in a plastic bag, authorities said today. The infant was not seriously injured and was released from a local hospital after treatment. Felony charges of reckless endangerment were filed against the father, Oliver Squire, 30.

Billy Gave Carter Only $40
ATLANTA (UPI) — President Carter received more than the legal maximum of $1,000 per donor for his 1976 election campaign from several of his relatives and close associates, but brother, Billy, gave only $40, it was reported today in 'The Atlanta Journal-Constitution.

WILLIE KNIGHT DISPLAYS A BIG SMILE FOR HIS GRANDDAUGHTER FRANK KNIGHT. WILLIE, 5, OF SANFORD IS A NEW STUDENT IN THE AUTISTIC CLASS AT HOPPER ELEMENTARY.

School, Home Different For Autistic Kids

By LEONARD KRANSDORF
Herald Staff Writer

What is autism? Webster's dictionary defines it as: "absorption in self-centered subjective mental activity (as daydreaming fantasies, delusions and hallucinations) especially accompanied by marked withdrawal from reality."

To the parent of an autistic child it means much more. It means being able to teach or deal with a child whose behavior can go from constant fidgeting and inability to absorb what he or she sees or hears to complete withdrawal, unable to respond to normal stimuli.

"Are you making it? You sure are," are the encouraging words Pam Eckenroth, the teacher at Woodlands Elementary says as she encourages the autistic child to walk up the steps in the playground at the school.

There are 12 students in two autism classes in Seminole County Schools, one at Woodlands Elementary, the other at Hopper.

These children are taught motor skills such as walking, as well as given speech therapy and taught basic academic skills such as identifying colors and reading.

Once the students are dismissed from school the responsibility is with the parents. For these parents the program has had positive benefits but the lack of a proper play ground at Hopper is one complaint at least two parents have about the program.

"When we made the move from the Woodlands to Hopper the class at Hopper was going to be a duplicate, "but unfortunately it has not been," said Lois Smith, the mother of a 12-year-old autistic child.

The playground at Woodlands consists of ramps, steps, a swing set, and a sand lot. While the Woodlands school has a playground, the motor skills are taught in the confines of the classroom at Hopper.

With music slowly playing in the background for cooling down in effect" the children step on Sandford chairs, bounce on a rubberized cushion and crawl through a plastic tunnel to get their skills.

Life at home is somewhat different for the parents of autistic children.

"It has disrupted our family life somewhat," says parent Lois Smith, "but it is something we have learned to deal with because... well, Beth is our daughter and we love her."

Mrs. Smith and her husband Tom have had to restrict their lives somewhat, but have learned to deal with having a 12-year-old autistic child.

"Also, if people are going to come to my house I tell them Beth lives here and if you are...

"It has disrupted our family life somewhat."

parent Lois Smith

While Nancy is allowed to participate in such activities as the girl scouts and other school activities, Andy is usually under constant supervision of his parents.

"Really, Andy is not what you would call responsible at his age," she said, "because if I let him ride his bicycle alone he doesn't understand traffic and could get hurt or don't understand about strangers and there are some people around who get enjoyment out of taunting kids like him."

Additionally, the family has had its eating habits change because Andy's mother tries to prepare nothing but natural foods.

"He is allergic to different additives in foods so now I read the food labels very carefully and I believe overall it has helped the entire family," she said.

The mother of two vividly remembers the period about seven years ago when Andy's autism first surfaced.

"He was always shy and we just naturally thought he was not going to be outgoing," she recalled.

But when the couple moved across the street from their old home to their current home "he just kept talking and it was just like he had opened a door, went through it and closed it behind him," she said.

The couple took Andy to several doctors and psychologists and he was first placed in an emotionally disturbed program.

"However, we felt it really wasn't meeting his needs so... " he was always shy and we just naturally thought he was not going to be outgoing," she recalled.

Mrs. McQuatters and her husband Bill also have a nine-year-old daughter, Nancy. "It's really like bringing up two only children," said Mrs. McQuatters who also works as a kindergarten teacher at the background for cooling down in effect" the children step on Sandford chairs, bounce on a rubberized cushion and crawl through a plastic tunnel to get their skills.

minutes in the room, depending on the severity of the problem with each other on the swing set or in the sand lot.

To stimulate the student, the teacher gives "a great deal of positive praise and reinforcements such as food and verbal praise," said Mrs. Eckenroth who has received her Bachelor of Arts in psychology from the University of Central Florida, and after that taught autistic students one year in Orange County before coming to Woodlands Elementary about three years ago when the program was started.

"I saw a movie when I was a freshman in college and I knew then that it was something I wanted to go into," recalled the teacher.

One problem the teacher has to cope with is students are sometimes uncooperative and at times have tantrums.

To deal with that type behavior, the students have to be placed in the padded timeout room.

The room is used in the class to place the student in if their behavior is so erratic that he can hurt himself or fellow classmates. The student will stay an average of two to three

Let's Review Volunteer Army

The Pentagon's failure to meet recruiting quotas for all four military services during the fourth quarter last year underscores the need for a thorough congressional review of the all-volunteer military.
Until now, substantial increases in both enlistment bonuses and recruiting advertising have enabled the services to keep their noses above water, but just barely.

The Backfire

News that the Soviet Union has successfully test-fired a new, 750-mile cruise missile from its Backfire bomber aircraft has led to a debate about whether the Backfire is a "strategic" weapon and hence subject to limitations under the terms of the prospective SALT II treaty.
The Backfire is a heavy bomber, but it has been defined as those with intercontinental range.

RONALD REAGAN On The Chaos In Iran

It is said that the Ayatollah Khomeini had quite a few fans in the State Department rooting for him as he prepared for his recent triumphant return to Iran. He would bring order out of chaos, or so they presumably thought. At this point, they must be having second thoughts, for it seems quite possible that he may not be able to put the revolutionary genie back in the bottle.

Municipal Circles Blue Cross' Smart Move

Blue Cross' decision issued last week to refuse to pay for the unnecessary battery of tests some hospitals require as a matter of routine is a dramatic step in the effort to keep medical costs to a minimum.
For many years professionals such as doctors, lawyers and teachers have been regarded as above reproach. However, it seems the consumer is now coming around to the fact that these people are indeed people and subject to all the failings of others of their species.

School Views Alternative Education

The Seminole County school district has embarked on a venture which in the end could go a long way toward helping these students who have a minimal interest in school.
This alternative education class is at Ocoee High School designed to help those students who have been targeted as either delinquent or disruptive and, with parental consent, placed in the class.

OPINION
Evening Herald, Sanford, Fla. Sunday, Feb. 25, 1979—7A

Harold Blumenfeld

Maybe you feel you simply must get in shape by doing some exercises. Don't just sit back until the feeling passes. Don't tell yourself you're too stiff and out of condition to embark on an exercise routine. Or that you tire too easily. If nothing else is wrong, that's exactly why you need to stretch your muscles.
The person who said age is a state of mind was not far off. Think of the days you've felt just great. There's an extra spring to your step, an upturn in the corners of your mouth, a gleam in your eye.

Max Eriksson

It is pleasing to note that Seminole Memorial Hospital does not engage in such unnecessary tests.
Seminole Memorial only requires a complete blood cell count (CBC) and urinalysis. These two tests could hardly be considered excessive.
I think admission tests ought to be held to a minimum and when you're down to a CBC and a urinalysis, you're down to the minimum.
If other hospitals in the nation held such a view, Blue Cross would not have had to issue its pronouncement last week against unnecessary admission tests.

Leonard Krensford

It is hoped this attention will help the student renew his or her interest in school.
A system has been established where students receive points for such things as attendance and daily work and those with enough points are eligible for a weekly field trip.
One person who is looking hard at the program is school board member and former chairman Pat Tolson. During the last election where she was re-elected she advocated such a program.
This week she said she will keep an eye on the program to see if there are any results.

Jack Hennessey

Another factor in the Blue Cross position is that there is enough flexibility to allow coverage for other tests without the attending physician deems them necessary.
The stipulation is that the tests prescribed by the attending physician must be related to the ailment the patient is suffering.
Such a stand by Blue Cross seems reasonable. It allows for what is deemed medically necessary, but prohibits abuse and unnecessary bureaucratic procedures.

We urge Rep. Bill Nelson to do his utmost to thwart the revived efforts to use tax dollars to finance Congressional elections. This bill should be tabled the Incumbents Protection Act.
The fact that only 25 percent of the taxpayers filing out income tax forms choose to support the presidential campaign indicates that public opinion is definitely not in favor of this approach to campaign financing.
We believe the taxpayers should have the right to support or withhold support

OUR READERS WRITE

Zip Code Wanted
A city without its own zip code is a city without an identity. Many citizens feel this is the present state of Winter Springs.
The city was first incorporated as the Village of North Orlando in 1959. Postal service problems began then and have continued till now. Because of the similarity between the names Orlando and North Orlando, citizens of the small village began having their mail directed to the city of Orlando. In 1972, in an effort to correct this situation, among others, the citizens voted to change the name of the city to Winter Springs. They were told they didn't have a large enough population to warrant their own post office, so they were put under the jurisdiction of the Casselberry Post Office with a Casselberry zip code. As the city grew larger, namely as a result of a large tract of land being annexed, another problem arose. That large tract located in the northwestern part of the city under the jurisdiction of the city under one zip code, the postal authorities decided to have Tusawilla serviced from the Maitland Post Office.

A Dilemma

We at Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Central Florida are facing a dilemma. For the last five months our source of volunteers has been slowly dropping off to the point that in the month of January we received only two Big Brother applications.
This is especially disheartening when you compare it to a list of over 200 boys (and it grows with each passing day) waiting for a Big Brother volunteer!
As for the Big Sister side of our organization the problem is just the opposite. We have an abundance of single female volunteers and very few young girls involved.

Appreciation

The family of Mother Ruby L. Wilson wishes to convey our sentiments to the many residents and friends of Sanford for providing love and concern during the recent loss of our loved one.
Never have we so many done so much to make our burdens light.
We commend the staff and management of the Evening Herald for its services... Deeming it worthy to report daily on the philosophy and work of Mother Wilson in the community and surrounding areas.
We pray blessings for each of you and ask for your continued support of The Good Samaritan Home.

Give 'N Get

Our government went ahead with its push-pull, rub-rub, swine flu program. The government, then led by ex-president Ford, did not listen to respected medical authorities who were not in favor of the program. Then the government stopped the program after a waste of multiplied thousands of our tax dollars.
We all need to remember that what the government will "give" it must "get" from the taxpayers. The government cannot give what it does not have. Many people have the mistaken philosophy that Washington, D.C. is my shepherd — I shall not want.
Our trust should be in the Lord. "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths." Prov. 3:5-6.

Due Credit

Credits to whom thanks and credit are due. Monday morning our dog jerked her chain away from me and pulled me out the ground.
I could not get up myself and lay on the ground for about thirty minutes until our postman came by. He got me onto my feet and to the house.
He notified the police and two policemen arrived to ascertain the damage.
I was taken to the hospital, where I was treated and the dislocation reduced and bound. Then the attendants returned me home. I was in shock, and did not get the names of any of these five young men, who were so kind and helpful to me, and I would like to know to know that I appreciate their kind service.

Appreciation

The family of Mother Ruby L. Wilson wishes to convey our sentiments to the many residents and friends of Sanford for providing love and concern during the recent loss of our loved one.
Never have we so many done so much to make our burdens light.
We commend the staff and management of the Evening Herald for its services... Deeming it worthy to report daily on the philosophy and work of Mother Wilson in the community and surrounding areas.
We pray blessings for each of you and ask for your continued support of The Good Samaritan Home.

State Berth At Stake As SCC Faces Valencia

By JIM HAYNES
Herald Sports Editor

ORLANDO — Old friends meet again tonight here at Valencia Community College, and it is nothing new, but the rewards are as high as the stakes in the championship game of the Division 2 tournament.

Seminole played its heart out in rallying for a narrow 61-50 win in overtime against the fan-fervor Florida JC of Jacksonville.

And Valencia has something of an easy time in disposing of another knock-down, drag-out battle between rival coaches and it is nothing new, but the rewards are as high as the stakes in the championship game of the Division 2 tournament.

At stake is a berth in the state tournament, which opens next Thursday at Stetson University in Deland.

Valencia and Seminole have been contesting state tournament berths down to the wire for years. They also have had something of an interesting rivalry, SCC holding a 124 edge over the years.

This year, however, Valencia was clearly the regular season ruler, winning both games handsily.

Seminole's hopes rest much in the fact it is playing stronger basketball in post-season play than it did in regular season. Florida JC had also beaten SCC twice in regular season.

Friday's hero was Curtis Smith, who hit a shot at the buzzer for the victory. His 19 points were tops for the Raiders, who topped their overall record to 16-15.

Sterling pointed to the rebounding work of Kenny Brown, who had 11 points, plus off 11 rebounds.

Game time tonight at VCC is 7:30.

FLORIDA JC (80)—Huggins 12, 11-22, Lessness 23, 10-16, moton 1-4, A. Kemp 2-4, Phillips 10-19, Givens 4-11, Strider 2-10, 4-11, Howard 6-9, 2-4, Totals 28-56.

SEMINOLE (81)—Crosby 4-13, 15, Loring 4-4, 12, Smith 9-12, 19, Howard 4-12, Rogers 3-10, 4-11, Campbell 1-10, 1-11, Johnson 2-3, 2-3, Totals 34-51.

Sanford Signups Tuesday

Gearing up for its earliest starting date in recent years, the Sanford Youth Baseball Association, Inc., will officially launch its registration drive Tuesday night with a rally at the Sanford Civic Center.

Former major leaguers Dave Johnson and Wayne Granger are slated to speak at 8:30 p.m. rally. Doors will open at 8:30 to allow players to register prior to the rally.

The association is taking over the operation of the youth baseball program in Sanford this year, and also will launch a membership drive at the rally.

"We would like to have all players, including those who are already on teams from last year, and their parents attend the rally," said association president Gary Taylor. "We would like to have the opportunity to introduce the association to the parents and explain our plans for the 1979 season."

The little major league season will open April 2, two weeks earlier than last year. The junior major league will open April 9, and the pee wee league will open in mid May.

"We decided to start the season a little earlier than usual to allow the all-star teams a little more time to practice before they enter tournament competition," said Taylor.

The association is also considering hosting an invitation all-star team tournament on the Fourth of July as part of the day's special activities. The Sanford Little National League and Sanford Little American League all-star world par-ticipation in the tournament, and Paula has also been invited to participate if the tournament is held.

Baseball and baseball cards autographed by Johnson and Granger will be given away Tuesday night during a drawing at 8:30 p.m. at the conclusion of the rally.

The association will also hold a drawing for a color television, black & white television and CB radio as part of a two-month fund-raising drive. Tickets for that drawing will be available at the rally.

Well, Since You Asked...

Q. I read recently that Steve Garvey criticized the Los Angeles Dodgers organization for its failure to get after free agents like Pete Rose and, more important, the inability to hold on to players like Tommy John and Lee Lacy. What do you think? — N.P., Ventura, Calif.

A. In this crazy market of free agents, basically I feel the Dodgers still have the best policy, to build from within. And you can't fault them too much after making it to the World Series the last two years, and three of the last five. They feel young Bob Welch can compensate for the depletion of John. And while Lacy has more power than his replacement, Daryl Thomas, he still has never been an every-day player. Garvey's blast is more from the frustration of being so close to the world championship and not quite getting it.

Q. Did Otto Graham, the great Hall of Fame quarterback, have a serious operation recently, and how is he doing? — N.M., Covington, Ky.

A. The brilliant passer for the original Cleveland Browns, whom I rate as the top quarterback of them all, underwent a major colostomy half a year ago and has made a fine recovery. He talks frankly about his cancer. He also has resumed normal activity, playing in the American Football Game Classic, leading it with partner Joe DiMaggio into the last round. He still moves briskly around a tablecloth, but has to be helped into his car.

Q. I heard that Steve Garvey was going to be traded to the Boston Braves last year. What was the story? — H.T., Levittown, Pa.

A. Don't worry. The speedy veteran will land on his feet. Ted, who'll be 34 in April, has been a valuable asset to all the teams he's played on, starting with Los Angeles, then going to the St. Louis Cardinals, back to the Dodgers briefly and finally with the Philadelphia in '77. Last year was an off year at best for Ted, but I figure he'll be kept around because there's no assurance that a big switch—Pete Rose to first base, Richie Hebner from first to third, Schmidt from third to second—will work out satisfactorily.

Q. How does Terry Bradshaw of the Pittsburgh Steelers rate with his peers, the other quarterbacks of the National Football League? — G. N., Sharon, Pa.

A. Funny you should ask because recently I asked some of them about Terry. Unanimously, they admire the strength of his throwing arm and his physical toughness and mobility. But some of them are skeptical about his gambling tactics as a passer. Archie Manning, for one, can't believe how Terry can throw consistently into heavy nose coverage and get away with it. It's safe to say, however, that off of what he did last season, Bradshaw doesn't have many detractors.

Q. How many times did Mickey Mantle strike out in his career, and what pitcher struck him out the most? — Robert Nevers, Oxnard, Calif.

A. Mantle's total strikeouts during his career were 1,710, which constitutes the existing American League record. The Pirnie's Willie Stargill, still active, surpassed that last season. I can't give you the answer to the second part of your question because the official major league statistics don't break strikeouts down to that degree. Public relations aids Mickey Morabito of the Yankees, however, is researching the request and might come up with the right pitcher.

Q. I recently saw Jim Palmer of the Baltimore Orioles playing golf for recreation during the off-season, and he was hitting the ball beautifully. Was he a competitor? I was under the impression he was right-handed all the way. — T.V., Tucson, Ariz.

A. He is right-handed. He was a fine batter from the right side, too, before the Orioles' pitching ace plays tennis as a southpaw. However, the Orioles' pitching ace plays tennis as a southpaw because he doesn't want to take any chances on hurting his right shoulder. He's had a terrific stroke that the transaction was no problem. He has to serve right-handed, however.

Howell Survives, 66-63; Oviedo Eliminated, 61-56

STERLING GETS IN WORD OF ADVICE

If there was ever a Cinderella basketball team from Seminole County, Lake Howell seems to fit the part.

The Hawks climbed into the finals of the Class AAA, District 9 tournament Friday night with a 66-63 victory over Spruce Creek.

The tournament favorite, Mainland, continued to loom No. 1 on everyone's mind with a 64-63 victory over Gainesville.

Tonight's championship game at the Seminole High gymnasium at 8 p.m. The junior varsity teams will play a two-game series between Spruce Creek and DeLand begins at 6:30.

Clarence Mincey led the Lake Howell victory by hitting a pair of free throws in the final seconds to assure Howell of its 17th win in 30 games.

"But how are we going to beat Mainland?" asked Howell coach Greg Robinson to no one in particular after his team's inspiring victory.

"Well, we got this far, maybe we can get a little farther."

Meanwhile, on the other side of town, another Seminole County five was packing its bags until next season.

Oviedo was eliminated from the Class AAA, District 8 tournament at Bishop Moore as the host Hornets rang up a 61-48 loss.

OVIDO (61): Kessinger 4, Roland 14, Palmer 12, Meyer 2, Scott 3, Ward 6, Totals 28-54.

BISHOP MOORE (61): Dilney 2, Hickey 4, Smith 11, Koppell 6, Jackson 3, Doffy 7, Farmer 14, Totals 16-59-61.

Melton, Stagliano Hopeful

Melvin Melton and John Stagliano carry Seminole County hopes into the final day of the state high school wrestling tournament being staged at the Lyman High gymnasium.

The two Lyman students advanced to today's third-round wrestlebacks with victories Friday night.

Melton competes in the 180-pound class while Stagliano is in the 125-pound bracket.

Consolation matches tonight begin at 6 while the finals start at 8.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Zoeller, Hinkle Leading Los Angeles Open Field

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The two names at the top of the list at the halfway point of the $250,000 Los Angeles Open aren't exactly PGA big-name stars.

But maybe Fuzzy Zoeller and Lon Hinkle, already winners on the tour this year and 1-2 on the 1979 money list, are headed in that direction.

The long-hitting Hinkle, a 29-year-old Texan with a pleasant disposition, and Zoeller, a 27-year-old pro from Indiana who likes to joke with galleries when he's playing well, forged to the front of the event at the Riviera Country Club Friday.

Playing in the same threesome with Zoeller, Hinkle put together four birdies on his first nine holes and finished with a 2-under par 69 for a 36-hole total of 136, 6-under par. Zoeller had a 67 and was in second place at 137.

Hoax Letter Bugs 'Bama

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) — University of Alabama officials said today they would like to find out who was responsible for a fake telegram that resulted in a highly recruited Utah football player changing his mind about playing with the Crimson Tide.

A spokesman for the school said he was told Chuck Ehin of Layton, Utah, had agreed to accept a football scholarship to play for Alabama Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant. But last week Ehin received a telegram signed B. Bryant, saying Alabama scholarships were no longer available. Ehin had already decided to go with his second choice — Brigham Young University — by the time Alabama recruiters got back in touch with him, said Thornton.

Blalock Back By One

ST. PETERSBURG (UPI) — Veteran Jane Blalock carried a two-stroke lead over third-year pro Connie Chillemi into the second round of play in the $75,000 LPGA's Orange Blossom Classic today.

Giants Sign Dave Roberts

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants have signed lefty Dave Roberts, a veteran moundsman who was 6-8 in 35 games for Chicago last season.

They also invited to camp another veteran hurler, Tom Griffin, who was 3-4 in 24 games with the California Angels last season.

Jets Name Radio Team

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three sportscasters, Ed Ingles, Spencer Ross and Sam DeLuca, will cover the New York Jets for WCBN News Radio this season, Robert Hyland, vice president and general manager of the station, announced.

Ingles will be the anchorman in the three-man team, handling pre-game, halftime and post game programs. Ross will do the Jets play-by-play and DeLuca will provide the color commentary.

Mets Battery Jump Gun

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — The New York Mets jumped the gun on spring training by holding a workout Friday morning, one day before the official reporting date for pitchers and catchers.

"You've got to like the enthusiasm of these guys," Manager Joe Torre said in explaining the decision. "Some of them have been here for several weeks and are anxious to get started."

Stars Rally To Tie

By United Press International

Bobby Smith and Steve Payne continued their impressive rookie season Friday night by scoring one goal apiece and rallying the Minnesota North Stars to a 2-2 tie with the Atlanta Flames.

Minnesota opened the scoring at 11:15 of the first period when Smith hit the overall No. 1 selection in the amateur draft — tipped in defenseman Brad Maxwell's shot from the point for his 25th goal of the season.

Atlanta's Ken Houston scored on a rebound off Bob Murdoch's shot to knot the game 1-1 at the close of the second period, and Bobby Lalonde gave the Flames the lead early in the third period when he was set up by a centering pass from Linemate Willie Plett.

Payne got the improving North Stars the tie when he beat Flames' goalie Dan Bouchard from close at 11:02 for his 12th goal.

Atlanta Coach Fred Crotchet thought the Flames, who outshot Minnesota 36-24, "had the better chances," but was resigned to the deadlock — which lifted his club into a second-place tie with the idle New York Rangers in the Patrick Division.

The North Stars are now only four points (8-5-9) behind second-place Toronto in the Adams Division.

In the only other NHL game, the Philadelphia best Colorado, 5-3.

In the World Hockey Association, Birmingham trounced Winnipeg, 5-1, New York and Edmonton Quebec, 5-4, and Oakland topped Cincinnati, 3-1.

Tennis Anyone?

By LARRY CASTLE

Smith To Forest Hills

One of the most prestigious tennis teaching positions in the United States has been landed by a Seminole Community College player Mike Smith.

Starting in May, Mike will be one of two assistant pros at Forest Hills Tennis Club, New York. That's right, Forest Hills. The name itself is one of the most respected and well-known in tennis. The U.S. open tennis tournament was, until two years ago, played at Forest Hills. It has long been known as one of the very best tennis clubs in the world. The chance to work there is a chance in a lifetime for the young pro.

Smith was red-shirted on this year's varsity team at SCC. Smith is 22 and hails from Melbourne, Australia. He was recruited to come to Seminole because of his tennis playing and has, indeed, made his mark in area tennis circles. A great tactician on the court, Mike probably has more savvy than most players his age. Mike's real strength in tennis, though, lies in his ability to teach the game. A great instructor with lots of patience with beginners and the insight to be a great help to intermediate and advanced players.

Mike has taught in the past at Holiday Hills in New York and at Harder Hall Tennis Resort in Sebring.

Trinity's Prep 'N' 1 player on the girls' tennis team, Mary Dineen won the state hard court championship for girls age 14. Mary is an 8th grader and is the daughter of Dr. & Mrs. James B. Dineen of Winter Park.

SCC women's team off to a slow start with two 8-1 losses to Daytona Beach Community College and St. Petersburg Community College. There are two of the strongest teams in the state and the SCC girls are sure to benefit from this good competition.

First Jr. College rankings for men's tennis in the state show two Division IV teams, Dade South and Palm Beach, ranked number 1 and 2. South has the strongest team in its history and is an overwhelming choice for the state and national title. South is said to be better than even the University of Miami. Palm Beach recruited three brothers from Argentina at mid-term and look very strong. SCC is ranked third with Pensacola 4th, Manatee 5th and Central Florida 6th.

Holmes Scoffs At Arum

NEW YORK (UPI) — As far as Larry Holmes is concerned, the heavyweight boxing title is slyly.

Holmes, the World Boxing Council's heavyweight champion, Friday dismissed all talk about the elimination tournament to choose a successor to Muhammad Ali, who holds the World Boxing Association's version of the heavyweight title.

"If that's his tournament, let's go to the top," said Holmes, "because I'm the No. 1. I'm better than anybody out there, including Ali. I know I can beat any of his guys." But that's all right. The people know what's going on. The people know who the best fighter is," said Holmes, who was in town to promote his March 23 bout in Las Vegas against Oreste "Java" Lascaris, the unbeaten 21-year-old Puerto Rican who earned a title shot by outpunching Jimmy Young twice.

Since Ali is expected to retire soon without making another defense, Arum has proposed a tournament which includes former heavyweight champ

Idea Of Title Tourney

But while Holmes hopes to reunite the championship under his domain, he doesn't expect to escape the shadow of Ali.

"As long as Ali is around, for the next 10 years people will overlook Larry Holmes," said Holmes.

The matter had, however, is Holmes' meeting with Ocasio, who has nine knockouts in 13 bouts, all victories. But Holmes, eight years in the ring and unbeaten himself in 29 fights (20 knockouts) is hardly concerned.

"I could fight the guy next week, that's how ready I am," Holmes said.

Holmes, 29, will be making his second title defense. He knocked out European champ Alfredo Evangelista in Las Vegas Nov. 10.

Memphis' Failure Proves His Goldmine

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Living in the "sports failure capital of the world" has helped Jim Gallesco prosper. He has a vast and diverse collection which is one of the largest in the country.

"Florida, New England and California are the best spots for collecting," Gallesco said this week. "In fact, however, that the Memphis area has proved to be a gold mine — despite its lack of major league sports franchises."

"Memphis is the sports failure capital of the world," he said. "I've had the Jets, Tampa Bay and the Orioles (all three defunct ABA) and the Colts (a World Football League team that also failed)."

Gallesco, a 38-year-old sports statistician for the Commercial Appeal.

Persons from other defunct teams like the Boston Braves, Washington Senators, other ABA teams and WFL clubs are also valuable, he said.

"Every time they fold, it's better for the collector," Gallesco said.

"When the rumor started that the Braves (a North American Soccer League franchise) were going to fold, I went out and bought 100 pennants, but they only sold 100 pennants, so they kept them for the team before they folded," Gallesco said.

Most of his collection is packed in metal bins and stored in four outer cases.

Gallesco's penchant for collecting sports pennants began when he was 10 years old. His father, a baseball fan, had a collection of pennants. Gallesco bought his first pennant for $10 in 1971. It was a baseball pennant. I started getting into it."

GOP: 'It Was Black Friday'; White House: 'No Surprise'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Republicans, blaming the nation's soaring inflation rate on the Carter administration's "bumbling," said the day should have been called "Black Friday."

But the White House said the rise in prices "is not surprising," and Americans should make "some specific sacrifices" to slow down inflation.

The government said Friday the cost of living began 1979 with a whopping 11.2 percent annual rate — well over President Carter's inflation forecast.

...Economic Forecast

(Continued From Page 1A) ...ditional household, the third quarter's 2.2 percent growth of residential meters documents to some extent the pace of population migration into the East Central Florida area.

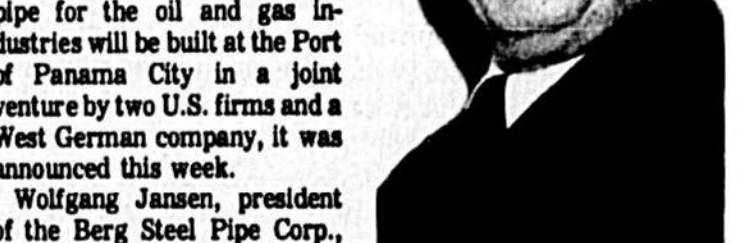

"There is every indication that the current pace of population growth will be sustained throughout the rest of 1979, particularly in the important population segment of people under 65. The impending expansion of the area's economy should draw even more businesses and people into central Florida with an attendant increase in the demand for housing.

"Indeed, fourth quarter expansion of the dollar volume of building permits suggests that the housing industry has anticipated these trends. At no time since the peak of the housing cycle in 1974 have single and multi-family housing starts been higher.

"With housing vacancies below the 4.0 percent mark, there can be little doubt that the housing market should continue its buoyancy at least through 1979.

"However, as in past years, the overall advance in the activity level of the tourist sector masks the recurring fourth quarter slowdown that is characteristic of the industry. Moreover, since tourism is highly correlated with the pace of retail sales, their combined impact is substantial."

PIPE PLANT In Works

PANAMA CITY, (UPI) — A plant to manufacture steel pipe for the oil and gas industries will be built at the Port of Panama City in a joint venture by two U.S. firms and a West German company. It was announced this week.

Wolfgang Jansen, president of the Berg Steel Pipe Corp., said initial plans are to produce about 120,000 tons of pipe annually. Berg Steel is affiliated with Bergrohr Company of West Germany. Other partners in the venture are the International Metals Corp. of North Carolina and Western Steel International of New York.

Jansen said the new plant would mean as much as 200 new jobs for the area.

"Panama City is an excellent location for our mill," said Jansen. "It is sited at a deep water port that will provide us with tremendous transportation."

COMMEDED Sanford native Robert M. Pullin, chief of staff for civilian personnel for the U.S. Army Health Services Command at Ft. OURSELVES

About William Bryan Park:

'There's Part Of Me That's Still A Child...I'm Glad'

By JOAN MADISON
Herald Correspondent

"Why does a grown man want to write children's books?"

While in New York City, W. B. (William Bryan) Park, author and illustrator of "The Pig in the Piggie Black Hat" and "Jonathan's Friends," was asked this question by a Tokyo interviewer from DENSU, the largest advertising agency in the world.

Now, a few months later in his colonial-style home in the Spring Valley section of Altamonte Springs where he lives with wife, Evie, and their three children, the author laughs heartily as he recalls the interview.

"My interest in children and their books is so strong, it (the question) would never have occurred to me," says the father of Bryan, 13, Christopher, 11, and Anne-Marie, 8.

"Why not?" I asked her. "I love it and want to."

However, even writers aren't always as quick on their toes as they'd like to be. "I think I could give a better answer in retrospect," says Park.

"There's a part of me that is still a child...and I'm glad. That is the best part of us...less structured, less prejudiced, and most fun-loving."

This makes the author a "part of the projected readership — not an adult writing for a child, but the child in me writing for children." "That is probably a better answer, but I'm not too quick on my feet. Three or four months later, I'm ready with an answer," he chuckles, throwing up his hands in mock despair.

It's going to become more and more difficult to get books accepted because of the cost.'

Park, who was also "writer-up" in the State Department's "America Illustrated," which is circulated in Russia, and who has had work in international journals, appears to be better known throughout the world than in his Altamonte Springs community of some 21,000 people.

And, although he appears to be better known as a writer, his illustrations appear in many magazines read by Seminole Countians who fail to recognize him as one of their own.

Perhaps you saw his illustration in "TV Guide" two weeks ago, in "International Wildlife" in November, or in the last issue of "Harper's Magazine" where he has "continuing relations."

You might have even caught a glimpse of his work on the cover of "Smithsonian." "It's only the second time they have used a humorous illustration on the cover," notes Park. "It was successful it was picked up by an international art journal."

His work also has been in "Look," "Intellectual Digest," "Saturday Review," "Sports Illustrated," "Seventeen," and others too numerous to mention.

However, unless you're an elected public official, you won't have met a character he just invented for a new closed-circuit periodical, "Elected Public Official." "Sort of a cartoon strip," he smiles. Park's also doing a series of covers for the journal (litigation section) of the American Bar Association.

In spite of the fact that he is so renowned, the writer-illustrator, who was born and reared in Sanford, hasn't lost his small-town charm. He laughs easily, is unpretentious, and is a devoted family man.

Park maintains close family ties with his oldest brother, Dr. Charles L. Park, a Sanford physician, and older brother, Robert E. Park, a professor of Law at George Washington University in D.C.

He's grateful that their father, the late Dr. Charles Lanier Park, gave him and his brothers "free rein as to the selection of our careers."

Poet In The Schools

'It's Fun. It's Not A Job'

By MELENDIA EMMETT
Herald Correspondent

Jane Prescott-Edison, one of three teachers in the Poet in the Schools program in Seminole County enjoys her avocation. "It's fun. It's not even a job," she said.

It is no wonder that the children love her. She relates well to them. Her teaching is not stifled. "Some people disapprove, but I allow the students to call me Jane," said the young teacher.

Jane, a poet in her own right with published poems in Anthologies of American University and Colleges, New York Anthology and local publications, teaches the children as they create their own poetry.

They are encouraged to use their humor and imagination. Overworked words such as nice, cute, pretty and sweet are outlawed in her classroom. They are replaced with more imaginative and descriptive adjectives and phrases.

The students learn the principle of onomatopoeia not through hearing the six syllable word and memorizing its definition, but through creating their own onomatopoeic words as "burpsack" and "burpshak."

"I can't think of anything to write," I heard a fifth grade girl say. "No matter what you write, it can't be wrong—it's yours," Jane replied encouragingly.

"There are tricks to getting students to write poetry," she continues. "You get them to write something the very first day and after that they can't say, 'I can't write a poem,'" said Jane.

The purpose of Poet in the Schools Program, which is financed by the Florida Fine Arts Council and the National Endowment for the Arts with matched funds from Seminole County, is to interest students in poetry and creative writing while allowing the poet time for writing and creative activity.

Although this creative time is often taken up with student conferences instead, Jane manages to write new poems every day.

"I don't ever ask them to write anything that I don't write also," she said. Students in the upper grades often ask her to share her writings, but the younger students are usually more preoccupied with their own.

Jane would like to see the program expanded to include dancers, architects, and artists as well. She has a difficult time choosing between English and Art while earning her B.A. degree at State, but finally majored in Art. She enjoys print making and ceramics and has had her art displayed in the Winter Park Art Festival and local showings.

Jane, who brings her own library for the children to use with free form poets such as E.E. Cummings, encourages students to open up to poetry and read it while they are young. "They will find it is a live not dead art," she stated.

She would like to abolish memorization of poems. "A principal told me that he hates poetry, but that's just because he was forced to memorize long stanzas of it," Jane remarked.

She would also like to clear up some myths about poetry. It is much more important for a poem to have meaning, sound and rhythm than rhyme.

Jane likes to expose her students to new forms of poetry. One of the forms that she recently shared with them was a pantoum, a four stanza poem which repeats lines in different stanzas.

In And Around Longwood Musician Invites Public To 'First' Memorial Fest

The Hank Williams-Bob Willis Memorial Festival is scheduled March 11, beginning at "high noon" sponsored by John Wilson, the event will take place on SR47, by the old greenhouse, across from South Seminole VFW Post 6207.

The bill of fare, a la Jerry Hester, includes barbecue from both steer and pig, all for a $3 per person donation.

Why a memorial festival to these two musicians? "These men were legends in their own time and I feel there should be a tribute paid them," said Wilson.

Long-associated with music, having been a record producer and back-up guitarist in Nashville, Wilson has been known to do things in a big way.

On Nov. 25, 1962, Wilson departed Indian River City on horseback, only to arrive in Balboa Island, Calif., on Mar. 24, 1963.

"I left with $1.06 in my pocket and arrived with $20," said Wilson, laughing.

Entertainment for the festival will be provided by Clay Jenkins and Country Construction, Pepper and Spice, and other area talent. Also, if his schedule permits, Kirby "Sky King" Grant will serve as emcee.

Wilson hopes in the near future, providing this first event is a success, to bring in talent from Nashville.

Once again, this year First Festival of Seminole, located at SR 434 near US 17-82 in Longwood, is holding a free tax service.

Sponsored by AARP and NRTA, any senior citizen 55 years or older may receive free help with income tax returns. This special service is offered every Thursday, from 9 a.m. until noon, until Apr. 15.

Sam and Nancy Bennett of Devonthire are enjoying the company of Nancy's brother, Bill Wall, his wife, Haliee and their 2-year-old daughter, Nancy.

"It's quite a thrill to have a goddaughter named after you," said Nancy.

The Wall family recently moved to Montgomery, Ala., where Bill is staff assistant in charge of student assistance for the Alabama Commission of Higher Education.

"I think 'little' Nancy was a bit overwhelmed by Matthew and Travis but they have all adjusted rather well," said Nancy, smiling.

On Sunday, March 4, there will be a cancer benefit at South Seminole VFW Post 6207 and Ladies Auxiliary.

Beginning at 2 p.m., a meat loaf dinner with all the fixings will be served for a $2 per person donation. Included in the days activities is continuous live entertainment, an auction and other special events.

Recipient of the benefit is William Brice, brother of Vann Brice of Longwood TV.

Area Kids Filmed For TV Show

Casselberry makes the big news again!

Semoran Skateway was the scene of network cameras for the filming of "Kids World." The television show will air in two weeks.

The 13-year-old Deni Swift, daughter of Shirley and Russell Swift of Winter Park, skated a walk with her partner Chris Senko.

"It was strange being interviewed by someone in my own age," she said of her 12-year-old interviewer.

Deni, who has had some ballet and tap dance training, has only been skating for 1 1/2 years. You'd have to see her graceful skating to appreciate that.

She and others like her in the Skateway skating club, who were filmed, are a tribute to hard work and determination. They don't get interested in anything else because they don't have time. Skating is their first love.

party.

He had a most unusual birthday cake. It was decorated with a BMX bike track like the one he races on.

Tommy didn't waste any time before he was out on the track at Horseshoe Park with his new racing bike and equipment.

The very next day he won his first trophy with it. It was only his third time out on the track and he won second place.

"It's quite a boy," said his proud father. "There's not much he won't try to do," Lancaster remarked. "Most of the kids in the neighborhood and at his school respect him," he added.

His accomplishments on the track that Sunday are even more remarkable since Tommy was in the hospital with dehydration only the week before.

According to Lancaster, his son, who has been riding a two-wheel bike since the age of three, has done better in school since he began the bike racing, because he knows he has to keep his grades up in order to participate in the sport.

Lancaster is sold on bike racing. He is even thinking on getting equipment for his 2 1/2 year-old daughter, Stacy. "It is safe as anything, because all bikes are inspected and they are required to wear helmets and elbow pads," he said.

Mrs. Jeanne Kerr Lerch of 335 Piny Ridge Road, is trying to locate members of the Lyman High School graduating class of 1964.

Because married names have changed and people have moved she is having a difficult time. The class's 10th reunion is planned for July 1979.

She has requested that anyone having any addresses or information on the graduates of '64 please call her at 834-5378.

New Officers of the Happy Senior Citizens will be installed Friday, March 2 at Post 183 American Legion building in Fern Park.

Russ Miller, past president of the South Seminole Senior Citizens, will preside over the 2 p.m. installation, which will follow the 1:30 p.m. business meeting.

According to Mollie Steudie of 429 Kenita Road, 17 Happy Senior Citizens had a tremendous time in Ft. Lauderdale recently. Following a cruise on the Jungle Queen and a barbecue dinner in the Indian Village, they enjoyed an ice-skating show at the

NATIONAL HEAD VISITS

SANFORD ESO CHAPTER

The Sanford Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Omicron (ESO), a division of the Educational Department of the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs (FFWC) met for the February meeting at the Bay Avenue home of Mrs. Vance Taylor, local ESO chairman. Highlighting the meeting was a book review by Mrs. E. Ross Harris of Jacksonville, a past FFWC president and presently chairman of International Policy for the General (national) Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Harris (center) discusses "Chesapeake" with Mrs. Phillip Logan (left) and Mrs. E. A. Monforton, co-hostess for the meeting.

For Sunday, February 25, 1979

YOUR BIRTHDAY February 25, 1979

This coming year you should fare very well in work or projects that permit you to use your creative and imaginative talents. Seek markets requiring your skills.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your judgment may be a trifle faulty today, so guard against drawing hasty conclusions. Take a second, or even a third look, if necessary.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Companions or associates will become easily angered today if you behave dictatorially. Lead by example, not by pressure tactics.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your attitude could make tasks you dislike even far more difficult today. Keep a cool head if you behave dictatorially. Lead by example, not by pressure tactics.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) Treat the property of others today with the same respect you'd wish for yours. Being careless with another's possessions spells serious trouble.

LEO (July 22-Aug. 22) Your mate may be a trifle difficult to get along with today, so just to be safe give him or her the old glove treatment. You'll be glad you did.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be safely-conscious today if you're working with tools you're not too familiar with. Read instructions carefully before you throw any switches.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Steer clear of situations today where a gamble's involved. You may be lucky at first but it doesn't appear as though your good fortune will hold up.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Loved ones or those in your charge may put your patience to the test today. Hang loose. If you do something rash you'll regret it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Think carefully before you speak today, or you may hurt something out that will be extremely difficult to retract, causing yourself needless embarrassment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In hopes of getting a bargain today you could end up outsmarting yourself. Recall this if you run into a sharp horse trader who has something you want.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be wary of being susceptible today to the influence of someone who has gotten you into a tight spot before. Don't be afraid to say "no" if necessary.

With the jack. East is forced to give dummy the rest of the tricks.

All very pretty, but if East has been unkind enough to draw a lead of hearts and try to cash five heart tricks and add to the one in diamonds. Now you must play club. You can score two club tricks, but that will still leave you one short.

Before congratulating East on his magnificent play, you might go back and do a little thinking of your own.

You were dealt the deuce hearts. When the first heart was led you could have played the seven and kept that little fellow. Then wouldn't have done East any good to throw the jack of hearts. You could have thrown him in with the deuce.

The Agricultural Agents' office receives many calls concerning citrus fruit with holes in them, accompanied by little insects inside or around the fruit. These holes are usually surrounded by a circular brown spot. The holes are not, however, caused by the insect.

The punctures are usually caused by birds, which use the trunk and limbs. A prepared rat bait can be used to control the rats. Another route that can be followed is to fashion a metal guard around the tree in the shape of the citrus fruit, through a hole so small as to be invisible to the naked eye.

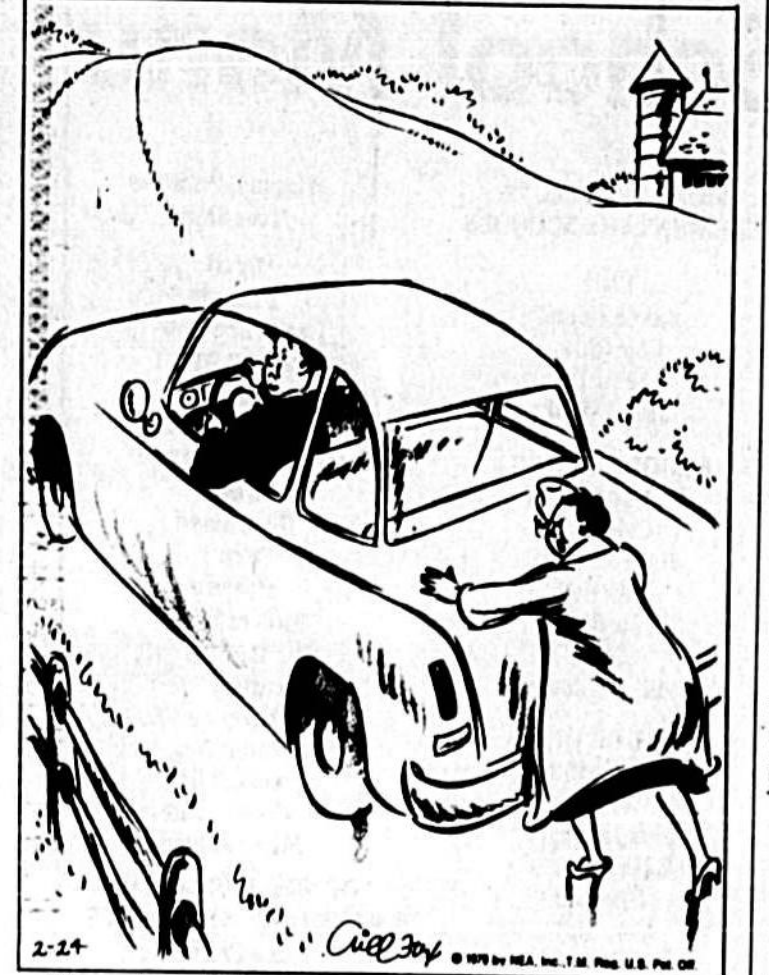

The maggots that hatch and bore into the pulp of the fruit, and thus ruin it. The first indication of the maggots in the fruit is a series of soft spots where decay starts in the interior of the fruit. After commencing growth, the maggots eat their way out of the citrus fruit. These fruit flies are not common.

An eradication program was begun to eradicate the most serious of the Mediterranean Fruit Fly, The Caribbean Fruit Fly only attacks this trained citrus such as the Calamondin, and orange fruit.

The common fruit flies such as the house fly and house fly will only attack fruit which already has some sort of opening.

Rodents also can cause a bit of difficulty to the mature fruit. Rats sometimes will gnaw into oranges for the seeds, and they

YOU WANTED TO SEE ME, MS. HAWT?

YES, PROFESSOR KESSNER, I HAVE A PROBLEM. I THOUGHT YOU MIGHT BE ABLE TO COUNSEL ME.

PERHAPS, IS YOUR PROBLEM YOUR POLITICAL OPINION?

YES, SIR. IT'S ABOUT CAMBODIA. I'VE BEEN RE-EVALUATING MY COUNTRY'S HISTORICAL SUPPORT OF THE POL POT REGIME.

I DON'T KNOW EXACTLY, SIR, BUT YOU TRY TO TELL THE TRUTH ABOUT THE GENOCIDE IS OUT. I CAN'T HELP BUT FEEL GREAT SHAME OVER CHINA'S ROLE.

TO WHAT END, MS. HAWT?

SHAME? MS. HAWT, AS REPELLED AS I AM BY MARXIST DOCTRINE, I DON'T SEE HOW CHINA HAD ANY OTHER CHOICE! WITHOUT THE CLAYTON STATES, HOW IS SHE TO CONTAIN THE THREAT OF SOVIET ARMS?!

IT'S A TEST OF NATIONAL WILL, MS. HAWT! LOOK AT ME -- TO MEET THE SAME THREAT, I'VE HAD TO TOOK TO THE ARMS OF CHINA, WHICH EVENTUALLY LED TO THE DEATHS OF HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF INNOCENT CIVILIANS!

WELL, OF COURSE! BUT YOU DON'T SEE MR. HOPKINS AROUND!

THAT'S EASY FOR YOU TO SAY, SIR -- YOU'VE GOT YOUR PEACE PRIZE TO FALL BACK ON!

Mr. Doon: "RANDOM THE RELAY, SIR, BUT MY PROPOSAL IS HIDDEN IN THE FOREST AND I MUST FETCH IT."

MR. EDWIN DISAPPEARS AMONG THE TREES AND EMERGES WITH HIS BAGGAGE ANIMAL, BUT IT CARRIES A STRANGE LOAD. MR. DOON THINKS HE MIGHT BE THE OWNER OF A TEXT SHOW.

IN THE EARLY AFTERNOON THEY COME TO A PLEASANT BLADE WATERED BY A CLEAR SPRING. "A SENSATIONAL CAMPFIRE, AND JUST IN TIME TOO," MR. DOON PROTESTS. "WHY STOP NOW? HE STILL HAVE SIX HOURS TO TRAVEL BEFORE DARK."

BUT EDWIN UNLOCKS THE BAGGAGE ANIMAL AND BEGINS TO UNLOAD ITS STRANGE LOAD. THE LOAD FOLDS AND FITS TOGETHER INTO FRAMES FOR HIS PAVILION. HE SETS UP A BATH, AND A GRILL, AND HIS HELMET BECOMES A STEW POT.

"YOU TRAVEL IN COMFORT, MR. EDWIN, BUT I HAVE NOT SEEN ANY PARTS IN A WHILE, SO I AM IN A HURRY AND MUST LEAVE THE COMFORTS OF YOUR CAMP."

SO THEY PART COMPANY AND MR. DOON CHASES MORE PILES THE FREEDOM OF BEING ON HIS OWN. BUT NOT FOR LONG.

THE STORM COMES ROARING OVER THE DOMAINS AND CATCHES MR. DOON BEFORE HE CAN FIND SHELTER. HE WONDERES HOW EDWIN PARTS IN HIS PREVIOUS HOME-PATH-FROM-HOME. BUT NOT FOR LONG.

NEXT WEEK - The Tree Duel!

THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME

FREEZE!

DEAR HELOISE:
For my little daughter's birthday party we didn't have enough ice cube trays to make all the frozen treats she regarded as essential on birthdays. My husband remembered the stack of plastic-foam egg cartons we'd been saving on a shelf in the garage. We washed the cartons, lined them with plastic wrap, and filled them with fruit juice. After the juice began to freeze slightly we stuck toothpicks in each section.

Several hours later we had frozen "miniature" treats with no sticky ice cube trays to wash either. Don't you think my husband is a clever man? Mrs. Annie Haight +++ Sure do, Honeybelle, and you're clever for passing this little tidbit on to other readers. Heloise

It may be you womenfolk already know this method and are already doing it this way, but there may be some that don't.

DEAR HELOISE:
I use the aluminum foil trays that come with frozen dinners to put under little planters to catch the water. Most of the time I can get three separate little trays from one frozen-dinner tray.

DEAR HELOISE:
As president of the "Where's My Mind Club," please help me and the "jillion" other unorganized members to avoid incurring their husbands' wrath. I finally learned how to work the self-service gas pumps but when I got generous and filled my husband's new car, it was disastrous!

here goes anyway. The "s" hook that is used to hold the dog's tag to his collar is not very sturdy.

After hours of shopping here and there, I arrived home and noticed -- no gas cap! How about a plan to the service stations to put up a big sign over the nozzle -- "Gas Cap?" If anyone has found a white and maroon gas cap belonging to an Aspen SE, I might eventually get out of the dog house. Martie Wells

The Sun, The Eclipse...

It's Up There...Isn't It?

By LEN KRANSORF
Herald Staff Writer

"I guess the sun didn't come for our parade," said Kay Bartholomew clutching her arms as she walked around the vacant lot across from Seminole Memorial Hospital (SMH) where she works as public relations director.

"I know the sun is up there somewhere, but where!" asked Ann Cole, a nurse at the hospital. Both ladies along with about six other employees had gathered at the lot today to view the total eclipse of the sun.

As the sky above remained darkened and temperatures dipped into the 40s, Mrs. Cole, a member of the Central Florida Astronomical Society shrugged. She was disappointed. "The next one will not be until 2024 and I'll be 80-years-old by then if I live that long."

Mike Smith, supervisor of the SMH maintenance department who had seen a partial eclipse several years ago but never a full eclipse, added: "I was really just curious because I've never seen one before."

"I've never seen one either," observed Johnnie Harris, SMH maintenance

'I was really just curious' worker also at the field, "so I came here because I was just curious."

Nick Harris, director of housekeeping at SMH saw his last total eclipse in 1962. "Lord yes, I was looking forward to it since I last viewed it in Mississippi, and I expected to see lots of people here but I can understand why they didn't show," he said noting the adverse weather conditions.

A solar eclipse is a rare event. The last one visible in Florida took place about seven years ago, but was obscured also by heavy cloud cover.

At the Goldendale Observatory in the southern town of Goldendale, Wash., thousands gathered to view the last total eclipse of the sun visible from the continental United States in this century.

About 10 miles further south, at a replica of Stonehenge, dozens of Druids—members of the Church of All Worlds—and other neo-pagan groups gathered for religious rites that one leader, Isaac Bonewitz, had confidently predicted would bring a perfect view of the sun.

The eclipse began just after sunrise in the eastern Pacific as the moon passed directly between the Earth and sun. It reached totality at 8:09 a.m. PST. (12:09 p.m. EST.)

Not until 2017 will another total eclipse of the sun be visible from continental United States. The eclipse was being televised through the observatory's 24 1/2-inch telescope by NBC with a feed to public TV through KWSU of Washington State University. The thousands converging on this little town included residents of Uganda, Burma, Holland, Hungary, Canada and "a lot from California" and throughout the Northwest.

Amidst warnings that severe eye damage could be inflicted on anyone looking at the sun, schools changed their opening hours so children would not be unattended en route to school when the eclipse occurred. Motorists were warned to turn on their lights as the daytime darkness gathered.

1980 Our Big Chance, Baker Tells Area GOP

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

U.S. Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker issued a call for party unity to "meet the challenge of 1980, the greatest chance the Republicans have to prosper since 1952" Sunday night before Central Florida members of the GOP.

Guest speaker at the Orange County Republican Executive Committee's annual Lincoln Day Dinner, the Republican senator from Tennessee hammered away at the Carter administration's "series of foreign policy mistakes" problems with the economy and national defense.

"Not since 1952 has there been a serious question about the national defense of the United States and whether it is adequate to the challenge of this time. The second great challenge is the prosperity and economy of the country," he said.

Saying the nation's foreign policy lacks coherence and stability, Baker, an unannounced presidential candidate said the "world doesn't understand how it is to handle the United States cannot handle leadership in the world." He called a serious mistake President Carter's cancellation of the B-1 bomber, adding Carter apparently thought his action would inspire the Russians to cancel its Backfire bomber.

"That was nonsense," Baker said at the function held at Howard Johnson downtown Orlando grand ballroom.

He said since the first Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT I) the Russians have developed five new missiles. "Carter is about to commence a debate on SALT II. I support strategic arms limitation efforts, voted for SALT I and would like to vote for arms limitation," Baker said, adding however, it is possible under the present treaty for the Russians to make great increases in weapons.

"Will SALT II freeze us into a position of inequality?" he asked, noting this question will be asked more and more.

He said the Senate will thoroughly debate the issue and the nation will ultimately make a judgment on the adequacy or inadequacy of the treaty.

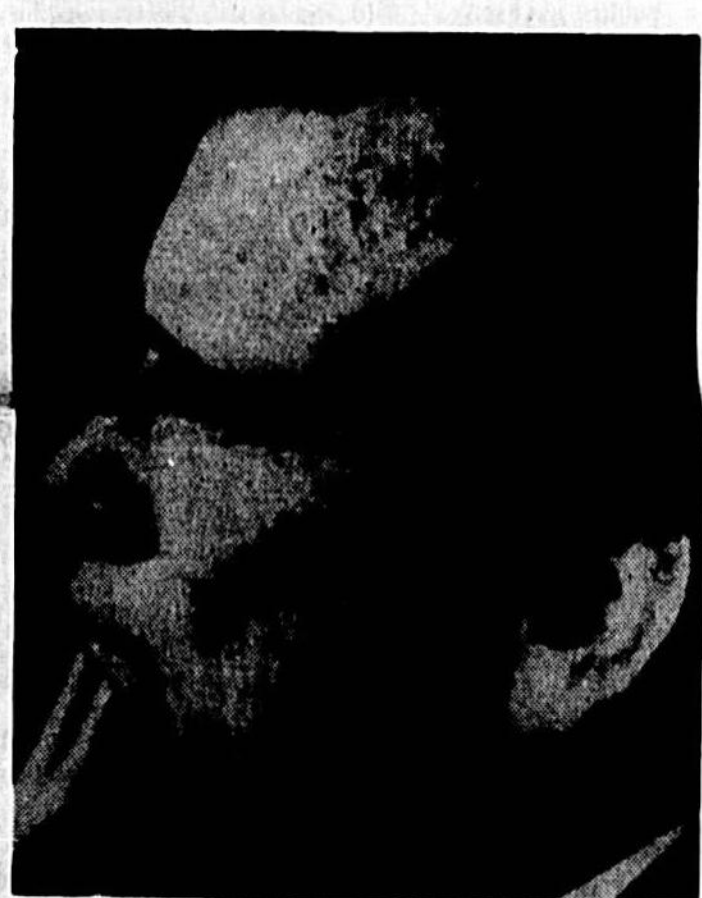

"The nation's greatest asset is the good common sense and wisdom of its people," Baker said, adding SALT II is a "most important decision that cannot be made in a vacuum and sterilized from the touch of the political system."

"I will not stand by and allow national defense and foreign policy decisions to be made outside the view of the people," he said.

"National defense and foreign policy are too important not to be debated in the public arena," Baker said. "I want a national defense and foreign policy that shows our leadership in the world," he said.

Baker was treated to a standing ovation when he was

Property Use Eyed; Sales By Sanford?

By MAX ERKLETTIAN
Herald Staff Writer

The Sanford City Commission, at 7 p.m. at city hall, will review the use of 1,808.3 acres of city property in an effort to see how much of that land can be sold, thereby placing it back on the tax rolls.

The property totals $25,765,650 in assessed valuation spread over 118 different pieces of property.

The property, 68,276 acres totalling an assessed valuation of $20,290 is in vacant land. That land, because it is owned by the city, is not taxed.

However, if it is sold to private investors, it would again become taxable property. "What it boils down to is there are certain parcels of property that some people feel should be put back on the tax rolls," said Mayor Lee P. Moore.

"What we'll be doing tonight is just a matter of making an inventory to see how much of the land the city owns could be disposed of," commented Moore, "some of it is too small to do anything with."

City Manager Warren E. Knowles agreed with Moore that some of the land is too small to be put to use. However, he also added that some pieces of property presently going unused may be put to use in the future.

"A lot of that land is vacant now, but may be used somewhere down the road," say Knowles. "In addition, some of the land is property donated to the city many years ago with certain stipulations dictating how it is to be used, noted Moore.

"Some of that land has a string attached," said Moore. "For instance, I know there is some of the land that has a provision that it can only be used for recreational purposes."

Commissioner John Morris asked for the inventory of city-owned property. "I want to look at what we have, because the city's got so darn much land that it's not

Chinese 25 Miles Into Viet, Hanoi Charges

United Press International

Hanoi radio said today Chinese forces have pushed up to 25 miles into Vietnam and claimed China has more divisions in the country than the United States did during the 1960s. Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiang-sheng said he hopes the war will last only about a month.

Hanoi radio claimed Vietnamese troops battling Chinese invaders in three northern provinces killed or wounded more than 2,300 Chinese troops over the weekend and said fighting still is raging.

The Vietnamese Radio, in a commentary broadcast in Hanoi, said China now has at least 21 infantry divisions in Vietnam in two army corps — "more divisions than the Americans put into the war in Vietnam."

Intelligence sources in Bangkok estimate the Chinese forces at about 25 divisions, 170,000 to 200,000 men with half of them inside Vietnam.

The two Hanoi claims were broadcast as fighting raged in northern Vietnam and both the Soviet Union and United States stopped up their aid.

Chinese forces entered Vietnamese border provinces in the forward during in September when the American war and Peking's power claims caused "several hundreds" of evacuated civilians in the first reported breach of the war. Japanese news reports from Hanoi said today.

In Peking, Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiang-sheng told the Japanese Kyodo News Agency he expected the war would end in fewer than 20 days and he saw little chance of Soviet intervention.

But, Teng added, "We would not make that a bargaining condition." In China's own withdrawal timetable. In the United States last month, Teng said Vietnam had to be "punished" for its invasion of Cambodia.

On one side in its sixth day today, the Soviet news reported their resistance to Peking to stop the invasion "before it is too late." Teng also said he "whole-heartedly welcomed" a U.S. Security Council resolution calling for withdrawal of Chinese troops from Vietnam and Vietnamese troops from Cambodia.

At the United Nations, the Security Council, sponsored by Soviet objections, rejected its resolution. Teng said the Soviet Union was on a mission for immediate cease-fire in Cambodia and Vietnam, withdrawal of all foreign troops from the two countries and suspension for a permanent peace in Southeast Asia.

U.S. Secretary Michael

Treasury Secretary Michael H. Milken, in Peking on a trade mission, said China is the "transgressor" in the Vietnam war and warned that Peking's relations with Washington "will only flourish in a world of peace and stability."

Iran Nabs 4 Yanks 'Trying To Escape'

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Four Americans have been arrested near Abadan in Iran's southwestern oilfields "while trying to escape" and have been handed over to aides of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Iran's Revolutionary Radio said today.

The radio said the Americans were working for a foreign company at Aghajari northeast of Abadan, Iran's chief refinery town, and "were arrested while trying to escape."

"They were handed over to Khomeini's staff by Islamic revolution fighters," the announcement said.

The announcement gave no further details and did not name the Americans.

The radio said the Americans had been arrested Sunday night. A U.S. embassy spokesman said the embassy had not been officially informed of any arrests.

The announcement of the American arrests came as British embassy officials tried to secure the release of two British civilian arrested school instructors imprisoned at Tehran's grim Ghahar central jail.

Two other British detainees who have Iranian wives were allowed to leave Tehran for London this morning on a regular British Airways flight.

The government radio originally announced the Britons were being held for "misappropriating national funds," but diplomats indicated two are being questioned about the tanks on which they were giving instruction.

The British community in Iran has dwindled to about 1,000 and the American community to some 4,000 since the evacuation ordered after the assault on the embassy. There were once 41,000 Americans in Iran.

In Tehran Sunday, Khomeini said ousted Premier Shapour Bakhtiari had fled the nation, and revolutionary sources announced the formation of commando units aimed at bringing "criminals" back from abroad, including the ousted shah.

Khomeini, meanwhile, said ousted Premier Shapour Bakhtiari has fled the nation, and revolutionary sources announced the formation of commando units aimed at bringing "criminals" back from abroad, including the ousted shah. No details of Bakhtiari's escape were given.
