Rope-Trick Jail Break Sparks Manhunt For Brothers

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

Lawmen combed south Volusia County today searching for two brothers who escaped from the Seminole County jail Thursday, but officials fear that at least one of the two burglary suspects may have hitched a ride out of the area.

Sheriff's spokesman John Spolski said today that lawmen believe that the pair, who scaled a 20-foot wall and escaped from a outside volleyball court at the jail at about 7:30 p.m. Thursday, split up after hitching a ride to the DeBary area and one or possibly both of the Tampa men have fled from Central Florida.

Lawmen are puzzled as to how 19-year-old Jed Allen Chyle and Michael Chyle, 22, managed to secure a rope to a pipe on the roof of the jail, scurry up the wall and beneath a security net that covers the area and over a coil of "razor-sharp barbed wire" to freedom, Spolski said.

Spolski speculated today that an accomplice might have been on the roof to toss the rope down to the escapees when a guard was called to duty in another area of the jail. Or, he said, two other theories are that a trusty prisoner had placed the rope on the roof in advance of the escape, or the pair possibly smuggled the rope into the recreation area beneath their clothing.

The two fled to Lake Minnie near U.S. Highway 17-92 and Lake Mary Boulevard and there met an unidentified fisherman who agreed to give the barefoot, watersoaked brothers a ride, Spolski said.

Although the fisherman noted the soaked clothing of the pair who had waded through swampy areas and he also saw orange, jail identification wrist bands on the Chyles, Spolski said the man drove past the Sanford police station without stopping on his way to Volusia County.

The pair jumped from the truck and ran when the man stopped the vehicle on U.S. Highway 17-92 near DeBary. He then reported the incident to lawmen, Spolski said.

Officers from the Florida Highway Patrol and the Volusia County Sheriff's department joined Seminole County lawmen in the manhunt for the Chyles. Tracking dogs and a helicopter were called

Utility Buy May Be Off

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

The purchase of Sanlando Utilities by Seminole County may be off. At least its president, Lester Mandell, said in a letter to the commission it's off unless the county makes a move by Sept. 1.

But that is unlikely, since four members of the county commission — Sandra Glenn, Bill Kirchhoff, Robert G. "Bud" Feather and Barbara Christensen — voted last week to delay any purchase until after a state Public Service Commission audit, scheduled for early September is completed.

It is unlikely that the PSC would approve a sale of the water and sewer utility serving 8,000 customers in southwest Seminole County to any private company for an amount anywhere near the $16.9 million asking price.

Marshall Willis, accounting supervisor for the PCC's water and sewer department, said Wednesday a new buyer (other than a county or city government which is not controlled by the state agency) would have to prove why it "deserved" a $16.9 million rate base.

Using a recent proposed sale of a private utility in Florida to another private company as an example, Willis said owners had invested $250,000 in a utility and a prospective buyer was willing to pay $2 million. "The purchase was not approved by the PSC," Willis said.

Connie McCaskill, an accounting analyst in Willis's department, said it appears from documents submitted by Sanlando for its operations in 1983, that the firm has an actual investment of $275,000 in the water system and a negative $150,255 in its sewer system.

She said it would be fair to say that the firm's principals have $125,000 invested in the utility.

Miss McCaskill said the investment is determined by the cash put into the systems by Sanlando minus the connection fees paid by customers and developers, donations of water lines and contributions in aid of construction to the utility from developers.

In addition, Miss McCaskill said the reports show that Lester Mandell, president of the utility, received a salary of $84,000 in 1983 from the company while William Mustard, a vice president, received a $75,790 salary and an executive vice president, Jack Lazar, received a $7,500 salary.

Meanwhile, Miss McCaskill and Willis are preparing to ask the PSC on Sept. 4 to order an "interim rate decrease" for the company's customers while an audit of their records is on-going.

Willis explained that the "interim rate decrease" will mean that Sanlando must put up a bond to guarantee for refunds to customers. If the physical audit proves what a desk audit is showing — that Sanlando's investment in the utilities company does not support the need for the rates charged now.

A desk audit has already been done by Willis and his staff at the PSC in Tallahassee and a physical audit of Sanlando's records is scheduled to begin between Sept. 3 and 5, Willis said.

The audit will include the salaries paid officers of the company, Miss McCaskill said.

Willis said the 1983 annual report from Sanlando got the attention of analysts because the value of contributions to the system "all of a sudden showed a dramatic increase." Reports from previous years didn't show the firm was overearning on its investment, he said.

Asked whether the PSC would approve a sale of Sanlando to Seminole County for $16.9 million, if the county came under the purview of the state agency, Willis said, "Probably not."

"The PSC would make Sanlando show why it deserved a $16.9 million rate base," he said.

After the audit and the possible rate decrease was reported, the county commissioners on a 4-1 vote, with Commissioner Bob Sturm casting the only negative vote, decided to tell Sanlando officials further consideration of a purchase by the county would be delayed until after the PSC audit is complete.

Sanlando officials were notified of the decision by letter.

And Sanlando's president, Lester Mandell, responded with a letter to the county asking for a commitment to purchase the Sanlando assets for $16.9 million by midnight Tuesday. The county commission did not meet the deadline and the letter from Sanlando will be noted in the public record at the commission's Tuesday meeting next week, Mrs. Glenn said.

The letter from Sanlando committed to put $500,000 in a special fund if the county moved ahead to purchase the utility. The money, the utility company officials said, would be placed in an interest bearing account to be returned to customers if a national auditing firm or the PSC

... 'America is coming back and is more confident than ever about the future'

'America Has A Choice'

By Laurence McQuillan
UPI Political Reporter

DALLAS (UPI) — Flush with the glittery pomp of his re-nomination, President Reagan says he has restored a "springtime of hope" to an America facing its "clearest political choice in half a century."

Reagan and Vice President George Bush appear jointly today before a GOP leadership gathering in Dallas and then move on for their first official campaign appearances — the president in Chicago and his running mate in New Hampshire.

The 73-year-old president touched off a flag-waving, placard-shaking demonstration from the 17,000 party faithful who filled the Dallas Convention Center with chants of "four more years" as their political hero approached the podium Thursday night.

"Tonight, with a full heart

REPUBLICAN

and deep gratitude for your trust, I accept your nomination for the presidency of the United States," Reagan said to the explosive cheers of the mostly conservative delegates. "I will campaign on behalf of the principles of our party which lift America confidently into the future."

"America is presented with the clearest political choice of half a century," he declared. "The distinctions between our two parties and the different philosophy of our political opponents are at the heart of this campaign and America's future."

In the 55-minute speech,

Reagan said he would pursue his "unfinished agenda" still before Congress in a second term and warned that Democratic control of the White House would mean "confiscatory taxes, costly social experiments and economic tinkering."

He then launched into a full-scale attack on the Democrats' presidential standardbearer, Walter Mondale — and his rival's admonition it will take a tax increase to close the federal deficit gap, and that Reagan secretly knows it.

"Our opponents are openly committed to increasing your tax burden," he declared. "We are committed to stopping them, and we will."

"We are accused of having a secret," he said. "Well, if we have, it is that we're going to keep the mighty engine of this nation revved up."

Surplus Food Distribution Sites Set

The American Red Cross will be distributing surplus cheese, butter, cornmeal, flour and honey to the poor of Seminole County next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at various locations.

Persons will receive the food at various locations, according to their zip code, said a Red Cross spokesman.

Food will be distributed to residents of Sanford (32771) and Lake Monroe (32747) on Wednesday, Aug. 29, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Salvation Army, 700 W. 24th St., Sanford.

On Thursday, Aug. 30, the food will be distributed to residents of Altamonte Springs (32701), Fern Park (32730), Lake Mary (32746), Longwood (32750) and the Springs (32779) from noon until 4 p.m. at the County Agricultural Center, 4320 S. Orlando Drive, Sanford.

On Thursday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., the food will be distributed from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at St. Peter & St. Paul Catholic Church on Howell Branch Road in Goldenrod for residents of Casselberry (32707), Winter Springs (32708), Goldenrod (32733), Oviedo (32765), for Seminole County residents with a Winter Park (32792) mailing address, and for persons in the Forest City area (32714).

Residents of Geneva (32732) and Chuluota (32786) can pick up their food on Friday, Aug. 31 from 10 a.m. to noon at the Baptist Church on Lake Mills Drive in Chuluota.

Food recipients are asked by the Red Cross to bring with them identification and the eligibility cards given them at the time of enrollment in the program in July.

Those persons who have not enrolled, but believe they are eligible, may enroll at their zip code distribution site and receive food the same day.

Eligibility will be determined by documents which applicants are asked to bring with them including: a letter of decision from the food stamp program, a Medicaid card for SSI or AFDC recipients or declaration of self need.

Typically a family of two with a gross income of $728 a month; a family of four with a gross income of $1,105 per month or a family of six with a gross income of $1,428 per month are eligible to receive surplus food.

Walk-In Clinic To Open In Sanford

A minor emergency medical clinic for walk-in patients, the first facility of its type in Sanford, is scheduled to open Labor Day week in Sanford.

The clinic will be housed in a new brick building on the west side of U.S. Highway 17-92, adjacent to the planned Wal-Mart shopping center.

John Smith, clinic business manager and administrator, said today the facility will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Sunday, and will have two doctors on staff and 12-15 support personnel. The clinic will also see patients by appointment.

Smith is the son of mayoral candidate Bettye Smith and Dr. Robert J. Smith, a general practitioner and dermatologist who has been in practice in Sanford for more than 20 years.

Smith said his father will move his practice to the clinic and will be one of the physicians on staff. Smith said a third physician will be added when needed.

Smith said the two staff doctors will practice industrial medicine, permitting persons hurt on the job to get primary care through worker's compensation at the clinic.

Since Dr. Smith is on staff at Central Florida Regional Hospital, he will also attend patients who must receive treatment at the hospital and look after them following their hospitalization, Smith said.

A continuing education program is planned for the clinic's nurses to train them in handling some medical emergencies on a preliminary basis, he said. Nurses will also be trained in performing some laboratory tests that previously had to be sent to private labs. The clinic will also be able to take X-rays and two members of the clinic staff are already certified radiological technicians.

Zaccaro Defends Handling Of Estate

NEW YORK (UPI) — Geraldine Ferraro's husband, John Zaccaro, says he believed he was doing the "right thing" when he borrowed $175,000 from the estate of an elderly widow confined to a nursing home.

Zaccaro, who is the conservator of the estate, argued in state Supreme Court in Queens Thursday he did not know such transaction was illegal and maintained he added value to the woman's property with the deal.

"I thought I was doing the right thing at the time and I still do," Zaccaro told Justice Edwin Kassoff at a court hearing.

Zaccaro said he paid back loans of $100,000 and $75,000 at 12 percent interest last March after he was informed by a court-appointed referee that such borrowings are a misdemeanor under the state's estates and trusts laws.

Kassoff reserved decision after the 40-minute proceeding in a courtroom packed with reporters.

Zaccaro, who is a real estate manager and not a lawyer, was appointed by Kassoff to be conservator for the estate of Alice Phelan, 84, who lives in the Little Neck nursing home in Queens.

Zaccaro took over the Phelan estate 18 months ago and it has grown from about $700,000 to $1.1 million, primarily through stock transactions, Zaccaro said.

He said he added value to the estate when he took the loans — paying 12 percent interest rather than the then prevailing money market rate of 10.5 percent — and was acting within the rules of a list of instructions given to him when he was appointed conservator.

Zaccaro's attorney, City Councilman Morton Povman, suggested to the court more specific instructions be written for non-lawyer conservators to clearly forbid borrowing from estates they oversee.

Zaccaro said he borrowed the money as short-term loans for his real estate firm, P. Zaccaro Co. Although Ms. Ferraro owns one-third of the company, she has said she did not know of the loans from the estate until the recent financial review was conducted for her campaign.

Accused Killer Frees Three Church Hostages

SUMTER, S.C. (UPI) — Police said a man accused of killing his wife and her father in front of his horrified children barged into a church and held a priest and two teachers hostage for three hours before surrendering. Alain Lareau, bleeding from an apparently self-inflicted stab wound, was led out of St. Jude's Catholic church late Thursday night by two police officers. Lareau, a former school friend, had been charged earlier Thursday with killing his estranged wife, Sara Lareau, 38, and her father, Linsey Campbell, 69, inside Campbell's home in Columbia, 40 miles west of Sumter. Richland County Coroner Frank Barron said Mrs. Lareau was stabbed 15 times in the chest and shot twice in the back as her three children looked on. He said Campbell died of multiple stab and gunshot wounds.

Lights Back On In Bean Town

BOSTON (UPI) — Power was restored by early today to all but about 4,000 of the 12,000 homes and businesses plunged into a blackout that stranded thousands of workers in traffic and elevators at the height of evening rush hour. Only the Chinatown neighborhood remained in darkness and police stepped up patrols there to prevent looting or other problems. By early today, no major incidents had been reported, police said. The outage affecting a 10-block downtown area began about 3:30 p.m. Thursday shortly after smoke was detected billowing from manhole covers along a street in Chinatown. Boston Edison Co. officials decided to cut electricity to the area power network "to prevent further damage and prolong restoration," company spokesman Mike Monahan said. The cause of the explosion was not known, he said.

Book Depository Fire Was Arson

DALLAS (UPI) — Investigators believe someone used a key to enter the Texas School Book Depository — where Lee Harvey Oswald fired the shots that killed President Kennedy in 1963 — and started a fire that caused $250,000 damage. Dallas County Fire Marshal Jim Badgett said the blaze began around 2 a.m. CDT Thursday in at least two places and the absence of evidence showing forced entry strongly indicated that the suspect had a key. The fire started in the basement — storage site for some Kennedy-era memorabilia — then skipped the ground floor and followed baseboards up to the second and third floors of the seven-story red brick building.

Kidney Stones Can Now Be Pulverized By Shock Waves

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — Painful kidney stones can be pulverized without debilitating surgery by a new machine that focuses hundreds of powerful shock waves inside the patient's body, a medical researcher says. Patients, suffering only from soreness, have been able to check out of the hospital within three days after the treatment. Dr. Birdwell Finlayson, director of the University of Florida's Kidney Stone Research Center, said Thursday. Surgeons focus the shock waves on kidney stones through an underwater brass reflector. The repeated bursts of energy — similar to the thunder that follows a lightning strike — fracture stones into particles the size of sand grains. The crushed stones then are passed through the kidneys.

MIAMI (UPI) — A toddler who would have turned 2 on Monday died in the care of a prostitute at a $33-a-day hotel room, and police charged a companion of the prostitute with fatally battering the child. Dade County Circuit Judge Meek Robinette Thursday ordered Norman James Eastman, 24, a friend of the woman with whom the child was left, held without bond. Eastman is charged with murder for allegedly beating the child severely early Wednesday. Police said Eastman beat the infant when he would not stop crying. The child's mother, who police did not identify, left the child with a friend eight months ago after she was divorced and went to St. Petersburg, police said. She had a record of obstructing police and obstructing traffic, both prostitution-related arrests, officers said.

Michael Chyle, who is missing two front teeth, has brown hair, blue eyes and is 5-foot-11-inches tall and weighs 160 pounds. They were jailed July 2 and were awaiting trial on two counts of burglary. They could have received up to five years jail on each count. Under sentencing guidelines a conviction for escape would add a year to their sentences, but statutes allow up to 15 years for the crime. The brothers were scheduled to be transferred to DeSoto County Jail, Arcadia, after being sentenced here. They had been arrested in Arcadia on a Seminole County warrant. Spolski said. He added that they may head for Tampa, where they were born, or to Brooksville, where both have lived. Lawmen have not determined if the Chyles are armed.

Graham Eyes Special Legislative Session To Deal With Child Abuse

CORAL GABLES (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham said Thursday he may call a special legislative session to ensure better protection of children in day care centers. Graham also said the number of state workers in south Florida hired to deal with child abuse cases would be increased. The governor previously has said he might ask lawmakers to deal with the problem during an organizational session in November if the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services can come up with proposed laws in time. Thursday was the first time he said a special session on child abuse might be called. Graham met Tuesday with HRS secretary David Pingree and asked him to propose changes in the law by Oct. 1. He said HRS will redistribute its child abuse employees in south Florida to handle problem areas in Miami. If more people are needed, they will be brought in from other parts of the state, he said Thursday. "These are immediate band-aid solutions we feel are necessary to combat the problem," he said. "If HRS comes up with a viable program before the Legislature convenes I may request a special session or add the program to the agenda of whatever special session is called." Graham later said about 100 day-care centers will be re-evaluated to determine if all are in compliance with existing laws. He also said additional funding would be necessary to implement whatever program HRS designs, but no financial projections are available because the plan is still in the design stage. "One item the plan will include is a fingerprinting requirement so no one involved in criminal or immoral behavior will be licensed to operate these facilities," he said. The governor's actions followed reports that at least 12 children were molested at the Country Walk Babysitting Service in south Miami.

Sanford Man Faces Charge Of Killing Wife

A 36-year-old Sanford man arrested Thursday in Casselberry was returned to Ft. Lauderdale today to face a charge of first-degree murder in the 1981 drowning of his wife who reportedly died in the Atlantic Ocean 10 miles east of Ft. Lauderdale after the suspect pushed her from their boat and watched her tread water for an hour before going under.

Broward County sheriff's investigators claim that the killing was part of an insurance fraud scheme, noting that the suspect had taken out two insurance policies totaling $200,000 on the life of Anita Lucia Lopez Keen, 22, of Ft. Lauderdale, just five months before she drowned on Nov. 15, 1981. Lawmen say the suspect's brother, Patrick Keen of Orlando, told officials of the alleged killing on Aug. 9, and Seminole County lawmen assisted a Broward County deputy in arresting the suspect, who was picked up at his Casselberry business, All-Clima Shield, Inc., Thursday morning.

Michael Scott Keen of 112 Clear Lake Circle was booked into the Seminole County jail at 10:54 a.m. Thursday. There was some initial confusion as to where Keen lived.

Broward County sheriff's investigators initially identified Keen as an Orlando resident, one published report had him living in Lake Mary, but Seminole County deputies later established that his home is in Sanford.

ATTEMPTED RAPE
A 21-year-old Altamonte Springs woman reported to sheriff's deputies that a 22-year-old man she knows only as "Tom" tried to sexually assault her as he walked with her from a friend's house on the way to her mother's Longwood home.

The attack occurred at about 11 p.m. Tuesday in a building under construction in a wooded area of Longwood, a sheriff's report said. The woman told deputies the man forced her into the woods and made her enter the building where he pushed her to the floor, sat across her body and partially undressed her. When she fought back and yelled for help, the man fled, the report said.

COKE DEALERS SENTENCED
Two Sanford men have been sentenced for selling cocaine to an undercover agent. Jeffrey Hunter, 26, of 1401 W. 14th St., was sentenced to 5 years to be followed by 10 years probation. Theodore J. Jordan, 30, of 32 William Clark Court, was sentenced to 2 years to be followed by 11 years probation.

According to court records, the pair were arrested after an undercover agent bought $20 worth of cocaine from them Jan. 23. A jury found them guilty June 14 before Seminole Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor who also sentenced them. The men received probation for possession of marijuana. Hunter, who faces arraignment on other charges from later arrests, had his sentence increased from 4 to 5 years because he did not cooperate with officials conducting a presentence investigation and lied to the judge, according to court records.

TEACHER CHARGED IN FATAL WRECK
Charges have been filed against an Altamonte Springs woman accused of leaving the scene of an accident on Crane's Roost Boulevard March 8 in which a pedestrian was killed.

Linda Rene Katz, 34, of 275 Cranes Roost Blvd., surrendered herself to Seminole County sheriff's deputies at the county jail Aug. 17. She was released on her own recognizance pending trial. The charge stems from the traffic death of David Burnett, a 23-year-old surveyor who was struck by an eastbound car while he was walking along Crane's Roost Boulevard at 7:05 a.m.

According to court records, Burnett was either crossing or walking along the road when he was hit. He was knocked to the shoulder of the road where he lay until discovered about 50 minutes later. Burnett was taken to Florida Hospital-Altamonte and then transported by Orange County Sheriff's Department helicopter to Florida Hospital-Orlando where he died at about 11:30 a.m. A trial date is scheduled to be set Aug. 31 for Ms. Katz, a teacher at Westridge Jr. High School, Orlando, who turned herself in after a warrant was issued for her arrest. Leaving the scene of an accident with injuries is a third-degree felony punishable by up to five years in prison.

said a refund had to be made. Saying Sanlando officials have "patiently pursued the transaction (with the county) for the past 18 months, Mandell said the firm is "unwilling to continue to negotiate or to have any continued legal or moral obligation to deal further with county after our present obligation expires Sept. 1."

"Our organization has suffered from uncertainty and unrest by negotiations with the county. We feel we can only rebuild morale and efficiency by firmly putting the possibility of a sale to the county behind us," he said.

"Moreover dealing with the PSC is a costly and time consuming exercise which requires a firm resolve and long range review by us," he said. Mandell also said since the PSC audit will cost the firm time and money, "we feel we have an excellent opportunity to seek a rate increase at the same time. We will only have to prove our utility's once rather than twice," he said. He also stressed that Sanlando has been charging its customers "under a valid tariff set by the PSC in 1976." While the proposed purchase of Sanlando appears to be off, County Attorney Nikki Clayton, Budget Analyst Pam Hastings, Environmental Services Director Ken Hooper and an accountant have scheduled a trip to the PSC in Tallahassee next week to discuss the criteria the state agency uses to set rates and the information required of utility companies. Mrs. Glenn said there are two other utilities which may be made available to Seminole County to buy in the next year. "And we want to know first hand how the PSC sets its rates and whatever other information they can give us so we won't be surprised again when we are negotiating to purchase a utility."

Hijackers Threaten To Blow Up Plane With 90 People On Board

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Twelve Sikhs hijacked an Indian Airlines jetliner to Pakistan today and threatened to kill the more than 90 people aboard one by one unless they were given fuel to fly to the United States.

A few hours after the plane landed in Lahore, Pakistani authorities gave permission to refuel the aircraft and the operation was expected to begin shortly thereafter, officials quoted by the Press Trust of India said.

No further details were available and it was not known whether authorities had given in to the hijackers' other demand to meet with eight Sikhs who commandeered an Indian Airlines airbus-300 to Lahore July 5 and are now in Pakistani jails.

The 12 hijackers threatened to blow up the Boeing 737 if action were taken against them.

In recent years, Sikhs have waged a campaign for autonomy in the northern state of Punjab where hundreds of people have been killed.

U.S. Upset By Bonner Sentence

United Press International
The State Department is "outraged" over reports a Soviet court last week sentenced dissident Andrei Sakharov's wife, Yelena Bonner, to five years internal exile for slandering the Soviet state.

The account of the Bonner trial was disclosed by spokesman Alan Romberg, who suggested the release of month-old video tapes showing Sakharov and his wife was an attempt "to divert attention from other developments in the case," meaning the trial and conviction of Mrs. Bonner.

Sakharov, 63, a Nobel peace prize winner and scientist, has been in internal exile in the city of Gorky since 1980, after he spoke out against the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan. It is presumed by the State Department that the internal exile for Mrs. Bonner would separate the couple, although it is not known where her sentence was to be served.

Bomb Kills 18 In Tehran

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Angry civilians condemned a powerful explosion that killed 18 people and wounded 300 outside Tehran's main railway station as the work of dissidents opposed to the regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

But in Paris, the leading dissident Iranian movement, the People's Mujahedeen Khalq, denounced Thursday's bombing and said it was carried out by "agents" of the religious leader Khomeini or former members of the late Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi's secret police, SAVAK.

The railway station was the main terminus used by Iranian soldiers going to the frontlines of the 47-month-old Iran-Iraq war.

Lebanon Mourns Army Chief

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Martial music dominated official Beirut radio's early broadcast today, with drum rolls and trumpet blasts mourning Lebanon's army chief of staff and eight other men who died in a helicopter crash.

The bodies of Maj. Gen. Nadim Hakim, a Druze Moslem, and the other victims were identified soon after the fiery crash Thursday on a fog-covered hillside 38 miles northeast of Beirut.

'Death Squads' To Be Probed

United Press International
Salvadoran President Jose Napoleon Duarte, angered by the murder of a 17-year-old girl, demanded an immediate investigation into the feared "death squads" held responsible for killing tens of thousands of civilians.

Coinciding with Duarte's order, however, university students demanded their own investigation — into "the continuing abuses of authority under the Duarte administration."

In El Salvador, a spokesman for Duarte who asked not to be identified said the president blamed death squads for the

Winners And Losers

Rabbi Melv Kahane has ideas that are almost off the scale of extremism, but we must express admiration for his candor. This militant head of the Jewish Defense League and leader of frequent disruptive demonstrations was at it again the other day when he was being seated as a new member of the Israeli Knesset.

First, he broke up the proceedings by refusing to take the customary oath of office. Then, after his defiance had been duly covered by newspapers and television, making him the center of interest in stories about the opening of the new parliament, he agreed to take the oath.

"I know the news media," boasts Rabbi Kahane. "We use the media."

Not often do controversial figures admit that their antics may be inspired by less indignation or passionate support of a principle than by the prospect of getting their names or pictures in the news.

Some public personalities are geniuses at using the media. There is a need for more genius among journalists to improve their defenses against being used. The problem is that ignoring demonstrations or gestures of protest leaves the media liable to charges of suppressing the news or denying space or air time to unpopular points of view.

Sometimes publicity-seeking can backfire. The same day that Rabbi Kahane was acting up for the cameras in the Knesset, the phone rang in the office of a news agency in Paris. The caller said he was from an Armenian terrorist organization, and it was his people who had planted a bomb on a bus being used by Turkish athletes at the Los Angeles Olympics.

The caller obviously had seen or heard news reports about the incident at the Los Angeles airport, and saw a chance to draw support to Armenian grievances against the Turks by claiming responsibility. What he did not know was that the incident was a phony. A Los Angeles policeman confessed to planting the bomb so he could be a hero for removing it. You win some, you lose some.

Down, Not Out

Perhaps Americans can safely permit themselves a few smug chuckles at the trouble plaguing OPEC, considering all of the trauma that the oil producers' cartel has inflicted on this petroleum-dependent nation over the past decade. But let's not get carried away; we may not have the last laugh.

The price-fixing plan of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries has come largely unglued as a result of the recession-induced oil glut worldwide. Adding to OPEC's problem now is the announcement of a non-member, the Soviet Union, that it is cutting its oil-export price by $1.50 a barrel. Surely, that will contribute to the petroleum-cost slide, which has brought gasoline prices in the United States to their lowest level in five years.

Now, if Americans can avoid falling back into fuel-wasting habits, buying needlessly powerful gas-guzzlers, and if industry remembers the energy-is-money lesson of the past decade, perhaps the OPEC monster can be kept at bay. That would permit time for continued orderly transition away from an oil-based economy.

That transition is essential. Petroleum, as a finite resource, will not last indefinitely. If Americans forget that fact of life, the petroleum producers will get the last laugh after all.

BERRY'S WORLD

"OK, mister, THAT DOES IT! I'm afraid we'll have to book you for 'Boating Under the Influence.'"

By Donna Estes

Seminole County has its own mini-delegation at this week's Republican National Convention.

U.S. Rep. Bill McCollum as a delegate served on the Platform Committee and was mentioned on national television along with U.S. Rep. Trent Lott, R-Mississippi, as new young shiners on the Washington scene.

Lott was a guest speaker at a GOP Lincoln Day Dinner several years ago. He and McCollum are personal friends.

McCollum went to Dallas a week before the convention for Platform Committee meetings and was joined there by his wife, Ingrid, last weekend.

Jim Stelling of Fern Park and Jim Weinberg, local party chairman, are alternate delegates at the convention. And Patty Brantley reports that her husband, state Rep. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, became a Florida delegate at the confab when old friend, Eleanor Van Dyke of St. Johns County, who had been selected a delegate, got ill and couldn't go.

Among the delegates from the fifth congressional district (Seminole, Orange and Lake counties) are state Sen. Toni Jennings (member of the Seminole County Legislative Delegation), state Rep. Bruce McEwan, and Jeanne Austin, chairman of the state Republican Party. All are from Orlando.

Jeanne Austin has been a familiar figure in Seminole County Republican circles for years, long before she was elected chairman of the state party earlier this year.

Also attending the convention are: Connie Austin of Lake Mary, an Orlando businesswoman; Florence

Alexander, an Altamonte Springs businesswoman; County Commissioner Barbara Christensen and her administrative aide, Teresa Coker.

County Republicans gathered for a celebration of President Ronald Reagan's nomination at Lake Destiny Apartments Thursday night and to watch his acceptance speech on national television.

The Republican Party has certainly grown in Seminole County in the past 20 years. In the early 1960's only a handful of voters were registered as Republicans here and few if any GOP candidates appeared on the ballot.

Today only 3,900 voters separate the Republican and Democratic party ranks.

Voters who have declared themselves Democrats number 41,276 while there are 37,376 Republicans.

Those Academic Nomads

As the new college year begins, new faculty members are arriving on campuses to take up teaching posts — for a year. There's a serious problem in this situation concerning which the public knows little.

American colleges and universities have few permanent openings this year. Most faculty positions are filled by tenured professors or by teachers who are on the tenure track — that is, they occupy slots that, in due course, will be filled by a tenured professor.

However, there are a very considerable number of one-year vacancies on faculties. These are filled by what someone has called "academic nomads." It's a very unhappy and unsatisfactory situation.

The situation arises from the vast expansion of American high education in the 1960s. Colleges and universities mushroomed to size. Academic departments were created or enlarged. Student enrollment increased each year.

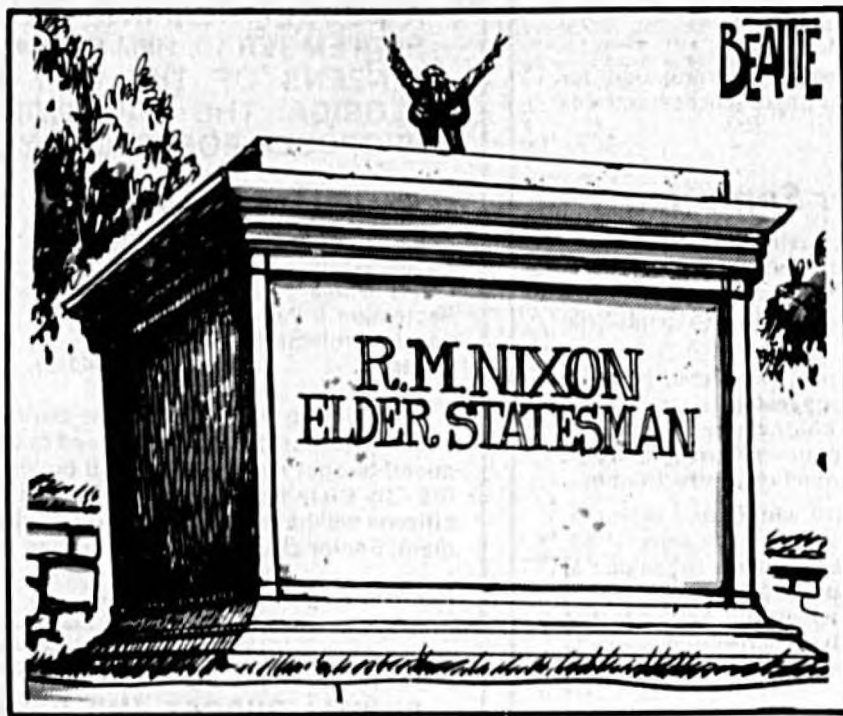

All that has changed. In the mid-1980s, enrollments are down. College administrations are feeling a financial pinch and are attempting to eliminate departments or reduce them in size. There is a huge backlog of tenured professors who are entitled to stay in their jobs until they retire, regardless of the quality of their teaching and research.

At the same time, graduate schools continue to turn out Ph.D.s for whom there aren't any permanent jobs. These graduates have to take whatever posts are available, which usually means one-year teaching jobs. Uncertainty is built into this arrangement. No sooner does a teacher land a job at a college for the coming year than he has to start thinking about finding a job at another institution for the next year. The annual moves, with changes in schooling for children and search for affordable housing, results in a hectic existence.

This bad situation is compounded when a husband and wife both have advanced academic degrees and seek teaching jobs. Many academic couples are compelled to live apart, visiting only occasionally.

In time, the sixties-era contingent of professors will retire, but that is years away. The law allows a professor to continue teaching until he is 70. By the time there are extensive requirements, teaching institutions will be drastically reduced in size as a result of the lower birth rate in the 1970s.

College trustees and administrators are very concerned about this situation but don't know what to do about it. The situation is of legitimate concern to the parents of college students and the general public.

ROBERT WALTERS

Stepping On Toes

DALLAS (NEA) — An unprecedented effort by Washington-based officials of the Republican Party to intervene in selected primary elections for U.S. Senate seats has produced considerable consternation among state and local GOP activists.

National-level leaders of both the Republican and Democratic parties long have been wary of meddling in primaries lest they be accused of usurping a function traditionally reserved for party officials and voters at the state and local level.

That arrangement is inapplicable only in cases where incumbent senators or representatives seeking re-election are challenged in primaries. In those contests, the two parties' congressional campaign committees have offered financial, technical and other assistance to their office-holders.

There have been isolated violations of the informal non-intervention rule in the past, but this year the National Republican Senatorial Committee has acted aggressively to influence the outcome of multi-candidate party primaries in which no GOP incumbent was involved.

The most notable contest in that category was the four-candidate race in Tennessee to select the Republican nominee for the seat now held by Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. who chose not to seek re-election this year.

In mid-May — 10 weeks prior to the Aug. 2 primary — the Republican committee endorsed Victor H. Ashe, a veteran member of the state legislature widely regarded as the leader in the race. (He subsequently won the primary by a wide margin.)

Acknowledging that its intervention was "unusual," the committee justified its action on the grounds that Ashe would be the most effective candidate against Rep.

Albert Gore Jr., the Democratic contender in the general election.

The endorsement and a $15,000 NRSC contribution to Ashe were fiercely criticized by Ashe's rivals, especially Edward E. McAteer, a nationally known fundamentalist leader who is a former chairman of the Religious Roundtable.

McAteer registered his protest by withdrawing from the Republican primary but remaining in the race as an independent. If he does succeed in persuading GOP leaders to withdraw from the race entirely, he will draw conservative votes from Ashe in the general election and almost certainly destroy the party's slim chance to retain Baker's seat.

Other cases of NRSC pre-primary intervention involve Senate contests in which a woman was a contender. Because the Republican Party has become increasingly sensitive about the gender gap, the campaign committee has committed itself to making extraordinary efforts to assist female candidates.

In mid-March — two months before the May 15 primary — the NRSC contributed $15,000 to Nancy D. Hoch, one of six candidates seeking the Republican nomination in a Nebraska race subsequently described by the campaign committee as "the most competitive Senate primary in the country."

As in Tennessee, that move antagonized not only the other candidates but also party leaders and activists who were not backing Mrs. Hoch. (Like Ashe, she went on to win the primary by a sizable margin.)

In New Jersey, the NRSC also was not content to await the outcome of the two-candidate Republican senatorial primary on June 5. Instead, the campaign committee contributed $15,000 to Mary V. Mochary on March 22.

WILLIAM RUSHER

The GOP Meeting In Dallas

DALLAS (NEA) — There are few crowds happier than a bunch of politicians who think they're going to win, and the Republicans pouring into Dallas last weekend for their national convention were wearing grins from ear to ear. The convention's only serious business was to renominate Ronald Reagan and George Bush. That left three or four whole days in which to attend parties and receptions all over the proud, glistening and self-consciously wealthy city. If J.R. is a Republican, he undoubtedly hosted a memorable bash on Monday or Tuesday for several hundred of his closest political friends.

Not even Dallas's murderous triple-digit heat has wilted the near-universal mood of enthusiasm. After all, everybody is lodged in hotels where the air conditioning can be set at positively arctic levels. Only a handful of gay, feminist and miscellaneous other protesters, housed in a tent city erected down by the river, are being threatened with heat exhaustion.

One senses among the conservative politicians here (and there is virtually no other kind) an optimism dangerously close to cockiness. It involves far more than just this year's campaign — though the omens in that regard are almost unbelievably good, with polls in many states showing the Reagan-Bush ticket leading Mondale-Ferraro by margins of nearly 2-to-1. The politicians here sense a conservative long-wave that will last for an entire political generation or more. They are convinced that a solid majority of Americans are with them in favoring what Georgia Republican Congressman Newt Gingrich calls the "conservative opportunity society" over a "liberal welfare state."

They are earnest and ingenious in proposing new ways of implementing their populist-conservative vision, and serenely contemptuous of Democratic attempts to revive the mood of FDR's New Deal.

The role of Cassandra at this week's party, therefore, has been left to a handful of extreme rightists. For them, Mr. Reagan's administration has been a shattering disappointment, and the prospect of Bush for "Bushnikov," as one far-out morose caller named him over a drink with me (the other night) winning the nomination in 1988 is simply too much to bear. Anticipating economic disaster of one sort or another — massive bank failures, a market collapse — in the second Reagan administration, they look forward grimly to the day when they can savor again the stern joys of being Out.

JACK ANDERSON

Cleanup Campaign All Show

WASHINGTON — Corruption in Mexico reached its giddy peak in the years 1976 to 1982, when huge, newly discovered oil reserves promised to put the historically poverty-stricken nation on the road to prosperity. But when world oil prices fell, Mexico was stuck with massive loans it had received from Western banks on the basis of its oil wealth.

The corruption was so notorious that President Miguel de la Madrid based his election campaign in 1982 on a promise of "moral renovation," including prosecution of those who had stolen the big bucks.

But the CIA, in a top-secret report to President Reagan in May, predicted that de la Madrid's great cleanup campaign will be all show and little substance. A summary of the CIA report made available to my associate Dale Van Atta explains that the Mexican president must tread lightly, both for his own sake and that of the dominant political party he heads, the Institutional Revolutionary Party.

For the truth is that any serious investigation would lead straight to ex-President Jose Lopez Portillo, who skimmed off more than his share of the Mexican people's wealth — perhaps as much as $5 billion — while de la Madrid was his budget director.

Still, popular outrage reached such a pitch that de la Madrid had to serve up at least one big fish. He was Jorge Diaz Serrano, director-general of Pemex, the state oil monopoly, during the Lopez Portillo administration. Diaz Serrano was an oil contractor who had once been a partner of Vice President George Bush in the Houston-based Zapata Oil Co.

On the strength of the new oil discoveries — and the supposedly unstoppable increases in petroleum prices — Diaz Serrano boosted Pemex's annual budget to more than $23 billion, increased its employees from 80,000 to 120,000 and began construction of a 55-story headquarters in Mexico City.

Mexico became the world's fourth biggest oil producer.

But in 1981, Diaz Serrano was unceremoniously fired after lowering oil prices without consulting Lopez Portillo and his cabinet. In June 1983, after his protector left office, Diaz Serrano was arrested and charged with defrauding Pemex of $34 million in a contract for two Belgian natural gas tankers. He was sent to prison.

That was comparative peanuts. In a recent column, I reported that 317 million barrels of oil had simply disappeared during Diaz Serrano's tenure, and that an estimated $4 billion had been diverted from Pemex in 1979 alone.

After the column appeared, Diaz Serrano wrote me from prison, saying: "What you state in your commentary is totally false — from the beginning to the end." He ended his letter with this pious statement: "I think I have expressed not only my point of view but the unanimous disapproval that has arisen in Mexico for your lack of professional ethics while hitting those who stand for the flag of dignity" — a reference to de la Madrid.

Unfortunately for Diaz Serrano, the facts brought out in more than 5,000 pages of official testimony make clear that he was a crook of awe-inspiring proportions.

By concealing kickbacks to top Pemex officials through overpayments to American contractors on just one series of transactions, for example, Diaz Serrano and his cronies bilked the Mexican treasury of $97 million. On a single order for turbines and compressors, two Pemex officials got $12.3 million in "commission."

Thousands of "aviadores" — the slang term for "fliers" who touch down only long enough to pick up paychecks — were put on the Pemex payroll under Diaz Serrano. One investigation turned up 13,000 of these ghost workers, while sources tell me that Pemex cranked out more than 2 million paychecks for no work.

Diaz Serrano's praise for de la Madrid is understandable. The president who had him arrested can also set him free — and if past history is any guide, that's exactly what will happen.

Series Brings Family Closer

(Editor's note): Jerrey Thurston is a catcher and outfielder for the Altamonte Springs National League All-Stars who are playing in the Little League World Series at Williamsport, Pa.

My dad, Jerrey Thurston, is the manager of the Altamonte National League All-Stars. That puts me in kind of a different position on this team.

The hardest thing about playing for my dad is that I probably get rode the most. My dad knows my abilities and he expects more out of me. If he gives in to me or favors me it's tough because some people might think I'm getting special treatment. That's why I get rode the most, I guess.

But I don't really mind. I know my dad knows baseball and what he says is right. I trust him and I think he makes the right decisions. This team wouldn't have gotten to the World Series if he and the other coaches made wrong decisions.

I guess I'm lucky because I'm a pretty decent ballplayer. If I was sitting on the bench it would probably be harder on my dad as a manager. If he put me in, some people would think he was doing it because I am his son.

This World Series has been a wonderful experience for all of our family, not just my dad and me. It has brought us closer together as a family.

I guess it has been really great for my dad. He was always rapped up in his (insurance) business and that was all he'd do. Baseball has gotten him away from that. He still cares about his business but baseball has become very important too.

It's so funny playing for your father, but it's fun too. I can see how proud he is of me when I get a hit or do something right in the field. That is a great feeling for both of us.

It was definitely a great feeling for everybody when we beat Indiana Thursday. We didn't play as well as we usually do and we weren't hitting the ball at all. I think that was because everybody was trying to kill it.

I was a little nervous going into the sixth inning, but I knew God was on our side. Their pitcher (Kevin Kavanaugh) had a little bit of a curve ball but we weren't waiting for the best pitch. When Chris Radcliff hit that home run though it was a very exciting moment.

Saturday, we play the Far East (Seoul, South Korea) for the championship and that's the way it should be. Everybody seems to think that because they're from the Far East, they have the best team.

But we'll show them. We're going to win Saturday and be champions of the whole World.

With a little luck, a lot of defensive guts and a two-run homer by Chris Radcliff, the Altamonte National League All-Stars moved into the championship game of the Little League World Series by knocking off U.S.A. Central (Southport, Ind.), 4-2, before 14,000 fans at Lamade Field Thursday afternoon.

Altamonte, which represents the U.S.A. South, will play the Far East (Seoul, South Korea) at 4:45 p.m. Saturday. The championship game will be televised live by ABC on Orlando's WFTV Channel 9. The Koreans blasted Canada (Coquitlam, British Columbia) 10-0 in Thursday's second game.

While the Koreans had a cakewalk into the final game, Altamonte had to scratch out its win. Radcliff, who has swung the hottest bat the past two weeks, followed a sixth-inning single by Jimmy Musselwhite with a searing line drive which cleared the right field fence by a foot and snapped a 2-2 tie in the top of the sixth inning.

"Radcliff will rise to the occasion with whatever it takes to be great," said Altamonte batting coach Jim Barfield who worked out some kinks in Radcliff's swing prior to the Southern Regional. "Chris is so strong and quick that he can handle that inside pitch."

Radcliff did that and more. Altamonte was held hitless until the sixth by crafty righthander Kevin Kavanaugh before Musselwhite opened the inning with a solid single to center to snap the no-hitter.

Radcliff looked a two pitches for balls, then cranked his bat around early on an inside fastball. The ball never went more than 12 feet off the ground, but it took a direct route over the fence in mere seconds.

"I knew it was gone," said the 12-year-old centerfielder. "I looked at the foul pole, and it didn't look like it would go foul."

Radcliff, incidentally, was involved in Altamonte's stroke of luck which gave the Nationals a

2-0 first-inning lead. With one out, Jason Variet drew a walk and moved to second when Aaron Iatarola lifted a deep fly into the left field corner for the second out. Musselwhite, who hasn't seen many good pitches since his game-winning homer against California Tuesday, walked to push Variet to second base.

Radcliff then lifted a deep fly ball to right center. Indiana right fielder, Craig Hendrick was settled under the ball ready to make the catch when Brett Detty collided with him. The ball dropped and both Variet and Musselwhite raced around to score for a 2-0 lead. Greg James then lined out to right field for the third out.

The collision was viewed as a godsend by pitching coach Greg Ebbert. "God looked down and said, 'these teams are evenly matched. I think I'll give (Altamonte manager) Jerrey Thurston two runs,'" quipped Ebbert.

The first gummy defensive play came in the bottom of the first inning. Tony Hofman led off with a walk against Iatarola before Detty looked at a third strike and Kavanaugh grounded out to first base as Hofman went to second.

Jason Heck followed with a roller down the third base line for a hit which moved Hofman to third base. With Ryan Bordenacher at the plate, Heck broke for second on the first pitch, then pulled up in the middle of the base path. Catcher Varietk unhesitatingly gunned the ball to shortstop Musselwhite at second base. Seeing the runner stop midway to second, Musselwhite quickly returned a perfect peg to the plate to cut down Hofman and end the inning.

"We had to throw through if the kid (Heck) turned around," said Varietk. "I dropped the ball (on the return throw) but I had the plate blocked. The runner (Hofman) never touched home plate and I got the ball in time to tag him."

Again in the second, Indiana had a mild threat when Mike Eder singled. But Altamonte third baseman Jamey Wallace speared Hendrick's line drive which was headed for left field and tossed to first baseman Danny Albert to double off Eder.

Indiana broke the ice in the third when Dan Boehm reached on an error by Iatarola and moved to second on a wild pitch.

Brinn Simmons dropped a sacrifice bunt which moved Boehm to third with one out.

Hofman followed with a one-hopper back to Iatarola. Iatarola briefly looked the runner back to second, then threw out the hitter. Boehm, who was a stand-out defensively at second base for Indiana, broke as soon as Iatarola turned and beat Albert's throw to the plate with a head first dive to cut the lead to 2-1.

Posey, Nelson Motivate Troops For Upcoming Football Season

Prep Football

By Chris Flater
Herald Sports Writer

The first few weeks of football practice can often be hell. In the blistering summer heat there is a lot of sweating, anguish and soreness as the prep gridders prepare for the 1984 season.

While spring football practice helped the players prepare for the fall, the coaches will now try to mold their teams into shape for the Sept. 7 (or 14 in Lake Mary's case) kickoff. The coaches' motivation is a key at this point and Seminole High's Jerry Posey and Lake Mary's Harry Nelson are two of the best.

Posey is optimistic about the 1984 season as the Tribe as show a lot of promise in the last few weeks of practice. Seminole opens the season on Friday, Sept. 7 at Titusville Astronaut.

"Practice has been very encouraging," Posey said. "We'll pick up the intensity a little more next week and some time we'll get in a good scrimmage. This week we concentrated on getting the basic offense to work and I was pleased with what I saw."

The offensive backfield has been impressive so far according to Posey and Seminole has some good backs returning led by Cliff Campbell, Dexter Jones, Daryl Edgemon and Jo Jo McCloud. Posey said Mike Whelchel has also been sharp at quarterback.

A promising newcomer to the backfield is Brian Brinson, the nephew of defensive standout Fred Brinson. Brian Brinson recently moved to Sanford from New York.

"He shows a lot of potential," Posey said of Brinson. "He's just stepping in so it will take some time for him to adjust but he has possibilities."

Offensive linemen who have looked good in practice are Strickland Smith, a center, and Danny Stone, a tackle. The Tribe is also trying out some defensive players on the offensive line including Tony Cox and Anthony Hall.

"Our biggest problem is a lack of depth," Posey said. "But we're starting to work with some kids both ways."

On the defensive line, Hall and Cox along with Fred Brinson and Walt Lowry have looked good. Coach Roger Mosure has also been pleased with linebacker Mike Debose.

Roger Beathard will be the defensive backfield coach this year and Posey said he has been impressed with Dexter Franklin and also Brian Brinson. Campbell and Jones may also see some action in the defensive backfield.

Seminole has a few other newcomers to the team (two players have transferred in from the Virgin Islands) but those players will take a while to adjust to the system while those who were out in the spring already know it.

"One good thing about the spring is that you come back in the fall, just go over a review and you're ready to go. The new kids will be behind for a while but they will contribute."

The Seminoles will devote one day this coming week to a scrimmage game and then start concentrating on Titusville Astronaut.

At Lake Mary High, Nelson has been pleased, to say the least, about the progress of the Rams.

"We're pitching, throwing, tackling and running," Nelson said. "We look like something from outer space."

Nelson doesn't need a spaceship or a towner (ala Bear Bryant) to be high on the Rams. He has an outstanding crop of returning players from last year's 6-4 team and Lake Mary will be ready for its season opener on Friday, Sept. 14, against DeLand at Lake Mary High.

On offense, the linemen have dug in hard this fall and Nelson likes what he sees in the likes of Jay Gilliland (245 pounds) and Mike Galavani (250 pounds) along with Anthony DeRocco, David Cox and Scott McCaskill.

"You could call them the fat bellies," Nelson said. "But they've been working really hard."

The offensive backfield has also looked good in practice as returnees Charlie Lucarelli and Scott Underwood lead the way. Lake Mary will also have fleet-footed Pat Murray back and defensive standout Bill Caughell will see some action at fullback.

Nelson said the defense is also looking a lot better. Defensive standouts in fall drills include Darrin Washington, Marty Hopkins, Walter White, John Roberts, Byron Washington and Ray Hartsfield.

A few players from the Altamonte Springs Senior League baseball team, which won the World Series, are also out for fall practice. "We've got the baseball bunch back and they're looking good," Nelson said.

The baseball bunch includes Mike Schmit, Ryan Lisle, Sean Flaherty and Shane Letterio.

Lake Mary will play Lake Howell in a preseason jamboree on Friday, Aug. 31 at Lake Howell High. The Rams will play the Silver Hawks in one half while Lake Brantley will meet DeLand in one half.

Soccer Club Registration On Saturday

The Sanford Soccer Club will hold its final registration for the fall season on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Pinecrest Elementary School.

Registration is open to boys and girls ages 8-18 and players do not have to be present when a parent registers them.

PONY BASEBALL MEETS

Seminole Pony Baseball Inc. will hold an organizational meeting Saturday at 2 p.m. at the Five Points complex. Anyone interested in the Seminole Pony Baseball program is welcome to attend.

SYDNEY MARKET

The Seminole Youth Sports Association (SYSA) will hold its Football Flea Market Saturday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Eastmonte Civic Center in Altamonte Springs. Registration for the 1984 season will also be held.

Motivators

Lake Mary coach Harry "The Ram" Nelson (top photo) takes a deep, deep drop and unloads a pass. Nelson is prepping the Rams for its season opener against the DeLand Bulldogs on Friday, Sept. 14 at Lake Mary. Lake Mary will also be in a preseason jamboree on Friday, Aug. 31, at Lake Howell. Seminole Moves Into Tie Second In NL West

Editor's Note: This installation of Schedules, Schedule Lyman high school Schedules for High School calendar

(UPI) — The standings and the tie clearly indicate that the Houston Astros have virtually no chance of winning the National League West pennant.

But impossible is hardly a word one should associate with a city that once landed a man the moon.

Right now the Astros are hotter than a roe engine. They defeated the St. Louis Cardinals Thursday night in Houston for their 11th victory in the last 13 games and have moved into a tie for second place with Atlanta in the NL West.

That's the good news. The bad news is they trail the San Diego Padres by 10 games with only 53 remaining.

"We're in second place now, and although it's a longshot, we can see the light at the end of the tunnel," said winning relief pitcher Dave Smith. "There's always hope until we're mathematically eliminated. Stranger things have happened."

Terry Puhl triggered the victory by collecting three hits, including a homer, and driving in three runs. Puhl singled home two runs in the fourth inning and belted a solo homer to trigger a two-run fifth.

Puhl led off the fifth with his seventh home run of the season and the Astros tied the score later in the inning when Denny Walling beat out an infield hit, stole second and scored on Phil Garner's single.

Blue Jays 6, Indians 1

At Toronto, George Bell drove in two runs and scored twice to support Doyle Alexander's four-hitter as the Blue Jays snapped Cleveland's eight-game winning streak. Bell's double in the fifth inning drove in Lloyd Moseby from first and his sixth-inning single drove in Ernie Whit from second to key the Blue Jays' 11-hit attack. Alexander, 12-5, had a two-hitter through the first seven innings before Cleveland nicked him for its only run in the eighth.

Brewers 5, Twins 2

At Milwaukee, Bill Schroeder and Mark Brouhard cracked solo home runs to back the six-hit pitching of Bob McClure as the Brewers broke a five-game losing streak. Frank Viola, 14-11, suffered the loss. Gary Gaetti homered for Minnesota.

Lansford Unimpressed With Hitting Streak

OAKLAND (UPI) — Seems like everyone was impressed with Carney Lansford's 24-game hitting streak — except Lansford himself.

The Oakland third baseman, whose streak was halted Wednesday night after an 0-for-5 performance against Detroit, was more concerned with his club's increasingly improbable task of climbing into the thick of the AL West pennant race.

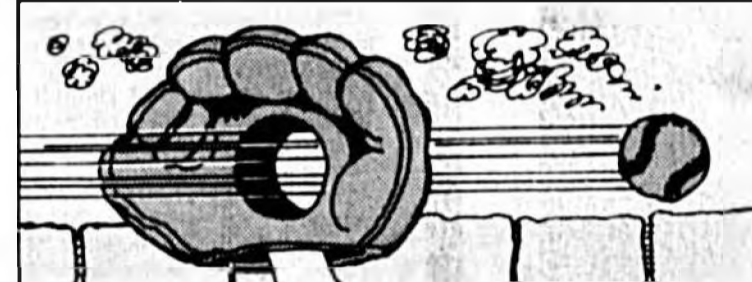

"Before the game and at bat with the situation we're in, all I think about is what has to be done then," says Lansford, co-owner of the season's longest hitting string with Hubie Brooks of the New York Mets. He is well aware that a hot streak by his club could suddenly move the A's into the thick of the American League West race.

However, the A's trail Minnesota by 8 1/2 games after losing their last five contests.

"If we need a sacrifice fly, I'm going to try for a sacrifice fly," he says. "If we need to move a guy over to second with none out, that's what I'm going to do."

"There's still five or six weeks left in the season, so anything can happen. Minnesota has to play some tough teams, so has California and Chicago. It's not going to be easy for anybody."

since Lansford appeared in only 80 games in an injury-riddled 1983 season while Armas has clubbed over 85 homers since donning a Boston uniform.

But you won't see Lansford scanning the boxscores to compare himself with Armas.

"No, I don't do that," he says. "There were different needs in that trade. Boston, with their salary structure, has let quite a few players go. Unless you're one of a very few over there, they're just not going to pay what I takes to keep great ballplayers around."

"I can't see (soon-to-be free agent Jim) Rice staying there. Burleson, Lynn, Flak, those guys are all gone. That's the way they run their ballclub, and they have the right to do that."

And with every right to thrash opposing pitchers, that's just what Lansford has been doing.

No-Putt Lietzke Leads At Akron

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Golfers talk about two-putt greens. They rave about one-putt greens. But when it comes to no-putt greens, even a "motor mouth" like Bruce Lietzke is rendered speechless.

"I thought my putting was miraculous, but that eagle on the second hole must have come from up above," he said. "These one-putt greens are great, but these no-putt ones are chillers. Even I couldn't find words."

Neither did the rest of the 42-man field at the $700,000 World Series of Golf, save for a few mutters and a groan or two.

There were none of those for Lietzke in the first round. The 33-year-old winner of 10 PGA Tour events needed only 10 putts on the front nine and was helped "virtually immeasurably" by a 111-yard wedge that bounced in for an eagle on the 497-yard, par-5 second hole of the par-70, 7,173-yard Firestone Country Club course.

Lietzke pushed his drive into a fairway trap and got out with a 3-iron. He followed with a pitching wedge, and the ball dropped in for an eagle on the second bounce.

Eight Finalists Set For Future Champions Stake Race

The eight finalists in the $15,000 Super Seminole Future Champions Stake Race to be run Saturday night has been decided.

On Tuesday, Tom Blayney (Super Seminole General Manager) put on a luncheon for the owners, trainers and three press to draw for post positions for the Saturday night race.

Racing Secretary, Garry Duell announced the top eight greyhounds. The leader with 74 1/2 points in Super Jumper from the Jordan Kennel. Super Jumper is followed by Been Gonna (64 points) from the Strong Kennel; Pyramid Choya (62 points) from the Charter Kennel; Sirius Scrambler (59 points) from the Mathias Kennel; RO's Ebony (55 1/2 points) from the Andrews Kennel; Lasting Charm (54 points) from the

in the race, she weighs in at 58 pounds.

Dino Patrick, with knees knocking as he stood before his rivals, had the magic touch as he pulled the number one hole for Pyramid Choya. Pyramid weighs 63 pounds and has early speed and likes the rail.

Robert Lealle, working for Strong Kennel, drew third for Meter Box and he too was blessed with charm as he pulled the eight hole for him. All of his wins have been from the outside. He is the heaviest greyhound in the race at 73 pounds.

Sabrina Bladen picked fourth for Super Dice and she picked the four box, so the 63 pound Dice, with seven wins to his credit, should do alright.

Sean Small wanted the number two or three hole when he picked, but drew the six hole open, she wanted to be inside of Sirius Scrambler. She drew the five box next to Scrambler. Martha's entry is the third female in the race and also the lightest at 55 pounds. RO's Ebony has early speed and either she or Sirius should hit the first turn on top.

David Strong, who trained last year's winner Rooster's Spur, wanted inside and by default he got inside. You could tell by the grin on his face he liked the post for Been Gonna.

All in all, it should be on super race. My pick is Been Gonna with Super Jumper second and Meter Box the long shot.

Can any of these eight greyhounds do as well as My Unicorn, Rowdy Texan and Rooster's Spur? Only time can tell, but we feel they will find their place in the sun. — Happy Icon

Indiana used some more daring baserunning to tie the game in the fourth. Kavanaugh singled up the middle to open the frame and moved to second on another wild pitch. One out later, Bordenkecher hit a come-backer to Iatarola, who tossed to Albert for the second out. Kavanaugh, however, broke for third on the play and, when Albert threw the ball in the dirt, it bounced past third baseman Wallace allowing the tying run to score.

"We had some defensive lapses, but the kids came back to make the plays later," said manager Thurston. "That's the mark of a good team when it can make a physical mistake then come back and make the same plays."

One of the biggest and gutsiest plays came in the fifth. With one out, Boehm drew a walk and moved to second when Simmons beat out a bunt single down the third base line. Hofman then forced Simmons at second for out number two, leaving runners at the corners.

With Detty at the plate, Hofman broke for second base. This time, however, Varitek gunned the ball to Musselwhite who was breaking toward the middle of the diamond while keeping an eye on the runner at third base. Musselwhite snatched the throw from Varitek and whipped it to Wallace at third. Boehm had strayed too far. Wallace slapped on the tag for the third out of the inning.

"That play was set up perfectly by the one in the first inning," said Thurston. "They thought that we would throw through like we did before. But we fooled them."

That kid (Boehm) had ants in his pants. He knew he was going home when Varitek released the ball. The kids played it perfectly."

The defensive gem seemed to pick up the Nationals as a similar play did Tuesday. "I knew when Musselwhite singled

Menopause Not Always Marked By Symptoms

DEAR DR. LAMB — My gynecologist is not giving me a satisfactory answer to this question. At age 31, I had a total hysterectomy. I am now 37. I have had no adverse or unusual symptoms and I do not take hormones. My gynecologist said I should let her know if I get depressed hot flashes.

I am in excellent physical condition and really feel wonderful. My question is, will I go through the menopause? At what age? What should I expect to have happen to my body?

DEAR READER — Your lack of symptoms even though you are early age for your hysterectomy suggest that your uterus was removed but your ovaries were left in. You should find out if this is true.

If it is, your ovaries are functioning just like those of any other young woman, unless you have or had some form of ovarian disease. Your ovaries will put out a stop in time, just like those of other women, when you reach menopause. The age of onset does vary.

Unlike most women, you won't see any change in menstrual periods, since you don't have a uterus, but if you have your ovaries, they are still on a regular cycle.

Not every woman has symptoms with the menopause, other than the change in menstrual periods. That may be because the adrenal gland produces enough estrogen to prevent the symptoms so many women experience.

DEAR DR. LAMB — At an early age, my boyfriend was told he had a heart murmur. His parents were told that he would outgrow it. On occasion, he has experienced a sharp chest pain and a slight shortness of breath which momentarily has forced him to pause and wait for it to pass. When he had a physical for a job, the physician detected the heart murmur, but noted he was in fine physical shape. Now he is concerned about this pain and is considering consulting a cardiologist. We would greatly appreciate your advice.

DEAR READER — By all means, have him see a cardiologist. He will be much happier knowing what the murmuring sound really is. I must tell you that many individuals really in top physical condition have heart murmurs. The Attamonte Springs County Commissioner and her Teresa Coker. They gathered for a dent Ronald Lamb destiny right and to speech on heart normally enlarges as it responds to vigorous sustained exercise. Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Would you say your bridge team is in good form if they bid and make six no-trump in one room, while in the other room their teammates defeat a contract of four no-trump? That's what happened to Malcolm Brachman's team last May in Memphis, and that's part of the reason that the team of Brachman, Anderson, Wolff, Hamman, Goldman and Soloway will represent the United States in the World Team Olympiad in Seattle (Oct. 27 to Nov. 10).

As the cards lay, there was no defense against six no-trump. North was declarer and could not be prevented from reaching dummy with the queen of spades. If clubs were attacked on opening lead, declarer would have no choice but to go up with the queen and pray.

At the other table, Brachman's opponents stopped at four no-trump. North was declarer and the opening lead was the deuce of clubs. In four no-trump declarer had choices. He played low and West's 10 forced declarer's ace. Now North played the A-K of diamonds and a low spade toward dummy. East stepped up with the spade ace and played a low club. Sure, we can see that it's right to go up with the queen, but we won't take away declarer's World Pair Championship Cup for misguessing this one. Nevertheless, four no-trump went down one; in the other room, six no-trump made. Call it lucky if you will. It was clear that the Brachman team would be successful in their quest to represent the United States this fall.

Gardening

Get Ready For Fall Season

Where did the summer go? It seems like the vacation season just began. But schools start next week, and it's time, too, to begin thinking about the fall gardening season. You should be planning and taking care of some of the preliminary chores right now. You need to take paper and pencil in hand and actually make a detailed, scaled diagram of your vegetable garden. Be sure you have chosen a spot that receives full sun all day, or at least most of the day.

Include in your plan the location of each crop, the amount to be planted, the planting date, and the variety of each vegetable you intend to grow. Try to plan your garden so crops that will be planted on about the same date, and reach maturity at about the same time, are close together. By setting up different groups, or blocks, within the garden, you'll be able to keep the whole garden in production as much as possible.

Within each block, arrange crops by plant size. Put your low-growing vegetables, like radishes, turnips, mustard and lettuce along one side. Plant medium-height vegetables, such as peppers, squash and bush beans, in the middle and plant tall growing ones, such as staked tomatoes, sweet corn and pole beans, along the other side. This way, you avoid having the low-growing plants stuck in the shade of the taller plants. Be sure you run your rows north and south, so each row will receive about the same amount of sunshine.

Try interplanting. If you're ambitious, a fast growing crop, such as radishes, can be planted with a slow growing crop. The radishes would be picked before the slower maturing plants need the space.

And, don't plant too much of one crop at a time — especially those vegetables that must be eaten shortly after harvest. It's better to plant smaller amounts of the same crop at 10 to 14 day intervals. You can prolong the season for a crop by planting two or more varieties that have different maturity dates, too.

Alfred Bessen
Urban Horticulturist

Ext. 181

Design your garden so you can rotate crops from year to year. If you avoid growing the same crop, or the same type of crop, in the same spot more than once every three years, you may reduce the build-up of soilborne diseases which can reduce yields, and at the worst, kill the plants.

Whether to use seeds or transplants is a very important decision for you to make when planning your garden. You can be successful with either. Both have their advantages and disadvantages.

One advantage of transplants is an early start. You'll be several weeks ahead of gardeners who start with seeds. You can grow your own or purchase the plants from your favorite garden shop. Another advantage is that it allows you to choose only the best plants. And, it's easier to start from transplants — especially if you only need a few. If you have a small garden plot, using transplants is more practical, and you can minimize seedling decay problems.

The main disadvantage in using transplants is that the cost would mount up quickly if you bought seedlings for a large garden. Also, some crops are hard to transplant successfully. Beans, corn, cukes, and turnips do better if they're started from seeds directly in the garden.

If you're raising your own transplants, they should be ready for the garden when they're four to six weeks old. Those you buy usually are ready to set out immediately. If the seedlings are in individual containers, moisten the soil before removing them. If they're growing in peat pots or pellets, insert them, pot an all, directly into the soil. Don't try to remove the plants from the pellets.

The best time to set out transplants are: right after a rain, when it's cloudy, or in the late afternoon. Handle the plants gently, and don't press the soil too tightly around the roots. After setting the plants, carefully pour a little water to each plant to help settle the soil. Then cover the wet area with a little dry soil to reduce evaporation.

To give transplants a quick start, apply a starter fertilizer solution. You can buy it ready mixed, or you can make your own. For best results, mix one or two tablespoons of a high phosphate fertilizer — like a 10-50-10, in a gallon of water. Or, you can use an ordinary all-purpose fertilizer, like a 6-8-6. Just pour about a pint of the mixture into each hole as you set the plants.

A good garden design and the proper decision on whether to use seeds or transplants can really increase your chances of producing a successful garden. When you're finished making your plans, it's time to get out the spade and go to work.

Happy Gardening!

Spiritual Reader Draining Woman

DEAR ABBY: Last week I went to a spiritual reader who is supposed to have the power to tell you your past, your future and to make your dreams come true. I was told she charged $20, which was fine with me.

After the first reading, she asked me for another $20 so she could burn a candle to bring back my first love, which was something I have been praying and praying for. I gave her another $20 and she told me to come back in a week.

Well, I went back last night, and she said she would have to have another $50 because the evil spirits blew out the first candle and she would have to light another one to bring back my first love.

I told her that I was not a rich woman and that was all the cash I had, so she asked me to leave my VISA card with her so she could buy something for the church in my name. She said that would help bring back my first love. Something told me not to leave it, so I didn't.

I feel like I am being drained me. I hope this isn't too long for your column. It could help other women who think therapists can do no wrong.

Dear Abby

ANOTHER VICTIM
DEAR VICTIM: You say "He's still out there." Why should he go unpunished, free to do to other women what he did to you? If you haven't let him know that you are wise to him now, please consider it. It may not be too late to report his unprofessional conduct to the proper authorities.

DEAR ABBY: Every now and then I find myself complaining because I'm too busy, don't have enough income, our married children live too far away, we have only one grandchild, etc.

I will soon be 64 and am fit as a fiddle. I still shovel snow with the biggest shovel I can find — like the one I used when I was a young man in South Dakota shoveling ear corn after a day of stooping over, handpicking corn in the big fields.

Recently I came upon a box of clippings I'd saved for years, and when I read this letter I had clipped from your column it made me ashamed for complaining. It's dated 1965.

I hope you think it's worth a rerun. I certainly do.

GERALD GIVING, FORMER PASTOR

DEAR MR. GIVING: (What an appropriate name.) I agree, it's worth a rerun:

DEAR MRS. CLEAN: Tell him? You would be doing him an enormous favor. If the cause is internal, he needs to see his physician. If it's external, he needs to know that if he doesn't clean up his act, it's curtains for his social life.

DEAR ABBY: Relevant to "Big Busted in Birmingham:" Her fiancé wanted to start a chicken farm but was too cheap to buy an incubator, so he asked "B.B." to hatch the eggs in her bra.

Had she gone along with the idea, she would have created the first real living bra. Can you imagine a more logical candidate for the broody hatch?

H.N.D., QUINCY, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: Your letter warning women about unethical psycho-therapists was excellent. I'm saving it. I was a victim 15 years ago. He's still out there practicing.

It might help to warn others that many unethical therapists have excellent "lines." He ignored my real problem and kept steering out conversations to back to sex. He asked me to write down my sexual fantasies and he even loaned me a book of erotic stories that he asked me to discuss with him. Then he asked me if he could come to my home to see me. (My husband was overseas.) How dumb I was!

After he got what he wanted, he dropped me. I felt guilty for seven years because he made me believe that I had instigated it.

Another therapist was able to help me face my real problem, which has nothing to do with sex. (I had been raised by a domineering, mentally sick mother.) The second therapist also helped me deal with this sicko who had subtly seduced with grown children.) He's a retired military officer, very intelligent and sensible. He's a wonderful company and I know he's interested in me; however, there's one problem. He smells. He looks very clean and neat, but he has a sweaty, disagreeable odor about him.

He wants to see me again, and I would like to see him — but only if he bathes. Should I tell him he has a problem? Or should I just forget about him?

No Rising Stars

Please, Call Off 'Search'

By David Handler

I know people who absolutely will not leave home the night "Star Search" is on. This syndicated amateur hour has a powerful — if campy — appeal. For me it's hard to see why.

Each week a tuxedo-clad Ed McMahon presides over a contest that pits one young performer against another in a specific category. There are face-offs between budding TV models, comics, musical groups, vocalists, dance teams and actors.

They get a chance to strut their stuff. A panel of judges from the talent industry votes. The winner gets $2,000 and goes on to the next week of competition.

Eventually there are semifinals and then a glittering grand finale extravaganza, with each category winner bagging $100,000.

As it gets closer and closer to that big final round, Ed confesses, "You can really feel the pressure around here."

You can also feel the desperation. These are marginally talented people. Amateurs. Few will go on to show biz careers. This isn't my idea of entertainment. I don't get off on watching people chase their impossible dream. It's depressing.

I don't want to watch bad rock groups with names like Strox. Or bad vocalists who sound as if they're about to wrench loose an important internal organ.

Spare me the mildly pretty women trying to strike seductive model poses and read cue cards smoothly. Likewise the dance couples with frozen grins and shiny costumes and names like Ron & Liz or Diane & Paul.

I don't care to watch bad actors perform little scenes with big-time talents such as Greg Evigan and Joan Van Ark. (We're talking shades of high school drama class in this particular category. We're talking so bad you can barely tell who is the pro and who is the amateur.)

And I especially don't want to watch frantic young comics offering up "humorous" looks at earthquakes and plane crashes and Japanese horror movies. I mean, you can see the flop sweat forming on their foreheads.

If I go to the trouble of watching television I want to watch talent that is of a professional caliber. "Star Search" is nothing more than a way of packaging and exploiting talent that would otherwise be weeded out on the way up.

Deal me out.

Mr. T Being Sued By Brother

CHICAGO (UPI) — Television actor Mr. T is being sued by his brother, a Chicago police officer who claims he was fired as a bodyguard for the star of "The A-Team" series before his contract expired.

Gustav J. Tero filed suit in Cook County Circuit Court Tuesday, seeking $72,000 in back pay and damages, said attorney Lewis R. Shapiro.

Tero, who was fired as his brother's bodyguard in April, went back to work as a police officer "a few days ago."

Folk Art

Produced in the 1800s by an artist who worked on paper with pastels, this pudgy, flat-faced tyke recently turned up in a Maitland antique shop wearing a $350 price tag.

The Simple Joys Of American Folk Art

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

If stored away in the corner of a closet or up in the attic is a portrait of your ancestors who look as if they had been flattened with a rolling pin, there's no need to fear you have that flat look in your genes.

The steam-rolled effect can be attributed to the eye and skill of the untrained artist who produced that picture probably in the 18th or 19th century. And the simplistic style, distorted perspective and lack of sophistication, could mean you have a one-of-a-kind object of folk art — one a collector might pay a surprising sum to take out of the attic and off your hands.

If you have been ashamed to show off those flat-faced relations, you may be even more embarrassed, or perhaps relieved, to learn that the roly-polly bodies their heads are painted on may not even be their own.

"They were done by traveling artists and were rarely signed," according to Maitland antiques dealer Dee Johnson. "They would travel in the summer and paint the faces onto canvases on which they had painted standardized bodies in the winter."

That saved time for the artists, who catered almost solely to the middle class, says Orlando antiques appraiser Harriet Cordell.

"The rich could afford to have portraits done by trained artists, but the average family would have been privileged to have had a portrait painted by one of these self-taught artists," Mrs. Cordell said.

"They are records of an era, the 18th and 19th centuries. This type of portrait went out of style when photography became popular, but before that it was the only record of this type that the middle class could afford," she said.

The artists usually worked in oils and tempera, sometimes on wood or fabric and occasionally with pastels on paper. The simplistic backgrounds and the focus of detail primarily on the faces of the subjects, even those whose portraits feature their own bodies, give the pictures an abstract, geometric air that is probably a link between the clean lines of modern art and the primitive works of the pre-historic artists, Mrs. Cordell said.

"They're all rooted in the same idea," she said.

adding that primitive artistic expression carried over into many of the useful and decorative items produced by individuals for their own use in the 1700s and 1800s. And those simple items, if they can be found, will intrigue today's folk art collector.

Folk art began attracting attention in the early 20th century as modern art was beginning to develop, but examples of folk art are hard to find in Florida.

"People only brought their finer things with them when they came to Florida. The folk art items were probably seen as junk and were left behind," Longwood antiques dealer Betty Jo McLeod theorized.

Folk art items are no longer considered junk. They hold places of honor in our museums including the Smithsonian Institution and they also command top dollar from collectors.

"If you want to collect folk art your life will be a lot easier if you are in New England," Mrs. Cordell said. That's where most folk art finds are made these days. But even there it wouldn't be easy to create or add to

Antiquities Unearthed During Modernization Of Louvre

PARIS (UPI) — Custodians of the Louvre, already the world's biggest museum, have dug up a new trove of medieval treasures. Literally.

Archeologists are digging up the grounds of the former palace turned museum and are unearthing hundreds of artifacts, from fortress walls to shoe soles.

At one dig site a 12th century fortress and dungeon built by King Philippe Auguste have been uncovered.

By the end of 1985, visitors will be invited into the hole to scrutinize from eight yards under ground level, in the former castle moat, the bases of two ancient towers and a roomy dungeon.

Archeologists say there were two other fortress towers, but their remains will stay buried below the rambling structure of today's Louvre museum.

"The history of the Louvre Palace is not as well known as it should be," Culture Minister Jack Lang said while touring the sites that will eventually give a real-life history of the palace.

The history of the Louvre, in part, is the history of France, since both the "modern" Louvre and its heavy stone predecessor were seats of French rulers.

Monarchs and emperors razed and rebuilt at their pleasure. The present-day museum took more than 300 years to complete, starting with the ambitious designs of Pierre LeScot.

The final touch, sprawling gardens around the Louvre today, are the result of a bomb hurled at the palace on Christmas Eve, 1800.

The blast and resulting fire destroyed 46 houses and killed 10 people but just missed its target — master of the palace, Napoleon I.

Napoleon promptly demolished the surrounding neighborhood and expanded the palace grounds to give himself a wider berth from the rowdy populace.

The area became the Napoleon Courtyard. But remains of the bustling neighborhood razed to make room for it are once again seeing the light of day — ironically, because of a controversial project to yet again modernize the Louvre.

As 100 workers have excavated to build a futuristic glass pyramid that will form a new entrance to the Louvre, they have uncovered a potpourri of everyday medieval artifacts.

They found shoe soles, game dice and even a piece of oriental Ming china — which pyramid architect I.M. Pei has deemed of inferior export quality.

Archeologists have found the once densely populated area had all the services of any medieval neighborhood, including a street reserved for prostitutes. The bones of sheep sold at an open market give more clues to downtown Paris.

There Was A Full Menu Of 'Little Rascals'

DEAR DICK: Please settle a dispute over the number of "Our Gang" ("Little Rascals") episodes that were produced. I think there were over 15 but my friend says there were only between 10 and 15. A nice dinner awaits the outcome of this dispute. — C.M., Amarillo, Texas

Eat hearty! Your friend is so far off he might as well be on another planet. Those episodes — they started out as movie short subjects — were produced at roughly the rate of nine a year for some 15 years. The first was "Small Talk" in 1929, the last was "Dancing Romeo" in 1944. The grand total: 132.

DEAR DICK: We recently saw the movie "Dreams Don't Die," starring Ike Eisenmann and Paul Winfield, on TV. Can you tell me if he (Paul Winfield) is family, or is that just his stage name? I would appreciate other information about him. — R.A.W., Walkerville, Mich.

I guess you'd have to call him family, since he was born Paul Winfield, the son of Clarence Winfield. He's a Los Angeles native, and he's been a professional actor — and a good one — ever since his college days, some 20 years now.

DEAR DICK: My sisters have a disagreement about where "Hill Street Blues" is filmed. One says New York, the other says Chicago. — Mrs. R.E.M., Springfield, Mo.

The one who kept quiet is right. It is shot, almost entirely, in Los Angeles. A few opening shots were done in Chicago, but 99 percent of it is filmed in and around L.A.

Ask Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: I would like to know how someone could obtain a copy of the graduation speech that Philip Spaulding (Grant Aleksander) of "Guiding Light" recently used. — L.R., Gering, Neb.

Several readers inquired about that speech. You can get a copy from Gail Kobe, executive producer of "Guiding Light." Write to her at CBS, 51 West 52nd St., New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DICK: Can you tell me if Paul Newman is related to Robert Newman, who plays Josh Lewis on the soap "Guiding Light"? I have noticed that they both have those beautiful light blue eyes. — J.L.B., Erie, Pa.

Similar eyes do not a relative make. Those Newmans are unrelated.

DEAR DICK: On "Another World," there is a nurse named Emily Benson. She played a character on "Texas." She had a friend by the name of Lurlene, and I cannot remember her name. Could you please help me find her name?

— C.R., New Albany, Ind.

Lurlene Harper was played by an actress named Tina Johnson.

DEAR DICK: Did Blaine on "Another World" actually have a baby in real life? She looked like she was really pregnant and was replaced for about six weeks. — C.L.P., Maryville, Tenn.

Yes, Laura Malone, the actress who plays Blaine, did actually have a genuine baby.

DEAR DICK: Please settle an argument for a group of us — some say The Village People have disbanded. Some say not. What has become of them? Any more records? — B.B., Kingston, Tenn.

Curiously, nobody seems to know for sure what happened to them. They last recorded for RCA, and an RCA spokeswoman says she believes the original group has disbanded, but she can't say that absolutely positively. All she knows is that nobody at RCA has heard from them for quite awhile.

DEAR DICK: I would like to know what they call the dog on "Family Ties." I say it is Boo Boo. My friend says it is Oo Boo or Ka Boo. Please tell us the name of the dog because we have fought about it for a long time. — L.P., Mount Holly, N.J.

Your friend is a lot closer. The dog's name is Ubu (that's the way he spells it). It is a big name on that show, because Ubu is the name of the production company that makes the show. Both the dog and the production company were named after Ubu, who is producer Gary Goldberg's dog.

Basically a self-taught artist who never attained a thorough knowledge of anatomy, Erastus Sallsbury Field (1805-1900), like other itinerant "folk" artists, made portrait painting a lucrative career before the advent of photography. Field painted "Mrs. Paul Smith Palmer and Her Twins" around 1836.

a collection of weather vanes, hand-stitched samplers, quilts or dolls, carved wooden items including decoys and toys, pottery, stoneware, or any of the other useful items that craftsmen of a bygone era, usually unwittingly, transformed into what are now considered works of art.

The person who covets folk art must of necessity become something of a sleuth, scouring antique shops and auction houses to ferret out a find. And even if you find what you think may be a treasure, it could be fake, Mrs. Cordell said.

To avoid being bilked, she advises that you know who you are dealing with and if you aren't knowledgeable enough to evaluate the item, have it examined by an expert before paying what could be a hefty price for something you have doubts about.

To be classified folk art, Mrs. Cordell said, an item "can't have been mass produced and cannot have been made for commercial use except for signs or similar items that might have been made one-of-a-kind for a single commercial user.

"Most of these things were made for use in their own homes and the artistic elements were added for their own pleasure," she said.

And in most cases, Mrs. Cordell said, the greater the skill of the craftsman the greater the value his work holds today, although the value of some items is determined by condition and/or rarity.

And just how valuable is valuable? Mrs. Cordell said she attended an auction in New York two years ago where a folk art portrait of a pregnant lady sold for $2,750. The matching picture of her husband, both 11½-by-8½ inches and painted in 1820, brought $2,420.

At that same sale, she also saw a hooked rug featuring a farm scene sell for $1,300. And a handcarved and painted wooden bowl from the 18th century brought $4,675.

It's enough to give you doubts about ever throwing anything away and might even make you shed a few tears over things you've already discarded, Mrs. Cordell said.

So, if you're one of those with portraits of roly-poly ancestors hidden away in a closet or up in the attic, it may be time to take a second look at those crude creations. Maybe they belong on your wall, in a museum or perhaps even in a vault.

Fall Kills Breakdancer

BASSETERRE, St. Kitts (UPI) — A man doing a complicated breakdance routine died after he fell and dislocated his neck, police said.

Trevor Watley, a 27-year-old cane cutter, died Monday after a dance session Sunday on the beach in his village with friends, police said Wednesday.

Witnesses from the village of Manalon on the Caribbean island said Watley had been practicing acrobatic stunts included in his break-dancing routine.

Hearing Impaired Can Enjoy TV Without Blasting Family

By Julianne Hastings
UPI TV Reporter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Just about everyone knows someone — maybe a usually considerate and loving parent or grandparent — who sits down in front of a TV set and turns the volume up so loud the rest of the family runs for cover.

Howard Stone, president of Self Help for Hard of Hearing People Inc. (SHHH), tells a story about Walter Ridder, national editor of Knight-Ridder Newspapers, who told him his family deserted him every time he tried to watch television.

The volume was driving them crazy.

Stone's non-profit organization, based in Bethesda, Md., told Ridder how to use an audio loop, a device that enabled him to turn the TV volume down so low, his family had to start turning it up to listen.

"They're all watching TV together again," Stone said.

The exact figure is almost impossible to determine, but federal agencies estimate there are 20 million hearing impaired people in America.

Of that number, some 17 million — those that are not totally deaf — can be helped by several hearing improvement systems now on the market.

One of the newest systems that works for people suffering moderate to severe hearing loss is the infrared system.

It has been sold in this country for several years by two overseas companies, Sennheiser of West German and Oticon of Denmark, and it now also is being manufactured by an American firm, Controlonics Corp. of Westford, Mass.

John Vecchione, director of marketing for Controlonics, said his company's home-use system takes two minutes to install.

"It plugs into normal wiring, a small mike is placed on the television set and wired into a transmitter," he said.

The transmitter uses invisible light waves to send audio to a receiver that comes in two models — a stethoscope-type headset or a lightweight strap that is worn around the neck.

"The strap is more comfortable and convenient, but the stethoscope receives more decibels, making it better for those who are more seriously deaf," Vecchione said.

Vecchione said the entire home system costs $199-$225 and can be installed by the customer.

The home receivers also can be taken to one of more than 100 theaters and cultural centers in the country — including Washington's National Theater and New York's Lincoln Center — that now are equipped with sound improvement systems.

Stone said Sennheiser first developed the infrared system in 1979 for theatergoers in Europe who were bothered by rustling paper, children and coughers. Then the company started making the home-use system.

Controlonics has been manufacturing the home-use system for about a year and it began manufacturing a wide-area system a few months ago that can serve up to 4,000 square feet in theaters, hospitals and nursing homes.

Vecchione said there still is a problem in marketing the devices — many people don't admit to having a hearing problem because they fear it will mark them as handicapped.

"There is a big denial problem," said Stone, who is almost totally deaf. "There seems to be a stigma attached to hearing loss. People still get away with ridiculing an aging, hearing-impaired person."

Stone said that on the average, a person experiences hearing difficulties for seven years before admitting there's a problem.
