Deficit exploding

Economy, growth fuel county red ink

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — It is about to cost a lot more to live in Seminole County — dramatically more costly.

What was first thought to be about a $100 million deficit during the next five years blossomed, no, exploded into a $188.4 million deficit Monday. County planners cited declining state revenues and a major drainage program were the main contributors to the increase over the $98 million shortfall announced two weeks ago.

Commissioners will decide whether to proceed with the plan Dec. 17 at 10 a.m.

As a result of that deficit, property taxes are expected to increase as much if not more than this year's one-mil increase, there may be new property fee to drain neighborhoods, commissioners may charge a utility tax and ask voters to increase the sales tax a penny for the next 15 to 20 years.

Two state lawmakers told commissioners Monday not to count on the state to create new gas taxes or other revenues to help the county out of the bind. In fact, land and homes in the county have been sold too cheaply and have not paid for the services required for the new residents in them, one lawmaker said.

Combined with a skittish economy and uncertainty about war in the Middle East, the county's fiscal outlook is clouding over.

"I don't think it can get any worse," said county commission chairman Fred Streetman. "We're talking about millage rates here that we've never talked about before. We are selling levels of service we wish weren't so low. But we've had to set them because we couldn't afford something else. Indeed, we can't afford this."

The state has required counties to determine what standard of living will be acceptable to its residents then provide that service within five years, 1996 in Seminole County. Failure to accomplish that objective will result in fines and a shutoff of state revenues.

But the cost of meeting those objectives, even if they're lower than what residents want, is

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary has the Christmas spirit.

After lighting the city's official Christmas tree at city hall Dec. 3, the city has planned another holiday party for the people of Lake Mary, to be held in conjunction with the annual Children's Christmas Parade.

Speaking about the tree lighting event, newly elected Mayor Randy Morris said, "I don't know when I've seen the people, especially the youngsters, have so much fun." He said many people commented that there should be more events such as that.

In response to that event's success, as well as a call for more holiday functions revealed in a recent recreational needs study, Parks and Recreation Director John Holland is setting up a "Holiday in the Park" event, to be held around noon Dec. 22, he said.

The party will be held in Central Park, in front of city hall, 100 E. Lake Mary Blvd.

Holland said he is trying to arrange for a full afternoon of fun for everyone in the family, including a special guest appearance by Santa Claus.

School board to vote on seventh period tonight

By VICKI DeBORMIER
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Though the plans to implement the optional seventh period day are already in place in all six district high schools, the Seminole County school board will vote on the matter tonight.

The board approved the preliminary plan in October, but they must approve the implementation before the seventh period class can begin at the beginning of the third grading period, Jan. 23, 1991.

The seventh period will be optional for both teachers and students.

The Seminole Education Association has come out in opposition to the implementation of the optional period at this time.

"It is totally, fiscally irresponsible," said Nancy Wheeler, executive director of the SEA. "It is of great concern to me that we are facing up to five percent budget cuts and their contingency money is way down and they are planning to do this."

Seminole is the only school district in the state which does not have a mandatory seventh period. Each period in other districts is shorter than the 50-minute classes offered here and the time between

Sanford commission moves ahead on mall

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The city commission last night voted 4 to 1 to declare the site of the proposed Seminole Towne Center mall a blighted area, a measure needed to secure use of city tax dollars to build mall roads.

State statutes require areas receiving tax increment financing to be declared a blighted area. The measure was one of several steps the city and mall developers must take before property tax dollars collected from the mall may be used to float bonds for road construction and improvements.

Commissioner A.A. McClanahan cast the only opposing vote. He explained his reasoning by saying, "I can't, in good conscience, give our tax money to the mall people. We didn't do it for any other projects, and we don't need to do it this time."

City Attorney William Colbert summed up the goals of last night's proposal by saying, "What we are actually doing here is passing seven separate items in one resolution."

"I can't, in good conscience, give our tax money to the mall people. We didn't do it for any other projects, and we don't need to do it this time."

-A.A. McClanahan

The first item was to declare the site, near the southeast corner of Interstate 4 and State Road 46 as a blighted area. Bill Simmons, city director of engineering and planning, outlined that portion of the concept to the commission by citing the growth and major commercial expansions that have taken place along the I-4 corridor during the past years, none of which was in Sanford. The reason was the lack of necessary roads.

"As the mall is built," Simmons said, "Phase I will require 40,209 daily vehicle trips. Phase II will see that up to 57,756 and the final phase will bring the amount to 64,270 daily trips."

Simmons explained, "We only have one road in the actual mall area, Oregon Avenue, which, even if it were paved, could handle only 580 trips, and it is only paved for a short distance."

Calling attention to the other inadequacies in the roadway network of SR 46 and the yet to be built extension of Rinehart Road, Simmons said the area as it is should be declared a blighted area.

The other items included in the resolution were the acceptance of the delegation to the city by Seminole County of redevelopment powers, officially designating the mall site to be a blighted area, designation of the area as the Seminole Towne Center Community redevelopment area, establishing that there is a need for a redeveloping agency, declaring the City of Sanford to be that redeveloping agency, and directing the City Staff to prepare a redevelopment plan.

During the first reading of the resolution on Nov. 26, a number of Sanford area business leaders appeared before the commission speaking in support of the proposed mall development.

White House report knocks NASA for loop, urges overhaul

By ROB STEIN
UPI Science Editor

WASHINGTON — As part of an overhaul of the nation's space program NASA should build a new unmanned rocket to take over many of space shuttle's duties and shrink the proposed space station, a White House report urged.

The shuttle, the centerpiece of the U.S. space program, is too expensive and too risky for the nation to depend on and is unnecessary for many goals of space exploration, such as building a space station, the report said. Instead, NASA should spend several billion dollars to develop a new launch system that could carry cargo into space for less money and without the risk of losing human life — and perhaps eventually be modified to carry astronauts, it said Monday.

The recommendations came from the 12-member Advisory Committee on the Future of the U.S. Space Program, which was formed in July at the request of the White House to perform a comprehensive review of NASA.

The review came amid a storm of criticism of the space agency sparked by the embarrassing discovery that the long-awaited $1.5 billion Hubble Space Telescope was defective and fueled by the grounding of the space shuttle fleet by hydrogen leaks.

Although the committee resisted calls for a radical restructuring of the agency, the panel concluded NASA has been "trying to do too much with not enough money or time."

America's civil space program is at a crossroads, panel chairman

Norman Augustine said. "NASA is neither as troubled as some would suggest nor nearly as good as it will have to be to carry out the kind of space program that we recommend."

NASA should focus on two goals — a "Mission to Planet Earth," which would involve launching a set of satellites to study Earth's environment and a "Mission from Planet Earth," which would involve exploring Mars, the panel said.

As such, the controversial proposed space station Freedom, which

Feds must spend millions

LARGO — The federal government will have to spend $54 million to correct environmental, safety and health problems at a Largo defense plant, federal authorities said.

The plant was built in 1956 and is run by General Electric and the Department of Energy. The plant manufactures triggers for nuclear weapons and has been the subject of environmental complaints for years.

A federal cleanup plan for the plant includes more training, better monitoring for soil and ground water contamination and alternative methods for handling hazardous materials, Energy Department spokesman Fred Lash said.

None of the deficiencies at the plant pose an undue risk to the public health or the environment, Lash said. If financing is available, all problems can be corrected within five years.

Lash said specifics on the plan should be released within two weeks by Adm. James Watkins, U.S. secretary of energy.

Faith healing belief leads to arrest

LAKE CITY — A Columbia County couple who belong to a religious group that rejects medical care have been arrested for not providing treatment for their son.

William Carl Myers, 16, is in fair condition in Shands Hospital in Gainesville, where he is being treated for an unspecified tumor.

His parents, Charles and Marilee Myers, are members of End Time Ministries, a group that believes in faith healing.

The Myers are charged with one count each of child abuse for medical neglect and are each free on a $5,000 bond.

The Myers are also the parents of Gail Bochmer, whose 4-day-old son died of internal bleeding after being born at home in March of 1989. The midwife who delivered the baby and the Bochmers are also members of End Time Ministries.

The Bochmers told investigators they did not seek medical treatment because they did not believe the child was that sick. A coroner's inquest brought no criminal charges against them.

End Time Ministries is led by Charles Meade, who has hundreds of group members who followed him to Lake City from Montana, South Dakota, Illinois and Indiana.

Deli museum director quits

ST. PETERSBURG — Scott Simmons is leaving after three years of directing the Salvador Dali Museum because of differences with its president, A. Reynolds Morse.

Simmons said the Cleveland Industrialist asked for his resignation last week, giving him until the first of the year to leave. Simmons refused to elaborate on their differences.

Simmons said that in the past year he concentrated mostly on fund-raising while Morse became increasingly active running the museum's day-to-day affairs.

Morse founded the museum by donating his extensive collection of Dali works. He denies he fired Simmons, and said he will not be replaced.

Simmons said his departure will not signal a change in direction or policy for the museum.

Water taxi driver claims jackpot

Sobo bought the winning ticket at an Eckerd Drug Store in Fort Lauderdale.

This week's jackpot is estimated at $7 million.

Two Navy pilots missing after crash

KEY WEST — The Navy and Coast Guard searched the Gulf of Mexico Tuesday for two missing pilots whose aircraft collided while on training missions from the carrier USS Lexington.

The in-flight collision of the two TA-4 Skyhawks occurred at 4 p.m. Monday about 85 miles northwest of Key West, said Lt. Cmdr. Ray Kempisty, spokesman for Naval Education and Training in Pensacola, where the carrier is based. The names of the pilots were not released pending notification of kin.

One of the planes was found after the crash but the other was missing, Kempisty said. The two pilots, the only occupants of the aircraft, were on "routine" training missions.

It was not known whether the pilots ejected before the planes hit the water, Kempisty said.

Numerous Navy training aircraft were in the air at the time of the collision, Kempisty said. The National Weather Service reported that the weather was clear except for a few low-lying clouds.

TA-4s are twin-seat aircraft used as advanced jet trainers for the Navy. The Lexington is the Navy's only training carrier and plays host to the McDonnell Douglas-built TA-4s on Gulf training missions. During the Vietnam War, the combat version of the Skyhawk was used on missions off Navy carriers.

Navy aviators typically are given six months training, or about 100 hours of flight time, on the TA-4, culminating in two weeks of aircraft take-off and landing runs.

Columbia touches down

United Press International

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE — The shuttle Columbia swooped to a noisy Mojave Desert touchdown Monday, ending a shortened but still successful nine-day astronomy mission with a rare nighttime landing.

Dropping out of a pitch-black sky into the blaze of high-powered spotlights, Columbia, carrying seven astronauts and a $150 million battery of telescopes, gracefully settled to a touchdown on concrete runway 23 at 9:54 p.m. PST.

A few moments later, the black-and-white shuttle rolled to a stop, closing out a 141-orbit mission spanning 3.7 million miles since launch Dec. 2 from the Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

"Houston wheels are stopped, at Edwards; we're home!" said commander Vance Brand, the oldest man to fly in space, after only the second nighttime shuttle landing in 13 post-Challenger flights.

"Roger that Columbia, welcome home. A beautiful landing, outstanding job," radioed astronaut Michael Baker from mission control in Houston.

Brand, 59, co-pilot Guy Gardner, 42, John "Mike" Lounge, 44, Robert Parker, 53, Jeffrey Hoffman, 46, and civilian astronomer Ronald Parise, 39, and Samuel Durrance, 47, planned to spend the night at Edwards Air Force Base before flying back to the Johnson Space Center on Tuesday.

After coping with a variety of problems, Brand and company had hoped to land Tuesday after a full-duration 10-day mission to gather as much priceless data as possible about some of the most violent stars and galaxies in the cosmos.

But with a windy cold front barreling toward the ship's Mojave Desert landing site, NASA managers ordered Columbia home one day ahead of schedule. Even so, agency officials said the mission was a major success, despite problems ranging from burned out computers to a clogged sewage system.

Earlier in the day, two Soviet cosmonauts and a Japanese television reporter landed in a snow-covered field in the Soviet central republic of Kazakhstan to close out a successful eight-day visit to the Mir space station by the first journalist in space.

In Houston, Secretary of State James Baker and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze visited NASA's mission control center to congratulate the Columbia astronauts on a successful mission.

"I think what you are doing in space is very important," Shevardnadze told the crew by radio. "You are paving new roads in space and I very much believe you are paving those roads for the benefit and for the happiness of all of us on Earth. Let me wish you good luck and a very good landing."

"We agree with your sentiments," Hoffman replied. "We congratulate you on the good work done by the Mir and Soyuz cosmonauts and we look forward to continued work by nations of all the Earth in developing space."

FTC: Doctors conspired to stop clinic

United Press International

FORT LAUDERDALE — Doctors conspired to keep the Cleveland Clinic out of the Fort Lauderdale area through intimidation and threats of an illegal boycott, according to an 18-month investigation by the Federal Trade Commission.

The efforts violated federal anti-trust laws designed to foster competition, according to FTC documents obtained by the Fort Lauderdale Sun-Sentinel and reported Monday.

The FTC alleges that the Broward County doctors, who usually compete against each other, acted together to keep Cleveland Clinic doctors out of their hospitals. The doctors feared the added competition, the FTC said.

As a result residents were deprived of the "price and quality benefits" of free competition, the FTC said.

The commission alleges that a conspiracy began in the 1980s, when doctors learned their hospitals were negotiating with Ohio's Cleveland Clinic, which wanted to build a satellite in Broward County.

To create a satellite in the area, the clinic needed access to a hospital. Discussions with Broward General Medical Center and Holy Cross Hospital faltered, in part because of objections from local doctors.

Prosecutor: Boater willful in accident that killed Pinellas teens in wake area

United Press International

LARGO — A St. Petersburg chiropractor recklessly accelerated his 35-foot cigarette boat near a minimum wake zone, launching his vessel atop a ski boat and killing four teens, a prosecutor said Monday in the boat driver's trial.

"Everyone else saw the need to slow down," prosecutor Glenn Martin said in closing arguments, noting the channel near Indian Rocks Beach was congested. "That's what a reasonable, prudent seaman would do."

Martin said William LaTorre's actions showed "willful and wanton disregard for the safety and lives of other people — an attitude of superior boatmanship."

The defense, however, insists that LaTorre had cleared the minimum wake area and never saw the 17-foot Checkmate ski boat, which was traveling in his path and on the wrong side of the waterway.

LaTorre, 49, is charged with four counts of vessel homicide

Shiitake mushrooming into big business

By BETANN WEBSTER

United Press International

What costs $5 a pound? Fuels one of the largest cottage industries in the world? Is the subject of medical experiments into its potency as an anti-AIDS and anti-cancer medication? Is a delicacy in Japan? And is ground daily into the slop fed to pigs by Chinese farmers?

The answer is the shiitake mushroom.

The gourmet mushroom, which can grow to 9 inches in diameter, is slowly but surely increasing in popularity in the United States where the white mushroom has reigned supreme for decades.

That is good news for the 45 shiitake growers in Florida, who are part of a growing industry in the South attempting to carve out a niche in U.S. markets.

The shiitake cottage industry in America took off in the early 1980s in harmony with Ronald Reagan's call for increased entrepreneurial activity.

Simultaneously, upwardly mobile young professionals with money to spend on luxury items increased demand for shiitake. It has twice the protein and half the calories of the white mushroom and is the second most commonly eaten mushroom in the world.

Wasps wage war on pesky Caribfly

United Press International

GAINESVILLE — Swarms of parasitic wasps have been specially raised to help protect Florida crops by devouring young Caribbean fruit flies before they can infest groves and fields, biologists said Wednesday.

Though the Caribfly is not as menacing as its Mediterranean cousin, Florida growers spend millions of dollars a year ridding their fruit of the pest so their produce can be shipped to other states and countries.

mushrooms grilled or chicken-fried. Stirfrying and sauting is also popular.

About three years ago, state agricultural officials in Florida began exploring the potential for shiitake growing in the state. Now county extension agents provide information on the mushroom to residents looking for a way to supplement their income during tough economic times.

"In Florida, we have a real good market window because we can produce in the winter outside," said Clay Olson, an agricultural extension agent in Perry.

"There are not too many other growers who can do that. So shiitake has very good potential here. A few years ago, we had a crunch in agriculture in the state of Florida and this was one of the market windows we looked into."

It takes very little capital to become a shiitake grower and the harvest can be sold fresh for a hefty $5.50 to $7 a pound. What isn't sold fresh can be dried and processed into a health food supplement.

"The best part about it is it's a idiot proof. You don't use dirt. You don't need a lot of land. All you need are a few logs and some water," said Tony Farris, considered the Pied Piper of the shiitake business in the South.

His American Forest Food Corp. in Henderson, N.C., which has set the standard for mushroom spawn, purchases shiitake from growers and sells it to food brokers.

"It is the largest most successful cottage industry in the world. Ninety percent is grown by part-time farmers, less than 10 percent is commercially grown," Farris said.

The typical shiitake grower has a full-time job — usually professional — and lives in a semi-rural area.

The oldest and largest producer in the state is Carl Bain of Bell, Fla.

Arson at school investigated

GENEVA — Seminole County sheriff's deputies report a weekend burglary and vandalism in Geneva Elementary School, the third such incident in one week.

Deputies said contents of desks were dumped, items were placed in microwave ovens, and fire extinguishers were set off. An Indian teepee was set afire, but didn't burn.

School officials said they found children's footprints in the debris and there was no sign of forced entry to the school on First Street, Geneva.

Two arrested in search

LONGWOOD — City County Investigative Bureau agents with a warrant reported arresting two men at 171 Oak St., Longwood, Monday night after reportedly finding less than 30 grams of marijuana and drug paraphernalia in a search.

The agents said related charges are also pending against an 18-year-old woman. A warrant will be requested for the woman's arrest. She wasn't jailed last night because she was tending her four-month-old baby, agents said.

Arrested were Kevin Lee Cannon, 27, and Paul Day, 35, of that address.

Cocaine mother arrested again

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Toni Susette Hudson, 31, 1071 Blake St., Altamonte Springs, has been arrested on a Seminole County warrant for violation of probation on a narcotics possession charge.

Hudson, who was arrested Monday night in a traffic stop by a sheriff's deputy on Blake Street, gained notoriety about two years ago when she was arrested here for delivering cocaine to her unborn child through her umbilical cord. She pled guilty and was sentenced to probation in that case. Hudson, who has been in drug rehabilitation, has been arrested a few more times since the baby-related bust, including at least one charge for allegedly soliciting for prostitution, records show.

SANFORD — Even the U.S. Department of Labor runs into labor problems from time to time. Although he doesn't want to go, Doug MacDonald is leaving his job with the department as of Dec. 28, after 27 years of service.

MacDonald has served this area as the department's wage and hour compliance officer. He has had his office in the Florida Job Services office, 2400 S. Park Ave., Sanford, although he is not associated with that service.

"I work as an independent field agent, and they've allowed me to use this office for my headquarters," said MacDonald.

He cites the lagging federal economy as his reason for leaving the service. "President Bush has had new laws enacted which would greatly reduce my retirement benefits if I continued this work," the 50-year-old MacDonald said.

"But if I leave before the end of this calendar year, I will be eligible for my full benefit package." He said there were a number of other Department of Labor employees who had found they were in the same position, and they would also be leaving government service before 1990 ends. MacDonald has been responsible for a variety of labor-related issues. "I make sure all of the federal laws regarding labor are obeyed," he said.

Individual fields in which he has operated include the areas of child labor laws, failure of employers to pay proper wages, government contract work, migrant and seasonal workers, legal standards and polygraph law violations.

He feels as though he has been of real value to employees who ran into difficulties, especially in the areas of government contracts and wage problems.

"I guess I'll be out looking for a new job after the first of the year," he admitted. "I have a son in Lake Mary High School, and I would like to stay in this area." He said he has a few job leads.

MacDonald joined the U.S. Department of Labor right out of college, putting in his first ten years in the Chicago area before coming to Central Florida, where his main office has been in Orlando, although he is specifically assigned to Sanford and surrounding municipalities.

Roseland Park water OK'd by city

By NICK PFEIFAU

SANFORD — The city commission voted unanimously last night to supply potable water to the residents of Roseland Park subdivision, but rejected for now a request to annex the area into the city.

An annexation of that area had been previously considered by the commission, when it was believed a sufficient number of residents would favor it. But when the applications were received the number was not as great as had been expected and the matter was dropped.

This time, Seminole County's major proposal was for the city to consider providing the water to approximately 45 single family homes in the area. The county will be putting in the underground distribution system.

In a written request to the city, Seminole County principal planner Buddy Balagia said, "We would also like to work with the city and the Roseland Park residents to have the subdivision annexed into the city in order to reduce their water connection fee."

The connection fees are considerably higher for non-residents. Commissioner A.A. McClanahan commented that he could go along with supplying water, but not annexation.

Commissioner Whitley Eckstein agreed. "I don't think it's in the best interests of the city to annex at this time, but I'm all for providing the water."

Sanford sets holiday dinner for poor, needy

SANFORD — Several hundred elderly, homeless and children will be at the Sanford Civic Center, Christmas day for a free turkey dinner with all the trimmings, courtesy of Central Florida Services for the Disadvantaged, Inc.

Heather Samonte, founder of the organization, said those invited will include elderly people, homeless families, foster care children and people who are in group home settings such as the Good Samaritan Home.

Samonte said others to be invited will include people with whom the organization has dealt during this past year.

Serving of the food at the Civic Center will be from noon until 4 p.m., Dec. 25.

"Last year," Samonte said, "we served over 400 people at the Civic Center, cooked 200 meals for the Federation of Senior Citizens which were delivered through Meals on Wheels, and in all served 1,162 people in the three county area of Seminole, Orange and Osceola."

All of the money used in purchasing the food has been donated by area businesses, clubs, organizations and private individuals. The cooking, serving and delivery of the meals will all be done through volunteer workers.

Mc Miller-Smith, at the city's Community Development office, is in the process of registering people for the meal.

What's good for kids

Children bring out the best in most people, but for the past three years child care has brought out the worse in Congress. The vicious turf battles, partisan games and ideological stalemates are finally over. The new budget agreement delivers a messy, but lovable, child-care bundle.

While the package strays well beyond its original mission, the mix of grants and tax credits will do a lot to improve the lives of the country's poorest children.

The federal government already has a multibillion-dollar stake in child care through an existing tax credit, as well as grants and food programs. But the prospect of huge additional federal spending triggered ugly battles over who would control the money and who would get the bulk of it. Labor interests fought for more day-care regulation and higher standards as a way to drive up wages. Day-care industry groups — from non-profit, for-profit and church-based centers to home-based care — fought for advantage over their competitors. Conservative groups demanded a share for families in which a parent stays home with the children.

The Bush administration started with a sensible idea of making the existing child-care tax credit refundable, which would directly help poor parents who don't earn enough to pay taxes. The Democrats' flagship bill favored channeling grants through the states, which could use the money to regulate and subsidize child care.

When the air cleared, lawmakers had not made the child-care tax refundable, but instead had substantially increased the earned-income tax credit for poor working families with children under the age of 13. In addition, Head Start, the preschool program for disadvantaged children, will be expanded, and some money will be allocated for school latchkey programs. The standard income deduction will be raised for infants, and poor parents will receive a tax credit for health insurance. All told, the various programs could cost an additional $20 billion over the next five years.

It's easy to get mad at Congress: The compromise is less about meeting specific child care needs than about appeasing many different constituencies. But it's hard to stay mad, because all the pieces add up to a big financial boost for working poor families. That's good for kids.

Helping Moscow to help itself

It has taken the Bush administration a long time to accept the widespread view in this country that the Soviet government's liberalization of emigration policy deserves a positive response from Washington, which since 1974 has imposed trade barriers on Soviet products. U.S. business and farming interests support such a gesture, so does the National Council on Soviet Jewry, which is so impressed with the dramatic increase in Jewish emigration that it now favors the lifting of U.S. sanctions even before the Supreme Soviet codifies Moscow's de facto new policy.

The White House appears to agree, so there's no reason for further delay. President Bush has the authority to waive enforcement of the Jackson-Vanik amendment to U.S. trade law, which restricts trade with countries that bar free emigration. By waiving that stricture now, Bush should effectively lower steep tariffs on Soviet exports to this country. That's good for Moscow, though the practical impact is likely to be minimal until the quality of Soviet products improves. Secondly, waiving Jackson-Vanik would make the Soviet Union eligible for loan guarantees for the purchase of U.S. farm products. That's also good for Moscow, but even better for U.S. grain farmers, who are stuck with large surpluses and low prices for their products.

In political terms, giving the Soviets "most-favored-nation" trading status would repay Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev not only for allowing a dramatic increase in Soviet-Jewish emigration — the number has already exceeded 150,000 this year, more than a sevenfold increase in just two years — but for the vital support he has given Washington in the Persian Gulf crisis. For that, Gorbachev has taken a great deal of heat at home, especially from hard-line Communists.

How Gorbachev's troubles will affect his own fate or, more important, future Soviet policy is impossible to predict. Even so, relaxing trade restrictions, and sending more desperately needed medical supplies to the Soviet Union, can only benefit bilateral relations. Nothing would prevent the president from reimposing trade sanctions should Soviet policy take a turn back toward repression at some point. Obviously one must hope that never happens: In the meantime, a gesture that helps the Soviets to help themselves is both prudent and humanitarian.

Who is the leading conservative?

When Ronald Reagan stepped down as president, conservatives anxiously asked one another, "Who's next?" They had been badly spotted by having a single undisputed political spokesman for more than 20 years.

But 1990 presented a very different picture. Just about every Republican leader, including President Bush, claimed to be a conservative. But Mr. Bush could not convincingly claim Mr. Reagan's credentials as a "movement conservative," in the sense of having entered politics as conservatism's champion. And while there were plenty of aspirants to the Reagan mantle, none of them seemed indisputably the rightful claimant.

Now two years have passed, however, and the field is beginning to sort itself out. And since the Republican Party is highly unlikely to nominate anyone but a conservative in 1992 (or in 1994, if for some unimaginable reason President Bush doesn't run again or is defeated for renomination), handicapping the race for the conservative leadership transpires almost automatically into staking out the contenders for the Republican presidential nomination.

We might as well open the bidding by noting the presence of Vice President Quayle among the aspirants. He has done a good job of pressing the conservative case, in both public and private, without betraying his fundamental obligation of loyalty to President Bush. And his TV appearances recently have clearly demonstrated the keen intelligence his friends have always insisted he possesses. But the so-called "frightened deer" image has not yet fully dissipated, as it must if he is to command the conservative movement and the nation.

Just about the only survivor of the 1988 nomination contest to claim a solid place among possible 1992 contenders is HUD Secretary Jack Kemp. Now 55, and so vigorous that he reminds one of Teddy Roosevelt, he is as outspokenly conservative as ever. His current beta noise in the administration is Budget Director Dick Darman, whose policies Kemp aptly sums up as "social Darwinism." Kemp would benefit greatly by a successful race for one of the two Senate seats from California that will be up for filling in 1992, but he hasn't yet decided to run.

On Capitol Hill, the man who is moving inexorably toward the role of chief champion of conservative causes is House Republican Whip Newt Gingrich. He was probably no more than pined by his embarrassingly narrow re-election last month, and has openly demanded Darman's resignation from the Cabinet.

A brand new name had to be inscribed in the Winter Book when President Bush tapped Drug Czar Bill Bennett to succeed the ailing Lee Atwater as chairman of the Republican National Committee. This is a job superbly suited to Bennett's talents, which lean heavily toward the polemical, and he will be more than a match for his glib Democratic opposite number, Ron Brown. But Bennett has never held elective office, and probably must remedy that deficiency if he wants to be taken seriously in 1992.

Finally, no wise observer will overlook the newly elected governor of the largest state in the Union.

Just about every Republican leader claimed to be a conservative.

Saddam hits Bush before talks begin

WASHINGTON — The first score in the U.S.-Iraqi peace talks went to Iraq even before the talks opened. Iraqi dictator Saddam Hussein forced President Bush to back down on his resolve to invite Kuwaiti leaders to the talks.

Saddam got Bush to blink by threatening to invite his own unwelcome guest — Palestine Liberation Organization Chairman Yasser Arafat.

That prospect was so contrary to Bush's current Persian Gulf policy that he caved in immediately and agreed to bilateral talks only between the United States and Iraq.

The White House and the State Department have downplayed the president's fast footwork because they did not want it to look like what it was, a technical knockout of Bush in the preliminary round.

Knowledgeable sources with access to the secret cables between Baghdad and Washington told us what happened.

President Bush surprised Saddam and U.S. allies with his offer on Nov. 30 for direct negotiations. Bush said he would meet with the Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz in Washington and would send Secretary of State James Baker to meet Saddam in Baghdad.

Then, almost as an afterthought, Bush said he would invite others of "our coalition partners" to come along. Saddam became obsessed by the off-hand remark. Whom did the Americans intend to bring? Finally, he received secret confirmation from Washington that Bush planned to involve Saudi and Kuwaiti diplomats.

Saddam doesn't mind talking to Saudis, but as far as he is concerned, Kuwait doesn't exist any more and he wasn't about to entertain emissaries from the exiled Kuwaiti government. Iraqi troops have raped and pillaged Kuwait, annexed it as a province of Iraq, destroyed Kuwaiti citizenship records and moved thousands of Kuwaitis to Iraq, replacing them with Iraqis.

According to knowledgeable sources, the exiled Kuwaiti government was ecstatic that Bush would include them in the talks. And it was not a bad idea from the American perspective either, because it would have downplayed the Persian Gulf crisis as a U.S.-Iraq conflict.

But word came back to Bush in secret cables from Baghdad that if Kuwaitis came along, Yasser Arafat would be there too. Saddam has been trying desperately to distract attention from his own brutal invasion by tying a resolution to the Israeli occupation of Palestinian lands.

Saddam publicly hinted what his position would be in a Dec. 1 statement from the Revolutionary Command Council that he controls: "If the American side believes that it is necessary (to bring in others), Iraq, for its part, will call on representatives of countries and parties that are connected with unresolved disputes and issues. ... Palestine and the other occupied Arab territories will remain before our eyes and at the forefront of the issues that we will discuss in any dialogue."

Privately, Saddam's message to Washington was more blunt — that if Baker showed up with Kuwaitis, Arafat would be there too. Some administration officials are privately critical of Bush for backing down. These sources believe it was far more important to maintain the principle that the Gulf conflict is not just a beef between the United States and Iraq. As it is, Saddam got what he wanted — one-on-one talks with the United States that both he and Aziz are likely to use as a bully pulpit to link the Arab-Israeli conflict with the Iraq-Kuwait issue.

The White House and the State Department have downplayed the president's fast footwork.

Distrusting the messenger

You may wonder why so many of us distrust the messenger. You may wonder why so many of us blame the media for so many of our ills. We are probably in a recession, and the newspapers and the television news share a large responsibility for putting us there.

Scare Headlines: — In today's Herald on page 1B, Big, Bold Headline — "Economists: Recession Here: To Extend TWO YEARS." My God, that is the worst I have seen yet. Then I read the article, and it says "Economist says recession is expected to last two quarters." You need to explain to your Headline Writer that two quarters do not equal two years.

May I suggest a positive headline that would have left a better feeling: "Economist: Recession Here: to extend only Six Months." Robert J. Sander Sanford

League supports impact fees

The League of Women Voters of Seminole County is aware of the difficulties facing the County Commissioners in working to finalize Seminole County's Comprehensive Plan. The League had a part in the development of the first Comprehensive Plan and has been instrumental in passing bond issues and referendums which have enhanced the quality of life for Seminole citizens.

The League believes that all elements of County services must be included in the Comprehensive Plan so that it will reflect needs and set realistic goals for service and funding.

The League is especially concerned about Seminole's library system. Since 127,000 county residents hold library cards (as of October, 1990) and since citizens have twice voted for library referendums, we feel that support for the library system is very strong and that it should be included in the Comprehensive Plan.

Since one book per capita has not kept the shelves in the libraries full, we hope a progressive increase in the number of books per person will be written into the 5-year plan and that an increase to 1.5 per capita will be seriously considered during the next review of the plan.

The League was also active during the impact fee study and we believe that some funding for programs such as parks and recreation and libraries should come from this source. We also hope in the future a specific millage will be earmarked each year for maintenance and enhancement of programs which citizens strongly support, such as the library system.

Leash law needs enforcing

The City of Sanford just spent $19,000 enforcing the pet limit (which should be enforced) but they totally ignore the leash law which I feel is a danger to everyone in this city.

Six weeks ago two dogs without collars jumped my four-foot cement fence enclosing my backyard to get my cat. They tore up my standup freezer to get her from underneath it and played with her all over my porch. Now, I have a two-year-old and seven-month-old who are always back there. If they had been there during this I have no doubt they would have been severely injured and terrorized. The police said it was an extremely vicious attack. Animal Control came around and were nice but not much help. To put an animal down, it has to actually bite a person. They are understaffed and have to cover the entire county, and the chances of them catching the animals is not good unless they happen to be in the neighborhood. They suggested I trap the animals in my yard for them to pick up. Well, five days after the attack, one of the dogs came back over my fence and growled at me. He jumped back over as I was calling Animal Control and never saw them come around. I see them along with numerous dogs running loose all over town. I'm not the only one upset. Cats in our area are being killed, kids on bikes are being chased and from what I hear, it is all over town. A two-year-old son of a friend of mine was stalked in his front yard by three big dogs. Fortunately, they didn't attack. His mother got to him first.

I feel all animal laws should be followed and as the city enacted the leash law ordinance, then it's the city's (not the county's) responsibility to enforce it. The city used to have its own animal control and we need it back. I hope the city officials will consider putting $19,000 towards a couple of good city dogcatchers to keep the people in this town safe. By the way, I am an animal lover, dogs included.

Meteor shower visible this week

ORLANDO — The Orlando Science Center has announced that the Geminid meteor shower will be visible streaking from the eastern sky Dec. 12 through Dec. 14. The best viewing time will be 9:30 p.m. each night and sunrise, the center reports.

The Geminid shower, one of about a dozen notable showers that occur each year, is considered one of the most spectacular because it often produces fireballs, or meteors brighter than planet Venus, and bolides, or meteors that break into bits.

A planetarium show, "Orlando by Night," is held at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays at the Orlando Science Center planetarium, 810 E. Rollins St., Orlando.

For more information about the meteor shower or other questions about the night sky, call 888-7181.

NASA

Congress ordered NASA to redesign, should be made less complex and expensive and should focus on helping prepare for long space flights and microgravity research.

The panel also suggested a number of bureaucratic changes, including implementing a new personnel system and perhaps how it operates centers around the country to avoid counterproductive competition, the report said.

In calling for reducing the role of the shuttle, the panel concluded what NASA has previously acknowledged — that there is a strong likelihood that a shuttle will explode again as it did in the 1986 Challenger disaster.

In hindsight, the panel said it was a mistake to risk seven human lives and one-fourth of the shuttle fleet to place a communications satellite in orbit — the primary goal of the Challenger mission.

Humans should continue to travel into space, but only when necessary, the panel said.

"We're concerned that the space shuttle may be the thin reed that supports our entire civilian space program," said Augustine, chairman of the Martin Marietta Corp. in Bethesda, Md.

"We can't count on not losing another space shuttle in the not-too-distant future," he told a crowded news conference. "In fact it would not be at all surprising to us that we would lose at least another shuttle before the space station is in orbit. Because of that, I think we need to prepare ourselves both emotionally and in terms of hardware and infrastructure."

NASA Administrator Richard Truly, stressing the space program is as safe as possible but "it's a risky business," said his agency would take "each of the recommendations most seriously."

Vice President Dan Quayle, who heads the National Space Council, said the panel would meet in six months to determine what progress NASA had made on the recommendations, which Quayle said would give NASA a "needed shot in the arm."

also attended last night's meeting, wearing badges handed out at the door by Simon and Associates people indicating they were mail supporters.

Tom Schneider, representing Simon and Associates, also on hand, commented on the question of the widening of Rinehart Road, which would be widened from its present northern terminus at County Road 46-A, further northward to SR 46, and become a prime access road to the mall.

"Rinehart Road, to us, is an alternate compliance matter," Schneider said. "We can either contribute to the I-4 interchange or pay our fair share of the Rinehart four-laning from SR 46 to Lake Mary." He said discussions were under way with officials in Lake Mary. "I think we're getting close to some settlement. We're having good and productive discussions."

Tax increment financing for the mall project will eventually involve a considerable amount of construction in addition to the mall itself. The potential plans call for traffic signals, improvements to SR 46, expansion and four-laning of Rinehart Road, relocation and expansion of Oregon Avenue, new access roads and improvements to the water system which will serve that area.

Deficit

staggering. County officials said Monday to provide an adequate road system for current residents during the next five years will cost $109.4 million, $108 million more than the county will have during the next five years under current revenue levels.

For drivers, "adequate" roads will mean congested traffic will continue during morning and afternoon rush hours throughout much of urban areas of the county. To help you get to work a few minutes earlier would cost more than $200 million, county officials said.

To continue the three-year buildup of fire engine crews to three men on each truck, build two new fire stations in the eastern sections of the county and to keep fire service at the same current availability will cost $18.5 million more than the county has to spend.

Another $44 million will be needed to upgrade and maintain drainage systems throughout the county to end neighborhood flooding. Another $19 million will be needed for libraries, parks and other services.

To help reduce the staggering

$108 million road deficit, commissioners appealed to Reps. Art Grindle, R-Altamonte Springs, and Frank Stone, R-Oviedo, for up to $100 million in local gasoline taxes.

Although Grindle and Stone were sympathetic to the county's needs and said they would take the request to Tallahassee next spring, they said don't count on the new money.

"I'm afraid the mood in the House is 'No new taxes,'" Grindle said. "I think it highly unlikely that we can do it."

"I don't see co-operation from the Legislature in doing the simple thing and raising gasoline taxes," Stone said.

Grindle also criticized county commissioners for "selling" the county too cheaply. He said impact fees have been too low compared to California and other states allowing homes to be sold without paying for roads and other services to support population growth. Land and homes have also been priced too low, encouraging a faster population growth than can be supported by taxes, he said.

"I think the county's been sold too cheap," Grindle said.

Commissioners protested, saying Seminole County was among the first in the state to require development to pay for roads.

"We've done everything you have allowed us to do," Streetman said.

Cities could be affected by the shortfall as well. County consultant Roger Neiswander said if county roads passing through or serving city neighborhoods become congested, city officials will be prevented by the state from allowing new home construction until the road is improved.

To pay for a $44 million stormwater program to upgrade and maintain neighborhood drainage throughout the county, county planners have recommended a monthly fee for homeowners. The fee proposed by a study produced in 1989 would begin at about $1.50 per month per household and increase to about $27 per month within 50 years.

A new impact fee for libraries added to new home construction could take up another $800,000 from the deficit. The fee has been pursued by commissioner Larry Furlong.

Unless commissioners raise property taxes by nearly $3 per $1,000 of taxable value to pay for roads which they say is unlikely, they have two other revenue sources. Since becoming a charter county in 1989, Seminole County has gained the authority to charge unincorporated residents a utility tax on electricity, telephone, water and heating gas bills, as do most cities.

If charged on all utilities, the tax could generate about $6 million a year or about $30 million over the five-year period.

The county could also ask voters to approve a one-cent sales tax increase for 15 or 20 years to help them out of the bind. Bonds could be sold for the road projects and the sales tax collections dedicated towards paying bondholders. Although the tax is currently estimated to produce about $24.7 million annually in the county, commissioners must share the proceeds with the cities.

The county would retain about $15.5 million of the revenues, totaling about $78 million over the five years. Portions of the bonded revenues could be used for a jail expansion since a one-cent, one-year sales tax was defeated by voters last month.

classes is reduced. The school day is the same length.

The additional period has been the cause of some controversy because it will take place immediately following the regular school day, beginning at 2:40 p.m. and lasting 60 minutes.

Opponents fear that it will interfere with after-school activities, including athletics, band and other organizations. It is feared that students will be forced to choose between extra-curricular activities and academics, though both are essential elements of a well-rounded education.

After school activities will continue to begin at their regular time.

Wheeler said that the school district is about 800 or 800 students below the projected enrollment and thus will receive less money for additional programs such as this.

Classes will be offered in both the college-preparatory and the vocational courses of study.

According to negotiated contracts, teachers will be paid at the same rate that they are paid for teaching other classes. Overtime will not be paid.

Students can use the extra class period to take additional classes in order to avoid summer school, to make up failed classes or to take an elective class.

The final plan calls for the class size to be an average of 25 students.

"It's not an issue of good or bad for the students," Wheeler said. "It is just not something that the school district can afford in these tough financial times."

Students and teachers will be informed that if there is not enough interest in a class, it will not be offered.

An administrator, in most cases an assistant principal, and a guidance counselor will be assigned to work the additional hour. They, like the teachers, will be paid at their hourly rate beginning at the time their day officially ends.

Each school will receive from the state approximately $10 per student enrolled in the optional classes to help offset operating expenses.

According to Mary Chambers, assistant superintendent for business and finance, the district has received assurance from Larry McIntyre, bureau chief of the financial management section of the state Department of Education, that the seventh period will be funded by the state.

Wheeler said that the faculty members of the SEA voted unanimously to ask the board to hold off on the implementation of the seventh period until the district stood on more fiscally sound ground.

Transportation will be provided to the students who need it. They will be picked up after students from the nearest middle school and transported with the younger students.

The school board meeting begins at 7 p.m. this evening in the boardroom at 1211 Mellenville Ave., Sanford.

Wheeler has asked to speak to the board tonight, but has not yet received word on when she will be allowed to speak to the together," Holland said. "But we need people to volunteer to take on some of these things."

Holland asked that anyone wishing to participate, entertain, or set up concessions, to call him at 324-3049 or 324-3053.

"If we get together on this one," he said, "we can really have an outstanding event."

Holland said it would be "B.Y.O.B.," that is, "bring your own blanket." He said folks will be able to spread out their blankets in the new amphitheater area and enjoy the afternoon. "It will really give our new park a workout," he said.

The other big event, also on Dec. 22, will be the 15th annual Harry S. Benson Children's Christmas Parade in Lake Mary. This parade, however, is different. Rather than going to see it, it comes to see you.

Sgt. Linda Belfiore, with the Lake Mary Police Department is serving as coordinator of the event for her 10th year.

The parade is named for its founder, the late Harry S. Benson, a former Lake Mary police chief. Belfiore said, "For the first few years, Benson personally bought everything he gave away. He would get in a police car and visit the homes of the needy throughout the city."

The event has grown from that point, with Lake Mary businesses and individuals helping raise money and gifts. A float, borrowed from the Winter Park Jaycees, went into use after the first four parades, but Lake Mary now has its own float, a large sleigh on which Santa Claus rides.

"Last year was the only time in the 15 years that we had to change the way we did things," Belfiore said. "With the bitter cold we had on that day, (Dec. 23), there was just no way we could take the parade through the city, so we had Santa giving out the gifts at the fire station."

Belfiore added, "By coincidence, that was the day when we went to Harry Benson's funeral." Benson died Dec. 20, 1989.

This year, the parade will have six or seven vehicles. In the lead will be the giant sleigh float featuring Santa Claus, and for the first time, Santa will have Mrs. Santa at his side. The float will be followed by various vehicles from the fire department, police department and public works. "It's a Department of Public Safety parade," Belfiore said.

The parade will leave from the Public Safety building on Rinehart Road, at 8:30 a.m. on that day, and travel through as many of the city streets as possible. Certain people, identified as shut-ins or in need of help, will be receiving gift certificates for food, toys for the children or other assistance. Candy will be given out to all children.

The parade will continue circulating through Lake Mary until 4:30 p.m., with the exception of the noon hour, when Santa will be joining the festivities at the city hall area.

The specific route of the parade will be announced at a date closer to the Dec. 22 event.

FDA approves birth control implant

By REBECCA KOLBERG
UPI Science Writer

WASHINGTON — The Food and Drug Administration Monday approved an implantable birth control device for women that lasts up to five years and appears as safe and effective as birth control pills.

The FDA's long-awaited action on Norplant was hailed by family planning groups as a major step towards widening the contraceptive options available to American women. About two-thirds of the 60 million U.S. women of child-bearing age currently use some form of birth control.

"It offers women a new contraceptive option for the first time since the Pill," said Dr. C. Wayne Bardin, vice president of the Population Council in New York, a non-profit group that developed Norplant.

The device consists of six rubber capsules containing the same hormone used in many birth control pills. When the match-sized capsules are implanted under the skin of a woman's upper arm, they gradually release low doses of the hormone, preventing pregnancy for up to five years.

Norplant is 99 percent effective at preventing pregnancy in women who weigh less than 150 pounds, the FDA said. Birth control pills are about 94 percent to 95 percent effective when user error is taken into account, family planning groups said.

Norplant was previously approved for use in 16 countries and more than 500,000 women are currently using the implants.

The implant can be removed at any time by a minor surgical procedure.

YOUNG MEN AND BIRTH CONTROL

Contraceptive last used by single males ages 15 to 19

According to a survey, condoms were the most recent contraceptive used by more than half of the males from the ages of 15 to 19. However, nearly one-quarter of the youths were found to have used either ineffective methods of contraception or nothing at all.

Teenager rams restaurant with Greyhound he stole

UPI report

BAY CITY, Mich. — A 19-year-old man who allegedly stole Greyhound bus and then repeatedly rammed it into a restaurant where he worked as a cook faces felony charges of malicious destruction, motor vehicle theft and resisting arrest.

Police said they had not determined the motive for the bizarre incident, which occurred early Sunday morning while the Brass Lantern Restaurant was closed. It was not immediately known whether the man was intoxicated at the time.

Reports indicate the man, a Bay City resident, stole the bus by breaking one of its windows at about 3 a.m. Sunday. The man allegedly drove the bus three blocks to the Brass Lantern and rammed it.

"One witness said he backed up and rammed the building about 20 times," police officer Thomas Toth said Monday.

Toth said officers found the suspect hiding in a doorway about two blocks from the restaurant, bleeding from his right hand. He claimed to have been in a fight.

"The guy was real violent. He spit at officers, threatened officers," Toth said. The man was restrained in leg irons before he was taken to jail.

Faction fighting rages in township

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Rival factions clashed with hatchets, knives and guns in the eastern black township of Thokozwa Tuesday, killing at least 15 people and prompting authorities to order additional army and police units to the area.

Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok ordered more forces to the township as the death toll in black-on-black violence soared to more than 100 in nine days and state-run radio urged motorists to avoid a well traveled road through the area.

Vlok also warned that if fired upon, police will "respond with equivalent firepower and ammunition."

Police spokeswoman Capt. Ida van Zweel said the bodies of 13 people, hacked or stabbed to death, were found Tuesday morning while another two were found late Monday, pushing the death toll in the area since the weekend to 29.

Substitute picks up Gorbachev's prize

OSLO, Norway — Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Anatoly Kovalyev Monday accepted the Nobel Peace Prize on behalf of President Mikhail Gorbachev, saying the world faces dramatic choices as a new millennium approaches.

Gorbachev was awarded the prize by the Norwegian Nobel Committee for his crucial role in dismantling communist regimes in Eastern Europe, and for helping to end the Cold War. The Soviet leader said he was too busy at home with domestic crises to attend Monday's ceremony.

European storms leave 11 dead

PARIS — At least 11 people died when an early snowstorm swirled through Britain, France and Spain, paralyzing traffic, knocking out electricity in tens of thousands of households and making Paris resemble a scene from the opera "La Boheme."

Among the casualties were two skiers and three others who were injured when heavy snow set off a rockslide near the French-Italian border, crushing their car as they returned from a week-end Alpine jaunt, firemen said Monday.

The injured skiers were taken to a hospital at Bordighera, Italy, for treatment following the accident Sunday night between Breil-sur-Roya and Vintimille, said the firefighters.

All five were French citizens. They were still wearing their skiing clothes when the rocks tumbled down onto their Toyota. The dead were a young man and a young woman sitting in the back seat.

At Val-de-Veale, in the Marne area near the city of Reims, another motorist died when his car skidded on an icy highway and slammed into a tree, killing the driver instantly, police said.

About 140,000 homes remained without electricity in the

Ex-guerrillas win big in Colombia

UPI report

BOGOTA, Colombia — A slate of candidates headed by a former guerrilla leader won a plurality in an election for 70 members of a constituent assembly that will rewrite Colombia's constitution, according to figures released with 91 percent of the votes counted.

But another rebel group announced Monday it would renew its war with the government.

Antonio Navarro, a former leader of the M-19 rebels, headed the list of assembly candidates of the Democratic Left Alliance, which in balloting Sunday won 925,795 votes, or 27 percent of the 3,438,418 vote total.

Nineteen people aligned with the former guerrilla organization were elected to the legislature, but despite the strong showing the former rebels will not be the dominant force in the assembly.

Candidate in Poland investigated

By BOGDAN TURK
United Press International

WARSAW, Poland — The Justice Department has begun investigating defeated presidential candidate Stanislaw Tyminski and may not let him return to Canada on Wednesday.

President-elect Lech Walesa, meanwhile, prepared to leave his decade-old job as leader of the Solidarity union and move to Belweder Palace in Warsaw — at least part of the time.

"I will never forget my union roots," he said Monday during a visit to the Gdansk shipyard where Solidarity was born in 1980. "I will never forget that I left the shipyard dirty, without a lie, and now I wear a jacket and a lie."

Walesa said he will divide his time between Warsaw and Gdansk, where a second presidential office is being set up for him. "I would be impossible for me to leave this city which I like so much," he said.

Tyminski, who holds Canadian and Peruvian passports, was summoned to testify in Nowy Sacz in southern Poland for a statement he made Nov. 17 in nearby Zakopane that Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki was guilty of "betrayal of the nation" for his economic policies.

"At the same time, decisions have been taken ensuring Tyminski's presence in this country until the hearing," the Polish news agency PAP said. There was no immediate indication when the hearing would be held.

Polish law forbids citizens from slandering a person in government office.

PAP said Tyminski and his wife have bought air tickets to fly to Toronto on Wednesday.

Official results released late Monday showed Walesa got 10,822,696 voters or 74.25 percent and Tyminski got 3,683,098 votes or 25.75 percent.

Communists in Yugoslavia take early lead

By JONATHAN S. LANDAY
United Press International

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — The ruling communists in Serbia and Montenegro headed for massive victories in the first post-war multi-party elections in the two Yugoslav republics, bucking the anti-Marxist tide that swept the rest of the nation and most of Eastern Europe.

Opposition leaders in Serbia all but conceded defeat Monday as daylong trends from Sunday's polls showed President Slobodan Milosevic with substantial leads in most of the 250 electoral districts of the largest and most influential of Yugoslavia's six republics.

Milosevic, 49, who took power in 1987, won 61.11 percent of the votes cast in the 32 of 33 districts where results were complete, said Republic Election Commission Secretary Zoran Djunic.

Running second was nationalist Serbian Renewal Movement leader Vuk Draskovic, a writer and former Marxist, with 18.76 percent, followed by Ivan Djuric.

Manufacturers' profits down

WASHINGTON — Manufacturers' after-tax profits averaged 4.1 cents for every dollar of sales during the third quarter, down 0.6 cent from the second quarter, the Commerce Department said Monday.

During the third quarter, manufacturers reported after-tax profits of $29.3 billion, down 10.2 percent, or $3.3 billion, from the second quarter.

After-tax profits rose slightly for makers of non-durable goods. Printing and petroleum companies posted increased profits while makers of textiles, paper and rubber goods reported declines. Food and chemical companies said their profits were unchanged.

Profits for makers of durable goods were down 40.4 percent, or $6.3 billion, during the third quarter from the previous quarter. All industry categories except electrical machinery posted declines. About 60 percent of the decline came from makers of transportation equipment.

First lady unveils Christmas decor

WASHINGTON — Barbara Bush unveiled the spectacular White House yuletide decorations Monday, expressing delight that the Christmas season is beginning with the return of American hostages from Kuwait and Iraq.

"We're thrilled, of course," she said when asked about Saddam Hussein's decision to let the hostages go home.

Asked about the decision ordering U.S. troops stationed in Saudi Arabia to keep their Christmas celebration low key, the first lady said, "Too bad, but when in Rome..."

First wave of American hostages returns home

By LEE STOKES
United Press International

With memories of horror and tears of joy, a planeload of former American hostages returned to cheering family members in the United States, while Iraqi officials said they would be willing to compromise with the Bush administration on the dates of high-level talks over the Persian Gulf crisis.

Hundreds of family members, many waving American flags and wearing yellow ribbons, cheered as a U.S.-chartered Pan Am 747 jumbo jet carrying 156 loved ones landed at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., Monday.

The airlift was the first major wave of U.S. hostages to be released since Iraqi President Saddam Hussein decided Thursday to allow all hostages to leave Iraq and occupied Kuwait. The hostages had been held against their will since Aug. 2 when Iraqi troops invaded Kuwait.

U.S. officials estimated 575 Americans were still in Iraq and Kuwait, waiting for clearance to leave. Another freedom flight was scheduled for Tuesday.

"This is wonderful," exclaimed Ann Daher of Delmont, Pa., whose son, George Daher, 50, had hid out in Kuwait since Iraq's invasion.

Glen Coleman, 53, Boston, said he felt both relief and anger when his Iraqi captors informed him he would be released.

The former hostages were initially greeted on the plane by State Department officials and then taken by bus to an athletic complex at the Air Force base.

Bush seeks banking law overhaul

United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Bush will seek a major overhaul of the nation's banking laws when Congress reconvenes next month and will make it a "top priority" of his new legislative agenda, a spokesman said Monday.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater confirmed a published report that Bush plans to propose reforms of what Fitzwater called the weak U.S. banking system.

"We hope to have proposals in January to reform the banking system," he said, adding the administration is "looking into" various recommendations.

"We've been concerned about the credit crunch. We've been concerned about the credit crunch.

— Marlin Fitzwater, White House press secretary crunch," in which banks have tightened their standards for making loans, Fitzwater said.

Last week, White House chief of staff John Sununu said the administration would propose "fine tuning" the banking laws, but it appeared that there would be a much larger effort to revamp the system, from top to bottom, with the Treasury Department expected to work up a set of recommendations for the president. Under proposals now being drafted, according to a Washington Post report, the laws that have governed U.S. banks — including the amount of their reserves — as well as savings and loans, brokerage houses and insurance companies for the last half century would have to be rewritten.

Some of the regulations would be dropped and some would be strengthened under the plan under consideration.

One proposal would impose new limits on federal deposit insurance that would return the program to its original purpose: protecting small savers.

In addition, the newspaper said that state lines would no longer be a barrier to banks.

Consumer groups award 'lemons' for ads

By RABBIT THOMAS
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Philip Morris Co. and General Motors Corp. each scored double whammies as consumer groups awarded their annual "lemons" for the top 10 most deceptive or misleading advertisements.

The giant tobacco company and the car manufacturer, along with six other companies selling everything from fast food to air travel, were cited Monday for "the most misleading, unfair or irresponsible" ad campaigns of 1990 by a coalition of national consumer, public health and environmental organizations.

"Advertisers have developed a seemingly boundless ability to dupe, deceive and mislead the American public," said Bruce Silverglade, legal director for the Center for Science in the Public Interest, a nutrition and consumer advocacy group that organized the awards.

"It's about time we started asking what we are getting for the $125 billion that is spent on advertising each year," Silverglade said. "useful information or a barrage of misleading hype?"

Philip Morris spends more money on advertising than any other U.S. company — over $2 billion in 1989. Procter & Gamble, Seers, Roebuck and General Motors all spent more than $1 billion last year to advertise.

Two of the "lemon awards," a victory statuette holding a lemon, went to the Oldmobile division of General Motors Corp. for television commercials.

In one of the ads, GM claimed to have "pioneered the air bag," but, in awarding the auto maker a lemon, the Center for Auto Safety said in fact the company only briefly produced some full-size cars with air bags in the 1970s and went on to lobby against government regulations requiring air bags. GM now equips fewer of its models with airbags than either the Ford Motor Co. or Chrysler Motors Corp., according to the group.

Another GM ad was cited by the Safe Energy Communication Council for promoting the Oldmobile Cutlass Supreme model as "fuel efficient" even though it gets lower gas mileage than most of the automaker's other models.

The coalition cited Philip Morris print ads for implying that the Virginia Slims Superalms cigarette can help women stay thin; and for print and television commercials championing the Bill of Rights "as part of a public relations effort to defeat governmental restrictions on tobacco promotion."

At a news conference announcing the awards, Texas Assistant Attorney General Steve Gardner said the winners represented "a primary adage in the advertising business which is if you can't make it better, make it up."

In their sixth year, the lemon citations are officially called the Harlan Page Hubbard Memorial.

'Home Alone' holds top box office spot for fourth week

By DAVE McHARRY
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD — "Home Alone" had plenty of company at the nation's box office for the fourth consecutive week, as it continued clobbering its competition with nearly $85 million in ticket sales since its release.

Written and produced by John Hughes, "Home Alone" grossed

$14.2 million at 1,342 screens over the weekend. It should cross the $100-million benchmark before Christmas, with a gross of $84.2 million in its first 24 days for Twentieth Century Fox.

Only 10 other movies in the past decade have led the box-office for four weeks, including "Ghost" and "Pretty Woman" earlier this year.

The film, starring Macaulay Culkin as an 8-year-old boy forgotten at home while his family jets off for vacation, will face competition this weekend from the debuts of Universal's

"Kindergarten Cop," Fox's "Edward Scissorhands" and Tri-Star's sequel, "Look Who's Talking Too."

"Scissorhands," an offbeat comedy starring Johnny Depp as the title character, drew a strong $159,822 in two theaters.

Non-smoking factors affect cancer rates

By ANNEGA KOLBERG
United Press International

Environmental factors besides cigarette smoking may be playing a significant role in boosting cancer rates in industrial nations to an all-time high, a new report suggested Monday.

A greater percentage of people appear to be developing cancer and dying from the disease in developed countries than ever before, concluded a 345-page study released by The New York Academy of Sciences.

Cancer currently causes about 2.5 million of the 11 million deaths reported annually in industrial nations. About one in four deaths in the developed world are due to cancer today, compared with about one in five deaths in 1968, said Devra Lee Davis, co-editor of the report comprised of studies by 24 researchers from 11 nations.

Smoking remains the largest single, preventable cause of cancer in developed nations, accounting for about 30 percent to 40 percent of cancer deaths, primarily from lung cancer, Davis said.

However, even when lung cancer is excluded, deaths from all other types of cancer have risen about 9 percent in men since 1960, Davis said. The cancer death rate also went up among women, but the increase was not as great and a few nations like France even reported a decrease, she said.

An Italian study found cancer was to blame for nearly 40 percent of deaths among people under age 70 in that nation's heavily industrialized Bologna region, and cancer deaths have steadily increased in the area over the past three years.

"It is very important that as we continue our efforts against smoking... we ask what other causes of cancer there are so we can figure out how to prevent those cancers," said Davis, who is an epidemiologist and toxicologist with the National Academy of Sciences in Washington.

Seminole finish third

KESSIMMEE — The girls soccer team of Seminole High School played a tremendous tournament and wound up with a third place finish in the Osceola Invitational in Kissimmee Saturday.

"It was a very long day," said coach Sue Reno. "It was cold, windy and damp. We left Sanford at 6 a.m. and didn't get back until 2 a.m. Sunday. And we had to play all three games in one day, including the last two with no rest. But the girls hung in there and did a great job."

Seminole won the first game 3-0 over St. Cloud with Jenny Bengé getting two goals and Dawn Burke one. Christy Oliver had 13 saves in goal for SHS.

In game two a missed penalty kick cost Seminole a chance to break a 1-1 tie early in the second half as Satellite defeated the Fighting Seminoles 2-1. Seminole's only score came on an own goal by the Satellite goal keeper. Oliver again had a good game in goal with 15 saves.

Seminole came right back with no rest to face Seabreeze in the third place game and the girls rose to the occasion stopping the Sandcrabs 1-0.

Valerie Bengé scored the only goal on a breakaway 12 minutes into the contest.

Oliver and Burke were named to the all-tournament team but coach Reno also singled out offensive players Amy Williams, Darlene Pinto, Lisa Lindamood and Jenny Bengé plus defensive players Valerie Bunge, Chelle Hat-taway, Melissa Robinson, Christina Carey and Sabrina Reall for their outstanding play in the tournament also.

Walsh looks at Bucs

ST. PETERSBURG — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers reportedly want to lure Bill Walsh back into coaching, but they might have a better chance to land him as general manager, a newspaper reported Monday.

The St. Petersburg Times, quoting San Francisco 49ers officials, said the former coach talked with 49ers owner Eddie DeBartolo and Carmen Policy, a 49ers vice president, about various options available to him during last week's 49ers-New York Giants game.

"It was a general discussion, about whether he should get back into football," Policy told the newspaper on Sunday in Cincinnati. "I think it's still his first love. We talked about different situations, and we probably talked more about Tampa than any of the other options."

"Eddie told him it was a good place to live, that it had a lot of what he loves so much about the (San Francisco) Bay area."

DeBartolo said he thinks Walsh would be "ideal" for the Bucs. "But I think that he might prefer to be the general manager instead of being on the field."

Dolphins in playoffs

MIAMI — The Miami Dolphins have clinched their first playoff berth since 1985, and they are not only pleased with the return to postseason play, but how they did it.

"I just got word that we're in. Yea," said Coach Don Shula with a grin. "Of course, that was our first goal going into the season. We've now accomplished that, so we were all pretty happy when that news came."

The NFL office figured out late Sunday night, hours after Miami's 23-20 overtime victory over the Philadelphia Eagles that the win coupled with Cincinnati's loss to the San Francisco 49ers assures Miami of a wild-card playoff berth.

The Dolphins, 10-3, are still only a game behind Buffalo for the lead in the AFC East and play the Bills, 11-2, at Buffalo Dec. 23. The winner of the AFC East seems certain to wind up with the best record in the conference. That will mean a bye in the first round of the playoffs and the home field advantage throughout.

Miami finishes its schedule by playing Seattle at home Sunday, Buffalo on the road and Indianapolis at home in the regular-season season finale.

Level VI's finish in 2nd place

From staff reports

CLEARWATER — The Level VI girls team from Brown's Gymnastics Central of Altamonte Springs did their level V counterparts one better Sunday as they finished second in the Level VI State Championships at Clearwater.

Last weekend the level V team had finished in third place at their state meet at Gainesville.

The meet, hosted by Apollo Gymnastics and Medalist Gymnastics, was won by the American Twisters of Pompano Beach, they also won the level V's. Finishing third through fifth were the Palm Beach Sports Academy, LaFleur's-Tampa, and Gemini Gymnastics of Oldsmar.

Washington, Kennon lead SHS to win

From staff reports

SANFORD — Niki Washington and Kocia Kennon again were the catalysts as the Seminole High School girls basketball team mashed visiting Daytona Beach-Mainland 69-47 at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium Monday night.

Washington, a sophomore, took game high honors with 21 points, 16 rebounds, eight assists and seven blocked shots. Kennon, a senior who signed early with Stetson, contributed 16 points, seven rebounds and seven assists as the fifth ranked (Class 3A) Fighting Seminoles improved to 6-0 on the season.

The girls don't have much time to relish their win however as they go right back on the court tonight as they take on Lake Howell at Winter Park tonight. Seminole will also take on Lake Brantley on Thursday before finishing their pre-Christmas season next Monday against Daytona Beach-Seabreeze.

"We played a much better game tonight," said Seminole coach John

Lyman boys dominate, still lose game

By PHIL SMITH
 Herald Correspondent

LONGWOOD — The Lyman Greyhounds dominated their boy's soccer match with Spruce Creek for 60 minutes but lost 2-0 Monday afternoon at Lyman High School.

Although the Greyhounds outshot the Hawks 30-10, Lyman was unable to capitalize on their opportunities and Zack Corn saved 11 shots for Spruce Creek, improving their record to 4-0-1.

The Greyhounds, now 4-1-1, came out strong and put severe pressure on the Hawks goal.

Lyman's best scoring chance of the first half came only five minutes into the game.

Frank Cipolla out maneuvered two defenders directly in front of the goal and fired a shot from 15 yards away and hit the right post.

The rebound came directly to Mike Sells who directed a strong header from point-blank range but Corn made a good save.

Lyman controlled the mid-field for the entire first half which created many other scoring opportunities.

"We had plenty of chances to put the game away early," said Lyman Coach Ray Sandidge. "But again no one stepped forward to give us any leadership and it cost us."

The Greyhounds outshot Spruce Creek 20-3 in the first half but could not find the back of the net and the contest remained scoreless.

The first 20 minutes of the second half was a replay of the first half.

Lyman put strong pressure on the Spruce Creek goal but were turned away at every chance including a shot by Brian Fooks that rang the post again for the Greyhounds early in the second half.

The momentum took a dramatic turn at the mid-way point.

Max Lins beat a pair of Greyhound defenders near the right corner of the goal box and chipped a shot into the upper-left corner of the net, giving the Hawks a 1-0 lead with 18:25 remaining in the match.

"We got very disorganized after that (goal)," said Sandidge. "We started running around like chickens with their heads cut off."

Rob Annesl put the game away for Spruce Creek in the 76th minute with an unassisted goal.

SCC hoopsters state ranked

From staff reports

BRADENTON — The Seminole Community College men's basketball team moved into the top 10 for the first time this season according to the poll released by the Bradenton Herald.

The Raiders moved into the poll after a 2-1 week and a third place finish in the Brevard Christmas Tournament at Cocoa that saw them raise their season's record to 8-5. SCC has won six of its last seven starts.

Freshman guard Brian Nason was named to the all-tournament team but Sanford's Robert Moore also had a good tournament for the Raiders.

The men will play a pair of games this week, at North Florida on Friday and at home Saturday, before taking off for the Christmas holidays.

The Florida junior college men's basketball state poll for games the week ending December 9, 1990 is as follows (first-place votes and won-lost records are in parentheses):

1. Pensacola JC (8) (9-0) 118
2. Lake City CC (1) (11-0) 78
3. Central Florida CC (10) 71
4. Daytona Beach CC (1) (11-2) 69
5. St. Petersburg JC (8-0) 61
6. Chipola CC (9-3) 48
7. Polk CC (8-4) 47
8. Brevard CC (9-2) 42
9. Edison CC (10-4) 20
10. (tie) South Florida CC (9-5) 25
10. (tie) Seminole CC (8-5) 5

Also receiving votes — Florida College (8-4), Miami-Dade South (5-4) and Palm Beach (5-0).

Dexter Vanzant is the floor leader for Seminole Community College and has been an integral part of the recent turnaround that has seen the Raiders win six of their last seven games.

Raiders women to face Brevard

From staff reports

SANFORD — The rust of a week off and a long road trip took its toll on the Seminole Community College women's basketball team as the Raiders dropped a pair of games this past weekend that broke the teams three game win streak and dropped their record to 4-4 on the season.

SCC lost to Indian River on Friday before giving away a 15 point lead in losing to Miami-Dade Community College, North by eight on Saturday.

"We should have won at least one of the games," said coach Ileana Gallagher. "We could have assured ourselves of a winning record at the Christmas break if we had won one game."

The Raiders will now have to win their last pre-Christmas game tonight at Brevard Community College tonight if they are to have a winning record through the holidays.

The game will be a preliminary game to the men's game and will be played at Brevard's Cocoa campus instead of at Melbourne.

Doing most of the damage for SCC this season have been sophomore's Debbie Olsson and Tina Lester and freshmen Michelle Kumpf, Brandle Groves, Carla Letbetter and Teresa Martin.

After tonight's contest the Raiders will take off until January 7 when they will return home to take on Shaunce College of Illinois at SCC's Health and Physical Education Center.

That game will start a streak that will see SCC play six home games in the month of January.

North Korean delegation begins high-level talks

United Press International

SEOUL, South Korea — North Korean Prime Minister Yon Hyong-muk arrived in Seoul Tuesday voicing skepticism over the scheduled talks with his South Korean counterpart on how to bring the 45-year division of Korea to an end.

Yon arrived at Shilla Hotel in Seoul shortly before noon after an hour drive from the truce village of Panmunjom 35 miles north of Seoul where he crossed the border accompanied by six other delegates, 33 support personnel and a 50-member press corps.

In an arrival statement read by a spokesman, Yon said his group came to Seoul "with a heavy heart" because a series of talks and contacts between the two sides have produced no results that can be presented to the entire Korean people.

Yon said there were "roadblocks in our way to Seoul this time" but his delegation decided to come "taking everything with patience and magnanimity."

Yon was taking issue with the arrest on Nov. 30 of three Seoul dissidents who returned home after attending a North Korea-sponsored meeting in Berlin seeking to push a "pan-national union for national reunification." The government had banned them from the meeting.

"To be frank, the time has past when reunification discussions were monopolized by certain people and when reunification movements were regarded heretical," Yon said.

Yon and South Korean Prime Minister Kang Young-hoon will get together in an open session Wednesday morning at the hotel to meet again the next day behind closed doors.

Blood test reliably diagnoses diabetes

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've believed for some time now that I have diabetes as I have some of the symptoms discussed in newspapers and magazines. How dependable is a blood test for this problem?

DEAR READER: Very dependable. Diabetes is excess blood sugar; therefore, an elevated blood sugar level is diagnostic. There are two common ways of determining this.

A fasting blood sugar, obtained early in the morning after a patient has fasted since the night before, is usually sufficient to diagnose diabetes and to monitor the course of treatment. Most diabetics will have fasting sugars that exceed 120 milligrams per deciliter.

In rare cases, people with mild diabetes or with gestational diabetes (which is present only during pregnancy) may have normal fasting sugar levels. When doctors are suspicious that diabetes exists, they may order a two-hour-post-prandial blood sugar for confirmation. In this test, the patient consumes a large breakfast with abundant carbohydrates and sugar — or the patient can drink cola laced with extra sugar. Two hours later, blood sugar is tested. If the value exceeds 175 mg/dl, diabetes is confirmed. To be accurate, the test must be properly administered; for instance, the patient should not be taking medicines or be dieting, because these factors often falsely elevate sugar levels. The cardinal symptoms of diabetes — excess thirst, excess hunger and excess urination — are frequently associated with other conditions, such as infection, so they are not altogether reliable as an index for diabetes. Moreover, the presence of sugar in urine, long a classic method of diagnosing diabetes, is not as accurate as the blood sugar, because sugar in the blood must rise to high levels before it spills into the urine. Therefore, a moderately high, diabetic sugar-level may cause little or no sugar in the urine.

If you have a history of the disease in your family — you should check with your family physician who, after questioning and examining you, will order the appropriate diagnostic test. Diabetes is treatable with diet and medication.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

North's double led to an optimistic game contract when South made an overbid of four hearts. I think that North, rather than making a takeout double, should simply have overcalled West's weak two-spade bid with two no-trump. That shows the values for a one-no-trump opening, and sometimes a little more. The disadvantage of doubling is that North has no clear-cut decision when partner responds with a suit at the three-level. But the bidding helped South in the play. The queen of spades opening lead could hardly be from A-Q-J, so declarer played low from dummy. East had to play the ace. Back came a diamond to dummy's queen. West might hold the ace of clubs, but declarer was not sure. So declarer cashed ace and king of hearts, led to dummy's diamond ace and overtook dummy's diamond jack with his king. He ruffed his last diamond in dummy and played the king of spades. East discarded a low club. Declarer persisted with another spade from dummy as East let go another club. South ruffed and got off lead with a low trump. East had to win the jack and lead away from the ace of clubs. That was 10 tricks for declarer, and a well-played hand. What would have happened if North had overcalled with two no-trump? Probably South would have passed, and North-South would have missed their four-heart game. (C)1990, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
