New earthquake faults found

PASADENA, Calif. — Networks of previously unknown earthquake faults have been discovered in the central and eastern Mojave Desert by a special Earth-watching instrument aboard a Landsat satellite, scientists said.

The faults, identified by geologists as being of the "strike-slip" variety, were identified in images beamed to the Jet Propulsion Laboratory from the orbiting Landsat 5's Thematic Mapper device.

Terrorist says U.S. showing off

WASHINGTON — A Lebanese militiaman convicted of leading the 1985 hijacking of a Royal Jordanian jet with two Americans aboard denied in an interview broadcast Thursday that he was a terrorist, and he accused the United States of showing off in the unprecedented court case.

In convicting accused hijacker Fawaz Yunis Tuesday, a federal jury handed the Justice Department a victory in its first prosecution of terrorism abroad.

In an interview on the television program "CBS Nightwatch," Yunis criticized the government for bringing him to trial.

Judge Hastings: I am innocent

WASHINGTON — Federal judge Alcee Hastings, saying he is innocent of bribery and conspiracy charges, asked the Senate Wednesday to dismiss 18 articles of impeachment voted against him by the House.

Hastings, a U.S. district judge from Miami, appealed to the Senate to vote his acquittal in a 1985 trial on the charges and to remember the Constitution's protection against double jeopardy.

"I proclaimed my innocence there, as I had from the outset," Hastings said, standing in the well of the Senate. "I have not committed a crime."

UCF touney makes history

LAKE BUENA VISTA — University of Central Florida golf coach Dale Wilson was overjoyed Wednesday. Not only had his nationally-ranked Knights jumped from 12th to fifth in the final round of the 54-hole Budget UCF Collegiate Golf Classic, but he'd help make history in the process.

For the first time on record, an NCAA-sanctioned golf tournament was televised nationally thanks to The Sunshine Network.

Lake Mary finds manager

By SANDRA BOUGHAMINE

LAKE MARY — City commissioners last night asked Robert A. Barcinski, 39, of Delray Beach, to be the next city manager.

He has until Monday afternoon to decide whether to accept the $50,000-a-year position.

Originally from Indiana, Barcinski worked in North Carolina for 8½ years as an administrative assistant, an assistant city manager and budget analyst. He is the current assistant city manager of Delray Beach, which has a population of 47,000.

Barcinski was selected after commissioners interviewed three candidates identified by an executive search firm. He told the commissioners during the interview that he wanted to work in Lake Mary to "get back to quality of life."

"I'm not one who wants to be in the big city atmosphere. I worked in a small, growing community in North Carolina," he said.

The selection was a difficult one with some commissioners undecided for several hours between Barcinski and the two other candidates. They were John Charles Litton, 42, who is Winter Park's assistant city manager and William H. Law Jr., 59, the deputy city manager of Hollywood, Fla.

Commissioners said The Curtis Group of Plantation, narrowed the field three excellent candidates, but that made the decision difficult for them.

Commissioner Bill Greene thanked William

Robert Barcinski

Frank Jr., president of the executive search firm. "He did just exactly what he said he would do. I thank you very much," Commissioner Bill Greene said.

Commissioners each had their opinions of who would make the perfect manager for their city with Commissioners Paul Tremel and Thomas Mahoney favoring Litton, Commissioners Greene and George Duryea initially choosing Law and Commissioner David Menlor suggesting Barcinski. Mayor Dick Foss agreed with Menlor in his selection of Barcinski saying he was "impressed with him."

Before the final decision, it was a toss-up between Barcinski and Litton.

Frank tried to facilitate the commissioners decision by asking them "Which one can you see doing the best with your community?"

Tremel and Mahoney stuck to Litton as their

DNA tests may decide rape trial

By BRAD CHURCH

SANFORD — The identification of Robert B. Powell Jr. of Kissimmee as the person who broke into a Longwood home in September of 1987 and raped a 28-year-old woman is the chief issue in a trial that began in Seminole District Court Wednesday.

Assistant State Attorney Jeff Deen, co-prosecutor of the case, told the jury he intends to identify Powell through DNA tests performed at a New York laboratory. DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid) contains genetic material and is found in every cell of every human. Genetic experts claim identification through a DNA sample is many times more accurate than identification through the use of fingerprints.

Identification of suspects through DNA testing has only recently been used in criminal courts and is still controversial. The state attorney's office intends to call experts to testify to matching DNA from semen stains on the victim's underwear to Powell's DNA obtained from a blood sample.

The method of identification is expected to be on trial in the case.

Eight-minute meeting leaves residents angry

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — A lack of a quorum sent about two dozen frustrated Sanford Landing residents home from the Seminole County Planning and Zoning Commission meeting Wednesday night eight minutes after the meeting began.

The residents were there to protest property owner Joe Baker's plans to change the Creekside development, which includes Sanford Landing, from an all single- and multi-family development to a mixed-use development that includes 12 acres of commercial and 21 acres of light industrial uses.

Creekside is located on 155 acres east of County Road 427 and west of the CSX Railroad right of way and between Bedford and Sanford Avenues.

But because only three of the seven planning board members showed up for the meeting, already rescheduled once from March 8, the three remaining members could not legally vote on land-use changes and rezonings.

"We're very, very, very sorry," said planning commissioner Frank Shelton. Planning commis-

Airport authority will hold talks with airline academy

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN

SANFORD — The airport authority voted yesterday to authorize negotiations with an airline academy that wants to locate at Sanford Regional Airport.

Representatives of Airline Aviation Academy say they hope to have a lease negotiated and prepared for the authority to review at its April meeting. Academy President Scott Williams said he hopes to be operating in Sanford within 90 days of signing a lease.

"The week we move up here our impact will be felt on the Sanford economy," said Jim Williams, chairman of the academy board. He estimates that the academy will bring $2.5 million into the local economy in salaries, housing, and goods and services.

The academy has told the authority it wishes to move its operations from Orlando Executive airport to three buildings at Sanford Regional Airport. Ramp space for at least 28 aircraft will be needed to accommodate up to 60,000 academy flight operations. Jim Williams said.

Scott Williams said the academy has planned up to $150,000 in improvements to the three buildings they will use for maintenance, classroom and administrative uses. In addition to renovating the build-

Hydrogen tank back in operation; shuttle turns into movie studio

United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — Discovery's crew, buoyed by news a critical hydrogen tank was again working properly, powered up dormant electrical gear Wednesday and turned their spaceship into an orbiting movie studio.

Engineers carefully monitored the tank and a heater in the shuttle's electrical power system, and NASA managers said they were confident the problem — which could have forced an early end to the flight — had been fixed.

In Houston, Flight Director Granvil Pennington said Discovery was expected to return to Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., on schedule Saturday after a normal five-day flight. Pennington also said the crew, which was instructed to conserve power Tuesday, was switching lights, backup computers and electrical gear back on.

After Discovery commander Michael Coats threw a switch activating the tank and heater.

Rocket launch delayed

CAPE CANAVERAL — The launch of an Air Force Delta rocket carrying a classified "Star Wars" payload was delayed indefinitely Wednesday night because of last-minute technical glitches, officials said.

The fully-fueled blue-and-white rocket, illuminated by high-power spotlights and visible for miles along the Florida "space coast," had been scheduled to blast off at 8:25 p.m. EST after a secret countdown.

But the countdown went into an unplanned "hold" two minutes and 56 seconds before liftoff, and a few minutes later, Lt. Col. Ron Rand, an Air Force spokesman, announced the launch had been delayed indefinitely.

"This is Air Force Delta launch control," Rand said. "Air Force test director Lt. Col. Bob Taylor reports the launch as scrubbed for tonight."

The delay was caused by two problems: helium trapped in a first-stage engine system that eliminates up-and-down vibrations during the launch and a "sensor problem" of some sort with the spacecraft.

"The launch team is currently evaluating turn-around time," Rand said. "We do not know yet whether it will be 24 hours or longer. This is Air Force Delta launch control."

Appeals court blocks execution

TALLAHASSEE — A man sentenced to die for the 1978 slaying of a Pensacola druggist won a bid Wednesday to delay his death for a third time when a federal appeals court blocked his execution, which had been scheduled for Thursday.

Attorneys for Marvin Edward Johnson, 46, said the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta granted an indefinite stay of execution after U.S. District Judge Maurice Paul in Tallahassee denied the request earlier in the day.

The appeal seeks to have a new sentencing trial ordered for Johnson. The Florida Supreme Court turned down a similar appeal in December.

Johnson is on his third death warrant for the shooting of Woodrow Moulton, 56. Johnson was scheduled for execution in 1982 and last year, but won stays on both occasions.

Johnson was an escapee from a Tennessee prison when he robbed a pharmacy where Moulton was working in June 1978.

As Johnson fled from the pharmacy with the money he had taken at gunpoint, Moulton pulled a pistol and opened fire. Police said the victim emptied the weapon shooting at Johnson, who then walked back into the pharmacy and shot Moulton in the chest.

Prison officials said Johnson, of Starke, has spent the last several days preparing for his execution and apparently thought his appeal would not be successful.

Computer hacking probe leads to firings

ST. PETERSBURG — Terry Cole, news director at television station WTSP, and assistant news director Michael Shapiro have been fired as a result of the alleged computer hacking by Shapiro into the file of a rival station.

The dismissals were announced just prior to the 11 p.m. newscast Tuesday and were reported as the lead story on the broadcast.

Shapiro was arrested by agents of the Florida Department of Law Enforcement last month and charged with raiding the confidential news files of Tampa television station WTVT. He had been on leave of absence since then. Officials would not elaborate on Cole's connection with the incident.

WTSP viewers were told Cole, 32, and Shapiro, 33, were fired "in an alleged computer crime case," and that the dismissals were necessary to enable the station to "move on with our news operation."

"We regret the circumstances which led to this difficult situation, but as a news organization we must avoid at all possible costs any questions about the objective way we do business in keeping the public informed through our newscasts," vice president and general manager Vincent Barreal said in a prepared statement.

Earth Observations nearly unknown

SPACE CENTER, Houston — The chief of NASA's Space Shuttle Earth Observations Office said Wednesday still pictures snapped by the Discovery crew will add to a library of 35,000 photographs taken by shuttle astronauts.

"This is not a well-known program, but it is a national treasure," Charles Wood said of the office charged with tracking the planet's environment. "The program gives us an opportunity to look below at what's happening."

"One of the most remarkable things about this work is that long after we are all gone, these photographs will remain," Wood said. "They will always tell how the Earth looked in 1988, in 1989 and so on. They're historical, and the future will look back at them."

The Discovery crew was asked to photograph 32 terrestrial sites, five oceanic sites and two areas in the atmosphere, depending on weather conditions and other in-flight priorities, Wood said.

Magellan Venus mapper on target

Satellite to be launched aboard Atlantis in April

United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — The $530 million Magellan Venus radar mapper is scheduled to be moved Friday to launch pad 39B, on target for a late April blastoff aboard the shuttle Atlantis, NASA said Wednesday.

A confident John Conway, in charge of shuttle payloads at the Kennedy Space Center, said, "We are on schedule for April 28 (blastoff) for both the spacecraft and the shuttle."

Magellan will map 90 percent of the Venetian surface when it arrives at the cloud-shrouded planet in 1990. NASA is on a strict timetable to place the mapper on its 26 million-mile flight path no later than May 28.

If America's space agency misses that deadline, the ambitious flight will be delayed another two years until Earth and Venus return to their current positions in the solar system.

Magellan was originally slated to be launched with a hydrogen-powered Centaur booster, but that project was abandoned after the Challenger disaster Jan. 28, 1986. Instead it will be powered by an Inertial Upper Stage, or IUS, booster similar to the powerful rocket used Monday to launch the shuttle Discovery's communications satellite payload.

Magellan's rollout Friday comes only five days after Discovery's blastoff. The rollout for Atlantis, which last flew in December on a classified military flight, is set for next Wednesday.

Magellan is slated to be put aboard Atlantis March 25, Conway said, even though engineers encountered a minor problem Thursday with Magellan's ground transporter.

Once in orbit around Earth's nearest neighbor, Magellan will map Venus's surface with a best-case resolution of about 500 feet. That means landmarks, objects and features 500 feet across will be distinguished.

Such high resolution maps of Venus's surface could help scientists learn more about how continental plates move, assuming continental drift is at work on Venus, and could provide insight into "greenhouse effect," in which chemicals in the atmosphere trap solar radiation, raising atmospheric temperature.

Built by Martin Marietta, Magellan will be carried into orbit by commander David Walker, co-pilot Ronald Grabe, and astronauta Mary Cleave, Mark Lee and Norman Thagard. Cleave and Lee are responsible for actually deploying Magellan and its IUS booster.

As with any IUS deployment, once the spacecraft is released from the shuttle it cannot be retrieved if anything goes wrong.

Magellan will be deployed about six hours and 18 minutes after blastoff, Lee said. The crew should be able to see Magellan's two solar panels unfold before the IUS first stage motor fires about an hour after deployment to begin the long voyage to Venus.

Hastings proclaims innocence in bribery, conspiracy charges

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Federal Judge Alcee Hastings, saying he is innocent of bribery and conspiracy charges, asked the Senate Wednesday to dismiss 16 articles of impeachment voted against him by the House.

Hastings, a U.S. district judge from Miami, appealed to the Senate to note his acquittal in a 1983 trial on the charges and to remember the Constitution's protection against double jeopardy.

"I proclaimed my innocence there, as I had from the outset," Hastings said, standing in the well of the Senate. "I have not committed a crime."

But a federal judiciary investigating committee later ruled that Hastings lied in winning the verdict of innocence. The panel said it was fair for the allegations to be considered by the impeachment process, and the House voted the charges of impeachment in August.

Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, told the Senate that Hastings "conspired to sell his public office for personal gain; he subverted our judiciary process by repeatedly lying under oath, and he divulged confidential information in violation of his own court order."

Hastings, 52, asked the Senate to dismiss 16 of the 17 impeachment articles against him. He said legitimate concerns have been raised about his role in the disclosure of confidential information about a 1985 wiretap over which he presided and he is willing to contest that article of impeachment.

The Senate will meet again Thursday to debate Hastings' request. Any charges left standing will be sent to a group of 12 senators who will act as the impeachment trial. If he is impeached, Hastings will be ousted from his $89,500 a year lifetime post.

Addressing the Senate, Hastings spoke with a confident, strong voice, saying he was afforded fundamental justice in a court of law.

"Six years after that verdict, the House claims those proceedings 'don't matter,'" Hastings said.

Train buffs board Silver Crescent for trip to Savannah

United Press International

MIAMI — The Silver Crescent, a domed luxury railroad car that was the Concorde of its era, will make a St. Patrick's Day run to Savannah, Ga., to celebrate the 40th anniversary of the original California Zephyr.

Nearly two dozen train buffs will leave Miami Friday aboard the car, attached to the end of an Amtrak train. There were seven of the round-ended cars built for the Zephyr.

Car No. 881, the Silver Crescent, is the only one in its original condition, said John Hogg, curator of the car for the Gold Coast Railroad Museum in Miami. The museum has spent eight years restoring it and is sponsoring the trip.

Passengers will celebrate St. Patrick's Day in Savannah, then return to Miami Monday. On Saturday, they will celebrate the 40th anniversary of the day the first California Zephyr train left Chicago for San Francisco.

The bullet-shaped stainless steel car was made to ride at the end of the Zephyr. It has four sleeper rooms, a tavern compartment and a lounge. Its most distinguishing feature is the glass dome roof made of 30 rounded double-pane windows.

From the second-story dome room, passengers could gaze in awe at the scenic canyons and rivers of the mountain west.

The Zephyr was a sightseeing train, with the 2,525-mile route planned to take passengers through the most dramatic landscapes during daylight hours. They were advertised as glass-enclosed penthouses, and the Zephyr was called "the most talked about train in the country."

"After World War II, this did an amazing job in getting people interested in tourist travel, in opening up the West," Hogg said.

It was a more elegant day when gentlemen traveled in suits and ties and no lady would board a train without a hat. Fashionable travelers dined on crab louis salad and ate mountain trout for breakfast.

"The car shows the public what it was like to travel first class right after World War II. Passengers looked on this with the enthusiasm that we used to look at space flights. It was so new and so radical. So many people remember it. Visitors to the museum see it and say, 'I rode that train,'" Hogg said.

The restored Silver Crescent has all the original electric systems, fluorescent lights and fittings, down to the overstuffed art deco upholstery and shoe closets. These small square closets have doors that open into the hallway so the porter could polish the shoes and replace them while travelers slept.

Everything works except the heat, which used steam vapor. It would work, said Hogg, but there are no steam engines left to hook it up to.

The only thing Hogg has been unable to find for the trip is an original Zephyrette. They were railroad hostesses who made reservations for the dining cars, pointed out scenic spots along the route and otherwise assisted Zephyr travelers.

"I have contacted three, but two are working and one can't afford the trip," which costs $485 for a sleeping car and $330 otherwise, Hogg said.

The original California Zephyr trains left Chicago once a day for the 75-hour trip to San Francisco, and once a day in the other direction.

Woman reports rape

WINTER PARK — Seminole County sheriff's deputies are investigating a report by a 27-year-old Orlando woman who said she was raped behind a rural Winter Park convenience store at about 7:30 p.m. Monday.

The woman said she was outside the driver's door of her pickup truck at the Circle K, 5009 Howell Branch Road, when two men approached her from behind. One brandished a knife and both took her behind the store, where she said she was raped by both men. She lost consciousness and when she awoke at about 11 p.m. she was alone. Her necklace and ring had been stolen from her. The ring is valued at $400. The woman's wallet, containing $60, was stolen from her truck along with an amplifier, the sheriff's report said. The woman sought medical assistance Tuesday and the incident was reported to sheriff's deputies.

Woman reports stranger in her car

LONGWOOD — When Johnne R. Beaulieu came out of Albertson's, U.S. Highway 17-92, Longwood, at about 4:50 a.m. Tuesday and saw a strange man in her car, she called Longwood police.

Police arrived to find Hillary Edmundo Smith, 31, of 108 Springwood Circle, Longwood, inside the car. The car's ignition had been tampered with. Smith was charged with burglary to a vehicle and attempted grand theft auto. Bond is $1,000.

Arrest made in drawer pull scam

SANFORD — A man accused of getting refunds from area K-mart stores on four occasions, for which he presented counterfeit receipts from a Daytona Beach K-mart store, was arrested at the Sanford K-mart after returning there to try for a second time to get a $93 refund.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies arrested Gary Peter Colwell, 23, of no address, at the store on U.S. Highway 17-92, on Wednesday.

Since Jan. 25 at K-mart stores in Sanford, Fern Park and Lake Mary, the suspect allegedly got $93 refunds for the return of drawer pulls, which were not bought at a K-mart. The same scam was tried at a Winter Park store, but failed, deputies reported.

Colwell is charged with organized fraud and four counts of uttering forged counterfeit receipts. In his car deputies said they found a bogus K-mart receipt book.

Second suspect faces drug charges

LONGWOOD — A Longwood man reportedly linked to sales of narcotics to an undercover City County Investigative Bureau agent was arrested Wednesday night on charges of trafficking in and conspiracy to traffic in oxycodone, a synthetic opiate. A co-defendant arrested March 9 along with two other men in the same case faces the same charges plus other drug charges. A conviction on the opiate charge mandates 25 years in prison and a $500,000 fine.

Michael Arthur Cromwell, 20, of 648 Warren St., Longwood, was arrested at home. He is held without bond and was wanted on four warrants for violation of probation.

The other man charged in connection with the opiate, Gene Revels, 40, of Casselberry, is held in lieu of $200,000 bond.

Suspect in gun threat nabbed

SANFORD — Sanford police report locating a man suspected of threatening to cause Virgil Berry bodily harm about 30 minutes after the incident occurred at 12:15 p.m. Wednesday at 314 E. Commercial St.

A reason for the verbal assault against Berry, 28, of 204 W. 20th St., wasn't reported by police.

The suspect, Gary Geiger, 48, of 1300 Douglas St., Sanford, was charged with aggravated assault at 12:42 p.m. He was arrested at home. Bond is $2,000.

Man accused of stealing plants

OVIDO — A man spotted loading plants into his truck at the Jehovah's Witness Kingdom Hall, State Road 426, rural Oviedo, at about 11 p.m. Wednesday was arrested there on a grand theft charge.

Randy Lee Fleck, 33, of Deltona, was arrested by Seminole County sheriff's deputies who received a report of a theft in progress at the scene. Bond is $1,000.

Two charged in gunplay

FERN PARK — A tip to Seminole County sheriff's deputies led to charges of shooting into an unoccupied building and criminal mischief against two Casselberry men accused of firing several shots at Royal Jeep Eagle, 555 E. Semoran Blvd., Fern Park, on the night of Feb. 27.

Damage to the building, several cars and a large balloon is estimated at more than $4,000.

Noel Ned Nilsson Jr., 29, and Mark Edward Whorton, 29, both of 326 Georgetown Drive, were arrested Wednesday. Bond is $500 each.

Two arrested on DUI charges

SANFORD — The following persons face a charge of driving under the influence in Seminole County:

Suspect arrested in stabbing death

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — The man wanted in the stabbing death of an Altamonte Springs man Saturday was arrested Wednesday morning at a Washington, D.C., bus station.

Police spokesman Jeff Hawkins said Yusuf Abdoul Furgan, 24, is charged with murder in connection with the slaying of George F. Apriligano, 26, of 699-L Sabal Palm Circle.

Police in Washington, D.C., had received a bulletin from Altamonte Springs police describing Furgan, who had reportedly been seen near Apriligano's house around the time he was stabbed several times at about 11 p.m. Saturday.

Furgan was spotted at a bus station and taken into custody. Hawkins said those are the only details he has on the arrest. Police don't know if Furgan will fight extradition back to Altamonte Springs to face the charge, Hawkins said.

Police who responded to a report of a disturbance at Apriligano's apartment Saturday night found his body and were told by witnesses that Furgan had been at the scene. Hawkins said.

A motive for the killing has not been determined. Police did not have a local address for Furgan, but said they had reports he had been staying with someone in the area of Palm Springs Apartments, where Apriligano died.

More hours in the high school day discussed

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — About 75 parents met with Seminole County school district administrators and teachers Wednesday to discuss changing the daily schedule for high schools from six periods to seven.

"We are the only county in Florida without at least an optional seventh period," said Jack Heisler, Director of Secondary Education.

While nothing was decided, board president Ann Neiswender and members Joseph Williams Jr. and Larry Betsinger listened to proposals presented by representatives of Seminole, Lake Mary and Lake Brantley High Schools and the comments from parents and teachers.

Lake Mary's proposal was the most extensive of the three schools, offering four options: the seven 50 minute period day for all students, an optional seventh period beginning at 6:30 a.m., a 7 a.m. option or an after-school seventh period.

Seminole High School's plan offered only two options: the seven 50-minute periods, which would fall within the current school time frame or the addition of an optional seventh period.

Lake Brantley High School's report contained only the partial results of a survey of the school's constituency which indicated that 80 percent of the respondents preferred that the seventh period be included in the regular day, but that "a majority of the students would not participate in the optional seventh period."

Assistant Supt. Marion Dailey said that the proposal had to be looked at in both a positive and a negative light.

"On the positive side, there will be more classes for the students. On the negative side, some students who take full advantage of the seventh period would finish all their class requirements by their junior year and there is always the possibility that the drop out rate would increase with the added load on some students," she said.

Those in favor of adding the seventh period argued it would actually work toward keeping students in school.

Lake Mary High School assistant principal Dee Schumaker said that of the 34 students who dropped out at Lake Mary during the 1987-88 school year, 64 percent said they were dropping out because they were older than their classmates and there was no way to catch up. The trend, she said, was continuing this academic year.

"We feel that the added seventh period will help prevent drop outs," she said.

Most of the teachers who spoke to the board opposed the proposal.

Terry Thompson, President of the Seminole Education Association, stated emphatically that the teachers of Seminole County could not accept the average four percent of their base salary (the $2,000 that the Lake Mary plan proposed as an option for paying teachers already on staff, as opposed to hiring new teachers) as compensation for the additional 180 hours of teaching they would be given annually for an additional class.

Dailey agreed that any salary discussions would have to be a part of a collective bargaining agreement.

"Until then, most of this discussion is useless," Thompson said.

Oviedo High School science teacher Rich Harris felt the money that would be required to implement the seventh period option would be put to better use in updating classrooms and textbooks.

"Currently, I have science books that are 1979 editions," he said. "In these books the space shuttle hasn't flown and there hasn't been a Challenger disaster."

Harris also said that while the school has added new buildings, he was teaching science in an unequipped storage closet.

The board listened to all the options and agreed that more discussion would have to follow continued study of the problem and the proposals for solution. They also agreed that even if an agreement could be reached soon, it would not be feasible to implement a plan until the 1990-91 academic year.

Caesarean dilemma

A study showing that approximately 500,000 Caesarean sections were performed unnecessarily in U.S. hospitals during 1987 raises frightful questions about the quality of medicine. The study by Public Citizen, a Washington consumer-advocacy group, reported that Caesarean operations were performed in 24.4 percent of all U.S. births in 1987, climbing to a new high for a 12th straight year. Physicians generally agree that only about 12 to 16 percent of mothers require the procedure, according to Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of the group.

The Washington study group states that the use of Caesarean sections rather than normal labor can increase the risk of death or illness for mothers, substantially raise the cost of having a baby and exact a "psychological toll" on the mother.

An earlier study by the National Center for Health Statistics in Hyattsville, Md., found that the United States leads 19 of the most industrialized nations in the number of C-section births, with the procedure being 50 to 200 percent more common here than in the other countries.

Last month in Chicago, doctors at Mt. Sinai announced success in lowering the Caesarean rate from 17.5 percent to 11.5 percent of deliveries in just two years by instituting rules for performing C-section operations that start with requiring a second opinion before surgery in all but emergencies.

The clear implication of these revelations is that all too many obstetricians and hospitals are putting women and their babies at inappropriate risk of death and infections. This outrageous practice warrants prompt a detailed investigation. The C-section procedure of cutting through the abdomen and uterus to deliver the baby averages more than $3,000 above the costs of vaginal deliveries.

Many other factors are raised to complicate the question of when C-sections are appropriate. Some experts say that once a woman has the operation, subsequent babies must be delivered the same way because of a danger of the old uterine incision breaking under the strain of a vaginal delivery at term. Some say that avoiding the rigors of natural birth helps deliver a premium baby.

The Mt. Sinai rules are rejected by some institutions as an increased risk of malpractice suit. One of the rules, for example, is that difficult birth is considered to be an acceptable reason for a C-section only if a woman fails to deliver after two hours of strong, regular, uterine contractions. The fear of episiotomy, a vaginal incision to ease natural delivery, is said to be a strong motivating factor for women to have the operation. The level of a patient's medical insurance is the factor. And, a startling consideration for doctors, it is said, is the delivery-room decision that accommodates on-time tee-off at the golf course.

Obviously, serious ethical questions about a basic medical service vital to mothers and babies remain unresolved by the profession. If the medical profession cannot discipline its members against unnecessary, dangerous, and money-grabbing surgery, the undesirable alternative for society may well be to invite government surveillance and control of the profession.

The politics of selecting judges

GRAPEVINE, Texas — "The politicization of our judiciary," says angry Texas Supreme Court Chief Justice Thomas Phillips, "has undermined confidence in the judicial process at home and made us the object of ridicule abroad."

Characterizing recent campaigns for judgeships in the state as "the most expensive judicial elections in the history of the world," Phillips is pressing for reform of the current system. It allows individuals and organizations with a direct interest in pending litigation to make generous campaign contributions to judges who will decide those cases.

But one of Phillips' most outspoken colleagues, Supreme Court Justice Oscar Mauzy, says the chief justice is promoting meaningless reforms to secure a lifetime appointment for himself while undermining the democratic process.

"Phillips has endorsed a system under which all judges would be appointed in a backroom process controlled by special interests and then, after the fact, those appointments would be submitted to the voters for meaningless rubber-stamping," says Mauzy.

The public feud between these two members of this state's highest court illustrates the extent to which judicial selection has become an especially disputatious issue not only in Texas but in other states across the country.

In Ohio, for example, a group known as Citizens for Merit Selection of Judges touched off a fierce statewide controversy when it successfully circulated petitions to place a proposition on the November 1987 election.

The reform proposal, similar to what Phillips is advocating in Texas, called for establishment of a merit selection commission whose membership would have been equally divided between lawyers and non-lawyers. In addition, no more than half of the members could have been affiliated with the same political party.

The commission would have nominated the three presumably best qualified candidates for each court vacancy and the governor would have had to select the new jurist from that list. Each judge then would have faced the voters in an up-or-down retention election (without an opponent) every six years.

Although the proposal had the support of the Ohio State Bar Association and the League of Women Voters, it was opposed by the state's AFL-CIO and Democratic Party. On Election Day, voters rejected it by almost a 2-1 margin.

The nation's inability to decide upon a generally acceptable method of judicial selection is reflected in the disparity of systems used by the various states. Some rely on appointments, while others prefer elections.

In some states with elections, the candidates are designated by party, while in others they are not. In states with appointments, judges are selected by governors or legislatures. Some states offer judges virtual lifetime appointments, some have retention elections, and some rely upon reappointment by a governor, legislature or commission.

Although elections unnecessarily politicize the process, the appointment alternative is not without its faults and critics. It can, for example, be dominated by powerful law firms, wealthy attorneys and their corporate clients.

The commission would have nominated the three presumably best qualified candidates.

Government dances a minuet

WASHINGTON — If you want to understand the growing public cynicism with the political process and Washington, the current savings-and-loan bailout effort provides a perfect case in point.

President Bush lists his S&L rescue plan as one of the proudest achievements of his fledgling administration. Leaders of the House and Senate, when criticized for the slow start of the two-month-old 101st Congress, say a bit defensively that hearings are under way on at least one urgent problem — the thrift institutions.

But on Main Street, the message coming from both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue is heard very differently. What voters see is not the responsiveness of government to a problem threatening the stability of the financial system, but the stark fact that the public is about to be socked with a bill experts say will top $100 billion over the next decade to clean up a mess the politicians did their best to sweep under the rug during the last election campaign.

Now that problem is being addressed in the usual Washington way, in an intricate minuet between the administration and Congress, with maneuvers so fancy and language so confusing that only the insiders can follow or participate in the game.

What the public grasps is that rather than the issue being debated openly between presidential candidates at a time when voters could make their wishes felt at the ballot box, it's now being negotiated among financial-industry lobbyists, their friends in Congress and a set of unelected administration officials.

The public will have the privilege of picking up the bill, but otherwise will be told, not very politely, to butt out.

It was no secret last fall that the $5 billion Congress had voted in 1987 to sustain the federal fund guaranteeing S&L deposits was going to be grossly inadequate to cover the losses among those thrift institutions which had stumbled into trouble in the permissive climate of 1980s deregulation.

Late last September, my Washington Post colleague Jerry Knight wrote accurately that the S&Ls would provide "the first economic crisis of the 41st presidency." But, he pointed out, "neither George Bush or Michael Dukakis has said a word about it yet."

A few days later, Dukakis did raise the issue, saying Bush in his role as the deregulation maestro of the Reagan administration had let "the ticking time bomb" explode. But neither Dukakis nor Bush came close to suggesting a solution. They recognized that any credible plan would require them to address budgetary and tax issues both were trying desperately to avoid.

Their conspiracy of silence meant that the voters never heard the vital policy choices discussed, never got a chance to express their own views about where the bailout bill should be sent and how those responsible for the disaster should be held to account.

Instead, those issues are being thrashed out now, long after the election is over, and in forums where few of the small depositors and taxpayers have much influence.

True, the fear of voter reaction caused the Bush administration to back off its early thoughts of "taxing" depositors directly for the bailout. But that "victory," if it was one, is likely to be short-lived. As Congress now mulls how to split the bill between S&L operators, depositors and the general tax-paying public, the voices that are most urgently and frequently heard on Capitol Hill are those of savings-industry lobbyists.

The pending report from the House Ethics Committee on Speaker Jim Wright (D-Texas) will remind everyone of the coziness between key legislators and thrift-industry operators. Their pattern of mutual back-scratching led to the defeat last November of former Banking Committee Chairman (and S&L buddy) Fernand St. Germain (D-R.I.), who was more open than most in accepting favors from those his committee was supposed to monitor.

If the S&L case were an isolated instance, it would be bad enough. But sadly it is all too typical of the growing separation between campaigning and governing. As campaigns are drained of substance by the manipulations of candidates and campaign consultants, voters hear less and less that gives them a feeling they have a real stake in the outcome.

The choice increasingly turns on matters that are contrived or ephemeral. When did you last hear President Bush talk about the Pledge of Allegiance?

But voters are not dumb. They understand that to govern is to choose. And when the hard choices are concealed in the campaign period (as they were in the S&L case), they do not disappear. Instead, the choices get made in a more intricate, concealed Washington power game, where only the insiders can effectively play.

The message coming from both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue is heard very differently.

Medicare pays for patients' easy chairs

WASHINGTON — When it comes to slashing the federal budget, maybe the government should stop buying thousands of overstuffed recliner chairs for Medicare patients.

Medical supply companies bombard Medicare recipients with hard-sell pitches for $900 motorized seat-lift chairs — recliners that lift and tip forward to make it easier for a person to get out of the chair. Aggressive salespeople suggest that the owner of the chair can watch television in more comfort and "at no charge!"

There is a charge, but the taxpayers are paying it. A recent investigation by Richard Kusserow, inspector general of the Health and Human Services Department, reveals that Medicare often buys the mechanized lounge chairs for people who don't need them. Our associate Jim Lynch obtained an un-released copy of the draft investigative report. Several firms make and distribute the chairs, but the probe focused on the sales practices of Queen City Home Health Care of Cincinnati.

The company uses television, newspapers and toll-free telephone numbers to market its lift chairs. The chairs are so popular that Queen City needs more than 60 telephone operators to field incoming calls from its huge target audience — the nation's 33 million Medicare recipients.

In one year alone, 1985, the government paid for about 700,000 chairs — a cost of $63 million.

Seat-lift chairs have been covered by Medicare as "durable medical equipment" since 1978, and there is no doubt that some people need them. But the federal government and even some doctors have carelessly abdicated responsibility for deciding who those people are.

The furniture distributors make their pitch directly to the consumer. He or she decides the chair would be a nice item to own, especially if someone else pays the bill. The doctor is often the last one to know. Doctors merely sign on the dotted line of a form sent to them by the distributor after the consumer is hooked.

In most sales, Medicare recipients get the chair at little or no cost. Medicare then pays the seller directly, and the current rate is $891.95 a chair. One investigator suggested that $636 would make more sense, based on the value of the chair. But Queen City argues that its top-dollar advertising costs warrant a reimbursement rate of more than $1,200 per chair.

Investigators were disturbed by what they see as a trend toward Medicare "consumerism" where the patients, not the doctors, are deciding what they need based on a high-pressure advertising pitch.

Investigators discovered that physicians often authorize chairs for patients they have not seen in years, or have never seen. When asked if a chair was part of the prescribed treatment for his patient, one doctor told investigators, "The patient wanted the chair and her daughter felt it would help when mom is in the living room watching TV."

In Texas, one contracted Medicare carrier trimmed its chair purchases from $7.3 million to $10,700 a year. How? Simply by reminding doctors that misrepresentation of the facts on a Medicare claim is fraud and could result in civil penalties. Suddenly their patients didn't need as many chairs. The inspector general's report says it's time for the Health Care Finance Administration to reconsider whether the chairs qualify as "durable medical equipment."

There is a charge, but taxpayers are paying it.

Stocks open higher

United Press International
NEW YORK — Prices opened higher Thursday in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues, extending gains won in the previous session as investors digested the latest economic reports released by the government.
 The Dow Jones Industrial average, which rose 14.29 Wednesday, was up 4.64 to 2325.18 shortly after the market opened.
 Advances led declines 420-255 among the 1,133 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Early turnover amounted to about 9,324,000 shares.

 Early Thursday, the government said that February housing starts fell 11.4 percent, compared with a revised increase of 7.2 percent in January.
 Separately, the government said that the nation's factories, utilities and mines operated at a seasonally adjusted 84.3 percent of capacity in February, and U.S. industrial production was unchanged from the previous month.

Dollar moves higher

United Press International
 The dollar was mostly higher Thursday in active trading against key foreign currencies despite a round of concerted interventions by major European central banks. Gold moved lower.
 Market watchers in New York said the West German Bundesbank sold dollars for German marks in the open market. The Swiss National Bank also was reported to have sold dollars for Swiss francs.
 Currency traders said the Bank of England and the central banks of France, Italy, Austria and Belgium also participated in the intervention.
 Traders in New York said the intervention was not surprising given the longstanding assumption that the West German mark is at the top of the target range agreed to by the Group of Seven industrialized countries.

 The amounts of the dollar sales were unclear, but traders said the intervention was sufficient to interrupt the dollar's strong trend.
 In Tokyo, the dollar soared to a 23-week high against the Japanese yen closing at 130.73 yen, a jump of 0.85 from Wednesday's close of 129.88 yen.
 Dealers said the dollar's close was the highest since Oct. 11, 1988 when it finished at 131.15 yen.

Housing starts down

United Press International
WASHINGTON — Higher interest rates in February sent the housing industry reeling, knocking new house construction down 11.4 percent, the biggest drop in nine months, the Commerce Department said Thursday.
 Construction of private houses was launched at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1,498 million units in February, down 11.4 percent from the revised January rate of 1,690 million units, the department's Census Bureau said.
 That was the largest drop since May 1988 when housing starts dropped 11.7 percent and it follows a 7.2 percent rise in January, which analysts attributed to warmer-than-usual weather.

 The decrease was concentrated in single-family housing construction, which plummeted 13.1 percent in February to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1,045 million units, the bureau said. That was the largest drop since March 1984, when single-family housing starts dropped 25 percent.
 Apartment and condominium construction was also off 7.2 percent in February.

 Coats, 43, co-pilot John Blaha, 46, James Baglan, 37, Robert Springer, 46, and James Buchli, 43, spent the day playing Hollywood and shooting footage for a $4.5 million documentary on the battered environment and entitled "The Fragile Earth."
 The high-flying Blaha studied Lake Victoria and Mount Kilimanjaro in Tanzania using a high definition IMAX movie camera. The crew also beamed home a video panorama of sunny Florida, from Tampa to the "Space Coast," as well as a violent electrical storm near

The major item on the agenda Wednesday, however, was the 5-year-old orbiter's power system and mysterious pressure surges in one of three tanks of "cryogenic" or supercold liquid hydrogen needed by Discovery's electricity-producing fuel cells.

 Williams said extensive landscaping has been planned for the school campus.
 The academy now has 68 full-time employees and 140 students, but Jim Williams said the school will grow to about 150 students by the end of the year.
 Jim Williams said he has been looking at rental housing for students in Sanford. Two staff members have purchased homes in the Sanford area, and three others are looking for homes

 Sanford was selected for the new location because it offers a safe environment for student aviators with a lighter density of traffic than Orlando Executive, Jim Williams said. The Sanford airport also offers an opportunity to expand classrooms and hangar space, he said.
 The school operates year round and offers a six-month training program for commercial and private aviation training.

Trial

 as well as the defendant.
 Michael LaFoy, co-defense attorney with Arthur Haft, told the jury in his opening statement, "The only issue in this case is identification. The victim was unable to identify her attacker because his face was covered with a mask."
 LaFoy said he would question the experts from the laboratory which performed the DNA tests about "their quality control and the accuracy of their tests."
 He also told the jury that the tests involve "only an infinitesimal part of a person's DNA."
 He said although the figures quoted vary, scientists say the chances are "one in 6 million" that more than one person could have identical DNA samples. Those figures are based on the laws of probability, he said. "The scientists have not tested 6 million people's DNA to prove they are right," LaFoy said.
 Defense Attorney Haft told the jury that evidence normally used as identification was not found at the crime scene or in the victim's car, which Power is accused of stealing. He said although the apartment where the assault took place was dusted by Longwood police for fingerprints, no fingerprints that matched Powell's were found. He also said Powell's fingerprints were not found in the victim's car, which was recovered in Kissimmee near Powell's home, and no hair or tissue samples which could be identified as coming from Powell were found at either the crime scene or in the car.
 The victim of the sexual assault was the first witness in the trial Wednesday afternoon.

Testimony began after two and a half days of jury selection in which prospective jurors were extensively questioned by attorneys and Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. about whether they had heard or read anything about the case or Powell.
 Powell is also charged with four rapes in Osceola County and the rape and murder of 12-year-old Angela Bare in Orange County.
 Attorneys also questioned prospective jurors about whether they had any preconceived ideas about identifying people by DNA.
 Powell is on trial for 11 separate crimes, including burglary in connection with the break-in of the Longwood home, two counts of sexual battery using a knife to threaten the victim, kidnapping, two counts of aggravated assault with a knife, robbery of items from the victim's purse including the keys to her car, criminal mischief in slicing the screen on a window to enter the home, theft of jewelry and food from the home, burglary of the victim's car, and grand theft of her car.
 The victim told the jury she was staying at her sister's apartment at the sister's invitation on the night of the assault. The woman said her sister left to meet a friend and she fell asleep on the living room couch with the television on without the sound, and with the stereo on.
 She told the jury she was awakened by a man putting a knee on her back and touching a knife to her throat. The man said "shut up and listen to me or I'll slit your jugular and you'll be dead in a minute."

 As she tried to struggle, she said she cut her hand on the knife and got a glimpse of the man, who had a bandana tied around the lower part of his face.
 She said the man tied her hands behind her back and threw a blanket over her head and she heard him ransacking the house, pulling out drawers and ripping cloth. She said she saw from under the blanket as he ripped a couch pillow up with the knife. The man asked her whether there were any guns in the house and if it was her car parked in front of the residence, she told the jury.
 She testified she could then hear him eating and drinking, and he then returned to the couch and forced her to have oral sex with him. The man then pulled her slacks and underwear off and raped her on the floor, holding the knife to her throat.
 The man then threw the blanket over her again and walked through the apartment several times, she said. He came back and tied her feet and hands together, then stuffed a wash cloth into her mouth and tied a strip of cloth over it.
 She said she heard him empty her purse, which was in the kitchen, and hear her keys jingle. She told the jury she knew he was gone when she heard her car start and drive off.
 The woman said she tried to manipulate the telephone with her hand, but it was dead. Then, wearing only a shirt and one stocking, she managed to get the door open and hop to a neighbor's home and ring the doorbell with her head. The neighbor let her in and untied her and called police.

 sioners Mike Davis and Harry Hagle joined Shelton in thanking the residents for attending.
 Planning commissioners Harry Kwiatkowski, recently appointed to the board, chairman Sue Lewis, and John Tracy and Emery Roenbluth did not attend the meeting.
 "You build us up then let us down," commented one resident in the audience.
 The meeting has been rescheduled to next Wednesday.

March 22, at 6 p.m.
 A heavy schedule of 20 land-use changes and other items have dragged the planning and zoning meetings on from 8 p.m. until past midnight during the last two weeks.
 The controversial Plantation land use change near the Wekiva River and consideration of the Lake Mary Boulevard corridor gateway zoning change caused the first meeting March 1 to be concluded at 1 a.m. after planning commissioners considered only eight of the scheduled 14 items before them.

 The remaining six March 1 items were rescheduled until March 8, where another 11 items were already scheduled to be considered, including Creekside. Planning commissioners completed nine of the items before concluding the meeting at about 11:30 p.m. The remaining eight items were to be considered for Wednesday night.
 County commissioners begin considering the items forwarded with planning commission and public comments on March 28.

 first choice while Greene and Duryea changed their minds in favor of Barcinski. Meador's decision did not vacillate.
 Mahoney said he was more impressed with Litton than any of the other candidates because of his experience in budgeting, finance and personnel.
 He said to bring in someone without those strengths would cause the city to "bleed to death one ounce a day."
 Tremel favored Litton because he said he would fit well in the community because he had been "living down the road from us for 10 years."
 Mahoney made a motion to rank Barcinski as the number one candidate and offer him a starting salary of $50,000 with $300-a-month car allowance and 90-day severance pay and payment not to exceed $5,000 for relocation costs. In addition, after six months, he will be reviewed for permanent status with the city. The deadline for Barcinski's decision should be Monday by 5 p.m.

 Fess said this morning that he called Barcinski at his hotel last night to make a verbal offer to be followed by a written offer which Lauderdale said last night would be dictated immediately following the meeting. Fess said Barcinski plans to bring his family to Lake Mary on Saturday.
 Barcinski is married and has a teen-age daughter. He holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Marketing and Research from Purdue University and worked towards a master's degree at the University of Southern California. He also studied budget preparation. Barcinski is a member of numerous associations including the chamber of commerce, International City Managers Association, Florida City and County Managers Association and American Society for Public Administration. He served with the United States Navy for five years and received an honorable discharge in 1976.

 Barcinski, if he accepts the city's offer, would succeed Bob Norris who left last August to take a position in Neptune Beach.
 Commissioners said if Barcinski refuses their offer, Litton is their next choice.

Rehnquist appeals for pay raise

WASHINGTON — Supreme Court Chief Justice William Rehnquist made an extraordinary appeal Wednesday for a 30 percent pay hike for federal judges in order to avert a "serious threat to the future of the judiciary."

Rehnquist, holding his first news conference as chief justice to make the plea, said the Judicial Conference of the United States, which he heads, made a unanimous recommendation at its semi-annual meeting Tuesday to seek the raise.

"This is the single greatest problem facing the judicial branch today," Rehnquist said. "Failure to adequately address this issue would pose the most serious threat to the future of the judiciary and its continued operations that I have observed."

Gesell rules some secrets can be told

WASHINGTON — U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell ruled Wednesday that some secrets about Central America can be used at Oliver North's trial to show nations in the region helped to support the Contra rebels.

The defense swiftly used Gesell's decision to show U.S. officials including President Reagan secretly approved millions of dollars for Honduras in 1985 in exchange for that nation's protection of rebels based there.

Bush returns to Texas

HOUSTON — President Bush returned to his political roots Thursday to defend the record of his 2-month-old administration Thursday, boasting progress on a range of domestic priorities and assuring those who question his pace that "more is going on than meets the eye."

"I've come home to Texas to tell you we're hard at work in Washington," Bush said in remarks prepared for a luncheon appearance in his adopted hometown. "and we're making progress."

Competing child care plans filed

United Press International

WASHINGTON — A Senate committee and the White House produced competing child care plans, with the panel proposing $2.5 billion in payments to parents and President Bush suggesting expanded child care tax credits.

Bush, producing the first paperwork on a concept he promised during the campaign, also proposed Wednesday increasing funding in fiscal year 1990 for the Head Start program by $250 million to benefit an additional 95,000 children.

The cost of his two proposals was estimated at $187 million in the next fiscal year, increasing to $2.5 billion by FY 1993.

Bush's proposals were rushed to Capitol Hill the same day the Senate Labor and Commerce Committee approved 11-5 a dueling $2.5 billion plan at direct odds with the administration's proposal. The Senate legislation is reflective of a bill that died on the Senate floor last fall in a filibuster. It also was ready for a quick vote in the House next week.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater, announcing details of the Bush plan, conceded that timing was important and promised the president will push for his proposal. "The president obviously will lobby considerably," Fitzwater said, adding that the competing plan was "one of the reasons we wanted to get ours up there as soon as possible."

"It's a matter where there is a direct philosophical difference between Republicans and Democrats, liberals and conservatives," Fitzwater said. "But it's a debate everybody wants to have because both sides of the Congress recognize there is a need and a desire to do something."

An aide to a sponsor of the Senate bill said talks were expected to develop a compromise that can be presented on the Senate floor next month.

A Bush spokesman said later the administration plan would provide a refundable tax credit of a straight 14 percent of incomes below $7,134; would provide the maximum benefit of $1,000 per child from that level to $8,000; then would progressively decline until the $13,000 limit. By fiscal year 1994, the upper limits would scale to $15,000 to $20,000.

The spokesman also acknowledged that Bush's proposal did not address availability or quality of child care. "It's simply a different issue," he said, striking to the core of Bush's conflict with the Congress on the issue.

Bush weighs opinions on F-16 agreement

United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Bush continues to weigh differing viewpoints within his Cabinet over the terms of a deal to aid Japan in building an advanced version of the F-16 fighter, White House aides said Thursday.

Bush, who the aides said gave the general go-ahead to the project in November and remains supportive, spent two hours Wednesday hearing arguments from his top national security advisers on the proposal to help Japan build the military aircraft, called the FSX tactical fighter.

The aides said opponents of the plan argued the deal would be a giveaway of U.S. technology, while backers urged that it be approved to avoid a disruption in relations with Japan. Any major modifications in the plan could force a renegotiation of the plan that was outlined during the Reagan administration.

The Japanese have asked for a decision by March 31, the end of their budget year.

Shortly after the meeting, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater, who attended, said Bush presided from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. and reached no final decision.

"The president made no decision," Fitzwater said. "He listened to all the arguments and said he would take them under advisement."

White House aides reiterated Thursday that Bush had made no final decision, and reported that during the meeting the president heard vigorous arguments against certain aspects of the proposed deal and had asked for further information.

Bush now is weighing how best to safeguard American technology and improve U.S. access to Japanese technology.

IN BRIEF

BASKETBALL

Anderson spurns Milwaukee

Rookie Willie Anderson dominated at one end of the court, made a big play at the other and the San Antonio Spurs came up with four good quarters Wednesday night to hold off the Milwaukee Bucks.

Anderson, who scored 25 points, blocked Ricky Pierce's shot right in front of the basket at the buzzer to preserve the San Antonio Spurs' 110-108 victory over visiting Milwaukee.

"We played a l i f f o u r quarters, and that's the key," said Anderson, the Spurs' 6-foot-7 rookie out of Georgia. "We have no super stars, everybody contributed."

In other games, Cleveland routed Chicago 115-91, Philadelphia nipped New Jersey 100-96, Utah downed Portland 102-95, Golden State rolled past Dallas 113-100 and Miami topped the Los Angeles Clippers 109-103.

PREP TENNIS

Lyman girls net Lake Howell

Heather Huddleston and Amy Smith each won their singles matches, then teamed up to post a win at No. 1 doubles Wednesday as the Lyman Lady Greyhound tennis team (3-5, 2-3) defeated the Lake Howell Lady Silver Hawks 4-3 in Seminole Athletic Conference action at Red Bug Lake Park.

Playing at No. 3 singles, Huddleston defeated L. Pope of Lake Howell 8-3 while Smith was beating K. White 8-1 at No. 4 singles. In the doubles match, Huddleston and Smith beat Mina Allin and Pope 8-6.

The other Lyman win came from Karen Hamman at No. 5 singles, who beat N. Salamone 8-5.

Lake Howell (1-5) got its points came at No. 1 singles, where Allin outlasted Tracy Sher 9-8 (7-5), No. 2 singles, N. Kay defeating Stacy Oasin 8-3, and No. 2 doubles, Kay and White teaming up to get past Hamman and Angie Evans 9-7.

Both teams will play again today, Lyman meeting Dr. Phillips and Lake Howell hosting Edgewater.

BASEBALL

Injuries strike Winfield, Guidry

Yankees slugger Dave Winfield will likely miss the early portion of the regular season because of a back injury and veteran pitcher Ron Guidry may undergo elbow surgery that could end his career.

Winfield underwent a battery of tests for the second straight day and acknowledged Wednesday he may "miss a significant part of the season" because of back pain that has hampered him all spring. His absence would leave the Yankees with a substantial void entering the season.

In spring training action yesterday, the Baltimore Orioles blanked the New York Mets 4-0, the Texas Rangers beat the Detroit Tigers 4-1, the Houston Astros knocked off the Montreal Expos 6-5, the Milwaukee Brewers got past the Seattle Mariners 4-2, the Toronto Blue Jays nailed the Pittsburgh Pirates 10-8.

HOCKEY

Kings get Roy-al treatment

Patrick Roy celebrated an addition to his family Wednesday, then added to his home winning streak by defeating the best offensive team in the NHL.

Roy, whose wife had given birth earlier in the day, turned away 24 Los Angeles shots Wednesday night, tying a 45-year-old club record by extending his home winning streak to 25 games with a 5-2 victory over the Kings.

"This is the most exciting day of my life," Roy said. "This morning I became a father for the first time, and then tonight I equalled a record that hasn't been touched for a long time. I don't know which is more exciting."

Joyce hooks 'Cudas

Curveballer strikes out 12 as 'Noles beat New Smyrna

By MARK BLYTHE
 Herald sports writer

SANFORD — James Joyce came alive in the final two innings, striking out the final six batters, to lead Seminole to a tough 4-1 victory over New Smyrna Beach Wednesday afternoon before 101 fans at Seminole High School.

The Tribe improved to 5-8 overall and will return to action next Tuesday against Trinity Prep. The Barracudas dropped to 5-7 for the season.

"(James) Joyce pitched an excellent game," Seminole coach Mike Powers said. "His curveball was on and they (New Smyrna) couldn't adjust. His fast ball wasn't working too well, but well enough that he could use it when he had to."

Joyce finished with 12 strike outs, which included three pressure-packed whiffs in the top of the sixth inning. New Smyrna had a runner advance all the way to third, off a double and a passed ball with no outs before Joyce retired the next three batters at the plate to get out of the jam.

"That was the turning point right there," Powers said. "We didn't let up and James went right after the batters like he's supposed to. We lost 2-1 over at their field last week and had they scored their it could have hurt our spirits."

Joyce gave up just four hits, two of which came in the first inning when the 'Cudas scored their only run. Joyce also came up with 10 strike outs, out of the possible 12 outs, to keep New Smyrna off the bases.

The Barracudas opened the scoring in the top of the first, as after an out, Clinton Evans singled and stole second. After the second out, a ground out by Tommy Tomazin that moved Evans to third, Kevin Cronlinski doubled to left to plate New Smyrna Beach's lone run.

Seminole evened the score in the bottom of the third inning when John Wilkes opened the inning by drawing a walk. After a popped up bunt attempt Tony Shavers drew a walk and Ron Cox followed with a run scoring single up the middle, tying the score at 1-1.

Joyce then came up with two strike outs and a ground out to put the 'Cudas out in order in the top of

Waring is silver lining for Raiders

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald correspondent

We are always told that every cloud has a silver lining.

After Seminole Community College's baseball team got off to such a bad start, it seemed like it would be a season full of clouds. But sophomore pitcher Jim Waring has turned out to be the Raiders' desperately needed silver lining.

Waring, a 6-1 170 lb. right-hander from Lake Brantley High School, had not done any pitching on the high school or college level until this past fall. Even then, Waring said, it was kind of an accident.

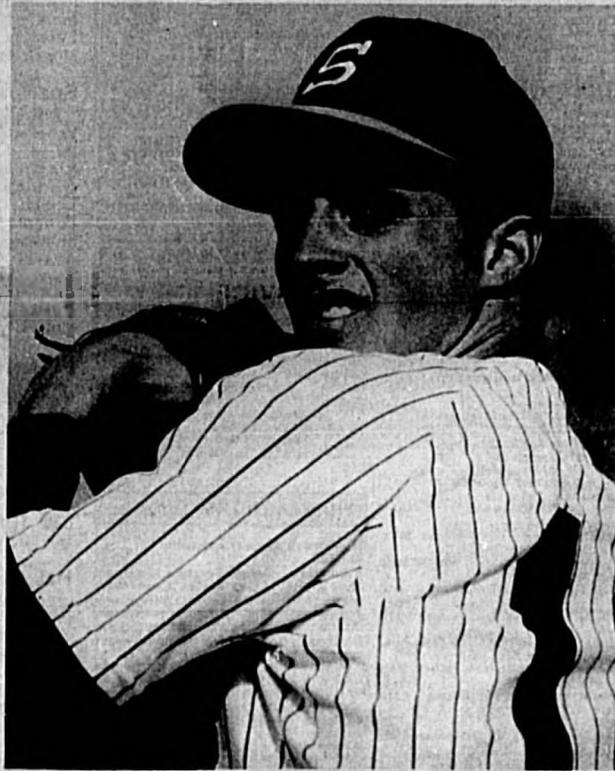

"Coach Pantellas had a couple of prospects coming in to try out in the summer and asked me if I would help work them out," Waring explained. "After I had caught one of them, I asked if he would catch me and I guess coach was impressed because he said he might have to use me as a pitcher this year. I knew I could pitch but I liked hitting too much so I didn't say anything."

So far this season, Waring is 2-5 on the season but carries a solid 4.30 earned run average (a good mark for junior college competition) and has struck out 36 while walking only 25 in 58 innings of work.

Waring was an infielder his sophomore and junior years at Lake Brantley but Coach Mike Smith was forced to move him to center field his senior year when a rash of injuries struck the team.

As a freshman at Seminole, Waring played second base and hit .214 with four doubles, one home run, and drove in eight runs. He only committed eight errors and fielded a .940 clip, but where he really excelled was with his speed, stealing 11 bases in 12 attempts for a .971 percentage.

impressed with other aspects of Waring.

"Last year when we were losing so much and everyone was grumbling, Jimmy was out there trying to help us recruit new players for this year," Pantellas said. "That showed a lot of character and pride in the school."

"He has done a great job for a first-year pitcher," added Pantellas. "He was messing around one day and I was impressed with his arm action and how hard he threw."

"On the mound, he is always composed, always in control. He does not let errors or other things bother him on the mound. He is a smart pitcher. He can quote you word for word what I tell him to do. When he was hitting, you could tell him something and five minutes later he would forget."

Waring, the son of Richard and Sue Waring of Altamonte Springs, says he likes the change to pitcher.

Lady Lion defense forges win

By JIM RICKENBACKER
 Herald Correspondent

CASSELBERRY — Will the real Oviedo Lions' offense please stand up.

What has been a feast-or-famine season offensively for Oviedo's softball team mattered little Wednesday. Oviedo's defense, along with Becky Jacobson's RBI single, dealt District 3A-8 rival Kissimmee Osceola a 1-0 setback at Red Bug Park.

At times, the Lions have lived up to their name by badly belting either district or Seminole Athletic County opponents. There was the 24-1 shellacking of Lyman and last Friday's 19-11 victory over Orlando Jones.

Then there've been the days of an absentee offense. A 3-2 victory over DeLand and Wednesday's district victory that left the Lions 2-0 in the district standings.

"We play our season aiming towards a district title," said Oviedo coach Jackie Miller, whose team hit that goal last season. "It's great to win SAC games, but when the regular season's over it's the district title that gets you the state playoffs."

What pleased Miller the most Wednesday was defense. She said there were no game-saving grabs. Just the kind of fundamental consistency coaches long for game in and game out. And it lasted all game from an outfit consisting mostly of underclassmen.

The Lions (3-2) got all the offense they needed in the fifth inning.

Junior pitcher Lisa Hollon, who handcuffed Osceola (8-3) with a three-hitter, got the ball rolling with a single. And Jacobson lashed a two-out single that scored Hollon from second.

UCF Classic makes collegiate golf history

By JIM RICKENBACKER
 Herald Correspondent

LAKE BUENA VISTA — University of Central Florida golf coach Dale Wilson was overjoyed Wednesday. Not only had his nationally-ranked Knights jumped from 12th to fifth in the final round of the 54-hole Budget UCF Collegiate Golf Classic, but he'd help make history in the process.

For the first time on record, an NCAA-sanctioned golf tournament was televised nationally thanks to The Sunshine Network.

Hand-held cameras recorded Monday and Tuesday's opening rounds on the New Course at Grand Cypress Resort. Wednesday's final round at that 14-month-old layout was live and had the capacity to reach millions on either Home Sports Entertainment, Prime Ticket, Sports Vision or other outlets.

Doubleless anyone that witnessed Wednesday's finish under sun-kissed skies got an eyeful of of excitement.

Oh yes, University of Arizona All-American Robert Gomez led wire-to-wire and wound up at 6-under-par 209 — six shots better than runners-up Mark Turlington of South Florida and teammate Greg Lehmann.

But the team race turned into a battle of the Wildcats when upstart Kentucky scorched the front side of this Scottish-oriented track.

Kentucky, which started the day four shots behind ninth-ranked (Florida Golfweek's national rankings) Arizona, played the first seven holes under par. Arizona, meanwhile, was besieged by bogeys on the front nine.

Coming into the par-5 17th, Kentucky held a three-shot advantage — and momentum.

Then four Arizona players registered birdie fours, and Kentucky played the hole 1-over. Kentucky's last-ditch chances disappeared when ultra-talented Olen Grant bogeyed the relatively easy par-4 18th to open the door for Arizona's four-shot victory (872-876).

"Kentucky came out and played great early."

said Arizona coach Rick LaRose, who plans to caddy for U.S. Amateur champ and former Arizona All-American Eric Meeks in next month's Masters. "Kentucky played better than a lot of teams that are nationally ranked and definitely deserve to be in the Top 20."

Wilson wished his Knights could have taken advantage of the ideal conditions over the first two rounds.

Buoyed by par 72's from Palm Bay's Kevin Altenhof (finished ninth individually) and Hans Strom-Olsen and Andrew Rice's 73, Central Florida (904) rallied Wednesday with a 7-over 295.

"This is the way we could have played all three days," said Wilson, noting that the tournament netted nearly $50,000 for the school's golf program. "But the main thing is that we had a hand in making history with the first nationally-televised collegiate golf tournament."

"And that's got to ensure us of getting more quality teams in the future."

Lady Raiders split with FCC-J

By DEAN SMITH
Herald correspondent

JACKSONVILLE — The Lady Raider softball team of Seminole Community College split a doubleheader with the Lady Stars of Florida Community College Tuesday, winning the opener 4-1 and dropping the nightcap 2-1 in Mid-Florida Conference action.

The split made Seminole's overall record 18-8 and 7-3 in conference play, while FCC-J is now 19-6 overall and 6-3 in the conference.

Seminole will play only its second contest at home today when they take on the Lady Saints of Santa Fe Community College in a Mid-Florida Conference doubleheader starting at 3:00 p.m. The games will be played at the softball field located behind the baseball field on the SCC campus.

Coach Heana Gallagher of the Lady Raiders was much more upset with the loss than elated with the victory despite playing a team that has been tough for Seminole to beat in the last few years.

"We outthit them 7-3 in the second game," she said. "We should have scored more than one run. We did not give up an earned run all day. We could have had two shutouts."

In the opener, Seminole took control early. Julie Clark led off the game with a single and Traci Smith reached on an error. After an out, Theresa Lisk lined a single to center to score Clark. Smith and Lisk advanced a base when the center fielder bobbled the ball. Sandy Rodriguez then scored the both runs with a single and SCC led 3-0.

The nightcap was a different story as the Stars got two of its three hits and a big fielding error by the Lady Raiders to score both of its runs in the fifth. Meanwhile, Seminole had seven hits but was unable to score until the fifth, when Migliori tripled and Arrowood hit a sacrifice fly for SCC's only run.

Migliori again was the top hitter for Seminole, going 3-for-3 with the triple.

but.... "I like it when I am pitching. I like being in control of the game. But I really miss not playing every day, not so much playing a position, but not getting to hit. I really miss not getting to hit. I get antsy sitting on the bench and waiting four days for my next start."

Waring is a good student carrying a 2.8 GPA but is undecided about his future. "Seattle has shown a lot of interest and might draft me. But I think I want to go on and finish college. Stetson has offered me a scholarship so far."

Pantelias believes Waring has a bright baseball future.

"He probably would have more college offers if he had pitched last year," said Pantelias. "Teams are just now finding out about him and if he keeps doing as he has been, the offers will come."

"Jim has all the tools to become a professional. He throws the ball in the mid to upper 80's and has a good breaking ball and change up. It's up to him. One problem he has had is that he has never been in good shape. Because of his arm action he uses very little energy, but as he moves up, he is going to need to be in great condition."

Waring is more concerned with the present than the future. "We're starting to come along. The guys are starting to hit and score some runs. Early in the season the pitching was good but we couldn't score. Now we are scoring and but giving up more runs. I guess it's time for us pitchers to bear down harder."

"We have gotten along good as a team this year and I think as we start to win, it'll get even better. It's nice knowing you don't have to go to the mound and throw a shutout every time to win. It's really good to see guys like Dale Stevens, Byron Overstreet, and Mike Turner start to hit. I think we are going to be alright."

the fifth. Then he allowed New Smyrna's its final hit of the game, a misjudged line drive to right field that sent Kevin Cronlinki to second.

A passed ball in advanced Cronlinki to third before Joyce settled down and went after the batters. Joyce needed just six pitches to pick up the first two outs, all curveballs, before getting Dale Robinson looking to get out of the jam.

"These kids never quit," Powers said. "They keep coming at you, they've been that way in every game this year, they play tough all the way through. We had quite a few players come through for us today, we had a bunch of players out of position because of illness and everyone played great."

Longwood's founding mothers

Woman's club has invested in its community

By BANDRA BOUCHAMINE
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — One might go so far as to say the Longwood Civic League Women's Club has helped to raise Longwood into adulthood. After all, it did once loan money from its coffers to the city, according to Louise Buffaloe.

Seventy-eight years ago, 13 women organized to form the Longwood Civic League Women's Club, said Buffaloe, a 25-year member and trustee of the organization. The first president was Mrs. W.A. Hardaway.

The club is still going strong despite declining membership, Buffaloe said. Today, there are 30 members, but Buffaloe recalls the days when people had more time to be involved.

"We've had as high as 65 to 75 members. People don't have the time. Everybody's busy," she said.

But Buffaloe added, "I've been involved in club work all my life. I enjoy it."

The woman's club meets in a building at 150 W. Church Ave. that is historically significant in itself. Built in 1884 of rough-hewn lumber and batten board, it may possibly be the oldest building in Longwood. It was the home of the West Longwood Pioneers and the Self Union, and the West Longwood Chapel on West Longwood, now Markham Woods Road. The building was abandoned for a while until the civic league took it over in 1912.

Believed to have once been a schoolhouse, the building was the center of all social, political and school functions for many years. It was the place residents gathered for such entertainment as Saturday afternoon movies. The building was moved twice from West Longwood and near Markham Road. After the woman's club purchased it, they moved it to its present location on Church Street.

"At that time, Longwood had nothing at all," Buffaloe said. "That was more or less the meeting hall. The members felt it was a civic league. Anything the community had, they had to meet in our hall. Any political rally, Red Cross or anything in the community."

According to a 1936 account in the Sanford Herald: "The league met first in the hotel. Soon a chapel was bought and moved to its present location. It is now known as the library...the league bought a lot for $50, and was given another by Mr. Robinson of Sanford. Additions cost the league $1,356."

The building is pictured on Dement's Bird's Eye View Map of 1885, a copy of which the club is attempting to preserve.

The Maxine McGrath Memorial Library, a privately owned library, was enclosed on the building porch in 1912 by the club members. Today, it is still sponsored by the club. The library is a repository for many older volumes and original books not found in larger, more modern libraries, and is sometimes used for research.

Blanche Kissane, 93, club parliamentarian, has been the librarian for the past 15 years. The library was recently renamed the Maxine McGrath Memorial Library in honor of the club's first lifetime trustee, who died in 1986.

To support the club, the women have conducted fundraisers like bake sales and raffles.

In July 1926, the club loaned the city $550, according to Buffaloe. The city paid the money back in 10 payments until July 1942, when a final $50 payment was made, she said.

"We didn't charge them interest," Buffaloe said.

Every September, the women try to boost club membership by holding a membership tea, inviting anyone who is interested in becoming a member to attend.

Buffaloe said today it is hard keeping membership up because people are busy and because subdivisions are like towns where activities are held within themselves.

"It kind of makes us sad at times. Most of the ladies are getting older and it makes it hard," Buffaloe said.

Members pay annual dues of $5. The club holds activities such as an annual bazaar the weekend before Thanksgiving. Last year's bazaar earned $81 from a book sale. Last month, members raffled off a handmade afghan.

An annual spaghetti supper will be in October.

In honor of longtime Longwood residents, the club sponsors an annual Oldtimer's Reception every spring. It attracts people from everywhere to gather and reminisce about old times. This year, the reception will be held next month.

"We've had people come from as far away as Fort Myers who used to live here," Buffaloe said.

The Woman's Club recently

did minor repair work to the building, painting it inside and out and reinforcing the floors and understructure. Ceiling fans and an air conditioner/heater were installed and the roof has been repaired and sealed.

Officers until next month are Marion White, president; Ila Scott, first vice president; June Lormann, second vice president; Frances Wade, recording secretary; Ila Harp, corresponding secretary; Louise Buffaloe, treasurer; and Blanche Kissane, parliamentarian.

For more information about the club, call 830-5022.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My mother, 49, has mild to severe headaches all the time, has to carry paper towels around for her constant nosebleeds and has blood pressure around 150/110. Doctors can't find anything wrong. She also suffers from a heart condition, diabetes and thyroid. I'm concerned she'll have a stroke.

nasal lining that rupture from injury or irritation. This can be cured by cauterizing, a procedure during which a physician electrically burns the bleeding blood vessel to stop it from leaking.

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

(C)1989 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

DEAR READER: Your concerns are justified.

First of all, your mother's blood pressure is too high. It should be below 140/90. Although she is not likely to have a stroke from blood pressure that is 150/110, I am sure that at times of stress or exertion, her blood pressure rises to dangerous levels — and those higher levels could predispose her to a stroke. Her moderately elevated blood pressure is probably causing a strain on her heart; however, I question if her hypertension is the major factor in her "heart condition."

Second, diabetes — a metabolic disease that leads to premature aging — adds risk. Diabetics have a higher incidence of stroke (and heart trouble) than do normal people. She must make sure that her diabetes is kept under good control with an appropriate diet and, if indicated, anti-diabetes medicine.

Third, thyroid disorders commonly affect the heart. Underactive and overactive thyroid glands, if untreated, can cause heart disease, which, in turn, can lead to heart failure and stroke.

Finally, the headaches and nosebleeds. Headaches, a common complaint that many individuals experience, can be the result of uncontrolled hypertension. The fact that your mother has constant, severe headaches may indicate that her body is responding adversely to her high blood pressure. Nosebleeds, too, can accompany hypertension, although most are due to tiny blood vessels in the

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

We've all made bad doubles, and I think East was silly to double four hearts. But he thought that the opponents had arrived there gasping and wheezing and that his partner probably held five hearts. Well, he was right. But in a different deal North might have been moving toward slam, and then East would have been redoubled with dire consequences. Not only that, but in today's deal the double should have helped declarer find the winning play.

and led another spade to beat the contract.

How could South do better? If South assumes that one of the opponents holds five hearts, which is the only rational explanation of the double, then after ruffing the third spade and playing to the king of hearts, he should take a different tack. Without playing a second trump, he should go after clubs. When they split, let him play a fourth club, discarding a diamond. Although West can ruff in, he can't lead the fourth spade because of the small trump left in dummy. Declarer will regain the lead and draw the remaining trumps to make his contract. Obviously the only justification for this approach is the penalty double, which should alert declarer to the 5-1 trump split.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
March 17, 1989

Although you won't go about it in a selfish manner, you are likely to have very strong personal interests in the year ahead. As you move forward, you'll find ways to carry those you love along with you.

You have a big plus going for you today, which is your inclination to be a realistic visionary. Ways can be found to bring your conception to practical fruition.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Challenges aren't likely to intimidate you today, instead they are apt to serve as motivators to stimulate your desires for achievement. If you are aroused to succeed, chances are you will.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Friends will be receptive to your suggestions today if you share your ideas with them instead of trying to foist your views on them. Be a teacher, not a preacher.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Usually we do not perform too well when we put pressure on ourselves, but today could be an exception. You're likely to work better when you race against deadlines.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In your decision-making process today, strive to be both logical and imaginative. You'll be quick to perceive facts and able to use them creatively.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your organizational abilities are especially keen today, so if something you're working on needs to be systematized, do it now. You can bring order out of confusion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your feelings for your friends could be quite intense today. If one of your pals lands in a tight spot, you're apt to be the first to offer assistance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You are still in a very favorable cycle where your material interests are concerned. There's a possibility you can profit more from an ongoing situation by adding some imaginative touches.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your powers of persuasion should be extremely effective today. When you talk about ideas or ventures you're presently promoting, others will sit up and take notice of what you have to say.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In business matters today maintaining a slight aura of mystery about your intentions could put you in a stronger bargaining position. Keep your trump cards in reserve.

Hungarians rally for independence

United Press International

BUDAPEST, Hungary — More than 50,000 people demanding a neutral Hungary free of Soviet troops staged a five-hour march through the capital to mark the nation's declaration of independence 141 years ago.

The march Wednesday, organized by 31 independent groups, was the largest since 50,000 Hungarians marched on the Romanian Embassy in June 1988, and the largest Independence Day rally in decades.

Independence Day was celebrated officially for the first time by the Hungarian Socialist Workers Party, but the party's event attracted only about 6,000 people as independent groups declined an invitation to join in the sanctioned celebration.

The peaceful and mostly young crowd marching in the unofficial event stopped at four historic sites, concluding their rally with a symbolic occupation of Hungarian Television on Budapest's Szabadsg Square.

Prompting cheers, a sign raised on the steps of the massive building echoed a similar sign during the ill-fated 1956 uprising that called for free Hungarian radio.

After three weeks of negotiations with the independent groups, executives of Hungarian Television agreed to broadcast the events on the square during prime time.

"No one should fear for the television," said Csengey De-nes of the Democratic Forum, one of the leading alternative groups. "We shall take good care of it because it is ours."

Actor Gyorgy Cserhalni read numerous demands by the independent groups, among them calls for a multi-party system, a legitimate state "to replace the police state," a neutral and independent Hungary, justice for "martyrs" of the 1956 uprising, and the withdrawal of Soviet troops.

The crowd, which at times sang battle songs from the 1800s, saved its loudest cheer for when the demand for dissolution of the workers militia was read. The militia is considered an armed force under control of the Hungarian Socialist Workers Party, the communist party.

March 15 marks the start of the 1848 revolution and unsuccessful war of independence from Austria, but the holiday was dropped in 1949 soon after the communist takeover.

Until two years ago, independent attempts to stage rallies or demonstrations were broken up by police.

There was a moment of silence in the square in memory of 200 demonstrators killed there Oct. 25, 1956, during a demonstration when troops, believed to be secret police, opened fire on the crowd with machine guns.

Police headquarters said only about 100 patrolmen were deployed along the designated route of the march.

Soviets debate agricultural reform

United Press International

MOSCOW — The Communist Party Central Committee opened debate Thursday on President Mikhail Gorbachev's call for "radical changes" in the Soviet agricultural system, including less state control and more emphasis on individual initiative.

The official Tass news agency heralded Gorbachev's proposals Wednesday as a return to Lenin's revolutionary slogan of "Land to the Peasants," basically giving individual farmers a rare chance to accumulate wealth under the communist system.

One key element raised by Gorbachev was allowing farmers to build as large a house on their individual plot as they can afford — a clear break with the strict egalitarianism now demanded by the party in rural areas.

In a rare admission of failure by a Soviet leader, Gorbachev acknowledged Wednesday that the "super ministry" he set up in November 1985 as one his first major reforms had been a disaster.

Opening a two-day plenum of the 300-member Communist Party Central Committee, Gorbachev said the U.S.S.R. State Agro-Industrial Committee, known as Gosagroprom, should be closed in a major step toward decentralization.

The Soviet leader bemoaned the chronic inefficiency of the farming sector and urged sweeping changes in all aspects of rural life, including movement away from large-scale state and collective farms to small-scale lease-held plots run by families or small groups of "share holders" in a joint stock company.

"The shortage of food creates social tension and generates not merely criticism but actual discontent," Gorbachev said. "So far we have been unable to find a radical solution to the food problem despite the fact that the country possesses great potential. We need an agrarian policy that will secure radical changes in rural development."

But he warned that radical reform likely would lead to increases in retail food prices within the next two to three years as agriculture became self-financing and market-driven and state subsidies were cut.

He said as an incentive to both state and private farmers, the prices paid to producers would be raised beginning in January 1990. After that, consumers were likely to be forced to pay more as well.

But at the core of his reform is decentralization of agriculture. He said more responsibility would be placed on the country's 15 republics to oversee agriculture within their own borders.

It was a clear admission that Gosagroprom, a consolidation of almost 20 different ministries ranging from those responsible for fruit and vegetable production to tractor manufacturing, had been a failure.

Expelled priests forgiven

United Press International

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — President Daniel Ortega, moving to mend relations with the Catholic Church, authorized the return of 10 foreign priests expelled in 1984 and conditionally approved the resumption of church media activities.

Ortega made the announcement Wednesday after meeting with Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo to discuss the deterioration of church-state relations in the wake of the expulsions.

The priests were accused of "participating in politics," which the government said was a threat to national security.

In addition to the 1984 expulsions, the government confiscated a printing press belonging to the Social Promotion Commission of the Archdiocese of Managua, and closed the Catholic radio station.

"We dealt with specific points concerning the return of 10 foreign priests to our country, who had been affected by migration orders that terminated their residence in this country," Ortega said.

Ortega also said the Archdiocese of Managua would manage its printing press "once it has complied with the required corresponding laws. And at the same time the Radio Catolica news program will be reinstated."

Obando y Bravo said the meeting with Ortega was conducted in the spirit of "common good and the reconciliation of the Nicaraguan people," but added that Ortega did not mention four more priests who were expelled later.

Late Tuesday, Nicaraguan lawmakers fulfilled a pledge by Ortega to Central American leaders last month by pardoning 1,894 members of the ousted Somoza government's notorious National Guard.

The National Assembly voted 68-4 for the pardons after a heated nine-hour debate, but decided not to free 39 prisoners singled out by a legislative commission as "highly dangerous" to society.

Jorge Samper, legal counsel to the assembly, accused the 39 former guards of raping women, machine-gunning teenagers and torture. In his report, Samper also said among the 39 were those who killed five members of the Sandinista National Liberation Front leadership.

Assembly President Leticia Herrera said the resolution approved by lawmakers covered 1,894 "former Somocista guards" scheduled to be released Sunday.

Salvador election prompts strikes

United Press International

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Leftist guerrillas blacked out much of the capital Thursday and launched a three-day transport strike aimed at paralyzing the country before Sunday's presidential elections.

As campaigning drew to a close Wednesday, unknown assailants killed a Salvadoran-born U.S. citizen and suspected rebels hurled explosives from a moving car at a house near the presidential palace, causing minor damage and no injuries.

The transport strike that started at midnight left the streets of San Salvador deserted early Thursday except for heavily armed government soldiers. A rebel attack on power lines plunged the city into darkness as the strike got under way.

The transport stoppage was expected to last at least three days, but the leftist Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, known by its Spanish acronym FMLN, has not said whether it will remain in effect during Sunday's balloting.

Rebel Radio Venceremos warned that any vehicles found on the roads during the strike would be considered military targets.

"You can smell the fear in the air," a Western diplomat said of the building tension, although he predicted the guerrillas would allow balloting to go forward on Sunday.

Automatic rifle fire and mortars punctuated the night silence, adding to the growing climate of tension just four days before Salvadorans were to elect a successor to President Jose Napoleon Duarte.

Federico Cristiani, presidential candidate of the favored National Republican Alliance, known by its Spanish acronym ARENA, wound up his campaign with an enthusiastic rally Wednesday in the town of San Vicente, about 30 miles east of the capital.

A blackout in San Vicente interrupted Cristiani's speech to a crowd of about 3,000 cheering people. But Cristiani resumed the speech minutes later under lighting provided by portable generators and blamed the blackout on Duarte's ruling Christian Democratic Party. "I told you those Christian Democrats don't want the truth to be heard," he said.

A government ban on political activity was scheduled to go into effect Thursday and last through Sunday.

A poll released Tuesday by the Jesuit-run Central American University in San Salvador gave Cristiani a 14 percent lead over Fidel Chavez Mena, the Christian Democratic candidate. But the poll indicated neither Cristiani nor Chavez Mena would win an outright majority Sunday, forcing a runoff election later this spring.

Rebel attacks on power lines left nearly 60 percent of the country without electricity Wednesday, officials said. Many Salvadorans stocked up on food and gasoline for the weekend.

Military officials said rebels attacked two military bases and five towns before dawn Wednesday in one of the biggest assaults in recent months.

The rebels said they killed at least seven government soldiers and wounded 16 in an attack on the 4th Military Brigade headquarters in El Paraiso, about 30 miles north of the capital in the Chalatenango province.

The Defense Ministry said 12 guerrillas were killed and 20 more were wounded in the fighting and said only two government soldiers were killed, while six more were wounded.

In other politically related violence, Francisco Peccorini, 73, a Salvadoran-born American and activist in right-wing politics, was shot to death in his car Wednesday by unidentified gunmen who pulled their vehicle next to his car in the capital, authorities said.

While there was no immediate claim of responsibility, a U.S. Embassy spokesman called the attack "an obvious political assassination."

Israel accuses Arafat

United Press International

JERUSALEM — An Israeli military commander said PLO chief Yasser Arafat was aware of the mission of two well-armed Palestinians who were captured when they tried to attack an army post.

The two Palestinian teenagers were captured Wednesday after they infiltrated the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip from Egypt, the army said.

The guerrillas sneaked across from Egypt's Canada refugee camp abutting the edge of Gaza, in the first infiltration across the southern border since the 1988 Dimona bus hijacking in which three gunmen and three Israelis were killed.

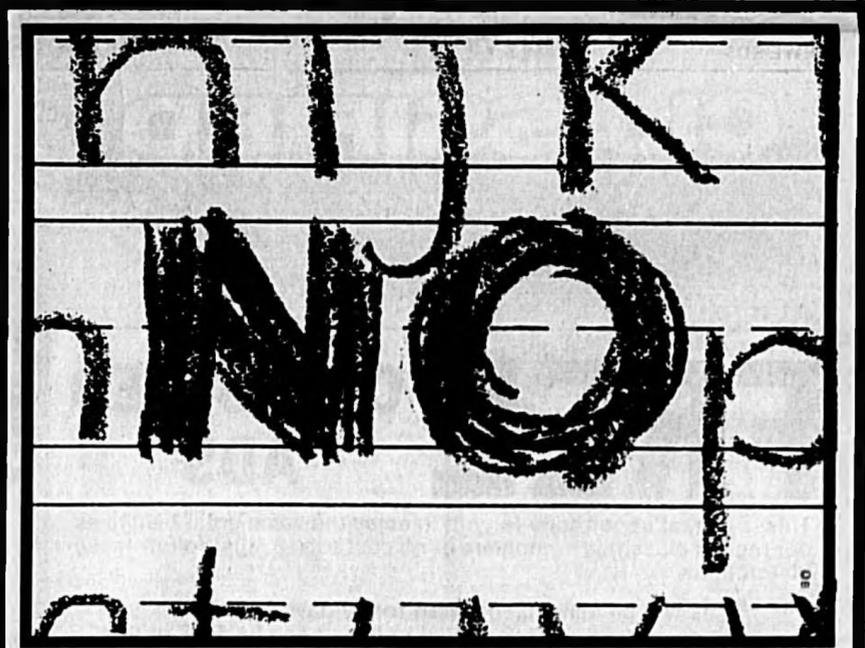

Maj. Gen. Yitzhak Mordechai, commander of the southern district, told Israel Radio the Palestinians told investigators they were sent by the Islamic Jihad and that Palestine Liberation Organization chief Arafat "knew about their missions."
