Holiday Inn owner Bob Welch said he is prepared to offer Sanford a $1-million project, above right, with three buildings housing a retail outlet, food service and a two-story office building. The development would be connected by a boardwalk and include a public beach and picnic area. Story on both proposals, page 2A.

Longwood Bondsmen Ask Charges Be Dropped

Bounty Hunter Rights Issue In Kidnap Arrest

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer
The "original" right of a bounty hunter to go anywhere and get his man collided with refined Ohio statutes Thursday when two Longwood bail bondsmen were arrested in a Cincinnati suburb and charged with kidnapping and burglary. The bondsmen reportedly tried to spirit a Sanford fugitive back to Seminole County after he jumped bond on theft and fraud charges. "I don't know where in the hell Ohio gets their law from. They apparently don't want to apply the law," said John Hayes, an associate of Freedom Bail Bonds where the men worked in Longwood.

The bondsmen, Charles Davis, 34, of Casselberry, and Jerry Fontana, 26, of Maitland, were to appear in court today to argue that a U.S. Supreme Court decision gives them the right to collect a person and not be held liable for criminal action, Hayes said.

The men were released on $20,000 bond each.

They were arrested about 9:15 a.m. Thursday by police in Springdale, Ohio, while reportedly trying to put Randy Congleton, 29, of 117 10th St., Sanford, into a van, according to Springdale Police Detective Dave Koening.

Koenig said the police had received a report of a burglary in progress at the home of Congleton's friend. When police arrived they saw the men struggling with Congleton while trying to stuff him into the van.

Davis and Fontana were charged with kidnapping and aggravated burglary, Koening said.

Koenig said Congleton was See RIGHTS, page 2A

Atheists Leave Without Their Express Cards

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) — Atheists say they won't leave home with their American Express cards because the company is denying membership to Madalyn Murray O'Hair's American Atheist Center.

Brian Lynch, a spokesman for O'Hair, said Thursday American Express rejected a request that the center become a member establishment, allowing it to transact book and magazine sales, and collect dues and donations on the credit card.

Lynch said members of the atheist group, also known as the Society of Separationists Inc., have torn up their American Express cards, returning them to the company with indignant letters.

In a letter to the society, the firm said "For business reasons, American Express policy is not to allow the charge card to be accepted for transactions that involve religion or politics."

The atheists responded that it was "curious about the scruples and morals of American Express (because) they allow any massage parlor to accept charges from card holders. Hopefully, card holders don't get massaged by American Express."

The atheist center is served by Visa and Mastercard.

'Nothing Wrong With Brakes'

Officer Suspended After Patrol Car Hits Gas Pumps

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer
A Sanford police officer whose patrol car was destroyed in an accident two months ago has received a 30-day suspension for doing the same to two gas pumps early Sunday morning.

Officer Alvin McGill, 28, of Sanford, was suspended without pay for "failing to use evasive action" during an incident in which his patrol car caused $3,000 worth of damage to pumps at the Park Avenue and 13th Street Fina gas station, acting Chief Charles Fagan said today.

According to Fagan, the disciplinary action also requires McGill to attend defensive driving school and, upon returning to duty, be assigned to the foot patrol "indefinitely." The officer has been with the Sanford police department for three years, Fagan said.

McGill was uninjured and the patrol car "only scratched" in the 5:27 a.m. Sunday accident, said Fagan, who is heading the department while Police Chief Steve Harriott attends a law enforcement seminar in Tallahassee.

Officer McGill reported he hit the pumps at 15-20 mph after the patrol car's brakes gave out. However, Fagan said a departmental investigation has determined that although "no drugs or alcohol were involved" and McGill "is probably right" regarding the car's speed, "there was nothing wrong with the brakes."

When tested on the scene by police officers and at the department's garage by city mechanics, "they were in perfect working order," Fagan said.

In a report issued to the department Thursday, city mechanics Jim Linder and Carl Higgs stated, "The brakes could not have failed."

When McGill was told this, "he still maintained they did," the acting chief said. The Evening Herald was unable to reach McGill regarding the incident.

Fagan also said today's disciplinary action took the officer's overall departmental driving record into consideration.

According to Fagan, one example of this "not very good" record is McGill's Sept. 25 collision with a car driven by an off duty Longwood police officer. McGill had been transporting a prisoner to Seminole County jail when the accident occurred at

Flapjacks Floppier, But Cake Race Hot

By Susan Loden

The cakes were cold but the competition hot in the tradition-breaking Golden Age Games pancake race which saw eight-time gold medalist and two-time silver winner Minnie Kane of Sanford step out of the game to give newcomers a chance at the gold in the women's race.

And the cakes weren't their usual solid, wind resistant selves either, with McDonalds Restaurant replacing game official Paulus Stevens as the official pancake preparer.

Mrs. Stevens set aside her special recipe, which always included a touch of body building sand or sawdust to steady the flapjacks against the wind. Mrs. Stevens said McDonalds volunteered to take the skillet out of her hands and she's not one to turn down a bit of help.

"I believe in putting people to work," she said. But in an effort to firm up the flapjacks, which were made with the restaurant's usual mix, they were cooked a bit longer and then dried.

"I hope it will work all right," Mrs. Stevens laughed.

And by the end of the races between 15 women in two heats who were followed by eight male runners, the pancakes held their own, even though they were recycled through the races and given a pre-race sand coating by

Helms Panel Issues Subpoena For Soviet Seaman

RESERVE, La. (UPI) — Four people bearing a subpoena for sailor Miroslav Medvid boarded a Soviet freighter late Thursday night, but there was no word whether the man who twice jumped ship would be turned over to the Americans.

The two congressional aides who brought the subpoena from Washington were accompanied onto the Marshal Konev by translator Irene Padoch of New York, who says Medvid definitely wants political asylum, and the jeweler who first encountered Medvid — dripping wet — after he jumped ship Oct. 24. The subpoena — written in English, Russian and Ukrainian — demands that Medvid appear before Congress in Washington.

It was issued earlier in the day by

Senate Agriculture Chairman Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who said he was trying "to save this young man's life."

George Dunlop, a staffer on the Senate Agriculture Committee, said U.S. Customs Commissioner William von Raab assured Helms the ship would be prevented from leaving the Mississippi River until the subpoena could be served and acted on.

The subpoena was taken to Louisiana by two of Helms' aides, who arrived in New Orleans about 6:30 p.m. EST and spent several hours with Customs officials before heading to Reserve, where the ship had been taking on grain.

In Washington, members of the National Security Council met Thursday night to discuss the fate of the Ukrainian sailor but decided the administration should not intervene, said Peter Roussel, a White House spokesman.

President Reagan did not attend the meeting.

The American Civil Liberties Union filed suit late Thursday on behalf of Medvid, asking yet another federal court to keep the ship in port until Medvid is questioned again.

"We have to do everything we can and hope that somehow someone in a position of authority will grant the relief Medvid needs to save his own life," said Martha Regel, ACLU director in New Orleans.

At the White House, President Reagan said he has asked Attorney General Edwin Meese to "look into" the case of Medvid "to see if it warrants further action."

But presidential spokesman Larry Speakes repeated, "We consider the case closed."

Asked whether he thought the subpoena could hurt U.S.-Soviet relations on the eve of the Reagan-Gorbachev summit, Helms quoted Rhet Butler's famous retort in "Gone With the Wind" — "Frankly my dear, I don't give a damn."

"I want to hear from this young man himself what happened and whether he wants to return to the Soviet Union," Helms said, adding, "If there is persuasive evidence that he wants to go back to the Soviet Union ... then we'll say bye, bye."

Oviedo Lassos Cowgirls For 3A-9 Championship

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer
After breezing through the first round, Oviedo's Lady Lions struggled at times Thursday night against Osceola Kissimmee's Kowgirls in the 3A-9 District Tournament finals at Kissimmee.

The Lady Lions pulled out a 15-10 lead in the first game, then built a 9-3 lead in the second. The Kowgirls then came back with 12 straight points to win the second game 15-9.

"I was worried after that second game," Oviedo coach Anita Carlson said. "The girls just quit playing."

Oviedo came back strong in game three though as the net play of Stephanie Nelson and the defense of Lisa Knapp paved the way for a 15-8 victory and the district title.

The Lady Lions go up against the 3A-5 District champion on Tuesday in the 3A-3 Region match. Since Oviedo hosted the region last year, it will be away this year. District 5 is the Gainesville-Ocala Vanguard area.

Carlson said the opening game Thursday was a back and forth struggle with both teams playing well on offense. In the second game, Nelson led the way as Oviedo built a 9-3 lead. However, when Nelson was off the front row, Osceola came on strong.

The Kowgirls pulled within 9-7, then got the serve back and reeled off eight points to win the second game, 15-9.

Osceola won the coin toss and served to open the third game. On the first serve, Oviedo got the pass to setter Kim Verne and Verne lofted her set right in Nelson's wheelhouse. Nelson's spike gave Oviedo the serve and the Lady Lions immediately took control as they scored four straight points.

Oviedo would go on to take a 14-8 lead but Osceola fended off three match points then pulled within 14-8. Oviedo got the serve back though and closed out the match.

"Stephanie (Nelson) controlled the net when she was up front," Carlson said. "And she was getting good sets from Kim (Verne). Lisa (Knapp) played excellent."

Intensity Returns As Lyman Moves Into District Final

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer
LONGWOOD — Lyman High's devastating offense and hard serves reduced Spruce Creek to playing bump ball in the first game of their 4A-9 District Tournament semifinal match Thursday night at Lyman High.

The result was a 15-4 win for the Lady Greyhounds. However, Spruce Creek got its offense on track in game two and rallied for a 13-10 lead. Unlike the last time the two teams met, though, Lyman pulled together and bounced back to claim a 15-10 victory to earn a berth in tonight's district finals.

The second-seeded Lady Greyhounds take on top-seeded DeLand tonight at 7 in a rematch of last year's district title game. DeLand, which won the district the past two years, advanced with a 15-3, 10-15, 15-4 victory over Lake Howell in Thursday's first match.

The winner of the district will host the 4A-5 Region match

Tuesday against Orlando Evans. Evans won the 4A-10 title last week.

The last time Lyman and Spruce Creek met, the Lady Greyhounds breezed through the first game (15-1) only to lose two close ones and the match. The Lady Hawks snapped a 12-match Lyman win streak.

"Our intensity was a lot better this time," Lyman senior Sheila Mandy said. "We knew basically that Spruce Creek was strong on defense and we tried to see the holes that they weren't covering."

In the opening game, senior setter Dawn Boyesen got Lyman off to a good start as she opened the match with an ace. Boyesen served one more point and Lyman got the serve right back from the Creek on a spike by Mandy. Kristie Kaiser's two Seminole and Lake Mary. Lake Brantley and Lyman. Oviedo and Lake Mary. Lyman and Lake Howell.

All four of these Seminole County matchups have the rivalry and intensity firmly instilled. The games are always spirited with the outcome usually in doubt until the waning minutes.

But when it comes to a rivalry — a real home-to-goodness rivalry with thousands and thousands of fans — it's tough to top the Lake Mary-Lake Brantley showdown tonight at 8 at Lake Brantley High School in Altamonte Springs.

The proof is in the past. Last year, when all of Lake Brantley's caravan of cars had been packed into the deep recesses of Lake Mary High School's parking lot, the place was ready to burst.

Lake Mary High School officials estimated the crowd at close to 7,500. There were 5,053 tickets sold. Freebies, season-ticket holders and the bands swelled it even more.

It will not be much different tonight. The build up started Wednesday night when the two faculties met for a fund-raising athletic competition. Lake Mary has its own car caravan planned for tonight.

Sure, Brantley has lost all seven games it has played. Sure, Lake Mary has won five of seven. The Dunkel Index line has Lake Mary as a 10-point favorite.

Lake Brantley coach Fred Almon said the line, however, is out of line. "It's going to be a close, high-scoring game," Almon said. "Lake Mary has a great offense and I don't know if our young defense can stop them. But I don't think they can stop our offense either."

"The community (school district) has been split and our kids are excited about playing them. Whoever gets the ball last may win it. It might even come down to a two-point conversion."

Nelson said he hopes it's not that close. "We've had enough close games this year," the third-year Lake Mary coach said. "It doesn't matter that Lake Brantley hasn't won a game. I know he (Almon) will have them well prepared. Statistically, they're a good ballclub. They've got good passers and throwers."

The thrower is Patriot quarterback David Delfiaco. The receiver is wideout Sammy Sears.

Football

Delfiaco has been erratic this year but at times he has flashed the form that made him the county's top QB last year. Sears has been steady. His 25 catches lead the county.

Adding to the attack will be the return of tailback Andy Dunn, who was sidelined with an injury. He joins Johnny Griffin to give the Pats two capable tailbacks. Cornelius Friendly and Derrick Guinyard share the fullback slot.

Lake Mary's strength comes from its skill performers and its underrated defense. Wideout Ray Hartsfield and quarterback Shane Letterio clicked eight times last week for 103 yards. John "The Battering Ram" Curry rumbled for 171 yards and three TDs.

Defenders Ryan Lisic, Marty Hopkins, Brett Molle, Shannon Porter, Scott Frost and Paul Owen are each coming off solid games in the 33-21 win over Mainland.

It was easily Lake Mary's best performance of the year, yet, Nelson isn't ready to say the Rams have turned the corner. "We scored when we had the opportunity, which is something we didn't do earlier," Nelson said.

Lake Mary is playing a three-game season and searching for four. It needs a win tonight to clinch a share of the SAC championship. A win tonight and in two weeks against Lyman will sew up the District 5A-4 title and the SAC championship. Next week, the Rams play Boone for homecoming, which is another game they want to win.

Lake Brantley, meanwhile, is desperate for a win. It has three opportunities to avoid an 0-10 season. It plays Lake Mary, Lake Howell and Boone. It will be the underdog in all three but Nelson said the Patriots are backed into the corner and ready to strike.

"At this stage of the season, he (Almon) would like to beat anybody and I don't blame him," Nelson said. "That's a tough load (seven-game losing streak) to carry. I know he would give his eye teeth to beat Lake Mary."

There's a reason for that, too. Almon and Nelson coached together at Lake Mary two years ago. They didn't get along. "I guess it was just a personality conflict," Almon said.

Richardson Vows Revenge; Rotary Eyes Lyman, Rams

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor
LaMarr Richardson said he looked in the mirror this morning and couldn't believe his eyes. He said he was the same size, had the same muscles and same good looks.

But he was 10 years younger. "My prayers had been answered," Seminole High's popular assistant principal said. "I know I'll have to get physical tonight and I just need those extra 10 years taken off to do some real damage."

Tonight, Richardson and his Seminole High faculty teammates plan to get revenge for a loss last year in the Faculty-Alumni Flag Football game.

After Richardson made his deal with someone down under, he was told he had 24 hours before he turns back into a 41-year-old assistant principal.

"Coach (Emory) Blake and I know we don't have much time left to take care of these younger alumni guys," Richardson said. "Maybe one year, maybe two. We have to get our revenge on the alumni tonight."

Richardson, a former NFL player who was a major contributor when the faculty won the initial encounter two years ago, said Blake, Bobby Lundquist, Alex Holcomb, Nate Perkins, Glenn Malolini, Donald Merrick and Jerry Posey have a mission tonight. "We're ready," he said. "I told Tim Raines and Mike Good and Clifford Martin, they better watch out. If you get in front of me tonight, I'm going to get down."

"Brent Carl is lucky he's not playing. He's been vocal all week but I'm going to leave my name on the quarterback's chest tonight. Anybody coming my way better be prepared."

Football

Carl, who is laid up with an injury, had said the faculty's win two years ago was a fluke and that the alumni was going to re-establish its dominance tonight.

The third annual game is a fund-raiser with the money going to the Seminole High athletic department. Tickets are $2.

On the prep side of the field, coach Jerry Gergley's Winter Park Wildcats have been selected as one of the teams to play in the Rotary Bowl football game Wednesday, Nov. 27 at Lyman High School. Gergley and the Wildcats, who are out of the District 5A-5 picture, accepted the invitation.

Larry Cowart, South Seminole's Rotary Club's head of the selection committee, said Winter Park's opponent will be chosen after Nov. 22.

"Right now we're looking at the loser of the Lyman-Lake Mary game along with Titusville Astronaut and Kissimmee Osceola," Cowart said. "We would really love to have Lyman or Lake Mary, if they qualify. Those two and Astronaut are the top three."

Lyman High Principal Carlton Henley said the Florida High School Activities Association guidelines state that a team must win at least half of games and not be involved in the district playoffs to participate in an 11th game.

Lyman, 4-3, and Lake Mary, 5-2, meet Friday, Nov. 22 to decide the district title. If the loser meets the above qualifications, it could be Winter Park's opponent.

A Lyman victory tonight over Lake Howell would ensure the Greyhounds of a .500 record. "Tonight is a very key game for Lyman," Cowart said.

7 More Cities To Make Pitch For Major League

NEW YORK (UPI) — Six cities seeking to get a major league baseball team made pitches Thursday to the Major League's Long Range Planning Committee.

Seven more cities will make their presentations Friday.

Representatives from Vancouver, British Columbia; Denver; Columbus, Ohio; Miami; Washington, D.C.; and Indianapolis made hour-long proposals before baseball commissioner Peter Ueberroth, National League President Charles "Chub" Feeney and eight club owners.

Each representative argued the merits of their particular region in acquiring a major-league franchise.

"No commitments were made" to expand the two league's current 26-team structure, said Ed Duroso, secretary-treasurer of the Long Range Planning Committee.

"This is simply a staging process to assess cities and areas. Everything went very smoothly and we're very impressed with the people involved."

On Friday, prospective franchise holders from Buffalo, N.Y., New Orleans, Phoenix,

Baseball

Tampa-St. Petersburg, Fla.; the state of New Jersey and Nashville, Tenn., are scheduled to make their proposals.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bobby Cox, who was voted American League Manager of the Year by the Baseball Writers' Association, added another plaque to his trophy case Thursday when United Press International named him its AL Manager of the Year.

Cox, who guided the Toronto Blue Jays to their first ever division title, collected 16 votes in a poll of 26 UPI baseball correspondents. Dick Howser, manager of the World Series champion Kansas City Royals, received six votes. Former Yankee manager Billy Martin and California's Gene Mauch were the only others to get any votes.

In other National League news, the St. Louis Cardinals said they would not offer a contract to catcher Darrell Porter. Porter is free to negotiate his services with the rest of the league.

It's Time To Make Preparations To Protect Plants From Cold

The cool weather we've experienced the past few days indicates that autumn is here. And, it won't be long before winter arrives. Certainly you haven't forgotten the past two winters? We may have a repeat performance again this winter.

Cold damage to our tender ornamentals appears to be an increasing hazard, but not necessarily a disastrous one. If you want to protect your plants, now is the time to make preparations. Then, whenever frost or freeze warnings are issued, you'll be ready.

Each year, there's some danger of cold damage to landscape plants all over the state. There are many ways to protect ornamentals from the cold.

Commercial growers of nursery plants use heating more than any other method of protection. But, for the average homeowner, this method can present some problems, especially if you're trying to protect large plants growing in the open. It can be done, though. You can use an ordinary light bulb under a sheet, blanket, or similar cover over the plants.

Even if you don't use a light bulb or other heat source, you certainly can reduce the amount of cold injury to your plants with a cover. Any cover will help keep your plants from cooling off as fast as they would if left in the open. And, if the coverings reach the ground, they can help conserve ground heat. Surprising, too, covering a plant helps prevent cold damage by providing shade during the day. If a plant has frozen, it will thaw out more slowly if it's under a shade cover. This results in less serious cold injury.

In spite of these benefits, covering a plant without additional heat is primarily a method of protection against frost, rather than hard freezes. Be sure you remove the coverings when the weather warms up — even if it's only for a day or two. Otherwise, your plants may suffer from leaf burn.

The use of a mulch is one cold protection measure which causes some confusion. If the temperature drops below freezing for just a few hours, a good layer of mulch often will lead to increased cold damage to the tops of the plants. This top injury results from the mulch holding the latent heat in the ground away from the leaves of your plants. If a brief, overnight freeze is forecast, you may want to pull the mulch away from the base of your plants to release this latent heat. Longer periods of very cold weather are a different matter. If you expect enough cold to kill the tops of the plants, regardless of what you do, leave the mulch in place.

It may hold enough ground-heat to keep the plants' roots from being frozen. A plant may come back from the roots after considerable cold damage to the foliage and branches. But, if the roots are frozen, you'll probably lose the whole plant.

Sometimes water can be very useful in protecting your plants from cold damage. Remember the pictures from past years showing living plants encased in ice? Maybe you think this is a strange way to protect your plants from cold damage. But, it does work under certain circumstances. In fact, a constant spray can protect some shrubs and other plants against temperatures as low as 20°F.

How does it work? A small amount of heat is released as water freezes. So, even though plants seem to be frozen in solid ice, their leaf temperatures can actually be kept between 31 and 32°F. The icy covering protects plants against the chilling effect of winter winds, too. If you want to try this method on some of your special landscape ornamentals, you must remember two things. First, apply enough water to cover the plants evenly — at least one-third of an inch per hour. Second, you must keep watering until the weather warms up and all the ice is melted. If you don't apply enough water, or if you cut the water off while the temperature is still below freezing and there is ice on the plants, cold damage to the plants may increase. This procedure requires a sprinkler system that can be accurately calibrated to supply the proper amount of water for as long as it is needed. If you don't have a sprinkler system — forget it. The results will be disastrous!

Another way to use water for cold protection is to irrigate heavily a day or so before a freeze hits. The idea is to prevent excessive moisture loss from the leaves. If high winds accompany a cold snap, the plant leaves lose moisture rapidly, resulting in scorching and burning. If there's plenty of moisture in the soil, the plant's roots can quickly take it up to replace what's being lost through the leaves. If everything works right, this method may help reduce leaf scorch.

However, you must remember that wet soil is a better conductor of heat than dry soil. If you water heavily just before a freeze, the soil around your plants will probably cool off faster than it would otherwise. This could have a negative effect.

Whether you plan to sprinkle or irrigate, or use heat under your coverings, exercise caution and use common sense, and use the right equipment. Otherwise, you can do more harm than good to protect your plants from low temperatures. This is the time to get organized — don't wait until the weatherman gives you just a few hours. With reasonable preparation and prompt action, you can usually protect your most valuable landscape plants from the winter cold.

Happy gardening!

Irate Shopper Wants Just A Pretty, Classic Dress

DEAR ABBY: I have just returned from another shopping trip frustrated and empty-handed. All I want is one good-looking dress that I can wear for an evening out. I would like to ask the American fashion designers: For whom are you designing? Each other? Certainly not for American women.

I am a 41-year-old professional woman who has worked hard to maintain a trim figure, and I'd like to show it off a little. Today's designers make that hard; their fabrics are lovely but their styles range from frumpy to ridiculous. I can find nothing without a blousy waist (intended to hide at least 20 pounds around the middle), and dresses with shoulder pads that make me look like a football tackle.

Whatever happened to the classic little cocktail dress whose shape approximates a woman's figure? I'm boycotting the dress market until the designers come up with something worth buying, and I'll bet I have plenty of company.

THREADBARE

Dear Abby

DEAR THREADBARE: Don't give up. Figure-flattering dresses can be found if you know where to look.

If you can't find something that pleases you, buy fabric and a pattern and make your own. You can't sew? So what? Find a dressmaker who can.

Menopause Causes Fluid Retention

DEAR DR. GOTT - I've gained 8 pounds in the last year. I also stopped having periods a year ago (I'm 53). I take Dolobid and Libitrol twice a day for arthritis and Ativan to help me sleep. I feel bloated all the time. Which of these drugs is causing the weight gain, and could a diuretic help the bloating? I'm a very active person.

wondering if a person could contract a venereal disease or AIDS just by sitting where someone with these things has sat. Would bringing my own hand towel to sit on offer sufficient protection?

DEAR READER - I am not aware that AIDS or venereal diseases can be transmitted by the type of casual contact you describe. Such diseases are indeed spread in public baths and steamrooms, but the particu-pants are engaging in more intimate behavior than sitting around getting the hinks out. Using your own hand towel is probably an unnecessary gesture. Even so, I would advise you to wipe off the bench where you sit so that you don't plunk down in someone else's puddle.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, Ohio 44101.

DEAR DR. GOTT - I'm trying to cope with this thing called arthritis. How much aspirin is too much? Can a large person take more than a small person? It seems that I get the best relief if I take one tablet per hour for three consecutive hours.

DEAR READER - Arthritis is the inflammation or wearing-down of the joints. Usually, eight aspirin a day is about the limit for an average person. Large people may need more than small people. Ringing in the ears (tinnitus) is usually the earliest sign of aspirin toxicity. If your method of treatment works for you, use it: three aspirin a day is not a high dose. You may also be helped by physiotherapy, application of heat and the use of non-aspirin medication.

DEAR DR. GOTT - I belong to a private health club and love to use the steamroom after playing racquetball. Everyone uses it naked, and lately I've been

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Somehow or other, North-South stopped at three hearts, mostly because North discounted his king of spades as being of little value. That was a good decision. In fact, with the defense functioning at the highest level, even three hearts was too high.

When the opening lead of the queen of spades was not covered by dummy's king, East played the deuce. That was a most discouraging card. Normally it would seem OK to play on another spade, but West was in a "keep your partner happy" kind of mood. If East did not want spades continued, West would oblige him. Accordingly he switched to the club jack, covered by the king and ace. East cashed the club queen and wondered whether he should take the spade ace. He decided not to, believing that West had started with more than two spades. (With only two spades, West might have continued the suit.) East therefore played a third round of clubs, which was ruffed in dummy. Note now the unfortunate character of declarer's distribution. That lone ace of diamonds had become a liability.

Declarer came to his hand with the diamond ace, cashed the ace of hearts and led a club. He hoped that he could successfully ruff his last club with the heart jack and get rid of his spade on a good diamond. No such luck. East overruffed and cashed the spade ace, and declarer was down one.

An Optimist? Pessimist? On The Level? The Scrawl Shows

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

There are no "bad" handwritings, except those of the likes of the New York City mass murder "The Son of Sam," whose mental disorders show up in their script.

That revelation from handwriting expert Marta Chausec encouraged me to grit my teeth, shut my eyes and hand over my scribbled reporter's notes to her. A review of a sample of my scrawl and Ms. Chausec impromptu findings might lead you to take a closer look at your script.

Ms. Chausec said a handwriting expert can pinpoint traits in your handwriting, which represent traits in your makeup that you might want to change and which you can change simply by altering your handwriting.

Handwriting, she said, mirrors what's in your brain, reflecting the true you on a subconscious level, and handwriting exercises which change your script can also change your personality.

Ms. Chausec, who at 32 has been practicing the ancient scientific art of graphology for about a dozen years and can't resist analyzing most any handwriting she sees, said many people fear such scrutiny. Apparently the handwriting doesn't lie, but my curiosity overrode my caution and I asked Ms. Chausec to point out a few bad as well as good points revealed by my scrawl, which in notes incorporates my own style of shorthand.

My script, which my mother couldn't love or read since I was in the third grade, leaves most people, including myself if I have to return to read notations from a couple of weeks back, shaking their heads in doubt. It turned out to be not all that bad under a quick study by Ms. Chausec.

"Right off the bat," she said. "I see you are optimistic and tend to see the bright side of things. Your writing is slanting very much uphill on every single sheet. Often people who demonstrate an optimistic tendency can hardly keep their handwriting on the line."

I denied being "Pollyanna," but Ms. Chausec said. "I'm not saying overly optimistic, but you have a positive outlook and expect things to

Halley's Comet Inspires Legends And Science

By Ann Ranard

Most of us will only see Halley's comet once in our lifetime, but for Sam Storch, part of the experience will last forever.

"The comet is a link between generations. My 5-year-old son may see Halley's comet when it returns in 76 years, and I want him to remember that his dad made him get a look at it."

Storch is activities director of the New York-based Amateur Observers Society — one of many groups watching Halley's. In addition to amateur stargazers, scientists worldwide will try to squeeze out every possible bit of information while the comet is near, in hopes of learning not only about its mysterious behavior, but also about the origin of our solar system.

This is the 30th recorded appearance of the comet, which passes closest to Earth on April 11. Depicted as a glowing fireball, its visits have been woven into myths and legends passed down through the years.

Past civilizations imbued

Halley's with supernatural power, regarding its appearances as frightening forecasts of death and disaster. Some of these themes have sparked the imaginations of today's marketing wizards, who hope to immortalize the legends — and fatten their bank accounts — with literally tons of comet paraphernalia.

Some of the myths about the comet were dispelled in the 18th century when Edmund Halley computed its orbit using Isaac Newton's law of gravity. When Halley noted that comets in 1531, 1607 and 1682 had moved across the same part of the sky, he surmised that the three were the same comet and that it would make another appearance in 1758. The comet did indeed grace our skies again as Halley predicted, and it was named in his honor.

One reason Halley's has intrigued so many people is its seemingly strange behavior. Unlike the stars and planets that we can count on seeing in a certain place at a certain time, comets seem to float capriciously in and out of our skies.

However, as Edmund Halley explained, many comets do follow regular paths that cross Earth's orbit periodically. Their orbits are more elongated than those of the planets, which travel in nearly circular patterns. Depending on how large and bright comets are, and how close they come, we may be able to see them from Earth.

Because Halley's returns every 75 years or so, it is classified as a short-period comet. Other comets may take millions of years to make one orbit. Still others never get close to the sun.

Although no one can be sure exactly how comets formed, most theories connect their origin in one way or another with the birth of our solar system. Scientists believe comets contain the same material that was present in the solar nebula, the region of gas and dust in which Earth formed.

One theory is that comets were the building blocks for the outer planets, said Roger Knacke, astronomy professor at the State University of New York at Stony Brook.

"There were lots of small icy objects in the outer solar system. Some became planets and those that didn't became comets," said Knacke.

According to current theory, a cloud of perhaps a billion comets slowly orbits the sun, about 100,000 times farther from the sun than Earth. They would never be noticed if they remained in their communal habitat, called Oort's Cloud after the Dutch astronomer who theorized about it. Gravity from a nearby star sometimes pushes one out of hibernation, sending it hurtling toward Earth.

Because comets spend most of their time in the deep freeze of outer space, part of the birth cloud has been preserved in their core. Scientists liken this ball of frozen gasses imbedded with bits of primordial rock to a dirty snowball.

Ironically, each time a comet streaks through our solar system, putting on a celestial show, it comes closer to its death. Heat from the sun evaporates the snowball, producing a stream of dust and gas. The vapor collects in a coma — a halo around the iceberg. From Earth the glowing gasses look like a hazy patch.

Two types of tails extend from the head. Radiation from the sun pushes dust out of the coma to form a tail that curves with the comet's orbit. The sun also produces a stream of high-speed particles that contain magnetic fields, or solar wind, that blows electrified gasses from the coma and traps them into a straight tail. Depending on Halley's position as it travels through Earth's orbit, we may see one or two tails.

One reason Halley's comet is so big and bright is that it has a relatively large orbit compared with others that get close to Earth. Comets with very short periods have had more exposure to the sun, losing some of their glitter with each orbit. For example, Encke's Comet, which visits every 3 1/2 years, the shortest known period, travels closer to the Earth than Halley's.

work out. You expect the best, you look forward to life."

I agreed. I could live with that, especially after she offered me an excuse for my careless scrawl.

"You have to take fast notes," she continued. "It's a professional liability with doctors, attorneys, anyone who has studied. You develop your own shorthand. It reflects a change in you. You are forced to think faster, to behave faster, your livelihood depends on it, so you have developed a much looser, faster more practical script than what you were taught in school — to carefully loop things."

"The more a person's handwriting varies from what you were taught in school the more you have developed as an individual and have become your own person."

"You are also a double-checker. I see dashes used often instead of commas or periods. That indicates a person with a reviewing type of mind. You will go back to make sure everything is right."

"You also have become quite tactful. You have the ability to be tactful, or shrewd or even diplomatic, which is a real plus when you have to deal with people."

"You have really developed people skills — social skills and I see that in the way a lot of your words trail off. You don't take time to form the whole word. It's a mess! That's a joke," Ms. Chausee said.

On the negative side, she said, my T's are very telling. I slap at crossing them and when they are crossed it is with a backward stroke. That means, Ms. Chausee said, "You have a tendency to look to the past. That's a negative. Usually that's unresolved conflict in the past."

"You don't always do it, but you do it often. It's retrograde motion, which is opposite what we've been taught. We're taught to write from left to right. Everytime you go opposite of that you are going back psychologically, often in unresolved conflict."

"There is a way to let the past go and it's to stop doing this," she said.

"The way you cross the T is very indicative of the person. Your T, the way you cross it, when you cross it, which you don't often do, is high. It's well placed and indicates a good sense of timing. You can be on time, you can meet deadlines. It's a good trait to have. This where it (the cross) doesn't even get to the T means you are ahead of time. You are ahead of time in projects. You are organized to the point where you don't have problems budgeting your time."

"The length of the T bar is maybe a better illustration of the kind of thinker you are. A person who habitually, like you, slashes, you slash backwards, but it's still a slash, so you're a fast thinker — the long bar."

"A short T bar takes time. When you cross with a long bar you logically do it fast. The person that habitually makes a small T bar is a slower thinker. If it's a medium length it's a medium speed thinker who doesn't weigh things extremely carefully, but who also doesn't think so quick that they tend to jump to conclusions."

"Although legibility has a lot to do with your ability to communicate, based on this, you would say, well??? But actually you are a big communicator, with your open O's and A's. A person with open O's and A's is a person who is people oriented and who likes to talk and who is good with words.

"In fact your whole handwriting in the entire picture, it flows, just as your thoughts flow. It's very fluid. You had to develop that I'm sure to be in your field, but even if I didn't know what you did I would say this is a person that has developed far from schooling as an individual whose mind is always flowing. You're always going on to the next thing, except when you're looking to the past," Ms. Chausee said.

I didn't decide to change my T's and dump the past, but if you've been inspired to try to break a bad habit by changing your handwriting, experts who can help are listed in the yellow pages. Fees vary depending on the amount of work involved, but would probably fall in the $100 range. You can also pick up pointers from the pros on how to scientifically analyze script yourself.

Child Star Sought, Auditions in Orlando

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — If you have a knock-kneed, freckle-faced tomboy aged 9-12 climbing backyard trees, she just might become a movie star.

It would help if she has red hair, a feisty attitude and a predisposition for telling tall tales. If she can act, so much the better.

If so, this particular little girl is being sought to star in the movie "Pippi Longstocking." She is wanted by producer Gary Mehlman and director Ken Annakin, the sooner the better.

Mehlman bought movie rights to Astrid Lindgren's popular Longstocking books and promptly signed director Annakin. They are gambling $10 million on a yet-to-be-found little girl who will either make or break their picture.

It is vital, then, to find precisely the right kid.

They will spend the next six weeks visiting Orlando, New York, London, Denver, Los Angeles, and Toronto, holding auditions. The moviemakers also welcome photographs or video tapes of their quarry mailed to: Longstocking Productions, 9255 Sunset Blvd., suite 720, Los Angeles, CA, 90069.

"We're looking for a feminine Peter Pan or Huckleberry Finn," said Annakin, a silver-haired Englishman. "Pippi is supposed to be the strongest girl in the world. Gymnastic ability is welcome."

They hope to audition 5,000 girls in their quest, choosing population centers that will draw prospects from large rural areas in various parts of the country.

"Cosby Show" Star Reason For Success

By Vernon Scott
UPI Hollywood Reporter
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Who is responsible for making "The Cosby Show" the top-ranked TV series on the air? Bill Cosby.

Werner added. "Our scripts offer stories that all families can relate to.

"Without making a point of it, the issue is that there are more similarities among the races and sexes than there are differences. That's the goal to be sought."

That is the unadulterated opinion of Marcy Carsey and Tom Werner, producers of the country's current favorite sitcom.

"Bill is the consummate actor," Carsey put in. "The show is a positive image for everyone in all age groups and for both sexes. This is one black show where the characters are not struggling with economic problems.

While they were ABC-TV's chief programmers, the team of Carsey-Werner provided the network with such bell ringers as "Barney Miller," "Soap," "Taxi" and "Mork & Mindy."

"There's no need to emphasize the blackness of the family. I think the show is as quietly revolutionary as Bill. He's made a big impact on society without stressing that he is black. He relies on humor and how to get through the day with civility and love.

Clearly they can pick winners and both agree "The Cosby Show" is one of their very best, thanks to its star, who participates in every phase of the show's writing and production.

"We're not thinking about what viewers want. We are looking at family relationships through Bill's eyes. He has dealt with those situations in his comedy throughout his long and successful career.

"We can't explain the wonderful success of the series except that Bill is fabulous," Carsey said. "And maybe it's dangerous to examine the show's success because we might draw some wrong conclusions."

"Bill has a great deal to do with the stories and premises and he should. He is present at the inception of every script right on through the first and second drafts. If there are problems, he fixes them."

"Sometimes it's destructive to assume a show is good on only one level," said Werner, who lets his partner do most of the talking.

"As long as Bill is involved it's not difficult to keep the quality up," Werner said.

Carsey is an attractive woman with teenagers of her own. Werner, thoughtful and soft-spoken, is a parent too. Both are Hollywood based and have made personal sacrifices to produce the series. They commute to New York, where the show is taped, alternating every week, spending what time they can spare with their families in Hollywood.

"Bill refuses to take a standard plot and turn it into an unbelievable ending," Carsey said. "He won't even allow anyone to dictate a natural pause in the script for a commercial. When it's time to break for a commercial it just happens."

Says Werner, "We're good sounding boards for each other. Although we both work in the same areas, we could never do it alone."

"We often don't have stories in the conventional TV sense," Werner said. "Sometimes the network can't believe we go ahead with a simple premise like grandparents coming for dinner or the first day of school or the day the pet goldfish dies."

They agree the success of their hit series has little or nothing to do with the fact that they are dealing with an upper middle class black family. Race, in fact, is rarely an issue in the story lines.

Carsey laughed and said, "The show grows out of Bill's perception of life. There are no neat resolutions at the end of each show"

"We are not producing specifically black humor," Carsey said. "It is specifically universal. It's not necessary for a black ensemble show to deal with black issues. But neither do we take pains to keep racial elements out of the show. White shows don't deal with race problems.

"Bill is a genius," Werner said flatly. "He is in the same league with Jackie Gleason, Buster Keaton and Charlie Chaplin. Now he has found the right format for his humor. He's wonderful with the kids in the cast.

"Bill is opposed to raising racial issues. He says if a comedy show is going to get into that area, let Bob Newhart do it."

"Every one looks forward to coming to work every day. They enjoy each other and the way the show flows. Bill is responsible for that, too."

Alligator Yacht
For those who think having an alligator emblem on their polo shirts is a sign of status, now there is the ultimate in label prestige — the alligator yacht. The Lacoste emblem has moved into the big time with the Lacoste 42, a 42-foot-long yacht with the familiar a l l i g a t o r emblazoned on the sail. The yacht, created by Chantiers Yachting France, S.A. and sold domestically by Euro Sailboats Ltd. in New York, is priced at $139,995, which ought to buy a bit more status than a polo shirt.

Viewer Locates Dynasty's Moldavia Near Russia

Dear Dick: Are the creators and writers of "Dynasty" aware that Moldavia is a state in the U.S.S.R. of approximately 13,100 square miles with Kishinev as its capital? If so, why did they use it as a magical-mystical country in their story line, when, in reality, it is a communist country and an unlikely place for the characters of "Dynasty"? — K.D., Houston, Texas.

The name is the only thing the "Dynasty" writers borrowed from reality. Actually, according to my atlas, Moldavia is a region of Romania. The area you describe is the Moldavian Soviet Socialist Republic, which is adjacent to the region known as Moldavia. Moldavia is next door to that other real place that sounds fake, Transylvania. The "Dynasty" episodes gave Moldavia a sea coast while the real Moldavia is landlocked, so there obviously was no attempt to copy real life. They just thought the name sounded remote and somewhat romantic.

Dear Dick: In the movie, "The Killing Fields," what is the name and composer of the opera Sam Waterston is listening to in his New York apartment after he returns from Cambodia? — H.C., Amarillo, Texas.

That was an excerpt from Puccini's "Turandot."
Dear Dick: Recently, one of your correspondents asked you about a small electronic device to repel dogs. It had been shown on "Simon & Simon" and you answered that the "Simon & Simon" people told you it was a real device, but they did not know its name. I can tell you it is called a Dog Chaser, and anyone interested in it can write to Electronics For Industry, 8780 S.W. 131st St., Miami, FL 33188. — H.L.C., Clayton, N.M.

Ask Dick

Thank you for that information, and my correspondents thank you. I doubt whether any dogs will thank you.

Dear Dick: Didn't Parker Stevenson of "Falcon Crest" marry Kirstie Alley in 1984 or was it 1983? They were married some time before Christmas. Are they still married and will he appear in future episodes of "Falcon Crest"? — M.N., LaPuente, Calif.

Parker and Kirstie, still happily united, were married in December 1983. He is no longer a part of "Falcon Crest," however.

Dear Dick: Please help settle a dispute between my wife and myself. Meryl Streep had the lead in "The French Lieutenant's Woman." My wife claims she also played the lead in "East of Eden" but I disagree although I cannot remember the name of the female lead in "East of Eden." Please settle this dispute. — W.D., Kalamazoo, Mich.

"East of Eden," which starred Julie Harris as leading lady, was made in 1955. Meryl Streep was born in 1949. She would have been 6 years old when "East of Eden" was made, hardly old enough to cavort with James Dean. Miss Streep's first movie was "Julia" in 1977. It is possible your wife is thinking of the 1981 TV version of "East of Eden," but the leading lady was Jane Seymour.

Dear Dick: Who is the good-looking man who does the Coors beer commercials? — Mrs. C.A.H., Houston, Texas.

That's Mark Harmon, who plays Dr. Caldwell on "St. Elsewhere."

Dear Dick: Can you tell me whatever happened to Bill Elliot? — W.F., Joplin, Mo.
Wild Bill died in 1965 at the age of 61.

'Queen of Daytime TV' Cultivates Loyal Fans

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Deldre Hall, in many polls, walks away with the title, "Queen of Daytime TV." There are a couple of other ladies — Susan Lucci and Jackie Zeman, for example — who might contest that crown, but certainly Deldre Hall is way up there in any such balloting.

There are several reasons why Miss Hall — Dr. Marlena Evans on NBC's "Days of Our Lives" — is so popular. She is a good actress playing a sympathetic role. She is very beautiful, but women enjoy watching her as well as men.

But perhaps her outstanding quality is that she cares as much about her fans as they care about her. Most stars take the attentions of their fans for granted and barely deign to acknowledge those attentions.

Deldre Hall, on the other hand, goes out of her way to cultivate her fans. She recognizes that it is because of the fans that she is popular and, therefore, she works perhaps as hard at pleasing them as she does at acting.

Every year, for example, she puts on a "Deldre Hall Luncheon," which lasts for an entire weekend. At the most recent of those galas, some 2,500 fans — from as far away as Australia — showed up. It's a big event and gives fans a chance to chat with Deldre personally. Last year, Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley proclaimed Deldre Hall Day during the festivities.

She has a carefully arranged network of fan clubs that she personally supervises. There is a newsletter that rivals large corporate newsletters in journalistic skills.

And her fans return her love and loyalty. Some time ago, the show's storyline threatened Marlena Evans' life and, hence, the continuing presence of Deldre Hall on the show. Hundreds of her fans showed up at the studio to picket and protest, and hundreds more called with angry threats.

"I like to associate with my fans," says Deldre. "One reason is that people respond to the good things in Marlena. I don't get the crazies. I get substantial, well-focused, well-directed people. Cult fans don't gravitate to Marlena."

Because of her outstanding relationship with her fans, she is about to launch something brand-new. She's going to appear in a video and plans to produce others commercially

"It will never appear on television anywhere," she says. "It will only be sold to people directly, to view in their own homes. It will consist of many elements — me visiting with some of my fans, a tour through my house, going to my local hamburger stand and going to the beach. Wayne Northrop, who played my husband on the show at one time, drops by.

"It's all personal stuff — my neighborhood, my house, my dogs and my cats. The working title is 'Private Session.'

"It allows a celebrity — me, in the first one — to talk openly and have the right of privacy and the right of censorship. In mine, I talk about a love affair I had with a fan. I would never talk about that any other place, because I would have no control over it, but here I do."

She says she has a year to go on her present contract with the show. (She won't say how long she has been on the show, because then, she says, "people start counting on their fingers and try to figure out how old I am." But NBC says she has been on the show for 8 1/2 years.)

Chances are good she will renew the contract. As she says, "I have a lot of equity in Marlena." But she is also doing other things now. She has guest-starred in shows like "Hotel" and "Hot Pursuit," and co-starred in a TV movie, "A Reason to Live," with Peter Fonda.

Her career might serve as a good example to other actors, who feel that fans are a nuisance. Deldre Hall is proving that fans can be a big boost up the ladder.
