

Europe Convinced Of War Between Italy, Ethiopia

History Of Disputes Between Two Nations

By CHARLES H. HARNER
NEW YORK, July 9.—(AP)—Europe, including Italy is firmly convinced that as soon as the rainy season ends in September, Italy and Ethiopia will go to war. Italy accuses Ethiopia of having permitted active guerrilla warfare in Italian territory in Africa; Ethiopian sources allege that Italy attacked the country without warning.

Although a commission now at work to determine the cause of conflict, no one seems to be paying much attention to the proceedings; on the contrary, military experts, accepting the war virtually as inevitable, are busily comparing notes on the comparative strength of the two probable combatants.

The consensus seems to be that Italy will have a moderate army of about one quarter million men in the field and that Ethiopia is a vast, though remote. A great many authorities have pointed out that Napoleon and his veterans had no trouble beating the Hittites and that Rome's greatest triumph was the conquest of Ethiopia.

What they mean is that the Italian army is a modern one, that it has modern weapons, that it has modern tactics, that it has modern training, that it has modern discipline, that it has modern morale, that it has modern spirit, that it has modern courage, that it has modern endurance, that it has modern strength, that it has modern speed, that it has modern flexibility, that it has modern adaptability, that it has modern initiative, that it has modern resourcefulness, that it has modern ingenuity, that it has modern imagination, that it has modern vision, that it has modern insight, that it has modern understanding, that it has modern wisdom, that it has modern judgment, that it has modern decision, that it has modern action, that it has modern execution, that it has modern completion, that it has modern success.
