350 MILLION MORE FOR CWA WORK OKEYED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(A.P.)—The immediate appropriation of $350,000,000 to carry on the Civil Works program and its 4,000,000 employees, and $300,000,000 for direct relief was recommended to the House today by the Appropriations Committee.

House leaders quickly decided to postpone until Monday consideration of the $350,000,000 CWA relief appropriation.

Simultaneously the committee released a report from Harry Hopkins, CWA and relief administrator, that even with the $350,000,000 he or they originally intended to be responsible for the CWA program to last through May.

Hopkins urged immediate consideration of the measure, declaring that unless action is taken now the $350,000,000 appropriation which will be authorized by Feb. 25.

Hopkins announced that 11 percent of the families in the United States were receiving relief from public funds in November, 1933. West Virginia led with 25 percent, and Florida was second with 27.

Members at Charleston, W. Va., an unprecedented league, organized by CWA workers and supported by their families, showed a legislative committee with complete confidence in "rehabilitation and relief treatment" from West Virginia's Civil Works Administration.

A. F. Stanton, representing the negro which claims 1,000,000 workers, submitted a total of 250,000 cases and then added his own personal testimony. He had to work on a CWA job for 11 months in a year when the wage was $1.10, he said.

The league called a strike to work, but CWA officials said it was ineffective. About 100 of the legislature endorsed a favorable investigation of complaints.

Applauding Herald On CWA Editorial, Sears, Fagg See Probable Extension Of Work

Belief that the needs of the unemployed during the coming summer will be recognized and relieved, probably under an extension of CWA work, was expressed in letters received by the Herald today from Congressman W. J. Sears at Washington and Marcus C. Fagg, executive officer of the state CWA, at Tallahassee.

Commenting The Herald for its recent editorial on "The Impasse of CWA," Congressman Sears expressed the opinion that the President will make a further request for CWA funds, probably May 1, the date on which the nation-wide CWA is scheduled to be extended.

"The President is now asking Congress for an additional fund to carry on this work, and next May, Congressman Sears stated, and while I am not authorized to speak for the President, if conditions at that time are such as to justify carrying on this work, I feel satisfied he will make a further request."

"However," he added, "we are all hoping conditions will continue to improve and from now on will rapidly improve and we will soon be back to normalcy."

Mr. Fagg's comments on The Herald's editorial regarding the CWA during the summer, are expressed in the following paragraphs from his letter:

"I have been concerned a good deal myself about the CWA program and the President's plan to carry on this work, and next May, Congressman Sears stated, and while I am not authorized to speak for the President, if conditions at that time are such as to justify carrying on this work, I feel satisfied he will make a further request."

PRICES SOAR, RECORDS FALL IN STOCK MART

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—(A.P.)—The world of finance acclaimed the meeting of the American dollar to a modified gold bullion basis yesterday by a break in the price of securities, particularly American securities, and by heavy buying of dollars.

In the New York Stock Exchange scores of bonds advanced $1 to $5 per $100 par value in past days since 1931, in the heaviest trading on the Exchange's bond department on record, with the exception of one day four years ago.

Stocks, likewise, were sharply bought in New York, many issues advancing $1 to $1 1/2 to their peaks in more than two years, with trading being the heaviest volume since last July, and with the question of a new high being the question of the day.

Although the ultimate objective of the dollar is of an independent currency, it is still an American issue, and the American people are interested in it.

The money market is still in a state of uncertainty, and the government is still in a state of uncertainty.

Sanford On Route Of Canal Which Orlando Man Believes Most Suited Under New Deal

Sanford is on the route of what H. G. Sigh of Orlando, retired professor of civil engineering, believes to be the most feasible route for the cross-state canal which has been agitated in the Southeast for many months.

His views on the subject of the canal were recently contained in a letter which he sent to President Roosevelt, a letter in which he stated that "As I see it, and as I believe you will so construe it, the New Deal applied to the selection of a route for a ship canal across Florida will put it where the physical conditions are best adapted to the purpose, and where it will be the interest of shipping between our Atlantic and Gulf ports."

By stating that he expects no remuneration in trying to find the most feasible route for the canal that he owns no property which might benefit by its location along what he thinks the best route possible, Mr. Sigh told the President that since he has studied the matter for several years, "I feel it my duty to lay before you some of the things I have learned."

Mr. Sigh enclosed in his letter a small map of Florida on which he had drawn two lines, corresponding to two routes, one which he proposed, and one which has been considered by other groups.

The route he proposes would have the Gulf outlet of the canal in Crystal Bay, an arm of the Gulf, about 10 miles south and 10 miles east of the mouth of the Withlacoochee River at Yankeetown. This route would run almost due east, pass Sanford, into Lake

Washington, Feb. 2.—(A.P.)—The Senate today repassed the Johnson bill, this time with Administration approval, to deny credits in this country to all nations behind in their debts to the American government.

This retaliatory measure, putting debt defaulters on notice anew that the United States expects payment of all war debts overdue, was approved and sent to the House without a record vote, after the Administration had agreed to modifying amendments.

The measure first was passed on Jan. 11 but held up since on a motion by Senator Robinson of Arkansas to reconsider.

More Cold Weather In Store For A All Dixie

Any one who has experienced the fair and cold weather throughout the South greeted Mr. Groundhog today as he came out of his winter sleep to take a look around.

The story is that if Mr. Groundhog sees his shadow he will hibernate for another six weeks, and that there will be more snow.

It is a common story that of the South today although cold, so it appeared likely if one relies on the groundhog story that there will be plenty more winter yet for Dixie.

SANKEY ARREST DETAILS TOLD BY CHICAGO COP

Officer Credits Job Primarily To Work Of Federal Agents

The following account of the arrest of Vern Sankey, commonly known as "The Kidnaper," is a written report by one of the officers who participated in the capture.

By THOMAS F. CURTIN
Sergeant Chicago Police Dept.
CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—(A.P.)—My name at the top of this piece doesn't read right to me, because there were two others of us "in the kid" in the Vern Sankey case—Patrolmen John M. Lynch and Edward J. Donovan—and the capture itself was the result of the whole federal department here under Melvin Purvis more than ours alone.

We are Chicago policemen especially picked to work with Mr. Purvis.

I can't tell the whole truth about how we caught the kidnaper, Sankey. I have to use that old police alibi to the newspaper boys: "We had information."

The capture itself is more interesting. We learned that Sankey had been getting mail under the name of W. E. Clark at a barber shop kept by a William Mueller at 4822 North Damen Avenue, so we watched the place for two weeks.

Today he walked in there. We knew he had sworn never to be taken alive and we took plenty of precautions. We let him get all set in the barber's chair, with the big sheet wrapped around him.

Then we stepped in, with guns in our hands, while the barber's back was turned. Donovan laid back, with two pistols, ready for any kind of a bra. Lynch and I walked up, one on either side, and pushed the muzzle of our guns up

ROLLINS GROUP HEARS ADDRESS BY AUTHORESS

Mrs. Prestonia Martin Expounds Wisdom, Wit of Passing Age

WINTER PARK, Feb. 2.—Patrons of the Tuesday evening lecture at Rollins College were treated to a perfectly blended dose of wit and wisdom by Mrs. Prestonia Mann Martin recently in the Annie Russell Theatre when she both amused and impressed her hearers in a discussion of "Wit and Wisdom in this Passing Age."

The author of "Prohibiting Poverty," a book which interested Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt so much that she purchased several copies for the White House, entertained her audience by good-natured digs at things "as they are" mixed with sound and shrewd comments on things "as they should be."

Poking fun at educational methods and doctrines, especially in the field of mathematics, Mrs. Martin denied that they could be any such thing as a minus quantity. "How," she asked, "an minus one, multiplied by minus one, produce plus one, any more than a minus, or non-existent pig, can produce a real, frisky little pig?"

"Of course," she remarked, "the AAA is showing that the money value of pigs can be juggled just this way. By converting millions of 'plus' pigs into 'minus' pigs, pigs that cannot curse the farmer, by multiplying into more millions of 'plus' pigs, the AAA is trying to demonstrate that the fewer his pigs the better off will be the puzzled farmer. 'Minus' pigs multiplied by 'minus' pigs will produce 'plus' cash.

"The philosopher Santayana has shown, by profound thought and clear exposition, that an idiot cannot, like us clever people, add together clock strokes to tell the time. To the idiot six strokes are only a succession of sounds all alike just following each other by chance. They might mean 6 o'clock or any old time. Now, supposing all our heads, so full of brains against Sankey's bald head. I said, "Don't move, Vern. We're police officers. You're under arrest."

With that, he started up and we grabbed him and flung him back on the chair. We gave him a quick frisk and he didn't have a gun. Then we made him stand up. I warned him again about giving us any argument.

"That ain't what I was going to do when I started to get up," he said. "I didn't know if I should give up or not. I was thinking of running to make you shoot. You might as well kill me anyway."

So we took him into the back room of the shop and stripped him, down to the hulk, and went over every bit of his clothing. He had no weapons, but in the hem of his overcoat we found half a dozen pills. He said they were poison and he intended to commit suicide, but he didn't get a chance to take them.

Then we brought him in the barber didn't know him. And that few minutes wound up about six months of long hard work we have put in looking for him. We know he was plenty tough, and we figured we'd have to shoot it out with him when we got him, but it didn't break that way. It was a big relief to get it over with, because we are not headline heroes and Sankey is a good shot.

A couple of times we missed him by as little as an hour, in chasing him around among the flats and apartments, rooming houses and hotels all over the city. We kept checking registers, running down tips and we certainly covered a lot of ground.

He had plenty of money. He said he got $50,000 out of the Doercher kidnaping and $12,000 of the Bohm money.

The four holes on his face are what really caused his capture. He had them removed by an electric needle and couldn't shave for about two weeks because of the wounds. He went to the shop a week or so ago, but it was too early. Today the last scar healed over and he went to get his shave and we grabbed him.
