Unlicensed contractors stung

The Seminole County sheriff's office conducted a sting operation which concluded this morning with the arrest of 26 unlicensed contractors who had worked on a house rented by the sheriff's office.

The contractors were hired to do a variety of different jobs at the Sanford house and were to be arrested today. They were being brought in to the parking lot of Central Florida Regional Hospital in groups of six where they were awaiting transportation to the jail.

Clarification

SANFORD — The report about the Sanford City Commission discussion regarding a curb cut to be made for the Sanford Church of Christ on 16th Street in order to provide for a better traffic flow from the church, did not specifically list the area of 15th Street designated for one-way only traffic. The one-way traffic area on 15th Street is only between Oak and Park Avenues and does not effect the entire street.

Cops: Drug dealers frequent travelers in, out of area

By NICK PFERFAPP
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Eliminating street corner drug dealers is easier said than done because some local law enforcement officials say a crackdown at one location only results in a move elsewhere.

In the small town of Taft, just south of Orlando, citizens are saying that enough is enough, and are joining forces to fight drug activity.

Authorities however, believe that a city crackdown in Taft will only move sellers to some other community.

"That's normally what happens," said Sanford

Deputy Police Chief Joe Dillard. "If we crack down on a particular area, the sellers move to another area, often in a nearby small town, until there is a crack down there, then they move again."

Seminole County Sheriff Don Ezlinger says many dealers not only change locations, but change the way they conduct their transactions.

Dillard said police often target a particular area and undertake extensive surveillance. "If we can make a case," he said, "we will make the arrest. But if they find out we are checking on them, they'll just move somewhere else, often to another jurisdiction."

Dillard said even after a dealer is convicted in court, he is soon back on the streets and continues selling in a different area.

Ezlinger observed that the best weapon against such drug activity is citizen involvement in addition to law enforcement. "The only way we are going to fight this type of social decay," he said, "is to have a united community. Everyone must start working together or the problem is not going to go away much less diminish."

The bears, ranging from a sleek hand-held model to an enormous stuff stuffed style, are also intently listening, never even blinking an eye.

On a pair of chairs facing one another and sharing a huge book fifth grader Ashlie Perry and third grader Starr Elliott read a series of nursery rhymes to the enraptured audience.

Perry and Elliott render the poems expressively, furlowing their brows and letting their voices dance cheerfully around each word.

Veterans' organization honors city

By NICK PFERFAPP
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Veterans of Foreign Wars post 10108 in Sanford, paid tribute to the city of Sanford earlier this week when the Americanism Award was presented to the city commission.

Post Commander Russ Germain, with his wife El Germain who serves as auxiliary president, were on hand along with a number of VFW members during the city commission meeting. Germain made the official presentation.

"About a week ago," he said, "a car stopped by the side of the road near the log cabin. Thinking there might be a problem, I queried the lady as she rolled her window down — if I might be of assistance."

He continued, "Her response — 'could you tell me what happened to our flag?' No, I replied, but I will try to find out."

The flag, normally at Memorial Park on the Sanford lakefront, had been taken down for several days when damage was reported to the cables which hold the flag. It has since been repaired.

Germain told how he returned home and after studying some of his activity records, found he had overlooked Americanism at its best.

Death penalty for mob slaying

FORT LAUDERDALE — A jury has recommended the death penalty for a 21-year-old man convicted for his role in the mob slaying of his longtime friend.

Mary Puccio stood motionless for several minutes Thursday when the decision was announced. His parents later hugged him as his mother sobbed.

Circuit Judge Charles Greene, who did not immediately set a sentencing date, will have the final say on whether Puccio will get death or life in prison without the possibility of parole for 25 years.

Puccio had been convicted of first-degree murder and conspiracy in the death of 20-year-old Bobby Kent, who was brutally beaten to death near Weston in July 1983.

The jury found that Puccio conspired with six others to lure Kent to a deserted rock pit. There, the teens and young adults stabbed him, bashed his head open with a metal baseball bat, slit his throat, and rolled his body into a lake.

Two pleaded guilty to second-degree murder and conspiracy in exchange for their testimony. The four remaining defendants are awaiting trial.

Loan scam lands five year sentence

MIAMI — A Spaniard who organized an international loan scam to lure eager entrepreneurs has been sentenced to five years in prison and ordered to forfeit $1.45 million for restitution under a plea agreement.

Enrique Irazabal-Serrano, 47, confessed to engaging in mail fraud, wire fraud and money laundering in a scheme involving phony banks designed to attract entrepreneurs looking for capital, according to court documents.

Under the plea agreement Thursday with U.S. District Judge Edward B. Davis, Irazabal-Serrano will not face deportation and will be transported to Spain in August 1985 to serve the remainder of his sentence.

Irazabal-Serrano's wife, Angeles Centeno-Ponsoda, was also indicted in the scheme. She was sentenced to 10 months house arrest.

The plea agreement also included a promise the U.S. government would not pursue any further investigation into his children in regard to possessing false passports or jewelry. Irazabal-Serrano originally had been indicted on 17 counts in connection with the scheme.

The government already has seized assets and property worth $1.45 million from Irazabal-Serrano, who was arrested in Miami in 1982.

Two convicted in arms conspiracy

MIAMI — Two members of the anti-Castro paramilitary group Comandos F-4 have been convicted by a federal jury of conspiring to export a Stinger anti-aircraft missile and other high-tech weapons to Cuba.

The men told undercover agents they would use the weapons against the government of Fidel Castro.

The jury deliberated more than two days before convicting Rodolfo Frometa 49, and Faustino Marison, 42, on Thursday.

The jury was hung on a second charge of conspiracy to export explosives to Cuba. Prosecutors said the would decide next week if they would ask for another trial on the second charge.

Comandos F-4 is a new Cuban exile paramilitary group which split off last May from the long-established group Alpha 66. The group advocates the violent overthrow of Castro.

The men were charged with conspiring to export a Stinger anti-aircraft missile, three anti-tank rockets and a grenade launcher to Cuba. They were arrested June 2 when they tried to pay a federal agent posing as a U.S. Army supply sergeant $5,000 for the weapons.

The men, who had been free on bond since early June, were ordered into custody by federal Judge Federico Moreno pending their Nov. 30 sentencing.

Scholarship to help disabled students

GAINEVILLE — A developer has donated more than $150,000 to create the first scholarship for disabled students who attended the University of Florida.

Alan V. Squitieri, developer of Gainesville's Oaks Mall and other commercial and residential ventures, made the gift in the name of his son Christopher, who had a spinal disease. Christopher died in 1983 at the age of 24.

"My hope is that this scholarship will serve to remove at least one obstacle — a financial obstacle — from the paths of students with disabilities who seek to get an education," said Squitieri.

In 1988, Squitieri also included UF in his will with a bequest of $1 million to enhance academic excellence.

Guidelines for the scholarships have not been decided, but the university hopes to award funds beginning in 1995 or 1996.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

All systems go for shuttle Endeavour lifts off with powerful radar

CAPE CANAVERAL — After a 1 1/4-month delay, Endeavour blasted off at sunrise today with the world's most powerful civilian space radar, capable of piercing clouds, plants, sand and ice.

The space shuttle rose from its seaside pad at 7:18 a.m. into a sky tinged with peach under a crescent moon.

Endeavour's astronauts were eager to get going. Their first launch attempt in August failed with a last-second engine shutdown.

"Let's do it!" astronaut Daniel Burch said after strapping himself in.

It is the second trip into orbit for the 6366-ton orbiter.

During this 10-day flight, the radar will search for buried treasures along the 500-mile-long coast.

At a recent meeting of festival organizers, traffic flow plans were discussed. Sgt. Ken Starr, of the Seminole County Sheriff's Department, said the main consideration this year, for people attending the festival, will be the closure of Lake Mary Boulevard, from Highway 17-92 to County Road 46, of County Road 427 to County Road 15 or Longwood-Lake Mary Road to Lake Mary Boulevard as alternative routes.

Westbound Lake Mary Boulevard will have a dedicated left-hand turn lane, starting at approximately Lake Emma Road, to the main festival entrance, at L & A Acres Ranch, across from the Heathrow Shoppes.

The festival runs Saturday and Sunday, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

One of the toughest radar tasks will be the search for ancient mud walls buried beneath the drifting sand of the Taklimakan Desert in northwestern China. Those structures would have been used by travelers along the Silk Road 3,000 years ago.

Endeavour's radar can penetrate dry sand by up to 15 feet.

"We're very much testing limits of resolution," said Silk Road explorer Derold Holcomb, a scientist at Earth Resources Data Analysis Systems in Atlanta.

The most controversial radar experiment involves the dumping of more than 100 gallons of diesel oil into the North Sea next week. German oceanographers promise to clean everything up within two hours.

The oceanographers will be along to make sure they do.

The oceanographers want to see whether the radar can identify the slick from space. If successful, the radar could be flown permanently on a satellite to detect oil spills more promptly.

Festival planners want your journey to be smooth

HEATHROW — Plans for the Lake Mary Heathrow Festival of Arts were to have been completed today for the opening of the event Saturday.

At a recent meeting of festival organizers, traffic flow plans were discussed. Sgt. Ken Starr, of the Seminole County Sheriff's Department, said the main consideration this year, for people attending the festival, will be the closure of Lake Mary Boulevard, from Highway 17-92 to County Road 46, of County Road 427 to County Road 15 or Longwood-Lake Mary Road to Lake Mary Boulevard as alternative routes.

Bush, Chiles spar in campaign opening debate

The Lakeland native was quick with a response. "Can you understand Cracker? I know how to lead. I know how to sell. That's why the Summit of the Americas is going to be held in Miami," Chiles said, referring to a hemispheric leadership conference set for Dec. 9.

The exchange offered a vivid example of contrasting styles and radically different views on government.

Bush said Florida has a crumbling educational system, is experiencing a "steady erosion of its business climate" and has woefully few prisons. He blames Chiles' lack of leadership and love of big government.

The governor touted his record on fighting crime, developing jobs and bringing a halt to the Cuban immigration crisis last month.

The 64-year-old governor pointed to his age and experience as among the reasons for the swift end to the immigrant influx.

"These gray hairs came from a lot of life's lessons," Chiles said, "the day that I stopped the Cuban immigration crisis, you said I was acting hastily." Chiles said he hadn't moved quickly "there would be 30,000 more people on our streets."

Bush conceded the governor "should be commended for showing some energy on that issue."

Chiles said Bush "cleverly distorted" his record in ads made about crime and the death penalty. The governor said as many prisoners were executed under his leadership as in previous administrations and violent inmates will be serving a minimum of 80 percent of their sentences by January, about double the time served when he took office.

Chiles also boasted of creating the juvenile justice department so the state can better handle crime by those under 18 years of age.

Bush, who has taken a narrow lead in the most recent polls, said 80 percent would be the average sentence served, not the minimum, and recommended building more prisons.

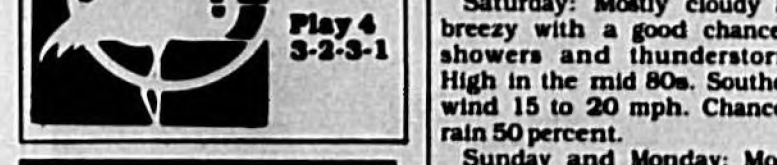

The governor warned that Bush's drastic prison building program to guarantee at least 85 percent of sentences served would drain $1.5 billion of state money from areas such as education and social services for children.

The governor asked Bush about his choice of a running mate, state Rep. Tom Freney of Lee County.

Refund: 'Illegal' car fees

Key of Orlando, attorney for the plaintiff, Balance Chow, one of the plaintiffs, who has since moved to California had one word for the court's ruling: "Wonderful."

He said he moved to Florida in 1981 with a 1979 Toyota that had 150,000 miles on the odometer. He said he bought the car in California for $11,800 and paid applicable fees and taxes there.

"I just thought it was tremendous amount of money to pay, especially considering what I had," he said.

The fee was the same regardless of the car's condition or year of manufacture and the income level of its owner.

Dennis said $187 million had been collected since July 1981 and $216 million since July 1980. Lawmakers imposed the so-called impact fee rather than raise taxes to cover the looming $600 million deficit.

"The money didn't go to pay for roads or bridges or anything else, the money went into general revenue where it was spent," said Kay.

"Some people said 'I've never done anything wrong in my life but I can't afford to register my car.'" Kay said. "Some have had to hide their cars. They've had to say 'Do I pay for food or pay this impact fee?'

I pay for rent or pay the impact fee? ... I've had several people break down and cry on the telephone."

Orange Circuit Judge Lawrence Kirkwood ruled in December the fee was unconstitutional because it applied only to vehicles from outside Florida.

"We've anticipated this being repealed because there was a lot of sentiment" against it, said Rob Heyner, manager of the Sumnerford Auto Tag Agency in Miami.

Heyner said he expects the state to raise registration fees to make up for the impact fee shortfall.

"If you don't pay any Florida sales tax and you are driving in the state of Florida, your vehicle has an impact on this state," he said.

But the court ruling said, "there is no rational reason why the Legislature should tax as regressive as this one. There obviously are less discriminatory methods."

The state could collect fuel taxes or impose a mileage tax, the justices wrote, "or could impose the $295 impact fee on all vehicles titled in Florida, regardless of any previous title history."

The decision does not apply to a separate $100 fee all Floridians have to pay while buying new cars.

Ted Kennedy seeks re-election, Joan: Reopen divorce settlement

BOSTON — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy already is facing a tough political opponent this fall. Now the Massachusetts Democrat must confront another challenge: from his ex-wife.

Joan Bennett Kennedy has gone to court to challenge the financial aspects of their 1982 divorce settlement, which reportedly gave her up to $5 million in cash, plus alimony, child support and two homes.

The filed sealed papers in the Cape Cod court where the divorce was filed, seeking a hearing next week. She also wants to move the case to Boston, where both she and Kennedy have homes.

Mrs. Kennedy's lawyer denied timing her request, at the start of the senatorial campaign, to enhance her leverage.

"The timing is happenstance around the election," said attorney Monroe Inker. "This goes back at least six months."

Kennedy, who has been in the Senate for 32 years, is being challenged by Republican W. Mitt Romney, a venture capitalist and son of former Michigan Gov. George Romney. Three recent polls showed the race a dead heat.

Kennedy, 62, and his ex-wife, 58, were married for 24 years. He married Victoria Reggie in 1962.

At the time of the divorce, both sides agreed to have the financial aspects of their agreement impounded. Today, Inker refuses to say what Mrs. Kennedy is seeking or reveal the terms of the settlement.

Mrs. Kennedy is not bitter or vindictive, but is only seeking equity, Inker said. He also said her patience had worn out after 12 years of the settlement.

Paul Kirk, the former Democratic National Committee chairman and the lawyer who originally handled Kennedy's divorce, has refused comment. Kirk will represent Kennedy again at the change of venue hearing on Oct. 7.

The Boston Herald reported that in addition to the $5 million alimony and child support, Mrs. Kennedy kept the couple's $250,000 condominium in Boston and their $1 million home near the Kennedy compound in Hyannis Port.

The divorce left Kennedy with a $1 million home in McLean, Va., and an apartment in Boston, as well as an estimated $50 million in trust funds bequeathed to him by his father, the Herald reported.

Will it work?

Beginning tomorrow, Florida's juvenile justice system will be more strict. At least that's what press releases from Tallahassee have labeled them.

One of the improvements is to increase the juvenile department in staffing from 800 to 4,500 within the next few months.

We question the use of the word "Strict" in describing this program however.

According to the dictionary, strict means exact or precise, perfect, absolute, closely enforced rules.

Unfortunately, as in the case of many laws, ordinances and rules, even using that word fails to be what it implies. In order for a law to be worthwhile, it must be enforced and supported.

In this case, having stricter juvenile laws doesn't necessarily mean our law enforcement officers will be able to crack down on young offenders. It doesn't mean our courts will give more severe penalties. It doesn't mean juvenile offenders will stay in jail longer, or have stricter punishment when convicted of criminal activities.

All it means is that Florida now has the proper words written down on paper. Even then, they won't be completely legal until someone tries to test them in court.

Many officials are looking at what the expanded rules are supposed to do. Punishment as well as treatment is to be part of the system, as compared to only punishment now specified.

Judges will have the power to punish disrespectful and defiant teenagers for contempt. The sentences however, are to be five days in detention for the first offense, and 15 days for each additional offense.

Another point is that teens sentenced to high-security residential programs such as boot camps, won't be sent home if there isn't any space immediately available. They will, instead, be held in detention until room becomes available.

We believe that only time will tell whether these changes will be effective. As was said earlier, the laws must be enforced, then supported by the courts and penal system.

The only improvement which may immediately be seen, is that police will be able to release the names and photos of juveniles, no matter how young, if they have been arrested on felony charges, or been convicted of three misdemeanors.

Perhaps in this way, parents, fearing that their offspring will be publicly identified, will show more concern over helping keep the teens on the right path.

The Sanford Herald had an overview of the new laws in this past Thursday's edition. If available, study it. It may prove to be interesting.

Whether or not it's "strict" however, will depend on what happens next. We should keep our fingers crossed that it succeeds, but let's not hold our breath.

LETTER

Kudos to Dennison

In April I wrote a letter to the editor questioning the character of GOP primary candidates for county commission, Adams and Dennison. These candidates answered my questions during the campaign. Mrs. Dennison promoted her strengths and beliefs. She demonstrated great strength of character by running a clean campaign in spite of being attacked herself. She may have sacrificed an opportunity to serve by refusing to take the low road ... but how proud she must feel!

Panel put our lives in danger

In 1993 a panel of mostly attorneys, judges and state politicians met to determine prisoner sentences. What the Sentencing Guidelines Commission actually did is put our lives in danger. First a little history. Back in the 1980s our Legislature decided that judges you and I elect cannot correctly sentence people convicted of a crime. Our legislators decided that we should use a point system statewide to ensure that criminals received the identical sentence regardless of where the crime occurred. (This sounds like a great idea, but in reality it hurts communities that don't tolerate crime.) Judges during sentencing are reduced to mere scorekeepers in the judicial process while crime destroys our families and economy.

Back to 1993, during the commission's meetings it decided to use sentencing guidelines as a tool to control the prison population. This was never intended when the Legislature created sentencing guidelines. Now a commission without law enforcement or victim representation has designed a system to keep criminals out of jail and to release those few who get there quickly and quietly. How can they do this? Easily. The 1994 sentencing guidelines changed the points necessary for a criminal to receive a prison sentence. The results are fewer prison sentences, less prison crowding, while violent crime consumes our communities. Easy solution, thanks for watching out for all of us.

How about the early release problem? Another simple answer. You will hear from certain legislators that early release is ending. Don't believe it. They have just changed the name for early release. It's now called gain time. State prisoners may now receive 20 days (levels 8-10) or 25 days (levels 1-7) days of incentive gain time per month. This means that habitual career criminals may only serve five (5) days per month of their sentence. That's right, only 60 days per year of sentence.

I could go on and on about the shell game the sentencing guidelines commission is playing. It's time that all of us tell our political leaders to stop playing games with the safety of the fine citizens of this state. Let's keep prisoners in jail and release our friends and families to enjoy their lives without fear of victimization.

Superwoman idea is a crock

WASHINGTON — "You've come a long way, baby."

"I can bring home the bacon, fry it up in the pan ..."

"Who says you can't have it all?"

I do.

You doubt it? Then if you're a mother who works outside the home, today must be a good day, one when you feel you've got the superwoman thing down pat. Meaning:

The dog got fed; lunches packed; clothes washed, dried, folded and tucked away. Your children woke up without your screaming, showered without your threatening, left for school on time with both homework and lunch and ate breakfast without yelling. "Mom! We're out of (orange juice-milk-sugar-bread-fruit-Rice Chex)!"

I've had such days.

But what about the other days? The ones when something — a forgotten bill, a sick child, a backed-up toilet — hits your smooth-running machine like a lightning bolt slamming a lone tree in a field.

The flimsy edifice that was your control shatters — not because of the current crisis, but because your frustration has been building, building. You look at all you're holding together and ask, "what made me think I could do this?"

They did.

Commercials that say it's possible to balance a house, children, a job and a partner on your shoulder pads (they're out, but you were too busy to notice). Magazine articles with "helpful hints." The legions of women who seem to have it together. They don't.

The American woman, working or not, averages 32.3 hours of housework a week, not including child care, says University of Akron sociologist Patricia Ulbrich, who analyzed data from a national survey of 1,246 couples. Men spend an average of 8.7 hours.

Which means most working women are going as crazy as you are.

"Last weekend," says one "successful working mother" (translation: one whose kids haven't yet murdered anyone), "I got groceries, did at least 16 loads of laundry, cleaned the grout, swept up plaster dust, put a coat of primer on a wall, changed the sheets, cleaned the basement and changed the litter box. My husband took a nap. I can't talk about this. ..."

Most of us can't. To do so would mean yelling, sobbing or facing that which we'd rather not face.

The superwoman notion is a crock. Just because we keep the illusion sputtering along doesn't mean it truly serves us. It's a hot issue with almost everyone.

Like the male editor who, informed of today's column topic, admitted, "housework is a constant source of irritation" between him and his wife.

Like writer Anna Quindlen, who said she's abandoning her Pulitzer Prize-winning column to spend more time with her family.

Like the TV producer, a mom of two, who asked me to sit on a panel on the issue. When I said "having it all" is a bad joke, she mentioned a group of mothers she hangs out with. One day, a group member announced she was getting a divorce, explaining, "I'm tired of doing everything. My husband just won't take equal responsibility."

Other group members were stunned. "We thought, 'Only that?'" the producer said. "We accept it."

Or like my pal Audrey. "Sometimes, I feel like I'm losing my mind," says Audrey, a dance teacher. "The other day my husband asked, 'What is the real issue?' I said, 'The issue is that you're not doing (expletive) ... He said, 'then don't cook.' ... But a week later, I got up and fixed him a whole breakfast. I squeezed oranges. ... there is this woman feeling you've got to do it all."

"It's not all men's faults, that we feel this pressure, but they aren't helping us to feel differently."

Sometimes, life forces a change. Last year, my pal Larry was unemployed for a year. Though he'd always been helpful around the house — he's one of the few men I know who actually cleans up while carrying on a conversation — it opened his eyes:

Most men, he says, are unaware of "the responsibility of shutting kids to activities, keeping them entertained ... cooking ... tasks that most men wouldn't want any part of. Anyone forced to make a household work can learn these tasks. ... But the traditional household doesn't give men that opportunity."

Forget exhaustion, unequal housework, who gets the milk. What about our children?

But unlike many moms, I'm here when they get home. Briefly, I get to see their faces, unobscured by a pile of duties. To breathe them in without panting.

The problem isn't wondering whether we can have it all. It's knowing, absolutely, that what we're getting is not nearly enough.

CHUCK STONE

Forget Harvard, go for Trenton State

I love television. Entertaining, informative and uplifting, but mostly entertaining.

Most Americans share my affection for this ubiquitously seductive medium, whose mesmerizing power can generate more controversy in a week than Bill Clinton has in two years.

But what Fred Allen called "chewing gum for the eyes" is, paradoxically, an enriching part of our lives. We watch it in a robotic trance. And we enjoy it.

One thing television can never do, however, is get your child into college. But if you read the appropriate magazines or newspapers, they can facilitate your child's admission into higher education.

If the recent issue of Money Guide and the Sept. 26 issue of U.S. News and World Report are not on your newsstand now, run to your nearest library and check them out, especially if you have kids who are getting ready to enter college and you want to help them make a decision that comports with your financial means, their intellectual prowess or both.

These issues represent one of the most productive public services ever published, even if their academic emphases differ.

The U.S. News and World Report survey, in a heuristic display of editorial arrogance, is titled, "America's Best Colleges." Money Guide's survey, concerned about more academic bang for the accountable buck, is titled, "Your Best College Buys Now."

As a parent, you have questions about your child's college intentions.

Which colleges are the best buys for the money? Which ones have the highest SAT/ACT scores for entering freshmen? Which ones are the most selective or have the highest SQ (snob quotient)?

Which ones have the highest percentage of freshmen in the top 10 percent of their high school graduating class? Which ones are ranked overall as the best? Which are the best women's colleges?

That last question reflects an audacious change in perception among college-bound women. Continued dehumanizing behavior among male students is fueling enrollment increases among women's colleges, even though women's colleges account for only 2.5 percent of the female undergraduates.

While there are few surprises in U.S. News and World Report's survey (pre-existing perceptions of higher education's best are confirmed), Money Guide does offer more practical criteria for judging where your son or daughter should attend college.

Money Guide's top 10 uses a "value approach" that offers your child the highest quality education for the tuition charged and a high degree of the students' academic and social satisfaction.

As a result, Money Guide comes up with some surprises. Relatively obscure Trenton State College in New Jersey is ranked No. 3 ($6,287 for out-of-state students), vis-a-vis, nationally prestigious California Institute of Technology ranked No. 8 ($16,905 for all students).

Probably the biggest surprises in Money Guide's rankings are New College of the University of South Florida as No. 1 and Spelman College for black women as No. 9.

All of us crave prestige. To be No. 1 is an American obsession. But if only millionaires can attend the academic best, then middle American parents must find that college whose superior academic reputation is balanced by its budgetary prudence.

One thing television can never do, however, is get your child into college.

Mandela heads to U.S. with familiar message

By SONIA BYSSON
Associated Press Writer

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — A year ago, Nelson Mandela took a simple message to the United States as South Africa prepared for its first all-race election: Apartheid was ending, so it was time to lift economic sanctions.

Now Mandela returns as South Africa's first black leader, carrying another simple but crucial message: It's time to do business.

His weeklong trip beginning Saturday includes another address to the U.N. General Assembly, meetings with President Clinton and other U.S. officials and a series of luncheons and dinners with the people whose money Mandela seeks in the form of investment and trade.

In the four years between his release from prison and the April election, Mandela urged U.S. companies to study South Africa in anticipation of the day that sanctions were gone, a democratic government was installed and they could make deals.

"Now they can do so," he said in a recent interview with The Associated Press.

America welcomed the former saboteur and political prisoner turned statesman as a hero in 1985. This year, he is likely to be closely scrutinized as leader of a liberation movement that now heads the government of a country rife with poverty, crime and violence.

Mandela was inaugurated May 10, and his first few months in office have been rocky. A series of strikes worried business leaders and frustrated consumers; critics complained some members of his ANC saw their new roles in government as a chance to raid public coffers; and a recent dispute between the Zulu king and Mandela's home affairs minister, Zulu nationalist Mangosuthu Buthelest, raised concerns of renewed faction fighting among Zulus.

A crowded schedule has at times worn down the 76-year-old president. Mandela canceled an appearance to accept a "newsmaker of the year" award Thursday night in order to rest for the U.S. trip.

But he has generally weathered it all so far with a grace that has reassured South Africans. The financial communities at home and abroad have taken note of his measured approach to reforming the economy, promising fiscal discipline while undertaking an ambitious development plan to provide housing, power, running water and jobs to millions of impoverished blacks.

Survey results released Thursday showed most South Africans believed Mandela could improve their lives, and were willing to give him time to try. Foreigners apparently agree.

A total of 165 U.S. companies do business here now, compared to a low of 104 in 1991.

"Why not recognize the city for flying the beautiful flag on the lake front," he observed.

So Monday night, the VFW members presented an official Americanism Award to the city, "in recognition of excellence in promoting Americanism and the patriotic principles of the Veterans of Foreign Wars."

Mayor Bettye Smith accepted the award on behalf of the city.

Drugs

Department disagrees with the concept that dealers move to different areas. "We find they just move to another location in the area," he said. "If we make arrests for street sales through undercover stakouts, they just move indoors. Then, if we get search warrants and start raiding some houses, they will move back outside again."

Bosco says the emphasis on combatting drug sales must be in the individual communities. "This crack epidemic we seem to have," he said, "is a community thing. It's mostly the people who live in a community who do the buying and selling, and they don't really want the activities to be eliminated."

Bosco says in most cases in which he has been involved, a raid in a community shuts down sales, but only for a brief time period before dealers go back into business.

Residents of Taft believe some of the drug dealers and hoodlums now in their community, were driven out of inner-city areas, and wound up in the Taft area, a rural community, where cows graze in open fields and dirt roads lead to superhighways.

"On Pine Street, I've heard different people say they were afraid to come out of their houses to go to the grocery store" in the heart of the town of about 2,300, said Ray Rogers.

Rogers is president of Taft Action for Taft and the newly formed Taft Fights Back, two groups mobilizing citizens for a two-mile march against crime this weekend.

"We want to let (the dealers) know that we don't like what they're doing," said Rogers.

Orange County Sheriff's Sgt. Robert Hadsell, who works in this community south of Orlando, said dealers hang out on the streets selling crack cocaine.

Many of the dealers have come here from Orlando neighborhoods, Tangelo Park and nearby towns where volunteers have carried out community programs to identify pushers and report drug activities to police.

For residents such as Jane Cleveland, drawn to Taft from Atlanta because of its small-town atmosphere, the drug sales are surprising and unsettling. She moved here because "you can feel like you're rural but still be part of a metropolitan area."

But she and others have been unable to escape some big-city problems.

"It's real bad in Taft," said Sgt. Hadsell, who is helping in the anti-drug effort. "There's just a constant sale of drugs and intimidation of the residents."

Rogers, a 14-year resident, said the problem has worsened in the past year.

Some of the difficulties are attributed to the success of programs such as Orlando Fights Back, which has targeted several neighborhoods frequented by drug dealers and other criminals.

The group teaches neighbors and businesses how to take control of their community. Residents have started up patrols with citizens band radios to report crimes and suspicious activities.

Volunteers sponsor summer youth programs, job fairs and teen dances.

The organization that helped fight crime in Tangelo Park is now being asked to help Taft.

"What's so good about Taft is that they have whites, blacks, Hispanics, everybody, and they're all fighting for one cause, and that's to rid their community of drugs," said Jackie Wilkerson, an Orlando Fights Back organizer.

Information from Associated Press is contained in this report.

Read

Elementary students to read and be read to.

"Many, many of these students are not read to at home," said Deborah Hanahew, the teacher who created the BEAR (Be Excited About Reading) Den. "We want to make reading an exciting part of their lives."

"I love it," said Perry. "I love reading and I love being up there reading to the other kids."

Hanahew said she started the program to help introduce the students to the joys of reading, but believes the students are learning much more.

The third through fifth graders who read to the younger students are members of Hamilton's student council.

Hanahew believes they are learning important lessons about leadership and self-esteem through the experience. The younger students also learn that the older students who they respect are enjoying reading.

"Many of the students at this school are non-readers," Hanahew said. "We realize that and we want to do something about it. This is a great way to introduce reading to students who probably aren't read to at home."

Sarah Jones is one of the members of the student government who said she didn't read much for pleasure before she got involved in the program. She says she still doesn't read much, but she's learning to appreciate the pleasures of books.

"And this (program) is fun," she said. Kimmy Baily describes herself as a voracious reader.

"I like to read thick comedy books," she said. "But I really like the chance to come in here and read to these kids. It's fun."

Anthony Turner, who likes to read long books when he's on his own, thinks there are some definite benefits to the BEAR program.

"I think we're helping other people learn to like to read," he noted.

Joanna Meisel said she likes reading to the younger students but would, frankly, rather read to herself.

"But I think we're setting a good example by reading to the younger kids," she said. "We're probably doing them some good."

Hanahew said she works with the student government representatives every morning for about 15 minutes before they bring the day's lucky class into the Den to hear a book read.

"We work on expressions and articulation," she said. "But all of these students, even the third graders read very well."

The BEAR Den is a cozy oasis of books where the youngsters can cuddle with their teddy bears and hear a fun story.

Given the opportunity to start their day like that, some adults might never get to work.

"We love it," Hanahew said. "This is the best part of the morning."

Debate

Orlando, Chilea said Feeney introduced a proposal that Florida "get out of the Union" if the national debt reached a certain level.

Chiles said that was tantamount to secession.

Bush responded that his running mate was simply trying to make a point about "the tyranny of Washington."

The debate was taped and will be distributed to public television stations around Florida, the Sunshine Network and C-Span.

The hourlong event at the Doral Golf Resort & Spa was sponsored by The Miami Herald, the Beacon Council and the Florida Economic Development Council. The candidates hinted at other debates, but details have not been worked out.

The governor criticized Bush's plan to offer vouchers for private schools, saying it should be done "only if you want to create welfare for private schools. ... I think it could destroy the public education process."

Bush said Chiles has taken too long to deal with crime and failed to lead Florida.

"He said he would 'downsize' government and it got bigger," Bush said. "Walkin' Lawton has become Talkin' Lawton."

voted unanimously to reschedule the vote to Nov. 22.

Developer Frank Shunock of Winter Park sought the same lot three years ago for an affordable housing complex. Shunock proposed to pave access roads and install water and sewer lines which he said could lead to the renaissance of Midway. The proposal was sponsored by the Midway Ministerial Alliance Association.

County planning and zoning commissioners rejected the plan Sept. 7 when several residents said they were concerned construction on the site might cause water to flow onto their lots. One adjacent property owner said he had to place 42 inches of fill on his lot before he could build his home.

Although the site is low, it is higher than many surrounding areas, said Buddy Balagia, community development officer. Although water pools on the site, Balagia said it eventually drains away. Any construction on the site will be required to address on-site drainage, he said.

Also, the county began improving the 21st Street drainage ditch this week, which should correct many of the problems in the area, Balagia said.

Boats

concerns about winning than ever before.

Similar to NASCAR automobile racing, the APR boat racers take part in a number of events each year. While winning the individual races is important, the biggest goal is to obtain more points. Winer said the two top racers are only 70 points apart, which he expects will have them pushing harder than ever for the victory lane and high points.

The boats are called Tunneboats. They are capable of attaining speeds of over 100 miles per hour from a dead-start, in only a matter of seconds. The crafts can also make a 90 degree turn with hardly losing any speed.

A reporter who had the opportunity to ride one of the boats prior to an earlier race this season wrote, "It's something like going 110 miles per hour in your car and then wheeling into your driveway without slowing down. Oh, ...and it's raining hard. And other cars are also trying to turn into your driveway too, simultaneously."

Another reporter said they don't look like boats, they appear to be more like a small space shuttle.

In one of the races this year, at Buckeye Lake State Park near Columbus, Ohio, a resident reportedly called the police telling them, "There's this strange thing out in the lake. It looks like the Concorde or something, and it's going really fast."

Several thousand people were drawn to the shore of Lake Monroe near the Monroe Harbour Marina complex last year for the races. This year, an even larger number could turn out for the two day event.

The event will be seen in the general area to the north of the marina. Further details on classes of races and starting times during the two-day event will be announced soon.

Abandoned site latest Disney frustration

By E. SCOTT HERRARD
AP Business Writer

BURBANK, Calif. — The demise of Walt Disney Co.'s plan for a tourist attraction near Civil War battlefields in Virginia is the latest setback for its theme park division.

Troubles range from sluggish attendance at Disneyland in Anaheim, Calif., and Disney World in Orlando, Fla., to the huge losses of Euro Disney near Paris.

While Disney's profits rose 3 percent to $267.5 million in the quarter ending June 30, the performance of its theme parks fell 9 percent. Booming filmed entertainment and consumer products divisions kept Disney growing. The $625 million Disney's America — a modest park by Disney standards — fell prey to objections by environmentalists, residents and historians. They said the project near Haymarket, Va., would encroach on the Manassas battlefield and potentially irrevocably destroy it.

"Implicit in our vision for the park is the hope that it will be a source of pride and unity for all Americans. We certainly cannot let a particular site undermine that goal by becoming a source of divisiveness," said Peter S. Rummel, president of Disney Design and Development Co.

The company would prefer another Virginia site within an easy day's trip of Washington, D.C. The flag at Town Hall in Haymarket was lowered to half-staff after the announcement.

"We have a lot of supporters here," said Dana Nottingham, president of Disney's America. "A lot of people welcome us."

The governors of Maryland and West Virginia on Thursday offered their states as alternatives. "I don't want to be optimistic, but at the same time we have to make a pitch," said Maryland Gov. William Donald Schaefer.

Disney's decision surprised most people involved with the project. In June, Disney chairman Michael D. Eisner had vowed to stand firm. "If people think we will back off, they are mistaken," he said.

The company's theme park frustrations stem mainly from its inability to duplicate the smash successes of its parks in Tokyo and Florida.

Tokyo Disneyland enjoys the best attendance of all the parks. But Disney planners failed to take an ownership stake in that venture, and the company has collected only management and licensing fees while equity holder Oriental Land Co. made big money.

Not wanting to make the same mistake, Disney set up Euro Disney with a lot of debt and a 49 percent ownership stake. But when the park buckled from low attendance and the debt burden, half the losses fell to Disney.

Euro Disney got a $1 billion capital infusion this year, backed by Saudi investor Prince Al-Waleed Bin Talal Bin Abdulaziz Al Saud, who wound up owning 9 percent.

Disney's original theme park, Disneyland in Anaheim, was so successful that by the late 1950s company officials were suggesting building a second park nearby to capture more tourist dollars.

But Disney had trouble getting land and government approvals in a rapidly urbanizing Southern California and Disneyland became surrounded by tacky commercial strips.

That lesson caused Disney to buy up some 27,000 acres near Orlando when it decided to expand to the East Coast in the 1960s. Disney, which now operates three Florida theme parks, wound up controlling nearly every aspect of development through a quasi-city government that critics said sometimes overrode environmental concerns.

Attempts so far to have get another park going in southern California have been fruitless.

An ocean-themed park in Long Beach announced in 1990 was stymied by environmental problems. And a version of Epcot Center to go by Disneyland has been hurt by squabbles over who will pay for road and other improvements.

Doctors: War on cancer is stalled, needs quick surgery

By LAMAR HERRARD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The war against cancer has stalled after $23 billion and 23 years of work — and poor health care and lack of coordination are mainly to blame, cancer experts told Congress.

"We have a schizophrenic system," said Dr. Paul Calabrese, chairman of the National Cancer Advisory Board. "New direction is urgently needed."

Congress last year asked the board to uncover why, 23 years after President Nixon declared the war on cancer, the disease is still on the rise.

In a report Thursday called "Cancer at the Crossroads," the panel concluded that doctors have made tremendous progress against some forms of cancer and are finding cancer-causing genes and innovative treatments.

Still, one in every three Americans will get cancer and one in five will die of the disease. The overall mortality rate is 8 percent higher today than in 1971 and cancer is destined to surpass heart disease as the No. 1 killer in just five years.

The main problems, the panel said, are lack of health care, lack of direction for the National Cancer Program and a lack of money to get treatments that are sitting in laboratories today to the doctor's office.

"For the first time, we have laid out the National Cancer Program for what it really should be," said Dr. Harold Freeman of the President's Cancer Panel. "If Congress fails, that's their burden."

The panel called for: — A Cabinet-level cancer czar to coordinate work by the National Cancer Institute and other government agencies, hospitals and private groups.

— Universal access to state-of-the-art treatment. Most managed-care systems — and health reform plans — make victims settle for general practitioners instead of NCI-designated cancer centers and keep patients away from top treatments because they won't cover drugs that are still in clinical trials.

"You can have a little bit of diabetes. ... You don't have a little bit of cancer," Calabrese said. "Cancer has to be treated by specialists."

— Sufficient funding. Most important, NCI needs $60 million a year to move new discoveries into clinical trials, a bridge now almost totally neglected because money from drug companies and hospitals has disappeared, the panel said.

— An end to government support of tobacco, which NCI says causes one-third of all cancer deaths. The panel condemned federal tobacco subsidies, tax deductions for tobacco advertising and support for tobacco exports. "This undermines the war against cancer," Freeman said.

The report comes just days after congressional leaders declared health reform legislation dead for this year, after efforts to raise tobacco taxes died and in an era of budget cutbacks that has diseases fiercely competing for limited funds.

Still, the panelists were optimistic. Congress will again tackle health reform in January, they noted, and Calabrese has already been asked to study the duplication of efforts in cancer funding among government agencies.

School board says saving students from gunman was not teacher's job

By RAVI HERRARD
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO — Clarence Notree barely had time to act when a gunman burst into the elementary school gym. As the bullets flew, the physical education teacher spread out his arms to shield the children and pushed them out a door to safety. He got shot in the wrist.

His school and community lauded Notree as a hero, but the Chicago Board of Education insisted he wasn't entitled to Workers Compensation.

They said saving the children's lives was not part of his job. An arbitrator ruled in favor of Notree's $13,000 claim, but the board appealed. A ruling is expected next week.

"To sit there and listen to (the school board lawyer) say that it is not my responsibility as a teacher to protect these kids is just ridiculous," Notree said.

And shootings are fairly common near Woodson North Elementary School, said Notree, who later resigned and took a less dangerous job as a stadium manager after he saw two children in his program get shot to death. The school is in an impoverished neighborhood on the city's South Side.

On Sept. 17, 1991, Notree was running basketball drills for about 30 kids in the city's "Hot Shots" after-school program when he heard gunshots coming from behind him.

Without turning to see the gunman, Notree tried to get the children, some as young as 8, to safety. Notree finally made it through the door, with blood spurting from his wrist.

"Every one of those kids was running and being helped through that door, and it was Notree who, by being the last one, was shot," said his co-worker, Adrienne Fleming. "He was shielding them."

The gunman was never caught. Notree lost 20 percent of the use of his right wrist and has trouble swinging a baseball bat and playing sports that require heavy wrist pressure.

School Principal William Taylor commended Notree for his bravery. The Board of Education did pay Notree $1,410 for sick leave as he recovered from his wound, and its health insurance program covered his medical bills.

However, the board rejected his compensation claim.

"Playground activity does not inherently contain a risk of being shot by some unknown assailant," the board declared in its appeal.

Board of Education spokeswoman Dawn Simmons declined to comment while the case was pending.

"I kind of feel betrayed," said Notree, a teacher for 19 years. "You kind of expect them to be behind you saying, 'job well done,' rather than have them say you did something wrong."

AROUND THE NATION

Lockout threatens NHL openers

NEW YORK — Unless there is a last-minute change of heart by NHL owners, Saturday's 12 season-opening games likely will be postponed by a lockout.

A source told the Associated Press that NHL teams rejected the players' latest offer, in which players agreed not to strike in the 1994-95 season if owners agreed not to lock them out. The decision apparently cleared the way for commissioner Gary Bettman to postpone the start of the season.

Trio tied for Chase lead

From Staff Reports

BANFORD — An unexpected guest has made an appearance at the top of the standing in the Sanford Recreation Men's Fall Thursday Night Slowpitch Softball League at Chase Park.

While defending Spring Thursday champion AD Rosier/Florida Sport Wear and powerful Sportmart were knocking heads again, MA Erectors were pounding the ball for 31 runs on 36 hits in sweeping a doubleheader to move into a three-way tie for first place.

In the opening game of the evening, Sportmart (3-1) turned the tables on AD Rosier/Florida Sport Wear (3-1), collecting a 6-4 victory and ending the former champs' three-game unbeaten string. And for the second straight week, the team with the most hits did not win.

MA Erectors then took the field and won games how most people expect a slowpitch game to be won, with a lot of runs and a lot of hits.

Sportmart	113	200	3	—	13	10
AD Rosier/Florida Sport Wear	100	190	0	—	0	11

MA Erectors	100	190	0	—	13	11

In the first game, MA Erectors scored the tying run in the bottom of the seventh inning, then got the game winner in the eighth inning on a one-out triple by Erick Bullock to keep Beer-30 (0-3) winless, 14-13.

The nightcap saw MA Erectors (3-1) fall behind 11-0 to Wayne Denach (0-3) in the top of the second inning and trail 13-5 after three innings before rallying for a 17-13 triumph.

Pacing Sportmart were James Thompson (two singles, run, RBI), Bill Gracey (two singles, two runs), Tom Wilkes (two singles, run), Brian Jones (two singles), Mike Marshall (home run, run, three RBI), Bill Marino (single, two RBI) and Dave Huddick (single, run).

AD Rosier/Florida Sport Wear was led by Jerry Brussels (double, two singles), Tony Blaine (three singles, two RBI), Brantley Brumley (two

Perfect pair top Pinehurst

From Staff Reports

BANFORD — The games were a lot more competitive this week, but once again it was the visiting teams walking off with a sweep in the Sanford Recreation Men's Fall Slowpitch Softball League at Pinehurst Park.

The top three teams in the league, the Flames, Ken Rummel Chevrolet, and Hopkins Meats were pushed to the full seven innings, but each still remain only a half-game apart in the standings.

Hopkins Meats (3-1) rallied for three runs in the top of the seventh inning to edge Briar Corporation (0-4), 12-11; Ken Rummel Chevrolet (3-0) raced out to a 10-0 lead and held off Stiffey's Affordable Furniture, 10-5; and the Flames (3-0) scored four runs in the third inning to erase a 1-0 disadvantage and hung on to defeat Stiffey's (0-4), 7-5.

Next week, Hopkins Meats takes on Stiffey's at 6:30 p.m., and Ken Sophomore Aubrey Nelson (No. 32, above) and Japanese exchange student Yuka Shirmira each registered four kills for the Seminole Fighting Seminoles in their match with the Lake Howell Silver Hawks Thursday night. Despite Nelson and Shirmira's efforts, Lake Howell swept the Seminoles, 15-3, 15-10.

Silver Hawks sweep Tribe three times

From Staff Reports

WINTER PARK — Lake Howell made short work of the visiting Seminole Fighting Seminoles Thursday night, sweeping through all three matches of their girls' volleyball tripleheader.

The Silver Hawks' freshman team got things started by rolling to a 15-11, 15-9 win. The junior varsity followed with a 15-3, 15-8 sweep of the Tribe.

Lake Howell's varsity capped the evening by beating Seminole, 15-3, 15-10.

"We played well," said Seminole coach Beth Corso. "We just didn't play good enough. We have to step up a game a little more if we're going to beat a team like Lake Howell."

Aubrey Nelson led Seminole with four kills and four other good spikes. Christina Campbell contributed six assists, one kill, and three dinks. Sabrina Sapp played well for Tribe along the front row.

Yuka Shirmira, an exchange student from Japan, chipped in with seven digs, four kills, three other good spikes, and two dinks for Seminole.

"Her passing is excellent," said Corso of Shirmira. "She played all the way through the rotation and did a good job. She reacts to the ball well on defense."

Lake Howell (6-6 overall, 2-2 in the Seminole Athletic Conference) hosts Lyman next Tuesday. Seminole (1-9, 0-4 SAC) is at home against Lake Mary on Tuesday.

Team effort carries Rams over Cougars

From Staff Reports

ORLANDO — With their leading offensive player suffering a rare off night, the rest of the Lake Mary Rams stepped up and defeated the University Cougars 15-11, 15-8 in boys' volleyball action Thursday.

Lake Mary's junior varsity also won in two games. "This was a really good match for us," said Lake Mary coach Bill Whalen. "Erik Larsen, our No. 1 hitter, had an off night and everyone else picked up the slack."

"Dan Parsons, who's the only senior in the starting lineup, really came on strong. He had some key kills when we really needed them and he seemed to be all over the floor. It was probably the best match he's played all year."

Parsons finished with six kills as the Rams ran their season-opening win streak to 12-0.

Will Lipscomb contributed six kills, six blocks, and 16 assists. Jeff Phillips added two kills and nine blocks. Devin Hale had five kills. Darrell Dilmore chipped in with two kills and six blocks.

Difficult son, 14, gives parents fits

DEAR MARY: It's hard for me to say this, but I am really afraid that our 14-year-old son is out of control and headed for big trouble. He has been hard to handle since the day he was born. Everything we've ever told him to do, he does the opposite, and the same thing to us at school.

We've tried to discipline him for the trouble he causes at school and here at home, but nothing works. I admit that sometimes we just give up and don't even bother to try anymore. If we reacted every time, we'd do nothing but fight. But then what often happens is my husband goes nuts over some little thing that our son does, and comes down way too hard on him.

None of us can keep this up much longer. Our son says he's going to run away, and I believe him. In fact, sometimes I wouldn't care if he did. Don't suggest counseling — we can't afford it and our son would never go, anyhow.

DESPERATE MOM

DEAR DESPERATE: You've got to find a way to break this pattern of interacting with your son right away and develop new ways of communicating with him. That in no way means that you should give up trying to discipline him. You've all fallen into destructive patterns without regard for anyone's real needs. Your approach must become one of authority based on fairness and caring.

It sounds like your son's primary way of getting your attention is to behave badly. I wonder how much attention he gets when he isn't in trouble, either at home or at school.

FAMILY COUNSELOR
MARY BALK

While every parent knows that some kids are just easier to rear than others, it's also a long-proven principle of effective discipline that parents and teachers can encourage kids to act the way we want them to by rewarding and emphasizing their positive behavior much more than always focusing on their negative behavior.

Another problem I sense from your letter is inconsistent and unpredictable punishment. Do not give empty threats, but do make the punishment fit the "crime." Overpunishment for some infractions and no punishment for others just makes you look weak and irrational in your son's eyes. It might help to create a list of "house rules" and consequences for infractions so everybody knows the rules of the game.

A support group for parents with difficult children might help you maintain the strength you will need to develop these new patterns of interacting with your son. Check with some local churches or the Central Florida Helpline (407)740-7477.

Fall and winter fashions

Look for interesting designs, fabric, color

The driving force this year is sure to be fabric and fabric mixing followed closely by color. Look for some interesting ethnic designs as well as a number of naturalistic motifs. World affairs — especially the attention given the African nations — is very apparent in fashion this season.

Viewing the entire collection of offerings will give you a great deal to ponder. The word that comes to mind is "eclectic" — a lot of variety! The good news is it only takes an item or two to update your wardrobe this fall. The down side is it will probably cost a bit more this year than last.

The natural, easy-comfort look remains very important this season in men's and women's wear alike. Fashion experts continue to speak of and encourage careful, yet thoughtful wardrobe planning. Never before has this been more important since fashion-conscious consumers have few rules or guidelines to follow. It is truly a time when everyone can find something of interest to spark up their wardrobe and their appearance. The key, however is to know your wardrobe and yourself.

For women there is a wide variety of silhouettes being shown with nothing really taking the spotlight. The A-line shape is very strong from dresses to skirts. However, if you are fond of slim-line shapes, you will not be disappointed! The list of styles being shown is lengthy, a few of which are empire

CONSUMER FOCUS

dresses, long vests, pea jackets, short jackets, shirt tails, sarong skirts, cropped vests, tiered skirts, walking shorts, boleros. Tunics, big shirts, kilt, slim pants, full pants, and jumpers.

Layering is important as a fashion feature. Wrapped, soft and fluid as well as draped effects will catch your eye. The Far East influence remains important and can be seen in a variety of presentations from the long flowing tunics to the mandarin collared shirts and shawl-wrapped skirts.

And, what about hemlines? You can take your pick of long, short, or in-between! There is a variety from the mid to the long. The most popular hem length tends to hover around the knee. The best advice on hemline is to select a length which is comfortable, yet in the range for your body type and size. Figure flattery is the name of the game!

The most exciting arena this season is fabrication! In addition to the array of microfibers in the marketplace, be alert to such items as mud cloth, polar fleece and other unusual fabrics. Let's not overlook many of our traditional favorites such as tweed, flannel, and denim. Corduroy is making a very big comeback. It is very soft and durable and you will find it in solids, prints and florals. Also, look for a return of fake fur.

Color is perhaps the single most impressive seasonal characteristic. This fall brings a variety of colors from pale to brights. The season's neutrals take on a soft approach which tends to highlight the lush earth tones. As with many seasons in the past, the environment provides the inspiration and stimulation.

Once again it is open season on fashion! While there are many different looks from which to choose, the best look is one that flatters you. This is not necessarily the same look that flatters your neighbor or best friend. Remember, when combining textures, colors, designs or lines some similarity should exist. Too much variety is overwhelming!

Have fun and enjoy!

Woman devastated donor had AIDS

DEAR ABBY: I am a wife and mother who never thought HIV/AIDS would come so close to my family. Ten years ago, all we wanted was a baby. We found out that we could not conceive, so we tried artificial insemination. We tried for a year, no luck. So we ended up adopting a boy.

Two years ago, we received a telephone call. The semen donor had AIDS. I was tested, and the results were positive.

I know that I am meant to help other people with this. Abby, 80,000 women in this country have been inseminated — and they need to be tested! Only five states are requiring donors to be tested, and that is ridiculous. I hope to change that. Please let me be a voice, so that others can receive early treatment. Thank you for all of your AIDS work.

MARY O. DI LAQUINA
NOVEL, CALIF.

DEAR MARY O.: Thank you for an important letter. At this time, approximately 20 states test semen donors for HIV, but that is still fewer than half the states in this country. Unfortunately, 10 years ago

ADVICE

when you were inseminated, there were no tests for HIV. The Centers for Disease Control issued its first guidelines for semen donors in 1985. They have since been updated twice (1988 and 1994). However, the CDC cannot mandate or regulate enforcement of its guidelines.

The CDC recommends that all semen donors be tested at the time of donation and that their sperm be frozen for six months, at which time the donor is tested again. If his results are negative, his frozen semen is then made available for insemination.

Although some states follow recommended guidelines, they are not always as stringent as those issued by the Centers for Disease Control.

Your letter should serve as a warning to other couples. When a sperm bank is contacted, the people there should be carefully questioned about their procedures: Are they using frozen semen? Do they retest their donors after six months before using their semen? Are they accredited? If so, by whom? The state agency that regulates the sperm bank should be contacted, and the records regarding that bank should be reviewed. Finally, contact more than one sperm bank before making a decision on which to use.

For additional information, I recommend The American Fertility Association in Birmingham, Ala.; the Intergovernmental Health Policy Project in Washington, D.C.; and the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

DEAR ABBY: I have been going with a very nice young lady and I would like to ask her to marry me, but I'm afraid our marriage might not have a chance because of the hours I would have to work.

Should I get married while I'm with the fire department or try to get another job?

ROOKIE FIREMAN
DEAR FIREMAN: Ask the guys at the firehouse. Plenty of firefighters are happily married. The flame of love can continue to burn brightly at home while you put out the others.

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I went on a trip last year, he hired a woman to stay in our home and look after our three children. We thought we knew this woman quite well, as she was sort of in our social circle and belongs to our club.

After we came home and several weeks later, I couldn't find a pair of earrings and a pin to match, which had been a birthday gift from another friend of mine. I would know this jewelry anywhere, as it is quite unusual.

Last evening my husband and I went to our club, and there was this friend who stayed at our home last year, wearing my jewelry! Up until that time, I wanted to believe that I had just misplaced it. Needless to say, I was shocked. Shall I confront her with the facts as I know them, or should I just wait and hope she reads your column?

FORT ANGELES, WASH.

DEAR FORT: Confront her with the facts. But don't expect her to hand them over. Anyone who would steal, would probably lie.

Departing from Norfolk, Va., in May, Kester participated in the 50th anniversary of D-Day with port visits in England and France, and took part in a review of ships off the Normandy coast of France in honor of World War II veterans lost in the Normandy invasion.

Since then, Kester has traveled through the Suez Canal into the Red Sea, and has served in the Indian Ocean off the coast of Somalia in southeast Africa, as part of a contingency evacuation force.

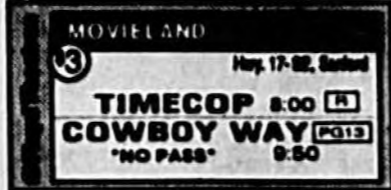

He joined the Navy in Feb. 1988.

JAMES B. MOORE

Navy Airman Apprentice James B. Moore, son of Susan L. Deir of 216 Meadow Hills Drive, Sanford, recently participated in the 50th anniversary of the liberation of Guam aboard the amphibious assault ship USS Belleau Wood, forward deployed to Sasebo, Japan.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Does chromium help build muscle and curb a person's desire for sugar?

DEAR READER: Trace amounts of chromium, readily available in a balanced diet, are necessary for sugar metabolism. Chromium deficiency in humans is extraordinarily unusual.

Chromium poisoning (at dietary levels about 50 milligrams per day) is associated with kidney and liver damage; thus, chromium supplements should not be used except under close medical supervision. Chromium does not build muscle or affect a person's sweet tooth.

The diagnosis is made by blood tests or - on occasion - biopsy.

The disease can be successfully treated with prednisone, a steroid drug. If the temporal artery is involved, drug therapy may have to be continued for months, to avoid blindness.

Once symptoms have abated and the blood tests are normal, the prednisone can be stopped. However, recurrences are common and require additional courses of prednisone.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been diagnosed with polymyalgia rheumatica. Can you please tell me more about this painful ailment? What causes it and when will it go away?

DEAR READER: This is considered to be an auto-immune disease, in which people become allergic to their own normal tissues - in this case, muscles and arteries.

Polymyalgia rheumatica has a predilection for females over the age of 50. It causes muscle pain and stiffness, malaise, fever, depression, and weight loss. It may affect the temporal artery (near the ear), leading to headache and visual disturbances.

WIN AT

By Phillip Alder

"Thinking About BPs" by John Boder is a... (815) 955-8888. Bader Barclay, 800-274-2221. The author discusses all aspects of team play, presenting a lot of problem areas but offering only a few solutions. The subject matter is best used by a serious partnership who wish to improve their imp play through the formation of agreements. Remember, any agreement is better than none.

In this deal, which occurred during the 1983 Bermuda Bowl semifinals, two pairs stopped in game and two went on to six hearts. The slam would be reasonable if either player held the heart 10. In the given auction, three hearts was game-forcing, of course. Then I think South overbid by cue-bidding his club ace. A quiet four hearts looks sufficient.

Did the dummy pass because of the declarer's pass? Declarer wins the first trick in the dummy and plays a heart to the 10, jack and queen. A second spade is won in the dummy and another trump picks up East's king. South ruffs a club in the dummy, returns to hand with a ruff, draws West's last trump and claims.

That might happen in a club game, but not in a world championship. All four Easts played the heart king on the first round from the dummy, forcing declarer to win with the ace. Now no declarer won 12 tricks (as he hadn't seen West's hand). If he ruffed a club in the dummy, East overruffed. If instead he entered dummy for a second trump play, West won with the queen and returned his last trump, killing the club ruff.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Ouel
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Oct. 1, 1984

In the year ahead, it looks as though you will strike a better balance in your personal affairs. This new awareness will help you devote more time to pleasurable pursuits, while also permitting you to fulfill your worldly ambitions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today you might have to deal with several individuals who put personal gains over nobler aspirations. Ignore them and put your good deeds before your greed. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Accomplishments might not come easily for you today, not necessarily due to outside influences or obstacles, but due to the way you'll handle situations.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you waste time today trying to gratify an old grudge, it could subtract from doing something meaningful with your time and energies. Keep your priorities in order.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Unfortunately, others might not be as eager to share with you today as you are with them. The next time you'll know better, so chalk up today's happenings to experience.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There are two sides to every coin, but today you must be very careful not to dwell on negative aspects. You'll be setting mental standards for achievements.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Persons who go out of their way to help you today should be properly acknowledged and rewarded. If they aren't, they may not be around the next time you need them.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You have a knack today for managing people while letting all think they are actually their own boss. You won't be seeking personal accolades, just solid results.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A development might arise today requiring you to make a serious decision pertaining to a loved one. For happiest results, let your heart do the thinking for you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A matter which affects your security might look more ominous on the surface today than it actually is. It isn't a piece of cake, but you can handle it effectively if you apply yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Control events today instead of letting them dominate you, especially situations that relate to your finances and earnings. If you're weak, a loss may result.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Guard against inclinations today to do things the hard way just to make a point or to prove your methodology is the best. This is an unproductive pattern.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Innately, you are a rather practical and logical individual. Upon occasion, however, you let unruly emotions take control. This could be one of those days.

YOU'LL HAVE A REAL GOOD TIME!

We Salute Our American Traditions

Have you ever wondered where your ancestors obtained the necessities of life? More than likely, they made them themselves.

Come to Pioneer Days 'n Ways, October 1 and 2 at the Museum of Seminole County History in Sanford between 10:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. to see pioneer skills demonstrated.

Back in the 1800s if a boy wanted to wash his face and hands, he would have used soap his mother made. See a soapmaker at work.

The first blue denim was dyed with indigo, possibly grown in Florida. See an indigo dye-maker brewing his dye and coloring fabric and yarn as he relates the story of growing the indigo and making the dye.

To dispel the gloom of darkness our ancestors burned candles, probably made at home. Pioneer Days 'n Ways will present a candlemaker simmering her mixture of beeswax and secret ingredients. Watch her tie the wicks and pour the molds.

Pioneer Days 'n Ways will host a cooper, a blacksmith, and old-time medicine show, basketmakers, and quilters. We'll have it all right before your eyes just the way great-grandfather and great-grandmother did it.

Except The LORD Build The HOUSE They Labor In Vain That Build It

Our trek begins benignly enough...a slightly inclining path polka-dotted with wildflowers and carpeted in velvet moss. As we ascend, the terrain is more difficult, abundant with boulders made slippery by mountain streams. Breathing is faster now, our lungs hungry as the climb becomes more taxing. It is an enticing thought to turn back, yet the mountain beckons...daring us to continue. We accept the challenge.

Eventually, we see the summit in the distance, yet the nearly vertical rock face teases us, testing our faith in our gear and our guide, praying that both will pass the test.

Hearts pounding with exhaustion and exhilaration, we finally reach the summit...conspicuous every one, feeling close to Heaven as we silently thank our Creator.

This Sabbath begin that trek toward Heaven. With God as your guide, your steps are secure.

The news of River Oaks Church first-worship service at the Lake Mary Elementary School was communicated primarily through 10,000 telemarketing calls to area residents.

Shortly after its first year, River Oaks Church moved to the Driftwood Village Shopping Center where it occupied 2,500 square feet for its worship and learning center. River Oaks has just recently expanded to over 4,000 square feet which allows for more worship, Sunday school, nursery and office space at Driftwood Village at 3525 West Lake Mary Blvd.

Smith guides Bridge to God

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Pastor Mary Smith has been working with residents at the Sanford Bridge Rehabilitation and Restoration Center for two months. The center opened in June of this year on Holly Ave. and strives to rehabilitate those with drug and alcohol addictions.

Smith spoke of her call to this ministry. "It does my heart good to see some of the residents already standing outside waiting for us to arrive and administer the word of God to them," she said. "Many refer to me as Mother Smith." Accompanied by Elder George Rensington and his wife, Lenora, who Smith calls "faithful servants of God," the trio leads the residents in studies of the Bible. The Rensington family and Smith met at Sanford Christian Worship Center, 805 W. 13th St. in Sanford.

The meetings begin with a word of prayer and scripture reading. Each person present will share or bring their own Bible to the service. Smith and other members of the group then preach or teach the word of God to the men at the center. "We are in hope that this will bring them to the Lord for salvation and restoration," said Smith. The feedback from the residents has been positive. Henry

Sales said, "I thank the Lord for truly he is worthy to be praised. I thank the Lord for all his benefits and blessings. I thank him for a peace of mind and freedom for the Son who sets me free. I thank Mother Smith for her involvement and studies." Harry Bryant, another resident added, "My life was unmanageable before coming to the Bridge. I was in and out of jail. I had no control over my alcohol problem. I started going to church and started listening to Mother Smith. She said God could remove any problem you have if you ask him to. I have learned that God loves everyone." The residents have also been very quick to attend all the meetings and give testimonies before the group when asked. Smith has helped the men become better acquainted with the Lord through her ministry. In the months that Smith has been going to the center she reported results in numbers from her work. "Eighteen of the residents have come to know the Lord and received him as their Savior," said Smith. She also elaborated on her ministry. "Little did I know that through a friend who was knowledgeable about my work since 1985 with the Juvenile Prison Ministry that God would open another door for me to minister to these men at the Sanford Bridge," she said. "It is a great privilege for me and my staff to be God's instruments to help these men find their way back to God." The center has made a room available for Smith and the residents of the Sanford Bridge to meet every Wednesday for approximately two hours from 8 to 10 p.m. They also meet on Sunday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Commitment, key to failing family

SANFORD — The traditional "Clever Family" from the 50's sitcom, "Leave It to Beaver" has long since been forgotten. It seems, in these days of the deterioration of the family unit, The American family has shown trends and received reports of sad statistics for many years. Dick Boyer of the Seminole County Public Health Unit/HRS reported that in Seminole County alone 41 percent of households do not have two parents living in the home.

Statistics from national reports show that one quarter of the children in America now live with only one parent and in more than one-third of those families the parent has never been married. Sixty percent of their job and they look for greener pastures instead of looking at themselves of value in how God made them." Brock pointed out that at one time it was taboo to be divorced or bear a child without the bonds of marriage. He shared further statistics about the future of the family. "Studies tell us that because of finances and housing problems that many will share housing with extended family or other families." Ending on a positive note Brock added, "The statistics also show that in the next decade there will be a decline in the divorce rate due to population growth, individuals marrying later and more realistic views and less expectations upon entering into marriage."

What is the cause of the high number of divorces and children born out of wedlock? Is the solution one that points to God? Is it true that the family that prays together, stays together? Sidney Brock, minister of the First Baptist Church, Sanford spoke on his views concerning the breakdown of the traditional family. "I feel that two factors come into play most of the time," he said. "There is a loss of Christian values and a commitment to the marriage and God. Families are also split by dual parents working. The real key is that many times we're basing our incomes after our wants instead of our needs. Much of the time spouses are not finding what they need to build their self-esteem in their spouse all children born after 1980 will spend at least part of their childhood in a one parent home. Seminars are held across the nation by religious leaders striving to help rebuild the family and it's life. Numerous film and book series are devoted to strengthening the bonds and commitments in marriages.

Ask the preacher questions

Dear Minister Black: "Does the Bible teach that when I have been wronged by another that I must extract my just vengeance, 'an eye for an eye'?" It is true that the law of Moses required an "eye for an eye" in penalty in certain transgressions. It was mandatory sentence placed upon the judges when they found a man guilty of falsely accusing the innocent. (Deuteronomy 19:21)

A judge's hands were also bound to the lex talionis principle when fighting men accidentally strike a pregnant woman and injury follows. (Exodus 21:24) In Leviticus 24:19-22 this same principle of jurisprudence is mandated when dealing with the conflicts between a foreigner and a native. In this situation, the law acted as a limiting force to keep the native from extracting too much justice from the foreigner or stranger. In ancient and modern society men seek revenge with a zeal that exceeds more than the individual lost. Although punitive damage is a viable concept to help discourage the non-conformist, it is easy to abuse. When God allowed men to take vengeance under the Law of Moses, he limits them to only exactly what has been taken. No more! Jesus mentions the principle of lex talionis in Matthew 5:28-39, but he challenges his followers to resist evil with good by turning the other cheek. The cycle of violence is destroyed when one refuses to retaliate. The Bible does not teach us to get even but encourages us to forgive. Jesus was not attempting tort but challenging us to live by the Spirit.

Editor's note: Tony Black, Minister of the Sanford Church of Christ will answer your Bible-related questions. You can write to him, c/o Sanford Herald, 308 N. French Ave., Sanford, FL 32771.

Minister Tony Black
