Port Boss: We're In Money Trouble...

By MAX ERKILETIAN Herald Staff Writer

"The day may come before the end of this fiscal year when we would not have funds for operating money. I don't mean we would have to close down the port, but we might not be able to pay salaries," Jim Ryan, director of the Seminole County Port Authority (SCOPA) told his board of directors Monday. As We Seek Funds Seminole Community Action's (SCA) Executive Director Arnos Jones today took a slap at the Areawide Agency on Aging's (AAA) criticisms of SCA's Meals on Wheels program and promised to continue for at least 30 more days, the program to feed elderly poor in Sanford.

"The project director and the secretary of the Meals on Wheels program are willing to work without pay on an interim basis of 30 days while we search for funds," said Rev. Arnos Jones, "What the permanent arrangement will be as far as the staff is concerned has not been worked out." he said. "It would be ideal and desirable if the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS) would assume the responsibilit or their salaries.

federal guidelines, to continue for a second year nearly $25,000 in salaries under the federally-funded Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) for the Meals on Wheels project director Debborah Haines, Bookeeper-Secretary Patricia Cowles and Fran Genovese, coordinator of volunteers, who manage the program and are its only employees. Meals, free of charge, are delivered mostly by volunteers, according to Rev. Jones. Robert Ellis, the county's director of administrative services.

said the county has no other choice but to deny funding for an additional one year, adding that funding for the salaries expires With the imminent expiration of funding for the salaries, the program was in jeopardy of being halted on May 23. Meanwhile, Dr. J.A. Mowbry of the (AAA) issued critical reports of the management by SCA of the program, directing a report to Sylvia Crawford, supervisor of Aging-Adult Services of The report outlined the AAA's monitoring of the program, its inspections of the SCA Headstart kitchens where the meals are prepared and bookkeeping shortcomings. The AAA provides $9,000 of the $22,000 used in the Meals on Wheels program, aside Rev. Jones today struck back at the AAA saying that agency had been "hostile, not helpful" to the project.

"From day one, there was pressure to have catered meals even though the Meals on Wheels Project was ongoing at the time where meal preparation was done at Headstart centers. There was increased pressure for this to be done and that notion has Added Jones: "Several raids have been made by AAA representatives. In one particular instance on April 7, 1978, the Sanford Head Start Center was invaded without notifying the Project Director, Head Start Director or the SCA Executive Director. The failure of AAA to extend the courtesy of introducing themselves even to a single Sanford Head Start staff person when entering the center is indicative of apparent contempt.

"When this team entered the center, they went straight forward to the kitchen area without saying one word to anyone, proceeding to open cabinet doors, refrigerator doors, and so forth, searching content of the building and taking notes. In this particular See REV. JONES, Page 2A

Social Security: Be Careful

Inis being an election year. Congress in preoccupied - but not with energy, not with reorganization of the bureaucracy and not even with tax reform.

The big issue on Capitol Hill right now is Social

The reason, as one House committee staff member put it, is that "a gale is blowing across the country;" the veters are raising cain over new Social Security taxes, which took a surprisingly big bite out of payroll checks on Jan. 1 under a law approved by Congress back in 1972.

But that was a relatively mild increase compared with what Congress enacted last year to rescue the Social Security system from financial difficulty - a $227 billion payroll tax hike during the next decade, causing the maximum tax paid by each employer and employee to rise from $965 to a stunning $3,045 in 1987.

This latest increase is scheduled to go into effect Jan. 1, 1979.

It is a surprising fact that the Social Security tax, which was only $60 a year in 1940, now exceeds the income tax paid by half the nation's wage earners. At the present rate of increase, the Social Security tax bite is expected to reach an incredible $6,772 by the year 2000.

Never mind that the newest Social Security tax increase won't hit the taxpayers until next January, well past the November elections; senators and congressmen are scurrying to roll back the payroll taxes because of bitter taxpayer backlash.

Most relief proposals under consideration would merely shift the burden from one tax or group to another

For example, House Budget Committee Chairman Robert Giaimo, D-Conn., has proposed that a $7.5 billion reduction in payroll taxes be made up from general revenue, that is to say, higher income taxes.

A more appealing approach has been suggested by Sen: Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., Rep. Abner Mikva, D-III., and Glaimo: Strip the Social Security program of its excess baggage namely Medicare, and assign all Social Security taxes now more than $110 billion annually - to Social Security alone.

This would return the program to its original New Deal purpose, retirement pension - a cushion

By linking payroll taxes solely with pensions, Congress would also police itself to some degree against voting too-generous pension benefits; the voters will resist pension largesse when they know such increases come from their paychecks. Meanwhile, there is a growing disposition in the House and Senate for an interim approach to Social Security financing to permit four different committees and commissions now studying the problem to recommend long-range solutions. We think this is the most sensible policy at the

Even though the Social Security tax increase enacted in 1977 represented courageous action by Congress, it was, nonetheless, hasty and flawed. A mindless retreat from that action could only compound our Social Security woes.

Congress could make a temporary freeze in Social Security taxes at the present level palatable by insuring that the proposed income tax reduction equal or even exceed the Social Security tax increase of last January.

Taxpayers have been particularly infuriated because the vaunted tax relief promised them by President Carter proved to be considerably less than the new Social Security taxes that he and congress have added.

Anyway, Congress should have the benefit of studies now under way before plunging ahead with any substantive changes in the Social Security program.

We can hope that these proposals will offer alternatives to taking 14.3 percent of the nation's income for Social Security by 1987.

The message that voters are getting across very effectively is that they have already reached the limits of Social Security.

Company Customer Refunds

TALLAHASSEE, (UPI) - The Public Service Commission plans to talk the state' largest telephone company into giving its customers refunds on their monthly bills.

Excess profits by Southern Bell Telephone Company prompted commissioners Monday to set June 6 as the day to "jawbone" company officials into granting immediate refunds or face a costly and time-consuming full rate case hearing.

Commissioner Billy Mayo, who pushed for the $133 million rate hike awarded Southern Bell last August, led the drive for the refund hearing.

"It would appear this company's rate of ceture has gone substantially above its allowed (profits)," Mayo said.

Skill Test Grading Challenged

TALLAHASSEE, (UPI) - Florida Legal Services attorneys are challenging the way the state Department of Education established the passing grade for the functional literacy and basic skills tests. Along with James Brady of St. Petersburg. they are claiming the state violated administrative procedures in setting 70 as a passing score for the tests, saying it is an arbitrary standard and that a higher score is really needed to pass the tests.

Empty House Protest

(UPI) - Angry feminists burst into empty House chambers protesting the refusal of the Florida Legislature to pass the Equal Rights

They would have made it into the Senate down the hall if the doors hadn't been locked. Some 200 to 250 people, most young women in blue jeans and t-shirts, marched on the old Capitol Monday and held an ERA rally on the building's steps.

They left peacefully minutes before the House was to go into session, but one protestor tried to carry off an American flag. It was wrestled away by a Westmark aide.

KEY LARGO, (UPI) - Deputies continued the hunt today for a man who left a 16-year-old girl blindfolded and tied to a tree after he raped her.

Insurance Agent: Change County Plan

The service agent for Seminole County's self-insurance program is seeking a modification in the current contract with the county to reduce duplication and speed up the "There's just too much delay and duplication between the time a claim is sent in and the county takes action," said Fred Wolfe, general manager for Gallaher-Bassett's Orlando office. Gallaher-Bassett is the insurance service agent for the county representing Lloyd's of London. Lloyd's is the excess carrier for the county's insurance program. They provide payment for any claim against the county from $300,000 to $1 million.

"It's just that they review the claims with their staff, we review with our staff and then it all has to be approved by the county commission. It may be delayed two weeks just

"It takes about 20 days on the average to get any action on claims and that's just too long. Any delay will cost you

At present, every claim against the county is processed through the office of Robert Ellis, director of administration, and reviewed by County Attorney Harry

The courty pays Gallaher-Bassett $148,191 per year to handle service fees and excess policies. Service fees constitute investigation of claims and the excess policies include workmen's compensation, liability, property and auto liability, according to Ellis. The changes in the insurance contract would not increase the county's payments, according to Wolfe.

One of the main things Gallaher-Bassett is seeking in the modification of its contract with the county, is more greement what they originally intended and that's that Under terms of the current agreement, the county can name any attorney, including Stewart, to handle litigation involving a claim. Gallaher-Bassett wants a firm that specializes in insurance claims to handle the legal work in their opinion is justified up to $5,800." — any news report of a claim against the county to constitute a report to Gallaher-Bassett of a claim. Under the proposal Gallaher-Bassett is seeking claims against the county would not be reviewed by county officials unless they exceed $5,000.

Guarantees Gallagher-Bassett is asking are:

'Grandpa In Washington: Has Promise

NEW YORK (UPI) - "Welcome Back, Namath," a senior citizen version of "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," and what sounds like "Love Boat" of the skies are among the innovations on NBC's fall schedule.

The eight new series for the fall 1978-79 television season replace some golden oldies among the six shows that were canceled - "Police Woman," "James at 15," "CPO Sharkey," "Chico and the Man," "Bionic Woman" and "Grizzly Adams." The new shows include "The Waverly Wonders," a half-hour sitcom with Joe Namath as a high school history teacherbasketball coach of a bunch of kids who sound like rejects from Kotter's classroom.

Other comedies include "Legs," another half-hour in which an entertainer tries to bring up her son among the absurdities of Las Vegas - "One Day at a Time Goes West?" "Coastocoast" offers a pair of stewardii having antics in the sky, ala "Coffee, Tea or Me" or a flying "Love Boat." The spelling of the title might be a tipoff of quality. The most promising of the comedies is "Grandpa Goes to Washington," mainly because it will star Jack Albertson. He impersonates a college professor who ends his enforced retirement by running for the U.S. Senate.

There are a pair of crime series — one is "Sword of Justice, which NBC describes as "a high-style modern-day swashbuckling adventure in the tradition of 'Zorro' and 'Count of Monte Cristo.' with the added element of humor."

Also in that category is "Capra," a whodunit with famous guest stars each week that sets up clues and suspects and lets the audience as well as the "dynamic anti-establishment lawyer" hero try to solve the crime. Might be fun.

NBC will try long-form drama with "W.E.B.," that seems a cross between "Executive Suite" and the movie "Network." The show, narrating the trials of a woman executive in the cutthroat world of network television," is the brainchild of Lin Bolen, former NBC vice president for daytime programming. There also is "Live from Hollywood with Dick Clark," an hour of live television that will include a hodgepodge of variety turns, gossip, whatever.

NBC evinces disappointing caution in its news magazine show. Instead of turning monthly late night "Weekend" into prime time 'Midweek," the network will go prime time monthly with "Weekend" until December, when the show is scheduled to go weekly, Fred Silverman willing.

CBS has gathered a great cast for its movie "Getting Married," to air May 17, 9-11 p.m., Eastern time. There's Richard Thomas (otherwise John-Boy Walton) as the shy young lover madly courting Bess Armstrong ("On Our Own"), television news anchorwoman, who plans to marry Mark Harmon ("Sam"). Others include Dena Dietrich ("It's not nice to fool Mother Nature"), Fabian (the singer), Katherine Helmond (Jessica of "Soap"), Mimi Kennedy ("3 Girls 3"), Audra Lindley ("Three's Company"), Vic Tayback ("Alice"), and Van Johnson That's the cast - where's the script?

Frustrated Longwood Council Wonders Who's At Fault

A tired collection of Longwood councilmen, frustrated at their inability to reach certain decisions on the proposed city charter, have taken out those frustrations by blaming and criticizing each other for the lack of

The dispute took place after Monday night's regularly scheduled meeting during a workshop on the proposed charter. The council had been in session about three hours and had spent an hour discussing the districting provisions of the charter when the criticisms surfaced.

The districting discussion comes on the heels of weeks of debate over a redistricting ordinance which was vetoed by Mayor Gerard Connell and upheid by the council. The districts pertain to the areas of the city a person must

The proposed charter leaves the districting the same as it is presently, with councilmen having to reside in a specific district, but elected by all of the city's voters. Councilman Ray Leibensperger, with support from Councilman Larry Goldbarg, proposed the charter be changed to one of two alternatives: Either do away with districts and have all officials elected at-large, or have each district vote only for its councilman. "Why have a district? It has no meaning," Leibensperger argued. "If you're going to run from a district and represent that district, then they should be allowed to control their own destiny.

"If you're going to represent the city at-large you should be elected at-large," he said. Leibensperger said under the present system a person can win with virtually no support from his own district -

The change was opposed by Council Chairman J. Russell Grant, who said he believed the present system

Connell said he would accept a compromise proposal of three councilmen being elected from districts and two at-large, but he opposed the plan to allow each district to vote only for its own councilman. The criticism began when Councilman June Lormann and Grant resisted a straw vote sought by Leibensperger

"We keep going over tire same things and putting things off." Goldberg said. "I think a lot of it is due to people not doing their homework," Leibensperger added. Grant agreed.

"We need a five-member board; that's what we need," Leibensperger said in reference to Councilman Stephen Barton who missed the meeting because he was out-of-

"Steve, he doesn't know from 'shiloh' about the charter," Leibensperger said, adding that Barton had missed an eatlier workshop meeting on the charter. But Grant shifted the blame for difficulty in getting all five members together to Leibensperger, whose schedule makes meeting weekdays at night difficult. "We've got to get down to city business," Grant said. "I know Ray's job is important, but Ray's a councilman also and that job's important." Goldberg came to Leibensperger's defense. "Some of us have to feed our families," he said, and found himself "I spent $3,700 flying back here from out-of-town to attend these meetings last year," Goldberg said.

"We put off decision-making processes and we have to
