Seminole School Board Opposes Required Education Standards

By Diane Petryk
Herald Staff Writer

While Gov. Bob Graham strongly supports creation of statewide standards for public schools, Seminole County Schools' Assistant Superintendent Dan Dagg said Seminole County opposes any such move.

"We can establish no standards that the board's position," Dagg said, "is to believe that a school board function is not a legislative function." Graham acknowledged the Cabinet could do nothing about setting statewide standards or graduation requirements without permission from the Legislature.

The proposals were made by the Governor's Commission on Secondary Schools. Graham acknowledged the Cabinet could do nothing about setting statewide standards or graduation requirements without permission from the Legislature.

Dagg said a major concern in Seminole County is whether the Legislature will fund what it mandates.

One of the commission's proposals is to extend the school day to 6 1/2 periods of a minimum 50 minutes each.

"This would cost a tremendous amount of money," Dagg said. "Will they fund it?" The average boy or girl takes five periods of classes, he said, and teachers are contracted to teach four periods a day.

"Increasing to six periods would require one fifth more teachers and cost many, many dollars," Dagg said.

The Florida Senate Education Committee on Wednesday decided to propose setting up pilot projects to test the effectiveness of longer hours in high schools.

A final decision is expected next week. The state is also looking into extending the school year from the presently required 180 days in 190 next year, 205 the next and ultimately 210 in 1968.

"We are definitely opposed to this," Dagg said. "No state in the U.S. requires more than 180 days. Many require less."

"We are opposed to it for several reasons. More doesn't necessarily mean better. And there is a future factor," he said. "In addition it would interfere with teachers' work on their own advanced degrees and disrupt summer school scheduling," he said.

Graham and the Cabinet seem to be in agreement. The governor said he favors making special help rather than lengthening the day for all students. The Cabinet agreed to ask the legislature to make more money available to upgrade summer school offerings.

They also rejected a commission proposal to ax home economics classes.

Dagg was pleased. He said the commission had recommended high school credit be given only for classes offered in Florida where there has been a 51 percent placement of students after graduation.

"This is absurd," Dagg said. "It is appropriate for a high school to offer vocational education that prepares students for life, not just jobs. Home economics has been beneficial for both boys and girls taking it."

The governor and Cabinet also rejected the commission's proposal to abolish the GED or general equivalency degree awarded those who pass an exam instead of graduate from high school.

Dagg said the commission felt the GED was not equivalent to a high school diploma. An alternative proposal is that a person may not take the GED test until his class is graduated from high school, would probably be supported by Seminole County, he said.

Dagg said the school board, however, cannot support the state-dictating what courses boys and girls should take. That must be a part of local prerogative, he said.

The state now requires just two courses as prerequisites for high school graduation—American history and American versus foreign government. Dagg said they have looked at increasing this to 10 requirements including four years of English, three years of math, three years of science, a half year of physical education, a half year of computer literacy and a foreign language.

"That's not realistic," he said. The proposals being considered by the governor and Cabinet are a part of two bills currently before the legislature.

Dagg predicted some stricter standards will be a result, but said the issue now is how high the standards are determined by who.

Sewage Ponds May Overflow

Lake Mary is being First Federal of Orlando in re-engineering the sewer treatment ponds at the Forest mobile home community.

City Attorney Robert Perce was instructed by the Lake Mary City Commission Thursday night to study First Federal's design of the re-engineering of the Forest mobile home community.

The action came after Mayor Wally Dyer said he has 10 days to decide if the design remains before the ponds will overflow, but he says if the current re-engineering is not done.

The city was given the sewer re-engineering plan and the accompanying ponds by First Federal in August 1961. According to a contract executed at the time, the savings and loan guaranteed the system would function as designed.

The city's action, called on the Orlando firm to fulfill the guarantee. City Manager Phil Kubler says the re-engineering ponds are both approximately six feet below the critical point.

This appears to negate the statement of the position over the past the ponds have not percolated because they were not properly and adequately drained.

However, a testing firm commissioned by the city, discounting judgement by the city and noted the ground water level is rising. Perce said the laboratory test found the city the failure in percolate is due to "impermeable bottom conditions. The water level is 18 inches below the bottom of the pond," the statement said.

"Based on existing documentation, it appears to me that we have a substantial problem in re-engineering the ponds," Perce said.

Terminal points for Amtrak's auto-train have not been selected, but the Washington, D.C., to Florida service will begin this fall. The Amtrak board of governors Thursday adopted a plan for authorizing its management to start planning to start up the service.

Sanford has competition in seeking to become the site of the southern terminal.

Orlando, Jacksonville and Miami officials have contacted Amtrak to promote their cities as terminal sites, according to Jack Prigden, press secretary for Joe C. Wilson.

Prigden said although other sites are being discussed he has the general impression that terminals will be the same as those used by the privately-owned Auto-Train.

"Of course you can overinterpret trends and things could change tomorrow," he said.

Sanford Mayor Lee P. Moore said today he is delighted to hear the service has given an official go-ahead but he would be happier if the terminal issue had been settled.

"We'll have to do something else to encourage them," he said. "They've got facilities here that wouldn't take much to refurbish them."

Moore said the city will be cooperative in any area where the help but pointed out the city can't spend money on private property.

Seminole County Commission Chairman Gordon Glines said today Sanford has always been the area where railroad personnel switch, in accordance with a law stipulating the miles one can travel. That might be a plus for Sanford in this instance, as well as the Sanford.

Prigden said authorization for the planning start-up came after a required review for public comment. "Ninety-eight percent of the comments were favorable," he said.

Prigden said he was told today the number of employees said there is a recreation list of 400 persons who want to use the service.

Lake Mary Faces Possible Sanford Water Loss

By Diane Petryk

Will or won't the city of Sanford continue pouring water to the city of Lake Mary?

Nearly two weeks ago, the Sanford City Commission on a recommendation from City Manager W. Peck, Kowles sent a "request," but stern message to Lake Mary that it has grown too big for Sanford to support it with their water.

The issue came up following a published report that Residential Communities of America plans to construct 748 units of single family homes and golf villas on a 225-acre tract it is acquiring an Raintal Lake near County Club Road. Lake Mary City Manager Phil Kubler said the developer planned to get sewer service from the city of Sanford and water from the city of Lake Mary.

After Kubler attempted to show Kowles plans for the developments at an RCA opening, Kowles whipped off a letter to the Lake Mary manager chastising him for trying to address "complex engineering needs" at an opening party. In addition, noting a published comment from Kubler that the developer would have to negotiate with Sanford for the service, Kowles letter said: "Your developer's problems are your problems, not Sanford's."

Kowles also noted that developers and builders pay a fee to the city of Sanford in meeting expenses of sewer plant expansion, disposal costs, added water, water storage and the like. He added that new buildings in Lake Mary do not pay the same development fee, yet use up Sanford reserves to plant capacity just the same.

Kubler, in an appearance before the Sanford City Commission, said he has tried unsuccessfully for many years to persuade Lake Mary officials to acquire or construct its own water city needs.

Kubler told the city officials about 1,000 housing units are now on the drawing boards in Lake Mary, adding he is aware that these units will bring a tremendous increase in Sanford's water production needs.

After reviewing the March 15, 1963, contract between Sanford and Lake Mary on Sanford's supplying Lake Mary with water, Petre said the Lake Mary water and fire department should be made certain that all payments due to the city of Sanford be promptly and fully paid strictly in accordance with the contract to avoid creating any situation in which Sanford might claim a default had occurred in terms of payments.

He recommended the water department determine whether or not Lake Mary is in compliance in respect to its actions to avoid any possible claim of default by Sanford.

The attorney said the city must advise Sanford of any material changes concerning increased volume of water usage within the city.

Prigden said authorization for the planning start-up came after a required review for public comment.

"Ninety-eight percent of the comments were favorable," he said.

A Chance For Cambodia

Fighting along the Thai-Cambodian border during the past few weeks was fiercer than at any time since the brief but bloody Vietnamese incursion into Thailand in June 1980. Vietnamese troops backed by tanks and artillery were engaged in a dry season offensive that killed hundreds of Cambodian guerrillas and refugees alike.

The average tangle of Cambodian politics and Vietnamese aggression is an agony for the more than 200,000 innocent refugees trapped along the border. The fighting also threatens to drag in Thailand's troops manning defensive positions on their side of the frontier. Vietnamese soldiers have crossed into Thai territory on nearly a dozen occasions in recent weeks.

Ideally, the administration should be at least discreet assistance to the non-communist Cambodian resistance groups. After all, past American administrations and Congress in particular bear some of the moral responsibility for the calamities that have befallen the Cambodian people.

Televise Senate

The United States Supreme Court is reported to be considering allowing television cameras into its chambers to broadcast its public proceedings. Undoubtedly, the cameras would at first be disconcerting to the justices and the lawyers, but soon their presence would be forgotten in the heat of legal argument and questioning.

Televise Senate would be a great publicity in its defense, or the impartiality of the courts. The televising of new federal employees under the Federal Service The Government, which is recommended that the Federal Service be placed under Social Security, a legal step.

It's Time to Save Our Cash
Liberals in Congress who profess to be interested in reducing the federal deficit should first take the commensurate steps of the President's private sector task force.

This task force, headed by J. Peter Grace, chairman of W.E. Grace & Co., reported April 21 that the government would save $1.5 billion over the next three years, mostly by cutting down on benefits to federal workers.

In his study of opportunities for cost-cutting during the Carter administration, that $3.7 billion could be saved by better management of the 2 million federal workers.

Revising the Civil Service Retirement System, which is sooner or becoming benefits more lavish than those of the private sector, would save $1.5 billion. The government allows pension plans to retire at age 55 with full benefits, whereas many companies permit retirement only at age 65.

The task force also pointed out that $18.8 billion could be saved by changing the way the government calculates work-related pensions. The federal government pays higher wages than state or local governments.

In addition, the task force said that tightening the conditions for food stamp benefits would result in savings of $5.1 billion.

For months, liberals in Congress have agreed that it is essential to slash federal spending. The Congressional Budget Office, Mr. Grace and his associates have suggested a way to save $1 billion a year without competing with essential national security programs.

If the liberals in Congress are sincere in their concern about nationwide government spending, they will most certainly take the steps recommended here implemented immediately.

Other liberals have been cringing Federal employees for years, and are determined to treat them as a privileged class. They would like to see the House and Senate reading newspapers and the frantic scribbling that prevails in the aisle on every class day.

The answers are not clear until television is at least an experimental basis.

Televise the Senate?
By Jay R. Allen
WASHINGTON — The recent hearing on the potential use of television by the Senate has led to some of the most articulate spokesmen heard on both sides of the issue.

Yet for all the gibberish of Sen. Howard Baker, Charles McNamara and Daniel Moynihan, sitting and John Brooke, Lew Wolff, Ford and Walter Stoen, allied with George Will against television, the wise decision was an obvious one.

The question boils down to one of open government vs. show business.

Northampton, Mass. (INEA) — The United States' failure to ratify the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is being fought in an unlikely locale — the study, visualization and analysis of the Massachusetts community for the past decade.

Addressing her unlearned audience Wednesday night at the Northampton, Mass. Simon, an earnest but still-spoken speaker, urged the audience to really think about it — because so much of the federal budget is devoted to Defense Department matters.

All across the country, thousands of citizens are making their own decisions about the military budget to pressing demands. Many citizens are making a similar appraise on behalf of a relatively new and little-publicized initiative known as Jobs with Peace.

The principal activity of Jobs with Peace has been to secure a place with the federal budget for similarly worded resolutions seeking work for unemployed youth.

Foreign versions of that referendum have been held in recent years by Baltimore, Pittsburgh and New York City. In Massachusetts, the referendum was held in Waltham, Medford, Somerville, Cambridge, Duxbury, Newton, North Andover, and Chatham.

When voters here in Hampshire County voted on the referendum, it was not only in Northampton, but also in Heilichersham, Granby, Hatfield and other outlying, traditionally conservative rural and farming communities.

Whether it's layoffs in learning or potholes in Portland, people are beginning to connect the massive military budget to the unemployment problem of their lives," says Jonathan King, Northampton co-chairman of Jobs with Peace.

"Twelve million people standing in unemployment lines, and we're spending their benefits are being cut off, while the Navy spends $1.00 on a coast for the defense of a $100 million destroyer," adds King.

Naval Base was denied, "Changes in the service as a whole are a story involving U.S. Navy commandants in the Pacific to the Sovietia and an admiral there," the rejection explained. The Navy's rejection was explained.

Pentagon Playing Hide-And-Seek With Critics Now
WASHINGTON — Sharp-eyed viewers of "Special Bulletin," NBC's recent television movie about nuclear terrorism, would have noticed a glaring omission: even without the repeated disclaimers. The supposed National Guard troops were in no way equipped to handle the threat.

The reason: Military critics at the Pentagon are now caught in a bind. The Division had refused to let the Charleston, S.C., National Guard unit take part in the film because they didn't approve of its plot.

The studio sound division is the Defense Department's defense department in movie markets. His job is to make sure that films which use military hardware, real estate or personnel include the necessary disclaimer, "This is not an advertisement for the product, but at least don't make them look bad."

England, that the makers of a rival film denied the use of a submarine because they didn't want to be labeled as "defenders of missiles in England through Air Force officers' actions due to drug addiction in the Defense Department."

Soviet Diplomats in U.S. Expelled as Spies

IN BRIEF

Israelis in Lebanon Target Of Grenade Attack

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—Gunmen launched two rockets propelled grenades today at an Israeli position in southeastern Beirut, sparking a fierce exchange of fire between Israeli military spokesmen said. No casualties were reported.

The attack on the Israeli position took place in the southeastern Beirut suburb of Sabra, opposite the headquarters of the British multinational peace-keeping force, the Israeli Security Forces.

British and Israeli military spokesmen said there were no casualties which reportedly spared a three-hour exchange of gunfire.

A spokesman for the British contingent denied a report by Voice of Lebanon radio that the British headquarters was hit by "indiscriminate firing." The spokesman said British troops did not return fire.

The identity of the gunmen was not known. It was not immediately clear who the gunmen participated in the exchange of fire sparked by the rocket attack.

Police Patrols A Warning

WARSAW, Poland (UPI)—Military police patrolled the streets of Poland for the first time in four months today in a warning against participation by Poles in anti-government May Day rallies.

A stepped-up propaganda campaign Thursday indicated Polish authorities were worried about a massive response around the country to the Solidarity underground's call for "independent celebrations" May 1.

Solidarity, formed in August 1980, was banned last October by Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski's communist regime.

With more than a week to go before the traditional workers' holiday, the government-run news media pressed their campaign of warnings that protesters may turn anti-government rallies into violent clashes with the police.

Cosmonauts Off Course

MOSCOW (UPI)—Three Soviet cosmonauts failed to dock their Soyuz spacecraft with the 40-ton orbiting space station Soyuz 7 and prepared today to proceed to Earth, the official Soviet news agency Tass said.

Tass said docking was canceled because the Soyuz was off course.

The cosmonauts returned to earth shortly after 9 a.m. following their unsuccessful attempt which apparently was thwarted to make the 11th anniversary today of the birth of Bolshevik leader Vladimir I. Lenin.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The expulsion of two Soviets and the voluntary departure of a third for trying to obtain U.S. secrets was not retaliation for the recent rejection of an American diplomat from Moscow, officials say.

In cases filed for a spy novel, the FBI announced Thursday that three Soviets were caught in separate bugging attempts in Moscow attempting to gather classified material and were told to leave the United States.

The incidents involved a Soviet who approached an aide to Rep. William W. Roth, R-Maine, one who tried to retrieve film from a "dead drop" at the base of a tree, and a KGB agent who tried to get classified data about the U.S. aerospace industry from a double agent.

FBI director William Webster said the three men have left or are in the process of leaving the United States.

Officials denied the U.S. action was taken to get revenge for the recent expulsion of American diplomat Richard Dwyer on grounds he was caught spying for the United States in Moscow.

"This is not retaliation," a U.S. official said. "They [the Soviets] were not to go and get caught. This shows we are vigilant about their activities, now."

we have to watch this."

That a State Department official said the expulsions were announced in detail because of the publicity the Soviets gave to the "Osborne" case.

"Although there is no connection between the expulsions themselves, we took into consideration the Soviet effort to publicize the Osborne case in order to announce these cases," the official said.

Webster described the cases against the three men and identified them as: Alexander Nikolayevich Mikhayev, 44, of the Soviet Mission to the United States; an approach to the Soviet Embassy in Washington, D.C., by a Soviet citizen, who was identified as a highly classified document relating to Soviet-U.S. relations; Wednesday, the State Department notified Mikhayev that he would be expelled because of actions incompatible with his diplomatic status.

—Yevgeny Nikolayevich Barsynayev, 39, a lieutenant colonel in the Soviet Army, an assistant military attache assigned to the Soviet Military Office in Washington, was detained by the FBI last Saturday as he attempted to remove film containing pictures of classified military secrets from a "dead drop" located at the base of a tree in Maryland. Two days ago, the State Department ordered the arrest of a person non grata and expelled him to leave the country immediately.

—Greg Vladimir Krasovskiy, 33, a KGB agent conferred April 2 by FBI agents in Washington. The man was attempted to obtain data about the U.S. aerospace industry and related weapons technology from a double agent working for the United States. FBI spokesman Roger Young said Krasovskiy was expelled to leave the country immediately.

President Reagan has frequently expressed concern that the Soviet Union is looking to exploit Western technology through an aggressive spying campaign. Administration officials and others on Capitol Hill also have expressed concern over the potential for Soviet espionage activities targeting the U.S.

Mr. Snowe, a third-term House member, serves on the Foreign Affairs Committee, the Joint Economic Committee and the Committee on Aging.

A spokesman said they would not normally receive classified information through any of those roles. Other officials, however, said it is common for U.S. foreign affairs committees to be classified information to be given access to the House and Senate.

—Mel Gooden, Zimmerman, said in a statement he called the FBI immediately after he was notified.

At an interview hours after it was revealed Mikhayev had been expelled from the country, Zimmerman said the Soviet told him he was "concerned about the nuclear arms race" and wanted to see the expansion of the program to a U.S. plan to somehow dilute the Soviet Union.

He said it might push us closer to war," Zimmerman said. "We was trying to get the information."

The last Soviet diplomat expelled on national security grounds was the Soviet ambassador in Washington, Moscow, in 1982. Expelled because the acting military attache in the country, replacing Oksana Yegorova.

However, the last expulsion of a Soviet citizen was a journalist for the Soviet newspaper, Izvestia, in 1982 in retaliation for the expulsion of Newsworld's Moscow manager, Andrew Hagedorn.

The action against the three Soviets comes after widespread expulsions of Soviet diplomats in Western Europe, highlighted by French President Francois Mitterrand's stunning deportation recently of 47 Soviet diplomats on Sunday.

New Teamsters Head Pledges Open Union

STONTSVILLE, Ark. (UPI)—Jackie Presser, head of the Teamsters union in St. Louis, Missouri, Cleveland local, promises he will run an honest, progressive union.

Presser, 36, with links to the Reagan administration, allowed to leave the country on Sunday. He is 17-member general executive board. He succeeds Roy Williams, who resigned Wednesday to fight conviction for conspiracy.

Presser will serve the remaining three years of Williams' term and for the first time in 15 years. Teamsters jobs will total more than half a million dollars, making him the nation's highest paid union leader.

Presser, a colorful, portly, outspoken Cleveland labor leader, took office as secretary-treasurer May 1982. He was elected to the position after a year-long, schooling administration Presser the oath of office.

Republicans Drafting Substitute Budget

Washington (UPI) — President Reagan and Senate GOP leaders already are drafting a substitute for the $66.8 billion budget approved by the Senate Budget Committee that would raise $30 billion in taxes and slash defense growth.

The committee, its Republican majority, has a budget for 1984 that the White House immediately handed to Congress.

The resolution proposes raising taxes, holding defense growth to 5 percent.

Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said he will allow the Democratic-sponsored budget resolution to leave the committee to break the current deadlock.

The committee voted 12-4 for a Democratic proposal to raise $30 billion next year. The House-passed budget resolution also calls for $30 billion in new taxes next year.

"I don't think there's any chance those things are going to hold on the floor," Domenici said. "I will participate in an effort to raise the defense number."

The committee voted 12-4 for a Democratic proposal to raise $30 billion next year. The House-passed budget resolution also calls for $30 billion in new taxes next year.

Ballet Guild To Dance Into Your Heart

Season's Premiere Set This Weekend

By Doris Dietrich

PEOPLE Editor

All elements of a superbly staged extravaganza combine for a well-deserved celebration when Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole presents its 15th anniversary performance this Saturday and Sunday at Lake Mary High School.

And you're cordially invited to the gala, "Sensational Invitational," best described as an invigorating, innovative spring dance party.

Not bad for a fledgling dance company that was nearly swept off its proscenium toes by a few skeptics 15 years ago when the non-profit group was born.

But the handful of enthusiastic believers grew to a congregation of faithful supporters who heartily endorse the thriving dance company as Sanford and Seminole County's contribution to the cultural enrichment of the community.

Dedicated to Florida's First Lady Adèle Graham, a staunch supporter of the arts, the performance is under the direction of the founders of BGS, Valerie Weld and Miriam Wright, who have devotedly given of their time and talents to the artistic endeavor since its inception in 1966.

The anniversary performance will feature 17 Ballet Guild company dancers, ages 11 to 19, and three guest dancers, Charmley Mann, Holley Karmal Ricker and Miriam Wright. The Ballet Guild of Jacksonville will also appear as guest dancers in three numbers, "Fas de Quatre," "Sherazadah" and "Brandenburg."

The curtain will rise on a rousing patriotic ballet, "Hats Off," saluting men and women in service. The high-stepping BGS dancers present a review of the American scene and end the dazzling dance to the music of "Stars and Stripes Forever."

"Hats Off" soothingly moves into a graceful classical ballet, "Blue Danube," set to the limetmetal waltz of composer Johann Strauss.

Before the flowing, formal blue gowns and white gloves are removed backstage, sophisticated, statuesque beauties attired in black leotards, tuted jackets and top hats while magically swirling their canes spring onto the stage cutting some fancy legwork in "Top Hat." — Fred Astaire style — in the same music that made the popular hooter a legend in his field.

A tough act to follow, but flirtatious flappers

Members of the Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole show off one of the numbers they'll be performing in the guild's 15th anniversary performance scheduled for this weekend at the change the pace when they strut their stuff in a nostalgic return to the Roaring Twenties in "Thoroughly Modern Millie." Colorfully costumed, the chorus performs the Charleston, the country's dance craze of the era, with an energy and fire that will have members of the audience having to control their desire to get up and join in.

"Hooked on Classics," one of the most popular ballets in the BGS repertoire, will be repeated and, according to Mrs. Weld, "is a real toe-tapper with its disco beat mixed with everything from Tchaikovsky to Mozart." A blending of the two seemingly contradictory musical styles, combined with the classical ballet movements, results in a "unique experience in sight and sound," she said.

Lake Mary High School auditorium. The show will feature everything from jazz to the classics, with even a little of the Charleston thrown in for kicks.

"Invitational," featuring the intriguing innocence of young girls, is an exciting party — exciting, but is, except to the little girl who was not invited. A happy, surprise ending will delight the audience.

"Gala's Theme," also danced by the younger dancers, is a tribute to composer Elsa Caskey of DeLand. Mrs. Weld says, "The music is hauntingly lyrical with established dynamics which guide the spectators' emotional responses to what is happen-

Discover ed

His hum! Poor George Gaynes. He has been discovered again. This makes it two... oh, the fourth or fifth name in my career. You say the name doesn't ring a bell. Well, how about a hint? He's the guy who played the bumbling, amorous hap opera star in the smash film "Toussie" who fell in love with the woman who turned out to be Dustin Hoffman in disguise. Details of George's exciting career are in a story on page 2.

Amazing

It's one of the many pitfalls that mentalist Kreskin encounters in his line of work — not having a first name. It's just Kreskin, thank you. Not Ralph or Bruce. Just Kreskin. But when he travels, the airlines demand a first name, or at least initials, for booking purposes. So, Kreskin gives his name as T.A. Kreskin. The T.A. stands for "The Amazing." Find out more about "T.A." Kreskin in a story on page 2.

Nice

With the number of unwanted pets being euthanized each year soaring, it's refreshing to find some well-known role models to which pet owners can relate. You won't find folks like Lorne Greene or Ted Knight abandoning their pets. They have numerous animals and treat them almost like members of the family. But their attitudes have been formed by some hard lessons. Page 8.

Kreskin Tries To Prove He's Amazing

By Dick Kleiser
HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — I got out of my meeting with Kreskin, the mentalist, with my past undisturbed and my future intact, so I consider the encounter a personal triumph.

I also learned a few things about the art (science?) of mentalism. I learned if you want to fool him, there is success in numbers. I learned he doesn't think too highly of hypnotism. I learned he can't tell anything from an object, but must have a genuine, breathing human person in front of him. I also learned he consistently fools the airlines. He is always just Kreskin — no first name, no middle name — and even his closest friends call him just Kres. But when he flies, he has learned airlines "mist" on more than just one name.

"They must have initials, at least," Kres says. "So I always put down 'T.A. Kreskin.' What they don't know is that 'T.A.' stands for 'The Amazing.'"

One of his gimmicks, when he performs in person, is that the sponsors hide his check. That's the last part of his act. He finds the check, just about anywhere. Over the years — according to the last census, he had done this 3,250 times, he has missed only nine times. And the check has been hidden in some weird places. It has been in the stuffing in a turkey. It has been secreted into a man's upper plate. It has been sewn into the binding of a book. Kreskin has long said he'll do that stunt until he misses 10 times.

"The nine misses," he says, "have always been because the committee failed to cooperate, and didn't really play fair. Once, they hid many envelopes. And they didn't even know which one contained the check. So how could I find it? After all, I read people's minds. I don't read the mind of a piece of paper."

Kreskin also has opinions on hypnosis: "I think the entire field of the psychic has been abused. I believe hypnosis is a colossal waste of time. It's a placebo. We are all suggestible, and much more suggestible when we are in a group. That's all hypnosis is."

On detecting real crime: "Psychics imply that they can see beyond what is real. I can't do that. I can't do anything with an object failed at the scene of a crime. So, give me a person who witnessed that crime, and I can find out a lot. I find out what it is a person's subconscious experiences."

Gaynes Discovered Again

By Dick Kleiser
HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — If you've seen "Footsie," you know about the great performances of the stars — Dustin Hoffman, Jessica Lange, Terri Garr — and the great performances of the entire supporting cast. That's one of the reasons the film works so well.

One of those is the supporting cast. In George Gaynes, who plays the ultra-romantic soap opera star, John Van Horn, who makes the understandable mistake of falling for the lady who turns out to be Dustin Hoffman in disguise.

Because of the success of the film and the great work of Gaynes, he is being discovered. It is only, he estimates, the fourth or fifth time in his busy lifetime that this has happened. Gaynes has lived a life perhaps more exciting than any led by characters he has played, and it continues to be exciting.

His real name is George Jongejans — that's Dutch for "young John." He was born in Helsinki, Finland, to a Russian mother and a Dutch father.

"My parents separated soon after I was born," Gaynes says, "so I left Helsinki when I was a year old. My mother took me to Paris and then other places throughout Western Europe."

His first language was Russian, learned from his mother. But when she remarried — an Englishman this time — he began speaking English. Since they lived in Paris, he speaks French. See GAYNES, page 3

You Can Count On Colonial Room

Location, good food and reasonable prices are ingredients in the popularity of the Colonial Room Restaurant, 113 East Third St., downtown Sanford. Entering the restaurant via Tourist Home Store, one will find a host of activity at almost any time of the day or evening.

Owner Billy Paltnier also attributes his success to "patience" and an attempt at uniformity in the preparation of food.

Paltnier was formerly manager of a chain of restaurants in the St. Petersburg area, where he was required to learn "everything from cutting meat to operating a cash register." He later spent several years in food labs.

The menu's variety of choices runs from hot dogs to Delmonico steaks, but many of the customer's favorites include the homemade pies and cakes, milkshakes, homemade soups and cornbread.

Open from 7 in the morning until 7 in the evening, the Colonial Room opens with the "triple," a breakfast of three eggs, three strips of bacon and three pancakes for $1.99. Sausage gravy on biscuits, cereal, beef hash and grits are always available.

A staff of 17 waitresses and cooks keeps the restaurant humming and the customers happy. Most of the employees have been there for several years.

Moderately, Billy admits that he "feels fortunate to have kept his help for so long." Familiarity with patrons helps to maintain the friendly atmosphere at this meeting place for downtown business people and shoppers.

The thirteen-year resident of Sanford is a native of Tennessee. He has leased the Colonial Room for more than five years. Wife, Dot, is a downtown business and shopper.

Open six days a week, closed only on Sunday, the Colonial Room Restaurant is an example of "making sure we have it every day" and "being able to do it the same way every day," according to the man who knows, Billy Paltnier.
