Sanford approves $53 million budget

By Bill Kerne Staff Writer

SANFORD - The Sanford City Commission on Monday approved a $53 million budget, which includes a tax rate of 6.79 mills.

This marks the second year in a row that the city's millage rate has been reduced. The budget for fiscal year 1999-2000 is 6.87 mills.

The proposed budget is 2 percent less than the city's current budget.

Among the big-ticket items in the budget, the proposed 300-room hotel and conference center at Fort Mellon Park is perhaps the most pivotal and controversial project facing the city.

Depending on the recommendations of a feasibility study by PRA Development for hotel and conference center, the city will proceed with a traffic study. The city has budgeted $100,000 for consultant services for a Downtown Master Plan and traffic studies.

In other action, the city is planning to hire an additional planner at $40,600 to

Other items in the budget:

 Site work is proceeding at Sanford's community swimming pool at Seminole High School. The city budgeted $111,500 for a pool manager, maintenance worker and contracted lifeguard positions.

 The city will complete the rehabilitation project for the marina boat ramps, using $40,000 in state funding. The state also awarded Sanford $40,000 last year for the project.

· Replacing the roof at City Hall, plus the carpet and walls in the Commission Chambers, is expected to cost $266,000. The city is planning to spend $115,000 for midge control, including tarvacide, aerial and ground spraying and lighting.

· Parits and grounds improvements the city is planning will cost $99,500.

 New utility projects will include $175,000 to provide central utilities to the Central Florida Zoo and $210,000 for County drops tax rate slightly

By Russ While Staff Writer

SANFORD - The envelope, please. The winner is, you the tax payer. Your prize, $12.41 savings. Whom to thank? Three county commissioners running for office in 2000.

In a 3 1/2 hour public hearing, that required several cooling-off periods for the board members, the commission passed a $441 million budget.

With a 0.1654 per mill decrease in the tax rate, the owner of a $100,000 home with a $25,000 homestead exemption, figures to save approximately $12.

To cut the tax rate, commissioners Dick Van Der Weide, Daryl McLain and Grant Maloy had to cut a number of projects such as buying property near the county jail and renovating the county courthouse's elevalors.

McLain and Van Der Welde

sparred most of the evening, each offering methods to save $3 more than the $9 savings discussed last week. McLain, to be sure, was pleased the county was acrapping a plan to buy the 10-acre Shermandoah Village site at $200,000 an acre.

"That's too much," he said. McLain and commissioner Randy Morris urged Van Der Weide, Maloy and Chairman Carlton Henley to change their minds and make a $10,000 grant to the International Council of Central Florida. Henley said county taxpayers should not have to help the council in its efforts to host international visitors.

McLain told the council members that he would help them raise funds to be able to help build a Seminole County office and continue work that is deemed important by the United States Information

Van Der Weide's attempt to slash the county's utility tax was met with opposition from his fellow commissioners and County Manager Kevin Grace. Morris warned against such a cut, citing the $300,000 costs to the county preparing for a hurricane that prerend out.

"What happens if two more hurricanes come - and maybe hit us?" he asked.

Earlier Tuesday, the BCC unani-mously authorized an Oviedo-Seminole County Joint Planning Interlocal Agreement. Winter Springs Mayor Paul Partyka was denied a 90-day extension to negoti-ste with Ovisdo officials and make McLain and Wednesday that the the agreement a three-way deal.

LONGWOOD - With formal adoption of Longwood's $10.7 million fiscal budget for 1999-2000 accomplianed, police chief Tom Jackson is hanging out the help-wanted sign.

City commissioners approved the hiring of two new police officers, as well as the adoption of a new pay and classification plan and higher starting salaries. With those improvements, Longwood hopes to have the two officers hired and on the street by the end of October.

Starting salaries for new hires have been increased with the new budget to $24,000 per year. Officers are assigned individual patrol cars and may keep them 24 hours-per-day if they reside within the Longwood city limits.

"We hope to move as soon as possible with quali-fied applicants," said Jackson. "We're hoping to begin scheduling interviews for the first and second week of October."

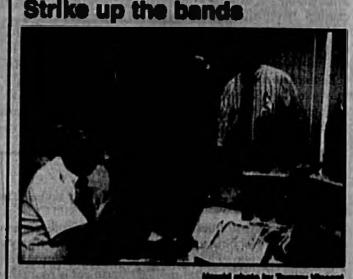

Jackson said one of the

He added that shared duties would most likely include dedicated patrols, drunk driving emphasis, and a stronger tie to the city's community policing efforts. "We'll be looking for candidates who are strongly motivated and have a desire for a career in law enforcement," said the veteran chief. "I'm sure we'll attract some good candidates. The salary scale has improved, the quality of the job is here, and we have the equipment, resources and training that arould make joining the Longwood force desirable.

SANFORD — Despite financial awards being given to top performing schools, parents and educators from across Central Florida attending Tuesday's Department of Education workshop in Sanford were still angry about the state's system of giving schools performance grades.

Governor Jeb Bush's A+ Plan provides for schools to receive letter grades based on Florida Comprehensive Assessment Test (PCAT) acores that measure reading, writing and math skills, as well as other factors such as suspension rates, attendance, and high school graduation rates.

others in the district can never reach the same level no matter what they do," said Dianne Byrd, a teacher at Lake Mary High School.

Gloria Flanagan, the principal of Lake Mary Elementary School, was among several administrators of schools receiving "A's" who expressed concern that the stringent policies for improve ments in areas such as attendance may make i too difficult to repeat as an "A" school. Board's Educational Support Center in Sanford.

The grading system is part of the same education reform package that created a plan for parents in schools receiving an "F" twice in four years to receive vouchers for private achools. Educators and parents at the workshop said this is unfair, since teachers at private schools are not required to seek state certification.

Frankly, it sticks in my craw that private schools are not held to the same standards as public schools," said Chris Spiliotis, a teacher at Seminole High School in Sanford.

Meanwhile, the state on Tuesday announced $27.6 million in awards to 323 schools. The recognition program, which began in 1998, is designed to reward schools that demonstrate sustained high or significantly improved student performance. Schools received up to $100 per student.

Seminole County's 14 schools with "A's" on the accountability report will receive $1.91 million in awards. Only three school-districts will receive more in awards, including Dade County with $2.13 million, Palm Beach County with $1.95 million, and Broward County with $1.95 million.

The top two schools receiving awards in Seminole County are Oviedo High School with $274,020, and Lake Mary High School with $258,732. Only Winter Park High School in Orange County, with $316,364, is receiving a larger award. According to state law, individual schools will choose how to spend the awards.

"This is good news," said Paul Hagerty, superintendent of the Seminole County school-district. "(Schools) may spend it differently than the schooldistrict would have, but maybe that's the point."

Education Commissioner Tom Gallagher said the awards were electronically transferred to the school districts. The districts will then give the awards to the winning schools. The awards are based on student achievement data, dropout rates, attendance, and out-of-school suspensions.

"I believe that the system for holding (schools) accountable should also be fair and accountable," Burke said.

The rules governing the grading system may change because the A+ Plan was put into effect without altering state rules that provided for schools to be ranked on a scale of one to five. The state legislature in December will consider making changes to school performance standards.

The Sanford workshop was one of five similar workshops being held statewide on Tuesday.

Administrators at the workshop said they want the rules for the grading system to remain consistent for at least several years.

"Changing the rules as we go along is like trying to hit a moving target," said Jim Shupe, principal at Lawton Chiles Middle School in Oviedo.

Parents and educators said they are concerned that measuring out-of-school suspension rates will

Millennium mission: Drop Miss America

It's time to do away with the Miss America Pageant. At best, it was a goofy idea. Something for Bert Parks to do each summer. Most of the pageants were rigged. Miss Montanas never had a chance. Either did girls with pencil thin mus-

For a few precious moments, Vanessa Williams turned out to be the queen of femininity at Atlantic City. That's until the queen pickers saw pictures of Vanessa undressed. Bare she was Miss America. Give the tiara to miss runner up. Time called for a new ideal.

has always been corny - and often a lot of fun. Phyllis George may never had been a sportscaster if she hadn't won the title. And good for Tara Dawn Holland, Seminole County's first Miss America.

The new Miss America (from Kentucky) seems to be a nice young woman. She must be good. She didn't have the big hair and teeth. Doesn't need to pluck her eyebrows, either. Floating on air, she is.

But that's it. Let's not carry this Miss America stuff into the new millennium. They just fired the guy who wanted misses who were married or had abortions eligible to compete. Columnist Cal Thomas (catch him in a swimsuit) is worried transsexuals would be next. That, of course, will not happen as long as Anita Bryant is alive.

The tanks, guns and planes that will make up much of Communist China's observance will not be a deviation from routine. It (ital) is (unital) the routine. According to "The Black Book of Communism: Crimes, Terror, Repression" (Stephane Courtois, Editor, Harvard University Press), 65 million Chinese have died under the Chinese regime, as have 6 million Tibetans. The dead include those unarmed citizens massacred 10 years ago in Tiananmen Square, the site where the military will parade.

Adding to this human tragedy and its affront to the supposed ideals of all free people will be the presence of many Fortune 500 CEOs. The color of money apparently is sufficient atonement for the color of blood spilled by the Beijing butchers. China's Xinhus news spency reports that police departments have rounded up more than 100,000 "escaped criminal suspects" in advance of the anniversary celebration. A Ministry of Public Security offichange, especially the last 50 years have been a dramatically different period of change for China," said Wadsworth. "Change is bringing about more freedom, more wealth creation and opportunities for the skills which Morgan Stanley can offer." If one accepts the Orwellian view of things, then I suppose a case can be made that death is freedom because the dead person no longer has to live under communism. Thomas But most people, including those about to die, might be for> given if they don't see the illusion that Wadsworth envisions.

The Central Intelligence Agency has named China one of the three top countries "extensively engaged in economic espionage." Is it Morgan Stanley's position that it is perfectly acceptable to make money while ignoring the massive abuses of human rights and the potential threat to American lives should China decide to militarily challenge U.S. interests in Asia?

cial says that includes more than 10,000 people who "surrendered to police under great pressure." The government rewarded individuals who turned in people on China's most-wanted list. All of this, we're told, is to secure "social stability and safety" during the celebration and the upcoming return of the Portuguese colony of Macao.

Some American businesses have become as indifferent to human rights as the Clinton administration, which welcomed Chinese arms dealers to the White House and Chinese campaign cash in reelection coffers. And some believed Clinton when he said he wouldn't "coddle" the Chinese as he accused the Bush administration of having done. The investment company Morgan Stanley Dean Witter commissioned a competition of orchestral works. Morgan Stanley Asia Chairman John Wadsworth said the company is a friend of the mainland. The South China Morning Post quotes Wadsworth as saying that he sees nothing odd in a financial services firm funding a celebration of a Communist revolution. "I think that the past 5,000 years are about accounting as being subjective." It's more than that. To properly assess the bloody failure of communiam, including the Chinese variety that has been as evil an empire as the now-defunct Soviet Union, academics (as well as journalists and intellectuals) would have to criticize not only their own but themselves. Many of them and their intellectual predecessors have defended or failed to properly chronicle communism's abuses. Many have embraced the social and economic policies of the system, claiming it wasn't communism, per se, that was wrong. Advocates simply failed to "get it right."

Communiam can never be "gotten right" because its founding principle that the state is god is wrong. It survives only because aging dictators don't mind killing a lot of people to stay in power. Whatever Friday's parade is, it ought not to be thought of as a celebration. Let's save the celebrating for the day of China's ultimate liberation, perhaps by the children of the bloody generation.

King name sullied by loyalty undeserved

Sometimes the price of loyalty is just too high. Sometimes, when you attempt to pull a worthless friend out of the hole he's dug for himself, you end up covered in mud, too.

Such was the case last week when Coretta Scott King used her name and prestige in an apparent effort to persuade a jury to go soft on a scoundrel named Ralph David Abernathy III, the son of Martin Luther King Jr.'s close friend, civil rights leader Ralph David Abernathy Sr. For her trouble, Mrs. King and her entourage are now being investigated by the Georgia Bureau of Investigation for alleged jury-tampering.

Abernathy III capped an ignominious career as a state senator with an indictment on charges of stealing $13,000 from his statefunded expense account. Last week, his trial on those charges ended in a hung jury. While jurors say Mrs. King did not influence them, she has nevertheless sullied her name, giving the impression that she supports rogues and miscreants.

The prosecution seemed to have solid evidence on some of the charges, including a taped conversation in which Abernathy admitted to his PR adviser, Zee Bradford, that he forged her name on expense vouchers and never gave her the money he received. He begged and badgered her to lie for him, telling her, "Let me tell you this, if you don't lie, it will be your reputation."

For those who've followed Abernathy's high-profile flameout, the theft charges came as no great surprise. His previous career low-lights included smuggling mar..... ijuana into the country in his underwear on a return trip from Jamaica; wandering into a women's restroom in a state building but failing to wander promptly back out; and insulting police officers who pulled him over for driving 60 mph in a 30 mph school zone, charging them with racism.

> Even when he wasn't in trouble with the law, Abernathy was less than impressive as a legislator. His six-year tenure was characterized by laziness, absenteeism, headline-grabbing and attempts to get by on his father's good name. His legislative career was finally ended, mercifully, last year, when he bounced the check he submitted to pay a qualifying fee to run for re-election.

Mrs. King has undoubtedly kept up with Abernathy's troubles. Over the years, despite occasional tensions, the Abernathys and Kings have remained friendly. And, when Abernathy was indicted, Mrs. King may have thought of her own two sons and their struggles to come to manhood in the shadow of their father's famous name. Neither Martin Luther King III nor Dexter Scott King has ever been indicted, but both have tainted their father's legacy with their endless profiteering.

So, last Wednesday found Mrs. King in a hallway outside the Fulton County courtroom where Abernathy was being tried, praying with a group that included the defendant's mother, Juanita Abernathy, state Rep. Tyrone Brooks, New York activist Al Sharpton and Mrs. King's two sons. As the jury prepared to leave the courtroom for lunch, a sheriff's deputy, asked the King entourage to leave the area. They ignored him, the deputy said.

When a deputy took the jury out through a different exit, the King entourage followed and barged through the group of jurors. While Mrs. Abernethy, claimed it was "an accident," it looked like an attempt to impress upon the jurors the fact that Abernathy III had the support of the King family. Mrs. King should have left Abernathy III - who will probably be retried --- to face the consequences of his reprehensible conduct. Instead, she lent him her reputation in an effort to help him salvage his family name. It's unlikely that Abernathy III appreciates her sacrifice, since he clearly cared so little for the family name himself.

Mystry man makes off with library money

The following is from "The Story of Sanford on the St. Johns River in Florida," by Mary Lefflet Strong.

Various Sanford Libraries "By 1880, Sanford had become a sizable town with many transients needing entertainment. The citizens began making plans for a public reading room and library. Since they weren't able financially to build, they formed a Library Association. A saloon keeper, Mr. Sawyer, gave the use of the upper story of a building on Palmetto Avenue where the Labor Building and Carpenters Hall was in the 1850s." (Where was this?)

"Furnishings were bought through a series of ice cream socials, oyster suppers, etc., as well as donations. A Mrs. Stevens and her two daughters were secured as caretakers and the Sanford Public Library and Reading Room came into existence. There were few books and none for lending, but many current magazines were subscribed to as well as the Sanford Journal. These were placed in racks along the walls while comfortable chains and long tables were in the center of the room. There was also a plano which belonged to one of the Stevens girls that was an asset as many public meeting. rehearsals, etc. were held there.

"This reading room was later moved to the upper floor of the Rand Building on 1st Street. The ladies again gave oyster suppers to help raise funds. The refreshment table, with money received, was placed in the hall. * "A young well-educated well-dressed, foreigner, who trepresented himself as a Baron was visiting in town at one time. "Interest in the library waned following the fire, freeze and depression during the late 1800s, so the few remaining books were turned over to the firemen who maintained a reading and game room over what later became Touchton Drug Company.

"For many years there was no public library. Mr. and Mrs. A.C. Martin, who had moved to the San Leon Hotel, kindly allowed the citizens the use of their many books. The borrowers only had to write their name and the book title in a ledger.

"A Library Association was organized in 1901 with a fund of $500 and 50 books left from the former library. The citizens donated 200 additional books and 400 more were purchased. They also subscribed to several magazines. A formal opening was held July 1903 in a room on 1st Street which had been donated by Mrs. H.L. DeForest. "The first officers were Mr. C.R. Walker, president; Mrs. A.R. Key, treasurer; and Mrs. E.W.D. Dunn, librarian. The Rev. Arthur Searing Peck and Mrs. Key gave valuable assistance in cataloging and arranging the books.

The library was shifted around from one location to another until the city was finala beautiful building was erected. Its architect was Elton Noughton.

"Mrs. Van Ness Brown became the first paid librarian. Other serving have been Mrs. Elsa Knight, Mrs. Elton Moughton, Mrs. Rines and Mrs. Brierton.

"In the main lobby of the library, a bronze plaque was set in the wall to commemorate the work of those assisting in organizing the library from 1880 to 1924, when the plaque was cast. It especially honored Minnie E. Key, who worked so faithfully and gave of her time. She had died Dec. 23, 1923."

According to an article which appeared in the Sanford Herald on Oct. 21, 1979, the library opened on January 19, 1924, with Mrs. Lawrence Brown as librarian. The library was moved to the former post office building in 1965.

Emergency and disaster response workshops highlighted at state volunteer conference

The Florida Conference on Volunteerism, "Volunteer Magic!", to be held at the Hyatt Orlando, Kissimmee, Florida, Oct. 25 through 28, will feature a number of workshops dealing specifically with emergency and disaster response.

In the midst of an active hurricane season, the aftermath of last year's disastrous fires, and the possibility of Y2K related emergencies, the role of trained volunteers and emergency management agencies becomes a critical link to the recovery and response effort. These issues will be addressed in three workshops during the conference.

On Tuesday, Oct. 26, Alex Amparo, of the Florida Commission on Community Service and Don Musen, of AmeriCorps Florida State Parks, will lead a workshop on "maximizing the role played by volunteers." The workshop is designed to provide principles of emergency management and examples of the utilization of volunteers in the preparedness, response; recovery and mitigation phases of a disaster. Also on Tuesday, Merrilee White, Volunteer Sarasota, Loralee Wooten, Florida Department of Education and Lindsey Dedow, University of South Florida, will conduct an interactive workshop where participants will have the opportunity to set up and operate a mock volunteer reception center in response to a natural disaster, terrorist attack or Y2K related incident. In addition, the session will focus on stress management techniques.

On Thursday, Oct. 28, Doris M. Davidson, Management Consultant, will present a seminar on the importance of building community relations with emergency support personnel and planning for disasters. This informative workshop will reference the "Firestorm 98" tragedy and the lessons learned.

Registration for the conference is $150, which includes workshop fees and some meals (as outlines in the conference brochure). Because of Hurricane Floyd, the late registration fee has been waived.

To learn more about the Conference on Volunteerism or to register, please call the Seminole Volunteer Center (407) 323-4440.

State conference on volunteerism to meet in Orlando

Under the banner of "Volunteer Magic!" the 1999 Florida Conference on Volunteerism will take place from Oct. 25 through 28 at the Hyatt Orlando, Florida.

The conference, sponsored by the Florida Association of Volunteer Centers, the Florida Commission on Community Service and the Corporation for National Service (Florida State Office) will focus on promoting collaboration among organizations that use volunteers, providing networking opportunities and practical training for volunteer program managers and showcasing innovative programs and best practices in volunteer program administration. Through four days of interactive workshops and presentations, volunteers, volunteer managers, administrators, staff, students and educators will combine experience, skills and programs to provide ideas on how to expand and improve volunteer programs.

"Volunteers are one of Florida's most valuable resources," said Polly Renfro, FAVC president and Executive Director of Volunteer Broward. "Developing and enhancing volunteer programs of all types, including those in nonprofit agencies, government, schools and churches, supports communities throughout our state."

Registration for the conference is $150, which includes workshop fees and some meals (as outlined in the conference brochure). Due to Hurricane Floyd, the late registration fee of $25 has been waived.

In the course of doing some food re-search, I recently found myself cook-ing up a batch of ketchup from a 1930s recipe from Maine. I followed it reli-giously, and what came out of the pot after many hours of cooking was a thin, tangy sauce with the distinct flavor of vinegar. Worcesterships sauce and vinegar, Worcestershire sauce and cloves. It had, in short, very little in common with the thick, sweet bottled condiment that most of us associate with the word "ketchup." (Or "catsup," if you will). Further research led me to the writings of Kenneth Roberts, an authority on Maine cooking, who wrote that sweetened ketchup was "an abomination against God and man, against nature and good taste." It was then that I realized that, like most beloved foods, ketchup has a history. And it's an interesting one at that. Bottled ketchup is at least 125 years old; according to "The Great Food Almanac," by Irena Chalmers, Henry Heinz introduced it in 1876 with the promotional phrase: "Blessed relief for Mother and the other women in the household!" But ketchup had been around, in one form or another, for at least two centuries before that. Most food books I read said the word "ketchup" derives from the Chinese word "ke-tsiap," a spicy pickled condi-ment popular in the 17th century, re-named "ketchup" by British sailors and brought to England, whence it made its way to the New World. How-ever, Elisabeth Rozin, author of the wordschulk insistettul and certain wonderfully insightful and entertain-ing book "The Primal Cheeseburger" (Penguin Books, 1994), says that the word comes directly from the Indonesian term for soy sauce, "kecap." Whether it came from China or from Indonesia, we can be sure of a few things: It started there. It came here. And along the way it's been transmo-grified into a condiment that seems as "American" as the cheeseburger itself. (It was New Englanders, I read, who started making it with tomatoes.) It is so American, in fact, that Rozin ends her chapter on ketchup with these words: words:

Ketchup, she writes, "represents what we value most in ourselves and
