Khomeini: Attackers 'Savage Beasts'

Blast In Iran Kills 69

The death toll rose to 69 today in the Ayatollah Hubollah Khomeini's beir apparent and other ranking members of the ruling Islamic Republican Party in the bloodlest blow to Iran's revolutionary Rescue workers were still looking for survivors or more bodies in the wreckage of the IRP headquarters that was destroyed by a powerful explosion Sunday night.

The officials Pars news agency said at least two blasts ripped through the building as party chief Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti was addressing the regular weekly meeting.

Beheshtl, 52, supreme court chief justice, mastermind of the clergy's hold on power and regarded as Khomeini's successor, was killed along with at least four Cabinet ministers, six deputy ministers and 20 members of the Majlia (parilament).

Khomeini, who rarely ventures from his north Tehran home, apparently was the only prominent figure not at the rally.

Guard Fired In Sex Harassment

A probe of sexual harassment of prisoners at the Seminole County Jail has resulted in the termination of a guard.

Cpl. Elisha Smith, 42, who was suspended last month at the outset of an investigation into alleged misconduct at the jail, has been fired effective today,

But that won't end the matter. Smith, who has worked at the jall since February 1978, has asked for a civil service commission hearing to challenge the accusations made against him. No hearing date has been set. Commission chairman Bill Colbert, a Sanford attorney, is out of town and will not be back

Smith was suspended for 30 days on May 29 and was scheduled to be automatically terminated today if he had not requested a review, according to Polk. "But I went ahead and fired him after our probe turned up enough evidence to warrant his termination for conduct unbecoming an officer," he said.

The suspension resulted from a formal sexual harassment complaint lodged against Smith by a prisoner. Polk has refused to discuss the exact nature of the complaint, but said it did not involve sexual abuse. "There have been no prisoners

Although Smith has been the only guard fired as a result of the investigation, "we are looking at others," the sheriff said. He would not, however, say how many.

Polk said members of his department's internal affairs division have been interviewing and administering polygraph (lie detector) tests to inmates and jail employees for a month, "but I can't say what we've found until the civil service process is over. That shouldn't take long once our chairman gets back and we can schedule a hearing."

WILLIAM HAMILTON

First Black Named To Casselberry Senior Citizen's Council

By SYBIL MITCHELL GANDY Heraid Stall Writer Casselberry officials have appointed the first black to serve on the fivemember Senior Citizens Council for the soon-to-open Multi-Purpose Senior Citizena' Center. According to Leona Cadenhead, the city's grants coordinator, 75-year-old William Hamilton of Oviedo, was designated for the mid-June vacancy to encourage participation from black seniors in Seminole County on coordination of services at the Secret Lake

We feel that the center will be a better recreation facility for all seniors in the county if we have the imput from minority representatives from the over-60 community," said Cadenhead.

Up until this late June appointment, almost no particapation on the building's planning and administration had come from the black community, she said.

Hamilton, who retired from the Seminole County School system in 1971, has served on the Area Agency on Aging of the Regional Planning Council for the past 10 years. He is presently vice chairman.

Although the newly appointed re-presentative has worked with advisory bodies for senior projects on all levels of government, he insists that he was flattered to have been selected.

Agency on Aging ever since the activities planning began about a year age," Ramilton said

"But I was just as surprised as anyone when I was asked to fill a vacancy on the council. Although the appointment is only temporary, I appreciate the opportunity to further administer policies of the zenior center," he added.

As far as other blacks getting involved with the project which is scheduled to open in September, Hamilton feels that others will look at him and ask themselves what part they can play in the

"Seniors in any area are a tremendous "I had been working all along with the resource in terms of service to their committee as a llaison for the Area community," Hamilton commented. Black seniors, I've found are in a lot of cases handicapped by a lack of information and sometimes, by a lack of a direct effect on their lives."

"But I think if given the chance, black citizens can effect changes for the better. Non-blacks have carried the ball for so long. I think the county will see more imput coming from blacks from this point on," Hamilton projected.

Cadenhead says the Senior Citizens Conncil will be fully appointed by Aug. 1 with seven members; three from the county and four from the city. Formally, there were two county representatives and three Casselberry members.

Hamilton attended his first meeting on July 18, Cadenhead said. "Mr. Hamilton is a real gem to work formation and sometimes, by a lack of with, very intelligent, very interest in pursuing things that may have knowledgeable in terms of senior projects, and very supportive of staff. "Chances are that the appointed will be made officially permanent for the entire two-year term on the council, she said. Hamilton attended Edward Waters College, Bethune-Cookman College, and Tuskegee Institute. He received a M.A. degree in supervision and administration from Tuskegee.

The senior activist has served two terms as president of the Project O.A.S.I.S., a county-wide senior citizens'

Bush Visit To Philippines Stirs Storm Of Protest

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) - Vice President George Bush flew to the Philippines today for the bayside inauguration of President Ferdinand Marcos, raising protests by nationalist students.

The student groups called for a massive demonstration in front of the U.S. embassy only hours before Bush was to arrive from Guam, But a drenching downpour appeared to dampen their political spirits and the protest was postponed.

Western political analysts said Washington's decision to send Bush to the inaugural ceremonies, only 10 days after a visit by Secretary of State Alexander Haid, has meant to underline the new administration's support for Marcos.

"The Reagan administration is saying 'our predecessor snubbed you because of your martial law policy but now you've lifted martial law and, anyway, we think you're okay," one Western analyst said.

Marcon, 63, was elected to a six-year term as president June 16 in a "landslide" victory that gave him #8 pacent of the vote.

Marcos' political opponents boycotted the elections, crying "foul play" when the president refused to giv them more than two months to organize at the grass-

NATIONAL REPORT: Rainstorms today battered New Mexico and the Midwest, where weekend storms packing tornadoes and hurricane-force winds downed power lines and spawned minor street flooding. The storms rolled across Minnesota, Nebraska and Iowa with nearly 100 mph winds Sunday, knocking down trees and damaging some buildings. Flooding was reported in Nebraska, swamped by more than 3 inches of rain. There were no injuries. Rainstorms pummeled the region again today, dumping more than an inch of rain at Eau Claire, Wis., and nearly 1 inch at Marquette, Mich. More than a half inch fell at Clovis, N.M., and North Platte, Neb. But weekend rainstorms provided a measure of relief in Alaska. helping to stall lightning-sparked wildfires that have charred 415,000 acres. Alaska's forests have been parched by a lack of rainfall in what has been an extremely dry year. In New Mexico, more than three dozen small fires broke out during the weekend in the Gila National Forest, where lightning has touched off some 100 fires in the past week.

Everybody Showed But The Defendant

Herald Staff Writer

What if they had a trial and no one came? That's what almost happened in Seminole Circuit Court Tuesday, Everyone showed up except one vital person — the defendant.

It seems that Robert F. Bolesta, 25, of Cocoa Beach, was scheduled to stand trial Tuesday morning on a charge of possession of cocaine. Trouble was, he had been transferred from the Seminole County Jall back to the lockup in Brevard County where he is facing a cocaine trafficking charge along with his uncle, convicted drug financier Robert Taccia.

But Assistant State Attorney Alan Robinson didn't find out Bolesta was one until late Monday afternoon. Defense attorney Tanya Plaut didn't volunteer the information, so Robinson was left holding an empty bag when jury selection was to begin at 9 a.m. Tuesday.

Without a defendant, Judge Joseph Davis Jr. dismissed the case. However, Robinson said he will refile the charges within a week or so.

In throwing out the case, Davis indicated it is the state's responsibility to keep track of criminal defendants and make them available for their day in court. Robinson said he thought that as officers of the court, defense lawyers should be required to notify the court of the whereabouts of their clients.

Reagan Suggests Change In Voting Rights Act

appearing today before the annual meeting of the NAACP in Denver, indicated in prepared remarks he does not favor extension of the Voting Rights Act in its present form. Reagan told reporters Sunday he would like voting rights to apply to all the states, not just those with backgrounds of discrimination. The president said he has directed Attorney General William French Smith to review the act that will expire in August 1982 unless renewed. First passed in 1965, the act requires nine states, mainly from the South, and parts of 13 others with histories of antiblack discrimination, to get prior clearance from the federal government for any changes in

It is widely supported by black groups who have said it helped double black voter registration in the South.

Reagan also was to speak of the failure of past federal programs to help blacks, while saying his economic package would promote a move toward "black economic freedom."

Reagan was to end his six-day trip today, departing shortly after noon from Los Angeles. He heads back to Washington with a stop in Denver to address the 72nd annual meeting of the NAACP and to meet briefly with former President Gerald Ford.

Sunday, on his return to Los Angeles from a weekend at his mountain ranch near Santa Barbara, Reagan was asked whether his fallure to endorse renewal of the voting rights law could be interpreted as "a payoff to Southern congressmen" who helped pass his federal spending cuts last week. Reagan, wearing a white Mexican wedding shirt and slacks, replied sharply, "there was never any discussion of a payoff to anyone"

Reagan noted that he said when the act was passed in 1965 that he would like to see it apply to all the states. "I think voting is a sacred right that should be protected every place but we haven't had any consultation beyond my saying that," he said.

In a preview of his prepared remarks before the NAACP, Deputy White House Press Secretary Larry Speakes said that Reagan will recommit himself to the act's principles and say the matter is under study.

He also disclosed that Reagan will reject past policies to promote racial and economic equality and personally pledge to blacks "a national commitment to battle discrimi-

The Budget Package: Just What Is It ...?

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Members of Congress have gone home for the Fourth of July, leaving a head-scratching legion of staff experts trying to figure out the massive package of budget cuts the House approved in its rush to recess.

The $38 billion-plus measure, approved over the objection of Democratic leaders, includes numerous revisions President Reagan demanded in a last-minute bid to say exactly how federal spending should be curbed.

Rep. Tom Foley, D-Wash., the majority whip, called the budget slashing bill "the most far-reaching single document in the history of the Congress." But it is up to this week's staff study to sift through the package and determine precisely what the House has

The two-inch-thick package of additional changes was aimost as big as the original budget bill proposed by 15 Democraticcontrolled committees. It toughened the $37.7 billion committee bill, changing laws and reshaping dozens of government programs.

Democrats argued it was put together so hastily and delivered to them so late they hardly had time to look at it - let alone study it - before the vote. But it was accepted Friday, 217-211, after some convincing White House tradeoffs won the support of 29 conservative Democrata.

Foley, in a weekend interview, complained, 'There wasn't a single member of Congress in either party or a single staff member of either party who knew enough to know what was in that document and to explain it

Some members, he said, "would have preferred to give a blank check because their fear is that there are mistakes in this document." There is much confusion in the scissors and-paste package, replete with penciled deletions and additions. For example, it was reported that one handwritten note in the bill wipes out the entire budget of the National Science Foundation.

Staff study of the document will continue until Congress returns July 8 from its holiday. Then, the House and Senate must get together on differences between the House bill and a Senate budget-cutting measure passed last Thursday. That conference is expected to clear up many of the inadvertant discrepancies.

The Senate version, supported by Reagan, would cut about $38.5 billion from 1962 spending. The House bill, as amended with the Reagan changes, would cut $38.2 billion, according to the Congressional Budget Office.

By accepting the Reagan revisions, sponsored by Reps. Delbert Latta, R-Ohio, and Phil Gramm, D-Texas, the House moved closer to the Senate's position on many Issues. The bill locked in three years of cuts, like the Senate but unlike House Democrats would have done.

Reagan's top aides have declared the House action the most significant victory of his administration. They predicted it would have an immediate psychological impact and help lower inflation and interest rates. The budget victory has also been seen as an encouraging sign for the president's tax cut proposal, which also faces heavy going in the

Arson Suspected In Disco Fire Which Killed Five

BAYOU BLUE, La. (UPI) - investigators say arsonists set a blaze that swept through a crowded disco, killing five young revelers and sending 200 screaming patrons stampeding for the only unblocked exit.

The state fire marshal who rushed to the remote southern Louisiana community after Sunday morning's fire said there were no suspects, but a fivegallon gas can was found at a back door to the gutted Odyssey Lounge.

Witnesses said the one-story, metal frame Odyssey Lounge was quickly engulfed in flames and all but one exit from the lounge were cut off by the swirling smoke and fire.

"Panic just broke out. People started running toward the front door," said one man who smelled the smoke while playing pool. "People started screaming and hollering. I saw a couple people fall down and get run over by the crowd, but they were able to get back up and run out."

Bridge Cable Injures Man

NEW YORK (UPI) - A cable on the Brooklyn Bridge weakened by corrosion from pigeon droppings snapped and struck a pedestrian, fracturing his skull and seriously injuring him, police say.

Authorities said Armi Akira, in his 20s, was struck Sunday by a diagonally-hung steel cable, intended to keep the bridge stable in strong winds.

Akira, who was on the bridge's walkway when the cable snapped, was in serious condition today at St. Vincent's Hospital with a fractured skull and a broken

2 Arrested On Spy Charges

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - A Polish national and an American engineer with access to highly classified documents on weapons and radar systems were arrested and charged with conspiring to give the papers to Polish intelligence.

An FBI spokesman said William Holden Bell, 51, a native of Seattle, Wash., and Marian W. Zacharski, 29, originally of Goynia, Poland, were taken into custody Sunday in Playa Del Rey, Calif., where they were neighbors in a plush apartment complex.

FBI Director William Webster said Bell allegedly furnished highly classified documents to Zacharski and Polish intelligence service officers abroad. In exchange, Bell was reported to have been paid more than $110,000.

The accident Saturday occurred exactly one month after 14 Nimitz crewmen were killed when a jet crashed on the ship's deck.

The pilot, Crudr, Robert Farris, was returning to the Nimitz when his A-7 Corsair jet went down in the Caribbean Ocean approximately 50 miles northeast of St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands, officials said.

Roy Allen Harich is in the Volusia County jail today without bond on a first-degree murder charge and bonds totalling $60,000 on charges of attempted murder and use of a firearm in the commission of a felony, a sheriff's office spokesman said.

Harich was arrested in suburban Holly Hill Sunday, the day after Cariena Gayla Kelly, 18, was found dead and Deborah Miller, 17, seriously injured in a wooded area outside Daytona Beach, the sheriff's office said.

The two girls, from High Springs in Alachua County, were last seen getting it to a white van in a Daytona Beach service station Friday night. They were found early Saturday.

Beach Still Eroding

MELBOURNE, (UPI) - More than half of the sand that rebuilt the eroded Indialantic and Melbourne beaches has eroded, engineers say.

Much of the $3,317,000 worth of sand the Army Corps of Engineers used to rebuild the 2.1-mile stretch of beach has been washed out to sea - with a lot of it trapped by a jotty at Sebastian Inlet, according to an ocenographer's study.

Five Killed In Crash

WINTER GARDEN (UPI) - The death toll in the fiery crash was five but that's two less than it might have been without the heroics of a passerby who never

The five died as a northbound 1975 Dodge van carrying six people to a holiday with relatives in Alabama swerved out of control on Florida's Turnpike, struck a 1980 Datsun, careened across the median strip and collided head-on with a 1968 Jeep station wagon Saturday, a Florida Highway Patrol spokeswoman

The van and station wagon burst into flames. Three occupants of the van and the two occupants of the station wagon apparently died instantly, PHP Dispatcher Betty Anderson said.

But three youths, all from Boynton Beach, Fin., remained in the back of the van. One, Douglas Komz, 14, had minor injuries and climbed out. But Allen Gonzales, 14, had a broken leg and couldn't get out, and his brother Jeff, 11, had been knocked unconscious.

A passerby rushed to the blazing vehicle and removed one injured victim, then returned and got the other, Ms. Anderson said.

Police Kill Gunman In FBI Office

ATLANTA (UPI) - An exmental hospital counselor said today a heavily armed former patient may have seized an FBI headquarters and held 13 employees hostage for several hours because he wanted to killed by a SWAT team.

Two hostages, both FBI employees, were injured in the gunfire unable to locate Jenkins, who is when police burst into the office Sunday. They were listed in crisis. satisfactory condition at Grady Memorial Hospital today with gunshot wounds in the legs.

The Atlanta Constitution said Roberts' parents live in Dallas, Tex., where his father reportedly is an executive with Kraft Foods Inc. The gunman during the siege had

The Rev. Michael A. Merris, pastor of the Sacred Heart Church located one block from the scene, was rushed to the FBI offices, but by the time he arrived, gunfire had broken out. He administered last rites to Roberts.

Glover said the Roberts appeared 'coherent and relatively calm" when negotiations began by phone, but that officials decided to "terminate the hostage situation" after talks with him broke down.

An Atlanta police sergeant who requested anonymity said members of the city SWAT team shot Roberts.

There were reports that Roberts never fired off a shot.

Heaven Was To Wait — Until Today

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) - Bill Maupin and his small band of disciples sold their belongings, quit their jobs, said goodbye to their friends and gathered Sunday to wait for God to float them up to heaven. He didn't show up, so they extended the deadline. Maupin and the two dozen other members of the Lighthouse Gospel Tract Foundation were still waiting today, confident the "rapture" was at hand. 'The Lord always did everything at the last minute," said Bill Chandler, 20, who was among the group waiting at Maupin's tree-shaded suburban home. Maupin, 51, founder of the fundamentalist sect, said a study of the Bible had convinced him June 28, 1881, was the date that people who were "saved" would be "raptured" - floated up to heaven like "helium balloons."

As Sunday wore on, nothing happened. But Maupin wasn't discouraged. He noted scripture says the Lord comes like a thief in the night.

"It's absolutely mind-blowing the way things are falling together," Maupin told followers reading Bibles and Sunday comics in the living room of his home. The bumper sticker on one car parked outside read: "Warning - in case of rapture this car will be unmanned."

Maupin's disciples said even if the night passed without rapture, it made no difference. Susan Hillary, 27, who said she "retired" as a medical technician in the belief she was going to heaven, said if the rapture didn't come on schedule, it would only mean the sect had "counted wrong."

After the rapture, Maupin said the Anti-Christ will take over the world in 1964 and chop off the heads of those who refuse to become members of a satanic one-world government by accepting the imprint on their bodies of the numbers "666."

Maupin said he already knows the identify of the Anti-Christ. "I'd rather not say because the Lord told me to keep my mouth shut. But I'm 99 percent sure. He's well known to people. The governments are a bunch of crooks, He's going to be a middle-of-the-roader and he's got all the answers."

It was against the background of a world supposedly about to be besieged by the Anti-Christ that some of Maupin's disciples quit their jobs, got rid of their homes or declined to renew

Attorney Cleared Of Malpractice

By BRITT SMITH Herald Staff Writer

There was big money, reputations, and long-standing personal differences involved. Michael Jones called Thomas Freeman incompetent. Freeman called Jones vindictive. The two Altamonte Springs attorneys argued back and forth for four days in Seminole Circuit Court last week before a sixmember jury sided with Freeman.

The legal battle sprang from a 1978 lawsuit filed against Freeman by a former client - Fern Park businessman Allan R. Pyle, former head of the now-defunct Pyle Landclearing Co. who claimed Freeman mishandled a lawsuit for his firm. Pyle was seeking $51,620 in damages from Freeman, accusing him of malpractice and breach of contract. In a trial before Judge Robert McGregor, Freeman accused Jones, who also has done legal work for Pyle, of being the driving force behind the lawsvit against him, noting that the two have had their personnal and political differences in the past. Jones denied the allegation.

The Pyle-Freeman suit had its roots in 1973 when Pyle subcontracted with the Weiss Pollution Control Corp. of Brandon to clear some land for a U. S. Army Corps of Engineers' river and canal project. A dispute later arose over the proper disposal of tree stumps, brush and other debris and the Corps cut the fee paid Weiss by

Weiss unsuccessfully appealed the cut, prompting the federal government to lessen the contract slash. A Weiss representative testified that he relayed that information to Freeman and asked if Pyle would agree to accept part of the Freeman said he reported the offer to Pyle who instructed him to reject it. Pyle said Freeman made no such report, adding that if he had he would have accepted the deal.

In 1974, Pyle had Freeman sue the Weiss company for the $50,000-plus Pyle claimed was due him for the land-clearing work. Pyle had already been paid $89,000.

Nearly two years later, Pyle fired Freeman after learning from a friend that Freeman had lost an unrelated Pyle lawsuit in Volusia County, testimony disclosed.

At that point, Pyle hired Jones, who ultimately dropped the

Weiss suit and agreed to a $15,000 judgment for Weiss' attorney fees and costs, all with Pyle's approval. Freeman insisted he could have won Pyle's suit against Weles if he had been allowed to take the case to trial Freeman's attorney, Alton Pitts, claimed Pyle agreed to the $15,000 settlement on the condition that Weiss' attorney — Robert Goldhagen of Tampa — and Jones testify against Freeman at the trial.

Jones did, saying he felt the Weiss suit should have been filed in federal, rather than state court, and added that Freeman told him in 1976 that he (Freeman) had done little work on Pyle's case because of his duties as Seminole County's first full-time county attorney.

After listening to the testimony, the four-man, two woman jury took slightly over two hours to find Freeman innocent of malpractice and breach of contract.

Food Stamp Fraud

MIAMI (UPI) - Seven employees have been fired from a food stamp center where state investigators say they have found evidence of computer fraud resulting in losses of $250,000 worth of food stamps a month.

Fictitious people were certified as eligible for the stamps at the Model Cities Food Stamp Center in the Liberty City ghetto, state investigators say. Their names were entered in the computer system and stamps which could be used to purchase food or sold on the black market - were issued to accomplices.

The seven were fired last week on the basis of a preliminary report from the state Auditor General's office.

We'll Be Sorry To See Him Go

Justice Potter Stewart says it would be an insult to the Supreme Court if President Reagan picks his successor solely on the basis of sex or race. That puts it bluntly, but Justice Stewart rarely puts things any other way.

Journalists will regret to see Justice Stewart leave the Supreme Court, and not only because he has been a notable defender of the First Amendment and a free press for the last 23 years. He has also been a highly quotable judge, the author of opinions that get their point across in language easily understood.

Property does not have rights. People have rights." Thus did Justice Stewart make a distinction that some judges would take pages to

To his own regret, he may be remembered most for an observation in a case that required him to view a movie which a lower court had deemed obscene. He said he could not define hard-core pronography, But I know it when I see it." In a phrase he had captured the essence of the problem of writing laws that say clearly what is obscene and what isn't, even when it is easy to see the difference.

In a dissenting opinion in 1972, Justice Stewart summarized in one sentence why it is wrong for judges to try to force reporters to reveal confidential news sources. This, he said, "invites state and federal authorities to undermine the historic independence of the press by attempting to annex the journalistic profession as an investigative arm of government."

He also dissented from a 1979 decision holding that plaintiffs in libel suits could prove the thinking process of writers and editors to determine their motives in publishing the material in question. What was not published has nothing to do with the case," he wrote, capsuling his objection in 11 words.

Justice Stewart believes the authors of the First Amendment had good reason to give explicit protection to a free press and not presume that it would be safe from government straints because the same amendment protected freedom of speech." It needs that protection as an institution vital to the functioning of democratic government. He expressed that philosophy in a speech at the Yale Law School in words that all judges should memorize:

So far as the Constitution goes, the autonomous press may publish what it knows, and may seek to learn what it can."

Justice Stewart is of a conservative turn of mind, and was appointed to the Supreme Court by a Republican poresident, Dwight Eisenhower, Since a conservative Republican president will now choose his successor, his retirement may result in no marked change in the court's ideological tone.

The Supreme Court, however, is losing a justice with a special sensitivity to the First Amendment issues and a staunch defender of the freedoms it encompasses. As Mr. Reagan reviews the records of candidates to succeed Justice Stewart, we hope he bears this in mind.

No Compromise

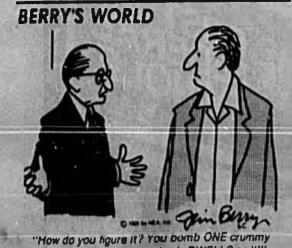

The Supreme Court has ruled that there can be no compromise in an employer's duty to protect the health and safety of workers against major hazards in the work place.

By a 5-3 vote, the justices rejected the argument by the textile industry that the Occupational Safety and Health Administration must show that the workers' health benefits justify the employers' increased costs in complying with agency rules.

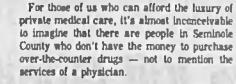

The ruling in a case involving exposure to cotton dust, blamed as the cause of brown lung disease, will have an impact on other industries vulnerable to charges of exposing employees to dangerous conditions.

Few will quarrel with the words of Justice William J. Brennan Jr., emphasizing the court's concurrence with Congress that the costs of eliminating health hazards were properly part of the cost of doing business.

The Occupational Safety and Health Act has been a matter of controversy for 11 years.

nuclear reactor and everybody DWELLS on III'

Where do they go when they get sick? Some do scrape up a few dollars for drug-store treatments. Others who feel there is no place to go just don't do anything. And many times, the ailments are far more serious then they think.

But hundreds of babies, seniors, and middleagers get the medical attention they need, thanks to the Central Florida Migrant and Community Health Clinic on 2nd Street and Oak Avenue in downtown Sanford.

Complete with its own pharmacy, consulting offices, and examination rooms, the little facility takes care of some 50 patients each day. Many are treated for high blood pressure and diabetes, two of the most widespread causes of death among blacks.

According to the clinic's administrator, Bill Schomberg, 50 to 65 percent of the patients treated are migrant farm workers. The remainder are regulars, evenly devided between black and white, who show up over and over for Payment is based on one's ability to pay. The wealthy aren't turned away, but they are charged more, obviously, because they're able to pay more. But more of the clinic's patients are what the government calls "low-income,"

"We don't look at a person't color and we don't look at whether he cay pay us or not," Schomberg says. "If he needs medical help, he needs

The clinic runs on federal grant money that runs out in December. From there, it's anybody's guess where the funding will come from says Schombert.

The fact is that clinic administrators aren't sure if the grant will be renewed or if the program will be placed under the block grants.

The block grant system, Schomberg explains would be a lump aum alloted for community service organizations. Throughout the state, these social service agencies are given specific amounts as far as the monies hold out. Those which are slated low priority are left out.

Medical Director Dr. Joseph Azelvandre lends a warm, personable air not only to the center itself, but to the spirit of his staffers, as well. As far as many of the clinic's patients are concerned, you couldn't get better medical attention from anyone.

"Everyune's always so friendly in here," one patient told me as she sat walting for a doctor. "I love coming here because they make me feel as if they really care about what happens to me." Dr. Azelvandre was not surprised by her comments.

"I demand a certain attitude from my staff toward our patients," he said. "If they can't seem to treat our people in a warm, caring manner, then they just have to leave. It's as simple as that."

In a place that so many consider as their only source of medical aid, securing the operations funding should be of utmost concern to all Seminole County residents.

It's the only place that the poor in need of professional medical care can come for help. We should all be concerned that the doors stay open. Presently, the medical staff includes one fulltime doctor, two part-time doctors, a nurse, and supporting medical staff. The clinic will take on another second full-time doctor in mid-July in anticipation of future demand, Azelvandre said. Indeed, the Central Florida Migrant and Community Health Center serves us all, even if

Academics Cheer For Giant AT&T

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (NEA) - Challenging the intellectual honesty of university professors is a very dicey undertaking because most scholars cherish their academic integrity as an invaluable (albeit intangible) possession.

But too many "distinguished" and "respected" academic leaders have placed themselves in an unnecessarily embarrassing position by their penchant for performing lucrative contract research for specialinterest groups that arouses skepticism about their independence.

Among the benefactors of the faculty members anxious to supplement their college and university salaries, few non-government organizations have been more generous than the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

The relationship between the world's wealthiest corporation and the scores of academicians it employs as consultants is of particular topical interest because AT&T currently is at the center of an especially intense public debate over the future of the nation's telecommunications policy.

AT&T's virtual monopoly in the field of voice communications and its determination to become a dominant participant in the rapidly expanding field of data transmission are being challenged or questioned in the executive, legislative and judicial branches of the federal government.

The extent to which supposedly independent professors have become entangled in that controversy was vividly illustrated when the Ninth Annual Telecommunications Policy Research Conference recently convened here under the sponsorship of several federal agencies and private foundations.

As belits a serious policy conference, the program was replete with representatives from many of the nation's most prestigious academic institutions — including Columbia Dartmouth, Princeton, Yale, Cal Tech, MIT

But disclosed nowhere was the fact that at least a half dozen of those expert panelists have served as well-paid consultants to AT&T in recent years; many have received as much money from the telecommunications giant as from their colleges and universities

Yale University's Merton Peck, for example, was a participant in a panel discussion on proposals to require AT&T to establish a separate, unregulated subsidiary to tell telephone equipment in competition with other firms.

Federally mandated establishment of such a subsidiary generally is viewed as among the least punitive actions the government could take against AT&T to end its longstanding dominance in the telecommunications field. Another panelist, Louis Schwartz of the University of Pennsylvania, denigrated that approach as "fake deregulation... a fraud, a hoax... a myth (and) a fiction."

Peck, however, declared that proposed course of action to be "just right" and argued: "The Bell System is a special company. There's nothing quite like it,"

BUSINESS TODAY

We Hear, But Don't Listen

"listen" you're probably wrong. Most of us tune out all but a fraction of what we hear

That inattention not only costs business millions of dollars a year, it may be hampering your success in all walks of life.

Dr. Lyman K. Steil, professor at the University of Minnesota and head of Communication Consultants Associated, said we start "tuning out" when we're very young mother's entreaties for example. This habit carries over to adulthood and indeed may be the basis for "emotional triggers" that tune us out.

Sperry Corp. has spent a bundle on a national advertising campaign on the importance of listening that came out of efforts to find an image that would put it "ahead of the pack" of computer companies. In the process, Chairman Paul Lyet became so convinced of the importance of listening Sperry retained Steil to conduct seminars on good listening for its 92,000 employees.

Stell said the "problem is that poor listeners are not aware of the forces, sometimes emotional trigger words," that make them tune out.

But Steil says, convincingly, we have a "basic primary need to hear other people." Listening, indeed, "is central to our success in all areas of life, business, academic and

Good listening doesn't come naturally, however. It's a complex, learned process that most of us have to work hard to develop. "It involves all of our senses - hearing, sight, smell, taste and touch."

Although Steil feels a formal program such as Sperry's is most successful, there are some steps that can be taken on one's own to improve listening ability.

"Sit down and reflect on the role of the listener," he said. "Who do we listen to and who do we not listen to,"

Ask other people, your boss, your subordinates, your family and other important people in your life that you need to com-municate with how they rate you as a listener. "Whether they're right or wrong is not the point," he said. "Once the listener accepts responsibility for not hearing the perspective

Here are some of Steil's keys to effective listening:

Hold your fire. Don't judge until your comprehension is complete. "Listen especially to people with whom you disagree," he said. "The biggest mistake you can make is tuning out people who make you angry. If you kill the messenger you won't get the bad news."

Find areas of interest. You often will find something that will help your career or your personal life even in a "dry" presentation.

Judge content not delivery. If you're listening to a "boring" speech take notes on it. If you're attending a speech or seminar sit as close to the speaker as you can.

Steil said at the seminars he conducts for executives, which their companies pay for, the first arrivals invariably will sit in the back. "I can't understand why an executive will take two hours of valuable time then sit in the worst possible place.

Above all listen to your subordinates, your bosses, your family and friends for the central theme behind the words they are telling

"When people don't listen the costs are enormous," Steil said, "in wasted time, money, relationships, production and lawsuits.

"I believe that not only success or failure in life, but our very survival depends on listening to each other."

Poll Index Measures Mushiness

WASHINGTON (NEA) - The Washington community spends an inordinate amount of time considering the results of public-opinion surveys. Because polls influence so much of the decision-making in the nation's capital, their accuracy and likelihood of predicting the final outcome are of great and continuing

Much discussion has recently centered on a poll released by former Rep. Robert Bauman, the conservative Republican from Maryland's Eastern Shore who lost his reelection bid last year after pleading guilty in a homosexual sex scandal.

The survey by a New York City polling firm reportedly shows that voters in the congressional district now prefer Bauman to Royden Dyson, the Democrat who defeated him. Both men plan to run again in 1982. The poll found that voters favored Bauman over Dyson by a margin of 41.9 percent to 33.7 percent and that Bauman would regain his neat with at least 55 percent of the vote if the election were held today.

Predictably, Dyson has challenged the poll. He contends that respondents in his highly Republican, highly conservative district would tend to pick the like-minded candidate if given a simple choice between a Democrat and a conservative Republican.

The poll was "rigged," says Dyson, because Balanan was presented as as viabel candidate, which he can no longer be considered as a result of the sex scandal. Dyson says that respondents would change their minds in his favor if given an actual choice between the two on Election Day. This raises questions that have troubled pollsters for a long time: Do poll participants really mean what they say? Do they really hold the veiws they say they do? Will they really vote as they say they will?

Professional pollsters know that some respondents in every poll are uninformed about the issues on which they are questioned. These people shoot from the hip, often trying to give the answers that they think their questioner wants to hear. Obviously, a poll would have little value if a significant number of participants responded in this manner.

One major polling organization has spent two years trying to come up with a solution to this problem.

Yankelovich, Skelly and White Inc., which conducts polls for major political candidates as well as news organizations such as Time Inc., says that it has developed a a technique to measure the number of responses that are uninformed or likely to change.

The company refers to this type of response as "mushiness," which it defines as "volatility. . . present when there is evidence that a critical proportion of the public can change its opinion on a given issue."

The firm has devised a "mushiness index," which it plans to include on future polis to indicate the volatility of answers. The index is based on responses to a series of questions designed to measure the participant's knowledge of and personal involvement in an

Libya Gang: Greed And Errant Patriotism

WASHINGTON - Perhaps the most disturbing feature of the Edwin Witson-Frank Terpil arms-dealing and terrorist-training story is the ease with which American businessmen, former CIA agents and military specialists were recruited to work for the likes of Libyan dictator Muammar Qaddafi.

Dozens of American experts in the dark arts willingly went to work for the power-mad Libyan who has turned his country into a refuge and training camp for assassins, hijackers and other acum of the earth. How could they do it?

My associate Dale Van Atta has been chasing the Wilson-Terpil story for 10 months and has learned that, surprising as it seems, some Americans joined up for patriotic motives: They honestly believed they were part of a super-secret CIA operation. In fact, CIA involvement cannot be ruled out, though hard evidence is lacking.

But for most of the Wilson-Terril gang, the motive was simple greed. One such was Jerome S. Brower of Pomona, Calif. Here's what a classified Treasury Department memorandum had to say about Brower, whom it recommended be indicted:

"(He) is licensed as a manufacturer of explosives. . . He is president of the International Society of Explosives Engineers. . . and he has an extensive history of support and assistance to federal, state and local law enforcement. Yet, with knowledge and intent, he supplied high explosives for terrorist use at an inflated price and illegally shipped those explosives to Libya and Uganda."

Brower also supplied the experts who taught his customers how to use their deadly merchandise, the memo noted. After initially lying about his involvement, Brower finally copped a plea. He was fined $5,000 and ordered to serve four months of a five-year prison term.

In addition to the pairiotic and the erestithere were some who were used by Wilson and Terpil for the prestigs they added to their operations. One of these was retired Air Force Brig. Gen. Juseph Cappucci, a decorated veteran of World War II and an acknowledged expert in counterintelligence and security. He served as head of the Air Force Office of Special Investigations and as director of the Defense Investigative SErvice.

"Ed (Wilson) specialized in recruiting senior military officers for their contacts," explained Kevin Mulcahy, a onetime associate turned government witness. He pointed out that Wilson had dozens of companies, and "about 90 deals out of 100 were perfectly legitimate, while the others were aleasy."

Alter meeting Wilson, Cappucci had hime checked out with some intelligence contacts. Unfortunately, the word came back that Wilson was OK.

So Cappucci headquartered his private security business in a Washington townhouse owned by Wilson, used Wilson's attorney and employed at least one of Wilson's associates. According to secret government files, Cappucci told investigators that Wilson had lent him the money to start his business. In May 1978, investigators for the Bureau of Alcohol. Tabacco and Firearms were told by an informant that one of Cappucci's employees was trying to obtain a large quantity of arms for export to Libya. Cappucci denied that the man in question had ever worked for him. He denied involvement in any foreign arms shipments, and, in particular, denied the informant's claim that Cappucci himself had discussed arms for Libya with a munitions maker in Springfield, Mass.

The federal investigators could find "no... evidence of criminal activity by Cappucci, and finally dropped the case. They zeroed in on Wilson and eventually got the indictments against the Wilson-Terpil gang.

Cuppucci says his experience with Wilson has taught him a lesson: Check out thoroughly anyone with whom he has business dealings. He said he wised up when he "started hearing incredible stories about (Wilson) - so I stayed the hell away from

Far from having any record of arms dealing, Cappucci has an intensely personal reason to view such tradesmen in terror with distaste. In 1975, he was sitting in the lobby of the London Hilton when a bag of plastic explosive blew up a few feet away. Cappucci caught a bomb tragment and sustained a hearing impairment that persists to this day. He doesn't rule out the possibility that his long and effective career in counterintelligence had made him the terrorists'

Harry Smith won't break into a jacko-lantern smile every time someone mentioned Tim Raines and say, "Timcame through our program, you know."

Everybody that played baseball in Sanford the last decade or so came through Harry Smith's program. He was the "main man" behind youth baseball in Sanford.

But Harry Smith passed away Friday morning at his home. Smith was the superintendent of recreation for the city of Sanford. He was 60. For the last 12 years Harry watched the likes of Donald and Randy Brown, the Raines brothers, Robert Smith and Dave Wiggins pass through his leagues on their way to professional baseball.

Mrs. Willie (Beverly) Brown watched all three of her sons - Donald, Randy and Kenny - go through the Sanford leagues. "If one of them wasn't playing, they would be batboy,

"The city of Sanford will be hardpressed to find a replacement for Harry who will match his devotion for the job," said Gary Taylor, president of Sanford's Youth Baseball Association. Smith's work, though, did not end with baseball. He worked 14-hour days, six days a week with flag football, basketball and other activities sanc-

Smith had an on-going battle with cancer. He had several operations, chemo-therapy, cobalt treatment and the works. It slowed him down, but it didn't stop him.

At least it didn't until Friday, June 26. "We're going to miss Harry," said Taylor, "Neither the Sanford Recreation Department or the Sanford Youth Baseball Association is ever going to be the same without him."

Teresa Vezina Becomes Bride Of Robert Hansen

Teresa Marie Vazina and Robert Hansen were married May 23, at 2 p.m., at All Souls Catholic Church, Sanford. The Rev. Father William Ennis was the officiating clergyman for the double ring rites.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lionel J. Vezina, 918 Myrtle Ave., Sanford. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. B.R. Carroll, 1909 Oak Ave., Sanford.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore for her yows a gown designed and created by her mother. Fashioned along the empire silhouette, the gown featured a

Queen Anne neckline and long organza sleeves embeliished with re-embroidered appliqued lace motifs. Three rows of lace bordered the hemline of the organza over satin skirt which terminated in a sweeping chapel train. She wore a picture hat adorned with face appliques.

Cecilia Carter attended her sister as matro, of honor. She wore a layender dotted Swiss polyester satin gown and a widebrimmed picture hat to match. She carried a single lavender carnation showered with baby's breath, fern and matching ribbons.

The bridesmaids were identical gowns and headpieces and carried the same flowers as the honor attendant, except in pastel rainbow colors. They were as follows:

Audrey Temple, peach; Lori McLaughlin. mint green; Sandy Terrell, champagne; Debbie Brooks, sister of the bridegroom, yellow; and Terry Kelly, blue. Marie Vezina, sister of the bride who served as flower girl, wore pink.

Jackie Hansen served his brother as best man. Ushers were Kevin Vezina, brother of the bride; Mark Williamson, Tommy Foster, Louis Kelly and Bill Brooks, brother-inlaw of the bridegroom.

Footmen were Billy Brooks and Donnie Terry, nephews of the bridegroom. Coury Smith, nephew of the bridegroom, was the

The reception was held at the Garden Club of Sanford.

Following a beach wedding trip, the newlyweds are making their home at 800 E. 25th St., Sanford. The bridegroom is employed by Starline Enterprises, Sanford. The bride works at FourDee, Longwood.

Drunk Driver Kills 3; Gets Fined Only

DEAR ABBY: Last February, our daughter, a beautiful, talented, 16-yearold high school senior, was killed by a driver who admitted that he had been drinking in a bar for five hours. Our daughter and a group of 20 youngsters were walking home from a religious convention when the driver plowed into them, killing three and injuring three others. (The driver got off with $100 fine for a "minor traffic violation.")

We later learned that about 25,000 Americans are killed and over 500,000 more are injured every year in accidents involving drunk drivers. Legislation is now being sponsored across the nation to toughen laws dealing with drunk drivers. But more important, if people would realize the misery they can cause by driving after they've had a few drinks, possibly some lives could be saved. Our tragedy inspired me to write the following poem. I hope you will publish it. CYD (MRS. ALFRED) HASSNER, BINGHAMTON,

"Why, Daddy, did you kill someone like me?"

DEAR READERS: An interesting footnote: When I telephoned the Hassners to express my sympathy for the loss of their daughter, I said, "I do hope she wasn't your only child." Mr. Hassner replied, "No, fortunately we have two others, a 22-year-old daughter who was recently married, and a 10-year-old son." Then he added, "But we lost a I-year-old daughter to leukemia 12 years ago, and three years later, our infant son was killed in a cur crash. But my wife and I were lucky. We survived the Holocaust in Vienna.

DEAR ABBY: Concerning the idea of an Adulterers Anonymous: It's a terrific idea. I know exactly what she's talking about. I have the same iliness. And I believe it's an iliness, just like alcoholism.

I'm in Alanon (the organization for friends and families of alcoholics), and this last week I allowed the same "higher power" (God for me) help me from making a phone call that would have lead to another affair.

I would give anything to be able to talk to someone who knows and understands my feelinus Yes, if there were an Adulterers Anonymous, I would have made a phone call without question. GROWING STRONGER IN

ORTON DEAR URGENT: II someone objects, and the bride, groom and preachers want to proceed with the wedding, the wedding goes on. And If a wedding has ever been stopped because of such an objection, I'm sure someone will write in and report the Incident

DEAR ABBY: My best friend is a girl. I'm a guy. We have been good friends for four years now, ever since high school She's pretty, intelligent, vivacious and a quality person. Our relationship has always been platonic. She always said that one day the right man would come along, and until then she didn't want to fool around. I told her I respected her for that.

My problem, Dear Abby, is that my emotions don't always agree with my intellect, and now I find myself falling for her after we agreed to be just friends. This is causing me a great deal of unrest and it's putting a strain on our friendship. What should I do? DISTRACTED

DEAR DISTRACTED: Lay it on the line. Tell her that your "just friends" agreement doesn't seem to be working, that your head anderstands it but your heart has a mind of its own. Then sit back and observe her reaction and you'll have your answer.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Tuesday, June 30, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY June 30, 1981

In projects which you personally launch this coming year, you could run into some unexpected delays. Don't let initial anaga discourage you, because your luck improves as time rolls on.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be very careful today that you don't try to take on more than you can competently manage. Having too many irons in the fire could cause each to fail. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph, Mail 11 for each Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You could have some extra duties to contend with today. If you manage them poorly, they may cause you further complications. Think your moves through carefully.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may have difficulties today trying to stay within your budget. Look for ways to cut down on spending, not to add to it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your image is a trifle fragile today, so be cognizant of your behavior in front of persons whose respect you wish to keep. Put your best foot forward.

SCORP10 (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Sometimes your hunches are remarkably accurate, but today they could lead you astray. Rely more upon your logic than your intuition.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Enjoy yourself with friends today, but be careful about becoming involved in business or money situations. Friendship and finance may not mix well.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan.

19) Think for yourself today concerning important decisions. Those who offer you advice may either not understand the situation or fail to have your best interest AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb.

19) If you are performing tasks of a mental nature today It may prove wise to have someone on whom you can to Astro-Graph, Box 489, depend to double-check your work. You might not spot your own mistakes. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

Don't put too much stock in persons or firms about whom you know little, especially those who make lavish promises. Get everything in writing. ARIES (March 21-April 19)

This may not be the right day to discuss major issues you and your mate do not agree upon. There's a chance it would cause complications instead of finding solutions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Coworkers could resent you today if you behave more like a promoter than a producer. Don't try to get others to do your bidding with insincere flattery.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be extremely prudent today in management of your resources. Losses incurred through carelesaness could be quite substantial.

Prostate Problem Common In Men

DEAR DR. LAMB - I'm only 49 and that seems a little young to have trouble with one's prostate. When I was in my 20s when I passed urine I was like a stallion, but in recent years I have had trouble getting my stream started. And the stream doesn't seem to be as large or of this newspaper, P.O. Box with the same force it had 1551, Radlo City Station, New then. My doctor says this is York, NY 10019. This Issue because I have an enlarged also discusses the types of prostate. He says I don't need surgery for you. an operation now but it could mean it may lead to cancer? will be appreciated.

same thing as cancer at all not helped with antibiotics. and it will not become cancer. are all too common.

As long as you do not have to exert too much effort to empty the bladder, it will not harm you. When the obstruction is so great that you can't empty the bladder completely, then you are more likely to develop an infection of the bladder. Also your symptoms will get worse then because you never have an empty bladder. That often causes a man to go to the bathroom frequently, including getting up often at night. Also the bladder may become stretched and not function as well.

Additional tests can be done when your symptoms warrant it. These are explained in The Health Letter number 15-6, Prostate Gland Problems, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, complications that can turn a stamped, self-addressed simple matter into a serious envelope for it to me, in care problem.

Unfortunately, we do not get to that stage. Does he have any cure for this problem other than surgical Will the slow stream cause relief. The condition is caused any damage? I'm not anxious by benign growths inside the to have an operation but I gland that compress the don't want to walt around urethra and cause the type of until it is too late either. Any symptoms you are having. If information you can give me the prostate is infected, as in acute prostatitis, then the DEAR READER - The swelling may cause some of changes you have noted are these same symptoms and not at all unusual. Over half of that can be helped with all American men over 50 antiblotics but the noninhave this problem. It is not the fectious common growth is

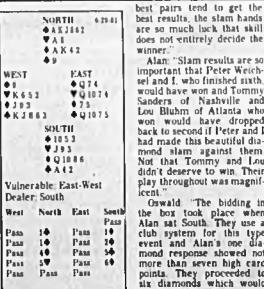

DEAR DR. LAMB -That, of course, does not Because acute appendicitis mean that you can't have seems to be so common prostate enlargement and among older children in also develop cancer as both general, can you please give us some ideas of the things we should absolutely NOT do when confronted with this condition? I'm sure many other people with childern would like to know this also,

DEAR READER - Acute appendicitis is most common in the second and third decade of life but it does occur at all ages, in older children the symptoms are rather typical in most cases. Loss of appetite and a full feeling that causes a person to think a good bowel movement would relieve the sensation is common. That is why people sometimes take laxatives. The one big caution is, do not give anyone a laxative or enema if you have any reason to suspect appendicitis. This applies to patients of all ages. The other point is don't delay. Get an

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Soutag

Opening lead ♥2

Oswald The Cavendish Charity pairs is played every year for the benefit of the Children's cancer fund and the enjoyment of 40 of the best pairs in the world who pay $300 apiece for the privlege. The scoring system is based on IMPs and while the

are so much luck that skill does not entirely decide the Alan: "Slam results are so important that Peter Weichsel and I, who finished sixth, would have won and Tommy Sanders of Nashville and Lou Bluhm of Atlanta who won would have dropped back to second if I'eter and I had made this beautiful diamond slam against them Not that Tommy and Lou didn't deserve to win. Their play throughout was magnif-Oswald "The bidding in the box took place when Alan sat South. They use a club system for this type event and Alan's one diamond response showed not more than seven high card points. They proceeded to six diamonds which would make easily if the spade queen dropped or if a heart weren't led, but neither of these things happened and Alan had to lose a heart and a spade. Two other pairs using standard methods reached six diamonds by North and made it when a beart wasn't opened." Alan "Some pairs got to six spades and could not bring that contract home. Some stopped at four spades and had very good scores for plus 450."
