Floridians' show optimism

GAINESVILLE - Floridians' growing optimism about the national economy is reflected in February's consumer confidence index.

The state's confidence index climbed to 77 tast month, up from 73 in January, said David Densiow, economist with the University of Florida's Bureau of Economic and Business

The survey was completed before miecease-fire in the Persian Gulf so we don't know et how the end of the war will affect consumers," he said. "Perhaps the best early Information will be what happens to auto sales during the first 10 days of March.'

The slow rise of the Index from its historic low of 67 in October 1990 is good news, but the index remains low at 77, Denslow said.

"Only when it rises to the high 80s can we be assured that recovery is at hand for the Florida economy," he said.

Toddler found in septic tank

OKEECHOBEE - A search party found the body of a 16-month-old boy in his grandparents' septic tank, more than a week after the toddler was reported missing, authorities said.

SANFORD - Allied commander Army Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf this week will receive an invitation to preside over Sanford's homecoming parade for the area's 160 service men and women who have served in the Persian Gulf Veralynn Williams, of the Sanford Operation Desert Storm Support Group parade committee, said she wrote a letter to the general and his wille this week Although. Schwarzkopf will more than likely be inundated with similar offers and may not have returned to the United States in time for the June 15 event, she said, the invitation stands for either him or his wife.

"Our parade may not be the calibre of a California ticker tape parade." Williams wrote in her letter to the general, but Schwarzkopf would be moved by the support shown by this small community.

The homecoming parade will be more than just a show of support for troops coming home from this war, parade committee member Penny Loughan said. To symbolize the sort

LONGWOOD - The Seminole County School Board will offer a public forum for parents of students who will be affected by the rezoning for both Heathrow Elementary School in Lake Mary and Partin Elementary School on Wednesday evening at Lyman High School, 1141 E. State Road 427 in Longwood.

The 7 p.m. public hearing will take place in the high school auditorium to be sure there is enough space to accomodate the crowds of parents which are expected to speak to the board.

We want to give parents the chance to voice their opinions." Joe-Williams, chairman of the school board said.

In past meetings with parents over the last few weeks, the district administrators who have been working on the plans presented their ideas and chatted informally with them afterward.

Wednesday's meeting will provide the public with an opportunity to state their opinions about the plans that are presented and to offer suggestions of their own.

One group of parents from the Glen Haven neighborhood in Lake Mary, for example, have devised a proposal which would allow their youngsters to attend Lake Mary Elementary School, 132 Country Chib Rd. in Lake Mary, rather than to Goldsboro Elementary School. 1301 W. 20th St. In Sanford.

The Hazel Glen parents argue that Lake Mary Elementary School is more than five miles closer to their homes than Goldsboro.

Whale's skeleton put on display

TAMPA — The skeleton of a 20-ton prehistoric whale found in a quarry near Sarasota has been brought to Tampa's Museum of Science and Industry to be put on display.

The 20-foot baleen whale, believed to have lived between 3 and 5 million years ago during the Pliocene Epoch, was found last year near the Gulf of Mexico about 40 feet below the water

It could offer valuable insight into the environment of the time because most of its bones are intact, said Garry Morgan, a vertebrate paleontologist at the Florida Museum of Natural History in Gainesville.

"it's certainly one of the most complete skulls and skeletons of a whale found, which is very unusual," Morgan said Monday. "Normally, you just get pieces. The larger the thing the less likely you are to get all the pieces."

Authorities link two murders

GRACEVILLE - Authorities have linked the unsolved murders of two elderly couples in this Florida Panhandle town and Tuscaloosa. Ala. nine months apart in 1989.

Robert McRea, a wealthy lumberman, and his wife, Kathryn, were shot to death in their home here on Jan. 29, 1989. On Oct. 15 the charred remains of A.C. and Carolyn Worthy were found in their fire-gutted Tuscaloosa home.

The slayings have been linked through ballistics tests, although different weapons were used in the murders, said Larry Birge of the Jackson County Sheriff's Department.

JUPITER - An ailing whale that wandered into Jupiter Inlet over the weekend was taken to the Miami Seaquarium and was being treated at a rehabilitation tank at the park.

The pygmy sperm whale was first treated at the dock of Harpoon Louie's, a popular Jupiter restaurant Sunday night. Veterinarians from the Seaquarium drove to Jupiter and brought the 10-foot, 1,200 pound female back in a van to a special treatment facility early Monday.

Robin Harrington, manager of Harpoon Louie's, said it was unusual for whales to enter Jupiter inlet.

The adult whale had some scrapes, but had no other outward injuries, said Eric Elmstad, a Scaquarium spokesman. Elmstad said the pygmy sperm whales are deep water animals that often come closer to shore when they are sick and are pushed In by storms.

Court refuses to kill lawsuit

MIAMI - The U.S. Supreme Court has refused to kill a lawsuit by blacks and Hispanics almed at changing the way Dade County elects its governing body.

State Sen. Carrie Meek filed the lawsuit along with several other South Florida political leaders four years ago. On Monday, the court let stand a decision keeping alive allegations that at-large, county-wide voting for the eight county commissioners and mayor illegally blunt the minorities' voting power in Dade County. Black and Hispanic voters sued in 1986, contending that the

at-large system - used instead of a system in which only residents of a district vote for that district's commissioner prevented them from electing candidates of their choice.

U.S. District Judge Kenneth Ryskamp threw out the suit in 1988, but the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reinstated it last August. Dade County had requested the Supreme Court review of that appellate decision,

Justices debate compensation ruling

TALLAHASSEE - Florida Supreme Court justices wondered if they should issue a ruling in a challenge of the new workers' compensation law since the Legislature has fixed the major constitutional questions.

'Why isn't this just an exercise in futility?" asked Justice Rosemary Barkett during oral arguments Monday.

Lawmakers met in a January special session and passed several amendments to the workers' compensation law to address a circuit judge's ruling that struck it down because of separation of powers and single-subject problems.

But Richard Sicking, attorney for the state AFL-CIO and several injured workers who filed the lawsuit, said the high court could still decide whether the 30 percent cut in benefits for those hurt on the job was proper.

Sicking repeated the lawsuit's claims that the benefit reductions, which cut workers' compensation insurance premiums by up to 25 percent for businesses, violated clauses of the constitution guaranteeing equal protection, due process and access to courts.

The court did not indicate when it would rule.

TALLAHASSEE - Hunger is a feeling known to almost a quarter of a million Florida children under the age of 12, a new study has concluded. An equal number of children are in danger of feeling the same pungs.

The families in the study make 185 percent or less of the federal poverty level. In 1991, that amounted to $20,609 a year for a family of four, up slightly from the income level when the interviews were done from late 1989 through last March.

Three-quarters of the families with hungry children had some wage income, coming in most cases from one full-time worker.

TALLAHASSEE - By 1996, Florida should try to extend basic clinic health care to its 2.2 million uninsured residents and rein in spiraling costs to the rate of inflation, a task force has recommended.

To do that, the state needs a powerful regulatory agency simiiar to the Public Service Commission, which oversees utilities and caps profits in that industry, according to the Task Force on Government Financed Health

"We need an agency with enough clout that when it rolls over, the vested interests begin to move and get out of the way or come to the table to do the negotiations necessary to reduce a $32 billion budget," Rep. Legislators gather for new session

Budget deficit has given lawmakers few options

By CURT ANDERSON Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - Florida lawmakers gathered at the Capitol today to open a 1991 legislative session that is likely to be remembered most by what couldn't get done.

A deficit of at least $1.4 billion and Gov. Lawton Chiles' determination not to raise taxes while cutting government services gives lawmakers few options.

"I think everybody realizes most brilliant ideas cost money," said House Speaker T.K. Wetherell, D-Daytona Beach. "With no money, people take their ideas and go home."

The budget debate and Gov. Lawton Chiles' proposals to "right-size" government by cutting $700 million from current government services and raising a series of fees by $391 million will dominate the session.

Senate President Gwen Margolis said people should be prepared for a budget that won't address many of the state's problems and might reduce the effectiveness of government services, including health, welfare and education. "I think the middle-class people are going to feel the effect of this budget," said Margolis,

D-North MIRMI. Lawmakers will also tackle a major campaign finance reform package, a proposal to reorganize the enormous Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services and a plan to change the way local school officials can spend their money. Few major new initiatives are planned on the issues of environment, prisons, abortion or transportation.

Chiles said his proposed $28.8 billion budget for fiscal year 1991-92 will show Floridians that the state's tax system, based on an inadequate sales tax, needs an overhaul. But so does the way government spends what it now gets, he said.

"We're going to use this crisis to give us the leverage to change the delivery system." Chiles said. "Until we do that, I don't want to seek new revenue. I don't want to do tax reform.

The governor was scheduled to formally outline his legislative proposals in a State of the State speech to a joint session of the Legislature this morning. Tonight at 7, Chiles will discuss the same themes on an unprecedented informal chat to the people carried live in most television and radio markets.

School district plans airing over cable TV

By VICKI DOSORNIER Harald staff writer

SANFORD — As the Seminole County School District moves toward a more business-like approach to the running of their part of Seminole County. operations, they want the public to be aware of the changes it may bring. A 30-minute discussion about the school district's development of a stategic plan, presented by Dr. Bill Cook, an expert on educational strategic planning and Supt. Robert Hughes, will be shown on cable television sever-

District officials believe they will be able to reach a wide accepted by the general public. CableVision of Central Florida

The presentation by Cook and Hughes was videotaped during a recent visit by Cook to the school district to help train district administrators and prepare them for the change to a strategic plan.

Strategic planning allows for a school district to set specific long-range goals which they are committed to attaining. Under current policy, the school district sets annual priorities which they strive to attain.

Longwood narrows its official list

By NICK PFEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD - The City Commission voted last night to accept the names of four candidates seeking the job of City Administrator, finally narrowing down a long list, and to make a decision on one of them next Monday evening.

James F. Coleman, Longwood's Personnel Director, presented the names of four of the five candidates originally chosen by the selection committee. The four included Christopher L. Holley, who has been Community Services Director for the City of Naples since 1984; Bill Farmer, currently a consultant who has been Manager and Personnel Director for the City of Holly Hill from 1988 to 1990; Reld Silverboard, presently Deputy City Manager of Hallandale since 1984; and Don L. Terry, who has worked in the city of Longwood since 1978. Terry is Longwood's City Clerk, and has been the Acting City Administrator strice the dismissal of Mike Abels.

The fifth candidate selected by the committee, Danny Crew, had recently withdrawn his application, having obtained a job as an administrator in St. Lucie

County. The three members of the selection committee who chose the names from dozens of applications, were all members of both the International City Managers Association and the Florida City & County Managers Association. Committee membership in at least one of the organizations is required in the Longwood city charter

As a result of the acceptance of the recommendations by Coleman on behalf of the committee, the next move will be made Monday, March 11, when the four candidates will tour the various city departments individually, then attend a work session for panel interviews by members of the Commission at

The final decision is expected to be made in a special called meeting of the Commission at 7:30 pm.

Coleman said, "I expect one of these four will be selected." He added however. "If for some reason none of these is picked, the City Charter calls for us to start the entire process all over again."

The person selected to be the new City Administrator will be appointed as soon as possible, on a date still to be set.

Are you open to some energy-saving ideas?

We don't want to put words in your mouth, but most likely the answer is "yes."

Even a house that seems to be energy-efficient probably has hidden cracks and gaps where air could be escaping, driving up your cooling or heating costs.

FPL's free, no-obligation Home Energy Survey is designed to find those openings.

Call us for an appointment, and we'll send over a trained energy specialist to inspect your home from attic to baseboards to look for leaks.

> We'll also check to see if insulation for your water heater or a more efficient air conditioner can help. If we do uncover problems, we'll suggest easy ways to correct them.

While we're there, we'll also tell you if you qualify for eash incentives from FPL on other energysaving improvementsthings like

Don't bail out airlines

Having absorbed $2 billion in losses last year, the U.S. airline industry is seeking a bailout from Washington. Five major domestic carriers are lobbying for a proposal that would allow them to retain, for a year or longer, the rvenues generated by the 10 percent federal ticket tax.

Proceeds from the tax go into a special fund earmarked for expansion of airports and construction of new ones.

The ticket tax, which recently was increased by Congress, generates about $4 billion a year. These revenues are coveted by some financially ailing carriers on the premise that a large transfusion of public money is needed to ensure the survival of more than a handful of domestic airlines.

In truth, several airlines appear to be in imminent danger of financial collapse. squeezed by both the recession and a temporary but steep rise in fuel prices. Continental and Pan Am already have filed for bankruptcy protection. Trans World Airlines is on the verge of doing so, as is Midway, a regional carrier based in Illinois.

The airlines assert that a short-term cash infusion from the ticket tax would avert a painful industry shakeout. They propose to repay the federal Treasury over time. One plan calls for a payback over 5 to 10 years at an interest rate of 1 percentage point above the prime rate. Another plan calls for a surcharge on top of the ticket tax to repay the government's money.

Some airline executives predict a groundswell of public support for federal subsidies to the ailine industry. If the Bush administration and Congress cannot be persuaded to hand over the ticket tax, the industry hopes to win federal loan guarantees or other considerations.

But there are many drawbacks attached to almost any kind of federal ballout of the airlines. One of these is increased pressure to reregulate the industry and involve the government in decisions that are best made by the private sector.

If Congress hands over $4 billion to the airlines, it surely will want a say in how the industry conducts its affairs. In the long run, reregulation of the airline industry would be worse for American consumers than whatever shakeout might occur due to the industry's current financial problems.

It is worth noting that, prior to deregulation, only 17 percent of air travelers could choose from three or more carriers on a given route. Today, 65 percent of travelers have such a choice. Moreover, fares are, on average, 18 percent less today than they would have been under the old regulatory regime, according to figures compiled by the Brookings Institution. In the last 10 years, this has saved American air travelers $100

The financial struggles of once-profitable carriers like Eastern, Pan Am and TWA are unfortunate. But the reality of the marketplace is that, where competiton is keen, the fit survive and the less efficient fall by the wayside. Increased competition has certainly fomented profound changes in the airline industry. But, on balance, that competition has seved consumers well - even if it means some of the least efficient carriers lose the battle against their more productive

Beware of the Nixon revisionists

Think of this column as a lantern in the North Church steeple: Paul Revere Spear is warning you that yet another new Richard Nixon is coming over the horizon, at the head of a small but growing army. If you don't entrench, you could be overrun.

He's been planning his campaign for years and his strategy is devilishly clever. In Phase One, he sat under a banyan tree in Upper Saddle River. N.J., and dispensed snippets of specious wisdom to visitors. A few impressionable scholars and journalists enlisted in his forces.

In Phase Two, he published a personal history entitled "In the Arena, a Memoir of Victory, Defeat and Renewal," in which he attempted to demolish the "myths" that have been recorded about him. Time magazine pronounced the book 'an emotional and extraordinarily candid memoir" and signed up.

In Phase Three, he opened a private "library" in Yorba Linda, Calif., in which his story is told through "interpretive exhibitry." And guess who has now joined the ranks? None other than the respected New York Times columnist and heretofore inveterate Nixon foe, Tom Wicker. In a new book entitled "One of Us: Richard Nixon and the American Dream," Wicker writes eight minutes and compassionately of the former president, describes the infamous Checkers speech as an "American masterpiece," and portrays Watergate as an inevitable disaster that just happened to come about on Nixon's watch.

There are others - may the Muses stand guard o'er their word processors — who remain ever vigilant against the threat of Nixon revisionism. Among the most steadfast is Prof. Stanley Kutler of the University of Wisconsin, whose penetrating 1990 history of Watergate was manna to Nixonphobes.

Kutler is a pro of granitic character who will not be fooled into thinking that Richard Nixon was merely a bright but insecure pol who was in the wrong place at the wrong time. As Kutler wrote last August after touring the Nixon Library, it was lies that did Richard Nixon in: "Nixon's lies brought him to the dock and cost him his presidency ... Cheering and chill of exclusion

BOSTON — The country I walk through these last days of war is fully outfitted in its civilian uniform. Yellow ribbons hang like badges of belonging on everything from trees to storm doors to lapels. American flags line streets and mark homes as if on permanent dress parade.

Ambivalence has gone underground for the duration and we are expected to respond with the unamimity of a trained troop. Those who doubt, those who cannot join the regimental cheering, have felt the chill wind of exclusion. a patriotic form of shunning.

In New Jersey, an Italian basketball player was hounded off the team because he chose not to wear a flag. In Eric, Pa., the anti-war Benedictine sisters beat out Saddam Hussein to win a radio show's title of "bad guy" of the day. In New Hampshire, a man arguing earnestly but civilly about the origins and outcomes of the war was interrupted by a passerby who threatened to break his face.

Even this short war, with a routed enemy. seems to have chipped away at one of the values Americans hold in common: the right to dissent from what we hold in common.

Just two weeks ago, I sat with Nadine Strossen, the energetic new President of the American Civil Liberties Union, and talked of this. The ACLU was founded in the wake of World War I and she listed for me a few of the domestic casualties of that war.

There was the man arrested for sedition after he cynically told a woman knitting socks that her socks would never get to the troops. There was the minister jailed for reading the Bill of Rights in public. There was the Nebraska legislature that outlawed the teaching of German.

Strossen, a law professor, knows about wartime dissent from her family history as well. Her maternal grandfather, a conscientious objector to World War I, was publicly ridiculed before a New Jersey courthouse. Her father spent nine months in a German concentration camp for opposing Hitler.

In her forty years. Strossen said, "We have always been in some kind of warlike state the cold war, the war on drugs, the war on pornography. It's no coincidence that war speech is used to create the sense of panic that we must give up our rights for something looming.

So war in the Persian Gulf has filled another set of folders for civil liberties files. One for soldiers who couldn't get Bibles sent to the gulf. Another for gay and lesbian soldiers. A third for conscientious objectors. A fourth for the Arab-Americans. A fifth for press censorship. A sixth for protestors.

In the past weeks, we are told, war has pulled America up and out of its post-Vietnam depression. But I have often thought the enthusiasm for this fighting came from another place, from a deep longing for a sense of community.

We have just lived through a decade of every-man-for-himself individualism. During the '80s, it often seemed that our nation, our cities, our families were divided into the lowest common denominator. Diversity seemed more like a cause of disintegriion than the basic stuff of a melting pot. Against that backdrop, war can give a nation a sense of common purpose. I have been among those looking for community. hoping to renew a sense of connection. But the war fever that has bound us together also reminds me that no every community is benign, not evry piece of common ground is welcoming.

for the There is a difduration of ference between the mutual support of a community and the tyranny of a majority. There is a line of thought that runs from community to patriotism to nationalism to Jingoism. When nearly two-thirds of Americans think it is a "bad thing" to protest against the war while we are fighting, the price of admission can be silence. "My impression is that there is more tolerance for dissent than in the past," says Strossen. By historic measures, she may be

Warthogs save day many times at war

WITH U.S. TROOPS IN SAUDI ARABIA -The Commander of the American Air Force in Saudi Arabia had to eat crow - or in this case "Warthog" — three days after the Persian Gulf War began.

Lt. Gen. Charles Horner, in charge of Central Command Air Forces, had initially opposed the deployment of the tank-killing A-10s — the warplanes that the pilots affectionately call "Warthogs." Horner was overruled by Defense Secretary Dick Cheney.

In an Air Force battle staff closeddoor meeting a few days into the war. Horner admitted he was wrong. "I take back all the bad things I've ever said about the A-10s I love them. They're saving our asses."

We wrote in a column last December that the image. conscious Air Force didn't like the A-10s because they are slow and ugly. The army wanted them in the Culf-because they do their job well, no matter how they look.

Now the A-10 has emerged as one of the lumbering wonders of the war - a Cinderella story about a plane that the Air Force was seriously considering putting on the scrap heap. It now has a new lease on life.

The A-10 has one of the

Army officials were relieved to hear Gen. Horner's mea culpa. "We would be in serious trouble if (the A-10s) hadn't come." one Army officer at the front told us before the outbreak of the ground war. "They are the major weapons between us and the Iraqis."

Air Force generals and pilots always favor the glamorous, fast-flying jets. But the Army needs slower, heavily armored planes to stick tightly to the ground troops. The A-10 can go only 450 miles an hour while the F-16 can fly more than 1,100 miles an hour.

The chief armament of the A-10 is a monstrous 30 mm, seven-barrel Gatling gun, which fires 4,000 rounds in a minute and can destroy a tank with a single, well-placed shot. It shoots dense, depleted-uranium bullets that can penetrate a tank's armor. The A-10s also carry Maverick missiles. 500-pound Mark 82 fron bombs and Rockeye anti-armor cluster bombs.

Capt. Jessie Morimoto, an Air Force intelligence officer at one of the forward air bases, said the A-10 took on more responsibilities with every passing week of the war. Warthogs were used to knock out Scud missile sites, artillery supply points, radar installations and surface-to-air missile sites. They even helped rescue a downed Navy pilot. And one engaged in an unexpected dog fight with an Iraqi helicopter. The A-10 won.

One reason the fraqis had trouble shooting down the A-10s is that Iraqi anti-aircraft guns are usually fired at noise, and the A-10 is relatively quiet, particularly when compared to the other noises of a battlefield. One commander estimated that enemy gunners were only able to identify A-10s by sound in one out of 100 missions.

The sturdy plane is reinforced with titanium, which creates a heavy armor "bathtub" that protects the pilot and the engines. One A-10 took a hit that left a gaping hole in its right wing, destroyed a landing gear pod and took out one of the hydraulic systems. But the plane made it back home. "The plan worked as advertised, it could take a hit and come back," said one source at the Capt. Morimoto said the A-10s had proved "that they're just as able to hit the target and get out without being hurt as anybody else and in some cases, better.

No such thing as tamper-proof product package

By NANCY BENAC Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - The suspect Sudafed that prompted a nationwide recall came in packages with three anti-tampering features: gelatin-sealed capsules in blister-wrapped packs boxed in taped-shut cartons.

Federal law requires tamper-resistant packaging for nearly all over-the-counter medications, but there is no such thing as a tamper-proof package, industry experts say.

"Never has been, never will be," said Jack Walden, senior vice president of the Nonprescription Drug Manufacturers Association. "What one man can conceive, another man can circumvent.

Authorities say two deaths and an illness in the Seattle area may be linked to Sudafed 12-Hour Capsules that were laced with cyanide.

Investigators have not determined how the capsules were tainted.

The Food and Drug Administration said it was evident, however, that tampering had occurred because code numbers on the suspect Sudafed blister packs did not match those on the boxes containing the packs.

Burroughs Wellcome Co., which makes Sudafed, said the decongestant's packaging exceeded federal anti-tampering requirements by offering three safety features where only two are required. Kathy Bartlett a spokeswomen for the company in Research Triangle Park, N.C., said Burroughs Wellcome was one of the first to implement such measures in response to earlier tampering problems experienced by other drug manufactur-

Regulations requiring tamper-resistant packages for over-the-counter drugs were issued in 1982 after seven people in the Chicago area died from taking cyanide-laced Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules.

The FDA identified about a dozen different options for making products tamper-resistant. such as shrink seals, plastic wrappers and blister packs. It also required package labels that let consumers know what tamper-resistant features

Walden, the industry spokesman, said drug packaging improved dramatically in the 1980s.
"We are by far the most safe consumer product in the world," he said.

Critics say tougher laws are needed. "The packaging itself has probably deterred a certain amount of tampering," said Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of the Health Research Group of Ralph Nader's Public Citizen organization. "Someone has to be much more clever and cunning now, but it obviously isn't enough." Wolfe said tampering incidents have been heavily concentrated in over-the-counter capsule medications, and he called on the FDA to ban

"You can get into them (capsules) and do some damage more easily than with tablets or caplets."

The problem hasn't emerged with prescription capsules, most likely because there are "far fewer points along the chain where someone could interfere," Wolfe said.

Some companies stopped selling capsules altogether after the Tylenol deaths. Others continued to market them because capsules are the easiest way to deliver time-release medication and because some people find them easier to swallow, Walden said.

Punitive award ruling seen sparking laws

By JAMES H. RUBIN Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Renewed legislative battles are likely in the aftermath of a Supreme Court ruling that upholds the current system permitting huge punitive damage awards in lawsuits.

Stephen Bokat, a lawyer for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, said the 7-1 decision "all but shuts the door on judicial relief' for those hit with big

'The business community has to redouble its efforts for legislative reform," he said.

Kenneth Geller, a lawyer representing the Business Roundtable, said the high court may not have foreclosed all future court challenges to the constitutionality of punitive damage awards.

But, he said. "I'm certain people will seek relief in the legislatures."

The business groups failed in urging the Supreme Court to rule that skyrocketing damage awards violate constitutional guarantees of fundamental fairness.

In other actions, the court: -Rejected a challenge by Nevada officials to federal plans for a nuclear waste dump near Las -Left intact a New York "lemon law" that gives buyers of chronically defective cars more legal protection than they get under federal law.

Refused to protect church groups fighting local landmark preservation laws. The court refused to let a New York City church tear down its community house and build a commercial skyscraper, and told a lower court to reconsider a ruling that churches are exempt from a Seattle landmark ordinance.

The punitive damages ruling was surprisingly one-sided in view of the fact that several justices had previously expressed misgivings about mega-awards that seemingly were disproportionate to the harm suffered.

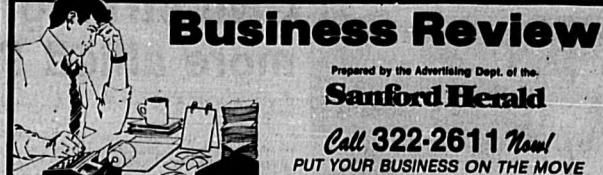

The court said it is up to state judges and legislatures to decide whether juries are going too far in punishing and deterring wrongdoers.

Consumer and legal groups applauded the Wrongdoers "should spend more time figuring out how to make their products safer and less time trying to escape their responsibilities under law," said Linda Lipsen of Consumers Union. "Companies need to know that they can be punished if they hurt people.

Michael Maher of the Trial Lawyers of America said the ruling "means that juries can continue to make the punishment fit the crime. It is a major victory for American justice."

Those who make unsafe products, defraud customers and hide industrial hazards (must) act responsibly," he said.

Full-Service Stations: Not Just A Thing Of The Past

Do you remember the friendly neighborhood gas station in your hometown? It was probably on a tree-lined street, and you knew the station manager by his first name. He took care of your car like it was his own - filled it with gas, checked the oil, and cleaned the windshields. He also gave you the advice of a homegrown car expert when your car made a funny noise or leaked too much water.

The same corner gas station existed in hundreds of towns and cities in America for years. but it is not very common today. Over the past several years, most oil companies have converted their stations to convenience stores with self-service islands. There is a trend, in the major oil companies, back toward opening service bays, but full service stations remain unique and uncommon.

Sanford Mobil Service has been owned and operated by Sylvester Chang for the past 9 years. Sanford Gull changed to Sanford Mobil in 1989. Sanford Mobil is located at 2518 French Ave. Sylvester feels that being a locally-owned station, he has more of an opportunity to support and give something back to his community. He is a member of Rotary, serves on several local & state advisory committees and is involved in many community projects. Sylvester is also involved with helping to raise scholarship funds for students who would not normally get the chance to attend college or receive technical training.

The roles of service station dealers have increased dramatically over the past few decades, from being mere sellers of petroleum products to being independent business people offering a variety of products and services to customers who rely greatly on them. While there are specialty outlets in the market for basic automotive services, drivers often don't have time to shop around for the best deal and don't always know who to turn to. DELAND - Dizzy spells suffered by center Derrall Dumas helped zap a promising season for Stetson, but the 15-15 Hatters still have the home-court advantage in the Trans-America Athletic Conference Champion-

Stetson, the unanimous preseason favorite of conference coaches and media, enters the league tournament as only the fourth seed, facing Georgia State (fifth) at 7 p.m.

In other action, Centenary (second) plays Samford (seventh) at 1 p.m., Georgia Southern (third) faces Arkansas-Little Rock at 3 p.m. and regularseason champion Texas-San Antonio meeta last-place Mercer at 9 p.m.

Stetson shocked Purdue in their season opener at West Lafayette, Ind. and went on to beat Brigham Young in Provo. Utah and California in the Rainbow Classic. But the Hatters have lost to Bethune-Cookman and Hofstra at home, where they only have a 7.5 record.

"We're disappointed we didn't win as many games, of course," sald Stetson coach Glenn Wilkes, who has coached the Hatters for an NCAA-Division 1 record 34 years.

But we had a rugged schedule and our players worked hard and now we're here in the fight of things to win the tournament. If we win, it makes all those other games unimportant." Wilkes said Dumas is finally back to form after suffering dizzy spells in the middle of the season. The sentor racked up 26 points in the regular season finale against Arkansas-Little Rock. Texas-San Antonio (20-7) won the conference title with a high-powered offense that averaged 94 points a game. The Roadrunners are led by junior Ronnie Ellison, who led the conference with a 21-point average, and Junior Kelth Horne with 20.1 points a game. The conference also announced its all-star rosters. The first team includes: Ronnie Ellision, Junior guard, Texas-San Antonio: Chris Collier, senior forward. Loan is more burden than boon

DEAR ABBY: I have a family problem that I don't know how to handle.

My daughter and her husband and children live in another state. They both have good jobs and are decent, reliable people. Last year, my daughter and her husband got into a financial bind and borrowed some money from my mother-in-law, who is also my daughter's grandmother. (I'll call her Nell.) My daughter and her husband asked Nell to please keep the loan confidential, as they didn't want anyone else in the family to know abut their financial setback. Nell is financially secure.

Well, Nell phoned me immediately to tell me about the loan. I never did tell my daughter that Nell told me about it. Now Nell keeps calling me to rake my daughter over the coals if she is late with a payment! Abby. it hope that things will get better upsets me terribly to hear her and I'll forget him? Japan's foreign policy-makers fiddle with fire

Associated Press Writer

TOKYO - From the collapse of the Soviet bloc to the collapse of Iraq, events that have upset power balances around the globe are bypassing Japan's tentative foreign-policy establishment.

And the world's No. 2 economic power is learning, slowly, that economic power may not be enough to gain the international respect and influence it craves.

While Western nations - and corporations seize the spotlight in restructuring the postwar Mideast. Japan has lingered backstage, embarrassed by its political and diplomatic dithering over support for the Persian Gulf War.

Kuwait has made clear its desire to award reconstruction contracts to countries that performed key roles in its liberation. Of 200 contracts awarded so far, 75 percent of them went to U.S. firms and 22 percent to British firms, the Japan Economic Journal reported.

None went to the Japanese, despite their long commercial ties to Kuwait. The government acknowledges it is asking corporations not to do business until asked to avoid looking like "economic invaders."

Adding insult to injury. Japan must watch while its one-time colony and growing economic rival. South Korea, moves swiftly to capitalize on the postwar gulf and the vast changes in the Soviet Union.

can do for my problem?

DEAR READER: A hiatal hernia is a weakness in the diaphragmatic muscle of breathing at the point where the esophagus (in the chest) joins the stomach (in the abdominal cavity). If this weakness or defect is large enough, a portion of the upper stomach may slide up into the chest, causing heartburn.

gas and bloating.
Treatment consists of preventing the stomach from moving out of position, and reducing the amount of gastric acid, which is the irritant causing symptoms. Thus, the methods you describe are completely appropriate.

In addition, you might try using antacids, such as Gelusil or Maalox, to neutralize excess acid. Further, you should avoid goods that aggravate your symptoms. Such substances include (but are not necessarily limited to) alcohol, caffeine and spicy foods.

If these suggestions are ineffective, you may have to consider having the hernia repaired. During this operation, the surgeon repairs the defect and returns the upper intestinal tract to normal.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been diagnosed with a pericardial cyst. A cardiologist tells me nothing can be done about it. and I should forget it. Please tell me what to expect.

DEAR READER: The heart is surrounded by a thin but tough envelope of tissue called the pericardium. On occasion, for unknown reasons, collections of fluid (cysts) may form in the pericardial sac. These are harmless and rarely, if ever, cause symptoms; nor do they lead to heart disease. These cysts are usually discovered by accident during chest X-ray examinations. Your cardiologist is correct:

Ignore your pericardial cyst; you can expect no health consequences from it.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Could a lack of vitamins cause my fingernails to split away in

DEAR READER: Yes. Nutritional deficiencies often cause split, peeling nails. Make sure you are getting enough protein in your diet (at least one portion of meat, poultry or fish daily), and try taking a multivitamin with minerals. Several commer- TERPRISE ASSN.

cards found themselves in a conservative six-heart contract. A grand slam in hearts was reasonable, but hardly ironclad. Those who reached the grand slam failed to make it. Understandable. But why should anyone in his right mind not make the small slam?

Here's the intermediate philosophy. "Darn! I missed a good grand slam. We'll play this fast and get on with the next hand." So down comes the ace of hearts at trick two. And away goes the

By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY March 6, 1991

You might not be inclined to expect easy victories in the year ahead, and this is to your advantage. You'll eventually get what you go after, because you'll be willing to do all that is necessary.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Ambitious intentions can be gratified at this time, provided you have both patience and endurance. Think win, but remember Rome was not built in a day. Pisces, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Even though you may get involved in a new development today, it will actually be very similar to something you previously handed successfully. Follow your original script.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You should be quite adroit at handling an arrangement that is sure it is you who calls the shots.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You might be required to make an unselfish decision today that will be of more benefit to someone else than it will be to you. Much to your credit, you're apt to do it with a minimum amount of fanfare.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This is the day when your past performance may be evaluated. you were industrious, the returns could be impressive. If you weren't, the payment will be proportionate to the effort expended. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Some-
