White House Lays Plans For Two Uranium Plants

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Ford administration, which has favored a new private uranium enrichment plant as an alternative to a new government-owned facility, now is laying plans to make both plants possible. If Congress requires construction of a new government plant at Portsmouth, Ohio, administration officials say, the plant's nuclear fuel processing services may be withheld from potential new customers, which would mean a proposed private enrichment plant at Dothan, Ala., would be their supplier. The policy shift was revealed Thursday just before next week's presidential primary in Ohio, where Ford faces a challenge by Ronald Reagan for the Republican nomination. The change may give Ford some political comfort in both Ohio and in Alabama where the $5-billion private project would be built.

Last June, when Ford proposed legislation to authorize construction of private uranium enrichment facilities, he opposed any new government facility. The government has maintained a monopoly on uranium enrichment which produces the fuel for nuclear power plants.

IRS May Probe Moon Church

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Internal Revenue Service would have to start from scratch in any investigation into the finances of Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church because the organization has been exempt from filing federal income tax returns.

The church receives millions of dollars in income - including at least $12 million in 1975 - but does not need to report its income to the IRS because the tax laws exempt religious organizations.

But the IRS appears to have decided it wants to learn a little more about Moon's church, in part because of complaints it has received.

Schools Now More Enjoyable

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) - Millions of children are about to put their books aside and start summer vacation, but one educator says they'd rather stay in school because learning is fun and sitting in the sun at the ol' fishing hole can be a bore. "The modern school has become so stimulating and interesting that summer can be a letdown to a child," Dr. Bradley Loomer, a professor of education at the University of Iowa, said in an interview. He estimated 80 per cent of America's children enjoy school more than their parents did and don't relish vacation as much.

Jobless, Price Data Due

WASHINGTON (AP) - New government statistics are unlikely to show any dramatic improvement in the nation's stubborn unemployment rate, despite the continued upward pace of the economic recovery. The Labor Department was "cheduled to release the May job figures today, and administration economists said no startling change was expected.

At the same time, the department was to issue the wholesale price report for May. While an increase was forecast, a slowdown in farm price increases was expected to hold the over-all rise below April's surge of eight-tenths of 1 per cent.

Nation's Weather Stabilizes

By The Associated Press Stationary weather systems brought little change to the nation's weather early today, after isolated severe weather with thundershowers developed across the Plains and Southeast on Thursday.

Tornadoes were sighted Thursday near Denver and Colorado Springs, Colo., and near Brunswick, Ga., but no damage was reported. By late Thursday, a few thundershowers were scattered from eastern Montana and the western Dakotas into western Texas and eastern New Mexico but were diminishing in intensity.

Swim Effort May End

CLINTON, Iowa (AP) - Suffering from open body sores and unable to bend one leg, disappointed Marine Capt. Alan Jones was close today to abandoning his attempt to swim 700 miles of the Mississippi River. His companion, insurance agent Wayne Thompson, 33, of Portland, Ore., remained unaffected by the river pollution and poison ivy that threatened to stop Jones. "But I may have to consider stopping" the swimming adventure, the dejected 29-year-old Vietnam War veteran

Martha Mitchell Buried

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) - Martha Mitchell, one of the first and most vocal critics of the Watergate-era Nixon Administration, has been buried alongside a wreath of mums that said, "Martha Was Right."

Mrs. Mitchell, 57, died Monday in a New York hospital of a painful and rare form of bone cancer.

Her estranged husband, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, and Mrs. Mitchell's daughter and son attended the 90-minute funeral and graveside services Thursday.

Student Shoots Professor Self, After Failing Exam

TALLAHASSEE (AP) - The world of Patrick C. Do crumbled when Florida State University professor James R. Fisher informed the Hong Kong native that he had failed a crucial oral examination for a doctorate degree in bio-chemistry. After brooding for more than a week, Do, 28, walked into Fisher's office, shot the 48-year-old professor once in the head and then fired a pistol bullet into his own brain. University officials and police painted that tragic scenario in speculating on a motive for the Thursday murder-suicide that blew apart the post-final calm at the North Florida campus. A FSU spokesman said Do, a British citizen, apparently gave no warning before walking into Fisher's office about 1 p.m. and opening fire.

Blackfly Spraying Slated

FORT LAUDERDALE (AP) - U.S. Department of Agriculture officials say aerial spraying will begin about June 14 in an effort to stop the spread of a citrus blackfly infestation in Broward County. The federal Environmental Protection Agency lifted its ban on spraying Thursday after the destructive insect was found in a commercial grove and abandoned groves in the heart of the citrus-growing area of Davie, west of Fort Lauderdale. Officials said spraying to kill the adult fly, the form in which the insect spreads, will be in a two-square-mile area of western Broward County. If successful, it will be extended to the entire buffer zone around a gurantine

Who Should Teach Whom?

CLEARWATER (AP) - It may come to a question of who should teach whom. Preliminary results in a pilot testing program Pinellas County showed that in some cases eighth graders were brighter than prospective teachers. School officials said spotcheck exams were given to 15 teaching applicants in April and four couldn't read as well as the top eighth graders.

Dangerous Bill Needs To Be Vetoed

Governor Reubin Askew has before him at this moment, for his immediate consideration, a bill that could be one of the most dangerous bills ever passed by the Florida Legislature.

We refer, of course, to the "Shoot-To-Kill" bill which passed Florida's Senate by a 26-11 margin on Thursday after getting an 83-23 nod of approval from the House of Representatives on Wednesday. As it reads in its final form, the "Shoot-To-Kill" law gives you and every other householder in the state the right to shoot anyone who commits a forcible felony - burglary, armed robbery, rape or breaking and entering - anywhere near your

As reported by The Associated Press, the proposed legislation would extend the circumstances under which deadly force is justified. As the law is now, only law enforcement personnel have the right to kill fleeing felons. However, as proposed, anyone would have that same right. What's wrong with protecting what is rightfully

Any citizen worth his salt is going to do everything within his power to protect his home and his family.

But, does this give us the right to shoot first and ask questions later?

We think not. As Sen. Edgar Dunn (D-Daytona Beach) warned, "Half the persons accused of murder each year would try to use that 'fleeing felon section' of the law as a defense in subsequent court litigation. When addressing the Senate on Thursday, Dunn said, "You are inviting people to use a weapon when there is no longer a threat to their life. That is by far the most dangerous part of the bill. You are allowing them to perform their own

One of the most dangerous portions of the bill authorizes a homeowner to be in an area immediately surrounding the home and still shoot an DIT HIS DESIGNATION TOTTE OF

If you live in an apartment complex, for instance, and you happen to see a stranger sitting upon the seat of a bicycle you know belongs to someone else, you'd be perfectly within your right under the new bill — to shoot that individual, regardless of his or her age.

Is that just? Is it right? Is it legal? Under the proposed legislation it would be - with few, if any, questions asked - completely justifiable homicide, because it's his word against that of a dead man - you. There are many other such hypothetical instances which we could cite, but suffice it to say we think this "Shoot-To-Kill" bill is a bad bill. Sen. Harry Johnston, a lawyer and a Democrat from West Palm Beach, vehemently opposed the legislation. In a heated exchange on the Senate floor yesterday, he said, "Gentlemen, today I am celebrating my 18th anniversary as a member of the (Florida) bar. For the first time, I am ashamed of being a member of the bar." Sen. Johnston was referring to the dorsement of the bill by the Florida Bar.

This is one of the few times we wholeheartedly disagree with the members of that august body. The "Shoot-To-Kill" bill is a bad bill and we strongly urge Gov. Askew to veto it, although there appears to be enough votes in both Florida houses of Congress to override any such veto. Gov. Askew has 15 days from the time the bill reached his desk before deciding to either veto the bill or sign same and let it become a part of Florida's statutes.

Or, he can let it become law without his signature. We hope he'll use every means within his power to kill this particular proposal. It (the bill) can only lead to more bloodshed and violence - and there's enough of that already.

BERRY'S WORLD

want to start by getting a T-shirt something like

Around

Let's take a closeup, cursory look at Presidential aspirant Jerry Brown, the Guru of American politics who is wooing the a crican public into the at long last embrace of Existentialism as it exists in he political arena. Everyone else is taking a look at Brown, and from what I've read, we can't possibly do any worse than what's already been written. The truth about Brown is that most members of the news media don't understand him. They don't understand him because most columnists and media mongers don't understand where he's

To understand Brown you have to understand something about the mood of the American people, not the mood as some editorial writers see it, but the mood of the people that most newsmen missed because they were too busy graduating from the police beat to the hallowed halls of editorialdom. Brown represents the new politics, the politics of the future. Though seasoned political veterans and many newsmen don't see eye to eye with the California governor, most any high school senior with a penchant for politics could explain where Brown is coming from.

He's coming from the people, a people disen-chanted with the politicians of today and their cliches, a people who are desirous of electing someone who has the people's needs at heart. That's not to say Brown is a Goody Two Shoes. He's not, but by almost any standards he's an intellectual who is fast becoming an enigma, a vote-getting, popular enigma, at that.

Average Americans are, at last, becoming more and more politically aware. Shocked by Watergate and sex scandals in Congressional Halls, the American people could eventually bolt existing party standards - which are threadbare in many respects - and elect someone like Brown. It may not happen this year, but it's sure to happen in the not-too-distant future.

Disenchanted voters from both parties are drawn to Brown's style, which is to tell the truth for a change and to openly admit that life at its best can be trying and that politics at its best has become an exercise in absurdity.

Brown's style is refreshing, to say the least. At 36, he has plenty of time left to run for the Presidency if he can't garner a second place slot during this year's running.

Between now and then more and more people will begin to understand what the former Jesuit Seminarian is trying to say. Already tuned in are the turned offs of the last two decades. It's just a matter now of the bigtime Kingmakers recognizing his vote-getting potential and capitalizing on it to a greater degree than has already been done.

Brown may even get his message tuned down to an extent most anyone can recognize it - even those media persons who never took the time to study philosophy, religion, or literature. For now, I guess it's enough that voters seem eager to dance to the tune played by Brown — the political pied piper

WASHINGTON- We are deluding ourselves when we attempt to solve the economic problems

The latest craze - popular even when I was a boy - is to take in the suburbs, make these suburbanites pay for city services. The theory is, the wider the tax base, the greater the efficiency. Well, the evidence doesn't seem to back that theorizing, at least when it comes to our 48

There is some reason to agree with Theodore W. Kheel, writing in New York magazine, when he argues that "New York is obsolete. The best way to save it is to abolish it." An assortment of data from several sources seems to indicate maxiumum efficiency comes with much lower populations - say in the 150,000 to 300,000 range. It's downhill after that. In the case of fire protection, for example, efficiency peaks at 300,000 citizens. For schools, it seems that a city population of 200,000 to 250,000 is the optimum, with 40,000 to 50,000 pupils in daily attendance. Economic efficiency, of course, is not the only My own studies into school, police, welfare and other services indicate strongly that the job is done best in localities small enough for the average citizen to have a meaningful say in what is going on. No Problem Too Small Question: I get the impression you ask God about every little roblem. Surely God has more important things to do than to hear about all our petty problems.

Answer: Who can say what is important to God? A family guarrel may be as important to Him as a national disaster. For that matter, I'm not sure I always know the important things myself. Sometimes my smallest problem turns into my largest one, so I take everything to God. Another reason is because the Bible says God wants us to come to Him for the help we need (Hebrews 4:16). Besides, I feel a lot more secure after I've asked God for help.

I think most parents encourage their children to come to them with all their problems. It's hard to imagine a parent saying to his child, "Decide which problems are important and those are the only ones we'll talk about. I'm too busy for any others." It seems to me you want to share everything with the people you love the most. And your love for them gives you eyes to see things the way the one you love sees them

Have you heard of Corrie ten Boom, the wonderful Dutch Place?" She has spoken at Oral Roberts University and was also on our spring television special. Anyway, I can't remember whether she said this or whether I read it in one of her books.

"God sees your sorrows through your eyes." She told a story about a little girl who comes crying to her mother because her doll is broken. The mother doesn't say, "That doll is worthless. Stop crying over nothing." No, the mother knows how to comfort her, because she understands how much the doll means to her daughter. Her love lets her see the tragedy through the child's eyes. And that is how God sees your sorrows and problems. through your eyes. If it's important to you, it's important to Him. ather. And because He loves you more than any earthly parent, He knows exactly how to comfort you. Peter knew this to be true and that's why he said to cast. . . "all your care upon Him: for He eareth for you" (I Peter 5:7). I figure it this way. God says nothing is too little or too big for Him, so I take Him at His word. He's never let me down yet. I have written more about this very question, especially in the ninth chapter of my latest book, "A Daily Guide to Miracles." If you would like a copy, free and postpaid, please write to me, Oral
