BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

REST WITHOUT PRETTING. Rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for him: fret not thyself because of him who prospereth because of him who prospereth in his way, because of the man who bringeth wicked devices to pass.—Psalm 37:7.

Jimmy Walker has gone to France to write his memoirs. If he tells all he knows, it would likely be very embarrassing to some of our big men.

The King of England who voluntarily cut his own salary last year now pleads with parliament for unemployment relief. "Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown."

General Lines, administrator of veterans affairs, has a plan for paying the soldiers bonus depending upon whether the treasury can find the money. Ugh! We could do lots of things if we could find the money.

Business and political leaders of New York and Washington had the statement of the Commerce department showing the largest favorable foreign trade balance in October for any month this year as an encouraging sign of returning prosperity.

Both Democrats and Republicans have had their part in dealing with the war debts. The Democrats made the loans under the Wilson administration. The Republicans General Dawes engineered the first plan for collecting them. The Democrat Owen D. Young devised the second plan. Hoover declared the moratorium. And the Roosevelt when he becomes president will finish the job.

Will Rogers who believes that the United States can make 'em pay simply by telling them to "Pay or default," says that "Everything is changing in America. People are taking their consciences serious and their politicians as a joke." That changing attitude of the people makes it all the more incumbent upon humorists as well as politicians to be serious when dealing with serious problems.

The National Association of Manufacturers reveals that the grand total of all governmental costs will this year amount to $15,000,000,000, while of this sum, $11,000,000,000 goes to the operation of cities, counties, and states. This cost of government consumes one-third of our national income and means that out of twelve months' labor we give four months to the government. There's cause enough for hard times.

Col. Robins who dropped out of sight for several months only to be found recently in a little log cabin far up in the mountains of North Carolina, suffering with anæsthesia, wasn't so dumb. Anæsthesia is not a bad thing to have these days, not at all. You just go off to some little place all by yourself where nobody will bother you, especially bill collectors, and you forget all about the past, all about past due notes and mortgages, and what other folks owe you, and the big fool you made of yourself during the boom, and all that sort of thing. Say, this anæsthesia business is the stuff!

History was made Tuesday when the President and President-elect calmly sat down to discuss a problem of world wide consequence. That sort of thing has never been done before in this country. It is not unusual in fact for political opponents to wait several years after a bitter political campaign before even speaking to each other. Is it that Hoover and Roosevelt are bigger men than the ordinary run of politicians or is it that the problem with which they are to deal is bigger than those which usually beset public office holders?

A Code For Fans

Sportsmanship on the field of play, whether it be the gridiron, diamond, or court, has improved to such extents during the past ten years that it is only the rarest exception to find an athlete criticizing a referee's decision or complaining because his team was beaten. High-minded coaches have instilled in their men the understanding that the manner in which the game is played is quite as important as the outcome.

Unfortunately this is not always so of the spectators. Whether it is because they have bet on the game and there is consequently a money question involved, or in their overzealous enthusiasm for their favorite, they lose sight of the fact that the contest is after all only a game, we do not know, but the razzing of umpires and the squawking over losses go right along pretty much as ever just as if it weren't the un-sportsmanlike thing to do.

Under the leadership of Devereaux Milburn, for nearly thirty years an outstanding figure in international polo, an association was effected in 1925 known as the "Sportsmanship Brotherhood". Its purpose was to foster sportsmanship not only among the players on the field but among the fans as well, and it included among its organizers such men as Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, Owen D. Young, Dr. John H. Finley, Marshall Field, Grantland Rice, James G. Blaine, and Dr. Howard J. Savage.

Recently this association produced a code of ethics, not for halfbacks and second basemen, but for the fans in the stands. It goes like this:

- 1. I will consider my athletic opponents and the officials as my guests and will treat them as such.
2. I will cheer both teams as they come on the field of play.
3. I will applaud good plays made by either team.
4. I will not applaud errors.
5. I will not "raze" the players of either team or any one officially connected with either team.
6. I will consider the officials as the proper authorities to make decisions, and I will accept their decisions.
7. I will not attempt to disturb any player or official.
8. I will not stir up any unfriendly rivalry among the fans or players.
9. I will consider it my privilege and duty to encourage players and authorities to live up to the spirit of the rules of the association governing their athletic competition and to appreciate the privilege of membership.
10. I will consider it my privilege and duty to exemplify and promote the adoption of "A Code of Sportsmanship for Fans" everywhere.
Wouldn't it be a good thing if everyone who goes to football games, or baseball games, kept a copy of this code, or better still, committed it to memory?

Barking Up The Wrong Tree

A man out of a job stood on a dock in Miami the other day, gazed contemptuously at a palatial yacht, representing an investment of some two million dollars, and muttered: "I wish the damn thing would blow up and take the bankruptcy-bank owner with it". He evidently reasoned that so much money tied up in one plaything is downright criminal in the face of the distress and suffering among so many people. He saw what he believed was only a great waste and extravagance at a time when thousands are hungry.

What he forgot to realize, however, was that the two million dollars which went into the building of the craft gave employment to many workers, helped the weakened ship-building industry, and was no little factor in the distribution of wealth. What he forgot also was that the yacht provided steady and well-paying jobs for some thirty or forty members of the crew who would be like himself, unemployed, if there were no yacht. He didn't stop to consider that the food, the fuel, the paint, and other supplies for the craft gave work to "the butcher, the baker, and the candle-stick maker".

SANFORD, TWENTY YEARS AGO

Mrs. J. H. Hamillat and son, Karl, will leave on the midnight train for Richmond, Va. where they go to witness the great Thanksgiving game of football to be played in Richmond between Virginia and Carolina.
Mr. and Mrs. N. M. Schwartz and William Brinkman, of Chicago, arrived in the city today. Mr. and Mrs. Schwartz will spend the winter at their beautiful home on Sylvan Lake and Mr. Brinkman, who is a prominent contractor in Chicago, will be their guest for a few weeks.
Mrs. L. E. White, of Pensacola, has arrived in the city and is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. J. W. Barnes.
Among the prominent visitors to the city last night were B. G. Smith, T. B. Jones, and E. A. Douglas, of Ovidis, and J. T. McLain, of Geneva.
Miss Jessie Stumson will contribute a cornet solo to the special order of service at the Congregational Church next Sunday evening.
Mrs. M. L. O'Berry, of Gainesville, was the guest for a few

NOT SO FAST, WETS

Because of a joint disgust with a broken down economic system and with broken down national prohibition, the voters of the country have called with a loud voice for a new deal. In immediate response to that verdict there is mad haste on the part of some to assume that what has happened is not a landslide but a cloudburst, and that out of this cloudburst is to come a flood, not of water, but of alcoholic liquors.

We have the announcement of the mayor of Chicago that so far as he is concerned, the lid is off. We have the news that in this city there is great activity in ancient lawlessness. The gangsters of the underworld are preparing, we hear, to become law-abiding dealers in free-flowing liquor. Congress is to meet Monday, Dec. 5. It is expected on Wednesday, the 7th, to repeal prohibition and make liquor as generally full and free as it was a century ago when every grocery store had its open barrel.

Let us pause a moment and reflect on our senses. Let us begin with a wholesome recollection. Let us remember a time, only 15 years ago, when state by state the United States was gradually and finally closing in upon a trade which had made it endless misery and corruption, the liquor trade. There came the war and its excitements. In a moment of such emotion as has now swept the country we flew the track. Not content to let that salutary evolution move on to its final solution of a vexing problem we took a leap and national prohibition was adopted. The action, we now know, was premature. Instead of solving the liquor problem, it unsettled it. The result of that too hasty step has now before us. It has, a ghastly failure. We face the necessity of beginning all over again. Now here we are, today, with men thinking to repeat from the opposite direction such all-or-nothing, drastic action as brought us into the present mess. Because of national prohibition, liquor is a prohibited fruit that liquor come back full flow, that the liquor spread interest which brought the world against the alcohol, full approval. All this is a monstrous idea. To begin with, nothing can be legally done, save such a repeal of the Volstead Act as can get the support of the supreme court, until the 18th Amendment is out of the Constitution. The country is not to be divided into two halves, one with liquor and one without. To begin with, nothing can be legally done, save such a repeal of the Volstead Act as can get the support of the supreme court, until the 18th Amendment is out of the Constitution. The country is not to be divided into two halves, one with liquor and one without.

Demands Of Wine Makers May Gum Mover To Get Beer

Should be limited to the amount of the percentage of alcohol which may be permissible, to impose and collect a tax on the product and to determine when tariff rates should apply on imported beer.

Edward L. Gutz, president of the Hatz Brewing Company in Milwaukee, and of the Volstead Act, modified beer, is said to be only in bottles in hotels, in restaurants, luncheon, dining car, or other places for consumption with food, and in grocery department, drug and other retail stores by bottle or case for home consumption.

William L. Gutz, president of the M. K. Gutz Brewing Company in Chicago, has announced that present beer by weight is distributed as near 100 percent "the ordinary channel" and that outside of hotels, which are the only places where the sale of intoxicating liquor is permitted, 2 1/2 percent beer was a matter of course. He said 2 1/2 percent beer was non-intoxicating in fact.

This method of distribution is feasible, and is thought will be a sufficient volume of beer for a tax base on which a large revenue can be secured without a prohibitively high rate of tax, enabling the brewer to retain his product at prices within the reach of all, he said.

Democratic leaders on Capitol Hill said they would not seek

In September cotton exports totaled $22,000,000, while in October the amount fell to $20,000,000. A year trade figures, as reported by The Associated Press, are shown below. Exports by month are a follow: 1931 and 1932.

Table with 2 columns: Month, 1931, 1932. Rows include Jan, Feb, Mar, Apr, May, Jun, Jul, Aug, Sep, Oct, Nov, Dec, Total.

The report showed that the United States' trade surplus in the month of October, having amounted to $20,000,000 and having exceeded that of any other month of the year, had a total impact of $20,000,000. During October this country's exports of $11,000,000 were more than $1,000,000 in excess of the $10,000,000 of imports. For the ten months of the year the total exports of $110,000,000 were $10,000,000 in excess of the $100,000,000 of imports.

Byrd Promoted To Manager Of Daytona Branch

(Continued from Page 1) Byrd has been promoted to manager of the Daytona Branch of the First Baptist Church of which Mr. Byrd is a member. Rev. Byrd's promotion is a very desirable one in the removal of the First to Daytona Beach. They are among the most active workers in the church and I am sure that they will do their best to make the new branch a success.
