SANFORD - A newly-elected school board member is angry that his attempts to solicit student opinions on matters that affect them are being equelched by the district administration.

On Sunday morning at 8:20, board member Bob Goff sent an electronic mail message to all district high school principals regarding the proposed calendar for the 1997-98 school year. In the e-mail Goff asked the principals to survey their national merit semi-finalists in the school to ask them their opinion of "starting finals the day after you get back from Christmas vacation so teachers can get a week and a half vacation in October.

He asked the principals to send the students responses along with their names via e-mail. Nothing else was requested.

Nothing else was requested. A little more than an hour later, Supt. Paul Hagerty topped Goff's message with a note that he termed as being of "high" importance. "Please disregard the attached message from Mr. Goff." Hagerty wrote. "It is early in his tenure and he may not fully know yet that individual Board Members do not have any authority to give Board Members do not have any authority to give directives to staff members. It is also understood that Board Member 'requests' serve the same role as directives.

Goff shakes his head at Hagerty's interference in his request.

"I just want to be able to make an informed telligent decision." he said. "Why can't I ad w't I ask nt de for the input of some of the students who will be affected?"

Colleges shelter students from crime while becoming 'armed camps,' expert says

By INCHAEL J. CONFERN Accordated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - U.S. college campuses are havens from much of the violent and property crime that afflicts the nation. One expert says that's because they have become 'armed campe."

In its first study of campus law enforcement, the Justice Depart-ment reported Wednesday that three out of four college and university campuses now employ police officers with arrest power. And the campuses have far lower violent and property crime rates than the country as a whole.

"The reason the campus crime rates are so low is that colleges and universities , have recruited huge numbers of security personnel to protect students," said Jack Levin, protect students." said Jack Levin, a professor of criminology and so-ciology at Northeastern University. "You can't sell an expensive college education to parents who believe their children aren't going to be safe, so colleges in urban settings have become armed camps. And it's working very well."

The department's Bureau of Justice Statistics found that there were 64 violent crimes and 2,141 property crimes reported to police for every 100,000 students in 1994. the most recent year with complete data.

By comparison, in the nation as a whole that year, there were 716 violent crimes and 4.656 property crimes for every 100,000 residents.

The bureau surveyed public and private four-year institutions with 2,500 or more students last year. These schools enrolled four out of five of the nation's nearly 9 million college students. Colleges and universities last year employed nearly 11,000 fulltime sworn police officers, who had been given general arrest powers by a state or local government, the statistics bureau found.

In addition, campus law enforcement agencies employed nearly 10,000 noneworn security officers, who did not have arrest power.

CHICAGO — Eugene Issi spent his life spinning hard-boiled mystery novels full of Chicago tough guys, sinister plots and suspense. His own hanging death from the window of his 14-floor office has created a mystery of its own.

Investigators are leaning toward suicide as the cause, but some friends, who say Issi had everything to live for, believe he was killed. He had received a death threat from a member of a militia group who said Issi would be hanged, one friend said.

Issi, who sometimes wrote under the name Nick Gaitano, was found hanging outside his Michigan Avenue office window Saturday, with the rope around his neck tied to a table inside.

He was wearing a bulletproof vest and a set of brass knuckles, and had a disabiling chemical spray in his pocket. A .38-caliber revolver was found in the office.

While there was no suicide note, police said there's no in-dication of foul play. Sgt. John Schillen said

The season to find the solution

'The the sensors to be jolly. But according to Associated Press writer Laura Meckler, they isn't much joy smong the homeless people across our nation.

In a story presented in the Sanford Herald on Wednesday, Dec. 11, she writes of the ever-increasing trend nationwide, to eliminate the homeless people who the general public and all level of government officials say are causing a blight on our city streets.

She lists Adanta, San Francisco, New York City, Dallas and San Diego as having the "meanest streets." By that she is referring to panhandlers who beg for handouts from passers-by, people who find it necessary to sleep in the streets and on park benches, and give the appearance of a poor quality of life.

While these are major U.S. cities, let there be no doubt, Sanford has its share of homeless people. Many of them have been living under cardboard boxes in. various wooded areas, behind buildings, and in vacant buildings.

During the past year, Sanford officials ordered clearing of several of the wooded areas, and sure enough, the homeless disappeared, only to reappear in another section of the city.

Officials in these large cities, as well as a number of other, say they also want to eliminate the homeless. They are calling for arrests for loitering, sleeping or conducting other activities on public property, and other ressons.

Yet at the same time, they admit there are no facilities in which to house them, and seldom any food, except for a few shelters where public and private donations help offset the expenses.

Just do it: get out there and vote vote.

For most of us, that right has been ours from the time we reached the age of majority. While we do not hestitate to take advantage of our right to consume alcohol, the vast majority of us do not exercise our right to vote.

When I was grow-ing up, politice was a lively dinnertime conversation. We debated the issues. We talked about the candidates and their qualifications.

And voting was something that was taken very seriously. The sample ballot was snatched from the local paper and every point was discussed the night before the election. There was none of this going to the polls and picking a name because it sounded familiar. We knew who we were voting for and why.

My husband and I have strong political opin-ions, which for the sake of familial harmony usually coincide...but not always. We debate the issues at the dinner table and include six-year-old Genevieve in the discussions.

Our daughter was organizing political rallice at her day care center when she was two-and-a-half. She is perturbed when she is reminded each time she accompanies me to the polls that she is too young to vote.

Perhaps people don't understand the power that one vote can have or perhaps they just don't CO.P.

But people who don't vote also forfeit their right to complete about how the government is nam. I don't want to hear you say that "th SOBs are making a meas of the city" if you did at least cast your vote for one candidate another.

It doesn't matter who you vote for. Just vote. Genevieve will fail two months short of the legal voting age in 2006. I would hope she will not get a take ID, but I would hope that she would care enough to consider it.

Being a woman is Albright advantage

BOBTON When Madeleine Albright broke through the gass celling last week, it was almost inevitable that she would get nicked by a five shards. Some folks huffed that her nomination as bitretily of state was just "politics." Others said the president was just "paying back" women's groups. Buch is the fate of her generation of women. Once upon a time, they were Once upon a time, they were banned from the top jobs on account of gender. When they finally make it, somebody is sure to say that they got the job because of their gender. Yet this time, the shards were rather less pointed than usual. The U.N. ambassador had a resume that overwhelmed the other contenders. When the Great Mentioners put her in the "second tier" of candidates a few weeks ago, her colleagues were choking up their couse all over the morning newspaper.

This is the time of year when people gen-erally (not always) get a feeling of fellowship and make attempts to help others, including the needy. Even though people spend more money at this time of year than most others, they still seem to find enough extra money to toss some into a Salvation Army kettle or give to fund raising drives for such things as children's gifts, holiday meals, clothing drives, and other events.

We would trade all of that in if there were someone who would step forward and give a workable solution to the problems and needs of our homeless. Most of the people who have to live on our streets, for one reason or another, would jump for joy if there were some way they could get out of their predicament.

On a somewhat brighter note, some cities are working on this. Seattle is offering to pay for a free public hygiene center with toilets, showers and laundry facilities. Here in Florida, Dade County has enacted a one percent tax on meals at larger restaurants to fund facilities and services for the homeless.

In West Hollywood, Florida, officials are recommending people who serve the needy to approach the nomeless first and offer assistance.

This indicates to us that there are ways to resolve the problem. But naturally the "problem" cannot be resolved quickly or inexpensively. We must first agree on who's problem it is.

On the surface it appears to be a problem for city administrators and the general public who frown on homeless people. But it's really a problem for the homeless themselves. It appears to be a dead end. For some, there is no other way but to live on the streets and through handouts until they eventually perish completely.

They have the problems, not us. What we need to find are solutions. We can't always go under the impression that we live in a Utopia and no one hurts.

'Tis the season. Yes, tis the season to find a solution.

Anyone have any answers for the local area?

Incident leads to meaningful talk

WASHINGTON - America's fragile rela-

WASHINGTON — America's mague rela-tions with the world's last Stalinist outpost may have been put back on track by the reckless actions of a confused missionary. Three months ago, 36-year-old American Evan Carl Hunsilter swam across the Yalu River from China into North Korea, where hun was quickly arrested by local farmers. Hun-silter has said he was a Christian missionary. who went to North Kores to spread the gospel. It's more likely, however, that he was a confueed kid who had no idea that his impulsive, drunken act would cause an international incident.

The West's relations with North Korea had been on the skids for months before Hunsiker's release. Tensions between the two Koreas erupted in September, when a North Korean spy submarine ran aground off the shore of Bouth Korea. Shorily thereafter, South Korean officials abruptly halted a program of tentative engagement with its northern nemesis, which was designed to provide famine relief and other humanitarian aid to the north.

Hunsiker was released just days before Thankegiving, thanks to the work of Rep. Bill Richardson, D-N.M., who traveled to North Korea to secure his release. For Richardson, it was one of several high-stakes overseas rescue missions that have by now become his trademark. Just last weekend, he traveled to southern Sudan to secure the release of three Red Cross workers who had been held for five weeks by a rebel group. Details about Hunsiker's ordeal, obtained from sources familiar with the trip, reveal much about the fragile state of North Norea as it tries to navigate in a world that has soundly rejected its totalitarian ways. North Korean officials originally demanded a $100,000 ransom for Hunstker's release. Otherwise, they said, Hunsther would be put

Otherwise, they said, Hunsiler would be put on trial for explonage, which could have resulted in a seven-year prison sentence. Officials in North Korea told the Americana they had a signed confession from Hunsiler admitting that he was a spy. In fact, the American delegation was shown three separate confessions, all signed by Hunsiler. The first confession was a long, handwritten statement describing the circumstances that led Hunsiler to enter North Korea - but which satement was a shorter version of the first statement, with the shaky hundwriting in-dicating that it had been written in a hurry. The third statement, written under obvious durees, had Hunsiler admitting that he was a sey, and that he had been persuaded by the South Koreans to infiftrate the country. "The point is, they were not true," said a

"The point is, they were not true," said a source who saw the statements. "They were done under duress."

Eventually, the North Koreans lowered their $100,000 ransom demand to $5,000, which were to cover the cost of Hunstker's lodging and incarceration over three months. The money was paid by Hunsiker's father in Aleeks.

The transaction was almost complete -- and Hunsilier was all set to be released -- when the North Koreans made one last demand of their American visitors: They wanted an additional.0500 ··· ostensibly to cover the coat of Hunsiker's final night of lodging, and his transportation to the capital of Pyongyang for the trip home.

The final demand caught the American delegation by com-plete surprise. North Korea is an impoverished, and tightly closed country. where one modern hotel exists to accommodate foreigners. Rooma in that hotel cost $200 a erted by its former communist allies in Russia and China. North Rore's economy has nosedived in recent years. Hard currency is an extremely rare commodity -- which may ex-plain why North Korean officials bounded the American delegation for an extra 9500, which was eventually paid by Hunsiker's father.

In recent years, the currency crisis has grown so severe that many collective farms have begun growing opium for the interna-tional heroin market. There have also been news reports that North Kores is trying to boleter its reserves by counterfeiting American currency.

Just before the American delegation was set to leave for Tokyo, a report went out that there had been a "glitch" in the negotiations. In fact, the North Korean officials just wanted more time to press their American visitors on other innun.

Baid a source familiar with the trip: "By (Hunsiker) being released, and the North Koreans raising other issues with us that are solvable ... Their message is, 'We know we screwed up on this submarine incident, but we want to keep talking to you." When it comes to the world's most beliverent action that's most belligerent nation, that's progress.

in the end, the president was honest when he described Albright's "first woman" status as an added extra, even though "my momma's smiling down at me right now." Yet with all this skittishness about the "woman thing," not even her supporters have been eager to discuss the upside of this first. What might this woman, as a woman, bring to the foreign policy job? Not merely her presence, but by her point of view, her peripheral vision.

Albright herself has never been reticent to see her own life in the context of the woman's movement. In another time, as she likes to say, "the only way I might have bund to influence foreign policy is by marrying a diplomat and then pouring tea on an offending ambasador's lep." In a transitional ers, this woman went to graduate school while raising three daughters. She worked for Ed Muskie, who praised her as "a very bright girl with a good mind." At Georgetown, she was director of the women in foreign service program, as well as a popular professor. In politics, she was the one who brought Geraldine Ferraro up to speed on "throw weights" during the 1964 campaign. During her years at the United Nations, ahe was, in her words, the "only skirt among 14 suits on the Security Council." But Albright also held a monthly lunch with

But Albright also held a monthly lunch with the measur seven other women ambassadors. She led the American delegation to the U.N. women's conference in Beiling. In short, you won't need to explain to this secretary of state why rape is a war crime. In her friend Sen. Barbara Mikulaki's phrase, "She not only understands what hereman to women in war and in happens to women in war and in sweatshops and in brothels, but she can articulate it in foreign policy terms."

Artiouses it in foreign policy terms." Not long ago, we looked at foreign policy the way we looked at medical research. When we talked about heart disease, the "standard" studies were done on, by, and about men. We sometimes forget about wemen and children until something--an air bag, perhaps?-blew up in our faces. Only five yours ago, in foreign policy, the idea that women's rights are human rights was new and radical. It is only since the dienstors in Boenis and Rwanda that rage

Clinton zigzags back to middle

AP News Analysis

WASHINGTON - Back in the middle, President Clinton sounded as though he'd never left. There was a time when centrist Democrats thought he had, but that rift was forgotten. The vital center, he said, will be the base for his second term.

So it was a homecoming Wednesday as Clinton addressed the Democratic Leadership Council, an organization he helped found 11 years ago to steer the party away from liberal habits to centrist ones.

In Democratic defeat two years ago, some of his old allies ac-cused him of straying leftward to the point that he became a drag on the ticket. He won in 1992 as a New Democrat of the center. but they complained he didn't govern as one.

Clinton acknowledged at the time that he'd made his share of mistakes, but disputed the centrists who had become his critics on social issues and on his massive health care proposal.

The president said he had been misunderstood, not misguided, and that the voters in 1994 didn't get the message of deficit reduction, smaller government and economic expanaion.

But he then set about moderating the message, moving to the center for his re-election campaign, emphasizing balanced budgets, crime control, the welfare reform push he'd promised but postponed earlier. By campaign time, Republicans were complaining that he'd expropriated their themes.

Dick Morris, the campaign consultant who advised him on that course before he was forced to resign over his reported involvement with a prostitute, said in a lecture at New York University on Tuesday that Clinton tacks like a sailor to go with the wind.

It is a sigzag that ends up where he wants to go. Morris was quoted as saying.

Clinton prefers to chart it as a straight line. He recalled telling the DLC five years ago that their agenda was neither liberal nor conservative but both, and different.

Either way it worked, and he returned to the council Wed-nesday to talk of his plan for the second term in what was billed as a preview of his Jan. 20 inaugural address.

He stuck with the themes of his campaign: balancing the budget, improving education, jobs instead of welfare, crime control, an expanded family leave law, political finance reform, amaller, more efficient government.

Threading them all was his refrain of "the vital center" common ground, he said, for Americans of either party or of no party. "I stand ready to forge a coalition of the center, of broad consensus for creative and consistent and unflinching action," Clinton said.

He said he believes the Republican leaders of Congress share that aim. "All of us have heard the voters' mandate in this election," Clinton said. "Now we must act."

Republicans talk of cooperation and problem-solving too. Still, the test of such pledges will come next month, when it's AP Television Writer

President Clinton won reelection on the themes of smaller government, family values and strengthening communities." Sen. Dan Coats of Indiana said in a Republican radio address. "Those are fine, noble ideas. ...

"And if the president chooses to govern as he campaigned, he will find a cooperative Con-gress," Coats said. "Yet we have reached a point where this discussion must get more specific. Vague campaign promises must become concrete proposals."

That's where the strains set in. But Clinton said they can be overcome "if there is a vital American center where there is cooperation across lines of party and philosophy." He said that is what voters demanded in the election that continued politi-cally divided government.

Both sides have had chastening lessons - Clinton in the Democratic defeat two years against the government shut-downs in 1995 budget disputes with the president.

WASHINGTON — An Air Force investigation is recom-mending no disciplinary action be taken against any military personnel — from commanders to guards — for the June truck bombing that killed 19 U.S. airmen in Saudi Arabia, a senior Pentagon official says.

Pentagon official says. The finding is contained in a report issued by Lt. Gen. James Record, who was given the authority to decide whether Brig. Gen. Terryl J. Schwalier, commander of the facility in Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, should be disciplined or face court-martial proceedings, an official with knowledge of the report said Wednesday. The finding by Record is in sharp contrast to the Downing commission report, conducted by retired Army special forces Gen. Wayne Downing, who found Schwalier "did not ade-quately protect his forces from a terrorist attack."

Flight of the condors

VERMILLION CLIFFS, Aris. — Today, 72 years since a wild. California condor was last seen in Arisona, six young fledglings will spread their 9-foot wings and fly over the reddish canyon walls once again.

Seventeen condors - the largest and rarest bird in North America - have been released into the wild in California, and the government wants to establish a second wild population in northern Arizona.

The birds have spent six weeks getting used to their new surroundings, testing their wings in a spacious pen at the edge of the towering cliffs. Five were hatched and reared last summer at the Los Angeles Zoo, and the sixth came from the World Center for Birds of Prey in Boise, Idaho.

District destroyers Seminole girls crush third straight 5A-6 foe

Prem Staff Reports

SANFORD — After whipping St. Cloud on Tuesday night Seminole head coach Sylvester Wynn was little worried that his team might be tired heading into last night's Class SA-District 6 girls' basketball contest with Osceola.

So much for tired legs. The Fighting Seminoles took a 14-5 lead after one period and then really got things going, smashing the equad from Kiesimmee 80-19 at

Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium. "We had a pretty slow start," said Wynn. "But we came on strong in the third quarter. After that we let the young girls play it out and they played very well. In fact, all of the girls played well, we passed the ball well, got good reboun-ding, and a lot of steals that turned into transi-

Seminole stretched the lead to 33-14 at halflime, then put on a display rarely seen in basketball, a shutout for a whole quarter.

The Tribe played nearly flawless basketball in the third period, outpointing the Kowboys by a phenominal 33-0 to take a 66-14 advantage into the final eight minutes. Dana Merrick again led all Seminole scorers with 20 points, while Felicia Henderson added 15 points and Hancefah Miller 10 points.

The Tribe is now 10-0 overall and 3-0 in 6A-6 play. The locals have outscored its three district opponents 259-75, an average of 86.3 to 25.

opponents 2019-70, an average of 80.3 to 20. The Seminole junior variaty squad also prevailed, defeating Osceola 49-34. The Tribe will get back into Seminole Athletic Conference action tonight, traveling to Longwood for a tripleheader with Lyman. The freshman kick off the night's action at 4 p.m., with the junior variaty taking the floor at 6 p.m. and the variaty tipping off at 7:30 p.m.

LAKE MARY - On the surface it looked like another comfortable victory for the Lake Mary Rams as they knocked off Lyman 80-85 in boys Seminole Athletic Conference basketball action Wednesday night at Lake Mary High School.

But first year head coach Mike Gaudreau was not overly pleased.

'I'm happy with the win, but not with our performance." said Gaudreau. "Some of our guys are starting to worry too much about their own statistics and not enough about their teammates. We are not looking for each other on offense enough to suit me. They have to understand if we are going to go anywhere, we have to do it as a team, not as individuals."

four-point lead, 37-33, at halftime and slowly built its advantage from there. Lyman tried to mount a challenge in the fourth quarter but every time it would acore, the Rams would answer. "It didn't seem like a 15-point game to me." said Gaudriau. "We had a little cushion, but never could seem to put them away. We just kept them from getting a run on us." The Greyhounds won the junior varsity game by a 71-61 count.

Lake Mary improved to 6-1 overall and 2-0 in the SAC and were led by the quartet of Matt Townsley (16 points), Randy Abrams and Ben Kersenbrock (14 points each) and Paul Betk (11 points).

Lyman got a game-high 24 points from freshman Alfred Cleveland and 14 points from Pete Greenwood.

Both teams will hit the road for Seminole Athletic Conference tripleheaders on Friday, with Lake Mary going to Winter Springs to play a tough Lake Howell squad and the Greyhounds coming to Sanford to take on Bob Traina's Arrow Porce V. Freshman action starts at 4:30 p.m.: with the junior varsity taking the floor at 6 p.m. and the varsity tipping off at 7:30 p.m. LICHE FLOOM SURVIVE OVIEDO - Oviedo's balance overcame Osceola's one-two punch of Matt Quinter and Marky Picaro as the Lions held off the Kowboys 60-53 in overtime in boys freehman high school basketball action at Oviede High School Wednesday night.

Quinter, who scored 19 points, and Picaro, who tallied 18, led the way as Osceola (2-1) outpointed Oviedo 24-8 in the fourth period to tie the game at 51-51 and force the extra session.

But the Lions improved to 2-1 on the season by outscoring the Kowboys 9-3 in overtime.

Westerful directed the third-ranked Gators to a fourth straight SEC championship and a rematch against No. 1 Flarida State in the Sugar Bowl. The senior completed SC7-of-SEO passes for 3.625 yards and led the astion with SD touchdown

Davis was the nation's top rusher with 2,185 yards as he became the first player in NCAA history to run for 2,000-plus yards in two sessons. He was second in acoring with 21 touchdowns.

Hanspard was right behind with 2,084 yards and 14 TDs, marking the first time two players amaged 3,000 yards in the same season. Also recognized were Florids State defensive ends Peter Boulware and Reinard Wilson, who spearheaded the Seminoles' third-ranked defense, which allowed $20.5 yards per game. Boulware set a school record with 19 secks, while Wilson had 15 secks and a team-leading 101 tackies. Boulware also blocked two punts, reconversed three fumbles and caused four others.

 Press schools — Florida State, Florida, Arisona State, Colorado and Michigan — each placed two players on the AP team.
 Along with Wuerffel, the Gators had wide receiver Reidel Anthony, while the No. 2 Sun Devils had effective lineman Juan Roque and linebacker Derrick Rodgers.
 Michigan had linebacker Jarrett Irons and defensive back Charles Woodson, while Colorado had effective lineman Chris Nacole and linebacker Matt Russell.

Anthony caught 72 passes for 1.293 yards and a school-record 18 touchdowns. The other wide receiver is Wyoming's Marcus Harris, who had 13 TD outches and set school records with 109 catches for 1.650 yards. Harris also is the NCAA's all-time leading receiver with 4,518 yards. Pat Fitigerald of Texas is the tight end, with a school-record 38 catches for 545 yards.

The all-purpose player is Kevin Faulk of LSU. Faulk, one of three sophomores on the team, averaged 191.5 yards per game in total offense. He had 1.282 yards rushing, 134 yards receiving, 375 yards on 24 punt returns, 313 yards on 14 kick returns and 14 touchdowns. Joining Nasole and Roque on the offensive line are Orlando Pace of Ohio State and Benji Oleon of Washington. K.C. Jones of Miami is the center. Completing the offense is North Carolina State kicker Marc Primanti. He was perfect this season - SD-of-20 on field goals and 24-of-24 on extra mints.

Devis and Pace, who had 74 pancake blocks, are two of four repeaters from last year's team. Northwestern linebacker Pat Fitsgerald and as State defensive back Chris Canty are the others.

On defense, Boulware, Wilson and Rodgers are joined along the line by Nebraska's Grant Wistrom.

Wistrom, who anchored the Cornhuskers' formidable defense, had 75 tackles — 20 for losses — along with 6% ancks, two blocked kicks and an interception. Rodgers had 12 ancks, forced four fumbles and recovered a fumble.

Virginia. Curtis led the Big East with 15% sacks and also had three fumble recoveries and an interception for the Mountaineers' top-ranked defense. The other linebacker is Canute Curtis of West Fitzgerald led Northwestern with 114 tackles, including a career-best 19 against Michigan. He also broke up eight passes and had nine tackles for losses.

including eight for losses, three sacks and a fumble recovery. Russell was the Buffaloes' second leading tackler with 137 stops, including 13 for losses and three sacks. He also recovered three fumbles and one interception. The secondary features freshman Dre' Bly of North Carolina, Kevin Jackson of Alabams. Canty and Woods Bly, just the fifth freshman to make the AP team, led the nation with 11 interceptions for North Carolina's second-rated defense.

Jackson was the nation's third leading interceptor with seven, including a 44-yard return for a TD against Vanderbilt. Canty tied for the Big 12 lead with five interceptions and also broke up 12 passes and caused two fumbles. Woodson had four interceptions and 14 breakups for the Wolverines.

The punter is San Diego State's Noel Prefon-taine, second in the nation with a 48.54-yard taine, second in the nation with a 46.54-yard average on 48 punts. The other freshmen to make the team were UCLA kicker Bjorn Merten (1993), San Diego State running back Marshall Faulk (1993), Georgia running back Herschel Walker (1990) and Fitt running back Tony Dorsett (1973). In addition to Faulk, the other sophomores are Olson and Woodson. There are eight juniors and 14 seniors on the team.

FSU assistant coach tops in nation

By DAVID A. LIDD Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK - Florida State Univer-sity defensive coordinator Mickey Andrews was selected Wednesday as the winner of the first Broyles Award honoring college football's top assistant coach.

Andrews conched a Florida State defense that led the nation in rushing defense, allowing 50 yards per game, and ranked third in total defense.

FSU, better known for its offense, also subtlift fourth in scoring defense, allowing will i petote per game. "I could stand up here and take a lot of credit for what happened defensively at Florida, but it wouldn't be right." Andrews Florida, but it wouldn't be right." Andrews said at an awards ceremony. "We've got a great staff ... our kids, our players, are very special. They've made the commitment to make all this happen. "We've been very fortunate - very bleased - with the success we've had at Florida State." Andrews added. The top-ranked Seminoles (11-0), knocked off then-No. 1 Florida a couple of weeks ago, and will meet the No. 3 Gators for a rematch in the Sugar Bowl. Other finalists included Brigham Young offensive coordinator Norman Chow:

offensive coordinator Norman Chows Michigan defensive coordinator Greg tigon: West Virginia defensive coord

Steve Dunlap; and Nebraska defensive coordinator Charlie McBride.

Andrews credited much of his defensive success to McBride, whom he said shared tipe from his traditionally dominant

No place like home for holiday shopping, but be cautious

They slice and dice, tighten and tone, fatten or flatter. They're in every size, style, color, flavor and fragrance, available whenever or wherever — and ready to order from your favorite armchair.

Now that's shopping heaven!

Almost any type of product or service, from kitchen and exercise gadgets to complete home-cooked meals and wardrobes, can be ordered from home via personal computer. telephone, mail or fax.

Home shopping has become a fact of life in the '90s as more busy households forgo crowded mails for the comfort of home, even if it means 14 13 paying a bit more. Catalog purchases alone are up 50 percent from five years ago and the elec-L. tronic marketplace captures more than $3 billion in sales through TV shopping channels, in-formercials and online promotions. .

But with the convenience and seemingly endiese selection of merchandise, can come certain drawbacks, like delays in receiving orders, billing errors, uneven customer service and hassles if repairs or replacements are needed. There's also the risk of fraud.

"When you do that heavy a volume - espe-cially during the holidays - you're going to expect things won't always go as smoothly even in the best of companies." said Katy Conklin, who heads the Better Business Bureau office in 1 ...

Chattanooga, Tenn. "(But) reputable companies will go the second mile for their customers." -

Nonetheless, BBB offices and consumer protection divisions across the country are preparing for the typical deluge of inquiries and complaints from home shoppers around the holidays. But 24 ... consumers can avoid most problems if they take certain precautions and understand their rights. The Federal Trade Commission's Mail or

Telephone Order Rule — which also covers goods ordered online via PC or by fax — protects against late or non-deliveries. It requires merchandise be sent out in 30 days or within the time period advertised by the seller. If the deadline can't be met, buyers must be offered another delivery date or prompt refund. (And no substitutes, unless buyers give their consent.) The one exception: If there's no shipping time promised and the buyer is applying for credit to pay for the purchase, the seller has 50 days after receiving the order to ship it out.

The Fair Credit Billing Act protects against billing errors and problems with goods and services for credit card purchases. Buyers can dispute monthly charges and withhold payment should they be billed the wrong amount or if the goods or services received were unsatisfactory. They still have to pay the undisputed part of the ып. ----

"For the most part, the legitimate businesses really try to adhere to what they're required to do." said Howard Shapiro, a spokesman for the FTC, which takes consumer complaints at its 10 10 regional offices but doesn't intervene in individual disputes. ...

Dan Parsons, of the BBB in Houston, agreed: A

"The odds are you're not going to have a pro-blem, but if you do, understand you may have to use an aggregative tactic to get it resolved." That's what Billie Jo Funk, 68, who owns an insurance agency in Houston, was forced to do after ordering several videos in December 1995 and never receiving a $25 rebate promised in a .74 magazine ad.

Laws protect shopper

By The Associated Press

The rights of home shoppers are pro-tected under the Federal Trade Commission's Mail or Telephone Order Rule and the Fair Credit Billing Act.

The FTC rule, which covers merchandise ordered by mail, phone, computer or fast, also covers deliveries. It states goods must be sent out in 30 days or within the time period advertised by the seller. If the deadline can't be met, buyers must be offered another de-livery date or prompt refund. Substitutes can only be sent with the buyer's consent. The only exception is if there is no shipping time promised and the buyer is applying for credit to pay for the purchase. The seller then has 50 days after receiving the order to ship it out.

The FCBA protects against billing errors. Buyers can dispute charges and withhold payment if they're billed the wrong amount or if there's a problem with the goods or services received. The undisputed part of the bill must still be paid.

still be paid. Complaints must be in writing and reach the creditor within seven days after the first bill containing an error was mailed. Creditors must acknowledge the complaint in writing within 30 days and resolve the dispute within 90 days.

If there's a problem with the goods or ser-vice, consumers must first try to reasive the dispute with the seller. They can't complain to their creditors unless the purchase was made in their home state or within 100 miles from their billing address and they charged more than $60.

"When I first called them, they said ... I'd get them within two days. I hept calling every two weeks. They told me my name was lost in the computer, yet they kept sending me their newsletter," said Stephens, who also sought help from the BBB.

After receiving no apologies or follow-up calls,

"I won't buy from them any more," she said. Such words would make most reputable companies cringe — at least the ones who rely on customer loyalty and repeat business to remain profitable.

"The customer is our greatest asset. Our goal is to solve any problem quickly," said Deborah Koopman, spokeswoman for Spiegel Inc., in Downers Grove, Ill., which increases its work force in the catalog phone order department and distribution centers by around 30 percent during the holidays.

Conklin believes in some cases the consumer is more at fault.

"I find myself wondering about the quality of the orders they place," she said. "Some of the complaints I would attribute to things the customer may not do right, such as not paying attention to the delivery time the company has stipulated. Maybe the company was having trouble filling the order or getting in touch with them."

Persistence also paid off for Stefanie Stephens, a 25-year-old graphic artist from Springfield, Mo., who ordered $15 worth of hockey cards earlier this year. The company had promised delivery within three to four weeks, but it took nine phone calls and seven months before the order finally arrived.

Of course, there are also what Conklin dubs the "hit-and-run companies."

"A hit-and-run business isn't interested in repeat business. It's interested in taking the money and going to the next victim," she said. Sometimes they don't have a product at all. Other times they have a product that is not at all the quality that's advertised."

Most consumer groups advise home shoppers to stick with reputable retailers. If unsure about a company's reliability, shoppers should make only modest purchases to start, or check them out with the BBB or state consumer protection division.

Consumers also should make careful note of a company's return and guarantee policies and jot down information about their purchases, like inventory numbers, sizes or colors, even the name of the order taker. While buying online, they should download and print out a copy of the fine-print specifics.

Home shoppers also should try to order as early as possible to ensure timely delivery and availability, and never send cash.

"Give your credit card number only to a rep-utable firm that you're sure is or the line," added Stephen Brobeck, executive director of the Consumer Federation of America in Washington, D.C. "Never purchase from a cold telephone solicitation.

'We don't know what new scam will emerge over the holidays until after the fact, when the complaints start coming in."

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband has been a heavy drinker for years. In addition, he takes prescription aleep-ing pills. A year ago, his doctor dou-bled the dose of the pills. My hus-band's memory is shot. Although he has moderated his drinking, he's still not himself. Could the sleeping pills, as well as the alcohol, have caused permanent brain damage? DEAR READER: Without question

DEAR READER: Without question. yes.

As you suggested, chronic abuse of alcohol can lead to death of brain cells, with resulting cognitive impair-ment, confusion and loss of memory - all of which can be permanent.

Unfortunately, long-term use of many brands of prescription sleeping pills can do the same thing. What's more, the combined effects (with alco-hol) could be disastrous.

Your husband needs medical attention.

First, he should undergo a det cation program in a hospital. See he needs a neurologist's consult to confirm the cause of the m impairment. Third, he should extensive testing, including C MRI scanning, to help assess I function. Fourth, he must stop ing and using sleeping pills.

This is a monumental task.

The only way to treat his add is to address it forthrightly. family physician can organiz effort and coordinate the var resources needed for your hust It is probably not too late for husband to get his life back in o Some of the damage caused by alcohol/sleeping-pill combina may be reversible. DEAR READER: No one kno why some people are highly allerg insect bites. Ordinarily, mosq bites are trivial nuisances; yet, one a while, a person can become allergic to them.

Of course, the best approach is vention. However, I judge from comments that this strategy has I ineffective. Perhaps your brothe law would be helped by taking on the new non-sedating antihistami (Hismanal, Allergra and others) w he is bitten.

Such medicines may neutralize histamine that is released by body's cells at the point of the bit but they must be taken early before the skin has a chance to sw I suspect that your brother-in-

Would be the most effective approach. DEAR DR. GOTT: What determines whether a doctor applies a plastar or fiberglass cast? Is it the severity or nature of the fracture, or is it merely a matter of preference? Further, when a fracture is below the elbew or base, what determines if the cast is applied just above or just below the joint? Is it the number of fractures, whether one or both hones are fractured, the laca-tion, or all of the above?

DEAR READER: Fiberglass casts are lighter and more resistant to dam-age. They can stand getting wet, unlike plaster, which softens. On the other hand, plaster casts are, for most orthopedic surgeons, easier to apply. Thus, which one to use is a matter of preference. In casting a fracture, it's important to immobilize nearby joints. This pre-vents movement of the bone fragments, especially if more than one bone is broken. Therefore, the answer to your question is: all of the above. o ISSN NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
