Sweep into action

Clarification - The Seminole County employees who will be celebrating National County Government Week by helping to clean properties on Saturday, April 19, have six priority areas for their 3C Project to Clean it, Cut it and Carry it off. The areas are: Midway, Bookertown, East Altamonte, Lockhart's Subdivision, Johnson Hill and Jamestown. The employees hope to be able to assist elderly citizens, the handicapped and others whose properties need work. They are bringing along spouses, teenagers and friends to help out. Seminole County Sheriff Don Estinger says he has volunteered inmates to help the project. A National City Government Week banner will be strung across 1st St at Park Ave. between First Union Bank and the State Attorney's Building.

Gunman kills himself

ORLANDO - Harry Lee Douthett, 38, was found dead on his sofa after four hours and a gun battle with law enforcement officers Thursday in the Pine Hills community of Orlando. Douthett, a former Navy machinist with an arsenal of weapons in his home, caught deputy sheriffs and neighbors in a crossfire.

No one else was hurt during the incident, which ended after deputies in an armored vehicle fired tear gas into the home. They then sent a video-equipped robot into the house. The camera showed Douthett slouched on his sofa. Douthett did not respond when the robot shook him.

A medical examiner will determine today whether Douthett's death was a suicide.

April is Arbor Month

SANFORD - Here's a reminder about what you can do to renew the spirit of Arbor Month in April. Check with the Agriculture Center for small trees that are often available for free. Check with your local nurseries, encourage others to plant a tree, have a poster contest. Also, call (407) 657-6046, ask for Ernest Hatton and talk tree.

Seminole on Web

SANFORD - For those who want to keep up with what's going on in Seminole County on the web, log in: WWW.Co.Seminole.FL.US.

Orange County piling it on ORLANDO - The Orange County office that records legal papers reached a milestone of 7 million documents Thursday. That's 7 million deeds, deaths, mortgages, liens and other documents stamped, recorded and filed for public inspection since 1933.

Boggy Creek Gang tees off

ORLANDO - The Boggy Creek Gang Charitable Shotgun Golf Tournament will begin at 11 a.m. on Friday, April 25 at MetroWest County Club.

For more information, contact John Brewerton at (407) 649-0500.

Workshops for homeowners

SANFORD - There's a first time homeowners workshop in progress now through Monday at the GoldenRule office at 2968 S. Orlando Drive (old Zayre Plaza) in Sanford. The workshop hours are 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

For more info, call GoldenRule at (407) 324-9123.

Churches unite with Easter message

From Staff Reports

SANFORD - A unique three-day Easter celebration began this morning in Sanford and will end Easter Sunday at Sea World.

During this Easter weekend, members of Christian churches throughout Central Florida will unite to help bring the message that Easter is really about the Resurrection of Jesus Christ rather than Easter parades and bunnies.

The event began this morning at Ft. Mellon Park in Sanford and involved the passing of a Lighted Torch symbolizing the "Light of Christ" from church to church. The torch will be carried into the Sunrise Service at Sea World two days from now on Easter Sunday morning.

This morning at 8:30, pastors from various churches of all denominations gathered at Ft. Mellon Park and kindled a fire from which the torch was lit. President of Prayer Walkers International, Vello Vainu, presented the torch to the first church on the designated U.S. Highway 17-92 route. Vainu arrived from Sweden early this week with a specially designed Olympic Style Torch.

The torch will then be carried by groups from many local churches, passing it on to the next church along the route. Law Enforcement escorts have been arranged for the entire 40 mile route to provide for the safety of these walking church groups. After passing through Mattland the "torch route" will leave Highway 17-92 for a concert of prayer and special showing from the "Jesus" film. This activity for the youth and their families is scheduled from 7 to 10 p.m. tonight and will be led by the major youth organizations in the area.

Tomorrow morning the event will begin with a

Housing Authority audit: No shortfall

By VICKI DeBORNIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD - Problems with the Sanford Housing Authority's budget are not what they seem.

As a matter of fact, the auditor who did the report on the 1994-95 fiscal year, said there is no problem at all.

While preliminary reports noted a shortfall of some $80,000 the final report prepared by Kevin Kenny, noted there was "no shortfall at all."

Kenny said he does not know where the original information came from, but said all could rest assured that the money that should have been in housing authority accounts was there.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "they were able to put money into the reserves."

Kenny said there was an additional $271,216 placed into the reserves of the operating budget and an additional $29,252 put into the housing authority's Section 8 account.

"As for a cash shortfall, there just wasn't one," Kenny noted.

The auditor noted that there were some "questionable decisions" made by the housing authority

Cops nab convenience store robbery suspect

By DAVID FRAZER
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford Police have captured the prime suspect in an armed robbery of a convenience store in which the lone clerk was attacked.

Suspect William Boone, charged today with armed robbery and aggravated battery, was captured by officers at the Shenandoah Village apartments on Thursday night. Boone was allegedly found at his brother's apartment. Boone is wanted in the armed robbery of a Lil' Champ convenience store at 1118 Celery St. and the attack on the clerk of the store.

Sanford police got a positive identification of Boone from store security cameras on Thursday.

Boone apparently came into the store between 8 and 8:30 a.m. on Wednesday morning. It was 6:30 a.m. when Catherine Redling, 59, was found behind the counter with blood streaming down her face from a gash in the left side of her left forehead. It is still undetermined what type of weapon was used and how much money was stolen.

Redling was taken to Orlando Regional Medical Center where she still remains today. Store patron Michael Godin found Redling and immediately called for assistance.

According to police spokesman Tom Skiba, Boone was apprehended at the 4000 block of South Orlando Drive at his

Goin' Buggy In Longwood

By VICKI DeGROSS
Herald Senior Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — Longwood Elementary School's music department is ready for their annual dinner theatre production.

The school has established a tradition of hosting a dinner show for parents, families and friends each year.

This year's show is called "Goin' Buggy."

The play is a charming, whimsical, musical revue and it stars the country's largest constituency — the insect population.

Bees, ladybugs, butterflies and even the flowers will delight audiences as they point out all of their grand accomplishments as they march to the nation's capitol to present the Congress with their Bugs' Bill of Rights.

Of course, there is no better place for bugs to gather than at a picnic, so that is the menu the school has prepared for the dinner theatre, organizers said.

The menu includes chicken wings, cold cuts that can be used to create your own sandwiches, deviled eggs, vegetable trays with dips and a beverage. There will also be "buggy cake" for everyone.

The cost for the tickets for the dinner and the show is $4 for adults and $3 for children 12 and under.

On Thursday, April 3 and Friday, April 4, the picnic will be spread out from 6 to 7 p.m. and the curtain will rise at 7 p.m.

On Sunday, April 6, the show will get underway at 2 p.m. and the picnic will follow the final curtain call.

Reservations can be made in the school office, 840 Orange Ave., Longwood. For more information, call the school at 320-3350.

It's a good time for an egg hunt

Today is Good Friday. It's the oldest Christian celebration, observed in commemoration of the crucifixion. We've often wondered why it is called "good" Friday. Some scholars say it may have originally been known as "God's Friday."

Even though it is a religious holiday, most stock exchanges are closed today.

Locally, everyone is getting ready for Easter egg hunts tomorrow.

Sanford is holding its annual hunt tomorrow at Lee P. Moore Park, in the Hidden Lakes subdivision. It begins at 9 a.m. with the arrival of the Easter Bunny. Everyone is welcome.

Events are for youngsters from toddlers to 12. Over 3,000 eggs will be hidden. For additional information, call the Sanford Recreation and Parks Department at 330-5897.

The City of Lake Mary is having a city-wide Easter egg hunt tomorrow as well. The event starts at 9:30 a.m. at Lake Mary City Hall, for children age two to fifth grade. Prizes for everyone. Take your own basket, they can't do everything.

The Central Florida Zoo is sponsoring a trio of egg hunts on Saturday morning.

The first hunt will begin at 10 a.m. Toddlers who are still getting used to the idea of walking will have the chance to search the field for the colored prizes.

At 10:30 a.m. the 4 to 6 year olds will get the chance to scour another area to see what they can find.

Finally at 11 a.m. the 7 to 10 year olds will have their chance to look for the eggs on their own course.

All visitors must park at the Sanford City Hall and take a free Lynx shuttle bus to the egg hunt at the zoo. The shuttle buses will run continuously starting at 8:30 a.m. The last bus will leave the zoo at 1:15 p.m.

For some reason, there are many music-related events across the nation. There is an old time fiddler's championship event in Clarksville, Tennessee this weekend; a Bluegrass Music Weekend in Burlington, Iowa, and an open dance competition in Summerville, S.C. There is also a Vietnam Moratorium Concert at Madison Square Garden in New York. Overseas, it's the Harrogate International Youth Music Festival in London.

Today is the 18th anniversary of the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant accident on the Susquehanna River near Harrisburg, Pa.

Today's historic birthdays include child actor Freddie Bartholomew born in 1924. Tomorrow is the birth anniversary of Pearl Bailey, born in 1918. The 10th president of the United States, John Tyler was born in 1790.

In present birthdays, actor Dirk Bogarde is 76, and singer Reba McEntire is 43.

Tomorrow is actor Eric Idle's 54th birthday.

And finally, tomorrow is Founders Day for the Knights of Columbus. The first charter was granted in 1882 in Connecticut. Present membership is estimated at nearly six million dollars.

Hale-Bopp Comet

If at first you don't succeed...

By VICKI DeGROSS
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Last weekend, at Seminole Community College nearly 100 people strained their necks to see the Hale-Bopp Comet streaking overhead. They hoped also to see the nearly-total eclipse of the moon.

Because clouds cluttered the sky, they saw neither.

The organizers of the comet watching party were disappointed, but they were not discouraged, however.

"After all when you have a virtual reality classroom like the planetarium," said Laurent A. Fellerin, director of planetarium operations and production, "you can eliminate such inconveniences as clouds, the full moon, city light pollution and mosquitoes."

Such conveniences aside, the planetarium and the Central Florida Astronomical Society are organizing another watching party for tonight and tomorrow night.

The celebration of the brightest comet this century will continue on Friday and Saturday evenings for the next three or four weeks, Fellerin said.

The one-hour comet watches will take place from 7 to 8 p.m. each night. They will take place prior to the planetarium shows that take look at the Hale-Bopp comet and comets in general.

The comet watching parties will not be as elaborate as the tailgate party that was originally planned for last weekend. Those who want to watch can simply come out to the college and establish their own watching areas in the field north of Building B in which the planetarium is located.

There were telescopes and amateur astronomers on hand for those who would like to avail themselves of those resources. They will be available both before and after the 8 p.m. planetarium shows.

The comet can be seen clearly with the naked eye (when it isn't obstructed by clouds), Fellerin said.

Binoculars are enough to make the comet extremely detailed, but some prefer to look at the heavens through a telescope.

The outside events are, of course, weather permitting. Weather does not affect the planetarium shows.

The planetarium shows are on Friday evenings at 8:30 p.m. and Saturday there is a children's matinee at 1 p.m. Evening shows are $3 for adults and $1 for children and matinee shows are $1 for everyone.

Blind Sanford girl learns ski technique

Lacy Ketchum of Sanford, a senior at the Florida School for the Deaf and Blind, was recently given an athletic opportunity of a lifetime.

She was one of a dozen students who are blind or who have visual impairments who recently learned how to downhill ski on a trip to Colorado.

Ski clubs from throughout Florida funded the students trip.

The students joined with other students with visual impairments from around the country to participate in the Winter Camp sponsored by National Camp for Blind Children.

Ketchum and others also went snowmobiling in the Arapaho National Forest and snow tubing in Fraser, Colorado.

Visit the library, check it out?

By MARLA OWEN
Herald Correspondent

Open 308 days a year, the Seminole County Library System offers residents a host of services ranging from a kid's page on the Internet to books by mail for seniors.

In addition to newspapers, magazines, microfilm, CD ROM and audio tape cassettes, the county's five library branches carry more than 329,000 books and serve about 249,000 borrowers at a rate of 4,000 citizens a day. Total circulation is close to 1.8 million.

The Central Branch, located in Casselberry, is the largest facility at 25,000 square feet and the busiest with a daily attendance of 1,310. The main branch also houses a book-store where Friends of the Library volunteers sell used library books.

The East Branch in Oviedo, the Northwest Branch in Lake Mary, and the West Branch of Wekiva have virtually identical floor plans with 12,000 square feet of space. The North Branch in Sanford also contains the administrative offices and staff headed by Jean Rhein, director of Library and Leisure Services.

The Library Board of Trustees, which is made up of seven members appointed to two-year terms by the county commissioner, serves in an advisory role and meets quarterly.

"We keep them informed and get their approval on recommendations we plan to make to the county government," Rhein said, adding, "they are a very supportive board."

Library patrons soon will have access to the Internet thanks to the latest service being offered by the library system.

Known as the Seminole On Line project, the free Internet service will be up and running in September, according to Denise Tate, collection services coordinator.

"We have a server at the Central Branch, and now we are waiting on the hardware," Tate said.

Existing monitors will be replaced by PC's in August. The current public access catalog will be available on the new computers which also will be equipped with printers.

Tate said the library anticipates a one-on-one training program for the public and brochures on how to access the Internet also will be made available. Basic training has been offered by the library since last year, she added, with instructors from Seminole Community College.

As part of the Youth Services program, headed by Margie Johnson, the library's Internet kid's pages may be accessed at <http://www.co.seminole.fl.us/library/kids>. The pages feature book reviews written by students. There are 41 reviews currently online.

About 75,000 children of all ages participate in various youth programs. Library staff have in house story times starting from ages one month to age 7. The summer reading program held during June and July attracts mostly elementary school age children.

In cooperation with teachers, librarians travel to school and conduct book talking sessions for fourth graders to get the students interested in selected books. Sixth graders will be included in the program this year. Stories also are present through the use of puppets and props to daycare centers. For high school and middle school students librarians gather and set aside reading materials necessary for reports.

"We try to get people to read starting at an early age because research shows that kids that read will do better in school," Johnson said. "We have tremendous participation by the whole county."

Additional services offered by the library include books by mail for seniors, and an electronic notification system for patrons who reserve books. The library also is part of an inter loaning program which allows citizens to request a book from any library in the country. Meeting rooms also may be reserved for community organizations.

All branches are open Monday to Thursday, 9 a.m.-9 p.m.; Saturday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m.; and Sunday, 1-9 p.m. For more information, call 339-4000.

Cult was ready to board UFO

RANCHO SANTA FE, Calif. — San Diego County Medical Examiner, Dr. Brian Blackburn said Thursday that the 39 members of a cult of computer programmers killed themselves in a "very planned, sort of immaculately carried out" fashion. Most of the suicidal cult — 31 women and 18 men — were found with little pieces of paper containing a suicide recipe: take pudding or applesauce and mix it with phenobarbital, drink it down with vodka, lie back and relax. Police said that the short-cropped hair of the dead and the fact that decomposition had set in made the gender and the age of the victims difficult to determine at first. An earlier report was that all the victims were males aged 18 to 24. The group committed suicide in separate groups, 15 the first day, 15 the next and the remaining nine on the third day. Each member also had his or her bag packed for what they thought was a rendezvous with a UFO trailing the Hale-Boop comet. "We fully desire, expect and look forward to boarding a spacecraft from the Next Level very soon" was some of the wording found on the Heaven's Gate Web site.

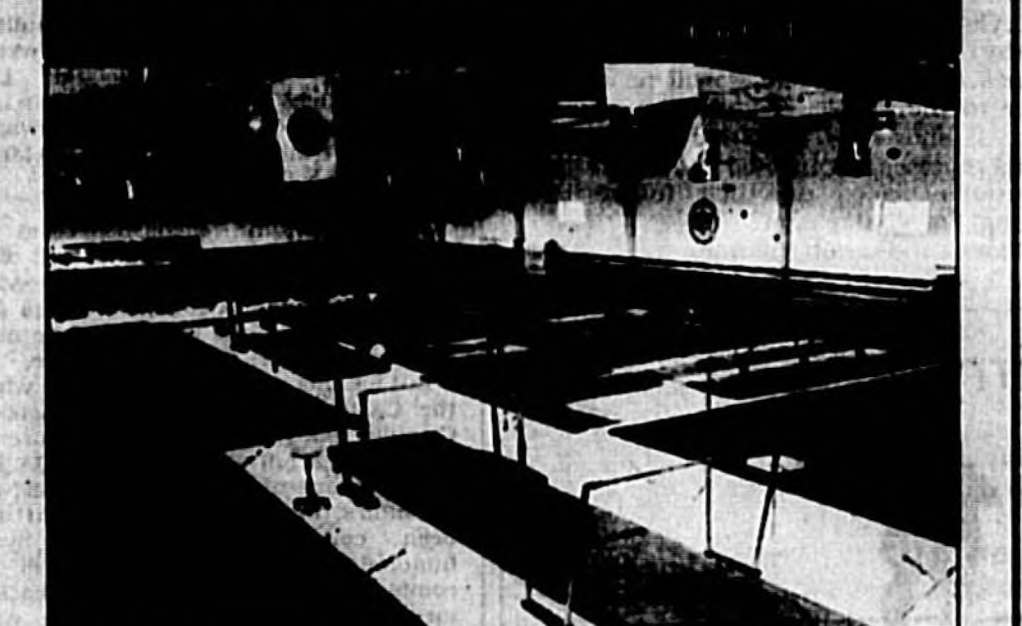

Judge wants O.J.'s trophies

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — Superior Court Judge Hiroshi Fujisaki wants O.J. Simpson to turn over more than 100 of his belongings, including his Heisman Trophy, a Buffalo Bills helmet, golf clubs and an Andy Warhol self-portrait of himself. It's part of request from the Brown and Goldman families who won a $33.5 million verdict holding Simpson responsible for the slayings of Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman. O.J.'s attorney Phil Baker says that "90 percent of the items" sought were no longer Simpson's and had been placed in a trust fund for Simpson's children.

Candidates' good names

In the Florida Legislature these days, there is one law being presented which we believe is worth our attention, and worth enacting.

It would make it illegal for persons seeking political office to run sudden attack ads or commercials against their opponents. They could, but would be required to give 10 days advance notice.

Additionally, it would become a crime, punishable by a jail term, if a person lies about an opponent. It appears as though this would hold true for supporters of candidates, as well as the candidates themselves.

The Florida House has launched into a political reform drive and has formed an Election Reform Committee which prepared this legislation for consideration.

It should be a known fact; political campaigning, nationally, statewide and locally, has become extremely negative. Many people seeking office are issuing "campaign literature," running ads or radio and television commercials with not exactly outright lies about their opponent, but with insinuations that have negative connotations.

People read the literature and believe it wouldn't be in print if it weren't true. As a result, a good candidate's name and reputation is often ruined and winning an election is extremely difficult.

Responding to these insinuations only makes it appear as though the opponent may have something to hide and is trying a cover-up.

The reform legislation, in our opinion, appears to be exactly what is badly needed in helping the average voter better determine who to elect.

But there is a problem which may bring about the downfall of this legislation. It's the people who will be voting on it.

The Florida Legislature is comprised of politicians who have all run for office, mostly against opponents. They campaigned in order to win, and there may be a hesitancy to pass this bill. After all, for a few, this may hamper their style of campaigning.

If the bill passes the legislature and becomes law, we believe it will be of great service to the people. If it doesn't pass, we believe it shows us that there are enough officials representing us who don't want these restrictions placed on their future campaigning. For what reason?

We'll wait and see on this one.

Spinning partial-birth abortion

New York Gov. George Pataki, who is pro-choice, recently urged that state's Senate to vote for a ban on partial-birth abortions. There has been new information, he said. New York Democratic congresswoman Carolyn McCarthy was also "disturbed by these revelations" and said she might vote for the ban in Congress. The source of these "revelations" is Ron Fitzsimmons, executive director of the National Coalition of Abortion Providers, who has dramatically broken ranks by admitting that he "lied through his teeth" during the previous debate on the procedure.

The party line of the abortion-rights establishment is that partial-birth abortion is very rare, occurring in the third trimester, and only done when the woman's life is in danger or in cases of extreme fetal abnormality -- or when only this procedure would allow the woman to have children again.

This form of abortion involves the delivery of an intact fetus, feet first, until only the head remains in the birth canal. Until then, the fetus, in most cases, is alive. The head is then punctured by a scissors, the brains are sucked out, the collapsed head is pulled out, and the delivery is completed.

He has dramatically broken ranks by admitting that he lied through his teeth.

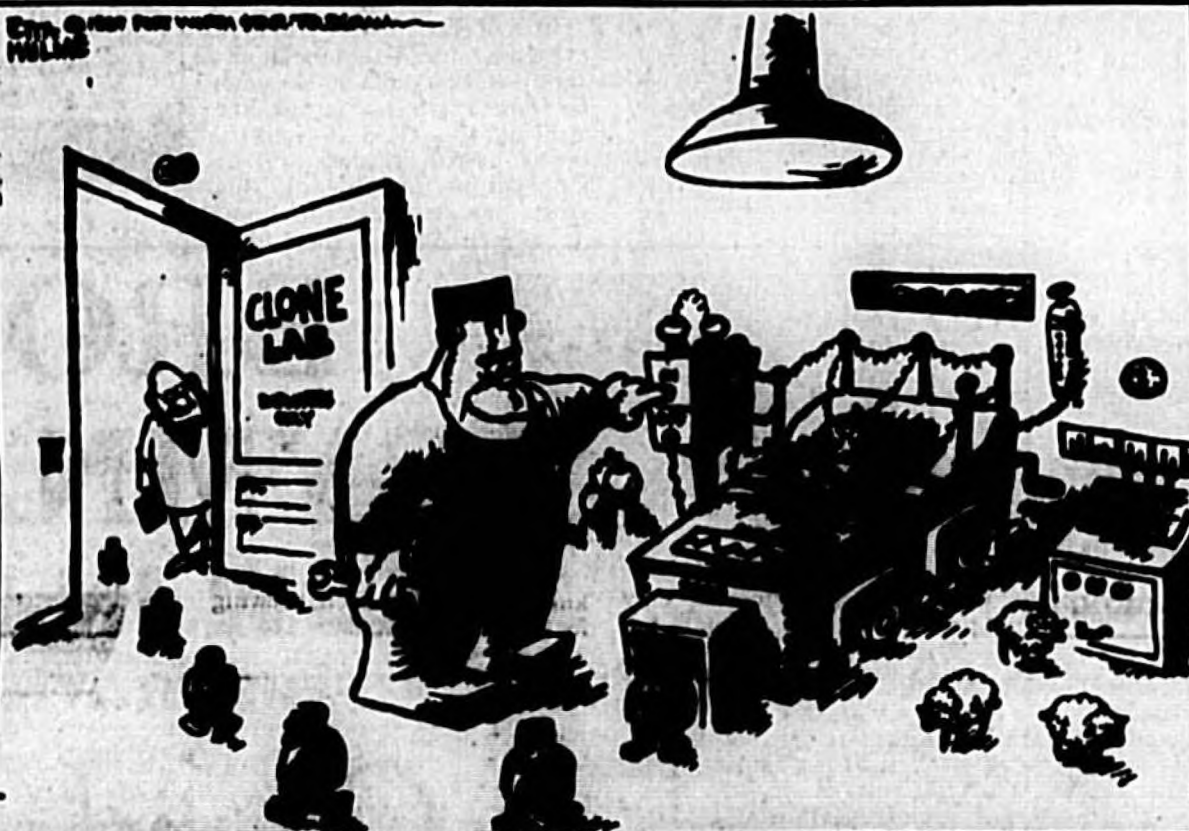

According to Fitzsimmons, the facts are that most of these abortions are not required to save the health or fertility of the mother -- or because the fetus is severely deformed. Most of the operations involved, he said, "a healthy fetus 20 weeks or more old, and a healthy mother."

But this is not new information. Ruth Padawer, a reporter for The Record in Bergen, N.J. -- and an adjunct professor at the Columbia Graduate School of Journalism -- reported in September 1996 that over 1,500 partial-birth abortions take place every year at the one New Jersey abortion clinic authorized to perform them. In The Washington Post, David Brown and Barbara Vobejda disclosed similar information. And the first reporter to break the story of how often partial-birth abortions actually are performed -- and at what stage in the pregnancy -- was Diane Gianelli, a first-class reporter for American Medical News (a publication of the American Medical Association).

Moreover, there were statements and prominent ads by PFIAC -- a coalition of obstetricians, gynecologists and specialists in fetal medicine around the country. They kept pointing out that not only are there "absolutely no obstetrical situations requiring the destruction of a partially delivered fetus," but also the procedure involves serious risks of maternal hemorrhage, uterine rupture and infection. These are provable facts that were not challenged by the abortion rights establishment and were rarely mentioned by the press.

These serious risks for the mother were also ignored by Bill Clinton.

ELLEN GOODMAN

Hopeful ring to AIDS drugs

SAN FRANCISCO--Eric Cisulio runs through his schedule as if he were on a sightseeing trip through the Land of Pharmacology.

If it's 7 o'clock this must be Crizotin. If it's 8 o'clock it must be DDI. If it's 9:30, it must be DDT, Didanosine, Ayzovir, Bactrim, Myambutol, Biamin.

He opens the medicine chest in his apartment to show me shelves full of bottles. It is a daunting regimen of 19 pills--some to be taken on an empty stomach, others on a full stomach, some with water--that he must take every day, for the foreseeable future.

But for this engaging 34-year-old who lives in the Castro district, that is the good news: Cisulio now has a foreseeable future.

It's been a full year since the FDA approved Crizotin, one of the drugs known as protease inhibitors, for AIDS treatment. In what has been coined "The Lazarus Syndrome," hundreds of the "terminally ill" on a combination therapy have come back to life; men once gaunt and wasted are now seen working out at gyms all over town.

This city has been Ground Zero in the AIDS epidemic ever since the mysterious "gay plague" was first identified 16 years ago. But this morning's newspaper carries headlines that read "World of Work Beckons AIDS Patients" and "How Wonder Drugs Give New Life."

Here, where one in 25 is infected with HIV--43 percent of the gay community--they are beginning to cope with the dimensions and the limits of something called hope.

For Eric and thousands like him, the change has been profound. "At 27," when he tested positive for HIV, "it was clear that I would die of AIDS and it would be sooner rather than later."

At 30, struggling with fatigue, migraines and diarrhea, he left his work as director of a housing program for gay and homeless youth, believing that "the best part of my life was behind me." That may be a cliché of turning 30 he says, but adds archly, "I have some evidence."

Cisulio got his affairs in order, said a lot of good-byes, found a home for his dog Zachary. But in August, he went on the new drugs. Today he can walk his dog around the block without being winded. He can concentrate through a meeting. And he is beginning to think, "Maybe I can beat this thing."

This "maybe" marks a new and distinct phase in the epidemic. As Pat Christen, the head of the San Francisco AIDS Foundation says, "It is a genuinely heady, exciting time." But she cautions, "It's also emotionally tumultuous when so many people are facing the same choices at the same time."

Cisulio now has a foreseeable future.

The hugely expensive drugs come with nearly as many caveats as side effects. There are people sitting side by side in doctors' waiting rooms, some of who will get better and some of whom will not. Furthermore, no one knows how long these brand-new drugs may work. Is this a cure or a remission?

There are other side effects to what Cisulio describes as "the long and slow transition from the land of the dead and dying to the land of the live and living."

One piece of that transition is the desire to return to work. But what happens if you are on disability and leave it? Will you be able to return?

Another piece is the effect on relationships. In the gay community, I hear of many couples who expected to be together for the rest of their lives--when their life expectancy was months. Now, like Eric and his partner, they are asking, "Is this the person I want to spend the next 20 or 30 years with?"

For the community at large, the drugs may actually mean a greater demand on services for people living with AIDS. The cost of these drugs--as much as $17,000 a year--may strain the public health care budgets. Questions about who gets the regimen may stretch the limits of bioethics.

And underlying all this news is a rumble of anecdotes told by AIDS workers worried about a possible rise in infection rates. Will a belief that the new protease inhibitors can "cure" AIDS, or prevent HIV in a "morning after" cocktail, lead to an outbreak of risky behavior? San Francisco has been ahead of the curve of this epidemic in every phase. Now the city is facing issues that the rest of the country and 225,000 Americans with AIDS will face.

At the Stop AIDS Project, Dan Wohlfeiler says that his mother remembers when the polio epidemic came to an end. "Bells were ringing out across America. We want to hear those bells. They aren't chiming yet."

No, but in the heart of the Castro district, Eric Cisulio says with meaning, "I am making a five-year plan." That has a nice hopeful ring.

DONNA BRITT

But Taaha says she dreams only of being a better player.

Hoop dreams

WASHINGTON--Ask high school basketball player Taaha Oliver her favorite hoop dream, her wildest basketball fantasy, and she says, "Getting injured."

This amuses me. My experience with basketball fantasies is based on guys. My older sons supply their own commentary--"What a tremendous move!"--while they imagine beating Jordan and Pippen to the hoop. My toddler pauses after each dunk into his three-foot-high rim, awaiting cheers. Even guys so clueless that they think a crossover is what Rodman does when he wears a dress dream of going to the Final Four.

Taaha, 14, was the freshman point guard for Montgomery Blair's junior varsity girls team in suburban Washington. She led her team in steals and assists. She's so talented, her coach can't recall an opposing point guard whom she couldn't beat one-on-one.

But Taaha says she dreams only of being a better player.

Is this a girl thing? This athlete, who wears size 6 black Penny Hardaway Nikes and who just got moved up to varsity, shakes her head when asked if she can imagine a sneaker being named after her. "Most people think girls basketball is nothing," she explains.

Wait a sec. Waun't Stanford point guard Jamila Wideman just on the cover of Sports Illustrated? Don't Olympic gold medal hoopsters like Dawn Staley and Lisa Leslie have major endorsements? Teams in the new, all-women's American Basketball League are drawing larger-than-projected crowds in eight cities; the Women's National Basketball Association (WNBA), which debuts in June, is expected to do even better.

But that doesn't mean female players will receive the same kind of adulation that the Shaqs, Barkleys and Iversons get.

Former Blair star Peppi Brown, 18, started as a freshman this year at Duke. As a female player, she says, "you don't have anybody following you around every second, saying, 'You can make it to the NBA. You have to motivate yourself.'"

In some ways, that's a blessing. Sports columnist Mike Wilbon insists that female players "are smarter because they don't have agents chasing them and groupies...Women players, even the biggest stars, are delightful. They haven't had people kissing their (butts) every day since they were 11."

Taaha started playing at 4. Her dad, Gene Oliver, a former high school player, "took me step by step, told me to keep practicing," she says. She realized she had talent in fifth grade, "when guys started asking me if I was on a team." One, Carlos Reyes, 16, a Blair classmate and three-on-three tournament winner, says: "Taaha can play. Definitely." ...But she used to make me laugh.

"I wasn't used to being checked by a girl."

Especially one who's barely five feet and delicately pretty despite heavy jeans and a shirt three sizes too big. Sitting next to her mom, Charwanda, in the apartment they share with Taaha's two sisters--her parents are separated--Taaha is quiet, polite and hesitant about telling me her strong points.

a ceremony of prayer at Calvary Assembly Church and then "The Light" will continue to be carried from church to church along the south Orlando route until it arrives at a designated point near Sea World on Saturday evening.

At 6 p.m. on Easter Sunday, Jack Youngblood, General Manager of the Orlando Predators and former defensive end for the L.A. Rams, will conclude the event by carrying "The Light" into the arena for the Annual Sunrise Service at Sea World.

The sponsor of "Bring the Light to Orlando" is Christian HELP, a no fee employment ministry located in South Seminole County. David Harp, Christian HELP's coordinator of the event, has had years of experience in planning Christian events of this type, but Harp says that this is his biggest. About 100 churches are involved in the walk and about 53 route assignments have been made. Harp said he planned on hundreds of walkers and good support from all church denominations for this significant event.

Several local churches gathered on Thursday in Ft. Mellon Park to kick off the Easter celebration. At left, Scott Ross of the New Tribes Mission leads members of his and other churches on a march that brought them all together for a Maundy Thursday start to the Easter celebration. during the 1994-95 fiscal year. Those items are currently under investigation, but no money has been found to be missing as a result of those decisions.

The department of Housing and Urban Development in Tampa is investigating the allegations and they "have a good portion of the picture," but the investigation is still not complete.

Kenny said the 1995-96 audit of the Sanford Housing Authority is nearing completion at this time. He does not foresee any problems with that report.

He said the audit should be complete within a week and that it will be sent to the housing authority's board of directors for review and response in time for their next meeting on April 17.

brother's apartment. An anonymous informant called the Sanford Police on Boone's whereabouts.

An ordinance that in recent years passed through the Florida legislature stipulates that a convenience store is to operate between the times of 11 p.m. and 6 a.m. with two clerks instead of one. Since the "L" Change store is only opened till 10 p.m. and reopens at 6 a.m., the ordinance does not apply to it.

Pedestrians passing by the scene talked of how nice Redling is to all the locals. "She has nothing but praise for the people around the area," said a female patron. However, a male patron spoke of the crass treatment given by some of the store's clerks when dealing with the patrons. "This kind of attitude has been brewing for a while," he said.

A duck's life

It's not easy being a duck. In the search for food handouts along Sanford's lakefront they are forced to compete with pigeons, seagulls and blackbirds. Generally, the gulls outnumber the rest, but the ducks, apparently being more trusting, will waddle to within inches of a person believed to have food offerings.

That's entertainment: Cool stuff to do this Easter weekend

At the movies:
Devils, BAPS
and Power Rangers

Another Oscar night is in the book, folks. The English Patient won. It's the story of how a president slips during a late night excursion at a famous pro golfer's house and... Ooopa! Wrong premise. I better get on with the reviews.

David Frazier

Screen Tests

The Devil's Own (R): The vocalization of negative feelings towards this production by its stars, Harrison Ford and Brad Pitt, has given it a pre-disposed stigma. That is never fair. A movie should be judged by its merits when it comes out not before it comes out. And I am ashamed at movie reviewers that let that foil their analysis. It is almost like setting yourself up for a fall.

The Devil's Own is a disappointing movie but I didn't arrive at that conclusion by listening to the film's actors. That is almost like hearing about overpaid basketball players harping on fellow teammates or coaching decisions. Strange that Ford and Pitt later retracted their comments.

The story is about an embittered young Irish man who comes to America for political purposes. His boarder, an Irish-American New York police officer, Tom O'Meara, brings Frankie McGuire, a.k.a. Rory Devaney, into his home unaware of what trouble Frankie will bring. Frankie is I.R.A. you see, unbeknownst to the family that accepts him. The real story is about the relationship between two men who believe in two different types of justice. Frankie is driven by revenge for the death of his father, a Republic Army supporter. He witnessed his father gunned down during a quiet family dinner by a masked assassin. Tom is a dedicated father and devoted husband. After 23 years, he is beginning to dislike his job as a beat cop. His wife reminds him that he must like his job and he probably did, but the job is now taking an emotional toll on him. Their paths cross with a combustible conclusion even though there is a mutual respect possibly even a father and son connection that Frankie had been missing since a young boy. "Don't look for happy endings," Frankie says to Tom. "It's not an American story. Tom. It's an Irish one."

I'm upset that the filmmakers did not decide to concentrate on the two characters' relationship more than they actually did. This is the real story of The Devil's Own and not the dead wrap around story that is there. The scenes that have Ford and Pitt in them are the ones to cherish. Director Alan J. Pakula (The Pelican Brief) was supposed to create a t-h-r-i-l-l-e-r. What I can't realize is why such an accomplished director could make a movie where I watch my watch when Ford and Pitt are not on the screen-- more than I did the movie. There are a lot of dead spots and the movie moves at a snail's pace. It is not entirely all bad but a good chunk of it is.

I cannot rave about Ford's and Pitt's performance without giving credit to actor Treat Williams. His performance as a sinister arms dealer is cold and devious. Williams makes the most out of the small role. And, yes, I was convinced that Pitt was an Irish man. Not the best mind you, but I stretched my imagination.

There is more here; its just not here. I may be making this film out to be worse than it really is. But there is a lingering laziness here that is simply intolerable.

B.A.P.S. (PG-13): Robert Townsend busted on the Hollywood scene with a hilarious look at the entertainment industry's treatment of minorities in Hollywood Shuffle. He had two moderate follow ups in Meteor Man and The Five Heartbeats. Now comes this comical fairy tale, B.A.P.S., an intermittently funny but manipulative movie about two Decatur, Georgia waitresses trying to make it big.

Manipulative, you ask? Yes it is. It introduces us to these pitiful characters that we are supposed to feel sympathy for. Nisi and Mickey want to go to California to try out for a rap music video. They want to bust a move out of Decatur where they have dead end jobs and deadbeat men. They want to achieve their dream of making the first soul food restaurant/ hair salon.

With their combined life savings, they take off to L.A., the land of fast dreams and stranger things. When they lose out on a place in the video, they run into a chauffeur who knows of another music video that they can star in and the money is just as good. They arrive at a posh Beverly Hills mansion only to find there is no music video. A young man greets them in the back yard where he offers them room and board for a couple of weeks to soothe the final days of the rich fabric tycoon that is dying of cancer. Nisi and Mickey are unaware that the young man, the nephew of the tycoon, is scheming to steal the old man's riches.

Nisi and Mickey help the old man come alive for his remaining days and I must admit I got caught up in it until the end where I came out of the fog I was in.

As I "woke up" it was then I realized I had been taken. But Townsend does a great job of getting the audience caught up. It is delightful comedy but I would rather have had something I had never seen before. Two sympathetic characters that are infectious and we want to see them win. That is formula. Their culture clashes with that of the affluent in Beverly Hills. Sounds like a certain hillbilly sitcom of old. And the ending is definitely fairy tale. All of this adds up to audiences laughing, sobbing and cheering, and, yes, I was reeled in but came back to my senses in time to know.

Townsend, who has a deft

comic sensibility, makes Halle Berry (Executive Decision) come off as funny. Her performance is too exaggerated for me, but I stomached it. Yet Natalie Desselle (Set It Off) is a find. She can be annoying but she is comical despite her cloying yells. Martin Landau (Ed Wood) is the old tycoon. Landau is not on the screen long enough to judge his performance but he looks as though he enjoyed this role. And for basketball fans, Chicago Bulls star Dennis Rodman makes a cameo.

I hate to be manipulated. Reviewing movies is supposed to be analytical. But I'll give credit where it is due. Townsend captured my attention, but it is safe to say he did not capture my praise.

Turbo: A Power Rangers Adventure (PG): Turbo is obviously going to appeal to all those young Power Ranger fans. There parents may not approve though. Although, I did hear some parents actually bestow accolades to it. I felt that they were saying it to make their kids happy. But I am going to be honest-- it stinks.

The Power Rangers go about ridding the world of evil, dim-witted villains and trying to save an alien wizard that sounds like E.T., has the healing touch of E.T., and even has big eyes like E.T. But let's get one thing straight, he is not E.T. And this is not an adventure worth showing on the movie screen either. It's just another episode from the on going television series.

Parents may tell me not to take this too seriously, but when I see demonic possession and a scary looking creature coming out of a fiery pit, I think I have a point-- this is not for kids. Aside from those observations about the movie's content, I should say that I was happy at one point-- when it was over.

In my opinion, a movie like this is just a shallow front for more toy marketing. Some one could make the argument that Disney pictures do the same thing as a thumb happy movie critic from Chicago once argued with me. But the fact is that Disney is more shy about it. They actually give us good movies to go along with their latest toy drives. I am actually looking forward to Disney's next animated picture. Not another Power Rangers movie. Let's face it, the Power Rangers is another big toy fad like Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles and producers of these one dimensional super heroes are interested in profit instead of staying power. Will the Power Rangers stay around as long as Superman, for instance? I think not.

The movie does offer a new headache for parents as it introduces multiple possibilities for additional Power Ranger products. I can see wallets and purses amok now. My advice is don't cave in. Maybe they will stop making these movies then. To paraphrase the Power Rangers theme: "Go, go Power Rangers. Go, go far away!"

Sanford's King Snake Records hosting Easter Blues Show

By DAVID FRAZIER
Herald Staff Writer

King Snake Records of Sanford will be hosting "The Easter Blues Show", Saturday, March 29. The blues show will be held at the new St. Johns Bar at Lake Monroe Inn in Sanford. King Snake performing artists set to play will be Ace Moreland, Bob Greenlee, Floyd Miles & Friends, Mark Hodgson and Noble "Thin Man" Watts. The "bluesathon" begins at 9:30 p.m. and the party runs throughout the night.

King Snake Records has been in business since 1988 and it has grown into one of America's most respected independent labels. They have a catalog of over sixty CD/cassettes in release. King Snake specializes in music of the South including "roots rock", country and jazz.

King Snake emphasizes production. They have a state-of-the-art 24 track studio, studio musicians (including a horn section and female background singers), and a staff of experienced writer-arrangers.

Blues is the main staple of King Snake records. Records and productions from King Snake blues consistently rank in the top ten of Living Blues Magazine's Blues Chart. There are several musicians on King Snake's blues label and there are several musicians under "roots rock". With these musicians, King Snake is trying to reshape and breathe new life into a dormant Southern Rock genre.

Some of the featured performers have been King Snake regulars for a long time. Ace Moreland signed on with the label and cut an album called Sizzlin' Hot!. Moreland was signed by King Snake producer and Daytona Beach resident Bob Greenlee. Greenlee will also be performing as well. Noble "Thin Man" Watts is also a Florida native born in DeLand. Watts is most noted for his saxophone playing. There are other featured performers and others not included in the names above.

Many people may not feel that blues is a part of Easter, but King Snake is willing to change that with this entertaining night. For more information on the event plus directions, call Shelley at 323-6767 or just stop by King Snake Records for details.

Some ideas on baseball, NCAA hoops

SANFORD — Once again the Big Blue Bonanza Baseball Tournament was a big success. The tournament, which was supposed to end early this afternoon, had 12 pretty closely matched teams and was a good showcase for the four Seminole Athletic Conference teams...

The weather has been beautiful, the games have started on time, and there has been plenty of exciting play on the field. It has also been an odd tournament in that through Wednesday, there had been six grand slams hit. There have been a lot of years where you don't see six home runs hit, let alone six grand slams.

And if history means anything, another baseball state championship could be headed for Seminole County in early May. In eight of the nine years the Big Blue had been contested, the first or second place finishing team has gone on to win a state championship. And will Seminole playing so well and being a Class 5A school, maybe two teams can win state crowns.

GIVE KNIGHT CREDIT — Now I think I have heard everything. Bob Knight is being condemned for HEADING THE FIGHT.

Several sports radio shows and newspaper articles have gotten on Knight for telling Neil Reid an upcoming senior that he will not play much next year and it would be in his best interest to transfer to another school.

But Reid should be happy. Knight could have just sat back and not said anything and just let Reid wallow on the bench next year. But he called in the young man and told him where he stood and gave him the opportunity to go elsewhere and maybe be a starter.

If he wants to stay and get his degree, fine. If not, but he will be happy sitting on the bench.

SPEAKING OF THE FINAL FOUR — The City of Indianapolis has got to be hoping this morning. The atmosphere around a Final Four is amazing. I had the opportunity to attend the Final Four in New Orleans in 1987 and I was in awe most of the time.

You could hang around the hotel and see CBS doing radio and television interviews or sit in the lobby and talk to just about every former college coach in the country. It didn't matter what time of day or night it was, there was always a group of people in the hotel.

And then you would go to the game and experience the excitement of the event.

And while I was in New Orleans I was riding back from a game on the bus and had Gene Keady, Purdue's coach, ask me what I thought of the game. I was so amazed I almost couldn't speak. I also got to attend the All-Star game, in which David Robinson was the star, and sat right behind former Laker superstar Jerry West and NBA super scout Marty Blake. What a weekend.

I also want to say congratulations to the man I share a name with, North Carolina's Dean Smith. He deserves all of the accolades he gets. To be this good for this long and still have the love for the game and his players that he does is remarkable.

I think any one of the four teams can win this year, they seem to be very closely matched. But I have to give the edge to North Carolina because they are the hottest team playing right now with an 18 game winning streak, the coaching of coach Smith and the fact they have a Central Florida athlete, Daytona Beach's Vince Carter, playing for them. Go Tar Heels.

GOOD TRADE FOR BRAVES, INDIANS — The trade that brought Kenny Lofton and Allen Embry to the Atlanta Braves and sent Marquis Grissom and David Justice to the Cleveland Indians is a good one for both teams.

Both teams still have one of the best leadoff hitters and center fielders in the game. Atlanta gets to clear some money to sign future free agents and clear up a congested outfield and the Indians get another power hitter to make up for the loss of Albert Belle to the White Sox.

It also gives Andrew Jones and Ryan Klesko the opportunity to play everyday, especially since Jermaine Dye was traded to the Kansas City Royals on Thursday. Keeping all of those players would have been a nightmare for Bobby Cox, because he would have had to have found a way to get playing time for five outfielders and also keep them happy. And that would be impossible.

WES RINKER FIELD? — With the City of Sanford getting ready to refurbish the Sanford Memorial Stadium, maybe it would be a good time to consider naming the field after Wes Rinker. I don't think you should change the name of the stadium, because we should never forget our military veterans. But maybe call it Wes Rinker Field at Sanford Memorial Stadium.

I have spoke to several people at the Big Blue this week who like the idea. After all, if Rinker had not come along in the mid-70's to return the field to baseball shape, the stadium probably would have been gone a long time ago.

Rinker, who passed away in November, also had a big hand in the resurgence of interest in baseball in this community, along with the efforts of Whitley Eckstein, Mike Powers, Charlie Lytle, Rocky Ellingsworth and Jim Schaefer, just to name a few.

Pirates, Marlins use big innings to post wins

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — The TEC Mortgage Pirates and North and Son Roofing Marlins used strong hitting and solid pitching to even their records at 3-3 with comfortable wins in the Sanford Recreation Department Babe Ruth Baseball Humboldt League at U. Mellon Park Thursday night.

The Pirates used a six run second inning to open a lead and pitchers Michael Schwartz and Justin Klauk made it stand up as they upset the first place Enterprise Trucking Braves 11-8.

The Marlins also used a big inning, seven runs in the fifth, to best the Rinker Materials Devil Rays 1-0. The Marlins scored eight runs in the first inning and Ladarus Rudolph and Steve Back ran in two runs in the fifth.

There will be no games this weekend as the league takes off for the Easter holiday.

The standings in the American Division are: Railroaders, White Sox, 4-0; Sunland, 3-3.

Table with 4 columns: Team, W, L, Pct. Includes TEC Mortgage Pirates, Enterprise Trucking Braves, Rinker Materials Devil Rays, North and Son Roofing Marlins.

Leaders lengthen lead on strength of upset

From Staff Reports

LAKE MARY — The second Florida Soccer League match of the season, the 1997 season, was held on Saturday, March 22, at the Lake Mary Department of Parks and Recreation Men's Soccer Field. The match was between the Lake Mary Soccer Club and the Lake Mary Soccer Club.

With a goal capped a three run bottom of the seventh inning with a bases loaded two out single, the complete rally from a 2-0 deficit and gave U.S. Postal Service the monster victory, and found Neo N Easy its second straight setback.

With their nearest competition, posting a league leading, four, two and Muller Center, and second place Columbia Medical Center, both posted shutouts.

Ron's Tire and Muller Center trailed Don Meany's Seminole Ford 1-0 heading into the bottom of the third inning, but winning pitcher Tom Carney put Ron's ahead to stay with a three run inside the park home run as the leaders won 1-1 in five innings.

Things did not go as easy for Columbia Medical Center as Celeste Industries took a 1-0 lead in the top of the first inning and was still leading 1-0 going into the bottom of the fifth inning. But Columbia Medical Center was not ready to see its five game winning streak come to an end and called for three runs in the fifth inning and three runs in the sixth inning to best Celeste Industries 12-9.

Ron's Tire and Muller Center improved to 7-1 and leads Columbia Medical Center 17-21 by a half game. Neo N Easy is third at 4-3 and is followed by Celeste Industries and United Postal Service (both 4-3).

Table with 4 columns: Team, W, L, Pct. Includes Neo N Easy, United States Postal Service, Don Meany's Seminole Ford, Ron's Tire and Muller Center, Celeste Industries, Columbia Medical Center.

Scott Murphy went 2-for-2 with a triple in the 1-2-3 scoring third inning and drove in six runs to help the Central Baptist Church defeat the Enterprise Trucking Braves 11-8.

Six run magic at Chase Park

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Six run innings played a major role in the outcomes of the games in the Sanford Recreation Department Men's Chase Park Spring Showdown Softball League Thursday night.

All Souls Catholic Church of Sanford scored six runs in the sixth inning to take a 6-0 lead and hold on for a 13-7 victory over Central Baptist Church of Sanford, and Ure City scored six runs in the second and sixth innings tolobber M.E. Muggs 18-6 in six innings.

Providing the offense were: All Souls Catholic Church, three hits — Jim Schaefer (two doubles, two runs, two RBIs), two hits — Eric Shogan (triple, run, two RBIs), Dennis Roman (two RBIs), Pat Holt and Anton Grooms (two runs scored each), Joe Hill and Don Mather (one run scored each), Joe Hill — Rick Less (run, RBI), Pat Larkin and Mike Schaefer (one run scored each), one run — John Karwin (one RBI), Ron Shonitz.

Central Baptist Church, two hits — Bill Ross (RBI), Mike McCoy and Jay Crutcheild (two runs scored).

Santo makes history at Orlando SpeedWorld

Special to the Herald

DITHLO — History was made at Orlando SpeedWorld last Friday night as Debbie Santo became the first female driver to win a feature in the track's premier Late Model Division.

Santo started her RCD Adhesives/Santo's Automotive Monte Carlo on the pole and led every lap to post the victory.

Only one caution slowed the 25 lapper for the smoking car of Ricky Wood. At that point, Tim Huston began to apply the pressure from the second spot, but Santo was up to the challenge to take a well deserved win.

Huston held on for second over Rusty Ebersole, Bill Keeton and Nate Smith. Just like Santo did in the Late Models, veteran Bobby Sears did likewise in the Limited Late Models headliner, leading all 15 laps from the pole to victory.

Mike Murphy trailed in second, followed by Earl Beckner, Larry Ostren and Tommy Johnson.

The Florida Dwarf Car Association feature was a cake walk for two-time champion Rick Landon of Jacksonville, who led all the way despite several yellow flags that slowed the action. Rob Smith came from deep in the field to take second ahead of Dennis Benoit, Bob Quick and Dan Nyhan.

When leaders Tim Laurent and Robert Yoho tangled on Lap 8, Joe Middleton took over and ran to his fourth Modified win of the season. Laurent and Yoho raced back to back to back.

 take second and third ahead of Skip Honaker and Darren Gould.
 Dink Sullivan finally found his way back to victory lane in the Mini-Stocks bringing his Flirt Fashions Pinto in ahead of perennial Conrad Grenier, who settled for second. Kelly Jarrett, Brian Bellaw and Scott Reeves completed the top five.
 Dan Zukowski looked to have the Sportman feature in the bag until his car began spraying water and he was back flagged. Barbara Pierce took over at that point and cruised to her second straight victory in the division. A late charge netted Rusty Edwards second spot ahead of Bill Loomis, Russ Shaw and Sean Murphy.

 Jeff Wright took another win in the Bombers, but only after apparent winner Harley Gibbons was disqualified for running the wrong size tires. Following Wrighty to the checkers were Mike Peppier, impressive newcomer Craig Seaward, Doug Samton and David Gould.
 Danny Watson won the Run-A-Bout feature, while John Zidek dominated the Four-Cylinder Bombers.

'Eggstra' safe easter recipes

Avoid risk of foodborne illnesses

You may want to update holiday recipes that use raw or lightly cooked eggs to avoid the risk of foodborne illness. That's because we now know that refrigerated grade A eggs with clean, uncracked shells — those usually assumed to be safe — can be contaminated with Salmonella enteritidis bacteria.

Scientists strongly suspect that bacteria can be transmitted from infected laying hens directly into the interior of the egg before the shells are formed.

Eggs must be cooked thoroughly in order to kill any bacteria — such as salmonella — that may be present. If your egg recipe calls for raw eggs, it's not safe. Likewise, neither is Hollandaise sauce or mousse. Don't worry about cakes, cookies and candies though. Eggs used in baking get thoroughly cooked, and candy (such as divinity) containing eggs reaches temperatures far above that needed to kill bacteria. However, raw cookie dough isn't safe to eat!

BARBARA HUGHES/GREGG

Holidays are a fun but a hectic time. By egg-proofing your recipes for safety, you'll have one less thing to worry about.

NEWS FOR EGG LOVERS

New studies indicate that today's average raw egg contains about 213 milligrams of cholesterol. This is approximately 23 percent less than previously reported. More sophisticated nutrient analysis techniques and changes in how chickens are bred and fed account for this reduction.

Holiday Eggog
1 quart two percent milk
6 eggs
1 1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 cup sugar

1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup whipping cream, whipped
ground nutmeg
Heat milk in large saucepan until hot (do not boil or scald). While milk is heating, beat together eggs and salt in a large bowl, gradually adding the sugar. Gradually add the hot milk mixture to the egg mixture. Transfer the mixture back to the larger saucepan and cook on medium-low heat. Stir constantly with a whisk until mixture thickens and just coats a spoon. Thermometer should register 160 degrees F. Stir in vanilla. Cool quickly by setting pan in a bowl of ice or cold water and stirring for about 10 minutes. Cover and refrigerate until thoroughly chilled, several hours or overnight. Pour into a bowl or pitcher. Fold in whipped cream and dust with ground nutmeg. Calories: 135 per 1/2 cup. Cholesterol: 120 mg. per 1/2 cup. Yield: 2 quarts.

Low-Cholesterol Eggog
1/3 cup egg substitute
3 teaspoon sugar
1 can (13 oz.) evaporated skim milk

3/4 cup skim milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon rum flavoring (optional)
ground nutmeg
Whip egg substitute and sugar together and combine with two types of milk and flavoring. Mix well. Chill overnight. Dust with nutmeg before serving. Calories: 96 per 1/2 cup. Cholesterol: 4 mg. per 1/2 cup. Yield: 3 cups.

Zero-Cholesterol Hollandaise Sauce
1/2 cup egg substitute
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
pinch of cayenne pepper
1/3 cup margarine
Put egg substitute, lemon juice and cayenne pepper into blender or food processor. Blend. Heat margarine to boiling, either on the stove or in a glass measuring cup in the microwave. Turn on blender and pour boiling margarine through lid. Blend. Sauce should thicken slightly. Calories: 35 per Tbsp. Cholesterol: 0. Yield: 1 cup.

'We teach others how to treat us'

Dear Mary,

I've been seeing this guy for a couple of years and when we first started dating he treated me like a queen. But anymore, it seems like any time I express an opinion on something he puts me down. It hurts my feelings whenever he does it, but it makes me furious when he does it in front of other people. I keep trying to tell him how I feel about it when he does this to me, but he just blows off what I'm saying like it's silly or trivial.

If I could just get him to see that what he's doing hurts me, and he would stop, things would be great between us. As it is, it's getting to where I'm afraid to open my mouth about anything for fear that he'll put me down for what I say. I don't want to lose him, but how can I get him to respect me and stop putting me down?

Beat Down Verbally
Dear Boston,
This guy puts you down then ignores you when you tell him that it hurts you, but you say you don't want to lose — what is wrong with this picture? You are never going to get him to respect you because you don't respect yourself. There is an old adage that says, "We teach others how to treat us." He has learned that you are not going to stand up for yourself and act in your own behalf. So, as long as you are with him, you can expect the put-downs to continue and probably get worse. When you decide you've had enough and are willing to risk being alone for a time, you can say to him, "I'm sick of your put-downs and insults and I'm not going to tolerate it anymore. I don't want to see you again unless or until you decide that you will treat me with the respect I deserve, and stop the stupid, belittling outbursts." Then do it.

But, by all means, don't threaten if you're not strong enough to follow through on what you say you're going to do. Nothing could put you in a weaker position. From your letter, I get the feeling you need to take a hard look at yourself and ask why you're so afraid to be alone that you will allow yourself to be treated this badly.

Watch hospital bedside manners

DEAR ABBY: During a recent hospital stay, I shared a room with a younger woman (I am 41, she is about 25). We both had surgery. I was quite miserable and groggy, lying in my bed, and I remember when they wheeled her into the room and pulled the curtain. Her "fiance" followed them into the room after her surgery, and immediately started to make telephone calls — one after the other — telling them all the sordid details of her appendectomy. He would hang up, then call somebody else and tell them the same thing.

The woman never said anything — I think she was still out from the anesthesia. I was happy to hear that he was going home to change clothes. Finally he left, and I drifted back off to sleep. A few hours later, he returned with a ton of shelves on. Again he picked up the phone and proceeded to brag it.

I finally requested a room transfer, and I'm sure they didn't have a clue as to why I had to get away from him.

If he recognizes himself in this letter, please give a little consideration to the other person in the room. It is a curious that separates us — not the Berlin Wall! And don't over-hill on the perfumes. We are in the hospital because we are sick, and the smell can make it worse. Also, do not hog the telephone to call everyone you know to tell them that so-and-so is in the hospital. Go home to do it!
C.Y., CHAFFER, MO.

DEAR C.Y.: Thank you for a super letter. I'll bet this goes up on a couple of hundred bulletin boards in unspoken hospitals.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 48-year-old happily married woman with three adult children. The youngest one is graduating from high school this year. My mother died six years ago, and my father married a woman who has a personality that's very difficult for me to like. (We don't know anyone who really likes her.)

We have them over, and as far as she knows, everything is fine. But she not only comes between Dad and his family, she also creates an atmosphere where none of us can be ourselves.

We would love to see Dad by himself sometimes (when she comes over she takes over the conversation).

We don't want another happy occasion spoiled, as has happened so many times in the past.

Abby, when there is a second marriage, is it unreasonable to ask the parent not to include the new spouse in some family get-togethers?

STUCK IN OKLAHOMA
DEAR ABBY: I couldn't recommend to play it safe, this year longer and invite her.

DEAR ABBY: My dear friend has a habit that is driving me crazy. She comes to my house often, which is not the problem. But when she is there, she checks out any invitations, notices or upcoming events I've circled and put on my refrigerator or clipped to a magnet. She then asks who, what, when and why. I've become so uncomfortable I put everything away when she comes to visit.

It's not funny anymore when she "jokingly" says, "Oh, you're doing this with your other friends." We spend a great deal of time together, but I do have other friends and I don't always want to include her. Do you have any suggestions?
HATE TO BE RUDE

DEAR HATE TO BE RUDE: Your friend is trying to put you on the spot, but you are under no obligation to justify your other activities to her. The next time she comments, say, "Yes, I'm looking forward to that." Then turn the conversation to another topic.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MY READERS: Easter is nearly here, so if you plan to surprise a child with a live rabbit, baby duck or chick, please consider this: Living creatures need proper care. Unless you are absolutely certain that the little pot will receive the care it needs to survive, please give a stuffed bird or animal instead. Baby animals, regardless of how cute they are, should not be given to young children on impulse. Animals are not "toys" to be mailed, abused or neglected.

DEAR ABBY: I have read and enjoyed your column for years, and I have learned from it, too. I have quite a collection of your columns that I keep for referral to friends and family when needed.

Referring to your answer to "Miss X," the pre-surgical transsexual who asked about using the woman's rest room, you may want to remind him (her) to lower the pants and sit, rather than stand.

My sister was in a rest room recently and was quite surprised when she looked down to see feet pointing toward the wall and heard "water running" in the next stall. She didn't know whether to stay in her stall or venture out to see who would be coming out from next door. Curiosity got the best of her and she observed the occupant leaving, walking very unsteadily on "her" high heels.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Just when these cross-dressers think they have thought of everything, they forget to point their feet in the right direction.
JOYCE IN RICHMOND, VA.

DEAR JOYCE: I'm sure you will agree that some habits become so ingrained they are hard to break.

DEAR ABBY: The letter about church bulletin blunders in a recent column reminded me of a funny thing that happened in our church some time ago. It made me glad that I had learned to speak our language by rote as a child. Just imagine the agony foreign-born adults must undergo in learning how to speak English, with all the inconsistencies in pronouncing words with similar spellings — with "ough" in them, for example.

In this instance, a priest visiting from India was saying Mass, and typically the priest reads the Gospel aloud. This Gospel reading was about a woman who was preparing to have bread when Jesus came to visit. Naturally, she suspended her preparation then, and the priest continued to read "... she put her 'stuff' on the table."

I don't think the priest ever understood why that was greeted with such laughter.

IN BRIEF

Service service

SANFORD — The Rev. Clifford V. Melvin, pastor of First United Methodist Church of Sanford, will deliver the message of a Sunrise Easter Service this Sunday at 8:15 a.m. at Memorial Park, located beside the Sanford Marina on Lake Monroe.

The service is open to the public. Music will be directed by Dan B. Sellers and provided by a brass ensemble from UCF (University of Central Florida).

Play presented

SANFORD — Historic St. James AME Church will present a play entitled, "The Crucifixion," written and directed by Caroline Stine and co-directed by Rudy Adams and Fannie Miller.

The play will take place tomorrow at 7 p.m. The church is located at 819 Cypress Ave.

Easter service

SANFORD — Sanford Christian Worship Center, 1509 W. 15th St., will hold its Easter service at 11 a.m. Gospel music will be presented by "The Faithful Two Gospel Singers," "The Wings of Joy" and "Bro. Thomas Toliver and the Servants." The public is invited to attend.

Pancake/sausage breakfast

LAKE MARY — Grace United Methodist Chrch, 400 N. Country Club Rd., will hold a Pancake & Sausage Breakfast on Sat., April 5 from 7 to 11 a.m. The cost is $5 for all you can eat.

This breakfast will be offered the first Saturday of each month.

Easter Egg Hunt

LAKE MARY — Covenant Community Church will hold an Easter egg hunt at Lake Mary City Hall tomorrow at 9:30 a.m. for children preschool through 5th grade. Prizes will be available for everyone.

There will be an Easter basket competition. Each child should bring a basket they have made or decorated.

For more information call 324-0808.

Easter service

LAKE MARY — First Baptist Church Markham Woods will hold Easter services at 9:15 a.m., 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m. The worship day will begin with a continental breakfast (RSVP at 333-3085) at 9:15 a.m. in the fellowship hall of the church with a time to greet and hear a brief word from the guest speaker, Dr. Phil Roberts, director of the Interfaith Witness Department of the Southern Baptist Home Mission Board in Atlanta, Ga.

Nursery will be provided for the 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m. services. For more details and for breakfast reservations call 333-3085.

Rummage sale

CASSELBERRY — The 18th Annual Youth Mission Rummage Sale will be held today and tomorrow in the lower parking lot of the Community United Methodist Church. Last year's sale attracted some 5,000 people in just two days. Over $13,000 was raised for youth mission projects. This sale has become a community-wide event. The sale will be held rain or shine from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day.

This year's sale will have everything from the kitchen sink to fur coats. Collection has been a year long project. Items include furniture, clothes, books, appliances, toys, kitchen needs, household items, etc.

At 3 p.m., an auction will be held which will feature good quality furniture and miscellaneous items. A professional auctioneer will conduct this sale.

The proceeds for this event go to funding in Kentucky and Tennessee. Some 60 youth and adults will be refurbishing homes, building a fellowship hall at a church and farming.

For more information call the church office at 631-3777 ext. 204.

Men's Morning Out

LAKE MARY — A Men's Morning Out will be sponsored at Holy Cross Lutheran Early Childhood Center, 780 Sun Dr., on Tues., Wed., and Thurs. mornings from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. The cost is $5 a class and is offered for ages 9 to 15 year olds.

For more information or sign up call 333-0797.

Save labels

SANFORD — Sanford Church of Christ, 1500 S. Park Ave., is working desperately to save Campbell soup, V-8 labels, Froggy spaghetti, Popsicle/Fruit, Vaseline and Swanson labels to purchase a church van. Members are short on funds so this alternative method can help provide transportation for youth activities, those unable to drive, running errands and visiting other church functions.

Anyone wishing to help with this effort please send labels to the church office at the above address at the zip code 32771 or call the church office at 323-7781.

Jeanette Stiffy will also pick up labels for those desiring to contribute. Please contact her at 323-8234. One million labels are necessary so much help is needed to make this goal a reality.

Men's Bible study

SANFORD — Each Monday at 7:30 p.m. Sanford Christian Church is conducting a Men's Bible study. Presently the study is looking into the seven steps outlined in Promise Keepers. The study is open to all men in the area.

Call 323-0280 for more information. The church is located at 730 Upson Rd. in Sanford.

Sweet Harmony helps mission

Sweet Harmony Chapter No. 388 Order of Eastern Star recently presented Minister Evangelist Joyce Shaw, of the William and Laurie Clark Mission on West 13th Street, a check to help with improvements at the mission. Minister Shaw is shown receiving the donation from Worthy Matron Eartha Melton and the members of the chapter.

Pastor speaks about Holy Week

SANFORD — Last Sunday was Palm Sunday, which was the beginning of Holy Week. This was the week our public schools were on vacation. How many of these thousands of persons will see this as an important Christian spiritual holiday and not just vacation time?

"When I see the blood, I will pass over you, and no plague shall destroy you." (Exodus 12:13) Certain holidays were instituted by God himself. Passover was designed to celebrate Israel's deliverance from Egypt and to remind people of what God had done. Holidays can be traditions in your family to highlight the spiritual significance of certain holidays like Palm Sunday, Maundy Thursday, Good Friday and Easter.

"He took a loaf of bread, and when he had given thanks, he broke it and gave it to them, saying, 'This is my body, which is given for you.'" (Luke 22:19) Jesus wanted the disciples to remember his sacrifice, the basis for forgiveness of sins, and also his friendship, which they could continue to enjoy through the work of the Holy Spirit...Christians still take bread and wine in their remembrance of their Lord, Savior, and Friend, Jesus Christ.

Many participated in the Lord's Supper last Sunday, which was Palm Sunday, during worship. I pray the Lord's Supper reminded you of what Christ did for you.

"He is not here; for he has been raised, as he said. Come, see the place where he lay."

Rev. Bruce Scott

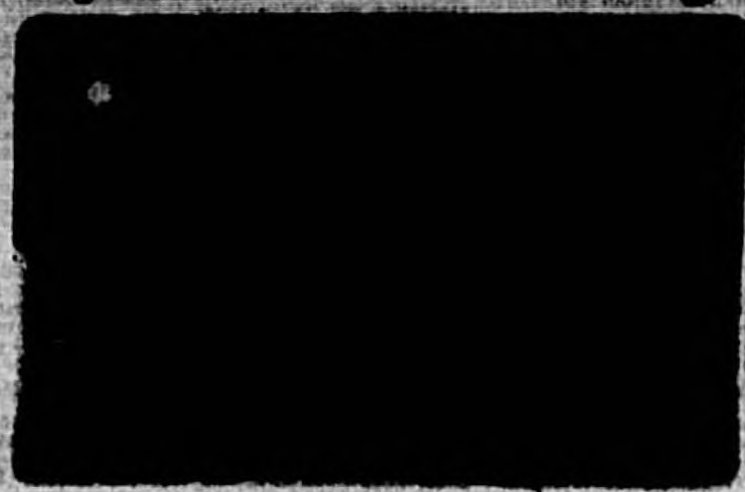

(Matt. 28:6) Jesus' resurrection is the key to the Christian faith...Jesus' bodily resurrection shows us that the living Christ is ruler of God's eternal kingdom, not a false prophet or impostor. We can be certain of our own resurrection because he was resurrected...The power that brought Jesus back to life is available to us to bring our spiritually dead selves back to life.

The resurrection is the basis for the church's witness to the world. Jesus is more than just a human leader; he is the Son of God.

As you celebrate Easter this Sunday, rejoice because your God is Alive.

Is The Human Race An Experiment That's Failing?

Now is the time to turn to the Bible if you care about your future, or if you've ever done anything you regret...

Now you can listen to the Bible with a personal message and receive every other day...with no special message required Sundays.

When drug therapy doesn't work

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 68-year-old husband has been diagnosed with Barrett's esophagus from a hiatal hernia. Despite Prilosec and antacids, he continues to experience heartburn, gas and diarrhea. Testing reveals continuing ulcerations in his esophagus. Is this condition dangerous? What can he do?

DEAR READER: In the presence of reflux, irritating stomach acid enters the lower esophagus, causing the symptoms that your husband has. Over several months, this continuing irritation may, in some patients, affect the cells of the esophageal lining, leading first to chronic ulcerations, then to Barrett's esophagus (a pre-malignant condition).

If the over-abundance of gastric acid is not controlled, the affliction can progress to cancer. Therefore, your husband needs two things:

First, a revision in his medicine. Ideally, this should be made by a gastroenterologist. If the Prilosec is not controlling the symptoms, your husband needs other drugs, such as Prevacid and Propulsid, that may be more effective. The specialist can help your husband gauge their effectiveness.

Second, close follow-up. Your husband needs to have periodic endoscopy, during which the specialist examines the lower esophagus for malignant changes. Biopsies may be necessary.

As a last resort, your husband may have to consider surgery to correct the reflux and remove the risk of cancer. There are several common procedures used for this purpose; the gastroenterologist can advise him.

In summary, your husband has a potentially serious but treatable condition that should be addressed by a specialist.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Hiatal Hernia." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is fibromyalgia? I was told by two doctors that this is what I have.

DEAR READER: This broad term encompasses a constellation of symptoms caused by several afflictions, including virus infections, Lyme disease, occupational strain, "rheumatism," and others.

Fibromyalgia occurs mainly in women. Symptoms of muscle pain, stiffness and tenderness, in association with soreness in surrounding tissues, are likely to be intensified by stress, insomnia and exposure to dampness or cold. Such patients are often healthy, competitive, tense, and anxious. Many are depressed.

The diagnosis is made by the characteristic patterns of the aches and by the exclusion of other physical ail-affliction, although troublesome, is benign), stretching exercises, application of heat, massage, medication to improve sleep, and anti-inflammatory drugs such as ibuprofen. Some patients respond to anti-depressants; others require cortisone injections into the most tender areas.

According to many authorities, the key element of successful therapy is a sympathetic physician who takes his patients' complaints seriously and is willing to provide encouragement and treatment to relieve the psychological (as well as the physical) discomfort.

Thus, the important facts for patients to grasp are that fibromyalgia is not a hazard to health, should not significantly interfere with the normal level of activity, and usually disappears over time — although recurrences are common.

By definition, for the British

By Phillip Alder

On the day of the Super Bowl, The Sunday Times in England printed "an A-Z (remember, that is A to zed, not A to zee) guide to the complex language of the gridiron." The first definition was Blitz: "Defensive manoeuvre whereby linebacker or defensive back rushes towards the quarterback to neutralise him as best he can without committing murder."

It is like that in bridge. The defenders rush the declarer, trying to sack the contract.

Defending against three spades. West starts with a top club: three, two, eight. What now?

North's three-club cue-bid showed at least a limit raise in spades: at least three or more trumps and a 10-plus support points. Having a minimum opening bid, South signed off. North, with a potentially useless club queen, accepted that decision.

As there were 12 points in the dummy, 13 in his hand and 12 or 13 chez declarer, it was clear to West that East didn't have many goodies. With no slow red-suit tricks to worry about, West found the killing defense. After winning trick one, he continued with the club king and a third club. This would work well if East had 10-x or K-x in spades.

Declarer ruffed in the dummy, discarding a diamond from hand. Now came a trump to South's 10 and West's jack. Finally, West led a fourth club, which East ruffed with the spade king. With the spade ace still to come, the defenders had five tricks: three spades and two clubs.

The final Sunday Times definition was: "Zzzzz. The result of drinking too much at pre-Bowl parties."

Your Birthday

Saturday, March 29, 1987

In the year ahead several opportunities might develop for you in places distant from your current abode. In order to reap the rewards, you might not even need to move to those locations.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Knowledge will be acquired today through your personal experiences. What you learn you'll remember and use to your advantage in the near future. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Instead of not doing anything constructive today, devote some time to your social life. Get out and circulate in places where you could meet influential people.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In a joint endeavor today, things could work out rather well for your partner and yourself. It will be up to you, however, to plan your course of action.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The timing is much better now for resurrecting an old project you've discarded. With a few dabs of ingenuity and a touch of elbow grease, its value can be enhanced.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You will be easily accepted by others wherever you go today. If you use your consideration, charm and thoughtfulness, they will make you a most welcome companion.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This could be a good day to take care of a demanding project around the house which you felt you couldn't handle well previously; you'll like the results.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Some good news might come your way today, so keep your lines of communication open. Stay in touch with persons who are pertinent to your immediate plans.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) General conditions may take a favorable turn today pertaining to a domestic matter about which you've been doubtful. Keep your fingers crossed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your optimism is justified today, because something good could be in store for you. It involves other persons whose interests are similar to yours.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This is one of those times when people are likely to treat you in a more generous fashion than usual, even individuals you thought never noticed you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) This can be an exciting day for you if you associate with persons you truly like. Be very selective regarding your companions.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Chances might be open today that can benefit you in some specific manner, especially in developments that others have successfully initiated.
