North bids six diamonds to show second-round diamond control and an acceptance of the idea of playing at a grand slam and that should be enough for South. His partner has opened the bidding jumped, shown first-round heart and second-round diamond control and invited seven.

He must have the king of spades and ace-king of clubs for all that bidding. So South simply closes the bidding at seven spades.

High Unemployment Rate Sparks Action Commission Seeks Federal Aid For County

By ED PRICKETT
Herald Staff Writer

Once that happens, he says, he will push for a "viable work program" that "will create employment in Seminole County."

Adding that he's concerned about the unemployment rate the chairman said employment is one of the major issues in this county.

The designation means cities, as well as the county, may apply for federal aid for certain projects outlined by the Department of Commerce. The specifics are outlined in the Redevelopment Act of 1965.

Vihlen said county officials are "not committing to anything in terms of finance," but he said the county needs to put together a "work plan" which can be submitted to the federal government.

Jim Daniel was appointed by the commission to formulate the work plan, which would be submitted to commerce officials and could eventually lead to more jobs for Seminole Countians.

John L. Frailey, a commerce department spokesman, said cities may also initiate requests for work projects, with or without assistance from the county.

Frailey said 19 Florida counties already have been designated redevelopment areas.

He said 36 additional counties in the state are in a position to qualify.

Vihlen noted the port in Sanford was constructed under a similar program.

Calling Seminole County an "economically depressed area," Vihlen lobbied for the designation.

Seminole County's unemployment rate jumped to 12.6 per cent in August, with 6,700 workers idled, according to state officials.

In April, unemployment in Seminole rose to 13.2 per cent, the highest rate the county has experienced in 17 years, according to Ralph Prescott, manager of Sanford's employment office.

The national unemployment rate for August was 8.4 per cent.

And the law states a county may apply for aid after the rate stays higher than national figures for a year's time.

If employment picks up, the designation may be dropped.

But Frailey said, generally, counties keep the designation in order to qualify for federal programs.

Daniel met with Frailey Tuesday to determine just what the designation means and what county officials specifically may qualify for in terms of aid.

Checks Shorted By Error Budget Disapproval At Issue

Paychecks for 39 Seminole County employees will be short by a total of about $12,000 this week because county commissioners Tuesday "forgot" to correct a "foulup" in the clerk's office.

"It's a mistake, and it's unfortunate. Some people are getting only 20 or 30 cents because of a mistake in the clerk's office," Commission Chairman Sid Vihlen Jr. said.

The "foulup," as it was called, was brought to the commission's attention by Sig Pearson, the county's chief of the Office of Management Analysis and Evaluation (OMAE).

"It's a screwy setup," Pearson said, referring to the fact that the error will cost him $85.

"Every check is shorted $10 and up, and in some cases one day's pay is missing," Pearson added.

The commission had three choices: Okay an advance, offer a temporary salary increase, or just forget about it. Early in the meeting commissioners asked Abby Jones, deputy circuit court clerk, for additional information, but the issue before Tuesday's meeting ended. And Tuesday was the final meeting of this fiscal year.

Asked why no action was taken during the meeting, Vihlen said, "I guess we just forgot."

"The 'foulup' occurred because the county last year switched from monthly to weekly paychecks. Thus, some county administrators had drawn almost all their entire yearly salary before the year was ended, leaving them with shortened paychecks on the last week of the fiscal year.

However, Vihlen and Jones both agreed the annual "salary" was paid in full. "But as a result of the 'foulup,' Vihlen instructed the OMAE office to assist the clerk's office in getting the problem straightened out.

Earlier in the meeting, Commissioner Dick Williams requested some sort of action to bail out those administrators who will receive little or no pay at week's end.

"It's no foulup of theirs. Some of them might be hurt," Williams said.

He also stressed that it's "no foulup of ours. It's the fault of the clerk's."

Jones was reluctant to discuss the issue in detail.

He did say, however, that monthly pay is the best method from a bookkeeper's point of view.

Up until last year the county always paid administrators each month. But the method changed and weekly paychecks began flowing.

Everything flowed smoothly up until this week when, for 39 workers, the flow dribbled to a halt — and in some cases stopped entirely.

Cleveland Named To Fight Polk's Lawsuit

In that fight South Seminole residents sought to have the courthouse built in the south part of the county, but the courts ruled in favor of the commission and the courthouse is now in Sanford.

When Kimbrough first asked that Cleveland be appointed to deal with the sheriff, he told a reporter that Freeman's reply to the sheriff's appeal was "inadequate" in that it contained language of a "political nature" rather than sticking strictly to the legal aspect of Polk's appeal.

Kimbrough feared Polk's attorney, Doug Stromstrom, would take advantage of working in Freeman's appeal.

Cleveland said today he's "accumulating data" for next Thursday's hearing; he also said he's utilizing data provided him by Freeman's office.

His entrance into the issue at such a late date will in no way compromise the county's position in the case, Cleveland said.

Albert Chairs Seminar Expert Panel Details Seniors' Medical Care

By AUDIE MURPHY

Florida Manor, addressed the seminar on the subject of nursing homes. Harris reminded the audience that a nursing home is not a place one goes to die.

"Last year we discharged to their homes over 90 per cent of patients admitted, he said.

Harris said the Medicaid program financed most nursing home patients — 12,750 in Florida alone. Harris stressed the Medicaid program is not welfare, but an effort by the state to help senior citizens deal with high medical bills.

Mike Roberts, director of the Bay Area Home Health Services, Inc. of Seminole, said the federal government had designed the home health program to relieve pressure on nursing homes.

Other members of the panel: Bea Fitch, a Social Security representative; Audrey LaMirance, of the Division of Family Services; Don Holdaway, manager, Orlando Branch, Blue Cross and Blue Shield; Mary Lou Knight and Betty Todd, R.N., both of Seminole Memorial Hospital.

He Was Patty Hears' Landlord

Jerry Prill Brushed With Fame, (Almost) Fortune

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
The Herald Services
SAN FRANCISCO — Lie in the afternoon, on the day of Patty Hears' capture, Jerry Prill was still bewildered by the commotion. He was also self-restraining.
"I gooded," he said. He pointed a finger at the kid who lived across the street from 625 Morse and said to him, "You gooded, too. We could had all that money."
Prill was cutting lumber in the garage. He convinced them he owned the place. They showed him pictures of his enemies. The connection hit him. He immediately recognized Patty but couldn't identify the other — "She looked Spanish or something or oriental."
Prill didn't have a key to the front door. He led the FBI men through the garage and up the white-railed back steps of the red building to the rear door of the flat.
Wenry Yoshimura, a fugitive artist aligned with the Symbionese Liberation Army, opened a small window set in the door, saw the five strangers with Prill and lurched to retreat.
"Don't move," said the lead FBI man with a drawn gun, "or I'll blow your head off." Prill ducked low and FBI agents and

San Francisco police jumped in front of him.
They barged through the flimsy door, nudged Wendy and found Patty in the back. "She smiled," recalls Prill. All he could think of was that "$10,000 reward I didn't collect — I wished I knew who was living up there."
Prill's brush with quick fame and vanished fortune started a couple of Sundays before when he held open house to rent the second floor flat. From the rear, the tedious rows of drab block houses hugging the cliffs of Daly City form a backdrop like starched laundry. From the front picture window, the hills of Balboa Park are more pleasant. The kid across the street remembers seeing Patty peek through that window with its drawn blinds.
The neighborhood is modest blue collar. A young fellow, seeing the "open house" sign, drove up late that Sunday morning and told Prill he wanted the flat for himself, his wife and her sister. He gave Prill $50 in cash on the spot as a down payment and wrote a check for $180 for the first month's rent. Prill remembers "He was a nice looking fella."
The flat has one bedroom, a living room, bathroom and kitchen. It is sparsely furnished — a bed, two chairs and a kitchen table. The new tenant signed a rental agreement, and Prill kept a copy which he later put in his downtown office in a cash box, along with the check. He couldn't even remember the name on the documents. He didn't see the other tenants but stayed in the car which was parked out front.

"I don't care who lives in the place," he shrugs, "or how many, as long as I get the rent."
Prill is not your usual landlord. Or plumber. Stocky, about 5 feet 8 inches, virtually bald, with a creased face, he looks all of his 49 years. He speaks with a noticeable accent, although he has lived in the United States for the last 27 years. A native of Goltvodlav in eastern Czechoslovakia (where, he points out, Bata shoes were first manufactured), he was serving in the Czech army in 1949 when he decided he had existed long enough under a Communist regime. Armed with a pistol, he escaped into Germany at a border point behind a screen of gunfire. He signed with the Ontario Paper Co. to work in their Alaska plant and eventually made his way to San Francisco and a new life.
Besides his plumbing and heating contracting business, he has considerable real estate — he buys old houses and renovates them himself. "I'm making all right," he says. "I'm rich enough." He has tagged the house at 625 Morse Street for sale at $50,000. His wife, Ann, also has her own business, a little bierstube and restaurant just outside the Presidio army base in the city, called "The Europa."

On Thursday morning, Sept. 18, about 9 a.m., Ann had the first presence that the Prills — the name has been changed from the original Czech because of "so many Communists around," explains Jerry — were to be part of a bigger story.

FBI agents came to "The Europa" and showed her photographs for possible identification. Ann shrugged because she has never been to 625 Morse. "Jerry," she explains, "He thinks of the money. I think of the soul." Ann called Jerry on a plumbing job at 18th and Church, telling him some men had been around asking about his tenants. Jerry shrugged and went on with the work.
At noon, Prill went to the house on Morse for supplies he stores in the Garage. He opened the garage door, which faces the street, and started sawing some boards. Upstairs — the first floor was vacant for renovation — he could hear girls laughing. He remembered seeing them a couple of days earlier in the backyard, where there were strawberries in the garden. He didn't talk to them. "Bunch of good-looking girls," he recalls. "I can't talk. I have a young wife. She's 30 and she's like a cat."

Prill was still cutting wood, and thinking about leaving for Vienna on Monday for a month's vacation, when the FBI and police, who obviously had staked out the house, converged on him. "Everybody jump on my neck," he recalls.
The rest is a little hazy in his mind. "I got too much excitement," he smiles apologetically. "I feel kind of stupid. Do I turn them in if I know? Sure. I hate all kind Communists. Besides, if I know it was her, I collect reward." Not really, because there was no reward outstanding, according to an FBI source. Almost a year ago, Randolph Hearst, Patty's father, withdrew an original $50,000 reward for information leading to her return.
Jerry Prill's tangible loss is that $180 he got for the first month's rent. He never cashed the check.

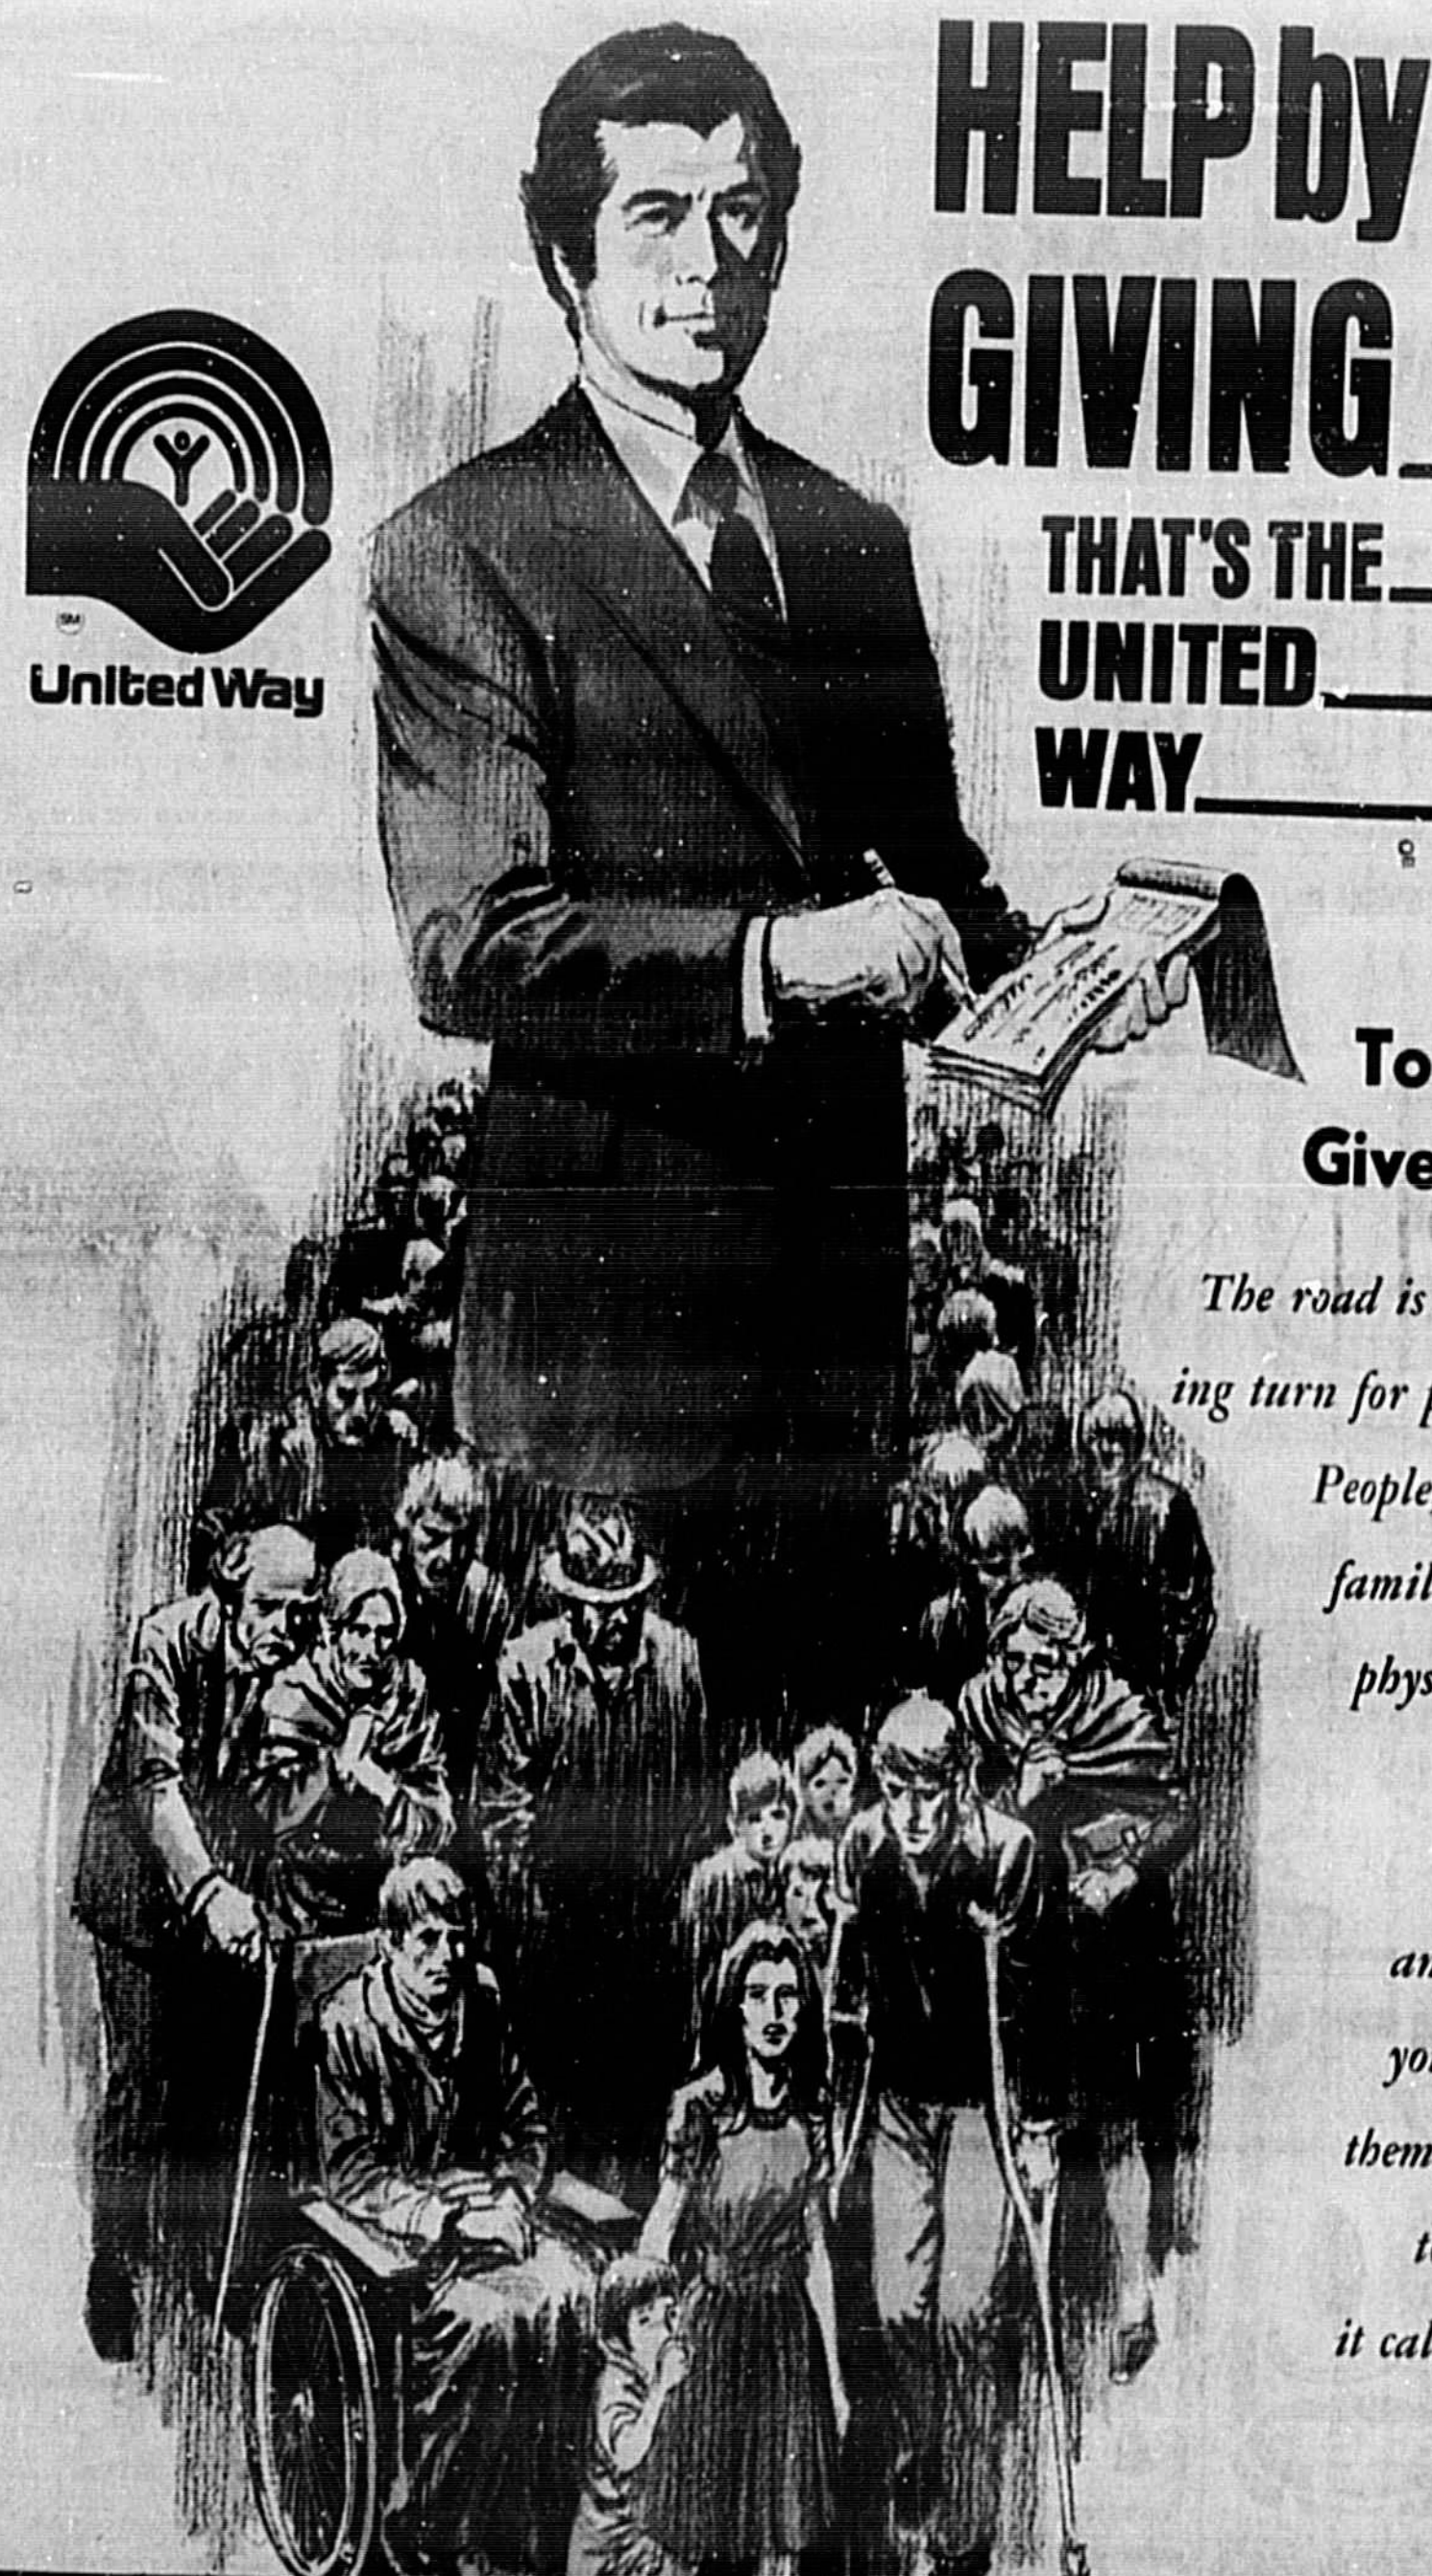

Indians Bound To Be Losers In Revolution

EDITOR'S NOTE— The Indian ruled much of colonial America, and the colonists and the British Crown vied for their allegiance. "Lose no time," Lord Dartmouth told an emissary, "in taking such steps as may induce them to take up the hatchet against His majesty's rebellion subjects."
By DENNIS MONTGOMERY
Associated Press Writer
No matter which side the Indian chose he was bound to be a loser in the American revolutionary war.
Both sides coveted his land, and both needed it not his help, then at least safety from his attack.
So it was that Lord Dartmouth urged the Iroquois to take up the hatchet against the colonists and Ethan Allen beseeched the same Indians to "come and help me fight the King's regular troops."
In the east, many tribes like the Stockbridge who joined the Minuteman against the British in the siege of Boston, considered themselves only tenants of the land.
But to the west, to the Alleghenies and beyond, in a long arc from Maine to Florida, the Indian considered himself landlord. To be true, many tribes had accepted King George's protection, but they nevertheless were sovereign.
King George protected them mainly from the insatiable American lust for more land. The foremost Indian complaint was the colonial jumping of tribal claims.
The colonists both ignored and despised the line the King drew along the crest of the mountains in 1763, affirmed by Parliament in 1774, limiting western expansion. And to add insult to injury, they refused being taxed to support the redcoats who enforced the edict.
Initially the Indians tried to stay out of the fight.
Prof. Francis Jennings in a soon-to-be published book, "The Invasion of America," explains that to the Indians the new war looked like the old one, the French and Indian War. He recites the remark of a Delaware, "The English say this is all their land. The French say this is all their land. Where is the Indian's land?"
The British had the edge, however — a familiar bureaucracy in the wilderness lands and an adequate supply of trade goods, including guns and bullets, on which the Indian had become dependent.
American traders enjoyed a deserved poor reputation among their customers. In the early 1760s one observer described them as "a shame to humanity, and the disgrace of Christianity... The Savages daily saw themselves cheated in Weight and Measure; their Women debauched, and their young men corrupted."

"The reason the Indians chose the Crown's side was that they didn't want all those damn settlers spilling over the line," Jennings says. No matter, the British intended to settle middle America too — on their own time.
In fact, they had already approved plans to establish a 14th colony, Vandallia, beyond the mountains.
At any rate, the fighting that ensued was the nastiest of the war. Atrocities were no stranger to either side.
Colonial Indian Fighter George Rogers Clark supposed he secured the entire Northwest Territory by capturing Vincennes, an Indiana outpost on the Wabash and an Indian supply base in February 1779. That May Gen. John Sullivan, dispatched by Washington to retaliate for massacres in Pennsylvania and New York, broke the back of the Iroquois Confederation or the Six Nations in a scorched earth campaign through western New York. He leveled 40 Indian villages.

A Look At Espionage The American Spy: Can We Afford Him?

EDITOR'S NOTE — Some where out there, beyond fiction, is a real American spy. What is his thinking, his morality? Can a free society afford him? Here is an insight into the point and counterpoint of American espionage, under scrutiny now as never before.

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — He began by recalling that when he finally told his daughter what he did for a living, "that was espionage, he said, "but I'm not that kind of dirty, Daddy!"

He ended the interview with a kind of sum-up.

"In 25 years, I've had to do things I'm not particularly proud of. It's been a double life, sometimes unethical and illegal. But I think I've been useful and I'm not envious of any man's moral standards."

He put on his glasses and dug into his wallet. He hoped, he said, he was not about to be scammed. Then, from a tattered scrap of paper, this big, powerful looking man read aloud, with some emotion, the words of Nathan Hale:

"I wish to be useful, and every kind of service, necessary to the public good, becomes honorable by being necessary, if the exigencies of my country demand a peculiar service, its claims to perform that service are imperious."

It was the rationale of Dave Phillips' life with the Central Intelligence Agency. (His daughter had thought he worked for the State Department.) It has been, of course, the rationale of the CIA, the Director and the President, a loyalty to country which carried with it the idea that others, only temporarily in government, would not be able to understand the great rewards that awaited the country if they were left alone."

Most secrecy in closed societies, and with these facts try to construct whole assessments, in somewhat the way one extrapolates a reproduction of the skeleton of a brontosaurus from a thigh bone. Without ... clandestinely acquired information, our brontosaurus could in some situations be very deformed indeed."

This espionage, Dave Phillips points out, is a crime in every country of the world. So, obviously, is treason. One is fed by the other. Like other governments, the government of the United States sends men abroad to spy and encourage treason and would rather not hear of the crimes within the crimes — bribery, theft, blackmail, bugging.

Rough as espionage is there seem to be limits, practical if not moral limits.

"In that culture," said Sen. Frank Church, chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, "spies don't kill each other. In fact, they scrupulously avoid it. Now, I'm not talking about double agents. But while they watch each other carefully, the KGB leaves the CIA alone and the CIA leaves the KGB alone. They don't shoot each other. It would be as inefficient as gang warfare."

In the beginning, the CIA was primarily intended to coordinate and evaluate for the President the information received by the government's various intelligence arms. The law establishing it said nothing about what has come to be known as "covert operations," the manipulation of events in other countries.

But the law did say the CIA was to perform "such other functions" as the National Security Council might direct.

With that catch-all phrase as its authority, the CIA over the years has conducted covert operations around the world with massive resources of money, men and tricks neat and dirty. In the Western Europe, Iran, Guatemala, Greece, Cuba, Laos, Vietnam and other countries, it has poured money and electronics and engineered or tried to engineer the overthrow of governments thought to be inimical.

Basic to the understanding of the intelligence mentality, say its practitioners, are several facts of international life: the world remains a dangerous place despite detente; the KGB, the Russian intelligence apparatus, is very good, ubiquitous and has the advantage of operating from a closed society; intelligence, in any case, cannot be operated within Marquis of Queensbury rules.

CIA director William E. Colby said:

"My task is to search for individual facts kept in the intelligence operation is an anachronism in a democracy. It is secret. It sometimes uses questionable means. The public can't be informed about it or even told its cost."

Clark Clifford
FBI, the military intelligence agencies, and, in fact, all of the heroes and rogues in history who served the altar of national security.

Now, in the wake of Watergate and Vietnam, the morality and mentality of the huge American intelligence apparatus are being questioned as never before.

The techniques of intelligence inevitably compromise a democracy? What is the morality of men who seek, in the name of country, to turn men of another country into traitors, men who lie, steal, break and enter, blackmail and bug? Should Mr. Bond, at long last, be housebroken?

It was Pearl Harbor Harry Truman had in mind when he asked Congress to set up the CIA in 1947. Clark Clifford helped write the legislation. Before he became secretary of defense in 1964, Clifford served eight years on the president's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board, most of them as chairman.

"Basically," he said recently, "an intelligence operation is an anachronism in a democracy. It is secret. It sometimes uses questionable means. The public can't be informed about it or even told its cost. It is inconsistent with democracy but it remains a necessity if we are to preserve our form of government. We can't fly blind in the world today."

But the CIA troubles Clifford profoundly, for startling reasons, and so he urges new legislation by which a joint oversight committee of Congress would either the agency within new, sharply defined limits or to conceive new projects.

Time spent on, they developed to a level of a higher loyalty than even that

Luncheon Held At Capri Fleet Auxiliary Views Fall Fashions

By DORIS DIETRICH
Herald Correspondent

A parade of fall fashions began the season for Ladies Auxiliary of Fleet Reserve Association (LAFRA) Sept. 26 when members, associate members and guests gathered at the Capri for a luncheon and fashion show.

The striking fashions, smart shoes and handbags, and exquisite jewelry were from the fall collection at ReJoy, Phil Boyd of Princess Margaret Beauty Salon created the models outfits and donated a "perm" as a door prize, which was won by Janie Parks.

Other door prize winners were Claudia Blythe, who won a pair of shoes, and Helen Bailey, winner of a dinner for two, compliments of the Capri.

During the relaxing luncheon, seven club members served as models in the tea-table show, floating from table to table, as they described their costumes.

Verna Bolton appeared first, wearing smart coral corduroy pants topped with a mix-and-match print and shirt set. The pale blue pantsuit, modeled by Lorene Baker, featured a sprinkling of silver studs on the casual leisure jacket.

Jane West showed a three-piece blue abstract print pajama suit with sleeves top and long-sleeved cover-up. Mary Hay modeled a versatile mint green and white checked street-length dress with solid green scarf to be dressed up or down for any occasion.

A two-tone jade green ensemble, shown by Phyllis Picanso, was fashioned with a short sleeved dress and matching jacket. Marge Crocker showed a matching skirt and blazer complemented with a coordinated print blouse.

The fashion finale featured Ricki Boggs appearing in a swishing, halter-inspired scarlet red gown enhanced with dazzling rhinestone jewelry, a perfect creation for after-five.

PTA Makes Difference in Children's Lives

What can you do about making better schools a reality? ... about improving the educational opportunities, health, and well-being of your children ... of all children? What can one person do? Alone, perhaps not a great deal.

But as a member of the National PTA, the country's largest volunteer movement dedicated to meeting these needs, you can make your concern count at all levels — national, state, and local. What happens in schools everywhere affects every family, sooner or later. The PTA has long recognized this fact, and knows the value of united effort in achieving its goals for children and youth.

With its roots in communities throughout the country, the PTA offers you the opportunity to make your voice heard ... to help influence legislation on a broader scope than you can as an individual. You can become involved, personally, in the areas which are of deepest concern to every parent, teacher, and school administrator — all represented in the National PTA programs and implemented by state PTAs-PTSAs (Parent-Teacher-Student Associations at some local and state levels), and local units. You can join with seven million PTA members, who are the people taking action to benefit the young.

Our new national President, Mrs. Walter G. Kimmel of Rock Island, Ill., has selected the "Today PTA" as her theme for the next two years. In discussing the implications of this theme, she states: "The 'Today PTA' emphasizes our involvement with the current issues affecting the education and welfare of children and youth. But then, the National PTA has always been adequate funding for education, which would provide equal

Through ongoing programs and projects in such areas as comprehensive school health education, "parenting" (education for parenthood and family life, and part of this health education program in the schools), alcohol education, school absenteeism, and child abuse awareness, we believe that the "Today PTA" is the most qualified volunteer organization in the country to help parents, teachers, and students understand and deal with the problems of today's world."

All these projects, and others, represent top priorities for action by the National PTA. Some focal points include the introduction of comprehensive health education in all public schools, from kindergarten level up. The National PTA recently received a $107,760 contract from the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare to launch a major project which should stimulate the development of new approaches to health education in schools and the communities they serve.

For information on joining the PTA, contact your nearby elementary or high school. If there isn't a PTA in your vicinity, discover how to start one. Write to: National PTA, 700 North Rush Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

WOMEN

Level With Girl Or Say Goodbye

DEAR ABBY: I am a 28-year-old professional man who is just getting started — on a shoe-string, you might say. A very bright (but terribly overweight) 28-year-old woman has been aggressively pursuing me. She's good company, but I have no real love interest in her.

I do not like being seen with her because of her size. She wears clothes that look like tents or maternity clothes.)

She has plenty of money, since she just came into an inheritance, and has been buying me some very expensive presents. She has offered to buy me a car, but so far I have refused although it would come in very handy.

She is an excellent bed partner, but I have to take her out in public occasionally, which makes it awkward.

My brother, who has met her, tells me that if I do not have marriage in mind, I should not get into an affair with her or accept any more gifts from her.

What do you advise?

CANADIAN
DEAR CANADIAN: You are braver than you are. The more you accept from this girl, the greater your obligation. Furthermore, she may equate your accepting her as a bed partner with having a "real love interest" in her — which you have not.

The advice here is to be either level with her or say goodbye.

DEAR ABBY: Why should anyone be made to feel guilty for having mistaken a boy for a girl? I wouldn't let the kid put the onus on me, I'd put it on HIM, where it belongs.

This happened to me once, Abigail Van Buren, 12 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Her husband, Bill, told me, "You're a girl, why do you go around looking like one?"

Everyone has a problem. What yours? For a personal reply, write to: DEAR ABBY, P.O. Box 4756, Los Angeles, Calif. 90049. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please. Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose 10¢ self-addressed, stamped (20 cents) envelope.

50th Anniversary Vows

Undisputed King Muhammad Ali Still Champion

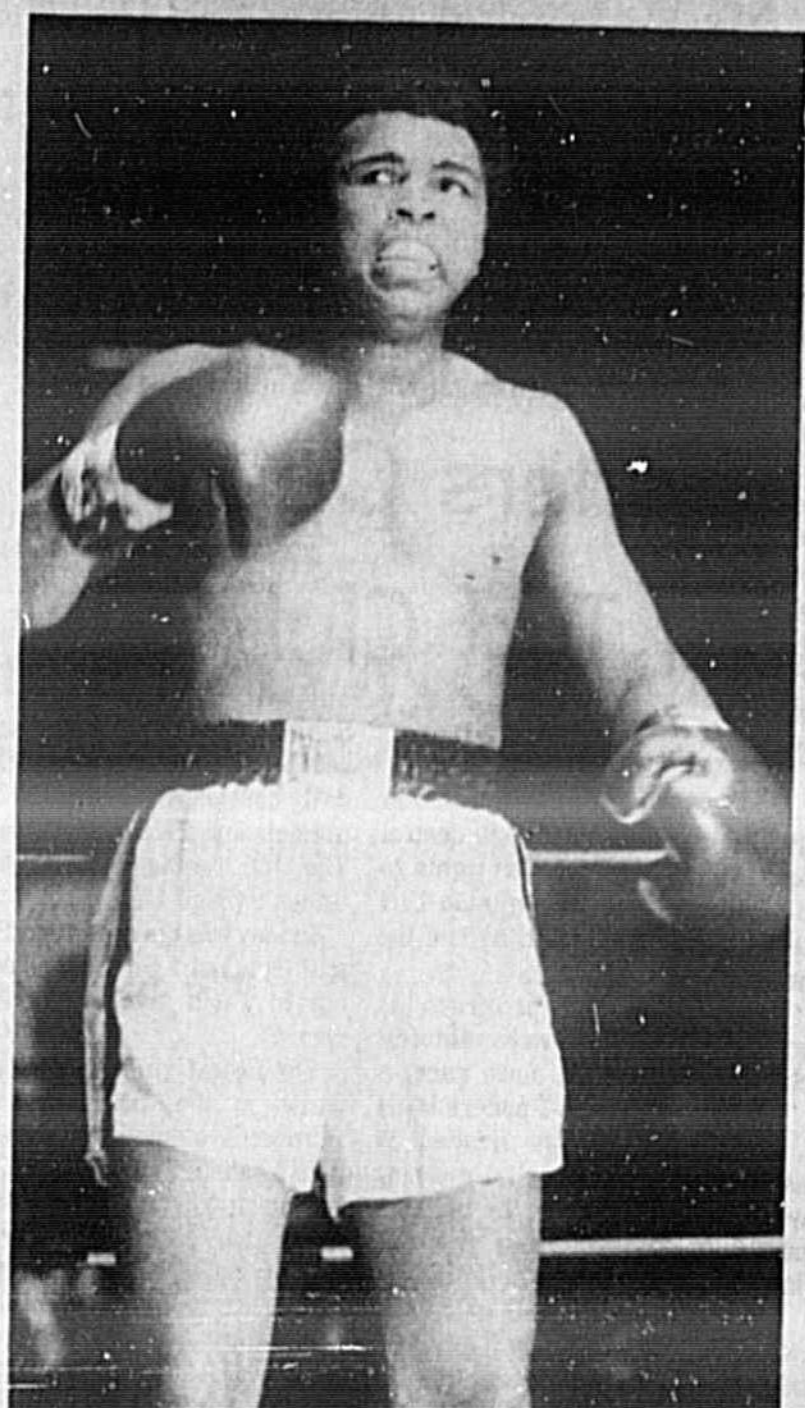

MANILA (AP) — It was a great fight, one of the greatest, brutally physical and gully. The combatants—the standup matador with lightning reflexes and the charging, pursuing bull, his attack unrelenting—gave no quarter. And at the end of it—after 42 incredible minutes of warfare, of intense battle among two titans and familiar rivals—there stood Muhammad Ali, undisputed king of all he surveyed in boxing's heavyweight ranks. The record books will record it simply: Ali over Joe Frazier, TKO, 14th round. But the cold statistics don't pay proper tribute to the durability and refusal to fold on the part of a great champion and the raw courage of the challenger. "He could have whupped any fighter in the world, except me," a weary Ali said afterward. "He is great—he is greater than I thought. He is one hell of a fighter and he is one hell of a fight."

It was the third meeting between these two powerful big men—the champion out of Louisville, Ky., 33, a man who has been at center stage for 15 years now, and the challenger, 31, out of the Jim Crow South and a one-time slaughterhouse butcher in a Philadelphia ghetto.

Both of the early battles were slugging matches which went the limit—Frazier taking the first in 15 and Ali the second in 12—and this one went through 14 rounds with little to choose between them.

But in the 14th, drawing upon some mysterious source of strength after appearing on his last legs in the fight's middle rounds, Ali jarred Frazier's rock-like head with a sledgehammer right and sent the challenger's knees crumbling with a series of one-two punches to the head. Before the bell could ring for the final round, Eddie Futch, Frazier's trainer, strode to the middle of the ring and told the Philippine referee, Carlos Padilla, Jr., that his man had had enough. "Frazier stood in his corner, a sad sight with a purple bruise under his right eye, a knot on his forehead and blood oozing between his teeth. "Joe was taking some hard shots to the head and, in his condition, I thought he had no way to win the fight," Futch said afterward. "I didn't want him to get hurt."

Angelo Dundee, who has guided Ali's fortunes through 51 fights, all but two of them victories, said he thought Futch took wise and humane action. "I would have done 'the same thing,'" he said. While handlers cut the gloves from Frazier's wrists and the referee screamed the announcement to the howling crowd, Muhammad Ali, actor, fighter and Muslim preacher, could not resist one final charade. He took two steps away from his stool and did a swan dive to the blue canvas floor, lying there prone with arms outstretched as if he himself was in a faint. "He wasn't trying to be funny," said Dundee. "He did it to keep all of those idiots in his corner from jumping up and down on him."

Series Started In '23 Tradition Marks Tribe-DeLand

By JIM HAYNES Herald Sports Editor

Seminole and DeLand renew a high school football rivalry dating back to 1923 when the two teams meet in DeLand Friday night. Any similarity between Friday's game and that first encounter better than half a century ago is purely coincidental. It wasn't even called football back then. They called it foot ball. As in basket ball and base ball. Complete with leather helmets not much more than discarded flying headgear, neither shoulder pads nor hip pads, a reorganized team calling themselves Celery Feds beat DeLand by a 12-6 score on a field cleared "for the most part" of palmetto scrubs. The first football team to be directly affiliated with the high school was in 1915. The Celery Feds played three games that year, losing all three. Orlando won by a 37-0 score and the Rollins (freshmen) took 124 and 6-0 victories. Using year books from the two schools as an authority, it is determined that Seminole shows a decided 31-13-4 advantage over DeLand. The result of the 1929 game is unavailable and there were four years in which the teams did not play—1924, 1925, 1927 and 1974. Seminole's glory years stretched from 1957 through 1968 when the best DeLand could muster was a 6-4 tie in 1961. The biggest point spread in the rivalry was the 50-0 rout by Seminole in 1971.

Heavyweight Picture Fades

MANILA (AP) — Ali vs. Frazier—a composite picture painted with grace, power, stamina and plain ole guts. The picture, one that excited boxers and governments and made something extra for four years, faded out this morning.

Muhammad Ali sent Joe Frazier reeling around the ring in the 14th round before a howling crowd here. And when the bell sounded ending the round, the fight was over. And so, for all practical purposes, was Frazier's career. Frazier, whose trainer withdrew him from going out for the 15th round, said he would consider about retiring. Most observers believe Smokin' Joe will stay there.

nothing left for him in the game. The series with Ali is over, closed as spectacularly as it opened. The two men fought three times, and their first fight ushered in a boxing era which brought fighters such as Ali, Frazier and George Foreman giant purses. And it earned other heavyweights more than they could have gotten before, or perhaps deserved. It also brought promoters ulcers, for several of the big money fights over the last five years meant big money only to the fighters.

When a press conference was called one winter's day in New York in 1970 to announce that the unbeaten Ali would fight the unbeaten champion, Frazier, at Madison Square Garden, the press was stunned. Reporters were told each fighter would receive a guarantee of $2.5 million. It was, it became routine. Ali and Frazier each got $3 million for their second fight. Ali and George Foreman each guaranteed $5 million for their fight in Zaire. Ali fought here for a guarantee of $4.5 million against an option of 43 per cent while Frazier got $2 million against 22 per cent. While their final meeting was the richest of the three, it also might have been the best.

STATE PUTTING CHAMP

It's just a matter of speed, direction and concentration to bring that inevitable plop of a hole-in-one, which is exactly what Charlie Zani did many times last Sunday in emerging from a field of 23 professional putters in the state putting tournament at the Fern Park Putt-Off. Zani, 13-year-old F.U. student, lives in Altamonte Springs and attended Lyman High School.

Grid Recruiters Want Runner McTear

BAKER (AP) — High school running sensation Houston McTear isn't playing football, but that apparently doesn't discourage college football recruiters from seeking his services.

"Who's after Houston?" asked Sonny Hendrix, football coach at Baker High School. "Well, lemme tell you who's called about him—there was coach Fran Card (Kentucky) and coach Doug Dickey (Florida) and coach Bear Bryant (Alabama) and oh, I guess about 20 head coaches."

He said 100 to 200 schools have contacted McTear about playing football despite the fact he's only 5-foot-8 and 165 pounds.

McTear's track coach at Baker High, Will Willoughby, said an athletic shoe company recently called to seek an endorsement from McTear, who tied a world record at 9.0 seconds in the 100-yard run last April.

"I just told this man, 'Look, my kid's still in high school and he wants to run in the Olympics and in college, so he just can't accept any money,'" said Willoughby. "I certainly don't want Houston to do anything that would mess up his amateur standing."

McTear dropped football to concentrate on track and a bid to make the Olympic team this year. Willoughby says he's advised his prized pupil to concentrate on track his first two or three years in college "so he can break the 100-meter and 100-yard records."

But the football interest continues. Florida recruiter Charlie Fulton said McTear is "pretty high on our list—he's got the potential to play several positions, like running back and wide receiver."

Olympics Growing

The Golden Age Olympics, a Sanford Chamber of Commerce project, upcoming the week of Nov. 9-15, has developed into a 19-event extravaganza which could far surpass expectations in terms of number of out-of-town entries.

Golden Age Olympics officials have received requests for entry forms numbering 200 for one group and 300 for another. Retirement centers in Florida are expected to comprise the bulk of entries, which could hit the multiple thousands figure. Format for the Olympics is that entrants must be 55 or older, may enter as many events as they wish, and are competing for gold, silver and bronze medals—just as in the regular olympics.

Stengel To Lie In State

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — Befitting his stature of baseball royalty, Casey Stengel will lie in state here in his Los Angeles suburb. Arrangements for Stengel's funeral were completed Tuesday, amid a dramatic avalanche of tributes that continued to flood Glendale for the beloved "Old Professor" who died early Tuesday morning of cancer.

Often acclaimed as baseball's No. 1 goodwill ambassador, the colorful Stengel died at the age of 85 after an exquisitely rich career.

Stengel requested before his death that in lieu of flowers charitable donations in his name could be made to the Association of Professional Baseball Players of America, 630 E. Wardlaw Road, Long Beach, Calif. The association is a benefit group helping men formerly associated with baseball.

Stengel's body will lie in state on Sunday from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. at Scovern Mortuary in Glendale. Stengel is survived by his wife, Edna. Among the host of eulogies for Stengel were tributes from high baseball officials, managers, players past and present and politicians, as well as close friends.

Jocko Conlan, the Hall of Fame umpire and longtime friend of the princely Stengel, commented: "He was not only colorful, but I think he and Babe Ruth had done more for baseball than anyone else."

Conlan, who played for baseball's grand old man at Toledo in 1930, added: "Among the officials who eulogized the onetime record-maker of the New York Yankees was Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. He exclaimed him a bona fide national hero."

"There has never been anyone like him," Kuhn said. "Casey was irreplaceable himself. But Casey left a nation that adored him and a host of memories so vivid and marvelous that we really can't ever lose him."

That majority opinion was also voiced by American League President Lee MacPhail, American League Chairman Joe Cronin, Hall of Famer Joe DiMaggio and Yogi Berra and Gov. Hugh Carey of New York.

"Casey Stengel was unique among baseball's folk heroes," said MacPhail. "His long career was a tribute to the very game he loved so much. Baseball and Casey were synonymous. We have lost a great and true friend, but his memory and contributions to the game and to our league will survive all of baseball's future years."

"Casey was one of a kind," said Cronin. "How fortunate we were to have had Casey around so long and what a contribution he made to both the major and minor leagues. We'll miss him."

DiMaggio, one of the all-star players who helped Stengel forge a record 10 pennants and seven World Series triumphs for the New York Yankees, said of his onetime field boss: "He was wonderful. He knew what to do with the talent he had. He understood his players. I enjoyed playing under him."

"Baseball lost a great man," said Berra, another former Yankee great.

'Old Perfesser' Came By Title At Ole Miss

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Casey Stengel was called "The Old Perfesser" for nothing. The famous baseball manager actually did hold that title at the University of Mississippi.

When the 23-year-old Stengel helped coach the Ole Miss baseball team in the spring of 1914, there were no athletic funds to pay him so the school carried him on the payroll as an assistant professor.

Stengel, a two-year veteran of the major leagues at the time, hadn't reported to the Brooklyn Dodgers' 1914 spring training camp in Augusta, Ga., because of a sore arm.

So Ole Miss Athletic Director Bill Driver, who had coached Stengel at Kansas City Central High School, invited his protégé to help in Oxford.

"Casey thought his baseball career was over," his roommate at Ole Miss, George R. Calley, said in an interview many years later.

Alexander Powe, the Ole Miss centerfielder, said, "I remember him telling me that he was debating about going back to college or staying in baseball. He said he would return to college to complete his studies in dentistry if he didn't make good in baseball."

Stengel's debut on the Ole Miss campus was signaled by an interview with the student newspaper, which reported that "our blond friend" said nothing except, "Tell 'em I'm single yet."

"Casey was an excellent coach," he peached with everyone, including the pitchers. Sometimes he would get me out in the field and knocked flies to me. He would get a kick out of pulling me in and then hitting one far behind me and yelling, "Get that ball!"

The way members of the Ole Miss team remembered it, Stengel never acumen as a manager even then. One case was a game in Baton Rouge, La., between Ole Miss and Louisiana State University.

"It seems the umpire was a former LSU player," said Calley, the starting Ole Miss pitcher that day. "Instead of getting them out quickly, as I had expected, they batted around on me. They seemed to know what I was going to throw each time."

Miami Coach Cuts Son From Traveling Squad

MIAMI (AP) — Former Nebraska assistant Carl Selmer has made a tough decision and cut his son, placekicker Brian Selmer, from the University of Miami's 46-man traveling squad for Saturday's football game at Nebraska.

"It really hurts," said Brian, who spent 11 years in Lincoln, Neb., while his father served as a Cornhusker aide to Bob Devaney.

"I've been waiting for this game for over two years and now I can't play or even suit up for the game," added Brian, who will fly to the game with a friend.

The younger Selmer is kicking this year behind Chris Devaney, who will make the trip for the team.

Selmer's father said after last week's 20-17 loss to Oklahoma, "They played this game for themselves. I want them to play Nebraska for me."

The elder Selmer doesn't admit to the emotional feelings of his son.

"As the days get closer, I'll probably get more choked up about it than I am now," he said. "I have no more feeling to beat Nebraska than anybody else. I'd like to beat Nebraska because I have yet to win a football game as a head coach. The time I win will be very sweet."

Selmer, in his first year as UM boss, said he had no grudges about not being offered the post and added, "I'm not going back there trying to prove or compare who's the better coach—Tom Osborne or me."

Walden said, "I have some fine memories of the four years I was there. It was a super time in my coaching career. In college football today, there's not anybody I enjoy teaching more."

"They are very nice people, but...they're Nebraska people first and friends last," added Walden. "I don't know that they'll still be friends if we beat them."

Steadman Scavella, defensive standout of the Oklahoma game, said Selmer and Walden's return to Nebraska "is in the back of our minds."

Quarterback Kary Baker said, "After Oklahoma, we're still in the record book, not 1 and almost. We know we have a losing record and we want to show people what we are, a good football team."

Assistant Coach Steve Endicott said the return of Selmer and Walden and near upset of Oklahoma would work against Miami as much as for it.

"All we did by playing Oklahoma the way we did was to get Nebraska's heads screwed back on," he said. "I'm sure the picnic atmosphere about the game is no longer prevalent. They know Oklahoma is not capable of being that flat to let a poor team play them to 20-17."

By BERNICE BEDE OSL

For Thursday, October 2, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're a good worker today, but you won't be as detail-conscious as the detailer. Watch for little mistakes that could be avoided.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're friendly and outgoing, but you could make some remarks in jest today that a sensitive friend will misinterpret. Be careful!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your mate is not likely to share your enthusiasm about projects around the home today. Be prepared to tackle them alone.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Lighter interests will command the greater part of your time today. Excuses will be found for shirking responsibilities.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll be a pennysaver shopper today concerning domestic needs, but you'll pamper an extravagant friend in another area.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll be aware of opportunity about you today. Strong self-doubts will also be present. They may gain the upper hand.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) If you handle business matters early, they should come off to your advantage. Delaying things lessens your prospects.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Guard against your tendencies to buy something you have no real need for, though you'll feel it's a bargain.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Spur-of-the-moment decisions will assist you in achieving your aims today. If you deliberate too long, you're not likely to act.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Make it a point today to be as frank and honest as possible with everyone. Holding back information will work against you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're singular about your goals. Keep your priorities in order.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You will be tempted today to back out of an earlier impulsive promise. If you do, it will cause you remorse.

Unusual chances for material gain will pop up unexpectedly for you this coming year. Investigate carefully all propositions, even though they may seem a bit far out.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Actually, we will bid game with 13 points or an opening bid opposite an opening bid on the theory that you should not wait for sure things.

North bids two notrump to invite game with his 12 points and South accepts the invitation with his 14 points. His hand is minimum but not too minimum.

South wins the first trick with his king of spades over East's jack. He proceeds to knock out the ace of diamonds next and with everything behaving nicely will wind up making four or even five notrump.

Ask the Jacobsys

A reader from Iowa asks, "You are playing duplicate with a strange partner. He responds three spades to your one-club opening. You pass with a minimum hand with a singleton spade. You miss a club slam and he informs you that his three-spade bid was super-forcing. What system was he playing?"

One of which we have never heard and certainly not one that is normal in the great State of Iowa.

Cook Of The Week

Dietrich's Cooking Full Of Eye Appeal

According to Carl Dietrich, cooking is an art which requires applied psychology and gets of imagination.

Eye-appeal ranks foremost in the culinary arts.

Carl suggests to the housewife who does not have a handsome collection of silver, crystal and china, to head to her favorite discount store and purchase stemware, assorted colorful place mats, at least two sets of inexpensive dishes, and by all means, condiments.

Ladies, you have just begun to make waves. Mix and match your table accents, turn the light low, light the candle, and if you have burned the stew, you can fake it by applying psychology with your attractively-set table.

At age 22, Carl was the youngest restaurant manager in the American Restaurant Association in New York, where he remained for 10 years. By the time he turned 28, he had achieved his boyhood ambition of paying cash for a Lincoln Continental.

In 1967 he joined the Marriott Corporation and was based at O'Hare International Airport, Chicago, where he headed the in-flight catering of the country's major airlines, including the preparation of 2,000 to 6,000 meals per day.

Having a yen for culinary creativity, as opposed to management, Carl dug into various forms of art, including ice carving and flaming, both in desserts and entrees. He has cooked for several presidents and some of the country's leading celebrities.

Carl was transferred to the Sanford Marriott operation in remodeling and building projects.

GARNISHES

With sharing trade secrets and back to eye-appeal, Carl recommends that the cook go heavy on garnishes. Let imagination take command and use anything on hand including parsley or other greenery, apple, beet, egg or pickle slices, olives or a sprinkling of chives.

Paprika is a lifesaver. For color contrast, use on all pale foods, such as potatoes, eggs or noodles, and if the meat doesn't get brown enough, sprinkle, after cooking with paprika.

FLAMING

This elegant dessert is so simple, even a child can prepare it. Soften vanilla ice cream mixed with any other nut-flavored ice cream, or use fruited ice cream. Add a drop or two of food coloring of choice and brandy to taste.

Freeze in individual sherbet or champagne glasses.

At serving time, top with a sugar cube which has been soaked in 100 proof alcohol for several minutes, place on serving tray, light sugar cube, and watch guests go wild with glee.

Who Can Resist Oyster Creole Maryland Style?

Dinner for six needs only a tossed green salad and chunky bread to make the meal complete.

Salads Stretch Dollars

Stretch food dollars by using leftover cooked chicken in a hearty entree salad. As an economy base, prepare Jell-O lemon or lime gelatin. Fold in thickened gelatin, the diced cooked chicken, chopped pecans, and a riot of fresh vegetables — thinly sliced celery, cucumber, onion, and red tomato wedges. Serve from tortillas — canned or frozen — or crisp potato or corn chips for crunch texture contrast.

Mayonaisse garnish is optional.

SAVING-WAY

CHICKEN SALAD

2 packages (3 oz. each) or 1 package (6 oz.) lemon or lime flavor gelatin

1 1/2 teaspoons salt

2 cups boiling water

1 1/2 cups cold water

1 tablespoon vinegar

1 1/2 cups diced-cooked chicken

1 small onion, thinly sliced

1 tomato, cut in thin wedges

1/4 cup sliced celery

1/4 cup sliced cucumber

2 tablespoons coarsely chopped pecans

Dissolve gelatin and salt in boiling water. Add cold water and vinegar. Chill until thickened. Fold in chicken, vegetables and nuts. Spoon into a 6-cup mold. Chill until firm — at least 4 hours or overnight. Unmold. Serve with salad greens and mayonnaise, if desired. Makes 6 cups or 6 entree salads.

1 pint shucked standard oysters or 2 cans (10 ounces each) frozen oysters

2 cans (1 pound each) tomatoes

1 cup chopped fresh mushrooms

1/2 cup chopped onion

2 tablespoons diced green pepper

1/4 cup margarine or butter

1 tablespoon instant minced onion

1/2 teaspoon lemon and pepper seasoning

1/2 teaspoon sugar

1/2 teaspoon salt

1/4 teaspoon but. pepper sauce

1/4 teaspoon chili powder

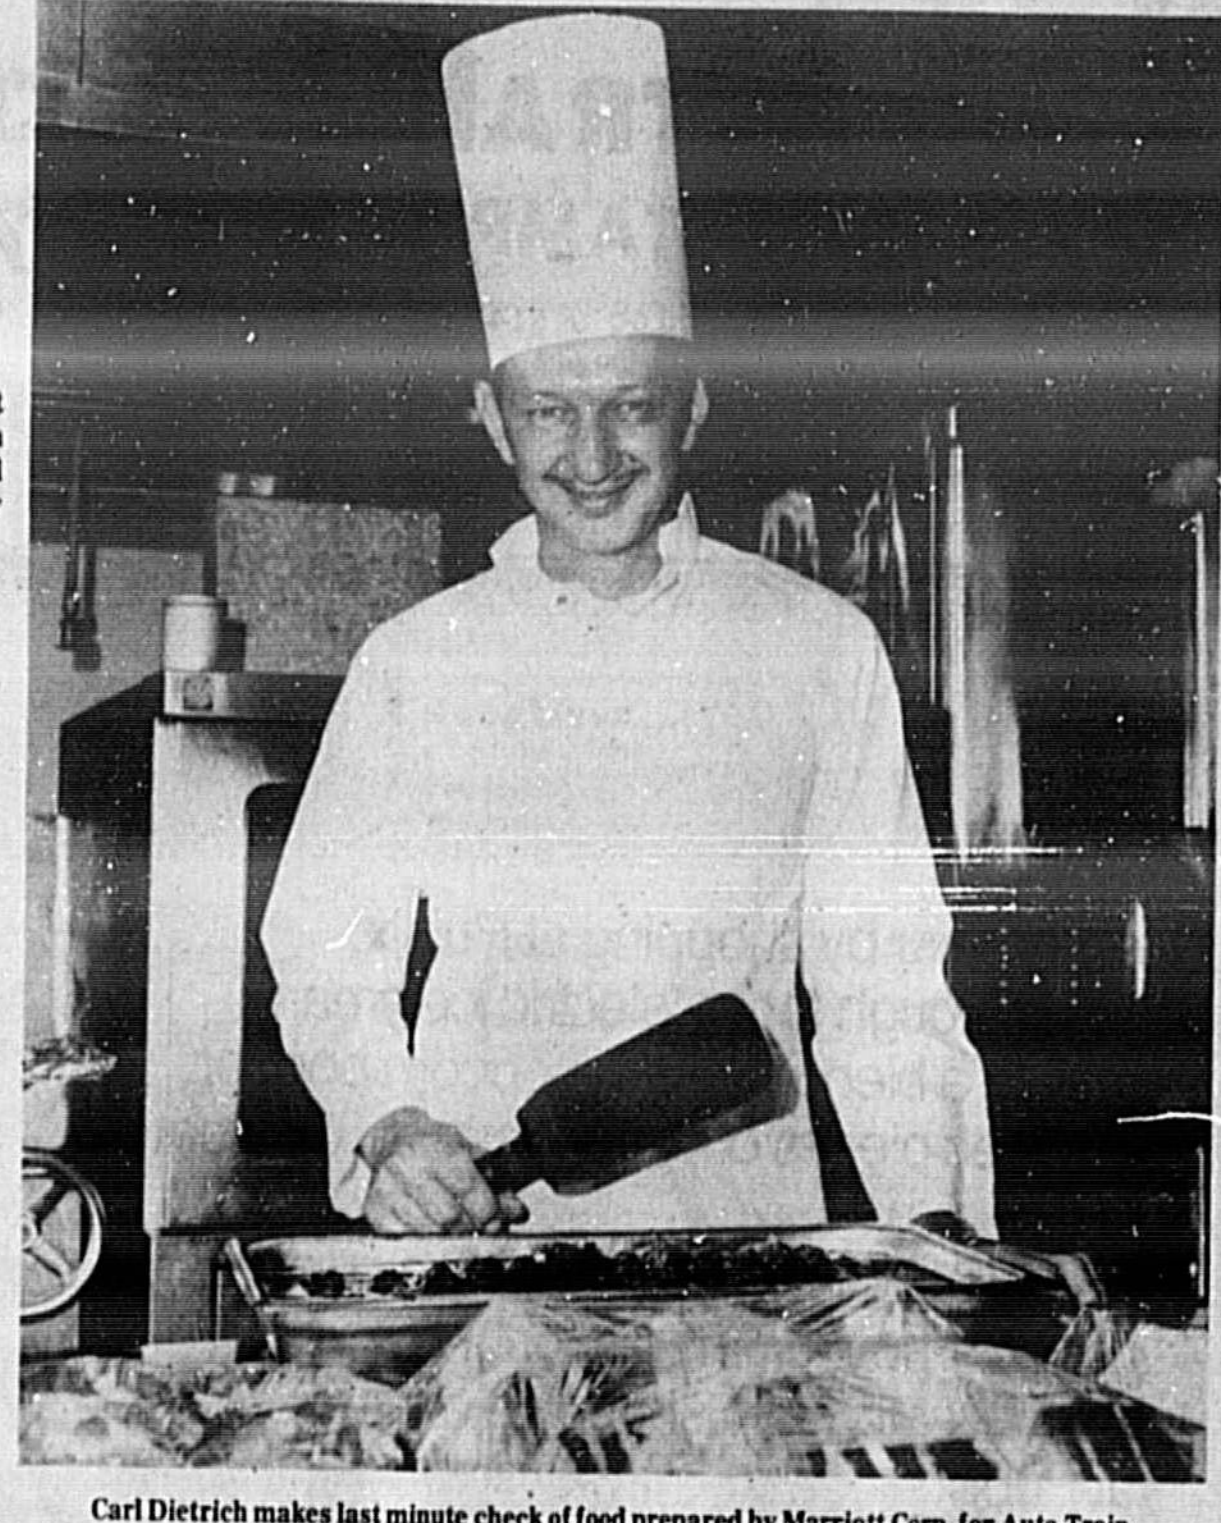

1/2 teaspoon tarragon leaves

1/4 cup cornstarch

1/4 cup water

6 cups hot steamed rice

Thaw frozen oysters. Drain oysters, reserving juice. Drain tomatoes, reserving juice. Combine oyster liquor, tomato juice, and enough water, if needed, to make 2 cups liquid. Combine tomatoes, mushrooms, celery, green pepper, margarine, onion, seasonings, and liquid in saucepan. Simmer covered about 30 minutes or until flavors are blended. Combine cornstarch and water; stir until free of lumps. Pour into mixture; cook stirring constantly until thickened and clear. Add oysters and cook just until edges curl. Serve over hot rice. Makes 6 servings.

Bananas Good With Vegetables

Naturally! People around the world have long appreciated the contrast of textures, distinctive flavor and satiate value of mellow bananas and spicy vegetables combined in economical messes main dishes.

You too can enjoy these flavors in a Vegetable Curry recipe from India or a French Provencal vegetable combination of white cauliflower, orange carrots, and green beans. Vegetables are quickly simmered to preserve their bright colors and crisp textures. The mild bananas warm quickly to surprise and delight your diners. Cool yogurt and a spiced lentil dish known as "Dahl" round out this nutritious meal. Accompany your dinner with papadams, those parchment thin disks which are fried in hot oil, and served with many Indian Curries.

From India, travel to the south of France for Vegetables and Bananas Provencal. Creamy, tender bananas contrast the crisp flavors of tomatoes, eggplant, red pepper and zucchini. Add poached eggs for protein and you have a complete meal.

Save Money On Meat

Is the food you feed your family fresh? You can be more sure it is if you follow these shopping and storing suggestions. And they may keep you from throwing out money by throwing out meat.

1) KEEP IT COLD! Refrigeration is essential to product freshness. For optimum keeping quality, meat should be stored at temperatures close to freezing — between 32 degrees and 40 degree F. Refrigerate as soon as possible after purchase; if it's left too long in the car while shopping, there's danger of spoilage.

2) BUY IT FRESH! Look for packaged meats that have a freshness control date. An easy-to-read date, for example, appears on the labels of prepackaged Oscar Mayer meat items, with a statement assuring the consumer of full freshness seven days beyond the date stamped if the meat is stored at home at 40 degree F. or below.

3) USE IT PROMPTLY! Once the package is opened, propagated meats are all perishable as fresh meat and must be used within a few days, regardless of the date stamped on the label.
