Sanford Couple Loses Son In Flooding

What Happened

The two-year-old son of a Sanford couple was one of at least six persons killed this weekend in flash flooding caused by heavy rain in Oklahoma and Texas which left thousands more stranded.

The boy, Robert Harden, son of Garvin and Peggy Harden was swept downstream after he and five others abandoned the car they were riding when it began to float from a flooded bridge they were crossing in Comanche County, Oklahoma. The boy's father is stationed at Ft. Sill Army base near Elgin, Okla.

The Hardens, their son, Robert, and a daughter, Angie, 5, as well as five family friends were in the car when the accident occurred about 9 p.m. Saturday.

As the car began to float away from the bridge, all six managed to get out, but the two family friends and the Harden boy floated downstream, according to Mrs. Harden.

She said she and her husband and daughter, however, became lodged in the water between the car and a tree. She said she pushed her daughter up the tree to safety and she and her husband clung to the branches until they were rescued.

The Hardens' friends were later rescued downstream, but the Harden boy had drowned before rescuers could get to him.

"We were trapped and we couldn't go anywhere and couldn't do anything," said Peggy Harden in a steady voice as she tried to hold back her tears.

For Peggy, her husband Garvin, Memorial Day 1978 will be a time to remember—or forget—the day they lost their two-year-old child Robert in a flash flood in Oklahoma. Another child, Angie, escaped injury in the flooding.

For the Harden family the evening began on a pleasant note as, accompanied by friends, they were on their way to visit other friends. The six left in the same car.

But the happiness didn't last long as "before we knew what happened we were surrounded by water," recalled Mrs. Harden as she spoke today by telephone from a friend's home in Elgin, Okla.

The Hardens suffered minor injuries in the accident and are expected to return to Sanford this afternoon.

For the couple who were born and raised in Sanford it was not easy to recall the event that started shortly before 9 p.m. Saturday.

As their car began to cross a flooded bridge, it began floating away from the bridge and downstream.

"Things were just happening so fast and the water was moving so fast it was a very difficult time," said Mrs. Harden. She recalled that as soon as it became evident that they couldn't go any farther, "we tried to save our kids by pushing them out the window to our friends."

However, while they were able to get Angie to safety, the powerful force of the water moved Robert and the friends downstream. The friends somehow managed to survive.

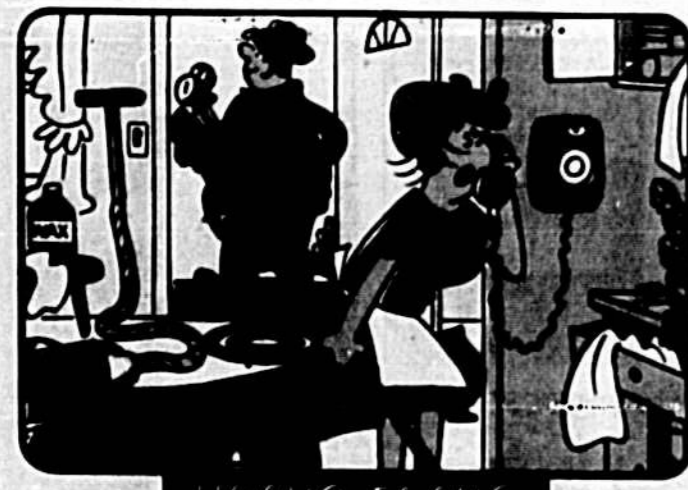

Soon after Angie was pushed up a nearby tree to safety the car was pushed up against the tree and the Hardens were trapped between the car and the tree.

"We were almost completely underwater, and Garvin was jumping up and down on my leg which was trapped under the car. Once he finally got me out, I managed to get his arm loose," she said.

The Harden boy clung to the tree for five hours before they were rescued.

"The couple finally made it to the hospital at four in the morning. We were lucky and grateful that we were rescued," she said.

They Don't Make Such Days...

By RICHARD L. GORDON
Herald Services

We stood in ragged formation in front of the school at the top of Main Street hill, fiddling our horns, scuffling with one another, hot and impatient in the glaring Midwest sun.

This was the first time I had played in the school band on Decoration Day. (That's what we always called it — not Memorial Day.)

It was Saturday, May 31, 1932.

Professor Lanou soon arrived on the scene, in shirt-sleeves but wearing the gilt-trimmed uniform cap he had worn when he was director of a circus band. He was a white-haired, black-browed, stumpy man, decisive and abrupt.

"Fall in!" he shouted. "Let's go!"

The drums set the tempo and we stepped off smartly. Professor Lanou had no college degree — the school board had hired him officially as a janitor — but he knew how to run a band.

We halted by the courthouse square, near the bronze marker that said: "Abraham Lincoln pleaded cases in circuit court on this site..."

In front of the band, the American Legion color guard took its place with flags, rifles and white gloves. The men were perspiring, grim-faced.

Directly behind the band was Bud Gilmore's yellow Buick touring car — the one with the wire wheels. The top was folded back, and in the car sat our town's three remaining Civil War veterans.

Broad-brimmed hats shaded their faces. On the front of each hat was a gold emblem that had GAR (for Grand Army of the Republic) within a wreath. They wore dark blue uniforms. I thought they must be terribly hot.

Behind the car came the Women's Relief Corps. The ladies wore white dresses, and red and blue sashes slanted across their ample bosoms. My grandmother was in this group because her father had been in the Civil War.

Next in the line of march were the Boy Scouts, staggering under the burden of heavy flags. Behind them were the men of the American Legion, many in World War I uniforms.

Benefit Cut Deadlock At Capitol

The state House and Senate deadlocked today over a proposed cut in retirement benefits for firefighters and law enforcement personnel.

Seminole County emergency services personnel have marshaled forces in opposition to the benefit cuts.

Seminole County Sheriff John Polk had mounted a petition drive with the aid of Seminole County fire and law enforcement departments to support a house bill that would leave the benefits at the present level.

The house proposal would also require fire fighters and law enforcement officers to pay 4.25 percent of their annual salary toward their retirement.

The Senate has approved a bill cutting benefits to emergency service personnel by one-third in an effort to reduce a $3.3 billion deficit in the state's retirement benefit fund.

Senate President Law Brantley asked House Speaker Don Tucker to join him in appointing a conference committee to resolve the controversy.

Entering the final week of the 1978 session, lawmakers are working to resolve a host of issues, including the budget, the old Capitol and insurance.

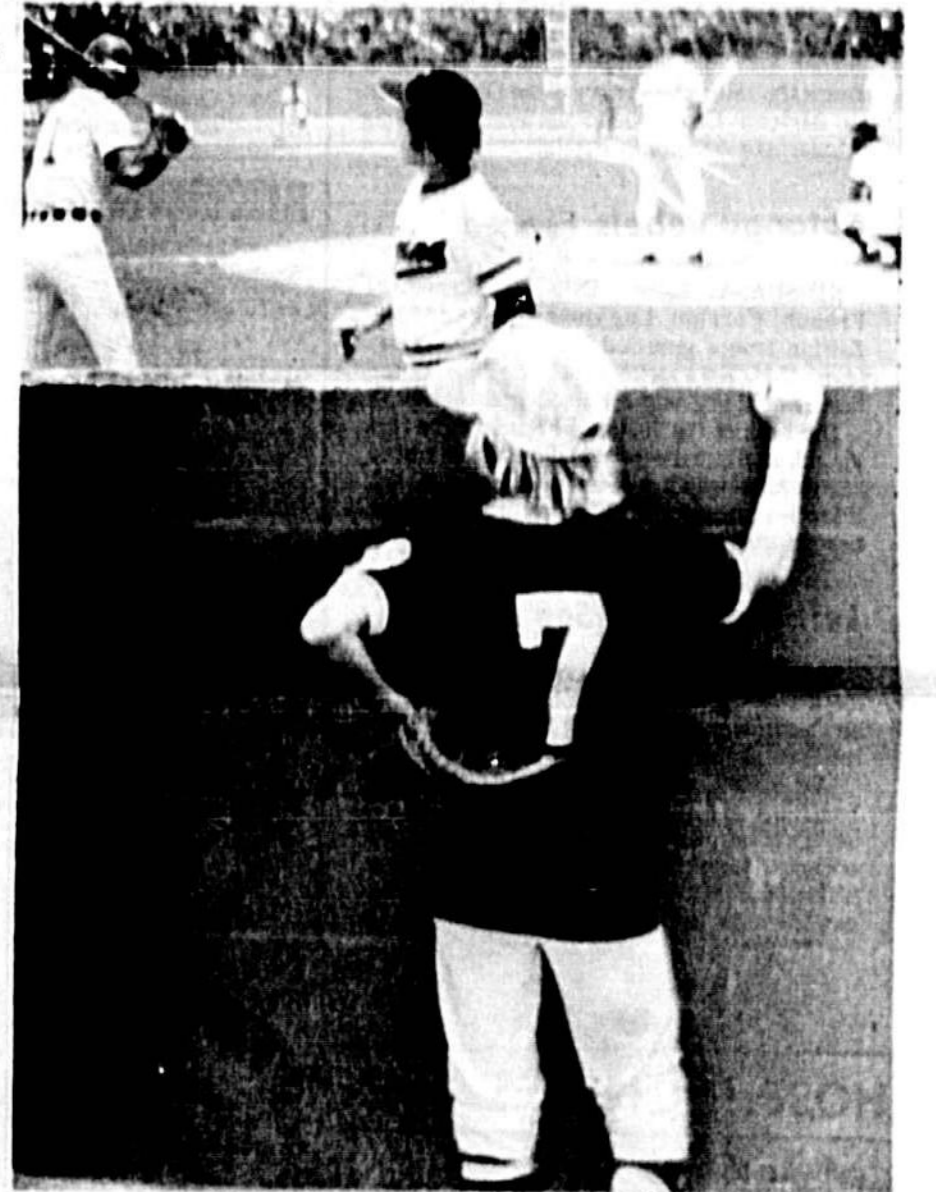

House-Senate conferences met today to work out the few remaining details on a $6.14 billion budget, so it can be sent to the floor of each chamber on Wednesday.

"We'll finish on Friday," predicted Brantley, assuring colleagues "we'll get out before midnight."

The $6.14 billion state budget ranks as the biggest single issue remaining.

A 16-member conference committee met this morning to finalize it for action on the House and Senate floors Wednesday.

A scaled-down package of tax breaks, designed to attract industry and business to Florida, must be voted out by the House and sent to the Senate.

Crowing Casselberry Rooster Frizzles Nerves, Sparks Feud

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

"I don't want to annoy anyone, but I want freedom to have on my own property what I want. Why should a chicken's crowing, a natural sound, 'His fowl mouth got him into trouble'?"

leather anyone? Actually he doesn't make any more noise than wild birds.

Although these are the personal feelings of Dennis Lewis of 566 Queens Mirror Circle, Casselberry, the crowing of his frizzled rooster did annoy two of his neighbors, who complained to the city council. Result: the eight-inch tall funny-looking frizzled rooster with curly feathers and a bright red bald head is being returned to the farm near Orlando from which he was purchased for $15 little more than two months ago.

"The 'fowl' mouth got him into trouble," said Lewis. The rooster did not crow at first. Then mating season began and that's when the rooster began shedding his feathers to reveal his red, bald head. Lewis, following his usual practice, provided a mate for the bird.

"At first we (Lewis and his wife, Mary) thought we could have his crow removed, but that was before I talked with three veterinarians," he said.

"The veterinarians told me the frizzled rooster's vocal chords could be removed, but the chicken might bleed to death in the process. They also said he could be castrated and that would leave him nothing to crow about, but I can't do that," said Lewis.

The city council has told Lewis that he has until June 6 to correct the complaints filed by the neighbors whose names are being kept confidential.

At the meeting where Lewis explained his problem to the city council, three other neighbers were with him to testify that the frizzled chicken's crowing, usually at 5:30 a.m. and at 4:30 p.m. didn't bother them at all.

The two not only complained about the rooster that began crowing with the onset of the mating season, but also about Lewis' cats.

There's another story behind the cat problem.

It seems that Lewis, who retired 15 years ago to Florida after 33 years with the postal service in Angier, Pa., does a little building contracting and painting on the side.

A few years ago after completing a painting job, the woman he was working for was kind enough to give him a fluffy white male cat called Fluffy. Shortly afterwards somebody else gave him another shorthaired white cat called Six, even though it's a male.

Soon a female cat moved in and the cat population has since expanded to 10, six green cats and four kittens. Lewis, called Downy by his wife, and Grampa by the neighborhood children, has posted a sign in his front yard seeking homes for seven of the cats.

His menagerie contains more than the frizzled rooster and its mate and the cats, but the two neighbors have not complained about the other creatures.

He also has a series of nest, wooden cages in the back yard containing other game birds in pairs — golden pheasants, silver pheasants, chukars, doves and pigeons. Even the young turkey he is hoping for a friend is in a cage.

A few years ago Lewis acquired seven pairs of Mallard ducks. A neighborhood dog killed them all except for two, both males, who remain the

WORLD IN BRIEF

NATO's 5th Summit: Torn By Dissent, Challenge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Top officials of 14 Western nations meet Tuesday for the fifth summit of NATO — torn by internal dissent and facing a growing Russian challenge as severe as any in its 29-year history. One member — France — is standing partly aloof. It refuses to play a full membership role in the alliance and is sending only its foreign minister to the meeting. Two other members — Greece and Turkey — are barely on speaking terms. These military foes over the issue of Cyprus will be present, but Greece has withdrawn from military cooperation in NATO while Turkey has closed U.S. bases on its territory and threatens to turn to Moscow for military supplies if the U.S. arms embargo continues.

Castro Renews Ethiopia Tie

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — President Fidel Castro of Cuba has pledged "militant solidarity" with Ethiopia despite reports of growing strains between the two Marxist countries. Castro's statement, reported by Addis Ababa radio Sunday, was sent to Ethiopian leader Lt. Col. Mengistu Haile Mariam to mark the 15th anniversary of the Organization of African Unity, headquartered in Addis Ababa, the Ethiopian capital.

Katanga Rebels Feared

KINSHASA, Zaire (UPI) — About 150 French Foreign Legionnaires and 1,000 Zairian troops guarded Kolwezi today amid fears that Katangese rebels lurking in the bush would regroup for another attack. The bulk of the 700-man French force that parachuted into the town 11 days ago to rescue 125 whites withdrew Sunday to Lubumbashi, 250 miles to the north, before returning to their base on the Mediterranean island of Corsica.

Leftists Win In San Marino

SAN MARINO (UPI) — The leftist parties in the world's oldest and smallest republic won an absolute majority for the first time today in the tiny nation's parliament. The leftist parties — the Communists, Socialists and Unitarian Socialists — won 31 seats in the parliament of the republic, which occupies 23 square miles on the top of Mount Titano, inland from Italy's Adriatic coast. The nation relies largely on tourism and stamps for its revenue.

85,000-Gallon Oil Spill: Will River Reopen Today?

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Coast Guard officials decide today whether to reopen a four-mile stretch of the Mobile River to harbor traffic following an 85,000-gallon oil spill. The four-mile industrial section remained closed while workers cleaned up the spill, and Coast Guardsmen were to observe the site from a helicopter to determine if it could be reopened.

Union Feud: Postal Strike?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A bitter inter-union dispute is disrupting U.S. Postal Service negotiations with four unions and threatening a nationwide strike when current contracts expire July 30. The National Alliance of Postal and Federal Employees — which includes militants who staged wildcat postal strikes in 1970 — has filed a petition seeking jurisdiction over 40,000 members of the Mail Handlers Union, one of the four unions that have been bargaining with the Postal Service since April for a new contract covering 650,000 workers.

Disease Probers Eye Indiana U

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI) — The sprawling Memorial Union Building at Indiana University has become the object of an investigation by National Center for Disease Control experts attempting to find the source of an outbreak of deadly Legionnaires' disease. The illness, a form of bacterial pneumonia, struck seven persons who visited the Bloomington area this year. Three of the victims died from the disease. Experts from the Atlanta-based CDC will arrive Tuesday to assist the university with the investigation, university officials said Sunday. Officials said the CDC told them that six of the seven victims had a "shared experience" — being in the Memorial Union Building. "What other experiences they may have shared were not known. University and state health officials said the illness has not been identified among students or faculty.

Gradually Professor Lanou built the volume and tempo until, at the end, it seemed we personally had trampled over the vineyards where the grapes of wrath were stored. Then there was silence. I had a sudden consciousness that the seconds of my life were ticking away, and I should be doing something exciting — like fighting in battle. The melodious voice of the Rev. Mr. Boland intruded upon my thoughts: "Dear God, we give Thee thanks for the greatness of this nation, and for the bravery and dedication of the men who gave the last full measure of devotion..." Finally he stopped praying, and two of the women moved to the bridge railing and heaved the big breath over. It fell with a splash, and the current carried it slowly downstream — a strange spot of brightness in the muddy water. And he'll play "Taps." She played very slowly, with each note full and sweet, soaring as if it had wings. I wondered if those notes — each so beautiful, so perfectly formed — would continue onward forever, perhaps reaching the souls of the men who had died in war. Somewhere in the crowd, a woman wept softly. Then it was over. My friend, Bill Hawkins, and I went to my father's drug store and got two ice cream cones. (I suspected that some of my friendships were based largely upon my access to free ice cream.) As we walked back up the hill to the school, where we had left our instrument cases, I asked Bill: "Do you think there'll be a war for us to be in?"

DANIA, Fla. (UPI) — Rep. J. "I want to find out why the policeman made the charges," Burke said later. "I wrote a list of things on the wall of the club. My demands. But when I told them about it, it was gone." Burke was arrested in the Continental Bar, which features nude dancers, because he "was belligerent and verbally abusive," the police report said. Explaining his actions, Burke said he had followed two men into the bar to observe a narcotics deal. The congressman added in his conversation with reporters: "If this happens to me, it can happen to the little guy."

This strategy was dictated by the timing of the 1978 elections in the White House and the Republican leaders. As a result, neither nominee was confirmed by the Senate before Congress recessed last year.

An anniversary slipped by us unnoticed a few weeks ago was the signing of the Marshall Plan.

With U.S. assistance, the participating countries not only rapidly recovered their productive capacities but went on to expand their economies and raise standards of living far beyond prewar levels.

Spanish is still the No. 1 student choice with 37.99 enrollees and leads in all sections of the country except the Northeast, where French is favored.

Arabic and Japanese also show gains. But there are two problem languages—German and Russian.

The former is down 37 percent and the latter 22 percent in 10 years, which the Modern Language Association finds worrying.

Perhaps it isn't surprising, therefore, that Carter's budget office has been late with the last six studies requested by the House Veterans Affairs Committee.

Reading Wallenberg, a distinguished Swedish diplomat and son of a wealthy Stockholm family, organized a courageous campaign to save the lives of thousands of Jews who were to be deported to Nazi death factories from Budapest, Hungary.

To thwart the determined Gestapo, the young diplomat invented a "protective passport" with the triple-crown seal of the Swedish king, which put thousands of Jews under the wing of the Swedish government.

Sonics Take 2-1 Advantage Back To Kingdom Friday

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — The Seattle SuperSonics came perilously close to choking away a nine-point lead in four minutes Sunday, but accomplished their goal — "stealing" one of the Washington Bullets' home games in the NBA championship series.

The 92-91 victory, cemented when Washington's Bob Dandridge missed a 15-foot jump shot with two seconds left, gave the Sonics a 2-1 lead and command of the best-of-seven series. They host Game 4 Tuesday at the Kingdom, then Game 5 Friday at Seattle Center Coliseum.

—Today's win is a big mental lift," said Seattle guard Gus Williams, who had 20 points.

Overconfidence, mistakes and a controversial call by referee Earl Strum nearly toppled the Sonics in Sunday's game. A basket by Marvin Webster, who also had 20 points, gave Seattle an 88-79 lead with 3:55 remaining before the Bullets began chipping away.

The Sonics, who appeared home free when Fred Brown stole a pass and dribbled the length of the court for a layup to make it 90-84 with 1:27 left, were still up by five, 103-88, after Webster made one of two foul shots with 12 seconds left.

That's when the Bullets — and Strum — made it interesting. A layup by Elvin Hayes cut the deficit to 85-80 with 12 seconds left, then Tom Henderson stole a layup and moved in for a layup with three seconds left.

Seattle's Paul Silas, trailing the fast break, caught the ball as it came through the basket and shoveled a pass to Brown. Strum, however, ruled Silas was straddling the end line — a conclusion televised replays disputed — and awarded the ball to Washington. Dandridge's last-second shot rinned the basket, saving Silas and Strum from a well-remembered place in playoff history.

"If Dandridge's shot had gone it, I would have felt like the dumbest player in the history of the game," said Silas, a 14-year veteran. "All I needed was to get the ball inbound, and I step on the line."

"You mean I didn't step on it?" he asked when a CBS announcer told him of the replay's conclusion. "That's good," added Silas. "I don't feel so bad about it."

Dandridge, who had 21 points to go with Hayes' 21 for the Bullets, thought his potential winning shot was true. "It thought it was going down," he said. "It was a tough shot, but I thought it was in."

The bizarre shooting negated the Bullets' 37-8 rebounding advantage and their 36-12 edge on the offensive boards. Hayes had 20 rebounds for Washington, while Silas had 14 and Webster 12 for Seattle.

percent overall, much superior to the Bullets' 34 percent.

Washington's guards — Kevin Grevey, Tom Henderson, Charles Johnson and Larry Wright — shot a frigid 9-40, and Grevey, who has been bothered by ankle and knee injuries, was 1-for-14.

Handwriting On The Wall

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nobody has to draw any pictures for Willie Montanez. He has as good an appreciation of art as anyone else and is aware that from a standpoint of performance he hasn't exactly been an oil painting for the Mets.

They gave up quite a bit to get him this winter, turning over Jon Matlack to Texas and John Milner to Pittsburgh in an elaborate 11-player deal also involving Atlanta, and when the Mets got Montanez, they were looking for him to provide them some desperately needed punch.

So far, they're still looking. Joe Torre, the Mets' manager, has been patient with Montanez. He hasn't given up on his high-priced, left-handed hitting first baseman, and Montanez showed signs Thursday night that he may be coming out of his slump when he drove in four runs and had three hits in an 8-7 Mets' victory over Atlanta. However, he is still struggling to get his batting average to .250 and shows only 16 runs batted in and two homers.

After last Saturday's contest with Houston, which the Mets lost, Torre figured he'd better do something. Seeing where Astro Manager Bill Virden planned to throw right-hander J.R. Richard and left-hander Floyd Bannister at the Mets in a doubleheader the following day, Torre decided to sit Montanez down in the nightcap against Bannister and play right-handed hitting Tom Seaver at first base instead.

When Montanez beamed off Torre's bullpen through screens, he made a headline into the Mets' manager's office. "No, no, no, I play," said the Puerto Rican-born one-time member of the Phillies, Giants and Braves. "I got six hits for you."

Torre smiled. He would gladly have settled for three or four hits, but he told Montanez he thought a brief rest might help him and that this in no way should be taken to mean he was losing faith in him. The entire plan never materialized anyway because it rained the next day and the doubleheader was washed out. Montanez has been back out with Atlanta last season, hitting .267, driving in 68 runs and hitting 20 homers, and understood that Braves' owner Ted Turner was motivated primarily by economics in letting him go. Montanez is earning $230,000 this season in the second year of a three-year contract, and with attendance being what it was in Atlanta, Turner simply couldn't afford players like Montanez and Andy Messersmith anymore.

"We finished last in Atlanta and when I heard I was traded to the Mets, I went through my mind last place again," says Montanez. "I wanted to go to a team that would be in the pennant race."

Montanez says he's happy, however, with the Mets. He enjoys playing in New York, he likes his teammates and he has no problems whatsoever with management.

Always a slow starter, he's confident he'll do much better once the weather warms up. Montanez, who comes from a warm climate, loves hot weather and has trouble tolerating the cold.

"To me, confidence is everything and I have that," says Montanez, who made the All-Star team for his first time last season. "Nobody helped me more with my confidence than (coach) Billy Demer when I was with Philadelphia. Him and Tony Taylor, they were wonderful."

Burger King Nears Altamonte's Crown

The Altamonte Springs Little League is learning that it does, indeed, take two hands to handle a winner.

Burger King clobbered Meiner's Bar-B-Q Fairville Saturday by a 17-4 score to clinch at least a tie for the second-half championship in the major league.

A victory by Burger King tonight at 6 o'clock against AFOCOM would wrap up the season, with the only team standing a change of catching it being first-half champion Gortie's Jewers, which dropped a preliminary 1-0 game Saturday to AFOCOM as John Luzzi pitched a one-hitter and won with an unearned run. Gortie's is 6-1 and has a game left with AFOCOM Friday.

NCAA Net Showdown

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI) — The powerful serve of North Carolina State's John Sadri and the cunning net play of Stanford's John McEnroe meet today in the singles final of the 94th NCAA Tennis Championships at Athens.

McEnroe, the tournament's top seed and slight favorite going into the finals, doubled teammate and doubles partner Bill Maze, 6-4, 6-2, Sunday to advance to the finals.

Sadri, who upset second-ranked Eliot Teltscher of UCLA in the quarterfinals, defeated Pepperdine's Eddie Edwards, 6-1, 6-7, 6-1.

Alcohol Merits Need For A Closer Look

DEAR DR. LAMB - My husband read this piece in the paper about how drinking beer or liquor could cut heart attacks in half. He thinks it's a great idea. I don't. He has ulcers already. I want you to write on it in your column and clear this up.

DEAR READER - I do agree a little "truth squad" work is overdue on that particular spate of news stories. The reports were based on an article in the New England Journal of Medicine. It did show that in Japanese-American men studied in Hawaii those who drank one or two beers a day had fewer heart attacks than those who did not. But the authors pointed out that heavy drinking was associated with quite different results.

And how did it work? Apparently the alcohol in fatty cholesterol levels with a truly effective diet and exercise program. It is much wiser to correct bad living habits than to correct the body for such a hoped-for effect.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am writing about a problem I can't seem to control. Every night after I get home from work, I eat until I'm stuffed, then go into the bathroom and gag myself. What I want to know is what damage can this cause? Will I get a serious illness?

DEAR READER - The Romans did it during their orgies. After emptying the stomach they returned to the orgy and consumed still more. There are two problems. One is that by forceful vomiting you can tear the lower part of the esophagus where it joins the stomach, causing emergency bleeding.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Tuesday, May 30, 1978

YOUR BIRTHDAY May 30, 1978 There are busy times ahead for you socially this coming year. You will meet some interesting new people. Don't, however, forget your old, faithful pals.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) Bite the bullet rather than to become involved in a demyoblock with co-workers over trivia today. The petty issues won't even be remembered tomorrow.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22) Occasionally you can goof off, but that's not so today. Too much time at the water cooler is sure to tick-off the boss.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 19) If you don't hold impudence in check today, you're likely to take some chances that are truly out of character. Remember, flares aren't your friend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) That unpleasant atmosphere at home today might result from your propensity for handing out directives while doing very little yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Weigh the potential damage of tackling a chore around the house that's over your head against the cost of having it done professionally in the first place.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're this-skinned about money today and won't be being called upon to justify your expenditures. You are also on the extravagant side.

TALWUS (April 20-May 20) You family may know something's bugged you today, but find it difficult to put a finger on just what. Chances are you're not quite sure yourself.

Dallabrida Crash Survey Done

17-92 Perils Keyed

Several dangerous intersections along U.S. 17-92 in Sanford, including one at which four members of the Albert Dallabrida Sr. family were killed, may be corrected later this year or in 1979. That was the word today from the state Department of Transportation's Deland office...

Dallabrida, 53, lost his wife and three children in the accident. He was later charged with making an improper left turn and following that, with four counts of manslaughter by driving while intoxicated. A circuit court jury on May 19 found Dallabrida not guilty of the manslaughter charges...

Anchors Anchors, Aweigh Aweigh

Identical twins Barry and Gary Leary of 832 Woodside Road, Forestbrook in South Semole, have received appointments to the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis and will be reporting there on July 4, just one week after their father ends a 30-year career with the Navy...

BRUSHFIRE ON LAKE MARY BOULEVARD JUST WEST OF U.S. 17-92

Arson Blamed in Two Of 11 Fires; Rangers On Alert

The largest of the fires began at 2:32 p.m. Monday in the Tusculum area near Red Bug School, and was under control late Monday, according to Gil Artman, a ranger with the Florida Division of Forestry. Forestry units have been sent to the same area "at least seven times" in the last two weeks, according to Artman.

Is Petition Brewing To Oust Officials In Row Over Firemen?

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer In the Winter Springs Volunteer Fire Department participating in or leading a move to oust Laurence John Daniels and Laurence Peters from office? The last paragraph of the letter, however, states, "Re-read the letter and consider it when the volunteer firemen and other community-minded people ask for your support by signing the petitions to request a recall election for the removal of Daniels and Peters."

STRICKEN AT CEREMONY

Memorial Day observances were marred temporarily in Sanford today when Irving J. Leary, 76, was felled from heat or a heart problem for observation. Leary, a Golden Age Olympics swim medal winner has already undergone a triple bypass heart operation. Leary collapsed about 15 minutes after the holiday festivities began at 11 a.m. in Memorial Park on the Lakeshore. Horace Orr, president of SEEDCO, had not yet addressed the gathering. The recorded temperature was 82 degrees when the ceremonies began.
