"Old Man Psychology" Will Aid Athletics In Final Game With Yanks This Afternoon

By Leo Conkili
International News Service
Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK, Apr. 22.—The Yankees will face a ten-man team today when they take on Connie Mack's Athletics here in the 11th game of the series. The 11th member of the Philadelphia team is old man psychology, who went over to Mack's camp yesterday when Robert Mease drove. The star southpaw who was beaten by the worse championship six times in seven starts this year, handed them a 7 to 4 decision in his first 1929 appearance against them.

That performance killed Jimmie Foxx. The fact that the A's lost the pennant last year by dropping 26 of their 52 games with the Yanks, will receive a mortal wound if the Macks can capture day at bat with four hits against the Cardinals. Guy Bush yielded only three hits and gained a 4 to 0 decision over Clarence Mitchell.

Detroit took a 10-hit slugfest from St. Louis, 16 to 9. The big one looked like Dumb Danfelt when the Browns pulled the runner ball trick on them, but redeemed themselves by collecting 11 hits. The pitcher must have been day and committed four balks. Dale Alexander, former home run king of the International League, socked his first home run.

The Brooklyn Robins, whose specialty is making stars out of opposing pitchers, have yet to taste the sweets of victory in five series. They got out three hits off Alex Ferguson and lost to the Reds, 4 to 1.

Other teams were held idle by rain.

NOVEL RELAY TO FEATURE GAMES AT IOWA SCHOOL

West Point Becomes Entry In Spectacular Competitions

By Arthur B. Ingegnan
DES MOINES, Apr. 22.—(INS)—What may develop into the most spectacular of all events at the games is the new 480 yard high hurdle shuttle race, just added to the program of the Drake relays, to be run here April 23 and 27.

Included in the university section of the relays, the new event has already received a number of preliminary entries, including a team from the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Four-man teams will compete in the event just as in other team competitions. The difference will be that the playing will be made up of high hurdles instead of sprinters and distance men. Each of the four men will run a full flight of 120 yards over the sticks, and when the hurdler reaches, what ordinarily would be the finish line, he will pass a baton to a team mate, who will retrace his course until all four entrants have covered the distance.

Interest Strong
Interest in the added event is strong, according to Ossie Solem, director of the relays. In addition to the West Point entry others are expected from most of the Big Ten, Big Six and Missouri Valley conference schools, all of which can recruit strong squads of high hurdlers. Since the race will give schools with four average hurdlers a crack at even honors with those possessing a hurdling phenom, it is expected the event will be heated by interest.

Although formal announcement of the relays has just been made, preliminary entry blanks are already pouring into the office of directors of the games.

West Point was one of the first schools to signify its intention of competing. The cadets will send out track and field men to compete in the four mile relay, the university medley relay, 480-yard high hurdle shuttle race, the two mile run, hop skip and jump, the broad jump, shot put and discus throw.

It will be the first time West Point has sent a track squad west of the Mississippi River to participate in a collegiate meet.

Many Entries
University of Indiana will have four relay teams and at least half a dozen individual performers at the relays. Principal interest in the Hoosiers is centered on the four mile relay team which was headed by Illinois at the Illinois indoor relays. To beat Indiana the Illinois and a new Big Ten record of 17 minutes, 53.4 seconds for the distance and as the Drake relay mark for the four mile relay is just eight seconds faster, it is likely a new mark will be set on the local cinder path when the rivals meet on April 27.

Interest in the relays is stronger than ever this year, and schools in the Midwest, south and far west have nominated starters.

Preliminary cards have been submitted and colleges: Army, Butler, Indiana, Oklahoma A. and M., Grinnell, Southern Methodist, Utah, Wichita University DePauw, Bradley, Tarkenton, Knox, Hastings, Iowa Teachers, South Dakota U. Western State Teachers, Simp-

lyman said: "You simply telephone 795 and a new sedan will soon be sent to take you anywhere around town and bring you back. There are no strings to the offer and no one is under any obligations to us. We just want you to ride in the new Chevrolet six."

FISHER ANNOUNCES

A Nation-wide System of BODY SERVICE

Fisher-Body announces the organization of a new unit, the Fisher Body Service Corporation, to provide a nation-wide system of body service to all owners of General Motors cars.

How vast and far-reaching will be the service rendered by this organization is indicated by the fact that there are today over 25,000 General Motors dealer's service stations throughout the United States.

The system inaugurated by the Fisher Body Service Corporation will be the first centralized, economic and truly efficient body service the industry has yet known. Such a service system is possible of course to General Motors alone, because Fisher Body, the source of bodies for all General Motors cars, is a corporate part of General Motors, which it supplies with bodies year after year—thus being certain always of this great permanent market.

Fisher Body Service makes available to every General Motors car owner everything he may require in the way of body maintenance and rehabilitation, and will enable him to obtain complete service—service for car body as well as car chassis—from one source, his car dealer. Such service as the elimination of body annoyances, the adjusting of tie-down bolts, the periodical dressing of the roof, the lubrication of door lock bolts, door checks and hinges, the cleansing of soiled upholstery, the bumping of fenders or panels, will now be performed in your dealer's service department.

The car owner will be thus freed from the necessity of turning for his car body's maintenance to small shops whose inadequate equipment compels them to charge exorbitant prices, and from which genuine Fisher Body parts are not obtainable.

Now, through General Motors dealers, Fisher Body parts will be supplied at factory list prices wherever and whenever they are required, registering a marked saving to the car owner.

For General Motors dealers—and their mechanics who have been instructed in the care of bodies for more than a year—there have been made available the tools and equipment necessary for actual and immediate service.

Two Fisher Body service schools have been established—one in Detroit, one in Oakland, California—where thousands of General Motors men will be trained. The Fisher Body Service Corporation has also established Parts Depots at these points where complete stocks of genuine Fisher Body parts for General Motors cars are held ready for immediate shipment upon order of General Motors dealers.

Fisher Body considers the inauguration of this nation-wide Fisher Body service a vital, progressive contribution to the public, especially because of the immensely increased interest which owners are manifesting everywhere in body beauty, body comfort and body durability.

Mellon And His Troubles

The Treasury Department, over which Andrew Mellon holds sway, is a very harassed branch of the government. It seems that its most difficult job does not have to do with things financial. We are sure that the collection of income taxes and the debts of foreign countries, the payment of America's obligations and the disbursement of other monies are not the matters which cause Mr. Mellon to have sleepless nights. In fact, after looking at some of the pictures of the Secretary, we are of the opinion that he is the type of man that would revel in the intricacies of finance and would grow fat, if that were possible, on gazing at a bewildering maze of statistics.

But Mr. Mellon does have some duties which, albeit incidental, are nevertheless apt to make one's hair grow white or put deep furrows in one's face. They have to do with prohibition enforcement, which responsibility, sadly enough, has been placed upon the Treasury Department. Mr. Mellon is a banker; he always has been, and naturally, he doesn't care for all the fireworks over the Tim Alone affair. Mrs. Willebrandt's continual spats with various quarters, the question of "aliphatic liquor" and the row over the sale of spirits aboard U. S. ships. But, like the football player running with the ball, he can only hope for the best.

Just now, Representative La Guardia of New York and the Methodist board of temperance, prohibition and public morals are making things unhappy for him over the announcement that drinks would be sold on United States line ships. La Guardia, who leads the wet forces of the country, gave a chance to have some fun so he wrote Mr. Mellon demanding that he either force the line to stay dry, or admit the failure of prohibition and recommend its repeal. The temperance board also insists that the line remain dry, but its reason for this is not to weaken prohibition but to strengthen it.

This we find both the Wets and the Drys aligned on one side. They both want U. S. ships not to sell intoxicants but their motives are different. It looks like a sad day for the shipping concern, which declares that it cannot operate successfully without dispensing drinks. Surely Mr. Mellon cannot decide in its favor, for he will be caught in the unfortunate position of having both Wets and Drys against him. His only consolation is that enforcement of prohibition will be transferred shortly to another department and he will be left peacefully to work out the financial troubles of the nation.

Hoover's Message

Speaking before an assemblage of newspaper editors gathered from all sections of the country to attend the annual luncheon of the Associated Press, President Hoover yesterday declared that in regard to crime the nation is faced "with a national necessity of the first degree." He called for a new order of things in the way of law enforcement, asked for the united support of the press and made a number of startling statements. Among them were:

"That life and property are relatively more unsafe in the United States than in any other civilized country in the world; that in many of our great cities murder apparently can be committed with impunity; that more than 9,000 human beings are lawlessly killed every year in the United States while little more than half as many arrests follow. Less than one-sixth of these slayers are convicted and but a scandalously small percentage are adequately punished; that at least 60 times as many robberies in proportion to population are committed in the United States as in Great Britain, and three times as many burglaries; and that even in such premeditated crimes as embezzlement and forgery our record stands no comparison with stable nations."

To eliminate some of the evils just mentioned, Mr. Hoover recommended the investigation of existing agencies of enforcement and reorganization of the present system of enforcement so as to avoid its many weaknesses. He also declared that the law fully favored the criminal and that the judiciary needs to be strengthened. He denied that prohibition was the main cause of increased crime but said it was only one of the many problems.

The President's speech will be received with much favor by a great many citizens, who have recognized the existing menace of law violations but who were unable to do anything about it. It gives one a feeling of relief to hear from the lips of the chief executive such plain-spoken denunciation of present-day law enforcement and with it the assurance that action will follow his words. The president's message is just another of the many evidences that "some one" is in the White House.

FIGHTING THE FRUIT FLY

Victorious action is being taken to subdue the Mediterranean fruit fly, that has invaded this state, before any great damage can be done. The Florida State Plant Health Board, the best of cooperation on the part of the federal authorities, started promptly to eradicate this pest, not only of fruits and vegetables, but also of such things as made known that the invader from the Mediterranean had made its appearance in this state.

The danger that threatens the fruit and vegetable industry of Florida, because of the appearance of this fly, needs to be fully appreciated and every effort made to exterminate this pest that the United States department of agriculture sometimes has an extremely difficult time of it. Not only did the Florida Plant Health Board hold a meeting, attended by a number of prominent Florida citizens and on line a plan of action, which was immediately started upon in the interested territory, but the United States department of agriculture, in Washington, took immediate action also.

As soon as the department of agriculture in Washington, the confirmation of the appearance of the fruit fly in Florida, it sent Dr. Arthur H. Hays Sulzberger, chief of the plant quarantine and control administration in Washington, where he is working in full cooperation with the officials of this state. Further action was taken by Secretary of Agriculture Arthur H. Hays Sulzberger, who issued notice of a public hearing in the matter of the fruit fly, and the plant quarantine and control administration and the federal plant quarantine board of the United States department of agriculture, in Washington, on the morning of April 22, as follows: "In order that any person interested in the present quarantine may appear and be heard either in person or by attorney." This indicates that the officials in Tallahassee and those in Washington will have to make a long drive to Tallahassee to appear in person. The situation, at present, is not alarming, but, at the same time, it is such that unless the best of practical efforts are put forth immediately for the destruction of this fly, wherever it has made its appearance, then the situation will become alarming, and great damage, running into the millions of dollars, will be suffered by fruit and vegetable growers in this state.

This is indicated, in part, at least, in an official notice sent out by the department of agriculture in Washington by authority of Secretary Hays, in which it is stated that because of the appearance of the Mediterranean fruit fly in Florida, "it appears necessary to consider the advisability of quarantining the state of Florida and of prohibiting the exportation of such commodities as oranges, grapefruit, and all other products of this insect from that state or from any district therein."

In the notice referred to in the foregoing paragraph, there is a statement regarding Florida to that effect: "The very best efforts for the extermination of this Mediterranean fruit fly are being made. Other wise it is easy to foresee that enormous losses are due to be suffered by the fruit and vegetable growers of this state, especially if the quarantine that is proposed will be an interference, as it will be, to the heavy damage that is being done by this pest in the manner that has made it an invader in Florida threatens to be an invader that has made its appearance to other states."

JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II

In Xanadu did Kubla Khan A stately pleasure-dome decree.

A six-carat diamond set in the dome of Cuba's new twenty-million dollar capital building, makes Kubla's magnificence seem medieval. This diamond bit, said to be a symbol of the strife between those who want Cuba to glitter at the top and those who prefer to have it substantial at the base.

Florida, whose destiny partly parallels and partly amazes that of Cuba, will watch the Cuban controversy with an interest all its own.

Contemplating the approach of the famous Mabel Walker Willebrandt to supreme control of prohibition law enforcement operations, Americans have yet to learn whether she is a Joan of Arc or a Catherine de Medici.

Exports from the United States will exceed imports into this country by a billion dollars this year. If this favorable balance of trade is a good thing, and no body doubts it, the worst economic angles of the country, now are those who, by high American tariffs, would prevent retaliatory tariffs in foreign countries, as would close many avenues to American export trade.

Representative Kelly of Duval county would have the state legislature appropriate for the purchase and maintenance of a winter home in Florida for the president of the United States. This would be all right if there were any certainty that the chief executive would come here every winter to occupy it. But Mr. Hoover who seems likely to be president for the next eight years, is too hardy a winterer to be likely to take both a winter and a summer vacation while in office. And in Washington, where the summer heat is intolerable, a summer vacation is a necessity while a winter one is only a luxury.

Representative Weeks of Holmes county accuses Governor Lane of circulating reports of bad financial conditions of some of the counties of Florida. In so doing Mr. Weeks says the ostrich has the complexion of an imperator. He does not accuse Mr. Lane of circulating bad reports of financial conditions, but reports of bad financial conditions. In the relative location of the subject, he says the difference between discretion in Florida and service. Mr. Lane has done this state a great service in reporting the truth, and Mr. Weeks would serve better if he directed his legislative efforts to curing rather than concealing the situation.

Every friend of Florida's credit is determined that there shall be no repudiating of public bonds in this state. But the way to prevent this repudiation is Mr. Lane's way, not Mr. Weeks'.

Mr. Hoover's idea of farm relief seems to be the relieving of the farmer from further loss of federal subsidy, transportation and efficiency, particularly as regards marketing, are his points. But all the organization and efficiency in the world will not stop nature from producing less. American crops sometimes more and sometimes less than Americans can consume. That is the real problem. And where as in agriculture, the law of supply and demand doesn't work, the federal government should.

The Mediterranean fly has exceeded their quota under the immigration laws of the United States. The penalty in this instance is not deportation but death, and Florida has signed the death warrant.

Now it is said to be a historical fact that Chicago originally was intended to be in Wisconsin. But a land clerk at Washington may be rest in peace made a mistake. This, delay Chicago is in Illinois by reason of that clerk's error, and we cannot help feeling that the hand of Providence guided the quill of that sleepy or middle-headed clerk.

COMPETITION IN THE TROPICS

PORT MYERS TROPICAL NEWS

Samuel Crowther, a writer who will be remembered for his unusually understanding interview with Thomas A. Edison, published in the Saturday Evening Post a while back, is the author of a book just out on "The American Tropics." The tropics he writes about are not the tropics of Florida but are Central and South America; and what he says about them is of special significance here because the region he discusses will be the seat of the world from which our main competition will come at the future date.

Modern transportation has been provided and the methods of cultivation have been put into practice on a large scale. Even more important, he believes, as a factor making for progress, is the administrative machinery which American interests are installing. Organization is being built from the ground up with college graduates from the United States, many of them trained engineers; who are sent down there for their first jobs, fresh and enthusiastic, and promoted to executive positions as they prove their mettle. From the old revolutionary governments and the soldier-of-fortune Americans of Richard Harding Davis and O. Henry, later.

Florida had little to fear in the way of serious competition. But these new expertly managed, efficiently administered Central American enterprises are something else again. Supplementing cheap land and cheap labor with American money, machinery and brain they can discount the lower cost of the markets in this county and undersell Florida products.

Competition from the tropics outside the borders of the United States is already making itself felt. Products of Mexico, Cuba and other countries are in direct competition with Florida's. With pressure from Central America added only adequate tariff protection can maintain the prosperity of our agricultural industry.

Fortunately, this need of tariff legislation has been recognized by both political parties. A start in building up the necessary schedules will be made at the special session of congress now sitting. There are no indications that the protection demanded will be denied. But the tariff alone will not completely solve the problem. A marketing efficiency equal to that which American interests are building up in Central America must be provided. Progress down there is rapid and there is no time to be lost. The present finds the federal government inclined to give the farmers everything they want. Florida growers should tell themselves to organize to get theirs while the getting is good.

POETS OF TODAY

THE PURPLE CLOUD
When a child, I lived in the Hogler state,
It confess it was long ago,
On a drear little farm, in poverty bought;
Early and late we labored and wrought;
The giant trees we charged and fought,
And laid the monsters low.

We piled their bodies in mighty heaps,
An army's funeral pyre,
The wind-tossed flames leaped to the sky,
The black smoke rolled and drifted high,
The wild things uttered a warning cry,
And fled the roaring fire.

One moon there came a distant foot,
That loomed and hunder grew,
The bright sun paled to a sickly light,
A twilight dim, as of fading night—
A roar like a cavalry charge in a fight,
That hoarse and deeper grew.

A purple cloud came out of the west,
I thought it a fiend of Cyclone Land,
"The Passenger Pigeons," my father cried,
A great vast cloud, so deep and wide;
A mighty wave from the moon-drawn tide,
Numbers like grains of sand.

They passed of fast and as night drew near,
Out of the east, on swift return,
Stridely for a forest dark and deep,
They plunged to roost, to hulk and sleep,
All the early birds of the dawn should sleep,
And the fire in the east should burn.

Down to the earth the small trees leant,
The great limbs crashed and fell,
A forest buried in a sea of black,
A cyclone vast, twisted and stirred;
Numbers so vast, no sign of a bird,
Could ever tally or tell.

Then the murderers came, by night and by day,
Too sad and cruel for words,
The children sent their leader hail,
Long poles bent like the thrashing flail,
Never a plaint and never a wail
From the helpless and murdered birds.

The grinding wagons bore the dead
From the roasting place each town,
The numbers seemed like the stars in the sky,
By the graves of the forest, drifting by,
Or all the children, born to die,
Or the grains of the golden corn.

Pigeons boiled and fried and baked,
Too good to count the cost;
Feet of all was the pigeon-pie;
I grew as fat as the pig in the sty.
Forever the pigeons homing fly,
For the cloud could not be lost.

Today, not a passenger pigeon lives.

REAL ESTATE LIVENS UP

MIAMI POST

It has come with a great deal of surprise to many people, Floridians mainly, to note that real estate is beginning to reach a point where it can be considered of some real value. Those Floridians, with a piece of land they would not have sold for one hundred thousand dollars in 1925 and for which they would have accepted one hundred dollars cash in 1927, are finding out that their property is worth two or three thousand dollars. That is all it ever was worth or will be worth for a few years to come. There will be an increased demand for farm lands and industrial sites. But we must beware of the boom. The last one did us much damage.

"I prefer men who have had to work their way through college. They have more drive than those who do not have to bother about tuition, there are, of course, a great many cases where men make good in a big way without college training.

City Default Ruins Credit, Increasing Taxpayers' Burden

For years after the securities of that municipality are unsaleable. "When a city has repudiated its obligations, it cannot thereafter sell its bonds excepting at a terrifically high interest cost to itself, nor can it sell them at all unless, the previous default is entirely cleared up. The result is that necessary improvements are curtailed or if installed the cost is so high that taxes are heavy and out of proportion. The taxpayer bears the burden. "Municipal bonds are widely distributed. If the City of 'X' defaults the changes are, if it has issued many bonds, that those securities are in the hands of investors from Maine to California. Possibly John Smith owns some of them and many have liked the City of 'X', may have thought of making his home there for part of the year or may have contemplated making substantial investments but when the city defaults John Smith is through. And he is not only through himself, but as assured he tells all his friends what he thinks of 'X'. A man doesn't want to live in a city and be asked constantly why it won't pay its debts. Nor can outsiders be blamed for feeling that if a city won't pay its obligations the people aren't to be trusted either. Credit men are apt to scrutinize the credits much more closely than would normally be the case. The one default may cost the people of 'X' a hundred times the amount involved in loss of actual profits, in curtailed credits and in the location of prospective industries elsewhere.

President Sends Letter To Senate Committee Opposing De-benture Relief Plan

By George H. Holmes
International News Service
Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Apr. 23.—(INS)—President Hoover has virtually won his first brush with Congress. Face to face with the first real test of his leadership Mr. Hoover has cracked the whip over Congress in the farm relief fight in a manner reminiscent of Roosevelt or Wilson.

Abandoning his hitherto passive attitude, he informed Congress in positive terms that he was opposed to the de-benture plan, which the old McNary-Haugenites favored as a substitute for the equalization fee, and he indicated plainly that only a veto awaits any farm bill containing it.

The President's opposition, expressed in a letter to the Senate agriculture committee, sounds the death knell of the de-benture plan, and by the same token definitely assures the passage of a farm relief bill for which he stands sponsor. Or that there can be no doubt.

The well-disciplined House already is behind him. It is only a minority of the recalcitrant Senate with which he has to deal. And respectively of the Senate agriculture committee, does not vote to include the plan in the bill which it reports, the Senate cannot be mustered to pass in either house. The committee via may be close, stir way, but it doesn't matter much.

Senator McNary the chairman, who twice fathered bills which President Coolidge vetoed, expressed the general attitude of his colleagues when he said Monday:

"I will not favor the de-benture plan now that the President has expressed opposition to it. I don't know what the committee will do. But I don't want to do anything foolish such as passing a bill certain to be vetoed. I am finished with sham battles—we have fought them for the last four years. This time I want to get the farmer some relief as long as the President disapproves, the de-benture plan, I shall vote for the plan which I know he will approve."

There will be some fighting over it, or rather some shadow-boxing, in the Senate. But it will be mainly for political purposes and to appease the farm organizations that sponsored the de-benture plan, rather than with any idea of victory. The President's letter to McNary killed all chance of victory for the de-benture people. They know it, as well as anyone else.

Mr. Hoover cited 10 reasons why he is opposed to the de-benture plan, among them being that it would cost the treasury $200,000,000 a year which would go mostly to speculators rather than to the farmers themselves; that it would stimulate over-production and disturb the basis of crop diversification; that it would necessitate revision of import tariffs; that it would stimulate speculation and manipulation; and finally because it would confuse and minimize the more far-reaching plan for farm relief upon which there is now general agreement.

The backers of the de-benture plan, however, manage to extract one bit of comfort out of the situation—they had forced Mr. Hoover to assume the responsibility for killing the plan and to accept corresponding responsibility for the bill that will be enacted.

It was a responsibility which Mr. Hoover did not want to assume. For the past five weeks there has been incessant sparring between capitol Hill and the White House over who was to take up the axe "to kill cock robin."

Mr. Hoover insisted that the Senate committee itself do the job, but the committee, didn't relish it—not with the farm organizations standing over them with a political club poised and waiting. So eventually Mr. Hoover had to do it himself.

The result, of course, is that when the farm bill emerges from Congress it will bear indelibly the White House stamp therefore, Mr. Hoover assumes responsibility for its success or failure.

If it works, everything will be politically lovely for the administration and for the farmers. If it doesn't work, that is something else again. If it doesn't work, the farm organizations that backed the de-benture plan will be in a position to say "we told you so" and to exact such political retribution as they are capable of.

In any event Mr. Hoover has "killed cock robin" and the responsibility is in view of his letter, inescapably his.

TAILORED SPORTS FROCK

The gay printed frocks which are so much the Summer find admirable expression in this chic tailored sports frock with its double-breasted vest and cuffs of white pique. The straight simple lines and short kimono sleeves make this long-waisted frock an excellent choice for Summer sports wear. The narrow belt and inserted pocket are additional touches which complete the smartness of this model. The silk or printed rayon silk, combined with plain contrasting silk in the vest and trimming, are also effective fabrics.

Experts Bent Upon Reaching Accord In Reparations Pact

PARIS, Apr. 23.—(INS)—A determination to make a general effort to reach an agreement resulted today from a short meeting of the committee of reparations experts.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, chief of the German Delegation, informed International News Service that all the experts had agreed to prepare report upon the status of negotiations to date and would meanwhile continue their discussions.

Dr. Schacht's announcement laid at rest all fears that the conference of experts would break up without having accomplished anything. A half an hour before, when interviewed as he was about to go before the assembled experts at 11 o'clock this morning, Dr. Schacht made the following statements:

"It is entirely possible that both the amounts and number of annuities which were offered by the German delegation last Thursday may be changed."

From this it was inferred that Schacht had been instructed during his visit to Berlin not to remain adamant on his original counter-offer to the allies of 1,050,000 marks annually for 37 years.

This offer, opposed as it was to one providing for annuities ranging from 1,250,000,000 to 2,500,000,000 marks annually over a period of 58 years, made by the allied delegates, almost caused the break-up of the conference when it was submitted to the sub-committee headed by the late Lord Revelstoke.

Identify Men in Mob

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Apr. 23.—(INS)—Effort to establish the identity of members of a mob who last Thursday demolished the National Life building in Gastonia were pushed today following a gubernatorial protest against the outrage.

Governor O. Max Gardner, telegraphed solicitor J. D. Carpenter of Gaston county to lead every effort in uncovering the identity of the participants in the raid. Twenty-nine men and women strikers of the Lenoir Mills at Gastonia were to go on trial today in Gastonia city court on charges of violating an ordinance which requires permits for street parades.

The strikers were arrested yesterday after a "Mass meeting." Officers, however, put a different interpretation on the "mass meeting" and called it a parade. There were nine women who were arrested.
