Refugee Hung In Jail

MIAMI (AP) - A Haitian refugee waiting to be deported by U.S. Immigration officals apparently hung himself early today in the Dade County stockade, a prison spokesman said.

Officer Robert Novak said a guard discovered the body of Tirenne Deville, 27, hanging from a bar on a washroom window. Novak said Deville used a bedsheet as a makeshift rope.

The victim was dead on arrival at Jackson Memorial

Deville was one of 10 Haitian refugees who barely averted deportation Wednesday when their lawyers obtained a temporary restraining order, Novak said. The order came just minutes before the men were to board a light back to Haiti.

English Elections Fail To Meet Needs

Harold Wilson's attempt to lead Britain out of its economic crisis with a minority Labor government is at best a short-term expedient. The special election has failed to give that country what it needs most — a strengthening and consolidation of leadership.

Britain is not alone in this crisis of leadership. Nearly all the countries of Western Europe are led by coalition or minority governments. France's ailing President Pompidou is trying to save his government with a cabinet reorganization. Italy's coalition collapsed recently - the end of its 36th government in 30 years. The oil crisis brought down the government of Belgium in January. Prime Minister Willy Brandt, governing West Germany by colalition, is seeing the strength of his Social Democratic Party eroding at the polls.

The Greek government remains under the thumb of a military junta. The movement toward peace in the Middle East is jeopardized by a governmental crisis in Israel.

Latin America has been retrogressing as a laboratory of democratic experiments. Depressingly, stability in Central and South America remains associated with military rule and the "strong man." The recent mutiny in the Ethiopian armed forces has shown that even a leader as revered as Emperor Haile Selassie cannot take loyalty for granted.

As stable a country as the United States must recognize that its own leadership has been weakened. Polls show a low ebb of confidence in both the President and Congress.

The direct causes of the leadership crisis in different countries are varied, but in most cases - as in Britain - it is political institutions that are being questioned, tested or subjected to unusual strain. Restive populations seem to be challenging "the system" - whatever it might be — as much as challenging those political figures who currently are trying to make it work.

The history of every country in the free world has been one of people striving to create rights and dignity of man under a philosophy best expressed by the word democracy. Some have made more progress than others, but it is the survival and perfection of progressive political institutions that are more important to the cause of freedom than any leader or the policies he has brought to a government.

Our own political institutions appear to be sturdy enough to weather the tests of executive.

legislative and judicial power precipitated by the Watergate affair. We can hope that the British parliamentary system can survive the strain as well. One thing Britons, Americans and people everywhere who prize freedom should remember is that it is not just leaders who are involved in political crises, but "followers" as well. Political institutions based on the principle of self-government above all must have the faith and support of the people if they are to survive.

Clawing IRS

WASHINGTON-Petite but pugnacious Jane Fonda has won her share of scratching matches with the armed forces, the FBI and other bastions of government. The latest to feel her claws is the Internal Revenue Service, or her favorite antiwar charity. The sheepish tax authorities secretly reversed themselves, we have learned, to avoid having to tell Jane how she and her friends were tailed, tapped and spied upon.

which at first revoked and then hastily reinstated a tax exemption

The government has developed a strange paranoia about little Miss Fonda, whose political ideas are unpopular in the ruling circles. Given the "plumber" mentality of government, the appropriate agencies began keeping her under surveillance. Not that she tried to hide her activities. On the contrary, the angry actress did her utmost to keep in the spotlight. But intrepid FBI agents carefully taped her remarks on coast-to-coast television shows and then stamped the transcripts "Top Secret. No Foreign Dissemination. No Dissemination Abroad. Controlled semination. For Background Use Only."

They also grabbed her private bank accounts, without the legal formality of obtaining a subpoena. Upon her arrival home from abroad once, she was detained on phony charges long enough for Customs agents to confiscate and photocopy her

To promote her militant views, she joined other antiwar activists in sponsoring the tax-exempt United States Servicemen's Fund, which depended heavily on donors who give only to tax-exempt organizations. The fund put up money to defend dissident GIs, to open pacifist coffee houses and to finance underground military newspapers.

This outraged the IRS, which served written notice upon the fund that its tax exemption was in jeopardy because it supported GIs "who oppose the Vietnam war and the use of conscription," not to mention "GI newspapers (which) cultivate dissent in the

The IRS forthwith began an investigation not only of Jane Fonda but of other show people who had entertained GIs at coffee houses and had staged benefits for the fund. Among those who suddenly found themselves in tax trouble were Dick Gregory and

Burglars reportedly acting under the aegis of a law enforcement agency also ransacked the fund's files. The stolen documents were accepted by the House Committee on Internal Security, which printed names of the fund's contributors. Once this dubious groundwork had been laid, IRS Commissioner Johnnie Walters revoked the fund's tax exemption. Under federal court rules, the fund demanded all records "reflecting wire or electronic surveillance" by the FBI, IRS or other government agencies against Jane Fonda, Dr. Benjamin Spock, retired Brig. Gen. H.B. Hester and other pacifist sponsors. The fund also insisted upon access to the "impounded" files of ex-White House aides H.R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman, Charles Colson, former Attorney General John Mitchell and Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans. The purpose was to show that the government had been hounding Fonda and company and that the IRS action, therefore, was purely political Faced with the possible exposure of more White House horrors, the Administration passed down the word quietly to kill the case. Accordingly, the servicemen's fund got a short private note a few days ago from IRS official George Alberts. If the Fonda group would drop their case with its em-

Cha Cha Enters Gatornationals

The male domination of quarter-mile fuel dragster racing City. Ariz. will get its first serious challenge this weekend March 15-17) when an attractive female goes after the coveted Top Fuel Eliminator championship in the Fifth Annual Gatornationals at Gainesville Shirley "Cha Cha" Muldowney, a slender brunette from Mt. Clemens, Michigan, will be at the belm of a brand new fuel dragster in a bid to become the first female to capture a victory in drag racing's (astest and quickest competition category, and a part of the $246,000 prize money.

The 34-year-old mother is the only woman licensed to race the brutish, 1,800 horsepower fuelers, and while this will not be her first outing in 230 mph company, the Gatornationals will represent her most serious effort to win.

"The car is brand new and we had some problems with it at the Winternationals last month," the brown-eyed, former

"But we've worked them out and should be able to run with the best of them at Gainesville," she added.

Speed and horsepower are nothing new to Shirley. She has been racing for nearly 10 years, starting with a slower class and working her way up. She first ran with has dragsters and then w. va. 55 went into the 200 mph Funny Cars. In the latter category she campaigned a Plymouth-bodied machine for two years and ex-perienced two bad fires when the engine came apart at over 200 Micro. 78 mph. The second fire completely destroyed her car but probably accelerated her step up into the faster and quicker fuel dragsters.

I passed my test and earned my Top Fuel competition license last May," she explained. "When we lost the Funny Corat LSU New Orleans 83, Cal. indy (Indianapolis) in September, I expected to be out of Riverside 78 business. But then I got the opportunity to drive a new Top Fuel Car that was built this winter, and it's a beauty."

The machine Mrs. Muldowney will race in the Gatornationals s of the latest design, and is powered by a rear-engine Chrysler, and bracket, at over 200 mph but failed to qualify.

She will begin her bid to overcome that set-back Friday, when

That Big Guy On The Bench, Chamberlain, Sure Is Something

SAN DIEGO, Calif. - He looks like a shiny black god, seven feet of pure muscle. His name is Wilt Chamberlain, the greatest basketball center of all time, now in his first year of coaching. For the first five minutes of any game, the crowd always seems more interested in Big Wilt than in his team. After all, the San Diego Conquistadors, known semiaffectionately as the Q's, are the newest team in basketball, and Wilt - why Wilt is the man who has set more records than anyone else in basketball history, including being the only man to score 100 points in a game. Besides. Wilt is taller than any man on the team he

"I know exciting basketball," Wilt said midway through a game, "and these guys are playing it. But every reporter wants to talk to me, the superstar, not the

COACH WILT IS UNUSUAL .Taller than players

It's frustrating. But it's only one of many problems that has faced the Dipper in his first year as coach. One problem, maybe the biggest, can be seen by looking up at the stands during a Q's game. No more than 600 people attend any one of their home games. It's like a nightmare trip in a Time Machine back to the very early days of pro basketball, when a lot of people didn't even know there was such a game. It's almost as if San Diego, which has a reputation for blissfully ignoring most pro sports, wants the Q's to fail. And empty seats mean a flat pocketbook for the club's owner, orthodontist Leonard Bloom, whose Pearl Drops smile has become increasingly strained the last few

Which in turn means that it is becoming increasingly hard to afford Wilt's huge $600,000-a-year salary, a salary that is being paid in hopes that Wilt - when and if he can play (the courts wouldn't let him play because of his contract with his former team, the Los Angeles Lakers) will bring the fledgling American Basketball Association the national attention it believes it deserves. And then there's that other problem - the fact that

Wilt once backed Richard Nixon, a thing that a lot of blacks, among others, find hard to understand. Wilt's fourth and last problem is a complicated one. For years he has been known as a player who eats coaches for breakfast. Now he's a coach himself. And there are some who say this big black man won't make it in a coaching role. One Los Angeles columnist, in fact, expressed open delight when Wilt moved from the Los Angeles Lakers to the Conquistadors. "Good luck," he said in effect, "and good riddance."

After a recent game, Big Wilt - the man who made a profession of gnawing on coaches, the man who swings at night and sleeps all morning, the fellow with the exotic social life and the habits of a modern-day bedonist - sat down with a reporter for an interview during what may be the most frustrating time of his brilliant career. Towering two feet over the reporter even when slumped in his chair, Wilt - dressed in flaring mod pants and a shirt that was open to his navel, accented by a golden pendant - answered a few questions. Like all major sports figures today, he was singularly unreticent about answering even the deepest political and social

AND TURNING TO SPORTS:

"The truth is - how do you explain it? - because I had a reputation of having trouble with coaches, everybody was waiting for me to become a coach, to see if I would have trouble. And then this guy I honestly liked (former San Diego Conquistador Gene Moore), after I put him on waivers, said all these things about me not being able to get along with the players. Unfortunately, he just wasn't a capable basketball player. And the proof of that was that no other team picked him up after we let him go. "Moore never said anything like that to my face.

"The press has been a little unfair saying there's dissent on my team." "Every reporter wants to talk to me, the superstar, DELTONA- A fashion show, luncheon and card party, capturing the latest in spring styles, boosted the Deltona Public Library Association building fund by about $500.

Under the direction of Mrs. George O'Brien, ways and means chairman, the event took place March 6 at Deltona

Fashions ran the gamut from casual attire to the ultimate for "after five" with emphasis on pantsuits, colorful caftans and dresses for every occasion. Modeling the exciting models in a background musical setting provided by Mrs. O'Brien were the following members of the association: Mrs. Melvin Ziegenfus, Mrs. Joseph

According to Mrs. O'Brien, this project is just one of many fund-raising benefits designed to build a new community library this year. To date, the building fund lacks about half the amount necessary.

Learn Power Of Praise

I used to love to cook but it's no fun anymore, because no matter how hard I try, my husband never says it was good. If I ask him if he enjoyed the meal, he says: "Yes, but why should I say anything? That's your job." I made draperies and curtains for the whole house, and even slip-covered the furniture myself, and he never said one word. When I asked him if he thought the house looked nice, he said: "Sure, but that's your job."

Funny how if he washes the car or mows the lawn and don't rave about what a wonderful job he's done, he pouts

Cars May Sell With Embargo End DETROIT (AP) -- Auto industry spokesmen predict car shoppers will stop looking and start buying once the Arab oil embargo is lifted. "The main impact on our business will be to help dispel the cloud of uncertainty about gasoline supplies and prices that has been hanging over us since last October," Ford Vice President John B. Naughton said Thursday. Spokesmen at the big three auto lifted. The auto makers hope the end of the embargo will revive sagging car sales, the spokesmen say.

But even after the embargo ends, industry observers agree that consumer preferences will not switch away from small cars.

Small car sales are easily outpacing 1973 sales levels, while big car sales have slumped more than 50 per cent and total car sales for the 1974 model year have dropped nearly 27 per cent. While the big three haven't attributed the decline entirely to the embargo, executives say consumer uncertainty brought on by the Arab boycott was instrumental in keeping potential car buyers out of the show-

The sales decline has led to the indefinite layoff of 92,000 workers - 12 per cent of the auto makers' hourly work force - and temporary furloughs of another 90,000 workers during the first quarter.

General Motors, which depends on big car sales more than any other manufacturer, has suffered the worst slump with a 37 per cent sales decline and 65,000 workers on indefinite layoff.
