S. S. "Osceola" Given Big Reception Upon Arrival After First Run In Five Years

City Issues Permit For Use Of Wharf

SANFORD CITY COMMISSIONERS, meeting in special session at the City Hall this morning, issued a temporary permit to Chas. H. Whitner, representing the Central Florida Transportation Co., allowing him the privilege of unloading 332 tons of fertilizer that formed the cargo of the steamer "Osceola" which arrived here last night.

Amid scenes that, with the exception of an airplane flying overhead to dip its wings in greeting, were reminiscent of the first reception which awaited the Clyde Line steamer "Osceola" as it entered Lake Monroe and landed at the old Clyde dock on Jan. 19, 1914; the 22-year old craft steamed alongside the Municipal Pier last night at about 8:30 o'clock, ending a 24 hour test run from Jacksonville, to be greeted by more than 1000 cheering persons.

The craft, which was removed from regular runs on July 2, 1927, came to a temporary stop on a bar of mud and sand some 30 feet off the end of the pier. Efforts to swing its stern alongside the pier were unsuccessful and most of the welcoming throng had piled its respects and returned home when the boat was finally able to steam off the bar and make a closer contact with the pier.

County Officers Think Fee System Should Be Banned

OCALA, Jan. 3.—The fee system should be abolished, and probably the sales tax is the best solution to the tax problem, in the belief of some of the county officials who retire from office on Monday. Reviewing their records of public service, these office-holders asserted anew that they had tried to do their best, and had sought to give good service to the people of the county.

It was intimated by some that there were trying days ahead for government, which will have to solve numerous hard problems.

Retiring officials include: tax collector, W. W. Stripling; tax assessor, W. L. Colbert; superintendent of schools, Mrs. Iva T. Sprinkle; supervisor of registration, A. J. Stephens; county commissioners, C. (Ed) Carmichael (first), J. M. Douglas (third); school board, C. D. Massey, W. R. Dedman; justice of peace (first), T. W. Parks.

Comptroller's Call

Calvin Coolidge

Regardless of party affiliation, all true Americans were shocked and grieved yesterday to learn of the sudden death of former President Calvin Coolidge. Elected in 1924 by a plurality of more than two to one over his Democratic opponent, Mr. Coolidge was in fact the chief executive of all the people, and might easily have been re-elected in 1928 had he not chosen to prevent his re-election.

Born in a humble cottage on a Vermont farm, Mr. Coolidge was a typical New Englander. Though he bore the rather unique distinction of being the only New Englander whose ancestors did not come over on the Mayflower, he could never dispute the fact that John and Mary Coolidge had settled in Massachusetts as early as 1630. From the small town of his voice to the economy which he so often preached, he bore the unmistakable ear-marks of the New Englander.

Though his administration was marred by the revelation of scandals in the Veterans Bureau and the Interior Department, the President himself was popularly absolved of all connection with the matter and his quiet insistence upon prosecution of all angles of the case firmly fixed him in the public mind as a man of unquestioned integrity and loyal devotion to his country. Few presidents have retired from office with greater popularity.

Whether Mr. Coolidge was the really great president which his supporters claim him to be, history alone can decide. He administered the affairs of this nation at a time when prosperity scaled heights hitherto unbelievable. That prosperity may have been of a soundness which could have been enduring or it may have been built of flimsy materials left to collapse upon the shoulders of his successor. Mr. Coolidge may have been the wisest of all when he issued that now historic pronouncement in 1927, "I do not choose to run for president in 1928."

His death, coming as it does ten years before his allotted three score years and ten, provides some indication of the rigorous ordeals of the presidency. We have a way in this country of working our presidents to death. Few there are who survive it by many years. Perhaps the time will come when the presidential tasks will be divided between a thinker and a handshaker. Until then any president may well be regarded as a potential martyr.

In the case of Mr. Coolidge, he held office during a boom, he conserved his strength, and fared better perhaps than he might otherwise have.

The Russian System

As the Five Year Plan of Soviet Russia comes to a conclusion, it is interesting to note how this first nation-wide experiment in Communism in the history of the world, is working. Soviet statistics admit that the 1932 crops were about 20 percent below those of 1931 which were 12 percent below those of 1930, this in spite of the fact that a serious famine threatens.

This decline in production is accounted for largely because of the fact that under the Soviet system all private profits are eliminated, as well as any incentive for improvement or perfection. A man works so many days for the state, in the case of the farmers, raising crops. The crops belong to the state. The state returns to him his pro rata share of the whole, regardless of the superior or inferior quality of his work. It does not matter to the individual farmer whether he raises a good crop or not.

We expect many prejudicial statements to be made regarding Russia in this country, but the following taken from the Pravda, official organ of the Central Committee of the Russian Communist party, and reproduced in a recent issue of the Literary Digest, should be regarded as authoritative:

Here the grain harvested by the collective farms is being stolen, hidden, secretly sold, and otherwise looted by the peasants belonging to these very farms.

In a word, they do anything with it in order to keep it from the Government. Still worse, the local Communists often act as allies of these kulaks. Thus, even Communists make common front with counter-revolutionists.

This alone can explain why the campaign of the kulaks has not been checked. In some regions, for instance, the hiding of grain has been organized by the peasants en masse.

Scherbina, a secret kulak, who had succeeded in getting admitted into the Communist party, hid 540 poods (about ten tons) of grain; and he is no less a peasant than the president of the "Selmashtroy" collective farm.

Zapashny, the president of the "Red Partizan" collective farm, hid 2,000 poods (about 36 tons) of grain in like manner. All imaginable methods are used to hide the grain. In some places the managers of the collective farms give the authorities false statements of the amounts of their stocks. In others, while being threshed, grain was hidden in the straw and reported to the authorities as "lost."

In some sections of the Ukraine, kulaks have secret mills of their own, where grain stolen from the Government is ground. For instance, in the village Bogdanovka, fifteen such mills have been discovered.

Generally speaking, conditions in the Ukraine are no better than in Northern Caucasus. And Northern Caucasus and the Ukraine are responsible for the unsatisfactory progress of our grain collections.

So we find that Russians as a whole are facing a serious food shortage because certain other Russians are manifesting those perfectly human traits of selfishness, greed, ambition, or laziness. Communism is a beautiful theory of government. It envisages all human beings living peacefully side by side sharing equally all that they have, having no more than their neighbors, and desiring no more. But in practice such a theory does not work successfully because no such perfect human beings exist.

SANFORD, TWENTY YEARS AGO

A. T. Rosette suffered an accident Saturday night that might have been fatal under different circumstances. He was on a horse-drawn carriage when he fell from the seat, striking his head on the ground.

SANFORD

Editor of Sanford Herald:
My Dear Sir:

I note that in the San Francisco Chronicle of Dec. 22nd, that Mr. George Nelson, of Oviada, seems to make a statement when I heartily disagree with him that the fish in our waters are fast disappearing. This, there seems to be no disagreement between us. The difference of opinion seems to be as to why and how they are disappearing. He seems to hold the seine responsible for their disappearance and I, on the contrary, hold that the disappearance of the seine has allowed the increase of the "foul" fish in such great numbers that they, by preying on the spawn, and also on the live fish, have destroyed the game or scale fish until it would seem that if some measure is not taken soon that we will soon have no scale fish. As I see it, the game fish seems to be the "grain" between the mill-stones; the human on one side, with his hook and line, and the "foul" fish on the other. Between the two the game fish is being "ground into powder."

Now, let us consider what happens when we remove the seine from the waters. First, there is the man with his hook, he catches all the bass and bream that the law allows, and well, of course not, he wouldn't break the law. Just take the large ones, and the proper amount!

Then in this class we have the place the "sportsman", with his improved tackle. Oh! he is just out for sport. Only wants to catch a bass or two. Wouldn't think of breaking the law! If plenty strikes he would catch his lawful number, no more, no less.

But say, Mr. Man, did you fish for cats, mads, or did you try for gar? Well, no. We by accident caught a cat and a mud, and were doing fine with the bream till a school of gars came; well, it was all up then, and we went in. Why is that so?

Well, yes. And how about you, Mr. Sportsman? Oh, we had fair luck for a while. Caught a few bass. Well did you try for gar? Oh, no. We never fish for that kind. We did hook a big one by accident, but you know those things are so dangerous to handle, such awful teeth that I just reeled him in close, and rather than bother, I just cut the line and let him go. You did? And lost your bait that cost you a dollar? Sure, my hands are worth more than a dollar. Oh, yes, I see, but you didn't destroy the gar, and he is a "tiger" among the bass.

So we are there in no hope here for the scale fish. Only destruction. Now let's turn to the other "mill-stone"—"Foul" fish. Take the cat first. He is the "king" among the destroyers—because he is "plum hog" on spawn. He enters the bass and bream beds and drives them out—no one dares to refuse him entrance because of his spears and he proceeds to help himself to all of the spawn that he can find. Ask Mr. Kendall, at Kendall's fish market, he butchers hundreds of them. One big cat will destroy multiplied millions of bass in the spawn.

Next in order is the gar. No, he is not a spawn eater, but a "tiger". He begins on the young fish as soon as they are hatched, and with the alligator gar, of from three to six feet long, they don't hesitate to kill the largest bass. They are "killers" by instinct. Kill to eat and then kill for sport. We can give you a number of witnesses who have seen these destroyers kill grown fish just for sport.

There are other spawn eaters—suckers, stingarees, muds, jacks, and others that eat small fish.

The funeral will take place tomorrow. Mrs. Underwood leaves a husband and niece, Kale Underwood, and sister, Mrs. O. S. Williams, of this city, and several sisters and brothers in Georgia to mourn her loss.

Miss Evelyn Rand, of Longwood, came in Friday afternoon to attend the Edward Baxter, Perry social Friday evening. While in the city Miss Rand was the guest of Mrs. Fannie S. Hanson.

The Rev. E. D. Snowball, of Atlanta, has arrived in the city and will take the pastorage of the Presbyterian Church of this city. The Rev. Snowball is a young minister of most pleasing address and will give his own charge his sacred office. He is associated with a warm welcome from all the people of Sanford.

Miss Helen Allen, wife of Mr. and Mrs. Allen, of Longwood, has arrived in the city and will take the pastorage of the Presbyterian Church of this city. The Rev. Reporter Adopts Foundling Infant In Juvenile Court

SHREVEPORT, La., Jan. 6.—The guys who write those plays and things about "hard-boiled newspapermen" ought to know about Clinton Sanders, 24, and unmarried, who celebrated Christmas by adopting a foundling infant in the juvenile court on his beat. There wasn't any publicity until yesterday, when a Sanders, grief-stricken, buried the child after more than a week of tender care and constant medical attention had failed to counteract the effects of long privation. Sanders was just covering another routine story the other day when he stood in juvenile court and heard two hitch-hiking parents with two small children tell the court they were penniless. When the presiding judge explained that his tribunal could care only for destitute children, he probably did not foresee that the parents would presently slip quietly from the scene, but that is what happened. The children were left at the mercy of the court. Sanders found seven-month-old Michael Harper, deserted, looking up at him with mild, unworried eyes. After some necessary consultation with the court, Sanders found himself taking little Michael home.

Celery Crop West Of Titusville Is Reported As Good

TITUSVILLE, Jan. 6.—Celery crops west of Titusville and Indian River City this year are looking good. Some of the fields will be ready to cut in a few weeks, and others will be ready for the market some weeks later. Weather conditions have been favorable for the most part, and the plants are healthy. The crop that looks the earliest is that in which three men are interested and located on a new ground directly west of new city limits. Charles Stewart, George W. Smith and R. D. Munnell are the men interested, and the crop containing about four acres will probably be cut in four weeks. The new land opened up in this area is said to be as good as the best celery land in this section. Mr. Smith and Mrs. Munnell have another crop of eight acres that is doing well on the Cheney highway west of Indian River City. D. R. Grogan has a good crop of celery located west of Indian River City. George Corbin has a good crop of between eight and ten acres in the same section, and W. E. Shaffer has a good crop of several acres in the same section. The latest new celery develop-

Sarasota's Fire Loss For 1932 Was Higher Than In '31

SARASOTA, Jan. 6.—Sarasota's fire loss total for the year of 1932 was $18,723, which represents an increase of slightly more than $2,000 over the 1931 figure. However, last year's fire loss was approximately one half of the total for 1930, which was $38,967. The loss in 1931 amounted to $18,950. The department responded to 209 fire alarm calls during the year in protecting property within the city limits, only two of which were false alarms, according to reports of Fire Chief Maitland Knowles. Majority of runs made during the year resulted from grass fires, 151 out of the 209 total being for that purpose. Month having the greatest number of calls was February, with 23 calls totalling $2,110 damage, while May totaled $6,875 damage with 24 calls. Fire losses in Sarasota reached a peak during the fiscal year ending Nov. 1, 1927, according to records maintained by Chief Knowles.
