Sanford named Front Porch city

By Dan Ping

SANFORD — Hours after celebrating the opening of the airport's new domestic terminal, Sanford officials received a second helping of good news Friday afternoon when the governor's Office of Urban Opportunity announced Goldsboro has been named a Front Porch Florida community.

Bush initiative gives Goldsboro revitalization efforts a major boost

The Front Porch program is a revitalization initiative that targets key urban neighborhoods for improvement. Earning a Front Porch designation provides communities with direct access to state and federal funds, as well as the necessary personnel and support structures to assist in planning revitalization efforts.

"I'm euphorically overwhelmed that the governor's office has selected Goldsboro as a Front Porch community," said Sanford City Commissioner Velma Williams. "Not only will this designation enhance the quality of life throughout the Goldsboro neighborhood, it will establish an invaluable source of pride among area residents. While earning the Front Porch designation was a team effort between state and local officials, Florida House Speaker Tom Feeney singled out Williams for her work on the project. "Commissioner Velma Williams has been a tireless advocate for Seminole County to be the recipient of Front Porch Florida, and her efforts have been SANFORD — Local dignitaries gathered at Orlando/Sanford International Airport to celebrate Thursday the opening of the new domestic terminal.

The completion of the four-year, $25 million project expands the airport by seven gates and 120,000 square feet, dedicated solely for domestic flights in and out of Sanford.

Congressman John Mica, who helped secure funding for the expansion, was on hand for the festivities and said people were the key component to the new facility.

"This is a special occasion, not because of what John Mica may have done, but because so many people made a commitment to make this happen," Mica said.

Sanford Mayor Larry Dale, who ceremoniously handed over the keys to the facility to Mayor-elect Brady Lessard, said the expansion was the culmination of a dream for many people.

"(Long-time resident) Everett Huskey shared his dream with me 30 years ago," Dale said. "He told me what was going to happen, and I didn't believe it at the time. But now it's happened."

Pan Am is currently the only commercial domestic airline flying out of Sanford.

"This is an excellent operation," said Dave Fink, president of Pan Am.

Stanley Thomas, Chairman of TBI PLC which operates the Sanford airport and other international facilities, praised the new facility.

"We hold this airport in the highest regard," Thomas said. "It is a shining star within our group, and that's why the headquarters of our North American operations will be in Sanford."

City, SAA meet on airport issues

By Joe DeSantis
Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sanford city commissioners huddled in a special meeting Wednesday with board members of the Sanford Airport Authority (SAA) to discuss the sensitive topic of negotiations regarding the facility's biggest client, ComAir, and a host of other concerns dealing with the airport's completion of a timely Master Plan.

During the SAA's regular meeting March 6

the possibility that ComAir might leave when its lease expires in two years raised a red flag. ComAir is seeking concessions from the airport, including keeping the facility's center runway open to reduce its taxi time and fuel costs, in order to resign a long-term lease.

ComAir's flight training program contributes substantially to Orlando Sanford International's 100,000-plus flights per year which qualify the airport for a Federal Aviation Administration

City, schools discuss land swap

SANFORD — The city of Sanford and the Seminole County School Board are in the midst of making a land swap.

Officials from Sanford and the School Board discussed the possibility of trading land parcels during a Tuesday work session. The city wants to trade land it owns SR 46 for land owned by the School Board located on Mellonville and Celery avenues.

"I think it is a fair trade," Sanford Mayor Larry Dale said.

"And, the consensus seems to be that we will work this out."

The city initiated the proposal in order to create more parking space and land around the Sanford Memorial Stadium and Chase Park, Dale said.

Eventually, the city wants to move its Recreation Department and construct a community center in the sports complex.

"We've got a good sports complex out there," Dale said. "And, this will help."

According to Dale, there is no timeline for the trade, but the city would like to acquire the 8.6 acres of land before the stadium is completed next year. Currently, the school system uses the property for bus parking space and storing surplus items.

In return, the School Board will acquire the city's property located between SR 46 and 25th Street northwest of the Orlando Sanford International Airport. Part of the property is currently leased by a gymnas-

'Theft-to-order' operation busted

Stolen property includes items from a family that lost everything

By Michelle Jeria
Managing Editor

Four Seminole County residents were arrested Thursday following a joint operation between the Lake Mary and Sanford police departments conducted to break up several theft rings operating within the two-city area.

Police arrested Steve Noe of 188 Humphrey Road in Lake Mary following the discovery of stolen property and narcotics at the residence. Charges include several counts of dealing with stolen property, grand theft auto and possession of marijuana and cocaine.

"Noe has been a trafficker of stolen property for many years, and we have been investigating him for several months," Lake

Mary Police Chief Richard Beary said. "He even has ties to several out of state cases."

According to Beary, Noe was running a "chop shop" on his property. Several stolen vehicles were found along with numerous stolen tools and car parts.

Noe would target specific vehicles or items, make a list and then tell others where and what to steal, Beary said. The vehicles and parts were found in Noe's house and a workshop located on the property.

Authorities also found stolen personal items, including antiques and paintings, at Noe's residence. A phone number on a camera case helped identify the owner of several items.

"I called the phone number and reached a woman in Miami," Beary said. "She told me she had a trailer stolen last year."

Since the woman and her family were moving from Orange City to New York, all their belongings were in the Keith Brown, 33, of 3306 Logan Heights, Sanford, has been arrested in connection with the death of a two-year-old boy.

Brown was picked up in Orlando and transported by the Altamonte Springs police to the Seminole County Jail where original charges were aggravated child abuse/domestic violence.

After the child died Wednesday afternoon at Arnold Palmer Hospital for Women and Children, the charge was changed to homicide-willful killing/murder, while engaged in certain felony offense, aggravated child abuse.

The child's mother left their residence in Logan Heights Sunday, to go to work at approximately noon, and had left the boy in the care of Brown, identified as his step-

Meeting Arnold The thrill of Schwarzenegger

I first met Arnold Schwarzenegger in an inner-city school in Philadelphia. It was last summer during the Republican National Convention, and this well-built white guy was wowing a big audience of sweltering black kids.

Chris Matthews

What was it, I asked myself, that created this palpable rapport between this fellow with a Teutonic accent and these African-American teenagers, both boys and girls?

The "Mr. Universe" thing — that he'd made his name as a world champion body builder? The "Terminator" image he'd constructed on the movie screen?

I decided it was his basic, human authenticity. Here, in a bad neighborhood in summer-in-the-city Philly, was this 53-year-old guy in running shoes pitching physical fitness and healthy competition, the same sweaty stuff that took him to the top.

It's this "genuine article" sensation you get upon meeting Arnold Schwarzenegger that makes this $20 million-a-movie Austrian immigrant a serious Republican prospect for California governor next year. In a state beset by electrical blackouts and political grayness, he could loom next year as the star who lights up the Golden State sky.

I asked him at that first meeting why he, unlike so many Hollywood figures, became a Republican. He said it was something he saw on TV during the 1968 presidential battle between Richard Nixon and Democrat Hubert Humphrey.

"I was sitting in front of a television set, and I didn't even understand half of it because my English wasn't good enough then. It became apparent very quickly what Nixon stood for and what Humphrey stood for.

"Humphrey stood for government solving all our problems. Nixon said, 'No, let the people decide. Let the people make the choices of what products they want.' So I said to myself, 'This is great! I'm a Republican!'

"My friend who was translating said, 'Oy vey! This is all I need!'

"That's where it really began," he said, "because I came from a socialistic country. I saw what the advantages and big disadvantages of big government are."

How does such rugged capitalism comport with his Inner City Games program?

"I came over here with a tremendous will, and there was nothing that could stop me from making it. I had this big vision of being the best in all of those different things. But what about the guy who doesn't have that drive? Should we just leave him behind? I think if you are a really good Republican you would go out and accomplish the things you want to, then use that power to pull along those who have been left behind."

A race for governor, which would put such Bush-style compassionate conservatism to the popular test, would obviously present risks.

Timing is everything.

Richard Nixon watched Gov. Pat Brown get booed mercilessly at the opening of Candlestick Park in 1961. A year later, after taking a licking from Brown, it was Nixon who had to suffer the booing.

Four years later, it was a different story. Pat Brown tried laughing off a challenge from actor/TV personality Ronald Reagan, only to find himself choking on Reagan's trail dust.

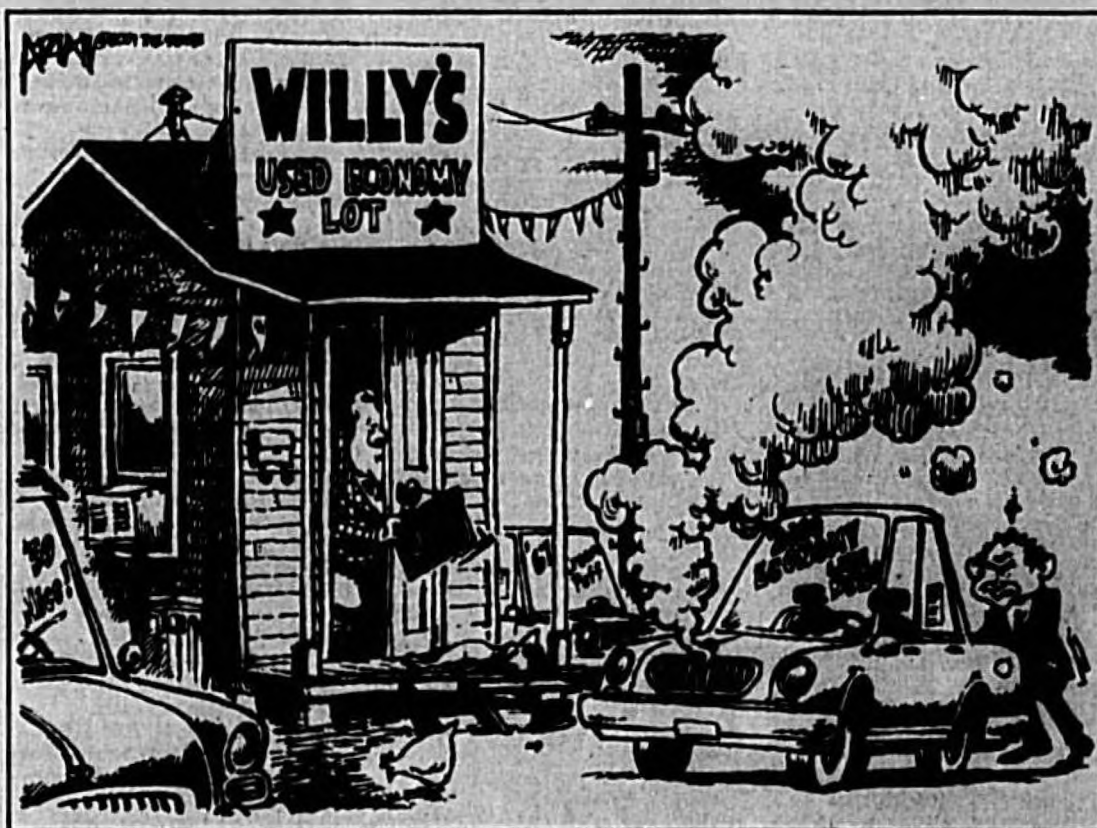

Gov. Gray Davis has been hit hard by California's historic energy crisis. But that's this year. Will the incumbent have control of events by next November? Will 2002 be a rerun of 1962 or 1966?

The gamble may appeal to a man who has defied critics and the odds since his youth.

Schwarzenegger was told as a kid that an Austrian could never make it in body-building, a world dominated by Americans. He became Mr. Universe six times. Even after his marriage to JFK niece Maria Shriver, he was told he couldn't make it in the movies, not with his accent and outlandish moniker. Even family members suggested he try something in the nutrition field.

He proved the critics wrong then. Next November he may do it again.

How about a trigger on spending?

Now that President Bush has submitted his budget to Congress, all the early blather about bipartisanship has died away, and the two parties have assumed their accustomed positions: The Republicans want to cut taxes, and the Democrats don't, preferring to spend everything in sight.

To be sure, the widespread desire among voters for a tax cut, and the economic downturn that is making one essential, have compelled the Democrats — not for the first time — to conceal what they are really up to. So yes, they claim to want a tax cut too — only not so big, or so comprehensive. From time to time, as the case for Mr. Bush's $1.3 trillion cut (over 10 years) becomes ever more compelling, they grudgingly raise the amount they are willing to return to the taxpayers: from $200 billion a couple of months ago to nearly five times that today. But in their heart of hearts they would prefer not to refund one plug nickel, and to spend it all on Democratic social objectives instead.

Their first excuse for not having a meaningful tax cut was President Clinton's inspired insistence that any surplus must be used to "save Social Security." That worked for a while (it always works), until the Congressional Budget Office's cautious projections of the size of the surplus made it plain that plenty of excess tax revenues would be left over even after Social Security was fully provided for.

So then it suddenly became necessary (the Democrats told us) to pay off the national debt. Just how hilarious it is to hear Democratic politicians worrying about the size of the national debt is probably beyond the comprehension of anyone who can't personally recall the Roosevelt and Johnson administrations, but the seeming frugality of the proposal undoubtedly appealed to a lot of citizens accustomed to self-denial. Then, however, some spillover pointed out that a full one-third of the national debt won't even come due in the next 10 years, and that to pay off that portion of the debt early would require us to pay a premium to its holders. So that supposed obligation shrank to proportions that still left Mr. Bush's proposed tax cut workable.

Now the opponents of a tax cut have fallen back to a third line of defense: Okay, have your datted tax cut, but impose a "trigger" that would automatically stop the cut in any year in which the surplus did not come up to the CBO's projection.

The last president who thought increasing taxes during a downturn was a good idea was Herbert Hoover, and you know where that got him. So it is surprising, to say the least, to see the Democrats dusting off Hoover's strategy and trying to impose it automatically in the face of any possible future economic decline. But if the Democrats are really serious about "triggering" an economic reform automatically in the event of an unanticipated shortage in the surplus some year down the road, there is another and much safer way to do it. The surplus, after all, is the difference between the amount the federal government takes in and the amount it spends. It can therefore be increased, not only (as Mr. Hoover preferred) by expanding the amount of money taken in, but by shrinking the amount spent.

Why not, therefore, impose a "trigger" mechanism that would automatically require the government to reduce its expenditures by the requisite amount in any year in which the surplus failed to meet expectations? Mr. Bush's budget proposes an across-the-board increase in federal spending by 4 percent per year. The "trigger" could reduce this to (say) 3 percent, or 2 percent. And if some national emergency required exceptional expenditures above this new level, that could easily be provided by a law passed by Congress and signed by Mr. Bush.

It is safe to predict that this particular "trigger" will find few admirers on the Democratic side of the aisle. Taking money away from the taxpayers automatically is one thing; taking it away from the big-time spenders inside the Beltway is quite another, as taxpayers will learn to their sorrow.

From A to Z

Art Zielinski asks people what they think ...

It's no secret that a lot of people move to Florida. One estimate says some 1,000 people migrate to the Sunshine State each week. And many of those folks, for various reasons, end up here in Sanford. So our question today is, "Why do you live in Sanford?"

I just moved here four-days ago from New York. I visited Sanford last summer and liked the weather and the area. Sanford is a nice, quiet little town.

Lakisha Williams, Sanford

I use to live in North Carolina and would visit my mother and family. I thought the job market was better than North Carolina, loved the weather, and the great fishing spots.

Leonard Garvey, Sanford

I like everything about Sanford. I moved here from Lakeland, and just got use to it, and loved it. I've lived in Florida since 1940.

Margaret Wood, Sanford

There are a lot of places I could be, but I want to stay here. I love Sanford, been here since 1959. My children and my granddaughter were born here.

Dianne Magner, Sanford

It's small town enough so you know just about everyone. It's big town enough so you can get almost anything you need. And the people are friendly for the most part.

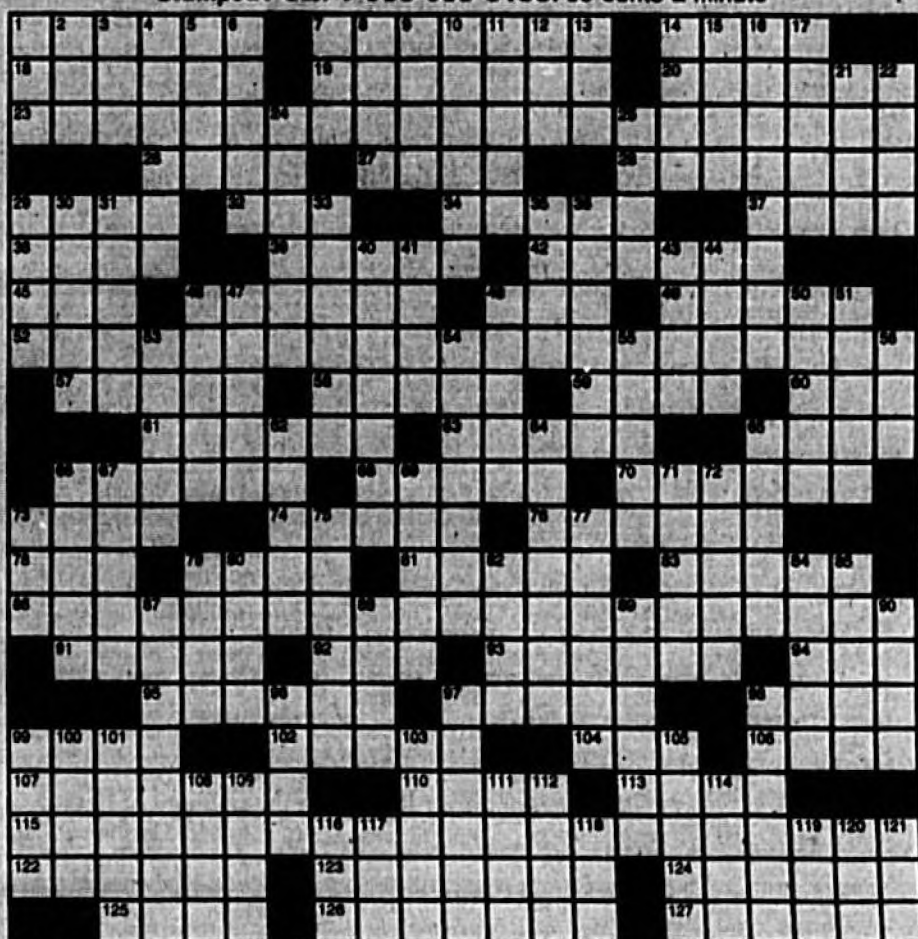

Bill Clayton, Sanford

When EMT personnel arrived they said they found the child on the floor of the living room showing signs of suspicious bruising. In an interview with Brown, he reportedly said he could offer no explanation for the child's condition.

The child was taken first to Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford, and subsequently to the Arnold Palmer Hospital in Orlando where he was officially pronounced dead Wednesday afternoon.

At the Arnold Palmer Hospital, a preliminary medical report, written by John A. Tilelli described the child's injuries as the result of a "heartless, merciless and aggressive assault."

Cleo Cohen, with the Sanford Police Department, said this was not just a one time striking.

"The boy was severely and repeatedly beaten," Cohen said. "There were bruises to his head, face, abdomen, pelvic area, back, arms and legs."

The family moved to the Sanford area four months ago.

Issues

Last week, SAA board chairman Bill Miller and airport director Victor White held preliminary discussions with ComAir officials about renewing the lease, leaving Sanford Commissioner Whitley Eckstein wondering why the City's mayor and board of commissioners were not appraised of the meeting and represented at it.

"I think it's unconscionable that the Mayor or Mayor-elect was not included in that negotiation," stated Eckstein. "You should be using Larry Dale as a resource and the City Commission feels very strongly about that."

"The City wants to be a good partner. Dale has been a driving force in getting things done and developing good relations with England that account for a lot of flights coming in here. As his term ends I don't want the city to feel like we're on a deserted island with Raquel Welch. I want to be on that island with the best boat builder in the world. Larry is a boat builder."

SAA chairman Bill Miller

responded, "We held one meeting with ComAir's CEO last week. The negotiations were very positive. ComAir does not want to move and we don't want to lose them. Our board will have something to say further to Larry about his role with the airport at our April meeting. I can tell you that Larry Dale is not going away."

Commissioner Velma Williams and Mayor-elect Brady Lessard also questioned the status of the airport's Master Plan and concerns about the pace of development of the facility's commerce park.

"It's important that all of the phases of development, including the commerce park be built into the Master Plan and that the Master Plan has a time line component so we all know where we are going," said Williams.

"The development of the Commercial Park aspect of the airport is as important as increasing air traffic," said Lessard. "Developing that aspect of the facility will contribute revenue from the non-air transportation side of the ledger and will contribute local jobs to our residents."

Airport director Victor White confirmed that the board was expecting to have the airport's Master Plan completed by the Spring of 2002, within the agreed upon 18 month time frame with consultants.

Dale also brought up concerns that the Master Plan deal with ground contamination issues, noise configuration remedies and some political posturing with state officials and the Florida Department of Community Affairs to keep the facility's center runway open.

"It's an old Navy airport and like almost all old military airports it has problems with underground fuel storage tanks," Dale said. "We need to get moving on these issues and others so we don't miss the opportunity for FAA funding for some of the projects we want to get done.

"We're going to see some happy days out here but we're also in for some challenges," added Dale.

"The development of the commercial park aspect of the airport is as important as increasing air traffic. Developing that aspect of the facility will contribute revenue from the non-air transportation side of the ledger and will contribute local jobs to our residents."

trailer, Beary said. Everything they owned was taken. "I was on the cell phone talking to her throughout the day," Beary said. "While I was walking through the house, she was able to identify some of the items. That's why we were able to determine that they were stolen and seize them."

The items will now be returned to the family. "It's just one of those lucky breaks," Beary said. "It's all because of the phone number on the camera case."

While authorities searched Noe's property, James E. Crews of Sanford drove a stolen pickup truck and trailer onto the property, apparently to drop it off for Noe. After discovering police were searching the vicinity, Crews fled the scene on foot but was apprehended later that day in Sanford and charged with grand theft auto.

Sanford authorities also arrested Joshua Jones of 2819

Magnolia Ave., and Thomas Dale, who is the proprietor of Stooges at 2491 Park Ave, on charges of stolen property and organized theft. According to Sanford Public Information Officer Cleo Cohen, Jones and Dale were also participating in different "theft to order" rings.

"Thomas Dale was buying stolen property, and he also purchased stolen beer from one of our undercover officers," Cohen said. "In some of the cases, both would give a list and locations of items to steal, and then someone would go steal the property."

Cohen said the agencies are not aware of any connection between the three theft rings, although they were probably covering the same area.

"They probably know each other, and they probably bought and sold from the same people," she said. "But, right now, we are not aware of any connection."

Front Porch

 tremendously successful," said Feeney, whose legislative district includes Sanford.
 "I'm thrilled that Sanford was selected to be a beneficiary of 'Front Porch Florida,'" Feeney added. "Sanford represents a historic and cultural core of the greater Orlando area, and this is an exciting opportunity for the community to serve as an example of urban revitalization."
 Front Porch Florida employs a comprehensive approach, empowering residents to define and develop solutions to their problems, with influences in the areas of higher quality education, economic growth and environmental preservation.
 "Our priority is to empower the residents of the community, and to do that we provide them education, training and technical support to not only create their Neighborhood Action Plan, but to make sure it is viable," said Alison Hewitt, director of the Office of Urban Opportunity which administers Front Porch Florida.
 Sanford mayor-elect Brady Lessard said he's "absolutely thrilled" Goldsboro was chosen as a Front Porch community because the program gives the city access to resources that might not otherwise be available to the community.

 "This gives us an influx of state funding, but more importantly, Front Porch provides us with the talent and resources to make a difference in Goldsboro," Lessard said.
 "The residents know the problems better than the government does," Hewitt said in explaining the importance of technical support. "They also have some pretty good ideas about how to fix the problems. Our mission is to make sure they have the resources and the training to do it."
 After being named a Front Porch community, Goldsboro residents must elect a board called the Governor's Revitalization Council, which will develop a Neighborhood Action Plan. Hewitt said meetings will begin in Goldsboro within two weeks.
 "We want to move as quickly as possible on this," Hewitt said. "We'll have a big rally with Governor Bush to kick off the program and to let people know they live in a Front Porch community."
 Goldsboro is one of five communities the Office of Urban Opportunities designated Friday for Front Porch status.

The other communities are: Duval Heights in Gainesville; West Bartow in Lakeland; Holden Heights in Orlando; and Riverside in Little Havana.
 The Office of Urban Opportunity was created by Governor Jeb Bush in 1999. The office is charged with:
 • Assist communities in obtaining federal and state funding, other agencies and departments, and private and not-for-profit resources necessary to implement community Neighborhood Action Plans.
 • Eliminate and consolidate bureaucracy, create strategic alliances and networks of community collaboration, and develop and forge better relationships between Front Porch communities and other community, corporate and faith-based organizations.
 Program dollars initially could be allocated to Sanford for expenses such as; establishment as a 501(C)3 organization, funding a local Front Porch Neighborhood coordinator or funding neighborhood planning meetings. Local governments would also be required to provide fiscal and technical assistance.
 "I am extremely grateful to all of the individuals who have helped the city accomplish this feat," said Commissioner Williams. "Words cannot convey my most profound sentiments to have Sanford's Goldsboro neighborhood chosen as a Front Porch Community."

 "I would like to thank and commend Speaker of the House, Tom Feeney, for his unwavering support and efforts in this endeavor," Williams added. "In addition, special thanks to Governor Bush, U.S. Rep. Lee Constantine and all members of our local legislative delegation, as well as the city's representatives in Tallahassee, Bobby Brantley and Eric Thorn, for achieving this important status. Moreover, I want to personally thank Mayor Larry Dale who has worked diligently with the Governor's office, the Speaker, and the city's representatives to secure the Front Porch designation."

Despite rain, burning ban remains in affect

Although Florida Agriculture Commissioner Terry L. Rhodes released 21 counties from the emergency outdoor burning ban because of recent rains, Seminole County was not one of them, although neighboring Volusia County is.
 Wednesday's lifting of the restrictions however, leaves 18 counties, where the drought index remains high, under the outdoor burning ban, which prohibits every kind of outdoor burning except for cooking on barbecue grills in yards or public facilities.
 According to state forestry officials, nearly 1,800 wildfires have burned over 122,000 acres since Jan. 1.

BUSINESS

Business Notes

Appointment

Stirling International Realty, Inc., in Heathrow as announced the appointment of veteran Central Florida real estate executive Harry McIntosh as associate in its commercial real estate division.

McIntosh has over seven years experience in commercial property consulting, leasing and sales, specializing in vacant land, office, warehouse and retail space.

McIntosh, a Sanford resident, is married to fitness model/bodybuilding competitor and trainer Penny Price McIntosh. He was formerly senior vice president and principal with Andreyev Engineering of Sanford.

New Store

AT&T Wireless is opening a new retail store at Seminole Town Center in Sanford. The new store offers competitive rate plans, the latest in wireless equipment and the Ericsson R280LX with internet access.

New Hotel

The Pizzuti Companies completed the 11.5 acre sale in Heathrow International Business Center to Welbro Development and Pinnacle Hotel Management, a joint venture, for development of Seminole County's first full service business hotel. The 304 room, 10 story Marriott is scheduled to break ground in late March.

Welbro Constructors, Inc. is the general contractor. In a related transaction, Pizzuti also expects to complete the sale of an adjacent nine acre parcel to the Pelloni Group, Lake Mary, for development of a 90,000 square foot retail, restaurant entertainment complex within 30 days. The two projects, known as Park Place at Heathrow, represents a development cost of $60 million.

Pizzuti, developing in Florida since 1985, has completed ten buildings totaling more than 1.4 million square feet of class A office space in the Heathrow International Business Center, with a 192,000 square foot office building under construction, and plans in place for 90,000 square feet of retail and a 24,000 square foot day care facility.

New Home

Brentwood Custom Homes plans to hold a grand opening at Magnolia Plantation located off Markham Woods Road, on April 1, to premier the St. Augustine V, an $875,000 custom home the builder has completed that will be showcased for the spring Parade of Homes later in April.

Griffith wins Litter Critter design contest

Photo submitted
Civic Pride Committee Chairman Julie Hartline honors Litter Critter design winner Brody Griffith during a recent Sanford/Seminole County Chamber of Commerce event.

Brody Griffith, a fourth-grader at Wilson Elementary School, won the Sanford/Seminole County Chamber of Commerce Civic Pride Committee contest to name and draw a "Litter Critter."

The Litter Critter was named Wilson after Griffith's school. The winning artwork was a raccoon in a garbage can.

Griffith was honored during a recent chamber event and won a trip for two to swim with the dolphins at Discovery Cove.

More than 300 Sanford area school students in the first through sixth grades participated in the contest. The student artwork will be on display at the Seminole Towne Center Mall in the near future.

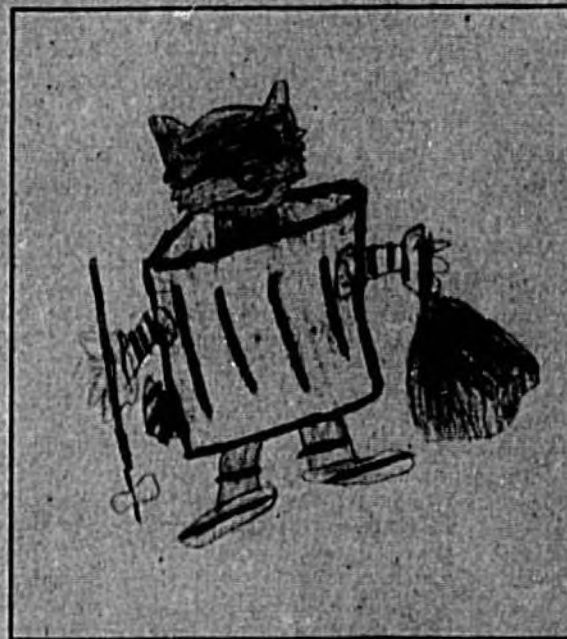

The new mascot will be the ambassador for the Chamber committee's "Project First Impression" campaign to fight litter and develop community pride in Sanford.

Wilson the Litter Critter is featured on several thousand litterbags being distributed throughout the Sanford community and area schools. The litterbag project is sponsored by Seminole Towne Center, a Simon Mall.

The Chamber's Civic Pride Committee was organized to promote a positive image, beautification and tourism in Sanford and surrounding areas. The committee recently held a city-wide clean-up campaign where volunteers picked up more than 5,000 pounds of litter from city streets.

For more information on joining the Chamber project, contact Civic Pride Committee Chairman Julie Hartline at SpringHill Suites at 407-995-1000 or the Chamber at 407-322-2212.

Sanford's Paw Park just dog-gone heavenly

By Joe DeSantis
Staff Writer

If, as the folks at Disney would have us believe, all dogs go to Heaven, then Heaven has arrived in Sanford. It comes wrapped in the form of Paw Park, Seminole County's first off-leash park. Judging by reaction from local dog owners and their pooches, the newly opened facility is a howling success.

Spokane by the efforts of Sanford dog owners, and led in their mission by Friends of Our Paw Park chairman Mike "Gonby" Knipfz, the former Jaycees Park located between 4th and 5th streets on Highway 17/92, has undergone a three-month metamorphosis. Once a hang out for vagrants, prostitutes and drug dealers, the broken glass, trash and other debris have been replaced with ornamental fencing, self-watering bowls, doggie showers, racks for pooper scooper supplies, fire hydrants, double entrance safety gates, and a special fenced section for toy and small breed dogs.

"The reaction has been amazing," commented Knipfz, Paw Park's unofficial Mayor. "We get tons of e-mail and a steady stream of visitors to the Paw Park website."

Those visitors are also streaming to Paw Park from far and wide. During the Park's first week of official operation, Sanford dog owners have been joined by pet owners from all seven of Seminole County's municipalities, as well as park users from Volusia and Orange counties. One gentleman even drove all the way from Crystal River in Citrus County to check out Paw Park.

The Sanford City Commission joined the efforts of local residents months ago by appropriating $15,000 for the renovation of the park while local pet owners dug deep and raised another $10,000.

Sanford Mayor-elect Brady Lessard calls the project a perfect example of a positive public-private venture that truly benefits the city and its residents.

"I've got a golden retriever that I've had since my college days," said Lessard. "She's a little too old to be romping in Paw Park, but it's certainly a plus for pet owners who need a place to socialize and exercise their dogs."

Paw Park will be open daily from sunrise to sunset seven days a week. It may be occasionally closed from time-to-time for maintenance and grass seeding. Park users may keep up to date on the facility by logging on to the Paw Park web site at www.pawparksanford.com. The web site has information about Paw Park rules, common sense canine tips to keep in mind when visiting, and a directional map to the park.

Paw Park Rules & Regulations

- Each dog owner has a responsibility and obligation to scoop their dog's poop.
- All dogs must have current vaccinations and display a valid dog license.
- No aggressive breeds are allowed inside Paw Park.
- No dogs in heat should be brought to the facility.
- Dogs under 4 months old are not permitted in Paw Park because they are susceptible to disease since their initial puppy shots have not had time to confer immunity.
- Owners must accompany their dogs at all times and keep them under voice or leash control.
- Dogs must be leashed when exiting and entering the park due to traffic and vehicular parking flow.
- Owners are responsible for putting rowdy dogs in a special time-out pen, or removing them from the park if they snarl and snap at other dogs.
- No other animals besides dogs are allowed in the park.
- No more than two dogs should be brought by any one owner, it is difficult to provide the required supervision for more than two canines at any one time.
- Paw Park users assume any liability for any injury incurred at Paw Park. The City of Sanford will not be liable for any injury or damage caused by a dog at the facility.

Other Common Sense Canine Tips

- Visitors to Paw Park should leave their Sunday Best wardrobes at home. Because Paw Park is a dog playground, blue jeans and sweat shirts are the preferred dress code. Many friendly breeds will be happy to slobber on you while enticing you to toss a dirt covered frisbee or tennis ball.
- Dog owners should refrain from bringing any type of food or doggie snacks into the park. Dogs are natural "resource protectors" and food on the premises could spark jealousy and an unintended dog fight.
- Visitors should exercise common sense about bringing toddlers and small children to the park. A 20 pound three year old child is no match for an 80 pound canine at full speed in pursuit of a frisbee or tennis ball.
- In the minds of many pooches, small children with high pitched voices running around, are nothing short of two-legged toys to be chased after and possibly knocked down—at no fault of the dog. If visitors do bring young children, please refrain from bringing children's toys into the park. Dogs could easily assume the toys are for them and confront the child for the toy.
- Monitor your dogs' energy level and stamina. As the weather gets hotter and humidity increases, dogs, like humans, are susceptible to heat stroke and exhaustion. Often a half-hour romp and play session is enough to properly exercise and burn off energy for most breeds.
- Paw Park is not a canine baby sitting service. Do not bring your dog there and leave to spend two hours grocery shopping. Your dog is your responsibility at all times.

Get drugs for less

DEAR ANNE AND NAN: I understand there is a place in Canada that fills drug prescriptions for a lot less money than in the United States. Do you know where I can find out more about this?

JANE BLEVINS,
Chilhowia, Va.

DEAR JANE: A Canadian organization, CanadaRx, offers prescription fulfillment services to U.S. citizens. We heard about these folks from the United Health Alliance's Medicine Assist Program. The United Health Alliance is a nonprofit organization based in Bennington, VT, dedicated to insuring that the health system implements collaborative programs to deliver high-quality care in an affordable manner. The Medicine Assist Program uses CanadaRx as a fulfillment service for lowest-cost prescription medications. There is no charge for this service.

Your physician can order your medications either directly from CanadaRx or through the United Health Alliance. The requirements are that the physician send a fax to one of the above. The fax must be transmitted on office letterhead, be signed by the authorized medical professional and contain the following information:

- State license number and DEA number of ordering physician
 - Product name, strength (if applicable), quantity and brand name or generic name
 - Ship-to address (if different from letterhead address)
 - Professional's and patient's phone numbers
 - Copy of the prescription for U.S. Customs (not required if you order through the Medicine Assist Program)
 - Patient's Visa, MasterCard or American Express credit card number. This information should be attached to the doctor's order.
- Forms for participation, which include applicable fax numbers, are available at <http://www.canadarx.net> and <http://www.unitedhealthalliance.com>, or by writing to United Health Alliance, 100 Hospital Drive, Bennington, VT 05201; (802) 447-3170 (please enclose a business-size SASE). If you have any questions or concerns regarding costs or availability of prescription medications, contact United Health Alliance. Please note: Not all prescription medications are available through this program.

DEAR ANNE AND NAN: Can you give me the address for WonderWare Stainless Steel? I need new handles for my cookware.

SADIE LANTIER,
Baker, La.

DEAR SADIE: Send your old or broken handles to Customer Service, West Bend Co., 1100 Schmidt Road, West Bend, WI 53090, and they'll send you free replacements. If you no longer have the handles, write to the above address. Include an SASE, and they will send you a form on which you can note the handle(s) you need. Over the years, West Bend has also manufactured and distributed the following brands of cookware: Royal Queen, LusterCraft, Inkrx, Kitchen Craft, Miracle Maid, Aristocrat, Regalware, Laverware and Kitchen Queen. Replacement knobs and handles are available from West Bend for all but Laverware and Kitchen Queen. For the former, West Bend asks that you send the pot or pan to them so they can replace it. For Kitchen Queen replacement handles, write to Kitchen Queen, International Home, P.O. Box 590, Hutchinson, KS 67504; (316) 665-7708.

DEAR ANNE AND NAN: Since last summer and fall, we have been flooded with ladybugs. Our porch and kitchen have millions of them. I've been washing them down the sink drain and vacuuming them — they're in my hair and on my coffee cup. They're driving me crazy! How can I get rid of them?

A. RANDLER,
Porter, Ind.

DEAR A: Obviously, whoever made up that sweet little poem, "Ladybug, ladybug, fly away home" had not encountered the Halloween, a.k.a. Asian ladybug, which the USDA, in its infinite wisdom, imported from Japan in 1979. An aggressive, voracious and long-lived relative of our native ladybug, it was brought in to deal with a proliferation of tree-inhabiting aphids in Louisiana.

By 1994, the Asian ladybug had spread throughout the eastern part of the United States. Unlike our native ladybugs, the Asian variety has no natural predators, has a life cycle of three years, procreates abundantly and does not die out over the winter. Instead, they hibernate. They have invaded your house in search of dark cracks or crevices to crawl into until warmer weather arrives. If they can't find a place to hibernate, they'll collect in vast numbers, and, as you note, infest your living space.

At this time of year, your best bet is to continue vacuuming them up. Using an insecticide is not a great idea because, when stressed, these ladybugs release an unpleasant-smelling orange liquid. It not only stinks, but it is also difficult to remove.

In the spring, the ladybugs will probably leave your house the way they came in, and the problem will go away. To prevent a repeat invasion in the fall, spray cypermethrin on the outside of your house (1 gallon will treat 1,000 square feet) as soon as the weather turns cool, and caulk or seal windows and doors.

Spring fling nets money for cancer research

The day was special. A sprinkling of fleecy white clouds blended with gentle tropical breezes indicated that spring was about to debut when nearly 200 stylishly-attired women gathered at Heathrow Country Club for a spring fling. The occasion was the annual luncheon and fashion show sponsored by the Seminole County Board of the American Cancer Society. To raise funds for cancer research.

exquisite orchids on sale to generate additional funds for the benefit. Another table held jewelry, also for sale, while a third table was arranged with place cards specifying seating arrangements. Patrons had a field day socializing and gabbing before the charitable social of the year got under way.

Dr. Beverly Boothe, co-chair, greeted the guests and gave a background of the annual fund-raiser for cancer research. She credited such "very special ladies" as Jean Clontz, Gail Stewart and Judy Wimbish for their untiring efforts in starting and keeping the traditional event alive. Entertainment was provided by a musical duo with dancers from the Orlando City Ballet also delighting the guests. Rose Edith Jacobson paid a tribute to St. Patrick by telling a funny joke complete in an authentic Irish brogue. Table decorations included orchids in pink ceramic cupid pots centered on a mirror and surrounded by bunnies and Easter candies arranged by Cathey Bossert.

It was announced that a very special bride, Gladys Wells Dyal Stenstrom, was in attendance. Gladys became the bride of Douglas Stenstrom, Sanford attorney and former state senator, on March 7 at the First United-Methodist Church in Sanford. A roaring round of applause was heard for the lovely lady who landed one of Sanford's favorite personalities.

Several mothers and daughters were introduced including Olive Adams and her daughters, Anne Wallace and Ada O'Neil; Mary Williams and daughter, Mary Anne Cleveland; and Charlotte Donahoe Davis and daughter Kit Thompson, among others. Lourine Messenger, Seminole County's first elected woman official (Supervisor of Elections), wouldn't have missed the event for the world. Lourine, 92, was accompanied by Shirley Schilke, who was a vision of spring in a pale blue silk pant ensemble. At least two women, Zeida Siskind and Cathey Bossert, made fashion statements wearing the season's hottest item — polka dots. Area businesses provided an abundance of beautiful and useful door prizes and Sanford

Flower Shop donated two lovely arrangements which were auctioned off. Each guest received several table favors and all in all, about 60 businesses and individuals participated in the door prizes to reflect an overwhelming community spirit.

Models, who strutted their stuff down a long runway, were escorted to the steps by hand-

Road rage can be countered by cutting others some slack

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to apologize to the man I cut off in merging traffic on the interstate the other day.

I'm sorry. I didn't mean to cut you off. I saw your mouth moving 100 miles a minute and the anger contorting your face. I got back in the other lane as quickly as I could, and I want you to know I was scared to death when you pulled up beside me and started honking the horn. We were approaching a slow-moving semi, and I was terrified you might run me off the road.

Dear Abby

You honked for quite a while. I didn't look over because I knew I wouldn't do any good. I knew I had cut you off, and I'm sorry for that, but your forcing me into a dangerous pain on the interstate was not safe for either of us. I was afraid if I turned to look at you, you would pull a gun on me or run me into the ditch. I wanted to focus on driving, but instead, I had to concentrate on a car locking me into a lane, honking at me, swearing at me. I was afraid you would damage my car or maybe follow me home.

Both of our actions were dangerous to other people, but there is a difference between them. I cut you off by accident; your reaction was reckless and intentional. The next time you are in a similar situation, I hope you'll extend a little mercy. It would be beneficial not only to the person in my position, but to the rest of the people trying to travel safely on the road.

GIRL IN THE BLUE CAR

DEAR GIRL: Your letter carries an important message. Incidents of road rage are all too common, and the guilty parties are both male and female. Rudeness on the roadway, overtaking to the careless driving habits of others, immaturity and sheer recklessness are invitations to tragedy. I sometimes think it wouldn't hurt if reciting the Golden Rule were mandatory before being allowed to pass the driving test. That way people would be driving "under the influence" of something positive.

DEAR ABBY: This may top the letter about the couple who invited friends to their anniversary party and used the cash the guests put on their money tree to finance their divorce.

I was recently invited to a bridal shower. The mother wrote on all the invitations, "I have purchased ALL the gifts my daughter would like. So please come to my house to purchase the gifts from me."

How is that for nerve? All of the gifts were expensive. Most of the invites felt obligated to buy them and did so with great resentment.

The daughter is a spoiled, pretentious brat — but mother and daughter got what they wanted. I dare anyone to top this one.

TICKED OFF IN CONNECTICUT
DEAR TICKED OFF: Feeling as you do about the bride and her mother, why did you attend the shower? Are these people you plan on having anything to do with in the future? I'm surprised you allowed yourself to be used that way when you could have "round-filed" the invitation.

P.S. Be careful when you toss down the gauntlet and ask if anyone can top a social gaffe. Someone is usually able to do it.

Storefront churches big sell in United States

I don't know whether Bill Clinton will be going to his office in Harlem on Sundays or not. If he does, I hope he goes to church first.

"CHURCH O GO IN CHRIST," the hand-lettered sign said.

George Plagenz

In churches with black congregations, you can hear some of the best preaching — and singing — anywhere. I'll tell you one of the reasons for the good preaching: The black congregations are responsive.

While the minister is preaching, the people in the pews break in with their own comments, such as "Amen!" and "Yes! Yes!" I once asked a black pastor if these interruptions were distracting.

"Distracting?" he said. "I couldn't preach without them." Compare this audience participation with the blank looks on the faces of the people in most white congregations. This lack of enthusiasm from the pews kills many a preacher's fervor.

When I was a parish minister, I would often take my glasses off when I preached. Because I am badly near-sighted, the congregation appeared to be a big blur, and I imagined that everyone had eager, expectant looks on their faces. People couldn't explain it, but they always said I preached better with my glasses off.

Bill Clinton will be able to have his pick of all the churches in Harlem — from the big, imposing structures to the storefront churches. I remember one congregation that met in a vacant drugstore. Instead of stained-glass windows, worshippers looked up at empty shelves that once held things like aspirin, cough syrup and cans of shaving cream.

The exterior wasn't much, either. It looked every bit like a vacant drugstore. There was a small sign outside, but some of the letters had fallen off.

There were only a few of us at the church I attended, but we sang and clapped our hands and listened to each other talk about what Jesus has meant to us. Even I got up to make a testimonial.

A little girl got up and sang "God Never Fails" without any accompaniment. Then came the prayers. These people found reason to give thanks for things the rest of us complain about. One woman who was born in the South thanked the Lord for bringing her to "this nice city where we can ride the buses." A man gave thanks that "God woke me up this morning."

The pastor was Elder Samuel, a big, good-natured man who was "saved" 20 years ago and has been preaching ever since. He is a parking lot attendant during the week.

He never prepares his sermons in advance. On this particular Sunday he preached about personal righteousness.

I could have stayed for the whole Sunday morning service, but it was 12:45 and I had to go. I had been there since 10:30. I got up and made another short testimonial and said I would be back. "Praise the Lord!" they all said again.

Bill Clinton is in for a treat. If he calls me, I'll join him.

Golden Anniversary
Congratulations to Mona and Richard "Rick" Walter who are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary this weekend and request no fanfare. They were married March 24, 1951, at the First Baptist Church in Sanford and will be honored at Timacuan Country Club on Sunday, March 25.

Their four children are Gary Walker, Jacksonville; Wayne Walker and Laura Kasal, Orlando; and Wendy Parson, Florida. There are five grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Bridge Social
The monthly Bridge Social of the Sanford Woman's Club was held March 14 at the home of Rose Edith Jacobson with Frances Mitchell as co-hostess. The hostesses served a variety of party desserts in a "very pretty" St. Patrick's Day setting, according to Zelda Siskind.

Frances Mitchell won the high score with Emy Sokol winning second high. Other players included: Selma Newman, Zelda Siskind, Betty Bruetle, Carol Dennison, Doris Stein, Wilma Heaton and Helen Ernest.

Happy Birthday
Not only was Miriam Shull wished a Happy St. Patrick's Day on March 17, but she was also wished a happy 99th birthday. Miriam is looking forward to celebrating her 100th birthday. She is the daughter of Doty Shull Maliczowski.

Mr. Junior and Mrs. Eunice Blake celebrated 52 years of marital bliss. On March 19, 1949, the Blakes were married at the Seminole County Courthouse. Enjoying their anniversary, the Blakes had dinner out for the special event. Junior is an active member of Morning Glory Missionary Baptist Church where he is a Deacon. Eunice is an ardent member of Redrick Memorial Church. Congratulations to the Blakes. He is retired from Seminole School Board and she is a housewife.

A special invitation

An invitation to dine with someone always means a great honor and a sign of respect and recognition of friendship and pleasure of your company. Sadly, we hear less and less about people entertaining at home. Out of practicality, the majority of us take guests to a restaurant or just invite them to a back yard covered dish type party. In other words, "you want to get together, fine, let's do it but I am not being responsible for you having a great time." Shared responsibilities, clean up, and good time—does deal kind of thing. Well, nothing wrong with that. These neighborly, casual, don't have to wear shoes parties have their own charm and can be a lot of fun. Thus, are we losing our touch and forgetting how to actually set a formal table?

For centuries, people worked on refining table settings and manners to better express the joy of sharing a meal with someone loved or respected tremendously, either if it was an enemy or just a stranger, the ritual of treating to dinner became more sophisticated as years went by. At the beginning of the 17th century, plates looked like the cardinal's hat, the fork was just appearing and had two prongs, glass and pewter started replacing metal goblets.

A century later, more intricate design silverware was manufactured, forks had four prongs, the knives did not match the forks or spoons, the drinking glass came into general use and the flat pewter candlesticks turned into sconces. More items became fashionable such as sugar sprinklers, eggcups, saltcellars and butter pads.

Regency was the glorious time of silverware. More elaborate designs, monograms, matching set of silver including bread knives, and serving utensils came out of silversmith shops, marking their forever keeping. The sconces became candelabras with more than one or two arms. Glasses became more and more ornate, crystal-clear urns, wine decanters, and "oille pots" were used to serve soups.

Newly invented silver was brought by the new era of industrialism. Silver- and gold-plated metal became popular. Porcelain plates came into play, along with glasses which were molded rather than mouth blown. After Napoleon III, styles mingled in a crazy rage, pieces from all periods could be found at the same table.

After the 19th century, people's lifestyle changed, depression settled in and lots of the craftsman disappeared with the secrets of their trade. The art revolution brought new inspiration, including the Art Nouveau style.

Table Etiquette And Manners

- There are a few rules we need to consider out of basic courtesy.
- Guests must not arrive before the indicated time, or not more than 15 minutes late.
- A guest remains standing while in the dining room, waiting patiently for the host to direct him to the seat assigned and until the lady of the house or host sits.
- At lunch, ladies can keep their hats on.
- Nothing is touched with the fingers, except bread, which is broken in small pieces (not cut with knife).
- The silverware should be handled silently, and both fork and knife should be used.
- Never take the largest piece when handed a dish to serve you.
- Do not put the knife in your mouth.
- Stand tall in your chair and don't laugh to loud or start talking over other people's conversation.
- When a course is over, the guest should leave his cutlery on his plate, side by side.
- To smoke between the meals is extremely bad manners and ashtrays should never be placed on the table.
- When the meal is over, allow the lady of the house to get up first.

Grilled Polenta With Zucchini And Eggplant Medallions
• Polenta
3 cups of salty water, boiling
2 cups of corn meal
When the water is boiling add with one hand pouring in slow stream the corn meal and with the other stirring constantly, until becomes like a thick puree. Keep stirring holding the pan by the handle, as it thickens some more. The lower the heat, cover up and allow to steam and slow cook for ten minutes. Turn it in a flat plate and allow cooling.

Zucchini And Eggplant Medallions
3 medium size zucchini
1 medium size eggplant
Salt pepper
1 cup of flour
1/2 olive oil
3 cloves of garlic
Begin by slicing the zucchini length wise in 1/2 inch slices. Cut the eggplant across in round slices, same thickness. Salt and pepper and allow a few minutes as the salt causes water to come out. Dry off them with a paper towel. Then flour them lightly. In a sauté pan, heat the oil on medium heat. Inverse your slices and fry one minute each side or until become golden brown. Turn on the grill and cutting square slices of the polenta grill them on each side.

Crush the garlic and puree it with a bit of olive oil and some salt. Add juices from pan. Drippd on the medallions and arrange in a dish layering them. Serve piping hot.

Six Layer Old Fashion Fruit Torte
• White cake layers.
3 cups flour
1 1/2 cups of sugar
6 teaspoons of baking powder
2 teaspoons of vanilla
1 cup of butter
Salt
6 egg whites
1 1/2 cup of milk
Sour cherries
Mandarin
Lemon curd
Whipped cream
Crushed almonds

Start by beating the egg whites by themselves until peaks form. Set aside and mix all top six ingredients in your kitchen aid at speed 4. Add egg whites, and milk. Grease and flour 3 shallow cake tins.
Pour in all three equally and bake at 350 for 30 minutes.
Turn onto working table on parchment paper and allow cooling.
Cut across every layer in two. Fill with home made lemon curd. Top with cherries and mandarin. Dress it up with whipped cream and crushed almonds. Decorate with sugar-glazed pansies.
