Taylor arrested in stabbing

SANFORD — Darrick Gerald Taylor turned himself in to Sanford police last night, ending a week-long manhunt for him in the stabbing death of his former girlfriend June 28.

Taylor, 21, 79 Seminole Gardens, was ordered held without bond this morning by Seminole County Circuit Judge Alan A. Dickey on a first-degree murder charge. He makes a second appearance before a judge tomorrow afternoon.

Sanford Police Chief Ralph Russell said Taylor turned himself in without incident late last night. Russell said he was accompanied by a family member. Taylor made no statement but asked for an attorney, Russell said.

Sanford police say Taylor stabbed to death Kimberly Walker Grace, 22, of 82 Seminole Gardens. Grace had filed a complaint against Taylor earlier last month, reporting he had threatened to kill her. Taylor had been arrested on the stalking charge, but released by Dickey.

Solo from Moscow to Maine

PORTLAND, Maine — A 73-year-old Florida man landed safely after flying solo from Moscow to Maine in his single-prop plane.

Retired Air Force Col. Charles Mack, formerly of Millinocket, returned to Maine after trying to make a non-stop trip from Washington, D.C., to Moscow almost a week ago. He had called his trip to Moscow "Freedom Flight," but strong headwinds forced him to stop in Ireland before landing in Russia.

Headwinds caught up with Mack again as he returned to Portland, a flight he was calling the "Maine Event." And for the second time, Mack was forced to stop in Ireland before landing.

It was a long trip, arduous, tough, Mack said when he arrived Sunday at Portland International Airport.

The dangers of flying alone across the Atlantic didn't faze Mack.

"I don't think it makes much difference when you're up in years like me because you don't have many in front of you," said Mack, who lives in Hollywood, Fla. "There's a certain feeling about doing something no one else has done."

Jackpot skyrockets

LALAHASSEE — It may not have been like a Fourth of July skyrocket, but Florida's Loto jackpot shot up to an estimated $16 million when no player got all six numbers in last week's game.

The numbers 19-12-34-38-39, drawn late Saturday for an estimated jackpot of $7 million, produced 200 five-of-six tickets worth $1,584.50 each, 10,853 four-of-six winners worth $70 each, and 221,171 three-of-six tickets worth $1.50 each.

But the cash for the grand prize carried over Sunday and will be added to cash from ticket sales this week. With long-term investment rates calculated for payment to a single winner over 20 years, the jackpot figure swells to $16 million.

$32 million project

Science center seeks $2 million from county

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Officers of the Orlando Science Center are lobbying local officials hoping to receive $2 million for the science center's $32 million expansion project.

School Board members have directed their staff to investigate use of capital construction dollars to contribute $1 million to the project during the next five years. OSC officials will make a presentation to county commissioners later this month during budget discussions. Three commissioners reached this week say they've been approached by OSC representatives since January seeking funding for the project. Under the proposal, the 33-year-old science center on East Rollins Street in Orlando, once known as the John Young Science Center and the Central Florida Museum and Planetarium, will be expanded to 142,000 feet and include the planetarium, observatory, 250-seat theater, classrooms and exhibit spaces. Quinn said the facility is now about 33,000 square feet in size.

The proposal indicates state education Commissioner Bettye Castor has pledged $16 million to the project over the next three years, but the money must be matched locally. Museum officials has secured $4 million in land from Orlando and targeted another $4 million in endowments. Museum officials are seeking the SANFORD — Oh, say did you see by the dusk of the night.

The fourth annual People's Fourth of July Extravaganza fireworks display went off without a hitch last night as trends, neighbors and families packed the lakefront.

It wasn't this crowded last year, according to Danny Graevy. "I'm glad to see all these people here. As the years go on, the more people show up for the fireworks. I'm really looking forward to next year."

An estimated 25,000 people came from all over the county to see the show, according to Lt. Mike Rotundo.

The crowds began to gather early at Ft. Mellon Park and along the lakefront as the children entertained themselves at the playground and adults jockeyed for position to get the best seat.

"I'm going all the way down there," said Amelia Gurka. See Fireworks, Page 5A

Mishaps

Officer in wreck; cars vandalized

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — While the Independence Day celebration was well received in downtown Sanford Sunday, there were a few mishaps. A police officer was involved in a car wreck and firemen responded to signs of smoke on the lakefront.

Sanford police officer Gary Allen Smith was involved in a two-car accident at 9:50 a.m. Sunday near the intersection of Mellonville Avenue and Fourth Street.

According to police Lt. Mike Rotundo, Smith, 21, had only been on the police force for two months. Rotundo said he was traveling north on Mellonville when a vehicle crossed the in his path on 4th Street, heading west, causing Smith's patrol car to strike it in the side.

The Florida Highway Patrol, which investigated the accident identified the driver of the car as Eric Walker, 21, of 2421 Church Street in Sanford. The FHP said Walker had apparently stopped at the intersection, but attempted to cross Mellonville in front of Smith's vehicle.

Walker was charged with violation of right-of-way. Neither Walker nor a passenger in his car, Grizell Hillery, 21, of 2380 Church Street, were reportedly injured.

Although the FHP reported Smith was not injured, Rotundo said as a normal procedure, Smith was transported to the See Mishaps, Page 5A

Floridians have rosy view of economy

By J. Mark Barfield
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Area residents express mixed views about their economic situation while a nationwide survey by the University of Florida shows most state residents are generally more hopeful than other residents in the country.

"I don't see any major changes in our lifestyle coming up," said Diane Oliver, of Geneva, an office assistant. "I hope I'll get a raise this year, but I don't think it's going to make a big difference in our life."

"It looks pretty bleak," said Tammy Lee, also of Geneva, an employee for an automotive part manufacturer in Sanford. "I don't think I'll have a job by the end of the year. All the jobs are going to Mexico."

"I'm confident I'll have a job by the end of the year," said Joe Light, an unemployed Lake Mary salesman. "I just have a gut feeling."

Statewide, the survey found more Floridians with a much rosier view of local than national economic prospects.

Blood drives

Schools outstanding; Lyman has most volunteer donors

By NICK PFEIFAU

SANFORD — Results of the 1992-93 school year campus blood drives were announced at last week's meeting of the Seminole County School Board. The report was outstanding.

According to Francie Lundquist, regional coordinator for the Central Florida Blood Bank, during the school year, six public high schools in this area registered a record 2,553 volunteer blood donors. The figure represents an increase of 36 percent over last year.

County-wide, a record 60 percent of the donor base, consisting of all seniors and half the juniors enrolled in the county, participated. Nationally, only five percent of the population donates regularly.

Lyman High School in Longwood was honored for registering the most volunteer blood donors during four campus blood drives. They registered 629. "It was really quite excit-

I-75 reopened

JASPER — The northbound lanes of Interstate 75 reopened to busy July Fourth holiday traffic, two days after an overpass was crunched Friday by a truck carrying a crane.

The accident closed the northbound lanes and caused traffic to back up as much as 15 miles late Friday and Saturday as work crews removed debris, assessed the damage and finally disassembled part of the bridge carrying County Road 249 over I-75.

The overpass is in Hamilton County, southwest of Jasper and about 10 miles south of the Florida-Georgia border.

Northbound traffic was detoured to U.S. 129 while repair crews worked around the clock to remove the damaged bridge over the northbound lanes. The lanes were reopened Sunday.

Gallery owners to enter plea

WEST PALM BEACH — The owners of three art galleries here are scheduled to enter pleas this week on charges of failing to collect sales tax by pretending to send artwork to states without such a levy.

The owners were charged Friday with misdemeanor counts of failing to collect sales tax for four years. The three, Art Gasunasen Fine Art Inc., Helander Gallery and Irving Galleries Inc., all in Palm Beach, are accused of actually delivering the art to well-heeled Floridians.

Florida's 6 percent sales taxes doesn't apply if purchases are shipped to states without a sales tax.

The charges carry a possible $1,000 fine, but the gallery owners were to enter a plea agreement Tuesday requiring them to pay only $50 toward prosecution costs in the one-year investigation.

Revenue Department officials said they would bring a civil or administrative action to try to recoup the lost sales tax.

Family concerned for son held in Cuba

KEY WEST — The father of a speedboat captain reportedly shot by Cuba's coast guard while trying to help some Cubans flee their communist homeland says he is determined to get his son back home.

"I don't care if I have to boat over there," Bob Hoddinott said. "I'll do what I have to do. The Cuban government had no right shooting him."

Ricky Hoddinott, a 33-year-old construction worker, was wounded and three Havana residents killed in Thursday's confrontation, the Cuban government says. Hoddinott, who lives on Stock Island near Key West, is hospitalized in Havana with wounds to both legs.

Meanwhile, the Cuban government reported that a second speedboat carrying four Cuban Americans on a mission to smuggle people out was detained Friday off Havana. The men were reported "in good state."

The Coast Guard said the capture of the two boats brings the number of U.S.-registered boats seized in Cuban waters this year to five. The Coast Guard didn't know the second boat had been seized until contacted by Cuba.

No one injured as man shoots at vehicle

FORT PIERCE — A man was being held without bail Saturday on charges he went on a shooting spree while driving on Interstate 95, police said. No one was injured.

Hugo Avendo, 33, of West Palm Beach, was in the Indian River County Jail charged with carrying a concealed firearm, discharging a firearm in public and three counts of shooting into an occupied vehicle, said jail officer Melissa Stewart.

The shooting began around 4:30 p.m. Friday, when Avendo shot four or five times at a vehicle as it exited I-95 near Fort Pierce, said an FHP duty officer who refused to give her name.

The car's driver, who was uninjured, immediately called 911 and gave a description of Avendo and his Chevy Blazer, officials said.

Alligator hide sales in a slump

By Associated Press

GAINESVILLE — University of Florida officials say a slump in alligator hide prices probably dooms their lawsuit to recover payments from ranchers for hatchlings and research.

Some ranchers, like Clyde Hunt of Bushnell, are hanging on for their financial lives in the downturn. Others have gone broke.

Hunt, a rancher for 25 years, told The Gainesville Sun for a story Sunday that he is looking for a career change. But Hunt said he must find a buyer for 3,000 alligators.

"I'm responsible for these gators here, and I have to feed them and take care of them," Hunt said. "It's my only job and it is full time. 14 hours a day, knowing I'm not going to make a dime, probably lose a few dollars."

Don Morgan of Keystone Heights, an architect, also operated an alligator ranch.

When things get tough, it's hard to get blood out of the turnip. The fourth year (of the research contract) was shaky and the fifth year was a disaster.

-Don Morgan

CST Alligator Farm, but closed it in 1991.

"I'd have been bankrupt if I hadn't been an architect," Morgan said.

Morgan, Hunt and seven other ranchers, along with the American Alligator Farmers Association, were sued by the university in May.

The suit says the association owes $40,000 for alligator research conducted on several lakes in the state, while the individual ranchers owe from $3,700 to $7,400 each for hatchlings.

"I suspect we'll find that several of them are out of business, and we'll never see a dime of it," said university attorney Scott Cole.

Morgan said the association is no longer in existence. He said he hadn't been served a copy of the suit, but thought his part in the disagreement had been settled.

When the association signed a research contract with the university in 1988, hide prices were beginning a rapid rise and farmers were expanding.

But prices for hides slumped from nearly $55 per linear foot of hide in 1990 to $18 a year later.

"Somebody just jerked the rug out," Hunt said. "I spent what capital reserves I had expanding, and when it came time for the next sale, there was no sale."

"When things get tough, it's hard to get blood out of the turnip," said Morgan. "The fourth year (of the research contract) was shaky and the fifth year was a disaster."

Way Back When

Close attention to this aerial shot of the Sanford Air Station in 1943 might lead you to believe the only thing they did out there was play baseball. To a certain degree you'd be right. At that time the base had been deactivated and many of the barracks, dining halls and bachelor officers' quarters had been leased by the New York Giant Farm System under the direction of Hall of Famer Carl Hubbell. Baseball diamonds' Count 'em. There are eight built to the same quality as the ones at the Polo Grounds in New York City. Every February about 700 youngsters flocked to Sanford for a tryout during Hubbell's baseball school. Those signed to contracts were assigned to one of the Giants' 24 farm clubs and participated in spring training activities during March and parts of April. At that time the Giant farm system was the largest of its kind in professional baseball. Of course, there were other activities at the base. For example, Fernald-Laughton Memorial Hospital had occupied the old Navy hospital, a number of aviation oriented organizations had leased facilities as well as a number of miscellaneous industries. The original base had been deactivated in late 1945. But all this non-military activity came to a screeching halt right after the Korean War exploded in mid-1950 and the Navy reactivated the facility.

Four wills leave little way for easy settlement of wealthy estate

By Associated Press

WEST PALM BEACH — George and Arax Echelman, who died about a month apart, left a $10 million estate, four wills and a court battle over who will get the money.

To sort out who gets what from the childless couple, two probate trials will be held this fall. One will be over George Echelman's estate, the other over Arax Echelman's estate.

There have already been about 20 probate hearings since January over the legacy of George Echelman, a Jersey City, N.J., native who died last Nov. 24 in Palm Beach Gardens. He had made his money in the taxi industry in New York and New Jersey before moved to Florida in the 1970s.

His wife, Arax, also from New Jersey, met her future husband in a North Jersey antique shop. She was 15 years younger, and she lived with Echelman for many years before they married in 1988, when he was 80.

She died just over a month after her husband, on Dec. 31.

In George Echelman's will, filed in 1989, he named his wife as his beneficiary. His competency at the time is one of the issues in the case.

In Arax Echelman's first will, made at the same time, she named her husband. In a subsequent 1991 will, Arax Echelman named her sister, Armenouhi Tutunjian of Fort Lee, N.J., as the main beneficiary if her husband wasn't still alive.

In her third and final will in 1992, she switched signals and named as her beneficiary John Holley Jr., maintenance man for eight years at a Lake Park apartment complex owned by the Echelmans.

Arax Echelman signed that one-page will on her hospital bed on Dec. 28, five days before she died at age 89. Two friends of Holley witnessed the signing of the hastily drafted document. The Palm Beach Post reported Sunday.

Holley said in a deposition in January that in the previous year he had several conversations with Echelman about her will. He had taken up partial residence at the Echelmans' house and had helped take care of both of them, in addition to his property maintenance duties.

On the night of Dec. 24, Holley said, Arax Echelman "was not feeling well, and I wanted her to go to the hospital to see if we could get something for that. She said she couldn't go to the hospital; she didn't have her will made. I said, 'Well, would you go if I had your will made?' She said yes. That is when she relayed to me what she wanted."

The question from a lawyer taking the deposition: "What did she tell you?"

Holley's response: "She wanted to leave everything to me."

But lawyers at the trials will maintain that Holley "unduly influenced" Echelman.

James Pearsly, the attorney for George Echelman's estate who is aligned against lawyers for Tutunjian and Holley, declined comment. But his trial evidence will include depositions by George Echelman's relatives in California, who are the other principal contenders for his money.

Cuba says boat tried to flee

By JOHN RICE
Associated Press Writer

MEXICO CITY — Cuba said Sunday that a U.S.-registered speedboat trying to carry Cubans to the United States ignored warning shots and tried to flee when it was intercepted by the island's coast guard.

Three Havana residents died and the boat's pilot, Ricky Hoddinot of Stock Island near Key West, Fla., was captured in Thursday's confrontation.

The official Prensa Latina news agency said that fleeing boat and a second one detained Friday brought to 16 the number of U.S. boats captured so far this year while trying to bring Cubans illegally to the United States.

The agency gave an account of Thursday's capture of the "Midnight Express" based on a report Sunday in Juventud Rebelde, the communist state's official youth newspaper.

Officials said they detected the 36-foot speedboat on radar near the coast at Colimar, six miles east of Havana.

Cuban border guards fired warning shots and ordered the speedboat to halt, the newspaper reported. But it said the boat began evasive maneuvers, which led guards to fire at the speedboat's motors. "whose bullet holes show a bull's eye in spite of the darkness and the movements of the craft."

"Lamentably, the shots also hit several of the people who were aboard and others confused with the operation," the newspaper reported.

The account did not specify if the Cubans were among those trying to flee or others caught in the fire but identified them as Havana residents.

It said participants in such raids have admitted to earning between $5,000 and $10,000 for each person carried to the United States.

Cuba said Friday that in addition to Hoddinot, it had arrested four Cuban-Americans captured earlier in the day on a similar mission toward the coast near Havana.

A U.S. State Department representative saw Hoddinot on Saturday and he was "under medical care and his wounds do not seem to be life threatening," department spokeswoman Julie Reside said from Washington.

The owner of the Midnight Express, Leandro Portilla, said his brother, Hugo Portilla, left Miami with the boat a few days ago to bring his wife and daughter to freedom. The Miami Herald reported. The newspaper said Hugo Portilla was arrested Friday in Cuba.

About 1,100 Cubans have reached Florida so far this year on rafts and small boats, including 37 picked up Saturday, according to Petty Officer Joe Dye of the Coast Guard in Miami.

Lake Mary to reopen discussions on courts

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary City Commission will reopen discussions on two basketball courts, located at the intersection of Country Club Road and Lake Mary Avenue.

During last month's meetings, the city voted to have the courts closed and dismantled, after a group of citizens living near the courts voiced complaints about the noise, late-night usage, cars illegally parked, and late use of lighting.

The matter first came up when it was discovered that one of the two courts was not in compliance with zoning restrictions regarding setback distances and other matters.

During Thursday night's meeting, former Lake Mary City Commissioner Paul Tremel spoke during the citizen participation period, and asked that the matter be brought back for further consideration.

The city had previously agreed to build new basketball courts at its new sports complex located off Rantoul Lane, and to eliminate the downtown area courts.

Tremel suggested the city should continue plans to build the new courts, but retain the present courts with a restriction that they be specifically limited in usage, and designated only for younger age players.

The commission agreed to bring the matter back for further discussion at the second meeting in July. (July 15). Prior to that time, letters informing residents near the old courts of the meeting are to be sent out.

Explorers a great group

The Rotary Breakfast Club of Sanford honored the Police Explorer of the Year this past week. Late last month, the explorers were also honored by the Sanford City Commission.

People who have seen this group of youngsters in operation should easily recognize the fact that they are very worthy of such honors and tributes.

Led by Sanford police officer Mike Taylor, the explorers currently have 21 members, both male and female between the ages of 14 and 19. They are uniformed, and trained continuously by various officers.

Their responsibilities include assisting in traffic control during public functions such as the recent air show, the July 4th festivities at Fort Mellon Park, and other public events.

They also conduct fingerprinting for small children under the "Lost Children" program, and are involved in additional civic programs dealing with safety and law enforcement.

Sanford has been operating the Police Explorers for approximately eight and a half years. Their supervisors say that the majority have law enforcement careers as major goals.

Involvement also requires maintaining high scholastic achievements, required by the Boy Scouts of America, the group that charters Police Explorer operations.

Members of the Police Explorers are proud of their accomplishments in serving the community and its people.

Through its leadership, Sanford police are helping to create better citizens for tomorrow.

Whenever Police Explorers are on the job, express your appreciation for their work.

How does county spend our money?

Maybe this letter will go to print before the county commission gets carried away with our tax money. The taxpayers are fed up with them playing Santa to things that should not be paid with all our taxes.

No more money handouts to this historical society building fund. What happened to the others? It's like the symphony, if people wanted it they would pay to see it. They didn't, so it went under. The same for this one county and one city historical society — really not enough things worth saving to put in one building. All you have is just two men, Sanford and French — so a street was named for them both, so let it go.

Already this year, I understand money was allocated to this women's mission, now they want another handout, what has the city paid? What's in this budget for the homeless and poor? Are they going to just ignore those people and maybe they will go away and there will only be one big "Heathrow."

The concrete moat is still being paid with money to do nothing, no trees in the parks, just talk and "gonna" do. When?

Where is the money going that the waste company sends to the city and county each month? What is done with that?

We taxpayers pay the garbage bill, you end up paying for those drivers to pick it up and take it to the waste station, have it sorted and shipped out to different companies to use to make other things, but that is all gravy. We paid the salary they claim through a rebate on social security. Then each month a little percentage goes into the city and county pocket book. They should lower our bill, not raise it. What does that go for (money)?

The senior citizens have paid for years so why not each Thanksgiving, Christmas, Easter a beautiful dinner at the Chamber of Commerce. I'm sure lots of people will be glad to help like the last time it was done, a wonderful thing to see every hungry person was taken care of, the city didn't have to put out for the poor. It was given by donations.

Now, Big Daddy wants to buy an empty post office, very little off-street parking. Now, we wonder just what use could they find for it?

If they have so much loose money around, then let them put it to use in the county by hiring more deputies to patrol our roads and put the bums in jail. No more handouts, let the city pick up a little of the slack. Heathrow isn't here yet.

Short life of Stonewall Jackson Smith

In the October 1983 issue of Pediatrics, a medical team then at the University of Oklahoma Health Sciences Center, told of a five-year experiment on infants. All these babies had spina bifida — an imperfect closure of part of the spinal column.

The team evaluated the infants as to whether "active vigorous treatment" or "supportive care only" would be indicated. The criteria included a "quality of life" formula. Taken into consideration was the baby's natural endowment (physical and intellectual). But emphasis was also given to the quality of support the handicapped child would likely get, as time went on, from his family and from society.

As the medical team put it plainly in the Pediatrics article, the treatment for babies with identical natural endowments "could be quite different, depending on the contribution from home and society." A low-income home could help determine whether the child had a future or not.

At the time, I told one of the physicians that this clearly was a means test. He denied it but could not explain the formula otherwise. The concept turned out to be a precursor of the current cost-benefit ideas about which sick people are worth keeping alive.

Sixty-nine spina bifida infants were made part of the grand experiment between 1977 and 1982. Those chosen for "active vigorous treatment" were operated on to close the spinal lesion. Those given "supportive care only" were given no active medical treatment: no surgery, no sedation and no antibiotics to treat infections and other acute illnesses. Of those laid aside, 24 did indeed die. Of the 36 babies given full treatment, 35 survived. (The exception was killed in a car accident.)

In each case, the parents were informed beforehand whether the physician recommended full treatment or not. Parents could reject the alternative of "supportive care only." But some have since claimed that the medical team's recommendations were not clear or complete enough to be fully understood, nor was the "quality of life" element revealed.

One of the infants left without medical treatment was Stonewall Jackson Smith. His lifespan was 53 days. His mother, Frieda Smith, told me recently that she had agreed to only "supportive care." But, she added, "we did not make the decision to let Stony die. All we were ever told was that any treatment would only cause him to suffer needlessly. Like any caring parents, we wanted to spare him any pain and did what the doctors recommended. But we trusted these doctors to do everything possible to save his life under any circumstances."

Frieda Smith also notes that the doctors "failed to tell us we were part of an experiment. We were completely unaware of this until six years later when we saw something about it on the news. At that time we became involved in a class action suit against these physicians and the Oklahoma Medical Center."

The primary claim by parents and guardians of several of the dead infants is that those children not given full medical treatment were discriminated against because they were handicapped. And that was a violation of Section 504 of the 1973 Rehabilitation Act.

A low income home could help determine whether the child had a future or not.

Class reunions and old lessons

The high season for school and college reunions has come and gone again but the memories linger on for those who went back.

They do so despite the miasma of doubt, mistrust and scorn the very idea of such gatherings seems to draw forth from many people. What they apparently have in mind are either idiotic costumes and heavy drinking or strained conversations between semi-strangers whose old school ties no longer bind.

Whatever lies behind the attitude, it is just dead wrong. In a world and time that make mincemeat of community, history and long-term connections, reunions are a partial antidote. At a moment when rootlessness is a national affliction, they provide small but significant reanchoring in shared experience and old friendships.

Obviously, not every reunion works nor does every former classmate turn out to be a man or woman for all seasons. Too often, one or two or even a significant handful will mistake alcohol for the fountain of youth. A few may return simply to parade their wealth and status before the lesser breed with whom they were once associated. Not all programs, however well-intended, work out. Noses are put out of joint from time to time and feelings hurt because of what was inadvertently said, or unintentionally left unsaid.

But that is the risk and nature of all human gatherings, whatever they are called and under whatever auspices they are held. What reunions uniquely offer is a rich reminder of times past, good and bad, and an equally rich opportunity to reflect upon lessons learned and decisions made in the years since graduation.

These are generalizations from a veteran reunion-goer. To be more specific, there was the 40th Reunion of Greenville High School's class of 1953 earlier this month in our Mississippi Delta hometown. About 50 percent of our remaining classmates gathered this time, most of us grayer, heavier or balding than in 1988.

Many of us have been coming back every five years since our 10th reunion. Quite a few showed up for the first time. To my personal knowledge, every single person was glad to be there. We talked, we sat and listened, we visited in homes and we partied in the Mississippi Valley Gas Lodge up on Lake Ferguson. There was a dinner-dance on Saturday night at the Country Club, the social high point, and a moving service of remembrance on Sunday morning for classmates (too many) who have died.

And throughout, we came together as adult human beings who, though scattered across the American continent and beyond, have been joint participants in the common experience we call life. As such we had much to offer each other and much to accept, and it was in that exchange that the true value of this reunion, as with all, was found.

Not for the first time, we were reminded that there is nothing so ridiculous as the type-casting and pigeonholing with which teenage life is afflicted. Some of the most startling success stories had been written by people who left Greenville High in 1953 with the lowest prospects. For some, the journey had been from mill floor to corporate headquarters. For others, it had been to far distant lands and far northern states.

For some of us, of course, the story has been of unrealized potential, of bad luck and ill-timed decisions and personal disasters. But what was striking was how resilient even the most afflicted had proved to be. One of our coaches used to treasure the players with "no quit in them." He would have loved the men and women at 1953's reunion.

Our politics could not have gone in more different directions. We were all the children of segregation, and for some the old verities of white supremacy have died hard while for others they have been the object of lifelong attack. Whatever our current status of belief, however, what united just about everyone was the underlying certainty that the nation was off the track on matters of race. Where we seem to be heading pleases no one, and few of us could point to national leaders who promise workable answers.

College or workplace bound, most of us married young by today's standards. Two, three and up to seven grandchildren were proudly announced when each of us was asked to say a little about what the years had produced and taught. The classmate who for good reason was voted "least changed" of the women has a grandchild in college. If we talked about any one subject more than anything else, it was about our hopes and fears for our offspring's future.

Mostly, however, we revived our sense of place and people and relearned the basic lessons of humanity. There is more that unites us than divides us. Wisdom is hard-earned and not to be confused with knowledge. Since our end is certain, the way we deal with each other along the way is important. Each place is the best place of all if you're willing to make enough of an investment in it, past and present.

Obviously, not every reunion works nor does every former classmate turn out to be a man or woman for all seasons.

On the cusp of a Synthetic Century

By the year 2050, all humankind will exist in an artificial environment and the real world will be but a memory.

This is the conclusion of the most recent Spear Foundation Report, entitled "Sliding Into The Synthetic Century." It is the first in what will be a series of futurist studies, provided the spunky little think tank can raise the requisite funds.

Although all the experts consulted by the foundation concurred that ersatz existence will be the hallmark of the coming century, they disagreed on how the trend started.

One faction laid the blame on Walt Disney and his fantasy worlds in California and Florida and all the hokey "Worlds," "Lands" and "Jungles" that descended therefrom.

This group then traces the dissolution of reality to the 1970s, which featured fishing centers where busy people could take their kids to catch real trout in the real outdoors and do it fast. Then came the '80s, which featured fruit-flavored drinks that boasted of being "10 percent real juice." Then came the '90s and more sophisticated fishing centers, with fake waterfalls and trees, where fish are attached to a line and released for the "angler" to haul in.

Other experts claim the genesis was the invention of domed baseball stadiums and artificial turf, which give the illusion that the game is still being played as God intended, when in fact it is a complete perversion of nature. This would establish April 18, 1966, the day the first game was played in the Houston Astrodome, as the beginning of the end of reality.

Whatever the roots of the coming Synthetic Century, the nation of Japan has adopted the concept and enhanced it immeasurably. It shows in numerous small innovations, such as the counterfeit cats, called "mews," for young Japanese professionals who are too busy to care for the real thing. Or the actors who, for about $400 an hour, will visit parents of busy people and pretend to be their own offspring.

It shows in many medium-sized ways, such as the development of indoor sky-diving. Or the invention of "electronic books" in the form of optical disks that can be inserted in a small machine and displayed on a screen the size of a matchbook. Novels, for example, are no longer redolent of ink, but they do come with visuals and sound effects.

It shows in many big ways. Being efficient people, and not being blessed with a great deal of leisure time, the Japanese don't like to drive great distances for purposes of recreation. So they have invented indoor ski centers — domed buildings with long, manufactured slopes covered with fake snow. For about $30 an hour, they can now ski in summer or winter, rain or shine, and they don't have to go to the mountains to do it.

Nor do the Japanese have to go to the beach to swim. That's because they have invented indoor seashores — phony beaches with phony sand and machine-generated waves and plastic palm trees and ersatz shipwrecks. Sometimes, the waves are gentle — these for the bathers and dog-paddlers. Sometimes the waves are large and rough — these for the body surfers. One of the bogus beaches, the Seagala Ocean Dome, stands less than 300 yards from the ocean that God made.

This might tempt you to ask why the Japanese, living on an island and being blessed with many beautiful bona fide beaches, would want to construct fake ones.

One faction laid the blame on Walt Disney and his fantasy worlds in California and Florida.

Central Florida Regional Hospital for treatment of possible injuries to his left arm and neck. He was said to have been treated and released.

"We also had some problems Sunday night in the downtown area of Sanford," Rotundo reported. "We had a number of cases where car windows were smashed. We suspect it was vandalism done while people were out watching the fireworks."

Rotundo said further information is still being investigated and the exact extent of damage is still being determined.

Shortly before the fireworks display got underway Sunday evening, units of the Sanford Fire Department were called from their positions at Fort Mellon Park, to converge at the docking area of the Romance ships at the Monroe Harbour Marina.

Firemen reported seeing a heavy amount of black smoke originating from the area. They said the fuel injectors on the engines in the rivership Romance had apparently malfunctioned, flooding the engine, and causing excess smoke.

"It was apparently a mechanical problem," a fireman said this morning, "and there was no actual fire."

The Romance was parked next to its larger sister-ship the Grand Romance at the time of the smoke.

Firemen returned to the fireworks area immediately after determining that there was no danger of a blaze in the docking area.

children's laughter filled the air as participants walked down Seminole Boulevard gazing at the antique automobiles courtesy of the Celery City Cruisers.

"This is a real nice crowd," said Kay Bartholomew, representing First Street Gallery and the Mainstreet Program at one of the many display tents. "Everyone seems to be really enjoying themselves, considering the heat."

The crowd was entertained by a singing duo, Wayne Spencer, on the guitar, and Tammy Terry, both of Sanford, and Hollywood East Dancers, of Sanford.

Trophies were awarded to owners of some of the antique cars for their entries and prizes were given away in a raffle, including a cruise to the Bahamas.

Cotton candy, sno cones and fireworks made the day complete for the Fourth of July celebration.

At the other end of the park the Florida National Guard was treated to an appreciation picnic for their assistance in south Florida during the hurricane relief effort. Sponsored by the "Friends of the Guard," the guardsmen enjoyed a barbecue sandwiches, beans and cole slaw served by the Sanford Kiwanis Club and refreshments from the Sanford Elks Lodge #1241. Special presentations including a medical unit, camouflage tents and heavy equipment setups were open to the public.

"It's not quite as many as we had hoped for," according to Bill Simmons, Sanford city manager. "But the families that are here are having a real good time."

"Their just as good as Pennsylvania," said Cathy Stein, of Philadelphia. "It was a nice family treat."

ing," Lundquist said. "There are congratulations to be given all around the county."

Lyman registered the most, but Lake Brantley had the biggest single blood drive of the year and came in second overall with 595 volunteers.

On April 15 of this year, Lake Brantley registered 219 donors breaking Lyman's previous record of 207 in a single day's drive.

For the total school term, Oviedo High School registered 417, Seminole High registered 395, Lake Howell registered 289, and Lake Mary High registered 228.

Lyman High School was also awarded for having the highest percentage of participation with 87 percent. Seminole was second with 83 percent. Lake Mary had 29 percent.

Seminole High School had the largest increase in donors over the 1991-92 school year, increasing by 105 percent. Of the 343 registered donors, 254 pints of blood were donated.

Last year, Beth Jensen, blood drive site-coordinator at Oviedo High School suggested a leadership seminar be given for the students who organize campus blood drives. The plan was initiated, and the first annual Seminole County High School Blood Drive Leadership Conference was held in October, 1992, with five students from each school attending.

"The results were outstanding," Lundquist said. "These students care. They motivated their entire school to care, and many to donate."

Students are eligible to donate blood with their parents' permission at 17 years of age. High school blood drives represented 35 percent of the community blood supply coming from mobile blood drives in Seminole County between May, 1992 and April, 1993.

remaining $8 million from local governments, including a total of $2 million from Seminole County during the next five years.

County Manager Ron Rabun has recommended against county funding. In a March letter to Sandra Quinn, OSC executive director, Rabun wrote $2 million was far too much for the county to bear by itself. Rabun wrote "While I have no doubt that this is a highly worthy project, as budget officer for Seminole County I can tell you that that level of commitment over the period of time stated is beyond our funding capability from the tourist development tax."

Rabun wrote the county's tourist tax will generate about $1 million next year for projects. About half that amount will be spent for administrative uses and the new county soccer facility.

Quinn said she has met with each commissioner and the school board and is hopeful the two boards will participate.

"We have a long history of service to Seminole County," said Quinn. "We have summer science programs at several school there now. We want to join forces with Osceola and Seminole Counties to develop a regional center."

Quinn said of the 6,600 museum members, a third live in Seminole County. Of the 60,000 school children that visit the museum each year, 21 percent are from Seminole County schools. A third of the museum's 53-member board of trustees are Seminole County residents, she said.

Commissioner Pat Warren said museum representatives have told her about a third of the 365,000 people who visited the OSC last year were from Seminole County.

"Obviously, Seminole County will never produce a separate science center," said Warren. "It's a phenomenal opportunity for us and we don't pay anything. I think we need to talk about public participation for a regional benefit. I'm receptive to hearing more about it."

"We're going to have to look at it awfully, awfully carefully," said commissioner Bob Sturm. "Money is severely tight this year. I'll look at it in the context of the total budget."

"Obviously, we are benefitting substantially by that science center," said commissioner Daryl McLain. "But over half the people from our county that go to it are school children. I would think a substantial commitment by the school board is necessary to meet this requirement. People who use it should pay for it."

Diane Kramer, school planner, said board members directed her Monday to determine whether school construction and improvement money could be used to pay $1 million during the next five years. Kramer said Wednesday she will look into it.

Two bookstores welcomed to the Lake Mary area

The Greater Lake Mary/Heathrow Chamber of Commerce held its "Business After Hours" at Little Wing Books, in Lake Mary Village.

Gary and Kathy Fuller are the owners of Little Wing Books which opened on April 15.

Gary was a musician and he loved Jimi Hendrix and "Little Wing" was one of Gary's favorite songs. "We narrowed a long list of names down to this favorite," said Gary. They've lived in Lake Mary for two years now and got tired of driving to Altamonte Springs to get a book, so they opened this store.

Kathy by trade is a florist and is on a year's leave from the Publix Super Markets to have her baby. Kandace is now three months young. "Kandace has a big brother, Lee, who is 4. Lee attends Grace Methodist Pre-School in Lake Mary."

The beautiful bookshelves that everyone was commenting about were all handmade by Gary out of pine. In their 2,000 square foot store they house a very large children's section along with a 17 million title data base for special orders. "We hope to become a part of the community and have book signings and children's reading events," said Kathy.

The Lake Mary and Heathrow community is fortunate to have Little Wing Books joining the fans of the used bookstore, B&L Books, located in the Shoppes of Lake Mary at Lake Mary Boulevard and Country Club Road. Jan Joyce and Marcia Beach are co-owners of B&L Books. Jan started the original B&L in Altamonte Springs six-and-a-half years ago and that store is still going strong beside the Outback Steak House on S.R. 434. They opened the Lake Mary branch with Marcia on the Jan. 1. "We like to consider it the reader's edge where we combine the qualities of both a new and used bookstore in one," said Jan.

"You have the opportunity to receive value for books you've read and at the same time purchase new and used paperback books at discounted prices. Our inventory is maintained on a computer system and we can quickly locate books in the store or reserve them for our customers. We have the advantage of both our stores to acquire books you're looking for. So come see what you've been missing," said Jan.

The community attending the "Business After Hours" got a chance to meet the two new book-related additions to the community. They can buy books at Little Wing Books, read them and bring them to B&L Books for credit. Both sets of owners are very friendly, outgoing and helpful people. So with summer here, everyone can stock up on their reading needs and welcome the new businesses.

Best of the Best gather for Golden Anniversary

By SARABECA ROSIER
Herald Correspondent

Sybil and Thomas Best of Denton, N.C., former residents of Lake Mary, celebrated their 50th (Golden) anniversary on Tuesday, June 29, at the home of their daughter, Barbara Simmons, and son-in-law, Jim, of Lake Mary.

Sybil and Thomas met in July 1940 when Sybil sold Thomas a comb in the Sanford McCrory's 5¢ & 10¢ Store. Thomas was with the 124th Infantry Medical Attachment along with many other Sanford young men at Camp Landon. These young men later went up with the National Guard when it became active. Tom says that "I talked to Sybil for a while at the store and we hit it off and I waited for her to get off work and took her to a show that night. Not long afterwards, the infantry was called to maneuvers in Alexandria, La. I went into further training and was then transferred to the Air Force and went to Chanute Field in Illinois and the National Guard then became federal. I was sent for aircraft mechanic training."

Sybil said, "We kept in touch by mail and on rare occasions by telephone, but mostly by letters. Thomas was supposed to have leave to come home Christmas, but it was cancelled because of Pearl Harbor."

Tom continued, "While I was at Chanute Field, I got a chance to take the exam for flying and I made it and went to Buffalo, New York's Curtis Wright Aircraft Factory for maintenance on P-40 aircraft fighters. Then I was sent to West Palm Beach, Florida." He was supposed to go to Brazil to teach, but the trip was cancelled in March of 1942 and he stayed in West Palm Beach until September of 1942. Then "I went into aircraft cadet training. I took the aircraft cadet training in November 1942 until June of 1943."

"Sybil and I got married on June 29, 1943. I got my 'Wings' and Second Lieutenant Commission on June 30, 1943 at 9:30 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. and was on the plane headed for Dodge City, Kan. That's why Sybil and I got married the day before, because I had just found out they were shipping me out to Dodge City for B-26 pilot training after graduation. So we got married, but, of course, had no time for a honeymoon."

Sybil says the proposal just "kind of evolved and was accepted. Tom never got down on one knee to propose, it just sort of happened."

Sybil and Thomas Best were married on June 29, 1943 in the chapel at Moody Field in Valdosta, Ga. During the time Tom had been in these different training programs, Sybil had been in Washington, D.C. working as a "government girl" since September of 1940. She "worked in Washington, D.C. as one of the numerous clerks-typists hired at $1,440 per year."

"It was a civil service job and I stayed in Washington, D.C. until I married Thomas in June 1943. I took the train from Washington to Georgia and we got married. After getting married, I followed him by train to Dodge City, Kan. There were no houses on the base, because they were put up so quickly, so I stayed in a local hotel, Lora Lock, in Dodge City. The following February, Thomas' training took him to Barksdale, La. outside of Shreveport."

At the time Sybil was expecting their first child, Thomas Jr., who was born May 4, 1944. Tom got orders to go overseas, but they weren't sure whether it was to England, Africa or the Far East. Sybil went home to Sanford and the Reader's Digest published a feature article on the boys going overseas and depending on the type clothes they were issued, they would know where they were going.

"Thomas was issued clothing for a cold climate and that's how I found out he was going to England while I had our first son, and it was 15 months before he got to see his son. At that time he opted to stay in the service and was sent to Del Rio, Texas and Tom Jr. and I came along. It was a very hectic time, as the base was closed before we arrived there and we were sent on to Frederick, Okla. and that base closed two weeks after we got there. We were sent to Garden City, Kan. and stayed there until February of 1945. We all came home to Sanford, but didn't take the discharge. Thomas had achieved the rank of captain. He had 54 missions over Germany and received the Distinguished Flying Cross for Flight during the Battle of the Bulge. We moved as enlisted personnel."

Our second son was born in Orlando in 1947. We spent awhile at Morrison Field in West Palm Beach. Thomas spent time as a recruiting sergeant in southwest Virginia and then went back overseas to Germany for four years with the two boys. We had two girls who were born in Germany at the 97th General Hospital in Frankfurt, Germany; it was an Army hospital. Our third daughter was born in West Palm Beach when we returned to the States. We had two more daughters who were born in Sanford for a total of seven children."

"Our oldest son, Thomas A. Best Jr., lives in Charlotte, N.C. and our second son, Robert H. Best, lives in Little Rock, Ark. Our oldest daughter, Cathi, lives in Johnson City, Tenn. Patricia lives in Deltona, Mary lives in Jackson, Tenn. and Barbara lives in Lake Mary in our old house. Sybil lives in Sanford."

The Bests have 14 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. Most of the family was expected to be out at Barbara and Jim's in Lake Mary for the barbecue on the lawn. The family "tried to make it a surprise but with such a large family it isn't easy to keep secrets," said Sybil. All of the Best's children made it to the barbecue, however, some spouses were unable to come, for example, one son-in-law was out at sea.

Thomas Best presented his wife with a lovely pin that he bought at a flea market. It was an old "ear bob" that was converted into an unusual pin with simulated diamonds and her birthstone, amethyst. He gave her that early, but at the barbecue, he gave her a beautiful 50-point diamond heart set in gold on a gold chain. Sybil was quite surprised and Tom was quite pleased that he pulled the surprise off. Apparently, it is difficult to surprise Sybil. Tom confided that he got a bank check so that it would not show up in the checking account.

The anniversary couple traveled to their daughter's house in their mobile home which they use quite often to travel and visit their children. There were probably 50 to 60 guests, family and friends, who joined the Bests in their celebration. Their son, Robert, owns a catering company in Little Rock, Ark. and did the cooking. The food was excellent and included chicken, brisket, barbecued and baked corn and beans, potato salad, cole slaw, rolls, fruit and more. Also, iced tea and lemonade were plentiful. The anniversary cake was dessert.

The Best's granddaughter, Jennifer Hull, traveled the furthest to come to her grandparents 50th wedding anniversary. She flew in from Alameda, Calif. which is near San Francisco with her 5 1/2 month old daughter, Kirstin, a great granddaughter of the Best's.

IN BRIEF

AROUND THE NATION

Taubensee leads Astros

HOUSTON — Eddie Taubensee hit two home runs, leading Doug Drabek and the Houston Astros over the St. Louis Cardinals 9-4 Sunday for a three-game sweep.

Taubensee, a Lake Howell graduate, drove in three runs with the first two homer game of his career. He hit a two-run drive off Rene Arocha (6-3) in the second inning and his fifth homer of the season, a solo shot, in the fourth.

Braves edge Marlins

ATLANTA — Delon Sanders opened the ninth inning with a triple and scored on rookie Matt Turner's balk with one out Sunday, giving the Braves a 4-3 victory over the Florida Marlins.

After Sanders got his seventh hit in his last eight at bats, Turner retired Mark Lemke on a grounder. Intentional walks to Terry Pendleton and David Justice loaded the bases.

As Turner (1-2) was preparing to make his first pitch to Ron Gant, he appeared to start, then stop his motion. Plate umpire Ed Rapuano called a balk.

Mike Stanton (1-2) pitched one inning for the victory.

Chicks slam Cubs

MEMPHIS — Tom Cullen's grand slam home run in the bottom of the fourth led the Memphis Chicks to a 7-5 victory over the Orlando Cubs Sunday in the Southern League.

The score was tied 2-2 when Cullen hit his home run, his second of the year.

Suns see Stars

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. — Eric Heltand's grand slam home run, his seventh, highlighted a five-run second inning for the Huntsville Stars as they beat the Jacksonville Suns 10-3 in July 4th Southern League play.

Fausto Cruz had four hits, including his first home run of the year, as the Stars pounded out 12 hits.

Drysdale remembered

LOS ANGELES — The man who caught most of Don Drysdale's pitches for the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers, believes intimidation helped make the man known as the "Big D" a Hall of Famer.

"I think he was a little bit above a competitor," John Roseboro said. "He was kind of a warrior out there, a fighter. He went out to destroy you any way he could. And when he was in the lineup, we had another good bat."

Roseboro could hardly believe his former batterymate died, just a week after Hall of Fame catcher Roy Campanella passed away.

News of Drysdale's death in an apparent heart attack at age 56 in his Montreal hotel room on Saturday was a shock to a lot of people.

In addition to his wife, Ann Meyers, a Hall of Fame basketball player at UCLA, Drysdale is survived by sons Don Jr. and Darren, and daughter Drew, as well as a daughter, Kelly, from a previous marriage.

Funeral services were pending.

Ryan set to return

ARLINGTON, Texas — Nolan Ryan is tentatively scheduled to return to the mound July 19 against Milwaukee at Arlington Stadium.

Ryan has been on the disabled list with a strained left hip since May 17. Earlier in the season, he had arthroscopic surgery to repair damaged knee ligaments.

Ryan has remained in Arlington during the Texas Rangers' current road trip, working out daily at Arlington Stadium with Tom House, former Rangers pitching coach and now a consultant for the team.

Ryan is scheduled to throw in a simulated game July 14, the day after the All-Star game.

Andretti has best finish

MAGNY COURS, France — The McLaren-Ford threaded its way through the field, moving up 10 places to end up sixth in the French GP.

No, it wasn't Ayrton Senna. It was Michael Andretti, who had his best performance in his first year in Formula One.

Alain Prost won the race — the 49th victory of his Formula One career — in a spare car as he led a one-two sweep Sunday for Williams-Renault ahead of Damon Hill.

Michael Schumacher, in a Benetton-Ford, took third. He overtook Senna in the final stages of the race. Martin Brundle was fifth.

Bullets use seven run inning to down Marlins

From Staff Reports

LONGWOOD — Baseball took While it is usually described in a little bit stronger terms, that is exactly what the Ovedo Marlins baseball team found themselves in during the second inning of the winner's bracket final of the N.A.A.F.F. (National Amateur Baseball Federation) July Fourth Invitational at Lyman High School Saturday night.

Leading 1-0 the Marlins (the summer team from Ovedo High School) suddenly got hit for a seven-run second inning by the host Seminole Animal Supply Bullets (the summer team from Lyman High School).

The first five batters to come to the plate for the Bullets in the second inning single before Ovedo could get an out. But that was just the beginning as the next five batters came up with four singles, a walk and a triple.

"It was just a great inning," said Ovedo head coach Mike Ferrell. "I've been coaching a long time and I don't think I've ever seen that many balls hit that hard in the same inning. They just hit shot after shot and we couldn't do anything about it. We never really recovered after that. We had our chances, but just could not get the big hit when we needed it."

The shock carried over to Sunday, as Bates Sporting Goods from Orlando (Dr. Phillips) who the Marlins beat 11-1 Friday, jumped on Ovedo for three runs in the first inning and went on to eliminate the Marlins 6-2.

Bates Sporting Goods' victory put them in Sunday night's championship against the Bullets, with the Bullets needing just a win to claim the title. Bates had to win twice to take home the title.

With your help Lake Howell graduate Wayne Bomstad will be on his way to Moscow, Russia to play in The Red Army Ice Classic next week.

Raines finishes pitcher's duel

By JOE MOOSHLI
 AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO — With rookie Rod Bolton and Ben McDonald in a pitching duel, Tim Lincecum figured the team that got the first big hit would win the game.

Raines, from Sanford, was right and he got the big hit, delivering a go-ahead triple and Joey Cora followed with a squeeze bunt on the next pitch. That sent Bolton on to his first major league victory as the Chicago White Sox beat the Baltimore Orioles 3-1 Sunday.

Raines, in his 13th year in the majors, said it was the first time he had been involved in a squeeze.

"But it was a big play and I'm glad they called it. Cora was surprised by the call on the first pitch.

"With a runner on third I had my mind set on having a good at bat. When I saw the sign I was surprised and had to retreat my thinking. It was a great call."

Bolton said his first victory was "a long time coming." He made the team in spring training, then was sent to the minors before being recalled from Nashville on June 28. He lost three starts in April and one in Cleveland last week.

"Rod pitches his game and keeps the ball down, he can win in the big leagues," White Sox manager Gene Lamont said. "He has to change speeds and have good control. There's no margin for error."

Bolton (1-1) allowed three hits, struck out three, walked none and retired the final 14 batters he faced.

Donn Pall pitched the eighth, and Roberto Hernandez finished for his 15th save. Chicago retired Baltimore's final 20 batters in order.

Ben McDonald (4-8) allowed all three runs and four hits in seven innings for Baltimore.

Ozzie Guillen, who had driven in Chicago's first run in the third, singled with one out in the sixth and scored on Raines' triple before Cora's bunt.

Cal Ripken Jr. hit his 10th home run with two outs in the first to put the Orioles ahead. The White Sox tied it in the third when Lance Johnson tripled and scored on Guillen's boulder's choice grounder.

Sampras outserves Courier

By STEVE WILSTEIN
 AP Tennis Writer

WIMBLEDON, England — Even Princess Diana bounced on the edge of her seat, clapping wildly for Pete Sampras as he scorched the sun-baked court with aces and dived acrobatically for volleys.

Maybe she has a crush on me, Sampras joked after capturing his first Wimbledon championship Sunday 7-6 (7-3), 7-6 (8-6), 3-6, 6-3 against Jim Courier.

Sampras, branded Public Enemy No. 1 earlier in the tournament for an outburst at hostile fans after he beat a Brit, won not only the princess' applause but the crowd's respect with his power and quiet grace under pressure in the all-American final.

He also dispelled any doubts about who is No. 1 in men's tennis, winning the sport's most prestigious title, earning $450,000 and widening the points gap in the computer rankings over No. 2 Courier.

Two weeks ago, Sampras worried he might have to pull out before his first match because of an inflamed tendon in his right shoulder. He suffered pain on and off ever since, but trainers nursed him through the tournament with pills, massage, ice and all manner of high-tech treatment.

And when it came down to the final, Sampras showed no sign of weakness.

Sampras served 22 aces, with a peak speed of 123 mph, and failed only two break points the entire match, losing both in the third set against the savage baseline punting of Courier.

In seven matches, including victories over former champions Boris Becker and Andre Agassi, Sampras served 108 aces — eight more than he served when he won his only other Grand Slam title, the U.S. Open, in 1990 at the age of 19.

Equally important, Sampras averaged 97 mph on his second serves and kept one of the best returners in the game constantly on the defensive on Centre Court, where the temperature soared to 105 degrees.

"The difference was Pete served a lot bigger on his second serve," Courier said, "and I wasn't able to

Defining "fun" was easier when we were children

It becomes more difficult to define what "having fun" actually means. When we were children, it was as simple as "being outside" or "playing ball." The activities in and of themselves were enough.

But as we get older, we tend to quantify and qualify, we put conditions and limitations on activities and, no matter how successful the activity was, if those conditions or limitations weren't met, we consider the overall experience to be a bust.

So specific are these conditions that we could give them labels similar to those of mathematical equations, let's call them the Frustration Factor, the Time Quotient, the Aggravation Variable, and competitiveness constant.

Frustration Factor:
 In his book Instant Replay, Jerry Kramer relates the basis of this factor, formulated by Green Bay Packer teammate Dave Robinson, the level of frustration incurred by an unsatisfactory result is directly proportional to the amount of energy expended.

SPORTS

TONY DeSORMIER

Basically, that means that the harder you prepared or played, the worse a loss feels. It also means that if you didn't prepare or play hard, then you have no right to be upset with the result.

Time Quotient:
 A member of the softball team on which I play formulated this equation, only to label it the "Time Travel Ratio."

Because he would travel from his home in St. Petersburg to Chase Park to play softball with us on Saturday mornings, he often commented that he was operating in a negative time ratio, spending more time traveling than playing.

Last week, when we played six games in the final day of the Sanford Church League Spring Tournament, he was able to achieve a positive Time Travel Ratio.

I've expanded this to the Time Quotient, taking into consideration the amount of time getting ready for, getting to, getting back from, and recuperating from a game.

This is separate from the Frustration Factor, which takes into account the expenditure of physical energy. The Time Quotient considers travel time, dressing time, meal time, and time spent trying to get work done so you can sneak out early for a 6:30 p.m. game with a clear conscience.

Aggravation Variable:
 This is where field and weather conditions, among other factors, are worked into the equation that determines whether or not you had a good time.

If it rained or was hot and sticky, you need a truly outstanding result to balance the equation. The same goes for playing on a subpar field. On the other hand, a win over an aggravating opponent, even a cheap win, will put you well into the plus side.

Competition Constant:
 This is a self-contained factor, one that we place upon ourselves. Because it's the one portion of the equation that we control, it has the largest impact on the end result, did we have a good time?

In effect, this is our perception of our level of competitiveness, how competitive we feel we should be every time (which is what makes it a constant) we step on the field or floor, regardless of the three other factors previously discussed.

Call this the "Delusion of Grandeur" Constant.

It's the nature of most athletes to believe they've never been beat, that they somehow gave the game away or were cheated out of a win. As a result, even if we're on the plus side in the Frustration Factor, Time Quotient, and Aggravation Variable, it can all be wiped out and then some by the Competition Constant.

It was so much easier when just being outside and playing ball were enough to have fun.

RAINES GAUGE

Tim Raines is a Sanford native and Seminole High School graduate now playing for the Chicago White Sox. His stats are for the 1993 season in the first column, personal-best season totals in the second column and current career totals (including 1993 games) in the third column.

Raines didn't have a lot of hits but he produced a lot of offense this weekend against the Baltimore Orioles. Saturday he was 1-for-5, but the hit was a three-run home run as the Sox lost 9-6. Sunday, Raines was 1-for-4, but his RBI triple broke a 1-1 tie and then he scored an insurance run on a squeeze bunt as Chicago won 3-1. Raines and the White Sox will be on ESPN at 7:30 p.m. tonight against the Toronto Blue Jays.

Leaving grass clippings replenishes lawn the natural way

Summer is here and suddenly it seems that we are mowing our lawns more and more often. As you probably know all-too-well, maintaining a high quality lawn can be a lot of work. If bagging all those grass clippings isn't one of your favorite chores, you can save yourself some work by leaving the clippings on the lawn. An added bonus of "letting the clippings fall where they may" is grass clippings left on the lawn can save time and money!

University of Florida Extension specialists are now urging homeowners to stop bagging their grass clippings and start recycling valuable nutrients by leaving lawn clippings on the lawn after mowing. It's all part of a state-wide program to reduce the enormous amount of yard trash that is going into our landfills.

Grass clippings, leaves, pine needles and other yard trash account for up to 20 percent of the total municipal waste sent to the landfills each year. These recyclable materials place a heavy burden on the state's landfill system.

Each bag of grass clippings that you throw away can contain up to 1/4 pound of organic nitrogen that could be used by your lawn for fertilizer. This is the same organic nitrogen that you will otherwise need to purchase! Also, grass clippings are usually placed into non-biodegradable plastic bags, which are expensive and bad for the environment.

You will need to follow a few simple guidelines, when leaving your grass clippings on the lawn, if you want a healthy lawn. First, mow the grass when it is dry so the clippings don't clump on top of the lawn. In addition, always use a sharp mower blade. Dull blades shred the grass, leaving it looking jagged and more susceptible to disease. Check for dull mower blades by examining freshly cut leaf blades. If they are shredded or tattered and not cleanly cut, it may be time to sharpen your blade. Mower blades may need to be sharpened as often as every month, especially during the summer months when you're mowing a lot. It's a good idea to keep a spare set of blades sharp and switch them every month or so.

GARDENING

Mowing must be frequent in order to leave the grass clippings on the lawn. Generally, no more than 1/2 of the leaf surface should be cut at one time and clippings should be no longer than one inch. The recommended mow height for most St. Augustine and Bahia grasses is three inches, so mowing should be done when the grass is four inches high. Mowing your lawn lower than the recommended 3-inch height can stress your grass and make it more susceptible to diseases, insects and general decline.

Next, don't over fertilize or over water your lawn. Too much water and fertilizer causes excessive growth and can contribute to a thatch problem. It can also increase the likelihood of disease, insect and weed problems. To ensure that you are not over watering, calibrate your irrigation system so that it puts out 1 inch of water at each watering. One inch of water will wet the soil to a depth of 12 inches and encourages a deep root system that is more drought tolerant. During the rainy season use a rain gauge to determine how much Mother Nature is providing for you and supplement as needed to apply 1 inch two times per week. Fertilize no more than three times per year, spring, summer and fall using a slow release form of nitrogen.

In general, research shows that leaving your lawn clippings does not contribute to a thatch problem. Thatch does occur in situations of excessive fertilization, improper mowing practices (height and frequency), and incorrect watering.

If you do decide to let your grass clippings fall where they may, and the amount of clippings becomes excessive or clumping occurs, spread the clippings out by raking lightly or remove the clippings and use them as a mulch around trees and shrubs, or allow the clippings to dry for a day or two and mow again to redistribute them. Grass clippings also make a wonderful addition to the compost pile.

For more information about lawn care, please call or drop by the Cooperative Extension Services office located at the Ag. Center. Lawn maintenance calendars are available for most of the common turf-grasses used in our area. Remember, you may be able to save time and money and provide FREE nutrients for your lawn by using your lawn clippings instead of placing them at the curb.

Tears of laughter mistaken for grief at uncle's funeral

DEAR ABBY: After reading the letter from "Embarrassed in Boston," whose adult son and his cousin got the giggles during the funeral of a deceased relative, I had to write.

My Uncle Joe passed away at the ripe old age of 92. He had been a member of the American Legion, so at his funeral an elderly comrade stood off to the side of the casket and proceeded to blow "Taps" on a beat-up trumpet. He was pathetically out of tune, which struck me funny, so I buried my face in my hands to conceal my laughter. Other family members, thinking I was taking my uncle's death very hard, gathered around to "console" me.

ADVICE

At another funeral, while the minister delivered the eulogy, I whispered to my husband, "Doesn't the minister remind you of 'Bozo'?" The minister's head was bald in the middle with a lot of fluffy hair over each ear. It looked like someone had run a lawn mower clean up the middle of his head. My husband replied, "What an uncanny resemblance!" I discreetly laughed hysterically into several wadded up Kleenex tissues hoping others would think I was grieving. Charles and I are both in our 40s now and our parents have passed away, but we still go on these contagious laughing jags.

NOSTALGIC IN BALTIMORE

DEAR ABBY: Having read your letters about inappropriate laughter at funerals, I would like to share this:

Every time my father and sister visited me in Montana, the airline lost their luggage on the return trip to Pittsburgh. When my father died in Montana and his body was flown to Pittsburgh, I jokingly remarked, "I hope they don't lose Dad like they always lost his luggage."

How to make the most of calcium

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've read that calcium contained in milk doesn't prevent osteoporosis; it may actually contribute to it, because the body cannot utilize this type of calcium and has to neutralize it. Is milk, therefore, beneficial for osteoporosis?

DEAR READER: Although some studies have cast doubt on the value of calcium in milk, most experts believe that natural calcium (in food) is more easily absorbed into the body than are calcium supplements. Such natural sources of calcium include milk and dairy products, as well as calcium-fortified processed food.

The real problem is that no one knows ways to boost calcium absorption from any source. Only about 25 percent of dietary (and supplemental) calcium is absorbed. Post-menopausal women may absorb as little as 7 percent.

Furthermore, some nutritionists have pointed out that milk is rich in cholesterol; in order to obtain enough calcium (RDA 1,500 milligrams), a person would have to drink more than six cups a day, and this would provide too much cholesterol.

In all fairness, I should add that calcium is not absorbed if too much phosphorous is present. Milk contains less phosphorous than meats and many processed foods, so the calcium is readily available for metabolism. The way out of this dilemma, of course, is to use skimmed milk.

In answer to your question, milk is beneficial for osteoporosis. However, post-menopausal women should also use calcium supplements, such as four to six TUMS a day.

Remember, too, that weight-bearing exercise is necessary to drive calcium into bones. In the weightlessness of space, the astronauts lost large amounts of calcium from their bones. Therefore, regular exercise (such as walking and jogging) is an

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

One of the most prestigious pair events in the world is held in London each January, sponsored by The Sunday Times and now also by the Macallan Malt Whisky company. The 1993 winners were the Americans Bobby Levin and Gaylor Kasle (pronounced "castle"). This was a remarkable achievement, as they had played together only once before. It was Kasle's biggest victory. Levin won the Bermuda Bowl, the world team championship, in 1981 when only 23 years old.

In second place were two more Americans, Jeff Meckstroth and Eric Rodwell. Third were the present French World Team Olympiad champions, Hervé Moutel and Alain Levy.

Levin made a thoughtful play on today's deal from the tournament.

Kasle led the spade queen, which experts often do when holding a suit headed by the A-K-Q. It is "normal" for East to signal with the three, showing an odd number of spades. Then, knowing that South will ruff the second spade, West becomes worried about heart losers being discarded on club winners. His natural reaction is to cash the heart ace. However, as you can see, here that has fatal consequences for the defense.

Feeling confident that a heart switch wouldn't help, Levin signaled with the spade 10 at trick one, feigning a doubleton. So Kasle continued with the spade ace. He was surprised when declarer ruffed, but he was grateful later. South was able to discard only one of dummy's hearts on his clubs. Eventually, he had to lead a heart toward his king, but West had the ace and the contract went one down.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 8, 1993

Success in your partnership arrangements are strong possibilities for the year ahead. These alliances will take time to develop, so be patient, because they could eventually be very worthwhile.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your abilities to research, probe or detect are very sharp today. This is a good time to investigate situations where you feel deprived of accurate information. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An important one-to-one relationship requires tactful treatment today. In order to appease this individual, you might have to make concessions you wouldn't make for others.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your self-esteem could suffer if you do not utilize your time in productive and constructive ways today. Others might be able to coast and get away with it, but not you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) An endeavor in which you're involved with others could fare better if you took a more active leadership role. The people fronting this operation aren't as talented as you are.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You are still in an excellent cycle for being a fortunate finisher. Visualize the type of bottom line you want and work towards it with all diligence.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You could be a bit restless today mentally as well as physically. Try to find an arrangement where you can gain new knowledge or a situation where you can utilize something you recently learned.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your efforts and energies are likely to be focused on your material interests today. Your chances for personal gain look good, but your chances for having fun while doing so don't.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Assert yourself today in situations that require you to do so, but, by the same token, don't manipulate or push others around where it isn't called for.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today you may feel it is necessary to make some type of small, but significant sacrifice for someone you love. He/she might never know what you did because you won't tell.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Greater progress can be made today in areas of recent interests than with endeavors of long standing. Put the old on back burners and push the new up front.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you are properly motivated today you're capable of outstanding accomplishments, but if the urge to achieve isn't there, this could just be an ordinary day.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Try to spend time today with friends who share your philosophical beliefs. Each can be helpful to the other in elevating his/her aspirations.
