Officer blamed for shutdown

WASHINGTON — A Navy report to be released this week primarily blames an unnamed operations officer aboard the USS Vincennes for the mistaken U.S. downing of a civilian Iranian jetliner that killed 290 people, reports say.

The Washington Post reported Sunday the board's 1,000-page report, read this weekend by Adm. William Crowe Jr., chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, did not recommend any disciplinary action against any other officer involved in the incident.

The Navy board, which did not explain how the operations officer misinterpreted information presented by the Vincennes' high-tech radar and analysis gear, recommends a letter of reprimand.

Nobody wins Lotto jackpot

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's latest Lotto game ended without a grand prize winner and brisk sales pushed the current jackpot to $16 million, the second-highest for the game. Lotto Secretary Rebecca Paul said Sunday.

Buyer confidence plunges

United Press International

GAINESVILLE — The Florida Consumer Confidence Index dropped 7 percent in July from a record high the previous month amid statewide concern over the national economy, the Bureau of Economic Research said today.

"There's a perception that interest rates in general and mortgage rates specifically are going to rise in the next six months," said bureau economist Jerry Millman at the University of Florida. "And that, coupled with fears of renewed inflation, has tempered consumer confidence."

The index, compiled monthly from a survey of 500 randomly selected households across the state, dropped from its all-time high of 105.1 in June to 97.7 last month.

Only 47 percent of those questioned expect prosperity for the nation in the coming year, while 57 percent forecast economic good times in the June survey. The proportion expecting national prosperity to continue for five years slid from 50 to 41 percent.

The share of those saying they are financially better off than a year ago fell from 52 percent to 44 percent, while 46 percent — down from 54 percent the month before — expect their financial situation to improve next year.

Unease appears ready to stifle major purchases. The percentage of respondents planning to buy a house in the next six months fell by an estimated 24 percent, while 19 percent fewer Floridians said they intend to buy a car.

Of those expressing an opinion, 75 percent expect higher mortgage rates, and only 5 percent think they will fall.

Economist Dave Denslow said the declines are "partly seasonal," and Floridians remain bullish on conditions in the Sunshine State.

"Regarding the Florida economy in particular, residents expecting a good year outnumbered those expecting a bad year five to one," he said. "Moreover, 60 percent of Floridians said the economic condition of the state is better than that of the nation. Only 10 percent said it is worse."

Millman said tourism and manufacturing are among several sectors keeping the Florida economy reasonably sound.

Longwood to discuss attorney

By JANE CASSELLBERRY
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — Labor relations attorney Frank Kruppenbacher will report on the status of negotiations with City Attorney Michael Kramer at a city commission meeting tonight. A motion was made and seconded at the Aug. 1 meeting to terminate Kramer, who demanded a public hearing, which is scheduled for 7 p.m. on Aug. 22.

Kruppenbacher was hired at a special meeting on Aug. 4 to represent the city in the case.

The office of full-time city attorney was eliminated by the commission from the 1988-89 city budget and Kramer was attempting to negotiate a fee for part-time legal services, but no agreement had been reached.

Tonight's meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. following a work session at 6:30 on proposed regulations for hot dog vendors and other vendors and peddlers. City Administrator Gene DeMarie had originally prepared an ordinance banning vendors or peddlers except by special permission on occasions such as grand openings and parades.

After opposition by the hot dog vendors, the commission sent the ordinance back to staff for further study.

Also on tonight's agenda is a public hearing on Amoco Oil Company's conditional use request to locate a gasoline filling station-convenience store on State Road 434 across from the Harbour Isle subdivision. The request was continued from the Aug. 1 meeting.

Heavy rains soak Sanford

By WAYNE MIZE
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Motorists fought flooded streets for most of Sunday afternoon as heavy rainfall made many thoroughfares impassable throughout the city.

According to the city's water pollution control facility on 300 N. Poplar Ave., more than eight inches of rain fell between Saturday and Sunday at midnight, with over five inches coming in a 55-minute period.

According to a spokesman at the facility, personnel measured five inches of rain between 4:30 and 5:25 p.m. Sunday.

However, the University of Florida Agricultural Center on Celery Avenue only recorded 2.1 inches of rain during the entire weekend.

Streets began to flood early Sunday evening as heavy rain pounded the city, and motorists found the going slow and treacherous.

"We responded to numerous stalled motorists throughout the city," said Sanford Police Chief Steven Harriett. "This is a common experience when we get this much rain."

According to reports, State Road 46 east of Interstate 4 was flooded, slowing motorists traveling eastbound.

Other streets which were flooded included South Sanford Avenue between 13th and 17th Streets, 20th Street and Oak Avenue, and 13th Street and Elm Avenue, according to police.

Martinez says state will support Bush

United Press International

NEW ORLEANS — Gov. Bob Martinez predicts the Contras and the death penalty will spell a Florida victory for Republicans in November.

Martinez said Saturday Vice President George Bush's support for the rebels and for capital punishment, contrasting with Democrat Michael Dukakis's opposition, will help the GOP carry the state.

The governor also said Dukakis's use of $29 million in Massachusetts pension funds to help close a budget deficit this year will hurt the Democratic ticket among Florida retirees.

Although Florida remains nearly 60 percent Democratic by registration, the state went heavily for President Reagan in 1984 and 1988 and elected Martinez, a former Democratic mayor of Tampa, by a comfortable margin in 1986.

Martinez, one of six regional co-chairmen for Bush, told reporters at the GOP convention Dukakis has had a surge in the polls since the Democratic convention in July, but that Bush can close the gap by playing up issues important to Florida — such as the death penalty, fiscal conservatism and the pension matter.

"I don't know of a Hispanic down there in south Florida that intends to vote for Mike Dukakis," said Martinez. "As long as he maintains his stand on the Contras, he can speak Spanish until he's blue in the face and, unless he rectifies that position, it's not going to do him any good."

Martinez said "the people who

voted for Reagan were the ones who wanted conservative government" and that he defeated Democrat Steve Pajole in 1986 by attracting the same voters.

He said, "I can't see how Dukakis can gain back that vote" in conservative north and central Florida.

"When you have to dig into pension funds just to meet payroll, that's irresponsible," said Martinez. "That $29 million is going to play large in Florida because of the retirees there."

Martinez said he was troubled by some polls showing many Floridians consider Bush less conservative than Dukakis.

Wreck claims 4 Navy women

ORLANDO — A pickup truck that apparently blew a tire plowed into a compact car east of Orlando, killing four Navy women students on their way to the beach, police said. The truck, driven by Sue Ann Barber, 23, of Orlando, was headed west on State Road 50 east of the city about 11:05 a.m. Saturday when she lost control, perhaps from a blown out tire, the Florida Highway Patrol said. Barber's truck swerved into the median separating the two lanes of traffic and into the path of a small car carrying four women who had blankets and other beach gear. Officials said the four women in the car were killed. Lt. Betsy Jenkins, spokeswoman for the center, identified the women as seaman recruits Melissa L. Cheery, 21, Lisbon Falls, Maine; Laura M. Emrich, 18, Algonquin, Ill.; Dawn R. Rhoden, 20, Fritch, Texas; and Kristene L. Tackebury, 21, Erie, Colo. All were studying at the electronic technicians school at the Naval Training Center in Orlando.

'Little White House' going condo

KEY WEST — About 40 Key West children wielding plastic shovels and wearing plastic hard hats broke ground Sunday on a redevelopment project for the former Navy base and summer home of Harry Truman. "Little White House" owner Britam Singh, a Massachusetts-born developer, plans to build luxury condominiums and artist studios. Mayor Richard Heyman said he was "very pleased to see the annex started. Next year we will begin to see an increase in property taxes." He noted it had been 18 years since the Navy base was mothballed and put up for sale: "A long gestation period," he said. City building official Paul Cates said the infrastructure permits alone would cost $50,000 to $60,000. "The total project will bring in about $400,000 to $500,000 in permitting fees. Not including impact fees," Cates said.

Posner to return paintings

MIAMI BEACH — Financier Victor Posner has agreed to return 13 Norman Rockwell paintings to the trustee for bankrupt Sharon Steel Corp., but the whereabouts of a 14th painting apparently is still a mystery. A spokeswoman for Posner, a multimillionaire whose financial fortunes have sagged in recent years, Saturday said arrangements were being made for the return of the 13 paintings. "We feel that this concludes the issue," said spokeswoman Renee Mottram. Mottram declined to say anything more about the paintings, how they were located or where they had been, however. She also said there is no evidence a 14th painting was ever brought from Sharon Steel's plant in Farrell, Pa., to Miami Beach. Posner acquired the paintings in 1969 when he bought Sharon Steel, which filed for bankruptcy protection last year.

Stolen gators found in pool

FORT LAUDERDALE — Two alligators stolen over the weekend from a tourist attraction landed in homeowners' pools, while a third was still on the lam, officials say. The three gators were taken from the Jungle Queen Cruises tourist attraction in the city early Saturday by someone who knew about handling the reptiles, said George Crollus, a Broward County Sheriff's Office spokesman. "It is rather unusual," Crollus said Sunday. "It's not too often you have people with the fortitude to spirit away three alligators." Police suspect someone took the reptiles as part of a prank. Crollus said a homeowner spotted the first of the three gators swimming in a backyard pool early Saturday morning when he went out with his pet dog. A second animal was found in another swimming pool a short distance away, but the homeowner, Kenny Heath, fashioned a noose with some rope and used a pipe to restrain the gator while his wife called for help. Crollus said.

Released wife-beater stabs spouse

TALLAHASSEE — Police have arrested a man who they say attacked his wife with a butcher knife barely three hours after his release from jail when the woman dropped assault charges. Theophilus Brown was held on charges of attempted murder following the Thursday attack, the Tallahassee Democrat reported Sunday. His wife Mary was in fair condition in a local hospital. Brown attacked his wife barely three hours after his release, police spokesman Phil Kiracofe said. Five hours after his release, he returned to the Leon County jail. Brown was arrested July 30 for punching his wife, who required stitches around the eye to close the wound. When she returned home, Brown attacked her again, officials said.

From United Press International reports

Jeb Bush: Campaign bashes Dems

United Press International

NEW ORLEANS — Vice President George Bush's son told Florida Republicans Sunday his father's campaign for the White House might be labeled negative as GOP leaders keep up a drumbeat of attacks on Democrat Michael Dukakis. "You'll have a lot of people in the press tell you the Bush campaign is running a negative campaign, even though they're talking about issues," George Bush Jr. told Florida's delegation to the Republican National Convention. Bush said Republican reminders of the high unemployment and interest rates during the Carter administration might sound like the GOP is waging a negative campaign, but the party should counter that the reminders are merely "issues clarification."

"The problem we've had is that there were a lot of alligator problems in the early 1980s and late 1970s, and Ronald Reagan and George Bush solved all those alligator problems," Bush said. "Now we've got little lizards of problems." "People need to be reminded of what was like when we had big alligators biting at us ... in the 1970s, when we had inflation in double digits." "Well, the other guys aren't talking about anything," he said. "They aren't talking about issues at all." Gov. Bob Martinez told the delegates — all 82 of whom are pledged to Bush — they must give their friends the Republican view of Dukakis' record in Massachusetts, Florida, with 21 electoral votes, is second to Texas as the big prize in the South and considered a toss-up state in November. Martinez said Dukakis got "a bounce" in the national polls after the Democratic National Convention last month, but that lead has slumped from 17 points to about 10 in most surveys.

Martinez predicted the vice president would get a bigger bounce from this week's GOP convention, especially since he has kept up suspense by not naming his running mate in advance.

Martinez told Floridians that Dukakis vetoed a Massachusetts bill requiring the pledge of allegiance in public schools and has done nothing to clean up pollution-plagued Boston Harbor.

He said Dukakis raided state pension funds to cover a budget deficit and has consistently opposed the death penalty and aid to the Nicaraguan Contras — both popular causes in Florida.

Man sues police, claims stunning

United Press International

LAKE WORTH — A man arrested when he threw a half-empty beer can from the open window of a van has sued city police, claiming he was mistreated and zapped with a stun gun while in custody.

James Dowling, 37, filed his lawsuit nearly 18 months after his arrest Jan. 3, 1987, for littering. He was later handcuffed, hog-tied and subdued by a stun gun, he said.

"This isn't the kind of thing that's supposed to happen in America," Dowling told The Miami Herald on Sunday.

Lake Worth police deny mistreating Dowling, admitting they used the stun gun once when he became violent. Dowling's lawyer said his client's treatment left him in pain and with burned flesh.

The Palm Beach County city is one of six that allows police to use stun guns, small, $50 devices that shoot 45,000 volts of electricity. But a policy statement bars officers from using the guns "as a means of punishment or coercion."

Keith Kranove, Dowling's lawyer, said officers who detained his client used the guns in violation of the policy. "Mr. Dowling was handcuffed and in a holding cell when they used the stun gun on him," Kranove said. "It's one thing if you're using the device to effect an arrest. But when you're using it as punishment, just because somebody is being loud and you want them to shut up, that's totally different." Police Chief Lee Reese supports the actions of officers and denies excessive force was used. Officers said they saw Dowling throw the half-empty Budweiser can from the window of a van the night of his arrest. Dowling denies he discarded the container.

Dowling was arrested for littering, then taken to a holding cell in handcuffs where he was zapped with a stun gun, but only once, police said, when he became violent. Officers said they arrested Dowling when he refused to sign a notice promising to appear in court. Dowling said the officers asked him to sign the form once he got into the holding cell.

Kranove said the "excessive force" of police, especially using the stun gun, caused his client "excruciating pain."

State board holds first class bash

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Directors of the state Patients Compensation Fund spent nearly $18,000 on caviar, golf and chartered fishing during a four-day meeting at a Palm Beach resort.

The 15 volunteer board members and their paid staff billed the state $15,697 for their stay at The Breakers in late June, the St. Petersburg Times reported Sunday. That money came out of the fund the directors are appointed to administer, a fund that is used to repay victims of medical malpractice.

"We felt since we served very adequately with no pay that it wouldn't be unfair to have an annual meeting at very minimal cost to the state," said board vice chairman Dr. Stanley Margulies. "It's to reward members and staff for a job well done."

The often-criticized fund was created in 1975 as an attempt to deal with the state's medical malpractice problems. It set up a malpractice insurance program for doctors and hospitals, charging each a premium and then assessing each member to pay claims.

Claims have always exceeded premiums, and hospitals have been assessed an estimated $300 million to settle malpractice judgments. The fund has not had any members since the 1982-83 fiscal year; it now exists solely to settle malpractice claims filed between 1976 and 1983.

Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter, who appoints 11 of the board members, said he was unhappy with the board's use of fund money.

"I'm particularly chagrined because of discussions we had two years ago when I questioned a meeting at Marco Island," Gunter said. "I thought the message had been received at the time."

The meeting tab included $2,445 for lavish dinners at the hotel's restaurant, some complete with caviar, escargot and other delicacies; $745 for a charter boat fishing trip for two members, golf and tennis fees of $252, wine and liquor bills totaling $982; and room service orders of $1,230.

Research on Asian roach closing down

United Press International

ST. PETERSBURG — The federal government is closing down its research into the Asian cockroach, despite evidence the flying pest is expanding its foothold in Florida and may expand into other states.

The St. Petersburg Times reported Sunday that a U.S. Department of Agriculture study of the roaches is nearing its end, with no new anti-roach activities planned. USDA spokesman Ralph Bram said the research does not match up with the agency's primary function of increasing agricultural production.

That news did not sit well with entomologists who see the roach as a growing threat.

"No new work is being anticipated even though the Asian cockroach will become a much more important pest in the future," said Phillip Koehler, a University of Florida entomologist. "This is the time when something should be done. Florida isn't doing anything to keep from sharing its problem with other states."

Entomologists say millions of the Asian cockroaches are emerging from their larval stages into adulthood this month, ready to continue their assault on Florida and eventually the southeast. The roaches are already well established in the Tampa Bay area, where they apparently entered the state on a boat in the port of Tampa.

The Asian roaches look like common German roaches but have little fear of people, are attracted to lights and have infested some areas with as many as a quarter-million roaches per acre.

"You have to be careful to turn the lights off inside when you open the door, otherwise they'll just fly in," said Bert Reed, whose Brandon neighborhood is badly infested. "They're not like other roaches at all."

Asian roaches can easily be killed using common pesticides. But because they pack themselves so densely into small areas it is difficult to kill an entire infestation, and the survivors can quickly reinfest the area.

"I've had my house sprayed four times in the past year and a half, but they keep coming back," a Valrico woman told the Times. "They've taken over the neighborhood."

"They're in the kitchen, in the bathroom, everywhere. Before I get into bed at night, I have to pull back the covers to make sure there are none there. It's very disgusting."

While the roach has not yet lived up to dire predictions of a wholesale invasion made when it was first identified in Hillsborough, Pinellas and Polk counties 2 1/2 years ago, it has slowly expanded its territory. The roach apparently spread to two southern counties last year and to three more this year.

USDA entomologist Richard Brenner compared the Asian roaches' future to the history of the commonplace brown banded cockroach.

"In 1903, the brown banded cockroach was first found in Miami, and there were people who never thought it would get out of Florida," Brenner said. "Now, it's in all of the 48 states."

CASSELBERRY — A City County Investigative Bureau search of a Casselberry house reportedly turned up LSD, cocaine and less than 20 grams of marijuana. A resident of the house was arrested for possession of controlled substances when he returned to the house.

Randall Louis Roberts, 21, of 1964 Vienna Drive, was arrested at home at 11:10 a.m. Saturday. He is free on $1,000 bond to appear in court Sept. 6.

Girl shot while in house

MIDWAY — A St. Louis, Mo., girl who was sitting with her parents in the living room of her father's house about 10:30 p.m. Sunday, is believed by Seminole County sheriff's deputies to have been shot in the left leg near the knee.

Kamilah Moye was wounded and transported to Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford, where she was treated and released. Hospital workers told sheriff's deputies she appears to have a bullet embedded in her leg.

Moye and her father, Lewis Moye, of 2980 State Road 46, Midway, told sheriff's deputies they heard a loud bang outside and at the same time Moye was injured. Deputies said they could not find a point of entry of a bullet into the house.

Census workers wanted

The U.S. Census Bureau has a number of temporary jobs open during the next few weeks in Seminole, Orange and Osceola counties to help compile a master address list for use during the 1990 national census.

Temporary census workers usually work two to eight weeks and will be paid $5.50 per hour plus auto mileage. Applicants for the jobs must be 18 years old or more, a U.S. citizen, and take a test.

The work involves driving or walking to prepare a list of addresses of each dwelling unit in designated areas of the county. The collected addresses will be combined with other purchased from commercial vendors to build a nationwide automated address file which will be a key to a complete census.

The 1988 address collection in the area is part of a nationwide Census Bureau program involving 35,000 temporary workers.

Area residents interested in applying for the temporary jobs should contact Edward Mallison, Field Operations Supervisor, 720 S. Orange Blossom Trail, Orlando, FL 32805, or call 843-3149, Ext. 105; or they may contact Job Servier of Florida at 423-6530 and ask for Faye Bowen; or 322-7322 and ask for Joe Govocsek.

China plans to maintain 'very tough' grip on Tibet

United Press International

BEIJING — U.S. Ambassador Winston Lord, returning from protest-torn Tibet, said today he pressed government leaders in Lhasa on human rights concerns but expected they will remain "very tough" in suppressing anti-Chinese unrest.

Lord's six-day visit last week to the troubled Himalayan region, his first as ambassador, came after months of tension following the latest outbreak of anti-Chinese rioting in Tibet last March.

At a briefing for reporters, Lord said the highlight of the trip was a two-hour meeting with Doje Cering, the governor of Tibet, during which Lord said he "expressed strongly" U.S. concerns over human rights in Tibet.

Tibet, once a religious state, has been under Beijing's control since the 1950s. Although the region is now recognized as part of China, it has been torn by violent protests against Chinese administration since last fall.

Human rights groups have criticized China for its handling of Tibet, including harsh repression of dissent, often led by Buddhist monks loyal to the exiled spiritual leader, the dalai lama. There have also been reports of torture and mistreatment of prisoners.

Lord said he raised general human rights issues, the question of prisoners and the issue of access to Tibet for foreign journalists, diplomats and tourists. Chinese officials have sharply restricted travel to the region since last fall.

Although Tibet officials were responsive on the access and prisoner issues, Lord said the reply to the human rights concerns was in "fairly familiar terms." China has steadfastly denied such violations and accuses critics of meddling in its internal affairs.

"I think they're going to continue to be very tough on dissent," Lord said.

Lord said he was told that of 250 people arrested during the most recent rioting last March, about 25 remained in jail, including eight Buddhist monks or nuns.

He said he proposed that U.S. officials be allowed to visit jails in Tibet to assess conditions. Doje Cering said that officials would consider the request.

Lord said there appeared to be a "surface calm" in Lhasa, the Tibetan capital, but would not speculate on the level of tension in the city. He said tourist occupancy there was "way down."

Other Western diplomats who have visited Lhasa have indicated considerable tension over the possibility of further unrest.

Lord said officials assured him China would continue its efforts to conduct more progressive general policies toward the backward region, including infusions of economic aid and rebuilding Buddhist monasteries destroyed during the 1966-76 Cultural Revolution.

Bishops condemn apartheid

United Press International

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — South Africa's Roman Catholic bishops today condemned a recent spate of bombings, but warned the government of continued unrest until the "structural violence" of apartheid is abolished.

A statement issued by the Southern African Catholic Bishops' Conference followed a bomb attack Saturday that injured three people in a shopping center in the exclusive white suburb of Hyde Park in northern Johannesburg.

The government said the attack was most likely the work of the outlawed African National Congress, which has waged an underground war since 1960 to topple minority white rule.

PLO plans provisional government

United Press International

AMMAN, Jordan — The Palestine Liberation Organization plans to form a provisional government next month in the Israeli-occupied West Bank, with Jerusalem as its capital and Chairman Yasser Arafat as its head, according to a PLO document released in Egypt today.

Israel, which captured the West Bank from Jordan in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war and claims Jerusalem as its own capital, has vowed to crush any attempt to form an independent Palestinian state in the territory.

Egypt's semi-official Middle East News Agency, in a dispatch from Cairo, said today it obtained a copy of a PLO "independence document" detailing plans for the establishment of the new state.

The document said the new government would be prepared to open peace negotiations with Israel. The PLO has in the past offered peace talks only on condition Israel recognized Palestinian rights to a homeland.

"The provisional government will declare, in the name of the PLO, its readiness to establish a delegation, including personalities from inside and outside the occupied lands, to open negotiations with the aim of reaching a final settlement with Israel," the agency quoted the document as saying.

Publication of the document coincided with the arrival in Cairo today of a PLO delegation that held talks with officials in Amman on the impact of King Hussein's July 31 decision to cut financial and legal ties to the West Bank. Hussein said such ties hindered creation of a Palestinian state.

The Middle East News Agency said the PLO document calls for the "establishment of an independent Palestinian" state in the West Bank within boundaries approved by a 1947 U.N.

plan to partition what was then the British-mandate territory of Palestine into Arab and Jewish states.

"Its capital will be Jerusalem and its provisional government will have two parts, one in exile and the other on Palestinian soil," the agency quoted the document as saying.

According to the news agency, the PLO document states that Arafat will be the chief of state and Farouk Kaddoumi, chief of the PLO's political department, its foreign minister.

All members of the PLO's Executive Committee will be considered members of the government. They include George Habash, chief of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP), and Nayef Hawatme, head of the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine (DFLP), the agency said.

The proclamation, the agency said, will be made one week before the Palestine National Council, or parliament-in-exile, holds an emergency session in Algiers, Algeria, next month to consider the consequences of Hussein's move.

The council will be the parliament of the new state and the PLO's offices in foreign capitals will become diplomatic missions representing the new state, the agency quoted the document as saying.

Convention will affect everyone

Today the Republicans open their national convention in New Orleans and the Crescent City has pulled out all stops in preparing for the event. The three major networks, CNN and C-SPAN are providing varying degrees of coverage and commentary. Tens of thousands of the party faithful and followers have poured into town for the four-day extravaganza. Excitement fills New Orleans, but does it extend beyond Orleans Parish?

Attitudes of readers and viewers seem to vary as much as the television networks attitude towards coverage. NBC, CBS and ABC will concentrate more on commentary of the events while allocating about two primetime hours to the convention. CNN will televise more of the convention activities with less emphasis on commentary. C-SPAN will focus its cameras on the dais and what is said is what you get.

The networks referred to the Democratic convention as a ratings disaster as countless millions of viewers abandoned the big three for other channels. Many said they preferred to watch movies or other fare, while some just didn't want to watch and hear network commentators commentate on what viewers really wanted to see themselves. CNN and C-SPAN did not suffer in ratings.

There have been too many references to this week's convention as a "boring" time with Vice President Bush's delay in designating a preference for the vice presidential nomination as a ploy to increase excitement. Such references to viewers as slaves to networks and susceptible to ploys are demeaning to our citizens.

A bit of history was played out in Atlanta last month, and will unfold this week in New Orleans. The fact that Mr. Bush is a shoo-in for the presidential nomination is well known, therefore it is vital for voters to know more about the people surrounding the candidate and determine their roles in the projected administration.

Whoever the president, the principal workings of governance will be determined by the echelons of administration below the president. Someone sets his agenda, makes his appointments, sets the course for domestic and foreign policy. The president sets the compass but others determine the course. Many of these prospective office holders in a new administration will be speaking this week. What they say is important, if only because they will be more forthcoming than a candidate who must measure his words.

Reading about the convention and watching it this week should be a part of everyone's agenda. It's a bit of history in the making.

SABU DOES NEW ORLEANS

ARNOLD SAWISLAK

In campaigns it's the breaks of the game

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Presidential campaigns these days are planned better than most invasions of small islands, so it always is a surprise when something really spontaneous happens that could affect the outcome of politics' big show.

Vice President George Bush is planning a big surprise this week. He will announce — or someone will leak — the name of his 1988 running mate by Thursday morning. The intention is to build suspense about his choice in order to pump up interest in the Republican National Convention beginning today in New Orleans.

The theory is that without a little mystery the GOP gathering will take an even nastier bath in the television ratings than the Democratic convention last month. That show at least had a legitimate question to be answered: What does Jesse want and what will he do when he doesn't get it?

The choice may really be a surprise, but just to keep the political pundits from chewing to death a short list of potential candidates, the Bush campaign has seeded the field with a dozen or more names.

This has given some people who probably never had a chance to be selected the 15 minutes of fame that Andy Warhol said we all will enjoy or suffer in the age of hypermedia.

And it has given Bush and his staff the time and elbow room needed to thoroughly investigate the person he intends to name and prepare the big announcement.

There were some telltale signs of careful planning: a couple of other events two weeks before the convention — President Reagan's decision to let the plant closing bill, which he hated, become law without his signature, and to veto the defense appropriation, which his military advisers recommended that he sign, were smeared with political fingerprints.

When the media interpreted those two actions as political, protests from the White House were unconvincingly mild, especially when some of the staunchest Republicans jumped into print saying they were just what Bush needed.

Another happening that same week cannot be positively categorized, but there were cynics who thought Reagan's "I won't pick on an invalid" reply to a question about Democrat Michael Dukakis's medical records had the look of a political setup.

But if the Bush campaign wanted to get some mileage out of Dukakis's refusal up to that date to release his medical records, it got that; and the added plus of lingering doubt by people who believe rumors no matter what is put forward to counter them.

Finally, there was a surprise break for Bush that week that could not have been arranged by his strategists.

Judge Gerhard Gesell, who has been having an awful time getting the evidence in line for the Iran-Contra fraud trials of Oliver North, John Poindexter, Richard Secord and Albert Hakim, finally postponed North's day in court until after the election.

New York finds boondocks

BEAVER ISLAND, Mich.—So much has happened here that it is hard to decide where to begin the annual report from this quiet haven at the top of Lake Michigan.

Skipping over the usual quote of births, deaths, marriages and scandals (which often occur here in combinations unique to small islands), ignoring the archeological discovery which may (or may not) soon shake the world like another Stonehenge, forgetting for the moment the dramatic technological breakthrough that has seen the hard-bottomed benches on the Beaver Island (the ferry that connects us to the mainland) replaced by cushy, reclining airline seats salvaged, legend has it, from overaged DC-3s belonging to a CIA-subsidized Middle Eastern airline which may have once transported Oliver North and/or King Farouk...

Passing over all of this and also the phenomenal fact that the water is less frigid and the beaches are broader than they have been in years (due, I am sure, to President Reagan's wise policies or maybe to glasnost and perestroika or the greenhouse effect)...

Ignoring all such vital matters as if they were trivia, we get to the headline news of the summer of 88:

BEAVER ISLAND DISCOVERED BY NEW YORK TIMES.

True fact. The Sunday New York Times travel section, no less, recently had a front-page picture and a full page of text and photos on the attractions of Beaver Island. Nothing like this has ever happened to us, and the excitement is enormous.

What you have to understand is that people who read the Times do not believe places like Beaver Island, or even Michigan, exist. New Yorkers are like Gnomes of 1491; they know if you go west, you fall off the edge of the earth.

Years ago, when I worked for the Times, I had a piece being edited for its Sunday magazine when my vacation started. I told the editor I was leaving for Beaver Island. "Oh," he moaned, "we had another author who went to an island, and we could never reach him. We'll just hold up your piece until you get back."

Two years ago, a New York book editor, sitting with a manuscript, instructed me to phone her at 2 p.m. "New York time." No problem, I said. I'll call you at 2 o'clock. "Be sure it's 2 o'clock my time," she repeated. I told her Michigan was in the Eastern Time Zone. "How can it be?" she asked. "It's way out west."

With that history, you can imagine how thrilled we were to find ourselves on a map in the New York Times. Reprints of the piece are hanging on the wall of the post office, the tavern, the two general stores. Laminated copies, suitable for framing or sending as gifts, will soon be available. People are pleased and sort of amazed at this, and only vaguely apprehensive that hordes of Eastern sophisticates may decide this is- or could be- the next "in" place.

No one faults the accuracy of the article, but the resident skeptic on our beach believes there were significant omissions which should be dealt with in a letter to the editor of the Times. Times readers should be told, she says, that unlike the Cape or the Vineyard or Nantucket, (1) the New York Times itself is not on sale anywhere here; (2) even the summer people are almost all Midwesterners; (3) the water is not salty; and (4) there is absolutely no chance of your running into Walter Cronkite at the neighbors' cocktail party or, indeed, of running into a cocktail party.

If New Yorkers, knowing that, still want to come, which she doubts, she is prepared to welcome them.

And next year, the Beaver Island district library will be open for their—and our—reading pleasure. Through the enterprise of several island women like Jayne Lilly, Teresa Martin and Gay Werks, a town meeting was held two summers ago to demonstrate interest in having a place where youngsters and their parents could borrow books and enlarge their reading.

The township agreed to hire a part-time librarian and provide temporary space for a small collection of donated books in the abandoned Coast Guard station. Then, in a great stroke of fortune, Gary Comer, the owner of Land's End catalog business, took a liking to the island. He wanted to extend the airstrip from 3,000 to 4,000 feet so he could land his private jet. He offered $100,000 for that project and, to sweeten the deal, another $100,000 to build a library.

With all that good reading—and the wide, empty beaches and brisk, blue water, and a deck on which to sun after a swim-life will be just about perfect.

Bush can now trump that move with a "California card."

People must be awakened

Regarding the "Label yourself registered voter" editorial (Aug. 7):

Thanks for the effort to awaken the people to the importance of registering and voting, although I fear that the citizens of this so-called Republic, not a democracy, but to all intents and purposes it is a Bureaucratic Socialist Democracy, being ruled by unelected "Bureaucrats" and the Supreme Court, in essence, ever since Nixon gave us the Warren Court which legislated, not adjudicated.

This is one thing that the Reagan Administration has done is to get 47% of the Federal Judiciary staffed with conservative justices, conservative in the best sense of the word, and that brings me to the point of what is a "liberal," "moderate" and so-called "conservative." (There are but few true conservatives in the Congress, such as Jesse Helms, Orrin Hatch and a very few others.)

The difference between liberals, moderates and so-called conservatives is a matter of speed at which they push, shove, and chivy this country in to "One World" Government as set forth in State Department Publication 7277, which says, in essence, "No army, no navy, no airforce, and turn our security over to the U.N. We are but to manufacture only those arms that the U.N. Forces need or require."

Most of all I liked the ending sentence of the editorial, "And we need to make sure that we qualify for the all most important label-registered voter."

I have spent some $1800, mostly with the Herald trying to wake the citizens up to the importance of registering and voting. But, alas, I fear that they are like the citizens of Athens, who desired FREEDOM FROM RESPONSIBILITY MORE THAN THEY DESIRED FREEDOM AND IN THE END GOT NEITHER, LOSING THEIR FREEDOM NEVER TO REGAIN IT.

Thanks to a good Samaritan

The attractive, tall, stately woman approached me as I knelt in the dirt reading the classifieds outside the Lake Mary Handy Way store.

It was a downer day sitting there in the sultry Florida sun, looking for an affordable home to rent; an apartment, a mobile home, any place to take the children — somewhere to go. I was facing eviction due to my complaint of inadequate plumbing — rather nonexistent plumbing — leaking roof and loss of a 12-year family pet due to the careless ill-regard and haphazard distribution of d-Con by my landlady.

Sitting thus, my daughter beside me, her finger dejectedly drawing in the sand, the fine young woman steps up to me and says, "Well, I guess God didn't send me here for nothing, you look like you need a prayer." Whereupon she asks me the nature of my problem. Briefly, I told her. Without hesitation she was down on her knees in the dirt beside me. Bridging the gap between myself and daughter, she prayed for the children and I aloud. I shook her hand cordially and thanked her for her concern and efforts.

A few minutes later she returned, envelope in hand, and said "here's a little card I think is appropriate," handed me the envelope, and got into her car. I fumbled with the tightly sealed flap as she sped up the road. I freed a pretty card from its sheathing and a $20 bill floated to the ground. The card read, "Reach up as far as you can and God will reach down all the rest of the way." It was signed God bless you and love, Cindy.

Well, Cindy — God bless you too, and thank you. You fed the baby, child of my daughter, my grandson.

Stocks open lower

United Press International

NEW YORK — Prices opened lower today in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which fell 81.01 last week, was down 4.81 to 2032.71 shortly after the market opened.

Declines outnumbered advances 564-244 among the 1,256 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Early turnover amounted to about 6,617,200 shares.

"The discount rate hike, the prime rate hike and the federal funds rate increase all have done their work," Hildegard Zagorski, a market analyst with Prudential-Bache Securities Inc., said of last week's market.

She added that "even though we might be reasonably close to some kind of bottom, there is the potential to get smacked once more on the downside."

Zagorski agreed with other traders and analysts that the market "needs a rally in bonds. But it has to be a really good bounce to get things moving."

Dollar opens mixed; gold, silver down

United Press International

The dollar was mixed today in light trading on major foreign currency markets. The price of gold weakened.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar dropped back slightly against the Japanese yen in sluggish trading, closing off 0.10 from Friday's close of 132.95 yen.

A commercial bank dealer said some market players were concentrating on cross-transactions in which they sold dollars for yen and then yen for West German marks.

After reported remarks by German officials that Bonn wants the U.S. dollar's value to stand at 1.80-1.85, some speculators bought marks and sold the dollar, dealers said.

In Europe, the dollar opened in Frankfurt at 1.872 West German marks down from 1.8661 on Friday.

In Zurich, the opened at 1.5725 Swiss francs, unchanged from Friday's close.

All banks and markets were closed in Paris, Brussels and Milan in observance of the feast of the Assumption.

In London, the pound held at Friday's close of $1.7135. In early New York trading, the dollar was slightly higher against key foreign currencies in light trading.

Moscow meets deadline

United Press International

KABUL, Afghanistan — The Soviet Union met today's deadline to remove half its troops from Afghanistan, and heavy fighting was reported at a major town that was captured last week by rebel forces after the evacuation of Soviet forces.

"As of Aug. 14, 50 percent of the Soviet troops have been withdrawn from Afghanistan," the official Soviet news agency Tass quoted the commander-in-chief of Soviet forces in Afghanistan as saying Sunday in the dispatch monitored in Moscow.

"At present, there is now not a single troop in 25 of 31 Afghan provinces," Lt. Gen. Boris Gromov said during a 90-minute news conference in Kabul.

Gromov said Moslem guerrillas had "penetrated" and "are now controlling" the northeastern town of Kunduz, and said Afghan forces alone would be responsible for recapturing the town of 30,000.

Kunduz is one of the first major cities to have been captured by the rebels who lost control of two key towns captured earlier.

Gromov implied Kunduz was taken because local authorities were "complacent" in allowing guerrillas to infiltrate the normally tranquil town. He said the rebels had not captured any military equipment and predicted Kabul's troops would eventually recapture the town.

"There is much bloodshed going on in Kunduz," said Gromov, 45. "The situation is truly very grave, but not so serious for Kunduz to remain in rebel hands."

Gromov denied reports that aircraft based in Soviet territory had bombed sections of Kunduz, which was captured last week by the rebels in an assault that capitalized on the vacuum left by the Wednesday withdrawal of the Soviet garrison.

Soviet General Lev Serebrov said some reporters would be flown to Kunduz on Thursday.

Soviet sources have said government troops hold only the airport in the town just 40 miles from Soviet territory, but were preparing an offensive to dislodge the fighters who apparently attacked it to seize large stockpiles of military materiel.

The rebels have not mounted large offensives on any major city since the signing April 14 of a U.N.-mediated peace pact calling for the withdrawal of Moscow's 115,000 troops. Half of Soviet forces had to be withdrawn today, a deadline Gromov and Western sources said was met Sunday.

The Soviet Union, which invaded Afghanistan in 1979 to prop up an ailing communist government, began pulling out its forces on May 15 as the pact stipulated and must complete the withdrawal Feb. 15, 1989.

Soviet television said Sunday the wives and children of Soviet diplomats were evacuated from Afghanistan for their protection. The report called the situation "complex" in the capital of Kabul, where Tass said rebels Sunday shelled three districts, killing five people and wounding six.

Gromov earlier Sunday told reporters in Kabul that a Soviet column was waiting at the border in western Afghanistan to cross back into the Soviet Union.

The general also charged regular Pakistani troops had fought Kabul's forces inside Afghan territory alongside the U.S.-backed resistance, saying, "We can say that Pakistani units took part in direct combat against the Afghan army."

He elaborated that in recent months Islamabad's regular troops had staged operations near the eastern Afghan town of Spinbaldak and had attacked Khost.

Kabul and Moscow contend Islamabad is violating the April 14 Geneva accord by providing sanctuary to the rebels and allowing Pakistani territory to be used as an arms conduit.

Islamabad denies the charge, and contends the U.N. pact does not place any restrictions on the seven-group rebel alliance, which it holds are "freedom fighters."

Gromov said about 50,000 of the Kremlin's soldiers now remained in six provinces — Kabul, Bagwan, Samargan, Kapisa, Herat and Farah.

The first four provinces lie along the main Salang highway, which Soviet troops must take when they depart overland from the heavily defended capital.

"The limited contingents will not participate in combat operations during the remaining period of their time," he said. "After the withdrawal of Soviet troops, not a single military unit, not a single soldier will remain in Afghanistan."

DEATHS

MARIE JONES FRANCIS

Mrs. Marie Jones Francis, 81, of 621 E. Sixth St., Sanford, died Saturday at her residence. Born Aug. 31, 1906 in Dublin, Ga., she moved to Sanford from there in 1917 and later moved back here from Sarasota in 1942. She and her mother Corrie Jones opened a midwife service here and together they delivered more than 41,000 infants. She delivered babies in and around Sanford for 30 years until April 6, 1977 when the Seminole County Health established a policy that midwives could no longer deliver first time babies.

She said at the time, "I hadn't broken any rules or let anyone suffer. In 30 years I had not lost one first time baby. If I run into any trouble, I call the doctor or get the mother and baby to the hospital right away. I don't understand why they trampled on me this way."

She said it was the new mothers that needed her the most. She not only delivered their babies, but counseled them on how to care for themselves and their infants before and after the delivery.

"I counsel them to stand up and be women — to take pride in themselves and not rely on welfare and how to budget their money," she said.

She was a member of St. Paul Missionary Baptist Church, Sanford, and an honorary member of the Gospel Chorus. She was a member of the Royal Grand Chapter Order of the Eastern Star and the Seminole County Mental Health Board Center.

Gandhi gives Independence Day speech

United Press International

NEW DELHI, India — Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi said today on his nation's 41st anniversary of independence that India has made significant strides since 1947 but conceded more must be done to eliminate its endemic problems of poverty, unemployment and "too many people."

Millions of people celebrated Independence Day across the country but one ceremony in western Gujarat was marred by the slaying of a ruling Congress (I) Party state assemblyman, the Press Trust of India reported.

Popatlal Sorathia was shot in the head as he distributed prizes and his assailant was arrested, the Press Trust said, adding "old enmity" was given by police as the motive for the attack.

"I am ready to sacrifice everything to strengthen the unity and integrity of this country and make India a great nation," Gandhi declared in a nationally televised speech kicking off the national holiday commemorating the end of British colonial rule.

Gandhi, mixing an upbeat assessment of the future with admissions of shortcomings, spoke before more than 10,000 people from the ramparts of Old Delhi's 17th century Red Fort in a ritual begun by his grandfather and India's first prime minister, Jawaharlal Nehru.

Security was heavy, with thousands of police stationed around the fortress, in the crowd and on the streets and roofs of the surrounding area. Three air force helicopters patrolled overhead.

Gandhi, under threat from Sikh extremists demanding independence for northern Punjab state, was flanked by three security men and a bullet-proof vest was apparent under his brilliant white tunic.

But Gandhi, 44, who has escaped at least one attempt on his life since he succeeded his mother, Indira Gandhi, after her October 1984 assassination, dispensed with the bullet-proof glass screen he has used on previous occasions.

Although India last year experienced the worst drought of the century, Gandhi said there was enough food for its 800 million people and "for the first time we did not have to go to others with begging bowls." He attributed the achievement to the agricultural policies of his mother and grandfather.

Gandhi cited a settlement to insurgencies in the northeastern states of Assam, Tripura, Mizoram and West Bengal but said "while there has been improvement in Punjab," progress in ending Sikh separatist violence that has claimed more than 1,800 lives this year has "not been as much as we expected."

Gandhi said the government had "done a lot" to help the more than 270 million people living below the poverty line, but added that "still a lot has to be done."

"We have to help agriculture (and) if agriculture has to improve, then land legislation has to be made more effective," he said.

Simultaneously, industrial development must continue, he said, adding that "with improvements in these two fields" unemployment can be cut.

"Another problem that India faces is too many people," said Gandhi, acknowledging the spiraling birth rate of about 19 million new babies annually, which will bring the population to more than 1 billion by the year 2000.

"Economic development has been frittered away by the increasing population," Gandhi said, stopping short of making any new birth control initiatives.

Hispanic agents suing FBI

EL PASO, Texas — A lawyer suing the FBI on behalf of Hispanic agents who complain they are being denied promotion says the suit could take years to resolve and, even if successful, could be overturned by increasingly conservative appeals courts.

The discrimination suit was filed in January 1987 by Bernard Perez, 48, believed to be the highest-ranking Hispanic agent in the FBI, and 280 other Hispanic agents then joined the action.

The suit, which seeks $5 million damages for Perez, charges that the FBI discriminates against Hispanic agents on the basis of race, national origin and religion. Of the FBI's 9,400 agents, 404 are Hispanic and three hold top-level management positions, said Jose Silva, Perez's lawyer.

Perez, an agent since 1960, was the second in command at the El Paso office for nearly three years. Silva said he was denied the top job in the El Paso and Albuquerque offices "because he was Hispanic and in retaliation for the filing of complaints" with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

Silva said agents who have helped Perez have been demoted, harassed or been reassigned to undesirable locations or positions.

The lawyer said the suit could drag on for years and even if they win at the district level the agents could be reversed on appeals because the higher courts are increasingly conservative.

Gang violence leaves two dead

LOS ANGELES — Three separate gang shootings left two teenage boys dead, including a 13-year-old bicycling to his grandmother's house, and five men wounded during the weekend, officials said today.

A man mistaken for a gang member and wounded 10 days ago died Saturday, officials said.

Mark McCoy, 28, died at Martin Luther King Jr./Drew Medical Center, where he had been on life support since being wounded Aug. 5, sheriff's Deputy Kathryn Nielsen said.

Karl Owens, 22, a gang member in custody on attempted murder charges for the attack, will be charged with murder, Nielsen said.

McCoy was shot because he was mistaken for a gang member, Nielsen said. Owens allegedly attacked McCoy on the street, knocking him down and shooting him point-blank in the back of the head with a sawed-off shotgun, Nielsen said.

In a shooting Sunday night, a group of gang members sitting in a Compton parking lot were fired upon with an AK-47 assault rifle by a group of rival gang members.

The gang members were in a parking lot adjacent to a Shell gas station at 10 p.m. when a white Ford Escort drove up and fusillade of gunfire erupted, Deputy Van Mosley said.

Five of the men were left with bullet wounds, Mosley said.

Two of the victims were admitted to Martin Luther King Jr.-Drew Medical Center and a third was taken to Dominguez Medical Center in Long Beach, he said. They were all listed in stable condition.

Two others were treated and released at the scene. The suspects sped away and had not been caught as of early today.

One strike settled, another continues

SAN FRANCISCO — Despite a tentative contract agreement in a walkout by 1,700 health care workers, their union says they will stay off the job at eight hospitals until 2,200 striking nurses settle their dispute.

Under the direction of Mayor Art Agnos, Local 250 of the Hospital and Health Care Workers Union, AFL-CIO, reached a tentative two-year contract agreement early Saturday with Affiliated Hospitals, which represents the eight San Francisco area hospitals struck July 26. A ratification vote was scheduled for today.

However, even if the contract were ratified, the 1,700 health care workers said they would observe the nurses' picket line.

"They took the back seat and supported us during our negotiations," spokesman Bob Lewis said. He said the agreement calls for them to return to work 24 hours after the nurses ratify their contract.

Dukakis skips Kennedy clambake

CAPE COD, Mass. — Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis and his wife, Kitty, were on Cape Cod taking a weekend break from the campaign trail but they didn't show up at Sen. Edward Kennedy's annual clambake and fund-raiser at the Kennedy family compound on the Cape. The Kennedy clan turnout also was rather thin Saturday but former House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill was there, along with 350 guests who paid $250 a plate to attend.

From United Press International reports

Thousands expect miracle tonight

United Press International

LUBBOCK, Texas — Thousands of pilgrims seeking help for people handicapped in body and spirit gathered at a small Roman Catholic church for what many believe will be "miracles and healings" tonight promised by the Virgin Mary.

Church officials expected up to 20,000 people to attend prayer and healing services all day today, the annual feast of the Assumption of Mary, at St. John Neumann's church, culminating with an evening mass at an altar atop the church's office building.

It is during this mass, church members say, that the miracle will take place.

More than 60 police and members of the Texas Guard, a local volunteer group, will be on hand to keep order among the thousands of believers who poured into Lubbock over the weekend. Mayor Park McMin said, "We're kind of trying to handle it like a football game," he said.

The gathering at St. John Neumann, the smallest of Lubbock's six Roman Catholic churches, is a response to "messages" that three church members say they have received from the Virgin Mary since February.

The three parishioners said Mary told them that "your sick ... those who have lost hope ... your lame" should be at the church today. Once there, they said the Virgin promised a miracle for those who are of "pure heart and pure soul."

"My children, walk to the east. Look for a sign. Look for miracles and healings," Mary was reported to have said. "Prepare your hearts. Listen to the wind, for then may you believe."

Only three visitations by the Virgin Mary have been authenticated by the Vatican: in Guadalupe, Mexico, in 1531; in Lourdes in 1838 and in Fatima in 1917.

The feast of the Assumption of Mary was established by the Roman Catholic church in 1950.

It marks the "entrance of Mary, body and soul, into heaven."

One pilgrim, Victoria Herrera of Fort Worth who said she has heart trouble, predicted miracles of physical healing. "I can't go to Lourdes, in France, or to Fatima, in Portugal, but I can go to Lubbock to honor the blessed mother," said Herrera. "God and the Virgin are going to watch over me."

Don Trimmell, a member of St. John Neumann since it was established in 1979, said Sunday he also expects miracles of the spirit. "The real miracle ... will be spiritual miracles, and they will be poured out as freely as we can accept them."

The three who said they received spoken messages were Mike Slate, a retired Air Force officer, Mary Constanancio, a former physical therapist, and Theresa Werner, a housewife. None of the three were close friends prior to the beginning of the messages, Trimmell said.

Slate said he ignored the first spoken message, but on June 27

he wrote down the second message: "My children, go forth and bring your lame, your crippled, your souls which have no hope, for I will be merciful to them through the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ."

"I didn't volunteer myself, and I tried not to get involved from the first," Slate said. "But the Lord and the Blessed Mother just didn't give up."

Trimmell said the latest message, reported last week by Mary Constanancio, was, "My children, I am so happy. Your prayers are changing this nation. I need you and your prayers. My children, if God can entrust his only son to you, so he has entrusted this nation to you. Pray for it. Love it."

Monsignor Joseph James, pastor of the church, said he began a series of Monday night prayer services after his pilgrimage in January to Medjugorje, Yugoslavia, where young people have reported apparitions of Mary since 1981.

Heat blamed for prison riot

United Press International

Inmates angered by sweltering heat and overcrowding rioted and set fire to the Essex County House of Correction in Lawrence, Mass., injuring at least eight people, destroying part of their building and sparking a separate uprising and escape at the jail in Billerica.

Firefighters battling the three-alarm blaze at the Lawrence jail Sunday were pelted with pipes, glass and other debris by prisoners, some of whom barricaded themselves inside their cells as smoke filled the building, authorities said.

"They threw pipes, toilets, glass. Prisoners shoved wood pieces in the locks, making it very difficult for firefighters to get in," Lawrence police detective Samuel Aliano said. "I'm very surprised there haven't been any fatalities."

More than 500 police officers were called to the jail to calm the disturbances and to move about half of the 250 inmates to other facilities.

The transfers, along with stifling temperatures and already overcrowded facilities, were blamed for a subsequent uprising at the Middlesex County House of Correction in Billerica where as many as 40 inmates held off guards for two hours while three inmates escaped.

One of the escaped inmates was quickly recaptured but the two others, convicted of larceny and breaking and entering, were still at large, authorities said.

Both the 153-year-old Lawrence facility, with its 250 inmates, and the Braintree jail, with 900 inmates, were housing nearly twice as many prisoners as they were designed to hold, officials said.

Essex County Sheriff Charles Reardon said complaints about the heat, which reached into the 90s during the weekend, contributed to prisoner tension.

Park curfew sparks violence

United Press International

NEW YORK — Demonstrators angry with New York City's attempts to impose a curfew at a Manhattan park fought with police for a second straight weekend despite attempts to restore peace in the Lower East Side.

Police arrested 12 people involved in the protest early Sunday, and two police officers were injured in clashes with the demonstrators.

The arrests ended a day of peaceful demonstrations and a night of angry protest marches through the Lower East Side and East Village to denounce acts of police brutality allegedly committed during a bloody all-night riot in Tompkins Square Park Aug. 7.

In the latest demonstration, one woman was allegedly beaten by an officer using a night stick after she tossed a paper cup into the air. A man was taken away by police after he tried to push officers away from the woman.

Police, however, received "no report" of a woman being struck, said Sgt. Diane Kubler, a department spokeswoman.

The latest confrontation erupted shortly after 1 a.m. as a line of about 90 officers in riot gear locked arms to push the crowd out of the park.

"Hell no, we won't go!" chanted the crowd.

estimated by police at 400 people and by witnesses as nearly 1,000.

As many as 180 police officers kept the crowd under close watch Saturday as it set out about 11 p.m. on a march from Tompkins Square to Washington Square Park.

Carrying a banner reading, "Cops and developers out — The park belongs to the people," the marchers chanted, "Put the cops away!" and "Whose park? Our park," as they arrived in Washington Square.

On their way back to Tompkins Square, the marchers swept past Mayor Edward Koch's Washington Place apartment, shouting "Koch must go!" and "Koch, jump!"

Police identified the 12 people arrested as protest organizers from the New York City boroughs of Manhattan, Brooklyn and Queens.

"They identified a group causing most of the problems and now we have arrested them," police Capt. Thomas Fahey said.

They were charged with inciting to riot, disorderly conduct and other charges. Two of those arrested allegedly tried to break into an apartment building next to the park, police said.

The mayor and Police Commissioner Benjamin Ward had blamed last week's bloody melee on professional agitators.

Statues will get facelifts

United Press International

PITTSBURGH, Pa. — The 80-year-old bronze statues of the Four Muses atop The Carnegie museum are receiving a walnut shell facial and a blowtorch facelift as part of an ambitious restoration project.

Nora Hutton, an apprentice at art restorers Dennis & Crane of Cambridge, Mass., said experts will use blowtorches this summer and next summer to heat the four muses and return them to their original color.

But first, the statues will be treated to a sort of facial with ground walnut shells, a very mild abrasive suitable for delicate restorations, she said.

After the walnut shell treatment, a chemical solution will be applied to the muses, and then blowtorches will be used to heat the statues, Hutton said.

Gaza residents confined to homes

GAZA CITY, Israel-occupied Gaza Strip — The army clamped an indefinite curfew on the coastal Gaza Strip after the worst Palestinian rioting in four months that left at least 29 Palestinians and six Israelis wounded in the occupied territories.

Two Gaza Strip residents died Sunday from injuries they received during earlier confrontations with soldiers, Palestinian sources said. At least 236 Palestinians and three Israelis have died during the 8-month-old Palestinian uprising against Israel's 21-year occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

In the West Bank Sunday, soldiers opened fire on demonstrators in five towns and refugee camps and wounded at least seven Arabs, Palestinian sources said. Another 22 Palestinians in the Gaza Strip were wounded by army gunfire, the sources said.

Troops have been on alert for increased violence in the territories since Friday, when Moslems began preparing for the Islamic new year, 1409, which began Sunday.

Doctors say Mandela improving

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Doctors treating black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela say he is responding to treatment for a buildup of excess fluid in his left lung and that a biopsy found no signs of cancer.

A spokesman at Cape Town's Tygerberg Hospital said Mandela's condition improved Sunday after a procedure to drain the fluid around his left lung.

The 70-year-old dissident was rushed from Pollsmoor Prison to the hospital Friday night. A hospital official said Sunday that a biopsy of lung tissue showed no signs of cancer, a common cause of the fluid buildup known as pleural effusion.

"Histological examination revealed no evidence of malignancy, only a chronic inflammatory condition of the pleura," hospital administrator J.G.L. Strauss said in a brief medical bulletin.

"He is at present receiving appropriate medical treatment for this infection. Mr. Mandela is responding to treatment. He is without pain or discomfort and has shown a noticeable improvement since his admission," Strauss said.

U.N. team surveys Iran-Iraq border

MANAMA, Bahrain — An advance team of U.N. observers has begun surveying the Iran-Iraq border in preparation for an Aug. 25 cease-fire as an unofficial truce between the two nations entered its second week today.

In Tehran, Deputy Foreign Minister Mohammad Javad Larijani challenged the United States Sunday to prove its sincerity in wanting to improve ties with Iran by coupling its words with deeds.

The official Islamic Republic News Agency, IRNA, quoted Larijani as saying Iran "has no confidence in American officials' statements on resumption of Tehran-Washington ties."

But, Larijani added, "Such expressions of willingness by U.S. officials should be followed by practical steps."

"If the U.S. was serious [about] resuming ties with the Islamic Republic, its words should have been coupled with deeds," the deputy foreign minister was quoted as saying.

Instead, Larijani said, "Washington's hostile actions against Iran, including its military expedition and downing of an Iran Air passenger plane in the Persian Gulf (July 4) proves the contrary."

The advance team of U.N. observers began surveying the Iran-Iraq border Sunday, officials said.

Groups demand release of prisoners

BANGKOK, Thailand — Anti-government groups peacefully demanded today the release of political prisoners and further concessions from the government following widespread unrest and violence last week, diplomats said.

Diplomats said the demonstrators sought more political and leadership changes since the resignation last Friday of President San Lwin. They also want the release of some 3,400 prisoners thought to have been arrested during the demonstrations that ripped through the country last week.

"There have been scattered reports of peaceful gatherings and unconfirmed reports of a demonstration or two up-country," said a diplomat in Rangoon contacted by telephone from Bangkok, Thailand.

The diplomat, who asked not to be named, said there were no reports of violence. Monday's demonstrations did not disrupt the city, the diplomats said.

The government has moved carefully since San Lwin's resignation ended five days of violence that left hundreds dead and thousands wounded.

PLO considers 'provisional government'

AMMAN, Jordan — The Palestine Liberation Organization is considering setting up a "provisional government" in the Israeli-occupied West Bank despite Israeli threats to crush any such attempt, senior aides to PLO leader Yasser Arafat say.

In interviews published Sunday in Paris and Baghdad, Iraq, the officials also said the PLO is ready to recognize Israel and end hostilities against it in return for Jerusalem's recognition of a Palestinian state.

Middle East experts said the comments, which came as Jordanian and PLO officials concluded three days of talks in Amman on the future of the occupied territories, reflected a significant shift in the PLO's stance.

Laos officials smash drug factories

BANGKOK, Thailand — Communist Laos, in its first major action against narcotics, has smashed two heroin factories, arrested a senior Communist Party official and 63 other people, and seized more than 533 pounds of heroin, official Lao radio said.

U.S. officials today welcomed the crackdown, which followed a State Department report in May charging that Lao government officials were involved in narcotics production and trafficking.

The radio said 14 Laotians, including a senior Communist Party official, 20 Thais, 13 Burmese, and one Chinese involved in the case were tried and judged by the Vientiane People's Court Aug. 10.

The 34 foreigners were convicted for heroin production and illegally entering the country, the radio said. Sixteen other foreigners were arrested, but neither their nationalities or status could be established.

The 34 foreigners were to be deported for punishment by their own governments and the seized drugs were destroyed by authorities, the radio said Saturday, according to a translation made available today to United Press International.

Police break up Solidarity event

United Press International

WARSAW, Poland — Riot police broke up protesters chanting "Down with communism" and other anti-government slogans as they marched through Gdansk, where a shipyard strike eight years ago led to the Solidarity labor movement, witnesses said.

Edmund Krasowski, an activist with the now-banned labor union, said Sunday about 10 people were beaten with batons in a clash with police outside a coffee shop near the main canal of Gdansk.

"The ZOMO riot police attacked the crowd throwing chairs and tables at the crowd which they took from the coffee shop which was demolished by the troopers," Krasowski said. "Those who collapsed were beaten with batons."

The official Polish news agency PAP confirmed a group of about 200 people initiated a demonstration following "an aggressive and anti-government sermon by the Rev. Henryk Jnankowski" at the St. Brigida church in Gdansk.

Lech Walesa

Jnankowski" at the St. Brigida church in Gdansk.

The news agency said the demonstrators were "acting in an aggressive way" and hurled stones at the troopers, injuring six of them, but did not confirm witnesses' reports about the use of force by police.

"It was the biggest demonstration in Gdansk since the visit of John Paul II in the seaport in June 1987," said Joanna Wojciechowicz, a Solidarity activist in telephone interview from the city with United Press International.

Another witness said at least 20 people were detained.

The demonstration began after a mass at the church attended by about 10,000 people to mark the eighth anniversary of the beginning of a job walkout by workers at the Lenin Shipyard on Aug. 14, 1980, in the first political strike that paved the way for the formation of Solidarity.

The rise of the independent Solidarity union under Lech Walesa starting in summer 1980 gave Poland a third pillar of power, in addition to the communist government and Roman Catholic church, but martial law was declared and the union was banned in 1982.

Following the Sunday mass, an estimated crowd of 200 ballooned to about 3,000 as the demonstrators marched for about two hours chanting, "Down with communism," and "There is no freedom without Solidarity."

Witnesses said the protesters marched through the old city of Gdansk, which was filled with thousands of tourists, before they were broken up by riot police in full gear. Several clashes were reported in the old city where some of the protesters used benches, chairs and tables to build a barricade.

"Police moved on smashing everything on their way and beating people heavily," one witness said.

Jnankowski, a pro-Solidarity priest and vicar of the St. Brigida church, confirmed the violence and identified one of the beaten students as Marek Filach.

Walesa, the Solidarity founder, addressed a crowd of about 2,000 from the steps of the St. Brigida's parish house, saying his outlawed union is working for peaceful changes in the country.

Student violence escalates in Korea

United Press International

SEOUL, South Korea — Radical students trying to march to the border with North Korea confronted a wall of riot police today, turning a symbolic "reunification pilgrimage" into a melee of exploding tear-gas grenades and firebombs.

Hours after President Roh Tae-woo issued a call for direct talks with North Korean leader Kim Il-sung, about 1,000 students attempted to march off the campus of Yonsei University in western Seoul.

They were met at the university gate by 7,000 riot police who launched barrages of tear gas and rushed through the biting fog arresting some 500 student leaders, witnesses said.

The students pressed ahead with their banned march in the face of calls from all major political parties — and from opposition leader Kim Dae Jung — to postpone their attempt to meet with North Korean students until after the Summer Olympics next month.

Student leaders had arranged with North Korean student representatives to meet at the border outpost of Panmunjom, 35 miles north of Seoul to talk about reunification of the divided peninsula.

The students believe that holding the Olympics in Seoul without allowing Pyongyang to co-host the games will drive another wedge between the two nations, already split by 40 years of mistrust and militarism spawned by the Korean War.

Earlier today, Roh said in a speech marking the 43rd anniversary of Korea's liberation from Japanese rule that he wanted direct talks with his North Korean counterpart, Kim Il-sung.

Roh has said several times in the past that "summit" meetings between the North and South are the best way to solve problems.

Kim Il-sung has been the unchallenged ruler of communist North Korea since 1948.

"On the occasion of this 43rd Liberation Day, I propose to President Kim Il-sung of North Korea to meet with me for talks at the earliest feasible date to work out practical ways to bring about national integration in response to the yearning of our 60 million compatriots," Roh said.

In his speech at Independence Hall, 55 miles southeast of Seoul, Roh said the South Korean people and his government "will not forgive" anyone who tries to disturb the Seoul Summer Olympics, scheduled to begin Sept. 17.

Today's march began at midday when a group of students walked to the front gate of Yonsei University carrying a banner with the words "Let's Reunify Our Country" written in the blood of some 50 members of the "Reunification Vanguard," witnesses said.

Police moved in firing tear gas when the students reached the gate and arrested all the marchers, including student leader Kim Jung-ki.

Silms: Evert downs Sabatini

MANHATTAN BEACH, Calif. — Top seed Chris Evert rallied from a slow start to win 12 of the final 14 games Sunday and capture the $300,000 Virginia Silms of Los Angeles with a 2-6, 6-1, 6-1 victory over No. 5 Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina.

For winning her third title of the year and first since her July 30 marriage to skier Andy Mill, Evert earned $60,000 and improved her record against Sabatini to 6-1. The runnerup received $24,000.

With Evert holding double match point, the match was delayed about 20 minutes when a fan tossed a can filled with what appeared to be yellow paint on the court near Sabatini, who was about to serve.

After the spill was removed, the Argentinian netted a backhand to end the two-hour match and give Evert the 158th title of her career.

Hill wins PGA Seniors event

JAMESVILLE, N.Y. — Dave Hill fired a final round 4-under-68 Sunday for a 54-hole total of 16-under-par 200 and a 5-stroke victory in the $250,000 Syracuse Senior Golf Classic at the Lafayette Country Club.

The 51-year-old Hill earned his third victory in 1 1/2 years on the Senior PGA tour.

Bobby Nichols and Butch Baird tied for second at 205. Nichols closed with a 68 and Baird, who was within a stroke of Hill after 11 holes, shot 69.

Bob Charles, who finished with 68, and Doug Dalziel tied for fourth, another stroke back. Dalziel, the first round leader with 65, closed with a 71.

In addition to Baird, Hill received a challenge from Ben Smith, who was 5-under-par after eight holes and tied for the tournament lead. But Smith, who has not won in four years on the Senior tour, went double bogey, bogey, bogey over the next three holes to fall out of contention.

NBC: Washington tops Alaska

WICHITA, Kan. — O' Sobottka smacked two homers, including a grand slam, to lead Everett, Wash., to an 11-6 victory over Kenai, Alaska, Sunday night in the second semifinal game of the National Baseball Congress World Series.

Everett, 6-1, will take on Midlothian, Ill., 6-1, in the championship game Monday night.

In the first semifinal game, Mike Lendl hit two homers and drove in four runs to lead Midlothian past Clarinda, Iowa, 14-8, in the first semifinal game.

Sobottka went 2 for 3 Sunday night with two home runs and five RBI.

Relief pitcher Dave Wong, 4-0 during the tournament, got the victory. Starter Chris Lobaugh was taken out after going only 1 2/3 innings.

Reliever Jason Harkins, 1-1, took the loss after starter Mike Ponia went six innings.

Kenai jumped out to a 5-1 lead after two innings before Everett cut the lead to 6-4 in the sixth inning.

Trailing 6-4 in the seventh, Everett scored 7 runs to break the game open. Troy Rusk homered for Everett before Sobottka belted his grand slam.

Sung-gil wins Bantam crown

SEOUL, South Korea — South Korea's Moon Sung-gil won the World Boxing Association bantamweight title Sunday with a unanimous decision over defending champion Khaokor Galaxy of Thailand.

The fight was stopped early in the sixth round when Moon suffered a bad cut over his right eye from butting. The decision was made based on scores up to the fifth round.

Judge Medardo Villalobos of Panama scored it 49-38, Judge Taeshi Shimakawa of Japan 50-49, and judge Silvester Abainza of the Philippines 50-45, all in favor of the Korean challenger.

Galaxy was cautious in the early rounds, which benefited the more aggressive Moon.

It was the seventh straight win for Moon, 24, who started his professional boxing career a year ago. Galaxy, who won the WBA crown in March, failed in his first title defense. He now has 18 wins and one defeat.

Both fighters weighed 118 pounds.

Altamonte prepares for Series

By DEAN SMITH
Special to the Herald

The Altamonte Springs Junior League All-Stars, fresh off a win in the Southern Regionals last week, arrived in the Detroit suburb of Taylor, Mich. Sunday to begin preparation for the 1988 Junior League World Series which starts Tuesday. This will be the second trip to the World Series for an Altamonte Junior team. The 1983 team finished second.

The Junior World Series will include United States representatives from the South, North, East and West along with teams from Latin America, Europe, Canada and Far East. The draw for this year's tourney, which is single elimination, was held Monday afternoon.

The Altamonte 13 year olds, under the tutelage of Baird Lyons, has made a shambles of the competition so far as they have won 15 straight games without a defeat since tournament play began four weeks ago.

In the Sectional, State, and Southern Regional Tournaments they have out scored their opponents by a whopping 122-39 in the nine games. They are hitting .361 as a team with eight people hitting over .333, the best average is held by Mike Elliott who is hitting .519 in the nine games. But the pitching has been no less spectacular as they have a team earned run average of 2.97 with Frank Harmer's 1.47 leading the way.

A look at the statistics for the first six hitters in Altamonte's attack shows just how good this team has been. Pablo Abreu is hitting .333, with eight hits and nineteen walks; he has scored twenty runs and driven in eight. Abreu also has twelve stolen bases. Number two hitter Andrew Thompson is hitting .482, with thirteen hits and twelve walks; he has also scored twenty runs and driven in eleven. Number three hitter Harmer is hitting .440, with eleven hits, ten walks, and sixteen runs scored. The clean-up hitter is Elliott in addition to his .519 average, has fourteen hits, twelve runs scored, and twenty-four runs batted in. He also has hit three home runs. The number five hitter is Marcus Bullock, who until the Southern Regional was more known for his cannon arm behind the plate than his bat, is hitting .417, with ten hits, ten walks, and twelve runs batted in. One of his hits was a grand slam home run. The number six hitter is Scott Johnston who is hitting .346, with nine hits, eight walks, and driven in thirteen runs. Also hitting over .333 is Steve Tolbert (.417) and Mike Lyons (.333). Elliott has been nursing an injured ankle he suffered in the semi-final win over West Virginia that allowed him to only pinch-hit Friday night. It is hoped he will be 100% for the

Sluman takes PGA

United Press International

EDMOND, Okla. — Jeff Sluman joined the ranks of Jack Nicklaus and Walter Hagen while extending the streak of Jim Beene and Jodie Mudd.

Sluman posted a 5-under 66 Sunday at the Oak Tree Golf Club to beat fellow Florida State alumnus Paul Azinger by three strokes and win the 70th PGA Championship.

His name will be etched on the Wanamaker Trophy along with Nicklaus, the winner of 20 major tournaments, and Hagen, who won the PGA Championship five times in the 1920s, and every other PGA titlist.

He also extended a string begun by Beene seven weeks ago that has seen seven golfers win their first tournaments since turning pro.

Sluman is the most impressive, however, since his victory was a come-from-behind test in the year's final major tournament. He is the first pro to boast a major as his first tour victory since Jerry Pate won the 1976 U.S. Open.

"Jeff Sluman probably played one of the best final rounds in a major championship," Azinger said.

"I didn't shoot good enough to win, but he shut 65 to beat me."

Sluman eagled the par-5 8th hole and grabbed the lead for good with a birdie at No. 7. After a birdie at No. 15 pushed his round to 6-under and 12 under for the tournament, he was able to par in for the championship.

"I thought if I got to a 9 or 10 (under par), I'd have a pretty good chance, but when I looked up I was 12 under," he said.

Sluman was given $160,000 for winning the tournament while runner-up Azinger, who finished 9-under 275, earned $100,000. Tommy Nakajima had a strong 67 Sunday for a 278 total and $70,000 for third place.

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. — Ricky Rudd held off Rusty Wallace over the final four laps to win the NASCAR Budweiser at the Watkins Glen International.

Rudd, of Chesapeake, Va., and Wallace, of Charlotte, N.C., ran nose-to-tail from the last of eight caution flags — four laps from the finish of the 90-lap, 218-mile race.

The eight caution periods, for 38 laps, slowed the race and also set up a three-lap dash to the checkered flag.

Darrell Waltrip slowed at the final restart on lap 87, with transmission problems, enabling Rudd and the rest of the field to pass Waltrip's Chevrolet.

When they came into the final corner, Rudd said Wallace gave him "a pretty good lick in the back bumper."

"I was basically out of control," Rudd said.

Wallace, seeking a second consecutive triumph at the historic road course, was then forced wide by Rudd in a Buick.

Wallace, in a Pontiac, had all four wheels on the dirt giving

Sluggish Lendl tops Curren

United Press International

TORONTO — If Ivan Lendl can win the $602,500 Players International Tennis Championships on a bad day it's hard to imagine what he might do on a good one.

Lendl, the world's No. 1-ranked player, reaffirmed his status Sunday by winning his fifth Players International title with a 7-6 (12-10), 6-2 victory over Kevin Curren of Austin, Texas. According to Lendl he won while not feeling particularly sharp.

The 28-year-old Czechoslovakian, who was seeded No. 1 for the tournament picked up $119,700 while Curren pocketed $59,850.

"I didn't feel good today. I was particularly sluggish in the first set," offered Lendl. "I was paying for my Friday night match and with the heat of Saturday's match as well, I had to pay sometime."

Perhaps it was because he wasn't feeling well, or perhaps it was because of the 112 degree heat at center court, whatever the reason Lendl was in a foul mood.

The two opened play by dueling through the first set with neither able to find a break, forcing a tie-breaker.

The heated play resulted in an angry outburst from Lendl who at one point refused to return to the court until a linesperson was replaced after he vehemently disagreed with one of her calls.

Lendl halted play in the tie-breaker at 5-5 with Curren serving and went to his seat, only returning to the court after umpire Richard Ings leveled a court violation for unsportsmanlike behavior.

"You can't leave the court, how can you do that," Lendl said, denying that was his intention. "I said that I'd like her to leave the court."

"I felt that in a match like this, with a full crew, there was no reason for me to call."

Lendl went on to win the tie-breaker which both players said was the turning point in the match.

"Anytime you win a tie-breaker 12-10 you have to say you're lucky," Lendl said. "The results of that tie-breaker brought him down mentally and physically. If you win you get some energy, if you lose it brings you down it's one of those things."

"The delays in the tie-breaker didn't bother me but when they drag on it becomes disheartening but most of the time he had a legitimate beef," said Curren, who was seeded 14th. "He's not the type of guy to question a call if he doesn't have a legitimate case."

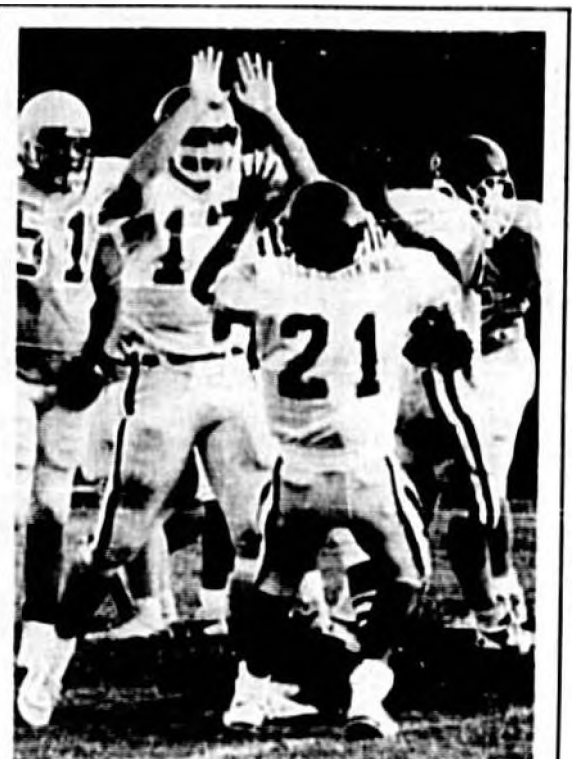

"I tried my heart out in that tie-breaker and I thought I had it. The momentum would have given me a big boost."

ITALY: CARLSSON WINS

SAINT VINCENT, Italy — Swedish clay court specialist Kent Carlsson overwhelmed Frenchman Thierry Champion, 6-0, 6-2, Sunday in the final of a $155,000 Grand Prix event to register his fourth tournament victory since returning last spring from knee surgery.

Carlsson, the top seed, repeated the first-round drubbing he inflicted on Champion last week at Kitzbuehel, Austria.

"The first set was easy, he was missing a lot," said Carlsson, ranked No. 12 in the world.

Tigers pound Red Sox, 18-6

United Press International

With two-time Cy Young Award winner Roger Clemens on the mound Sunday and fresh off Saturday's humiliation of the Detroit Tigers, the Boston Red Sox had high hopes of moving to within one game of the major league home-winning streak.

The Tigers, gaining a measure of revenge from Saturday's 16-4 pounding, ended Boston's quest for the record books in resounding fashion, with Clemens serving as the unlikely victim.

Chet Lemon and Darrell Evans each stroked three hits and drove in five runs to power the Tigers to an 18-6 pounding of the Red Sox, who lost at Fenway Park for the first time in 25 games.

Boston, which tied the Pittsburgh Pirates' 1978 mark for the second longest home streak in major-league history, last lost at Fenway June 24 against the Baltimore Orioles. The New York Giants hold the major-league mark of 26, set in 1916.

Clemens, 35-8, was pounded for eight runs on five hits in 1 1/3 innings. The outing was the shortest of his career and marked his third consecutive loss. It is the first time in his career Clemens has lost three straight starts.

Clemens dropped to 4-4 lifetime with an ERA of 5.59 against the Tigers.

"They repaid us for yesterday," said Boston Manager Joe Morgan.

Ironically, it was Clemens who was the last Red Sox pitcher to lose at home.

"It's not like he's overpowered us," said Evans. "We've hit him, but not like today."

The Tigers, who beat Clemens 11-6 in Detroit 10 days ago, scored four runs in the first inning and five in both the

Giants rip 20 hits, rout Dodgers, 15-4

United Press International

The Dodgers had beaten the Giants in the first two games of their four-game series. And that was before sending their ace, Orel Hershiser, to the mound.

Hershiser entered Sunday's contest tied for the league lead in victories with 16, and was 11-3 lifetime against San Francisco, 3-0 this season.

"It was a funny game," Giants catcher Bob Melvin said.

It was anything but funny for Hershiser, who not only had trouble pitching but catching, as well.

Los Angeles' All-Star right-hander surrendered eight runs and seven of San Francisco's season-high 20 hits, exiting after two innings in a 15-4 blowout. He committed two errors in a four-run first inning, dropping balls covering first and home plate.

"I threw the ball well in the first inning. I just couldn't pick it up," said Hershiser, 16-7. "And then I just threw the ball poorly in the second."

The Giants parlayed three hits, three errors, a stolen base, a botched rundown and a sacrifice fly into four runs in the first. Hershiser dropped a ball while covering first on a bunt attempt and later dropped a ball at the plate as San Francisco's second run scored.

"Hershiser's been very tough on us in the past," Melvin said. "But we got to him in the first and things snowballed on him in the second."

Mike Aldrete hit an RBI single in the second and Melvin delivered a three-run homer to cap the outburst, handing Hershiser his earliest exit since June 1985.

By then it was 8-2, the Dodgers having scored twice in their half of the first.

Third-place San Francisco coasted to victory, moving within 3 1/2 games of front-running Los Angeles in the West. Houston lost Sunday to stay 2 1/2 back.

"We had a meeting today and Roger (Craig) the Giants manager made us really think about it," said outfielder Brett Butler, who collected three hits and three runs. "We had to win this game. We just decided it was a 'let's-bust-out-tails' type of game. So we went out and just took out backs."

Butler drilled a two-run homer to highlight a three-run fourth and San Francisco was sitting on an 11-2 cushion.

Kelly Downs, 12-9, won for the eighth time in 10 decisions. Jeff Brantley earned his first major-league save.

Cubs 6, Cardinals 3

At Chicago. pinch hitter Darin Jackson stroked a two-run homer in the sixth inning off Ken Dayley, 2-6, turning a 3-2 deficit into a 4-3 lead. Mike Bielecki, 2-0, lasted seven innings, allowing nine hits, with Tony Pena stroking his 1,000th.

Zimmer: Goose needs another pitch

By United Press International

CHICAGO — In wake of Mets left fielder Kevin McReynolds' game-winning grand slam Thursday, Chicago Cubs Manager Don Zimmer believes a third pitch could be the answer to veteran reliever Rich "Goose" Gossage's problems.

McReynolds hit Gossage's first pitch, a waist-high fastball, into the center-field bleachers with two out in the ninth inning to give New York a 9-6 victory. The blown save was Gossage's 12th in 21 chances. Opponents are batting .303 against him.

"His fastball is still better than most fastballs, but to be effective, he has to throw to different spots," Zimmer said. "At this point, we have to talk about perfecting a third pitch, whether it be a sinker or a change-up."

St. Louis Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog agrees.

"His fastball is still there," Herzog said. "If he can come up with a third pitch, such as a split-fingered fastball, he can still be the old Goose."

The Daily Southtown Economist quoted a source close to New York as saying a trade sending Cubs right-hander Rick Sutcliffe to the Yankees is imminent in the next two weeks. In return, the Cubs would obtain infielder Randy Velarde and another player, probably a pitcher, yet to be determined.

"I have a limited no-trade (clause) that has eight teams I won't accept a trade to," Sutcliffe said. "But if (general manager) Jim Frey says that I'll better this team by being traded, then I'm gone. I'll do whatever is good for the organization."

... On Aug. 14, 1919, the Cubs and Brooklyn Dodgers played a double-header in a cumulative time of two hours and 17 minutes. That did not include the time in between games.

White Sox first baseman Greg Walker was released from a suburban hospital late Saturday after doctors readjusted the medication he had been taking.

Walker was admitted to Christ Hospital in Oak Lawn July 30 after he suffered a seizure during batting practice. He endured a second seizure at the hospital the next day.

Walker was released Aug. 10 and readmitted two days later when he suffered involuntary twitches in his neck and head requiring readjustment of the anti-inflammatory medication he had been taking, team officials said.

Doctors ruled out epilepsy as the cause of the seizures and determined he suffered cerebral vasculitis, an inflammation of the vessels in the brain, that may have been caused by a viral infection, officials said.

The White Sox said Friday they still expect Walker to rejoin the team within two weeks.

George Brett, the American League's sixth-leading batter entering Sunday, was hitless in his last seven at-bats and .2 for 19, a .105 average, on Kansas City's current homestand. Brett, who has missed only one game all season, was held out of the starting lineup Sunday.

Royals third baseman Kevin Seitzer pulled a back muscle during batting practice Sunday and was scratched from the lineup, and Willie Wilson started after missing three games because of a strained ligament in his right hamstring.

The batting order posted Sunday by Kansas City Manager John Wathan included Bill Peotla, with a .156 average, batting eighth and Larry Owen, hitting .167, in the No. 9 spot.

Minnesota pitcher and New York native Roy Smith is under no illusion his victory over the Yankees Saturday assures him a place in the majors.

"I've been on such a roller coaster such a long time I'm sure not gonna get too high over this," said Smith, who has won seven major-league games scattered between numerous trips to the minors since 1984.

Smith came up from Triple-A Portland two weeks ago and had no decision after starting Aug. 6 in Yankee Stadium. Saturday, he was given the start when Allan Anderson came down with the flu.

Smith was more than willing to fill in. "I'd catch if I have to," he joked after gaining his first triumph this season.

On a more serious note, Smith said, "I've been pitching for a job my whole career. I wasn't gonna stay here by not pitching."

Twins outfielder Dan Gladden was riding a hot streak entering Sunday's game with the Yankees. He had four 3-hit games in his previous five, and was 14 for 26 while hitting in six straight, raising his average 17 points to .281.

Gladden, who suffered a cracked finger on his right hand in a fight with teammate Steve Lombarduzzi three weeks ago, says he has returned to his aggressive style. The change came during batting practice in New York last Sunday when Gladden decided to stop choking up on the bat.

"I think it was more mental than anything — getting the fear factor out of my mind," he said. "I feel comfortable up there now."

31-year-old Rudd led the power to win by .52 seconds and pick up the winner's check of $49,625.

Bill Elliott, of Dawsonville, Ga., finished third in a Ford. He had led for 20 laps — the most for the day. Phil Parsons, of Lake Norman, N.C., took fourth in an Oldsmobile.

Rounding out the top five was Mike Alexander, of Franklin, Tenn., in a Buick and defending Winston Cup series champ Dale Earnhardt, of Mooresville, N.C., in a Chevrolet.

The close racing during the final four laps produced a multi-car accident that involved Terry Labonte, Rick Wilson, Dave Allison, Sterling Marlin, Bobby Hillin, Jr. and Ernie Ivan at the sixth turn of the seven-turn road course.

The incident started when oil leaking from Wilson's car caused Labonte to spin in front of a park of cars. No drivers were injured.

Pole-sitter Geoff Bodine led the first 10 laps of the race, but he fell from contention after a

Bodine, of Julian, N.C., returned many laps off the pace after his crew repaired the car. He was credited with finishing 19 laps off the pace.

The record eight caution flags slowed the average speed of the race to 74.088 mph. There were thirteen lead changes, which established a record for the event.

This was the first win for the team owned by drag racing champ Kenny Bernstein after three years of NASCAR Winston Cup racing and the first this year for Rudd, who joined the team last winter.

No lead in pencils, so eating not lethal

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is there any danger in eating the lead from pencils?

DEAR READER: Pencil "lead" is not lead at all. It is graphite, a form of mineralized carbon. To my knowledge, the material is not harmful when eaten, although I cannot imagine anyone wanting to do so.

stimulate hair growth when applied to the skin as a 3 percent solution. Although the long-term effects of minoxidil are unknown, many patients are gratified to take this treatment, in preference to hair transplants and other surgical methods.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Can poor eyesight be cured by exercising the appropriate eye muscles?

DEAR READER: Sometimes, poor binocular vision (seeing with both eyes in tandem) that is due to a weakness or imbalance of the extrinsic ocular muscles (those that control movement of the eyeball) often can be helped by special lenses or exercises prescribed by an eye specialist. However, most visual disturbances — such as nearsightedness, farsightedness and astigmatism — are caused by abnormalities of the eye itself, and therefore do not respond to exercises.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My hair was very thick when I was a girl. In my late teens, it began falling out until at last, in my 20s, it stabilized. It was thin, but I was able to get by without a wig. In my late 40s I began losing hair again, and now, in my 50s, I need a wig. Estrogen and progesterone have no effect and I find doctors uninterested and uninformed about female baldness. Is this common?

DEAR READER: Female baldness is, unfortunately, common. Doctors' apparent lack of interest is probably due more to frustration in treatment than to any other factor. The cause of most baldness in both men and women is poorly understood. The primary diagnostic dilemma is to differentiate inherited balding (alopecia) from secondary baldness caused by the scarring seen in lupus, scleroderma and other skin diseases.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

After declarer won the opening lead with his jack of hearts, he looked to diamonds to bring in three no-trump. If he were to assume best defense by West, he should lead the deuce of diamonds at the second trick. That would make nine tricks easily. Win the ace of diamonds, play back to the 10, and even if East ducks the king of diamonds, declarer can get back to dummy with a spade to play the jack or nine of diamonds.

Unfortunately declarer led the diamond 10. Of course West played the queen. When the ace and then the jack were played from dummy, East won the king and returned a heart. With only two diamond tricks now available, declarer had tough choices for his ninth trick.

Defender West had thrown a club on the second diamond.

South won the heart ace, went to dummy with a spade and cashed the nine of diamonds. Declarer discarded a club and West threw another club. South could now simply take a club finesse: if it worked, that would make the contract. But wasn't West likely to hold the club king? So declarer cashed the king and ace of spades. Believing that West was now exhausted of spades, he threw West on lead with the 10 of hearts. Poor West could take his three heart tricks, but then he had to lead away from the K-J of clubs to give South his three-no-trump contract.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books (C)1988, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

HOROSCOPE

What the day will bring...

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
August 16, 1988

A number of important new interests will be developed in the year ahead. They will have a favorable effect upon your outlook, social life and material circumstances.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Ribbing or kidding pals may seem innocuous to you today, but be very careful about who you put on the griddle. One of your friends might take you seriously. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In financial matters you are usually rather disciplined, but today you might permit someone less prudent than yourself influence your thinking.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In decision could lead to your own undoing today. There is a chance you may postpone a matter for such a long time that you will have to make a snap judgment that might not work out too well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Instead of dealing with things as they are today, there is a possibility you may give too much credence to old resentments, creating difficulties with those with whom you are involved.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A person you can usually tolerate, or at least cope with, might put your patience to the test today and prove to be too much to handle. Try not to overreact.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today if you get involved in a competitive development, don't let your guard down. If you relax or are indifferent, the opposition could prevail.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Subdue inclinations today to contradict others just for the sake of debate. This tactic could trigger a rather foolish, heated exchange.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today take extra care in commercial involvements. You might have to deal with a person who is far shrewder than believed.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Do not be so mindful of personal interests today that you fail to recognize the needs and wants of associates. Your alliances are fragile and could easily be broken.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You realize you've been putting off certain responsibilities and this has not gone unnoticed by another. You'd better start correcting things before you are put on the spot.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's best, for your own sake, not to yield to peer pressure today. Giving in against your better judgment could lead to regrets later.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) That little green-eyed monster might give you a hard time today when you compare your present status against people with whom you are involved. Tune him out.

Salvation Army reunites niece, aunt

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to thank you for an article you printed in The Cleveland Plain Dealer in September 1987, telling your readers that the Salvation Army could help them find long-lost relatives.

I immediately wrote, asking if they could locate my niece whom I had not seen since she was 13 weeks old. Stella, who was named for me, was the only child of my brother, Harry Selavko, who was killed in World War II.

The Salvation Army sent me a form requesting specific information to help them in the search. I filled it out and mailed it promptly.

I heard nothing for 10 months. Then out of the blue, I received a telephone call from a woman in Austin, Texas. She said, "Hello, Stella? This is Stella." I nearly fainted! The Salvation Army had found my niece. She is now 45 years old, and the mother of three!

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Stella said she was thrilled to know that someone in her father's family had taken the trouble to look for her, because she had always felt that her father's family didn't care about her.

Abby, it's a long story, but while my brother was overseas, his wife fell in love with another man, so she wrote Harry a "Dear John" letter, asking for a divorce. However, the divorce never materialized because Harry was killed before he could answer her letter. His daughter, Stella, who was 14 months old at the time, never knew her biological father or any member of his family.

I am especially grateful because I am 66 years old, and have survived two cancer operations. My prognosis is good, but through it all, I kept praying that I would live long enough to find my niece so I could tell her about her father and his family.

I hope and pray that in the future we can meet in person. We have a lot of catching up to do. Thank you, Abby, for all the good you do. May God bless you.

STELLA GURKOVICH, CLEVELAND

DEAR STELLA: Don't thank me—that's what I'm here for. Thank you for sharing your story with me, and may God bless you, too.

Republican National Convention under way in New Orleans

United Press International

NEW ORLEANS — The opening today of the Republican National Convention found delegates eagerly awaiting a speech by President Reagan, the last hurrah of the old warrior who hopes to inject some fire into George Bush's campaign.

Tonight's speech will be the first highlight of the four-day convention that will formally nominate Vice President Bush to succeed Reagan. The gathering was to be called to order in the Superdome by Republican National Committee Chairman Frank Fahrenkopf at 11 a.m. EDT.

The Republicans will have two sessions a day — a morning event to clear away chores such as approval of rules and credentials and a prime-time night event for the key speakers and the nominating process.

The 64-year-old Bush will arrive in New Orleans Tuesday, remaining until then in Washington to work on the acceptance speech he will give Thursday night and keeping his choice for a running mate secret.

Campaign aides said Bush would not reveal his decision until early Thursday when he speaks to the Texas delegation, only hours before he and the vice presidential candidate accept their nominations.

Speculation about the No. 2 spot has focused on a half-dozen candidates, with the latest poll favoring Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas, Rep. Jack Kemp of New York and former White House chief of staff Howard Baker.

"I haven't the foggiest idea what George Bush is going to do," Dole shrugged during a reception in New Orleans Sunday night.

Former Secretary of State Alexander Haig, who like Dole and Kemp challenged Bush for the GOP nomination, said he would like to see Dole chosen because "he brings the most to the ticket — and we need the most we can get."

Party leaders are hoping Reagan and the convention can inject some of the necessary fire into Bush's campaign, which consistently has been trailing Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis in surveys nationwide.

Reagan's speech to his party's 34th national convocation tonight will be his swan song — but he arrived, according to one aide, with "the old campaign juices flowing" and immediately tipped into the Democrats on Bush's behalf.

In a biting and rousing speech to thousands of cheering GOP delegates and party loyalists, the 77-year-old president demonstrated clearly Sunday that they can count on him still as a powerful weapon in the 1988 campaign.

The question remains whether the popular two-term leader, in his nationally televised speech set for 10:35 p.m. EDT, can transfer the old "Reagan magic" to his loyal vice president.

Reagan, accompanied by his wife, Nancy, beamed as the welcoming crowd in the city's convention center Sunday waved Bush banners and shouted "Four More Years," applauding virtually his every line.

"My fellow Republicans," he said, "America needs the strength, vision and true grit of George Bush. What a great moment we have before us. And, oh, how future generations will dishonor us if now, in a moment of sudden folly, we throw it all away."

Reagan reeled off stinging one-liners at the Democrats while extolling the virtues of Bush, including his vaunted resume — Yale University baseball team captain, World War II pilot, Texas oil wildcatter, former congressman, former U.N. ambassador, former CIA director and incumbent vice president.

The man "with that resume" must be elected this fall, Reagan said. The crowd, some with signs promoting "Reagan for VP '88," responded by chanting, "Bush! Bush! Bush!" Reagan smiled and agreed, "That's his name."

Firing up the crowd, the president said, "Remember this: This isn't a campaign. It's a crusade, a crusade for America's future. And this too: We aren't just good Republican managers, we are the keepers of the flame, the protectors of the dream."

Ripping into the Democrats, he continued, "They can try and adopt our words, but as long as we Republicans get out there and give the American people the music, there isn't a chance they'll get away with it."

He called the Democratic platform "one of the most artful dodges in American political history. It was an outright refusal for the liberal leadership of the other party to level with the American people, to deal with the issues."

The GOP's first job, he told the rally, is "to get our message to the American people to prove to the liberal leadership of the other party, starting here, starting now, your attempt to hide your stands on the issues isn't going to work. The masquerade is over."

"It's time to talk issues — to say the policies of our opposition and the congressional leadership of his party are liberal, liberal, liberal," Reagan declared.

Aboard Air Force One on the flight to New Orleans from Washington, D.C., White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the president was "in very high spirits — the old campaign juices are flowing."

Earlier Sunday, new Bush campaign chairman James Baker indicated Bush had not yet reached a decision on a running mate, and it was learned that at a meeting Friday six names were discussed by Bush and his top advisers.

The six were Dole, Kemp, Dole's wife, Elizabeth, the former transportation secretary; Sen. Dan Quayle of Indiana; Assistant Senate Republican leader Alan Simpson of Wyoming; and Sen. Pete Domenici of New Mexico.

A telephone survey of 508 Americans conducted Friday and Saturday for the local newspaper, The Times-Peayune, and published Sunday showed Dole favored by 29 percent, followed by Howard Baker at 18 percent, Kemp at 10 percent and former U.N. Ambassador Jeanne Kirkpatrick, 7 percent.

Thirty-six percent favored someone else or voiced no opinion.

Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., leading a coalition demanding a conservative on the ticket, said Bush must look to the right or "we're in big, big trouble."

He said conservatives would be pleased with Quayle, Kemp, Sen. William Armstrong of Colorado or former Education Secretary William Bennett. He also rejected Simpson and said his allies do not see where Dole "brings any particular strength to the ticket."

Reagan and George Bush shared the same podium at the 1984 convention.

Reagan says America needs the 'true grit' of George Bush

United Press International

NEW ORLEANS — An enthusiastic President Reagan, who tonight delivers his political swan song at the Republican National Convention, set the stage with jabs at the Democrats and a salute to the "true grit" of George Bush.

Warming up for this evening's address that will cap the first day of the four-day convention, Reagan wasted no time in attacking the opposition and hailing his loyal vice president, making it clear he does not intend to bid his own tent and flag away.

Rhetorical heights of scorn for the Democrats resounded as he spoke to a rousing Mardi Gras-style welcome rally Sunday night, complete with jazz bands and balloons in red, white and blue.

"The choice this year is between the policies of liberalism and the policies of mainstream America," Reagan declared.

He accused Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis, without naming the Massachusetts governor, of a "stealth candidacy" that tries to conceal liberal policies and leadership. And he charged that the broad brushed platform adopted at the rival national convention last month in Atlanta amounts to "one of the most artful dodges in American political history."

Reagan received cheers and chants from the enthusiastic crowd at the New Orleans Convention Center. The reception is expected to be even louder this evening a dozen blocks away at the Superdome, where this week's political extravaganza will unfold.

Tonight's speech will follow a documentary on Reagan's life and a personal introduction from his wife, Nancy, who also was accorded a special tribute.

En route to New Orleans from Washington, D.C., White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Reagan was in "high spirits" and had a big hand in his own valedictory convention speech along with his favorite speechwriter, Kenneth R. Kuching.

Fitzwater said the speech would focus on successes of Reagan's two terms while offering "lots of praise for George Bush — and lots of reminiscing."

Sunday Reagan mentioned Bush several times, extolling the vice president's long resume of public service and describing him "as a man who has handled every tough issue from deregulation to drugs to terrorism."

"My fellow Republicans, America needs the strength, the vision and the true grit of George Bush," the president proclaimed.

Reagan's pollster, Richard Wirthlin, told reporters Bush is closing the gap that shows him behind Dukakis in public opinion surveys and is now about 12 points back with more gains expected as the convention progresses.

Still, from the sea of signs at Reagan's welcome — some of them read "Reagan for VP in '88" — it is clear the president remains his party's favorite.
