The Day The Siege Ended In The Nation's Capital

These were some of the scenes early today after a band of 12 Hanafi Moslem gunmen ended a two-day reign of terror in the nation's capitol. After they surrendered peacefully and freed their 138 hostages, their leader, Khalifa Hamaas Abdul Khaalis, was released without

Word of freedom was brought to the B'nai B'rith building by a special police force. "They came in, and we were all lying down tied up," said Sidney Closter, one of the freed captives. "Everybody was lying down and they told us to be quiet

"The voice was different," Closter recalled. "We knew they were no longer the Moslems . Afterwards, we congratulated each other and, as Jews, we all said a traditional prayer." At the District of Columbia city hall, where the only death of the siege occurred, word of freedom came by telephone. Two gunmen received a call about 1 a.m. EST, said Alan Winter, one of eight hostage held there.

City Hall Bid Award Due Monday

> By MARK WEINBERG Herald Staff Writer

The Sanford City Commission Monday night will award the bid to build a new city hall. Architects from Watson and Co., the Orlando firm which prepared building plans, will recommend a construction company from among the eight bidders on the project.

City Manager W.E. Knowles opened the bids Thursday. All bidders were from Central Florida, Knowles said. The bids ranged from a low of $1,406,000 by Williams

Development Co. of Orlando to a high of $1,497,669 by Orlandobased Rogers Engineering and Construction Co. All bids were less than the $1.8 million granted the city in January by the federal Economic Development Administration

(EDA) to build a new city hall. than April 5. Monday night's Sanford City Commission meeting will also include public hearings on City Manager W.E. Knowles' proposals to spend $119,392 in federal anti-recession funds this fiscal year and $1 million in federal revenue sharing funds duringthis and the next two fiscal years. Anti-recession funds are intended to stimulate local economics and may only be spent on personnel. Knowles' plan includes a "one time pay plan adjustment" of up to $256.13 for city employes. This would account for $67,147 of the anti-recession funds. The city's 242 employes with over 12 months of service would receive the full $256.13. Employes with less than a year's service would receive amounts proportional to the number of months with the city. Under the plan, the five employes with 11 months' service would get $234.81, and the 11 employes with a month's service would receive an adjustment of $21.26. "Our pay plan is low and our cost-of-living increases have not kept pace with the actual cost of living," Knowles said in a memorandum to city commissioners. Knowles' plan also includes spending anti-recession funds for city employes in the finance office and in the parks and recreation, fire and police departments. The city manager's three-year revenue sharing plan gives top priority to solid waste and public safety, including sidewalks, in accordance with instructions by the city commission. A public hearing last Monday on Knowles' revenue sharing priorities drew only two members of the public. The first item on Knowles' list is $372,000 for "acquisition,

NATION IN BRIEF Carter's Mill Town Hostess

Sparks Criticism From Rival

CLINTON, Mass. (AP) - Eva Hester's neighbors have given her 100-year-old frame house a spring cleaning and want to make homemade Irish bread and spaghetti and meatballs for Jimmy Carter's supper. But loyal Democrat Hester may be out as presidential hostess because of a political tempest over where Carter will spend the night in this mill town during his first "meetthe-people" visit March 16 and 17. A political rival said Miss Hester, 56, is not the "regular, everyday, down-to-earth person" Carter wants to meet because she's too involved in politics.

going to be released. And they (the gunmen) said yes," Winter said.

He said the gunmen required their captives to remain bound until the release. There was little to talk about between the gunmen and their hostages. But after freedom came, the hostages said the terrorists hinted of possible harm if things did not go smoothly Winter said the gunmen noted news reports of the fear they inspired in the nation's city hall. Doctors said most of the freed hostages appeared in good condition. Many walked of their buses to find their relatives, but a few leaned heavily on doctors as they walked toward the hospital. Inside a hospital room, one man writhed in pain on a table. Another had a large gash over his left eye.

Doctors examined all hostages, screening them for chronic illnesses. During the seige, the terrorists released four men with chest pains. But one woman wearing a leg cast was kept to the end. One doctor said he had received scattered reports of violence.

"Most people are safe, healthy and happy. There are only a few major cases." the doctor said

The release of Khalifa Hamaas Abdul Khaalis was part of an agreement that ended the confrontation, during which he repeatedly threatened to cut off the heads of his hostages if his demands for revenge against Black Muslim leaders were not met. Abdul Khaalis and his 11 followers, who held the hostages in three buildings, were charged with kidnaping while armed Superior Court Chief Judge Harold Greene set the following conditions for Abdul Khaalis' release: He may not keep or possess firearms; he must remain in Washington and he was barred from discussing the case before trial. "The court is mindful of the events in this city of the last three days," said the judge.

MEW YORK (AF) -- Potential let rorists are all around us, the isolated groups or individuals who take violent action for the sake of a brief moment in the bright glare of public attention

That is the picture that emerged Thursday from interviews with policemen who deal with terrorists, psychiatrists who study them and government experts who watch the terrorist trend in growing dismay. "What really is going on in depth right now is a broad fringe group has learned that they can bring their social discontent to maximum public attention instantaneously," said Dallas psychiatrist Dr. David Hubbard. "For a moment their name and face can be seen right along with the President's on the evening news. The chance for one man to lift himself up out of 220 million citizens is a powerful and explosive force," said Hubbard, who began his study of terrorism with skyjackers during the early 1970s. Those interviewed agreed that media coverage plays a key role in terrorist acts such as the hostage drama in Washington, D.C. It provides a spotlight the participants would not otherwise have.

Authorities divide terrorist situations into three categories: Political or ideological terrorists; criminals who take hostages, such as in a bank robbery gone wrong: and psychotics, usually suffering from a severe lack of self esteem, who seek publicity

Dr. Frederick Hacker, a Beverly Hills, Calif., psychiatrist, sums up the three categories as "Crusaders, Criminals, Crazies" in a recent book by that name on terror and terrorism.

"Those in Washington belong to the crusading category, which doesn't say that they're not crazy," he said in a telephone interview.

"The whole point is that this is not senseless violence. Unfortunately it's a focused violence that in the terms of the terrorist is meeting with very great success," he said. "How else can you get that type of interest and publicity?

"That's why I call terrorism a mushrooming growth industry with a lot of glamour stock and have predicted, authorities.' Judge Greene said he would release Abdul Khaalis on the recommendation of U.S. Atty Earl Silbert. He added that he would reassess the situation if there is a grand jury indictment. Greene asked the terrorist leader if he understood the conditions of his release. "Yes, I do." Abdul Khaalis replied in a barely audible voice. The hostages were released unharmed by the Hanafi gunman following a three-hour negotiating session with police officials and ambassadors from three Islamic nations who read the gunmen poetry and passages from the Koran.

The Egyptian ambassador said he and his diplomatic colleagues set the stage for the surrender by reading from the Koran "songs of compassion, forgiveness, understanding, the things our lord orders us to do."

The 12 heavily armed terrorists struck at midday Wednesday and occupied three buildings, including city hall.

The hostages, captive for 38 hours, were taken by bus to George Washington University Hospital where many were reunited with their relatives.

One young woman held hostage in the B'nai B'rith building where Abdul Khaalis made his headquarters told how she and other captives were ordered to lie in neat rows on their stomachs and touch the toes of the person in front. "I thought we were gonna be executed," said the woman, who asked not to be identified. "Waiting was agony." As their ordeal dragged on, she said their captors grew more sympathetic.

"They were not kind," she said. "But they were sympathetic to everyone's needs

Bernard Simon, spokesman for B'nai B'rith, said that at one point, one man was picked out from the hostages, bound hand and foot, and was told he would be the first to be beheaded. He said the man was not harmed. "They alternately threatened us and were kind to us," he said.

Crusaders, Criminals, Crazies' All Around Us long with many other people, that we are going into a period of escalated terrorism." said Hacker. "The sad thing is that we are almost totally unprepared to meet the challenge," said Hacker, who urges creation of skilled negotiating teams with experts from various disciplines including psychiatry, anthropology and linguistics.

Hostage negotiating teams exist in many cities. Their primary members usually are police officers. Their aim is to establish contact and then try to wait until the terrorist is ready to give up. Several experts said that one difficulty encountered in such a situation occurs when reporters try to contact the gunman or his hostages. "One of the things on the authorities' side is the isolation and loneliness this person feels as the hours pass," explained Brooks McClure, international security adviser for the U.S. Information Agency.

Mix together an eighth grade dropout joining the Navy to see the world, 30-years of experience, and a lot of determination and you may come up with Altamonte Springs' new administrative coordinator, Robert Elmouist.

The Goldenrod man joined the city's staff eight days ago and is rapidly gathering together documents, data and other information to watchdog and coordinate Altamonte Springs' federal grants for community projects, specifically for the $1.25-million public safety complex to house the police and fire departments.

He quit his formal education after the eighth grade, enlisted in the Navy in his late teens, served during both the Vietnam and Korean Conflicts. At the same time he was wurking on high school courses until he was able to pass his high school equivalency tests and gain his high school diploma.

TALLAHASSEE (AP) - A random sampling of people who received emergency food stamps as a result of severe winter weather shows nearly half were not eligible for the program, Auditor General Ernest Ellison said today. He said 81, or 48.5 per cent, of the 167 cases sampled by the auditors "did not meet the criteria for the emergency food stamps procedures." "Those cases that were determined not to meet the established criteria for eligibility are currently being discussed with the respective state attorneys to determine if prosecutions for fraud would be feasible," Ellison said.

The extent of fraud in the program that was set up to aid farm workers and others who lost their jobs because of severe frosts in January has been hotly contested.

Employment Security Director Andrew McMullian has disputed charges of widespread fraud. He called for prosecution of two Fort Myers News-Press reporters who obtained stamps under false pretenses to demonstrate how easy it was to do so

Environment Zeal A Bit Irrational

Jack B. Weinstein, a federal district judge in Brooklyn, decided recently that there hasn't been enough environmental paperwork - only 4,043 pages - on the sale of federal oil and gas leases off New Jersey last August. So he voided the $1.1 billion deal

A few days before, Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, an Idaho invironmentalist, canceled the sale of oil and gas leases in the lower Cook Inlet of Alaska. He plans an environmental and geological "review" of this and five other lease sales scheduled by the previous administration.

If we go back a little further, there is the injunction granted against completion of a $116 million TVA hydroelectric project on the Little Tennessee River by a federal judge in Cincinnati on grounds that it threatened a little fish called the Tennessee snail darter.

And before that there was the $2 billion Seabrook nuclear power project in New Hampshire, first approved by the government and then held up by an EPA man in Boston over some implied threat to clam larvae, and still pending in Washington.

Then there was the proposed $700 million Dickey-Lincoln hydroelectric project on Maine's Upper St. John River, stalled by a controversy over environmentalist claims that it would threaten 30 specimens of a plant called the Furbish lousewort. And before that, Appalachian Power's proposed New River hydroelectric project in Virginia and North Carolina was scotched when the U.S. declared the river a "wilderness" area.

Then there are those oil shale projects in Utah and Colorado. They may not have panned out economically, but it will be sometime before we know for sure, because they too are stalled on environmental grounds. Finally, there was that famous Kaiparowits coal-fired electric plant in Utah, scrapped last year by the utilities that had proposed to build it. During the 13 years the project was being considered, estimated costs increased sevenfold to a prohibitive $3.5 billion and the utilities spent $5 million on paper work alone. In that case, it was the black-footed ferret, the kangaroo rat and several other species in the vicinity of the project that supposedly would have been threatened.

The ideas that man should never again disturb the environment for his economic ends, that after eons, evolution shall end and even the most insignificant species shall never again vanish, that nothing shall go forward until the most remote danger to the environment is resolved through an endless judicial process, are responsible for the billions in economic losses represented in the above projects. It may be time to ask if that is truly a rational way to address the future.

It is certainly time to ask whether anyone can honestly believe that the energy shortages now besetting the nation are the result of a lack of natural resources. And time to ask whether the heroes of the environmentalist movement - the men and women who blithely damage the future prospects for millions of American workers and their families on dubious grounds - are as beroic as their admirers think. - The Wall Street Journal

Budget Challenge

The Senate has reaffirmed its dedication to maintaining a congressional voice in budget planning with its third revision in fiscal 1977 revenue and spending figures. The $17.3 billion adjustment involving federal tax reductions combined with direct increases in spending outlays embraces the economic stimulus program proposed by President Carter. But Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, who chairs the Senate Budget Committee, warned that the congressional budget process now in its third year will operate independent of the administration. The Maine Democrat conceded that "we will be watched by those who may be tempted cynically to believe that with both the White House and Congress controlled by the same party, the . .

process will tend to become a rubber stamp." He insisted, however, that the system worked with a president and congressional majority of different parties and will continue to work "to serve the best interests of the coun-

DON OAKLEY CIA Pledge A Lesson For Carter

Daniel P. Moynihan, former ambassador to the U.N. and now Democratic senator from New York, made a perceptive capsule commentary the other day.

Asked if President Carter's defense of the Central Intelligence Agency in the matter of payments to foreign heads of states meant that he had forgotten his campaign promise to curb secrecy in government, Moynihan replied, "No.

He's just learned that it's his CIA." In other words, the view from the oval office is not the same as the view from the campaign stump. There is a world of difference between being a candidate for president and actually being president, between offering solutions and programs from outside the White House and actually sitting behind the desk where the buck

Moynihan might well have said, "He's just learned that it's his baby" - meaning the government as a whole.

Call it "the graying of the president." As another example of good intentions grounded by reality, consider Mr. Carter's complaint that his cabinet and staff are burying him in paperwork. According to his deputy press secretary, the president told a cabinet meeting that in one week he received 125 memos and additional national security papers totaling 800 pages, all of which he was supposed to study and digest in a day and a half.

So vast and complex has the government become that no one man can possibly com- JOHN CUNNIFF prehend it all, much less preside over its operations in every detail. Even lesser officials whose areas of responsibility are far smaller than those of the president are overwhelmed.

Mr. Carter has, in fact, revoked an order requiring all cabinet officers to personally read each new regulation issued by their departments - after having achieved his objective - to impress upon them the sheer volume and complexity of their departments' activities. What is true of the president and the executive branch is equally true of the Amur Concern Aired week this column published information regarding stocking of the controversial weed-eating white amur fish. Since that time, the Seminole County Commission has recomnended stocking of three Seminole County Lakes with this fish. I don't wish to turn this into an editorial column, but there are certain conditions and facts that must be made available as I'm personally convinced that we must let government officials know that we are indeed concerned. Let us leave the theoretical and look at reality.

Over the last three to four years many people have observed a the spawn insuring a full hatch. fish known as the tilapia or nile perch that has invaded the St. Johns River and Lake Monroe in particular. Where they came from is a mystery, but the fact is they are here and seemingly in abundance. Information regarding this fish is difficult to obtain as it is an exotic species from Africa.

Available research indicates alarming possibilities. Nile perch are very prolific and aggressive in the sense that they tend to overrun an area that has suitable habitat for their needs.

Game and Fish biologists are very concerned about the fish as it spawns during the same period as our bass. It is not certain whether they actually take over bass spawning beds or merely displace them by being there first. I personally have observe areas where bass were spawning and e next week Tilapia were lying on the same bed. Another aspect is the fact that they are what is known as a mouth breeding fish. That is, after the female lays her eggs and them in her mouth. This eliminates any other fish from feeding on

Chuck Tanner Remembers Allen BRADENTON (AP) - Chuck Tanner's eyes light up like an happy on the Los Angeles exploding scoreboard when he starts talking about Dick Allen, Dodgers, but the sun refused to baseball's unreconstructed rebel.

"What a tremendous talent," said the new manager of the took a two-hour bus ride from Pittsburgh Pirates, recalling the three years he had the indi- Vero Beach, Fla., to Winter vidualistic star under his wing with the Chicago White Sox. Babe Ruth maybe, Williams, DiMaggio or Mantle. Not many. It also was rained out. "I got goose bumps just watching him."

Tanner, from New Castle, Pa., is "back home" after a 13-year Trio Share managerial career that took him from the minors to the White Sox in 1970 and to Oakland in 1976 for just a year. Allen, meanwhile, has bounced from the Philadelphia Phillies to the St. Louis Show Honors Cardinals, Los Angeles Dodgers, White Sox, back to the Phils and now has landed in the lap of a maverick like himself, Charles O.

High strung, moody, independent, yet with rare God-given baseball resources, at age 35 he is giving it another fling. Placing himself on the open market, he had only one telephone call from Finley. He signed with the A's Thursday.

"Dick Allen is not a common species," said Tanner, relaxing during a training break at Pirate City. "He has a very fragile mperament like most artists or geniuses. He has to be handled a special way.

"I gave him a lot of freedom - let him work out by himself," -I let him go home when he asked. I didn't interfere with his private life. I only demanded that he produce - and he did. "There was a human side to him no one really understood. When he quit us, he called the team into the locker room and announced it, tears in his eyes. Once I saw him hand a $1,000 the bit is problement on his luck."

These weren't the gestures, however, that turned Tanner into a Dick Allen cheerleader. The field boss was converted by what he saw on the field.

"In 1972," the 48-year-old Tanner recalled, "Allen literally Eight Teams carried us on his back. That year we made a great run at the A's for the pennant and Dick was a one-man offense. He did everything and, most of all, he hauled the young players up with words of Jesus, there are some who don't feel that it's right, fair, or wise to petition God. Some have suggested that all petition smacks of magic and selfishness. Another has added that if 9 prayer means the direct interposition of Providence to favor us in material things, then he can no longer believe in prayer. Is that all there is to petitionary prayer? Just material things? We need to see that there is ample evidence that we should petition God. For example, "the Lord's prayer," taken by many to be a model prayer, is exclusively a petition. It should be noted, however, that Jesus does not propose petitionary prayer as a lazy man's substitute for work. If it is right for us to "ask," for what shall we ask God?

... for forgiveness of sins, and a clean life. John was writing to everyone when he wrote Christ's promise that, "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and purify us from all unrighteousness." (I John 1:8-10) ... to be delivered from temptation, and the power of Satan. We are encouraged to pray, "And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil . . ." The apostle Paul passes on a precious promise to us in this regard in I Corinthians 10:13. . for God to show us the right way

The psalmist cried, "Teach me to do thy will. . ." (Psalm 143:10) ... for strength. Paul prayed that the Ephesians might "be strengthened with power by his Spirit in the inner man. . .' ... that God will help us love one another Paul prayed for friends with the words, "the Lord make you to increase and abound in love one toward another. . ." (I Thess. 3:11, 12) ... for daily bread.

It was Jesus who taught us to pray, "Give us this day our daily bread. . ." (Matt. 6:11) . . . for the Lord's help in our sicknesses

James admonishes us to "Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another that ye may be healed." ... for the leadership of the Holy Spirit in our lives. "... they sent unto them Peter and John: Who, when they had come down, prayed for them that they might receive the Holy Ghost." (Acts 8:15) ... for anything that is according to the will of God. The Lord promises, "We have this assurance in approaching God, that if we ask anything according to his will, He hears us. And if we know that He hears us - whatever we ask - we know that we have it" (I Jn. 5:14, 15). ... for anything we need Paul promises the Christians in Philippi: "And my God will Without doubt, petitionary prayer is an instinctive as a child CHOIR TO SING going to his father for his needs. Let's pray every day, about everything.

Life has its Everyone in the world of midpassage remembers with measurement and in the 30s, canvas and color was talking clarity and excitement that the Christian starts to see Cezanne - the "plastic" Jesus began his brief, powerful values fulfilled and hopes quality of his Mont Sainte-

Victoire. Then one day O'Keefe, in a determination that pointed to her greatness in this century, remembered "I get out my work and have a show myself before I have it publicly. I make up my own mind about it - how good or bad or indifferent it is. After that the critics can write what they please. I have already settled it for myself so that flattery and criticism go down the same drain and I am quite free."

St. Paul was among the first to invite a vision in our early years, believing that when one is in Christ he is able to "comprehend with all the saints, what is the breadth and length, height and depth and to know the love of Christ which surpasses knowledge." When a Christian catches this glimpse of life in the 30s, the years are not only bearable but beautiful.

Question: I try to live a good Christian life in my family and business. Yet I see people everythere profiting from dishonesty. They have more and seem to enjoy it. When I look around at the way most people operate, I wonder why I don't have more success in providing my family with the good things in life. Answer: God tells you not to fret and worry about others ... the wicked will be destroyed - but those who trust in the Lord will be given every blessing. That's Psalms 37:8.9. The Bible also says od hates all cheating and dishonesty. And you and I know it's true if God says it. So that settles it. "The best things in life are free" is an old saying, but it's still true. And in my experience you can't buy the good things in life. Of course, the world thinks so, but we're going a different way ... we're going God's way.

Let me tell you something Madeline Manning Jackson, winner of a Gold Medal for track in the 1968 Olympics, said in a recent chapel at Oral Roberts University. She told of an especially dark and snowy morning when she was out very early working and training, while other people were warm and asleep in their beds. She was feeling a little sorry for herself, and so she asked God why should she be out there running while other people slept. God told her she should not worry about it. The other people were not going where she was going. That's true for all Christians . . . we're going a different way . . . God's way.

I think what's really bothering you is the comparison between what you have and what others have. This can be a possession, a talent, popularity, reputation. What bothers us is that someone has something we don't have or has something better. We resent it, we feel sorry for ourselves, we find ways to hurt or put down that person. I guess it comes down to the sin of envy. And nothing can destroy your peace and happiness faster than envy. If you let it, envy will poison your thoughts and spoil your enjoyment of all the good things in your life. Jesus says that God knows your needs in this world and will give them to you - if you give God first place in your life and live as He wants you to (Matthew 6:33). Do you really believe that's true? Do you look to God first, giving to Him and expecting God to meet your needs? The more you thing about God, the less you think about what the other guy has. And the more you trust God to work out everything for your good, the less you'll worry about getting for yourself. You'll feel freer to give whatever is needed, and that's what God will use to give back to you what you need.

Jesus said, "Give, and it shall be given unto you (Luke 6:38).

The federal Department of Housing and Urban Development has notified the New Smyrna firm hoping to complete a controversial complex in The Highlands that it must first "satisfactorily resolve" disputes with the City of Winter Springs. Only then, noted the letter signed by R.W. Buskirk of HUD's area office, "can final HUD approval be granted." "They (developers) have lost this round and the next move is up to them," responded Ray Bradshaw, city building official, after the letter was received Friday by Winter Springs Mayor Troy Piland. The developer appears ready to make that move. Jeff Auslander, a partner in Schutte-Mochon Inc., late Friday said he hopes to sit down shortly with city officials to resolve certain matters. He said he did not receive a list of the objections. Meanwhile, Auslander added, "we've approached the Seminole County Housing Authority to manage the project on a preliminary basis and they have indicated interest."

It was the firm's plans to complete the complex (left in various stages when foreclosed three years ago) for rental under a federal subsidy program that brought protests from some Highlands homeowners last month. The Highlands Homeowners Assn. petitioned the city at that time to do what it could to stop the proposed project or have it ondemned. The group also petitioned that HUD and ongressmen deny the request for subsidies. Some residents were afraid that rental of the apartments to low-income families would lower property values. Piland also has released the report of city consultant engineer

William R. Holmes of Clark, Dietz and Associates, Sanford, concerning the condition of the partially completed buildings. The city asked for the report to determine if they should be condemned and torn down. The inspection by the engineer and Bradshaw revealed the units in stages of construction ranging from only a foundation, stemwall and roughed-in plumbing, to units ready for finish-paint and Although some vandalism and weather damage was found, the

found probably could be repaired less expensively than starting over on the respective building, the report suggested. Of the total of 62 units started on the site, 40 are at a point where they could be finished (70 per cent or greater complete), eight town house units are in need of major repair and further investigation as to the amount of remodeling required, and 14 must be built completely from the slab or foundation area, Holmes said.

"The above review does not address compliance or noncompliance with building codes which are administered by the building permit process or the certification of occupancy as controlled by the city," the report concluded.

Piland has previously said that the developer would be changing the original concept by completing the 62-unit complex on Moree Loop as rental units instead of individually owned condominiums, and would have to get city approval. He said the area was zoned as a Planned Unit Development with restrictive covenants and was not the place for low-income housing

Auslander claimed they were completing the project a originally approved and no further permits were needed. Auslander said he feels they have sufficient documentation to support their position. The multi-family designation approved for the complex by the city covers both condominiums and apartments," he said. "How come individual owners are able to rent out? he asked. "There is no difference. Any owner of 100 units or less is allowed to rent to anyone he wishes, so I don't see any problem." If HUD gives final approval for annual rent subsidies totalling $194,244 for the one to four bedroom apartments, some families with a maximum annual income of $12,700 could be eligible to rent for 25 per cent of their monthly income. The government would subsidize the rest "We are planning to proceed very quickly and final approval is contingent on a management document being submitted and this is being reviewed with the Seminole County Housing Authority and the final site plan, which is already in effect," said Auslander. "This is just procedural, not substantive," he added.

Herald Outdoors Editor Why don't we just drain the St. Johns River or blow it up or whatever and end its agony with one swift blow? The longest most scenic river in Florida is being maligned beyond imagination. It's not enough that the headwaters of this magnificent waterway are being diverted and drawn off, but here are now two proposals that may hasten what has been termed by many biologists a river that is dying and may be irreversible.

All you old crackers can recall the days when a trip from Lake Monroe to Lake Poinsett or Winder would be considered a bad outing if you didn't catch 50 to 100 fish. Wouldn't it seem incredible to a person who had never been exposed to the wildlife we once had if we could roll back the clock 20 years? Flocks of Teal, Wideeon, Pintails, Mallards, Florida blacks, and bluebills so numerous they would shade the sun, Iron heads, Sandhill cranes, egrets and all manner of fish eating birds that would nearly engulf all of the 9,000 acres of Lake Monroe as they flew to roost on the last rays of sunset, was a common

A trip up Woodruff Creek along the old Beck pasture wouldn't be complete without a few otters playing hideand-seek along the shore or seeing a big old sow gator lying on an island sunning herself.

Commentary

All of this is part of the past. Shall we destroy what's On March 2, the Seminole County Commission instructed the County Administrator to ask the state's permission to dump clean effluent into the St. Johns This effluent will come from a regional sewer plant under consideration by the governments of Lake Mary, Sanford and Seminole County. The Regional Interim Sewer Plant Committee is considering a spray irrigation system where about 95 per cent of the pollutants are removed, as it is sprayed over a land mass of 2,000 acres. Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff stated that, "I can't see the feasibility of the 2,000-acre bit." "Why not dump it (effluent) into the St. Johns and save the taxpayers about 10 billion dollars?" Kirchhoff added.

State regulations forbid dumping of effluent into the St. John's. Kirchhoff said that effluent dumped into the St. Johns would be cleaner than water in the river.

SUNDAY EDITION Evening Herald

The Harrier: It'll Take Off At Air Show

THE THUNDERBIRDS

By MARK WEINBERG Herald Staff Writer

It weighs 12 tons and can take off without a runway. It can climb to 40,000 feet in less than 21/2 minutes. It can carry Sidewinder infrared air-to-air missiles. And it will be on display at the Fourth Annual Central Florida Air Show, Sanford-Central Florida Airport April

It's a Harrier AV-8A jet, the Marine Corps' newest close air support aircraft. The jet has rotatable jet nozzles, which make the plane capable of vertical and short takeoff and landing operations.

The plane will represent the Marines at the air show. The other military services will also be represented. The Navy's hot-air balloon will be on hand, as well as the Air Force Thunderbird's flying team (Sunday only) and the Army's Golden Knights parachute team.

Two Harriers will be at the air show. One will stay on the ground as part of the show's static exhibits, which will be on view from 10:30 a.m. both days, when airport grounds will be open. The other Harrier will fly in the air show, which begins at 12:30 both days.

The Harrier's primary mission is close air support of Marine ground forces. It can also perform such diverse functions as local air defense, strike and interdiction, helicopter escort and photo-visual reconnaissance. The plane can take off vertically, hover like a helicopter and switch to forward flight at speeds of over 600 miles per hour. It is directed by four rotatable nozzles, two located on each side of the fuselage.

High-pressure air jets located on the Harrier's wing tips, nose and tail provide added control during slow and hovering maneuvers. The Harrier has a "54-foot wing span. It has made the 3,030-mile London-to-wew York flight in 5 hours, 57 minutes - a world record. Advance tickets for the air show are $2.50 for adults, $1 for children (age 6-12). At the gate, tickets will cost $3 for adults, $1 for children. Tickets are now on sale from Sanford Rotary Club members, at many Sanford businesses, at all area offices of Chelsea Title and Guaranty Co., and at all area locations of First Federal Savings and Loan of Mid-

Florida. Proceeds from the show, sponsored by Sanford Rotary Club, will go to charities designated by the club.

IT'S IN THEIR HANDS

And their oratory was the winning variety, too - as Martha McIntosh, grader, display their winning oratorical form as winners of the Lakeview Middle School 6th-grader; oratorical contest sponsored Friday

Monroe where Deltona dumps its effluent into the river. Last Tuesday the Seminole County Commission approved stocking three lakes with the controversial weedeating white amur.

However, the commission insisted an amendment be added to the resolution which places responsibility for any damage the fish might cause squarely in the laps of the Florida Cabinet. What was it Harry Truman said about passing the buck? The Department of National Resources has had a running feud with the Game and Fish Commission since the inception of this program. Game and Fish Biologists insist that we must study this fish to determine what the far-reaching consequences may be.

There is an organization called Friends of the St. Johns which is determined and dedicated to the end that proposals such as these should not be allowed until every safeguard conceivable is thoroughly analyzed. All citizens who are concerned may contact the FOSJ, and they will make every effort to share any information that is available to them.

The commissioners are in a tough and demanding position. But, certainly, we must use a rational and serious repercussions there may not be enough human expertise or money to rectify the damage.
