Due To State Budget

Property Tax Hike Seen Inevitable

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The Legislature didn't raise state taxes, but it forced an increase in local property taxes for schools.

The tax increase for schools could be as much as 17 percent including four percent for new construction, said Sen. John Vogt, D-Cocoa Beach, and a member of Seminole County's legislative delegation.

Seminole's legislators split their votes on the $9.4 billion statewide budget passed Wednesday. Gov. Bob Graham, threatening to veto the budget, has said he will be calling a special session of the Legislature to reconsider the issue.

Vogt, one of nine state senators who voted against the proposal, said from his Tallahassee office that the result of the state budget will "probably be higher had stayed longer there would have been a tax increase passed ultimately."

Brantley said the Republican caucus, educators were still grumbling even though 60 percent of the budget is earmarked for education. "Many of us thought it was better to take a no tax budget and go home," he said.

Brantley said the Republican caucus of the House unanimously decided to oppose the proposed penny increase in sales tax and Gov. Graham's proposal to index gas tax (let it rise or fall with the price of gasoline up to 8 cents per $1).

Of the proposed one-quarter to one-half cent sales tax option for local government, Brantley said he received no telephone calls from local officials or the public supporting either measure.

Of the half-penny sales tax which included an option for county commissions to levy that tax, Brantley said he received calls from city officials who were concerned that the tax would actually cost cities money.

The proposed one-half cent tax would have brought Seminole County government $3.5 million annually, with $3 million of that money to go to Seminole County and $500,000 to be split among the seven cities. Half of the funds were to be earmarked for law enforcement.

Some senators indicated they would not vote for the local option sales tax without a provision that local governments get approval from the people in a referendum prior to imposing the tax.

Sen. Clark Maxwell, R-Melbourne, and State Rep. Robert Hattaway, D-Altamonte Springs, were enroute from Tallahassee and unavailable for comment. Maxwell voted in favor of the budget.

Highlights of the $9 billion budget that won final legislative approval Wednesday:

CRIMINAL JUSTICE

— $3.3 million for 150 additional state troopers, most for south Florida assignments;

— $551,000 for 30 new state crime lab positions and $2 million for local crime labs;

— $10.6 million for 459 new positions in state attorney offices;

— $4.4 million for 170 new positions in public defender offices;

— $2 million for 56 new court positions including 24 new judges;

— $13.6 million for correctional officer pay raises;

— $14 million to expand the state prison system to eventually handle 2,144 more inmates;

— $1.9 million for 129 new parole and probation positions.

EDUCATION

— $1.7 billion for public schools plus $80 million for the early grades intensified instruction program (PREP);

— $11 million in quality improvement funds for state universities plus $10.2 million for libraries;

— $1.3 million to begin freshman and sophomore classes at Florida International University in Miami;

— $275 million for community colleges plus $2.7 million for instructional equipment and libraries.

TRANSPORTATION

— $92 million for highway maintenance;

— $110 million for resurfacing;

— $120 million for regular Interstate construction plus $72 million and a portion of future reserve funds for accelerated construction;

— $15 million to begin rebuilding the Sunshine Skyway over Tampa Bay with another $95 million committed for when it is needed;

— $20 million for the Dade Area Rapid Transit (DART) system.

OTHER

— $5.8 million for community care for the elderly;

— $3.4 million for programs for troubled children;

— $121.3 million for state employee pay adjustments including a 6.75 percent basic pay raise and merit bonuses of up to $500;

— $7.7 million to raise the salaries of judges.

property taxes by city, county and school boards locally."

"The budget does nothing for the local jail situation or to help local government with law enforcement or transportation or to help make up the increased homestead exemption tax loss," Vogt said. He added that funding for a proposed new building at Seminole Community College was also stricken from the budget.

"There are a lot of turkeys in the budget," Vogt said.

Vogt said the budget will force a minimum 8 percent increase in taxes by school boards and a maximum of 13 for operations in addition to the four percent which it may levy for new construction.

State Rep. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, who voted for the budget, said, however, it "was the bet we could have come out of the session with. If we

Like Father, Like Son, Two Raines On The Run

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

It was only natural that Tim Raines Jr. would run before he could walk.

After all, when you're the son of the best base stealer in the major leagues, what other mode of transportation would you choose?

"I used to pick him up by the arms," recalls Montreal Expo left fielder Tim Raines about his 22-month-old bundle of energy. "But before I could straighten him up, he'd be off running."

Raines Sr., 21, is on a record stolen base tear of 50 in his first 55 games. Despite the baseball strike he feels if he can play in 70 more games this season, he can break Lou Brock's major league record of 118 stolen bases.

The former Seminole High three-sport standout is married to the former Virginia Hilton. While waiting out the strike, the family has been spending time with his parents—Ned and Florence Raines in Sanford.

Florence is quick to point out the startling similarities between Raines the son and Raines the grandson.

"Tim Jr. runs so fast. Just like his father," exclaimed Florence. "And he loves to play ball. That's all he wants to do."

Besides running the part, young Tim looks the part too. So much so, he has picked up his father's nickname. The older Raines was dubbed "Rock" because of his strong and stocky physique.

The son, being of the same build, was naturally named "Little Rock."

But Raines Jr. does more than just emulate his famous father. He is just the remedy the "old man" needs when he drags himself home from the ball park after one of those few unproductive afternoons.

"He's (Tim Jr.) great when you have a bad day. Say you get 0-for-4 or something. When you get home, there's little Tim all excited. He wants to go outside and play ball," says Raines about his effervescent inspiration.

"It takes all the gloom away and gets you ready to start the next day."

It's not the younger Raines, though, that does all the inspiring.

"LITTLE ROCK" RAINES

Senior Raines has passed a few of his talents along to his son.

"Yeah, his Dad taught him how to slide," confirmed Florence Raines. "Tim Jr. takes a big run and then flops down like he's going into second."

"Then he wants you to come over and slap hands with him just like the big leaguers. It's really cute," laughs Florence.

Along the way, Florence points out the young one has picked up his father's ability to stay in the spotlight.

"Oh he's a ham just like his father. He likes attention," said "Ma" Raines. "He just loves to get his

Which was happening left and right Tuesday night when the two Timms returned to Ft. Mellon Park to present the Little Major League awards and throw out the first ball for the city championship.

Little Tim was all over the field with his bat, glove and slides. He even took occasion to try out the umpire's mask.

"I didn't ever think we were going to get that bat out of his hands," Florence said. "But we finally gave him a ball and he gave it up."

Like father like son. Two Raines on the run.

Power Use High In Heat, Brownouts Not Expected

By BRITT SMITH
Herald Staff Writer

Despite a relentless spring sun which has literally baked the Sunshine State for the past week, Seminole County utilities spokesmen today said they are anticipating no power brownouts due to heavy demand.

With the temperature hovering near 100 degrees for the sixth straight day, local electric companies were forced to run their generating facilities at full tilt, but survived the peak usage periods without having to curtail service.

For a while Wednesday, however, "we were a little concerned," said John Higgins, Florida Power and Light Co.'s customer service supervisor in Seminole County.

"We sometimes buy power from other utilities during peak periods and when the Florida Power Company's nuclear plant at Crystal River went down late Tuesday (a switching yard was knocked out by lightning) we were worried that if something happened at one of our plants we wouldn't have had a back-up power source," Higgins said.

"But we got through our crucial period, 6-7 p.m., with no problems whatsoever. And we foresee no problems today either," he said. "We have 17,385 customers in Seminole County and we didn't have to cut any of them off."

Ditto for Florida Power's nearly 60,000 Seminole County customers, according to company spokesman Dave Williams.

"We had the pedal to the metal. We were running our generators at capacity, but we got through it without any blackouts," Williams said.

But just barely. "With Crystal River down, we thought we might have to interrupt service to our large industrial users," he said. "We were already buying power from other utilities. And we had a record demand — 4,355 megawatts. That topped the previous record output of 3,996 megawatts of Aug. 22, 1980."

"But we blitzed our customers through radio, TV, and newspapers with word that we needed them to cut back on power usage and they did," Williams said. Plus, "we got some scattered rain over parts of the state which cooled things down a bit and curbed demand. That allowed us to transfer that power to other areas where it was needed."

Williams said the Crystal River plant should be operational later today "so that should improve our energy picture tremendously."

Both Williams and Higgins agreed that of even more help would be some rain.

"Usually this time of year, it clouds up around 4 p.m. and rains for an hour or so," Higgins said. "That cools things off and cuts demand. We haven't had that this year."

Should the rains not come and demand for electricity exceed the utilities' ability to provide it, FP&L and Flower Power will go to a system of rotating brownouts, cutting off service to various areas for 15 minutes at a time "which will conserve energy and ensure that no one has to sweater for long," Williams said.

"Something people can do to help us prevent that is to change their usage patterns during the really hot days," he said. "Keep your air conditioner at 78-80 degrees, and run your major appliances — hot water heater, washing machines, dishwashers — during off-hours, i.e. before noon and after 9 p.m."

Schools Will Help Fund Police Program

Seminole County School Board members pledged support for a proposed "Officer-in-the-Schools" program Wednesday night and agreed (4-0) to fund one third of the estimated $56,000 program. Board member Pat Telson was absent.

The cost of the program will be shared with the Seminole County Sheriff's Department.

The pilot program, which is to be tested in two middle schools this fall, is designed to cut down on drug use and other criminal activity in schools.

The officers assigned to the program would work with the students as instructors in law enforcement and related subjects and as counselors.

Lt. Beau Taylor of the Seminole County Sheriff's Department, who will be coordinating the program from the law enforcement level, said the officers would also patrol in the school's vicinity after school hours.

"The whole thing is to let kids know that policemen are their friends. They can be trusted and they are there for protection," Taylor said.

"He'll see them everyday, he'll attend the games, the social functions, not dressed in a uniform, but in jeans and a short-sleeved shirt, clothes they can associate with friends," he said.

Dummy Now Decent

RYE, N.Y. (UPI) — A nude dummy in an amusement park horror show now wears an orange bikini thanks to an outraged clergyman who saw it on a school outing.

The dummy, a bald woman with a black raincoat, was part of the "Flying Witch" haunted-house ride featuring fire-breathing monsters and terrifying goblins at Playland Amusement Park in Rye, N.Y.

As riders passed by, the dummy lit up and its raincoat parted to reveal fake body parts.

The figure had been part of the ride since 1971, said a park official.

The county, which owns the park, received a letter last week from the Rev. Peter Aumann of St. Raymond's Church in the Bronx.

U.S. Report Disagrees With Israel On Iraq

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration disagrees with Israel on the short-term prospects of Iraq becoming a nuclear weapons state, but there will be no rush to judgment on whether Israel's June 7 raid violated American laws.

"I would emphasize that this issue, at its core, is political rather than legal," said Undersecretary of State Walter Stoessel to a joint hearing of two House foreign affairs subcommittees on Wednesday.

"We therefore should ensure that our efforts are devoted to achieving a political resolution of the tensions and instabilities which plague the region."

In a related development, the Congressional Research Service questioned Israeli claims Iraq was close to constructing an atomic bomb. Even under ideal conditions, it said, such a move by Iraq would have been detected by the reactor's French builders and international inspectors.

Stoessel, the State Department's third highest-ranking official, returns to Congress today for testimony, together with CIA director William Casey, before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. The administration said that in attacking Iraq's only nuclear reactor with U.S.-supplied arms, Israel may have violated a 1952 arms sales agreement that allows American weapons to be used for defense only.

But Stoessel told the panels, "We are not prepared today to make any judgments on the merits of the various arguments or decide on an appropriate response... we don't want to be rushing into a decision."

One of the key reasons given by Israel for its raid on Iraq's French-built Tamuz I reactor near Baghdad is that it was on the verge of producing a nuclear bomb.

"We don't agree with that position of Israel," Stoessel said. "We are not able to make a definitive judgment ourselves that would confirm that Israeli position."

"We are not in a position to make such a definitive finding. We have not made any definitive conclusions that they (the Iraqis) were working toward" a nuclear weapons capability.

But he made clear the United States and Israel, do not disagree that Iraq's nuclear weapons programs — had it continued along its pre-June 7 course — would eventually have made Iraq a nuclear weapons state.

His Mother First To Die

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — A Vietnam veteran who pleaded with police to "execute" him killed three people, including his mother, and wounded seven others before a police marksman's bullet ended his rampage.

Among the wounded was a policeman who was in critical condition today.

William Griffin, 37, armed with a pump shotgun and a cache of ammunition strapped to his chest Wednesday first shot and wounded his stepfather, Amos Anderson, then killed his mother, Gracy Anderson, in her 60s, and a workman, Thomas Carls, 64, at the family home, said Police Chief Delmar Leach.

Rampaging Veteran Kills 3, Wounds 7

Within minutes of the 11:30 a.m. shootings, he arrived at a Security Trust Bank branch two blocks away, took eight people hostage and presented a typewritten statement asking he be killed.

Leach did not divulge much of the letter's contents but said Griffin mentioned something about his "Social Security benefits being taken away" and a demand that police "execute" him.

"It was an irrational letter," said Leach. "The last part of the statement described how he wanted his body disposed of when he was murdered."

Griffin steadfastly refused to talk directly to police. Instead, he relayed messages through bank manager Ernest Lofton Jr.

Griffin had a prepared list of police agencies to be contacted, including a U.S. marshal's office in McLean, Va., and state police headquarters in Albany. Included with the demand was a pledge he would begin killing his hostages within 30 minutes if police failed to kill him first. Police received the demand at about 1:30 p.m.

Within the next half hour, police sharpshooters, positioned in a church across the street, watched as Griffin, who peppered police with shotgun blasts, paraded inside the bank's windows, seemingly inviting them to meet his demand.

At about 2 p.m. — when the gunman's self-imposed deadline arrived — Griffin chose bank teller Margaret Moore, 30, apparently at random, as the first bank hostage to die.

He moved her toward the side door with the shotgun pressed against her back and fired twice, killing her. A member of the department's Special Task Force Squad then shot once with a high-powered rifle, hitting Griffin in the head.

"He has no criminal record in Rochester," Leach said.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Haig Takes Anti-Soviet Crusade To Manila

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Secretary of State Alexander Haig began a series of meetings today with Asian foreign ministers to mobilize anti-communist nations to resist Soviet military pressure.

A senior official told reporters aboard Haig's plane bringing him to Manila from Peking, an anti-Soviet "strategic consensus" already exists among the non-communist nations of Southeast Asia but the previous U.S. administration did not recognize that fact.

The official said, "We are willing to work with the nations of Southeast Asia and let them take the lead. We are not trying to create an alliance."

One day after Haig ended a three-day trip to Peking where he announced the United States will loosen its restrictions on selling arms to China, NBC News and The New York Times reported from Washington the United States and China have been monitoring Soviet missile tests from secret listening posts on the Sino-Soviet border for the past year. The Times report quoted senior American officials.

Haig believes the common realization by Peking and the United States of the military danger from the Soviet Union outweighs any differences between the two countries and other issues such as continued U.S. arms sales to the Nationalist regime on Taiwan.

Begin Says No Deadline

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin said today there was no deadline to U.S. Envoy Philip Habib's efforts to defuse the Syrian missile crisis, but he warned Israel will remove the missiles by force if the mission does not bring results.

"Mr. Habib left my office with the knowledge that he has got enough time to continue," Begin told reporters after the two met for 7½ hours.

Begin's only comment was "I can say to you that the diplomatic process continues."

"We did not put any deadline at all," Begin said. "We gave him all the time necessary." But, Begin said, the mission "cannot go on for an indefinite period."

Prince Charles Heckled

NEW YORK (UPI) — The climax of Prince Charles' one-day visit — a glittering night at the ballet — was disrupted by 5,000 anti-British protesters, including four hecklers at the performance who shouted he was "murdering the Irish."

Charles expected to head back to London today, almost 24 hours after his arrival, on a Concorde supersonic jet. It was his first visit to New York City. His day included a helicopter trip over the island of Manhattan, a luncheon cruise around the Statue of Liberty with Nancy Reagan and — after a nap at his apartment in the Waldorf-Astoria — a ball celebrating the 50th anniversary of the British Royal Ballet.

He was guarded at every stop on the itinerary by more than 1,300 police officers.

Impossible Dream?

Home Owning Study Set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A presidential commission is trying to find a way to revive a longtime American dream that, for many, has become an impossible dream — owning a home.

President Reagan Wednesday named the 22-member commission that is to present the president and Housing and Urban Development Secretary Samuel Pierce with a list of options within four months.

From this, the administration will try to build a housing strategy that Pierce said would "deliver housing at a cheaper cost" and make home ownership more practical, "particularly for young couples who have never owned a home before."

William McKenna, a Los Angeles attorney, was selected by Reagan to head the commission, which includes a number of former HUD officials, housing developers and industry experts.

Said Reagan, "Home ownership is a symbol of the family unit and neighborhood and is essential if we're to have social and economic stability in our land."

A confident and determined McKenna told a news conference, "We have a job to do, a job the president has given us and we intend to do it."

Pierce said the group will propose options for development of national housing policy consistent with the president's program for economic recovery.

He told a news conference that any progress in solving the nation's housing crisis will only come after Reagan's economic program is in place.

"Unless we're able to really turn the economy around, we're not going to be able to do anything about housing," he said.

McKenna said the commission would not make policy recommendations but simply set out policy options for Reagan and Pierce.

Democrats Revise Proposals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Democrats have revised a half-hearted committee proposal to slash funds for school children and senior citizens, but it is unclear if it will succeed in stopping Republicans from offering stiffer cuts.

Democrats on the House Education and Labor Committee Wednesday backed off their earlier plan to send the full House proposals they knew were too harsh to win approval. They had planned to propose more palatable spending cuts on the House floor, after holding Republican "feet to the fire" by making them take a stand on the harsh cuts.

But Democratic leaders pressured them to change their strategy in the face threatened deeper cuts by Republicans.

"The question is do you put their (Republicans') feet to the fire through amendments or do you do what's in the best interest of the country?" House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass., told a news briefing.

One Twin Aborted In Rare Procedure

BOSTON (UPI) — At the age of 40 she finally became pregnant, only to discover one of the twins she was carrying was retarded. Her dilemma was whether to carry the twins to term or abort them.

Instead, the woman chose a hazardous procedure — never tried in this country — to abort only the abnormal fetus in her womb, doctors reported today. Half its blood was drawn through a hollow needle that pierced the fetus' heart, which then stopped beating. The needle had to hit a moving target less than an inch across.

Four months after the surgery, she gave birth to a healthy boy.

The risks were great. The healthy fetus also could have been aborted, since there was no definite way to distinguish between the two during the procedure. Then, too, it was possible the abnormal fetus could have been injured but not aborted.

Another risk was coagulated blood from the dead fetus could enter the mother's bloodstream, a complication that could have damaged the other twin's brain.

It was the first time the technique had been used in the United States. Doctors at Mount Sinai Medical Center in New York City reported in the New England Journal of Medicine. The surgery, attempted only twice in Sweden and Denmark, was carried out with permission from the New York Supreme Court.

The middle-aged woman, who was not named, had never had children.

"The mother desperately wanted to have the normal child but could not face the burden of caring for an abnormal child for the rest of her life," wrote Dr. Thomas D. Kerenyi, acting chief of obstetrics at Mount Sinai.

Guided by ultrasound, doctors pierced the abnormal twin's heart.

As the normal twin continued to develop, the other died and began to shrink in an "almost mirror-like regression." The dead fetus was delivered a short time after the birth of the normal boy.

Kerenyi compared the dead fetus's appearance to that of a rose pressed in a book for five years — "flat, fragile and paper-like."

"Having been made aware of the case report from Sweden in which selective termination of an abnormal twin had been successfully performed even though the unaffected twin was delivered prematurely, she (the mother) asked if a similar procedure could be offered."

The parents were counseled and the hospital obtained an order from the New York Supreme Court to avoid legal complications and confirm the parents' right to consent to the procedure on behalf of the normal fetus.

IN BRIEF

Americans Spent More And Saved Less In May

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans spent more and saved less in May, the Commerce Department reported Wednesday.

Personal consumer spending was up $11.9 billion, or 0.7 percent, in May to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1,234.7 billion or more than $1.6 trillion, the department said.

Personal saving, meanwhile, declined by $2.2 billion, or about 2 percent, to an adjusted annual rate of $100.7 billion.

One goal of the administration's economic program is to increase Americans' savings in order to make more money available for investment that will make the economy more productive.

Overall personal income rose $13.7 billion, or 0.6 percent, in May to an adjusted annual rate of $2,367.2 billion or more than $2.3 trillion, the government said.

However, federal, state and local taxes grew $3.7 billion in May. That meant that the disposable income of Americans grew only $10 billion during the month, or 0.5 percent.

Air Controller Strike?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal government stepped up preparations today for a threatened strike next week by air traffic controllers that could severely disrupt air traffic throughout the United States.

The Professional Air Traffic Controllers Association Wednesday rejected a contract offer by the Federal Aviation Administration and left the bargaining table. No further talks were scheduled.

Two hours later, Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis held a news conference and warned: "The administration is going to take a very strong stand. We're not going to tolerate an illegal strike."

Said PATCO President Robert Poll later: "We're ready."

Federal employees are barred from striking, but the union set a June 22 strike deadline last month. A walkout would begin at 7 a.m. or 8 a.m. local time Monday, depending on the time zone, a PATCO spokesman said.

The Civil Aeronautics Board planned to issue emergency regulations today defining priorities in civil air transportation in case of a walkout. Spokesmen said a strike would be considered a "national emergency."

Mines Starting Up Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Picket signs come down and soft-coal miners returned to work throughout Appalachia and the Midwest while union leaders approved a tentative mine construction agreement and sent it for rank-and-file ratification.

United Mine Workers Secretary-Treasurer Willard Esselstyn, who served as chief union negotiator in the mine construction talks, predicted the "mass majority" of mines would be back in operation today.

Many mines in eastern Kentucky and southern West Virginia resumed near full-scale operations Wednesday as word spread of the tentative settlement. Some picketing did stop miners from reporting to work in other areas.

Williams In Limbo

ATLANTA (UPI) — Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown says police surveillance of Wayne Williams would continue indefinitely, but investigators had no plans to charge him or clear him as a suspect in the killings of 28 young blacks.

Williams, a freelance photographer questioned for 12 hours about the killings, has been the subject of surveillance for nearly three weeks.

Williams has gone to federal court in an attempt to stop city officials and the news media from mentioning him in regard to the murder investigation.

Nutrition Plan For Schools

NEW YORK (UPI) — Children will be encouraged to swap their Twinkies for fruit and other wholesome food in school lunchrooms under a nutrition program developed by the American Heart Association.

The School Nutrition Program was developed in the Medical and Community Program Division of the AHA in Dallas, for use by AHA's 55 affiliates and their components nationwide and in Puerto Rico.

The rationale for the program is that children who establish healthy eating habits will lower their lifetime risk of developing arteriosclerosis. Schools will be advised about how to trim fat and salt from lunchroom menus.

Economic Boom Bigger

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The boom in America's economic growth during the first three months of this year — the strongest since 1978 — was even slightly bigger than first thought, government figures showed today.

The gross national product — the measure of the nation's total output of goods and services — grew 8.6 percent after adjustment for inflation during the first quarter, the Commerce Department reported.

This was the second time the GNP figure has been raised in the course of normal revisions made as more information becomes available. The growth figure first was estimated at 8.3 percent, then at 8.4 percent.

Even without the latest revision, it was the biggest quarterly increase since the economy grew 9 percent in real terms in the second quarter of 1978.

Economists expect much slower growth during the second, April-June, quarter when the figures become available.

Orlando Man Pleads Nolo To Stealing Towels, Drapes

By BRITT SMITH
Herald Staff Writer

If it wasn't so serious, it might have been funny — a 36-year-old master's degree candidate at Stetson University standing in Seminole Circuit Court accused of stealing $127.02 worth of towels and drapes.

Thomas Joseph McDermid of Orlando, was charged with grand theft in connection with the April 10 theft of several types of towels — mostly yellow and pink floral — and some drapes from the Jefferson Ward's store in Altamonte Springs.

Judge Joseph Davis Jr. asked McDermid, "Why did you take them?"

McDermid, who works in the housekeeping department at Walt Disney World, shuffled about a bit and mumbled something about "it was getting close to Mother's Day and..."

McDermid faces up to five years in prison after pleading no contest to the grand theft charge. Davis deferred sentencing pending completion of an investigation into McDermid's background.

Also Wednesday, Nathan Scott, 20, of Orlando, pleaded guilty to resisting arrest with violence. Sentencing was deferred. Scott was arrested March 7 outside the New York Times Club on U.S. Highway 17-92 in Maitland during an argument with a woman over money. When Seminole County sheriff's deputy John Butler tried to calm the two, Scott reportedly cursed Butler and punched him.

GIRL ASSAULTED IN BED

A 13-year-old Altamonte Springs girl was sexually assaulted in her home this morning by an unknown man who had apparently entered the house by crawling through a living room window.

The girl told Seminole County sheriff's deputies that she was awakened about 5:30 a.m.

The girl told Seminole County sheriff's deputies that she was awakened about 5:50 a.m. by a man fondling her. The girl said she began to kick and scream, awakening her mother with whom she was sleeping. The victim's mother also began to scream and the assailant fled, deputies said.

SURE, IT'S HOT BUT...

Beating the heat has become a local obsession recently what with temperatures hovering around the 100-degree level, but the way 22-year-old C. Dean Pulver of Sanford tried to cool off wasn't exactly kosher.

Pulver, 1600 S. Park Ave., simply decided to take a late-night bicycle ride with no clothes on.

Sanford patrolman David Semones got a radio call about 11 p.m. Wednesday to check on a nude bike rider near the 200 block of Hayes Drive. And sure enough, when he got there he saw Pulver pedaling down the road wearing nothing but socks and sneakers.

Semones said Pulver tried to flee, but was caught and arrested for indecent exposure. He was released from the Seminole County Jail on $500 bond.

MUCK FIRE SMOLDERS

A muck fire near the Lake Sylvan area of Paola, which has been burning off and on for nearly three weeks, continued to smolder today, sending up a good deal of smoke but threatening no homes.

The fire has scorched approximately 100 acres flaring up in mid-May. Aided by units from the state Division of Forestry, county firefighters have been fighting the fire intermittently for the past several days.

The fire has been burning mostly underground, but because of the hot, dry weather has been working its way to the surface.

They Couldn't Stop That Man

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — "Stop that man," yelled University of Florida police investigator Don Rogers as a man in a red suit raced by startled onlookers in the lobby of the Alachua County Courthouse Wednesday.

But no one stopped Melvin Sheppard, 26, who ran through the door and then led Rogers and court bailiff Jerry Goad on a fruitless chase for several blocks through downtown Gainesville before giving them the slip.

Only moments before a six-member circuit court jury had found Sheppard guilty of attempted armed robbery of a gas station. Circuit Judge Chester B. Chance had adjudicated him guilty and Goad was getting ready to fingerprint him.

"I was signing that (paperwork) and when I looked up he was going out the door," said Chance afterwards.

Goad said Sheppard, who faces a maximum 15 years in prison for the robbery conviction, used a ruse about bidding farewell to relatives to get close enough to the door to make his escape.

High Court Puts Health Of Workers Above Cost

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, in a setback to President Reagan's drive to curb federal regulation, declared today that rules to protect workers from on-the-job dangers do not have to balance health benefits against the cost to employers.

In rejecting the idea of cost-benefit analysis, the court said Congress had already decided that the health of workers is "above all other considerations."

But the justices, splitting 5 to 3 in a case involving the cotton industry, said such health rules must undergo "feasibility analysis." That analysis was defined as requiring a standard that "most adequately assures... that no employee will suffer material impairment of health, limited only by the extent to which this is capable of being done."

The ruling was a boost to the embattled Occupational Safety and Health Administration which sought to impose stringent controls on workplace exposure to airborne cotton dust.

Writing for the majority, Justice William Brennan noted that Congress, in enacting the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970, "itself defined the basic relationship between costs and benefits, by placing the 'benefit' of the worker health above all other considerations save those making attainment of this 'benefit' achievable."

In the cotton dust opinion, Brennan noted: "Perhaps most telling is the absence of any indication that Congress intended OSHA to conduct its own cost-benefit analysis before promulgating a toxic material or harmful physical agent standard." Instead, he wrote, Congress was "fully aware that the act would impose real and substantial costs on industry, and believed that such costs were part of the cost of doing business."

The regulations at issue govern airborne exposure to cotton dust, the cause of "brown lung," a severely disabling and sometimes fatal disease. The initial controls were adopted in 1978 to protect more than 800,000 textile workers exposed to cotton dust on the job.

The case before the high court was an industry challenge to a ruling by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia upholding the regulations issued by OSHA.

The industry argued the cost of worker protection should be measured against the health benefits — a view espoused by administration officials.

The textile industry urged the court to adopt a "cost-benefit" test for government regulation of hazardous chemicals and other substances.

The industry says it would cost some $2.7 million to comply with current OSHA regulations. OSHA told the high court meeting the rules would cost about $50 million.

Justices Potter Stewart, William Rehnquist and Chief Justice Warren Burger dissented. Justice Lewis Powell took no part in deciding the case.

In a dissenting opinion, Stewart said since the cotton dust standard "must at least be economically feasible," one "must have a fairly clear idea of how much it is going to cost." He said he would have reversed the lower court since he believed OSHA "failed to justify its estimate of the cost" of the rule.

Mother Of Murdered Child Tries Test-Tube Pregnancy

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — An American woman whose only child was murdered three years ago will soon know if a fertilized egg implanted in her womb will result in a "testtube" pregnancy, doctors said today.

Mrs. Elsa Goeytes-Rios, 37, of Los Angeles, had the fertilized ovum implanted 10 days ago at Queen Victoria Hospital, the world's leading center for test-tube births where six babies — including a set of twins — have been born in the past year.

Doctors said they may be able to confirm the pregnancy Friday.

Mrs. Goeytes-Rios underwent the operation two days after the birth of test-tube twins Stephen and Amanda Mays.

"I hope a little of their luck will come my way," she said.

Mrs. Goeytes-Rios said the memory of her slain 18-year-old daughter, Claudia, had driven her halfway around the world in a quest for another child.

Claudia, the only child from her first marriage, was found by her parents, dying from a shotgun wound to the head, when they returned home from work.

Was It The Man Or The Policy?

The Reagan administration has been spared a divisive fight on the Senate floor over the confirmation of Ernest W. Lefever to serve as assistant secretary of state for human rights. Lefever's request to have his appointment withdrawn brings the matter to an end, even if it leaves hanging the question of how the Senate as a whole feels about the human rights issue in foreign policy.

It was not always clear during the confirmation hearings whether Lefever's critics on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee were doubting his qualifications or were using him as a proxy target for an attack on President Reagan's announced intention to change the manner in which human rights are defended in our relations with other countries.

We can hope that the 14-3 vote against his confirmation was not an expression of approval of the confusion and inconsistencies that the human rights issue brought to U.S. foreign policy during the Carter administration. That is what President Reagan wanted Lefever to change.

The views Lefever expressed to the committee on how we should support human rights through diplomacy were not materially different from those espoused by Mr. Reagan. Nor did they differ from what Secretary of State Alexander Haig had to say on the subject during his own confirmation hearing, which ended with a 15-2 vote for approval by the committee and a 93-6 vote of confirmation by the full Senate.

Lefever was more a victim of his own record than of any weakness in the ideas he was expressing on foreign policy. He had to disown statements he made as recently as 1979 which contradict positions he takes today. He was unable to dispel a strong suggestion of a connection between the positions advocated by his Ethics and Public Policy Center and its sources of financial support.

Mr. Reagan appears to have given Lefever the benefit of the doubt even when it was known that his appointment was in for a rough ride. Early this year, when the appointment was only rumored, a group of church and liberal organizations announced the formation of a committee to oppose it. The numerous Republican defections from what otherwise might have been partyline support of the nomination attests to the breadth of the opposition, with its case only strengthened by the probing at the confirmation hearings.

Mr. Reagan and Haig remain in charge of foreign policy and we trust it will move forward along the lines that both have suggested in their pronouncements on the human rights issue. In short, that policy will look with as much distaste on left-wing dictatorships as it does on those with a right-wing orientation. It will not demand of foreign governments that they meet an American standard in human rights as a condition for aid or a friendly relationship—the kind of demands that played havoc with our relations with some of our allies during the Carter years.

Such a policy will recognize that the collapse of a regime considered authoritarian by our standards can leave a people at the mercy of a Marxist totalitarian system that is even more repressive and denies even the hope of change. As Haig told the Foreign Relations Committee at his confirmation hearing last January, the assurance of basic human liberties will not be improved by replacing friendly governments which incompletely satisfy our standards of democracy with hostile ones which are even less benign.

Senators did not find that statement objectionable five months ago, and we doubt if they would do so today.

Around

The Clock

By SYBIL MITCHELL GANDY

You get a few new faces in the audience from week to week in the Altamonte Springs city commission chambers on Tuesday night. But this past week, commissioners took a moment between work session items to recognize what they called "a very special guest."

Willie Madry sat quietly in the back ... not inconspicuously however. Although there weren't more than 20 people on hand for discussions, Mr. Madry was anything but inconspicuous. He was the only Black in attendance.

But it turns out that this is not just some ordinary citizen attending a city commission confab. Madry happens to be Altamonte Springs' "ace in the hole" when it comes to the department of sanitation.

City Manager Jeff Eitchberger told commissioners that he wouldn't know what the department's fourth shift would do without Mr. Madry. And, he added, "we're just so pleased to have Willie Madry here with us today and we want to thank him for taking the time to come out."

Supervisor of Sanitation Tony Figueroa requested that Madry attend the work session as the department's representative in case commissioners inquire about some policy concerning the crew reduction item on their agenda.

It seems that commissioners will be approving a proposal which cuts down sanitation department personnel by two.

Mr. Figueroa, Madry said, felt that any vital information could be gotten over to commissioners with him as the department's spokesman. "He thought I could do a better job than he could."

"Besides," he chuckled, "I'm a more accurate representation of the sanitation department since most of the employees are black."

The city presently employs 12 sanitation workers. But a study had been ordered by commissioners weeks ago to explore ways of keeping garbage collection rates where they are currently.

Madry, along with 11 other workers operating in four-man crews, service some 4,300 households in the Altamonte Springs area. Residents are paying $5.50 a month in sanitation fees.

If this proposal is given the go-ahead by city commissioners who will take an official vote on June 23, the four-man crew structure would be altered to three.

Two persons would be eliminated from the department according to seniority, but Mayor Hugh Harling said the severance pay policy would be applied as the workers are incorporated into some other areas of the city as skills qualify them.

Members of the sanitation department seem pretty agreeable with this proposal. Commissioners had previously looked at other plans for keeping down sanitation fees including the employment of a franchised collection service operated by a private company and the use of an automated 82-gallon cart collection system.

But Tuesday, things seemed pretty good with Madry as the work session ended about 8 p.m. After all, commissioners were looking quite favorable at this particular plan.

Maybe elected officials aren't so bad after all. And if you go in with the right frame of mind, politics can be pretty interesting. At least, that's what Madry says.

"When you consider that I've worked with the city five years, you'd know that I know a little bit about what's going on all over," he said.

"I kind of enjoyed myself at the meeting. You learn a lot of things just listening to what different people have to say on certain things."

When asked why Eitchberger felt like he was so vital to the garbage collection operation of the city, he just smiled and said:

"Well, we have four trucks — three are automatic and the other one is a standard. And everybody, except me, just hates to drive that truck," Madry said. "Nobody seems to care much about shifting gears. But I don't mind it."

ROBERT WALTERS

Union Official With Vision

DENVER (NEA) — When Tony Mazzocchi is in the midst of his rapid-fire description of his vision of America's future (which is almost all of the time), he faintly resembles Woody Allen and sounds vaguely like Archie Bunker.

But what Mazzocchi is saying probably is unmatched anywhere in the nation. A self-described "junior high school drop-out," the 55-year-old native of Brooklyn, N.Y., may be the country's most thoughtful and visionary union official.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader, who rarely offers extravagant praise of others' work, unequivocally describes Mazzocchi as "the finest labor leader in this country today." From other come equally lavish appraisals.

Mazzocchi is health and safety director of the Denver-based Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers, a union whose approximately 150,000 members are employed in three of the nation's riskiest categories of industrial facilities.

In oil refineries, chemical installations and nuclear plants throughout the country, OCAW members daily face the danger of being exposed to toxic or carcinogenic materials that not only affect their health and mortality but also may irrevocably disfigure or retard their offspring.

"We think we die substantially before the rest of the population," says Mazzocchi. "We think our children have more birth defects."

To deal with those elusive, complex and controversial issues, Mazzocchi has organized a pioneering health and safety program unmatched by any other union.

The OCAW has initiated the world's only study of birth defects linked directly to the work-place environment of the parents. In addition, the union is conducting joint studies of occupational health problems with prestigious medical organizations, including the National Cancer Institute and the Harvard School of Public Health.

"The same innovative things we've done in health and safety I want to do in economics," says Mazzocchi — and that's why he is a candidate for OCAW's international presidency even though the man currently holding that job is seeking re-election.

In 1979, when Mazzocchi and Robert F. Goas first faced each other in the contest for the union presidency, Goas won, but his margin of victory was only about 3,000 votes out of approximately 163,000 cast.

The 1981 rerun, to be held at the union's biennial convention here in mid-August, will pit pro-Goas delegates from the West and Great Plains against Mazzocchi supporters concentrated in the South and East.

What makes that election significant beyond the OCAW context is Mazzocchi's inspired (cynics would call it naive) vision of a union and its members enthusiastically committed to attaining economic, social and political justice.

Violence Takes On Personal Meaning

WASHINGTON — Battle scenes in faraway places, which seem so remote on the television screen, can suddenly become personal when a friend gets involved. I took an intensely personal interest in the shelling of an obscure Falangist outpost in the mountains east of Beirut the other day. The exploding shrapnel almost hit my roving correspondent, Peter Grant.

The indefatigable Grant had gone to that dreary, shell-pocked, painfully divided piece of earth called Lebanon to seek some insight into the complex struggle between Moslem and Christian forces. He headed straight for the front lines to see for himself what the fighting was all about.

My reporter, escorted by a 28-year-old militiaman named Claude, arrived at a Falangist command post in a ski lodge early on a Sunday morning. Below them, the Mediterranean sparkled in the sun. Patches of melting snow were pocked by mortar shellholes.

EDUCATION WORLD

Elementary Guidelines

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Education Editor

When it's time to "play ball" or any other sport in the elementary school set, it's important to remember that young children are not miniature adults.

So says the American Academy of Pediatrics Committee on Pediatric Aspects of Physical Fitness, Recreation and Sports, headed by Dr. Thomas E. Schaeffer.

The rules apply to sports sponsored by schools or other community agencies, says the committee.

Children in the 13-and-under category "are not miniature adults, they are boys and girls in the process of maturing into adults," the committee says in the current issue of Pediatrics, the academy's journal.

"They seek and can profit from suitable play opportunities, but the benefits do not come without prudent planning."

"High quality supervision and a broad range of physical education activities, including sports adapted to the needs and capacities of growing children, are required for a full realization of benefits."

"A sound physical education program includes a variety of competitive and recreational sports to guarantee that all children in the school system or community have a fair share of available funds, facilities, instruction and leadership."

"A varied sports program provides a meaningful experience for all children, not just the physically gifted, the well developed, or the precocious."

The pediatricians said lifetime-value sports suitable for elementary school age children include bowling, golf, skating, swimming, tennis and running.

Doctors say such sports have important effects on stamina and physiologic functioning.

The committee sees "no physical reason to separate preadolescent children by sex in sports, physical education and recreational activities."

"However girls should not participate against pubertal and postpubertal boys in heavy collision sports because of the risk of serious injury due to their lesser muscle mass per unit of body weight," the committee said.

Collision-risk sports include baseball, basketball, football, ice hockey, soccer, softball and wrestling.

"The hazards of these types of competition, when proper safeguards are provided, are debatable," the committee said.

"The risks are usually associated with the conditions under which practice and play are conducted and the quality of supervision."

"Boxing should not be included in programs for children of elementary school age because its goal is injury; the educational benefits attributed to boxing can be realized through other sports activities."

The pediatricians said an exemplary program for inter-school or community athletics will:

—Limit participation to children in the upper elementary grades.

—Require parental permission for each child.

—Provide qualified leadership for the planning and conduct of competitive athletic programs for children.

—Contain a schedule of contests (frequency and hour) appropriate for young children.

—Keep activities limited to a neighborhood or community without playoffs, bowl contests, or all-star contests.

ROBERT WAGMAN

They've Got The Wrong Men

WASHINGTON (NEA) — We previously reported on the battle of newspaper and television advertisements between the National Conservative Political Action Committee and several new liberal-Democratic groups.

NCPAC has already started its campaign to defeat liberal Democrats who will be up for re-election in 1982. And the opposing groups have responded with advertisements pointing to the boast of NCPAC Chairman Terry Dolan that an organization like his could live without damaging the candidate it supported.

NCPAC has again been caught a little short on its facts.

The organization recently sent out a letter seeking money to defeat 15 senators who it calls "dangerous" because of "their liberal records." The letter named some of those senators and cited their voting records as proof of their evil liberal ways.

But NCPAC didn't get those records correct.

For instance, NCPAC claimed that Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont., and Dennis de Concini, D-Ariz., supported abortion. It then listed Melcher and Sen. Quentin Burdick, D-N.D., as having favored "the giving away of the Panama Canal."

In fact, Melcher and de Concini have been outspoken opponents of abortion, and Melcher and Burdick voted against the Panama Canal treaties.

The letter also listed Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., as an opponent of increased defense spending. That would come as a surprise to anyone familiar with Jackson's record as one of the Senate's foremost hawks.

Dolan says that the mistakes were "typographical errors" and has written a letter of apology to Melcher.

Much has been made of how the Reagan White House wooed conservative Democrats in the hours before the crucial final vote on the president's budget package.

For instance, one Southern Democrat reported that in a single day he had been called by the president, the vice president, the secretary of the treasury and the director of the Office of Management and Budget. He also received invitations to a state dinner and to the presidential box at the Kennedy Center. His wife was asked to join the first lady as co-host of a charity affair.

But insiders say that the minds of several wavering Democrats were changed not by pep talks or White House dinner but by promises that no one in the administration would campaign for their opponents in 1982. That is the kind of promise that a legislator under pressure can understand and upon which he can base an important vote.

war still seemed remote to me," Grant wrote. It didn't seem possible the invisible Syrians could pose any danger.

"But suddenly I heard the unmistakable whine of an incoming shell — close. I heard somebody yell, but it was too late. The shell burst about 15 yards away on the path we had just come down. The concussion almost knocked me over, but I was able to join the mad dash into the bunker."

"Then I looked back and saw one of the soldiers, a 17-year-old named Jacques waving his M-16 wildly. His left arm dangled uselessly, nearly severed by a shrapnel wound near the elbow. His right arm was also bleeding. In a gesture of rage of defiance, he emptied his M-16 in the air."

The wounded soldier was lifted onto the truck. Grant and his escort clambered aboard. Thus began an intimate, harrowing struggle to keep the young soldier from bleeding to death on a wild ride down the mountain.

"I gave Claude my handkerchief, which he used as a tourniquet, while I tried to keep some pressure on the largest wound," Grant wrote. "Finally, the ambulance that had been radioed for met us and sped off to the hospital in Beirut."

Claude had been wounded four times and wore an artificial arm. When Grant expressed dismay over young Jacques, Claude shrugged and said, "This is not a picnic, it's war. If it was a picnic, I would have brought along my girlfriend."

They stopped by a waterfall on the mountain to wash the wounded soldier's blood from their hands and clothes. "Human beings are very ugly on the inside," Claude observed.

Footnote: Grant inquired about Jacques two days later. He was told the young man will at least regain the use of his right arm. The doctors were still hoping they wouldn't have to amputate the left arm.

Graham: No Veto, But He'll Call Special Session

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Lawmakers have passed a budget, ended their special session and left town but Gov. Bob Graham says he'll summon them back to the capitol this summer.

After the Senate joined the House in approving a $9 billion spending plan Wednesday, Graham told reporters he does not intend to veto the entire package. But he said he'll call a special session for the legislators to repair what he thinks is a critical oversight — funding for local governments.

Although the spending plan represents "significant positive action in a number of important areas," Graham said, it leaves many cities and counties in a financial crisis.

He accused lawmakers of abdicating their responsibility to give local governments the additional revenue sources they need for law enforcement, jails and other needs.

"Since April, the people of our state have watched as their concerns, dilemmas and hopes took back seat to individual legislators' personal aspirations, parochial political pork barrels and invidious grandstanding," the governor said.

"Factions placed their status ahead of the public business and minority parties placed their future election rhetoric ahead of public safety," he added. "Gamesmanship has replaced statesmanship."

After the Senate voted 30-9 to accept the budget approved the previous night by the House, leaders of both houses said they thought any Graham veto would be overridden.

But they said Graham might have a chance at convincing the two houses to increase local government revenue sources if he waits at least a month before calling another special session.

Graham had sought a local option quarter-cent increase in the sales tax to meet county and city funding needs. He also had wanted the current eight-cents-per-gallon gas tax to be indexed so it rose with the price of fuel.

Both were rejected by the Legislature.

The Senate's passage of the House-approved budget represented a victory for Sen. Dempsey Barron, D-Panama City, and his coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats.

Senate President W.D. Childers, who lost control of the budget to the Barron group, did not attempt to prevent it from reaching a vote.

Barron had feared the budget would be bottled up by parliamentary maneuvering but said a check of the rules for a special session revealed that at most, Childers could have only delayed the vote.

"The inevitable obviously became known and the president in his wisdom decided to allow the majority to be heard and I commend him for it," Barron told reporters.

After the Senate vote, Childers said, "They have the votes. We have the chair. We have the calendar. I would say the coalition is still intact but I would also say the rules are intact and will remain intact."

Marriage

Inmates Have Right To Marry District Appeal Court Rules

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — The 1st District Court of Appeal has ruled that the right to marry is not among the civil rights a convicted felon loses when he goes to prison.

The decision was a blow to Secretary of Corrections Louie Wainwright who has been using the felon law to turn down inmate applications to marry.

Wainwright claimed that the law automatically suspending the civil rights of a convicted felon included marriage among other rights — like voting — that can be restored only by the governor and Cabinet.

The 3-0 decision came in a lawsuit brought on behalf of Samuel Washington.

But Washington, who was sentenced to prison in 1976 for aggravated sexual battery, was paroled before the ruling came down and three weeks ago at a ceremony in Gainesville he married his fiancée, Anna Holden.

Richard Belz of Florida Institutional Legal Services Inc., Washington's attorney, said the decision paves the way for several inmates to marry women who gave birth to their children while the fathers were in prison.

He said the department has adopted a rule permitting marriages to legitimize unborn babies or babies already born or in the final year of an inmate on work-release.

At the same time, Belz said, Wainwright has been refusing to authorize any marriages on the grounds that they are prohibited by state law.

Belz thinks that rule is too restrictive and is challenging it in a separate suit in U.S. District Court in Jacksonville.

The suit challenges the right of an executive agency of government to adopt a rule that acts as "nearly a total prohibition" to inmate marriages.

Belz feels the DCA ruling that there is no statutory bar to such marriages will help his federal case.

The DCA has held in a prior decision that prison inmates have no fundamental right to marry and that non-inmates have no fundamental right to marry inmates.

Divorce

Fathers Now Have Better Chance For Child Custody, Study Says

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Even divorced fathers have something to celebrate this Father's Day — their chances of winning custody of their children are improving, says a University of Florida law professor.

"Things are getting better for (divorced) fathers," Francis McCoy, who teaches family law at UF, said Wednesday. "Florida statutes don't say that mothers have any special rights or benefits. Fathers are a lot better off whether the kids are little or not than they were just 10 years ago."

In a recent decision, the Alabama Supreme Court found unconstitutional a rule that said, all things being equal, mothers should be given custody of children of "tender years."

The Alabama court said fathers should have equal rights in child custody cases.

Florida judges have sometimes cited the now-defunct Alabama law in their decisions to award custody to mothers, McCoy said. Perhaps now, he added, they will follow Alabama's lead and consider father's rights equally.

No national law spelling out child custody rights exists, but "traditionally, if children are of tender years, and that has been interpreted as being as old as 8 or 10, and all things are equal, the mother gets them," he said.

In cases involving only one young child in a family of teenagers, the mother usually is given all the children because judges try to keep the children together, he added.

Even when both parents cannot be considered equal — if the mother has a drinking problem, for example — judges tend to award young children to the mother if she is trying to control her problem, McCoy said. But that, too, is changing.

Slowly but steadily judges now are starting to treat fathers more equitably, especially when older children are involved, McCoy said.

The women's movement and the fact that more and more parents share child care and household chores have contributed to a different view of fathers, Dr. Felix Berardo, a UF sociology professor said.

"There clearly is a shift on the part of the father in assuming more of a role in child care than in the past," Berardo said. "At the same time, there's been a shift in the custody laws. Fathers are not being given equal rights, but there is some change taking place."

Prison Disturbance Quelled

JACKSON, Mich. (UPI) — Guards at Southern Michigan Prison used tear gas today to quell a disturbance touched off by two inmates who set fire to mattresses, paper and other items in their cells.

One guard suffered minor injuries while helping to quell the disturbance in the prison's troubled 4 block, officials said. The prison was the scene of two riots in a five-day span last month.

43 Percent Of Pesticides Used In Florida Illegal

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) — Forty-three percent of the pesticides used in Florida are illegal and, in some cases, unsafe, a University of Florida survey showed Wednesday.

Richard Lipsey, a former UF professor now vice president for research at Kenco Chemical and Manufacturing Co. in Jacksonville, conducted the 18-month, $213,000 survey.

Lipsey blamed both homeowners and farmers for the widespread use of illegal bug killers and asked, "If we're misusing them, what's going on in the rest of the country?"

Statewide figures in Lipsey's study showed 86 percent of the pesticides used on pastureland in Florida and 83 percent of those used in poultry farming have been banned by the state or federal government.

The survey found eight pesticides not meant for household use being applied by homeowners. Among them were DBCP, which Lipsey said was taken off the market because it temporarily sterilizes men. Also used were disulfoton, ethoprop and methomyl, each of which is lethal, in small amounts for humans, Lipsey said.

Coptics' Pot Trial Closing

MIAMI (UPI) — A parade of eight defense attorneys is expected to bring to a close today the nine-week marijuana-smuggling trial of members of the Ethiopian Zion Coptic Church, and the federal jury could begin deliberating by evening.

Final arguments, which began Wednesday will resume this morning, to be followed by prosecutors' rebuttals and the charge to the jury by U.S. District Judge William Hoover.

The nine defendants are members of the Jamaican-based church that holds marijuana to be a sacrament. Church members say they smoke pot for religious reasons at their mansion on swank Star Island in Biscayne Bay.

First Federal Deposits 19-11 Victory

Davis Dividend Deadlocks City Series

By SAM COOK

Herald Sports Editor

First Federal's Coach Sid Griffin and Atlantic Bank's Coach Eddie Korgan Sr. both reached into the vault Wednesday night to draw out reserve capital for the second clash for the Little Major City Championship.

Griffin's withdrawal of Calvin Davis paid the bigger dividend as the slender right hander pitched and hit First Federal past Atlantic Bank 19-11 to even the series at one game apiece heading into Friday's 7:30 p.m. title showdown at Ft. Mellon Park.

While Davis and Atlantic starter Clay Hickman were both undefeated going into the contest, their records were a bit deceiving since they were compiled against some of the league's lesser teams.

Nothing, however, was deceiving about Davis' bat work. "Cool Calvin" slapped two singles, hit a two-run homer, scored four runs and batted in five teammates.

For the two-game set, Davis is 5-for-5 with two homers, seven runs scored and six RBI.

Wednesday night, Davis and his mates went into the Atlantic vault early and often. The Feds put up a five spot in each of the first two innings.

In both innings, Federal sent nine men to the plate. Spunky catcher Rickey Crisp started both rallies. The first with a double from where he scored on a single up the middle by Andy Griffin.

Shortstop Craig Dixon followed with a double and Davis made his first deposit with a smash past the befuddled Hickman for two RBI. Davis and Willie Walton later scored on wild pitches to give the Feds a 5-0 bulge.

Atlantic returned the favor immediately.

Richard Inman doubled, while Mike Luster and Scott Waisanen worked Davis for walks as Inman scored on a wild pitch. Lead off man Les Thomas drew another pass which lead to another run on a wild pitch.

David Rape reached on an error to plate run number three, but was picked off second when he strayed too far. Slugger Eddie Korgan Jr., who was pitched carefully all night, drew another base on balls before Hickman drilled a double off the right center-field fence to score the final two runs and knot the game at 5-5.

Undaunted, Federal rebuilt its lead to 10-5 in the bottom of the second. The key hits were a two-run round-tripper to right field by Griffin and RBI double by Davis. Dixon and Walton both doubled, while Shane Lee singled to rough up Hickman. Griffin's turned out to be the game-winning hit.

Atlantic Bank refused to obey the closing hours, however. Korgan socked a mile-high two-run home run—number 15—and Rape and Brian Benson both had doubles as Atlantic crawled within 10-9 in the top of the third inning.

The one-run differential, though, lasted as long as it takes to say Calvin Davis. After Tim McMullan walked and Griffin rapped his third straight hit, Dixon played one when Korgan made a nice play in the hole to throw out Dixon.

Davis then nailed a pitch way over the left center field fence to holst the lead to 13-9.

Federal finally put the game out of reach in the fifth inning by pushing across six runs on just one hit.

The highlight of the inning was a 70-foot sacrifice fly which Rape caught behind the bag at first, but fell down, allowing the alert Dixon to race home from third. When Rape threw the ball past the catcher, Davis never stopped at third base to score the 19th run.

Korgan went to relievers John Shuler and Waisanen in the fifth, but nothing could stem the rush of Federal deposits at home plate as three errors also helped the deluge.

Friday night, however, it will be back to the aces of the staff. Korgan, who pitched the 11-4 first-game victory, will oppose Dixon, who was the loser.

Calvin Davis (far right) slides home safely with one of his four runs scored on the night as Atlantic Bank pitcher Clay Hickman is knocked down by the collision and umpire Henry DeBose gets set to make the call. Davis, First Federal's right-handed pitcher, also socked a home run as Federal deadlocked the city championship series at one game each. The championship clash takes place Friday at 7:30 p.m. at Ft. Mellon Park.

Miller Muffles Apopka Aluminum

Charlie Miller struck out 12 and spaced five hits as Altamonte Post 183 dumped Apopka 5-1 Wednesday afternoon for its third win in four league outings.

Miller helped himself to the only runs he needed in the top of the first when he followed leadoff hitter Dave Martinez's base on balls with a triple to the right-centerfield fence. Miller scored later in the inning when Mike Andriano looped a single into short rightfield to give Altamonte a 2-0 lead.

Altamonte picked up three more runs in the top of the third off losing hurler Rodney Brewer. Andriano reached second on a two-base error and scored on a single by first baseman John Reich.

Shortstop Tony Dimaruo crashed a double off the left-field fence to push Reich across the plate and scored on a pair of wild pitches.

Apopka center fielder Gary Sackett doubled and came around to score their lone run off Miller in the bottom of the fourth. The 6-foot-1 right-hander settled down to fan the side in the fifth and sixth innings.

Rich Tops Oviedo; Frank 4-Hits Hospital

Rich Plan exploded early and late for an 11-6 victory over Oviedo Auto Parts to forge a one-game Wednesday lead in the Sanford Men's "A" Softball League with two games to play. The victory moved the Rich Plan record to 9-4 with Oviedo Auto Parts and Sunniland one game in arrears. Catcher Eddie Jackson crashed a homer to center field in the first inning and later added a single to pace the Plan attack. Rod Turner also homered for Rich Plan. Lloyd Wall and Bob Robinson chipped three singles apiece for the losers.

Burnette Washington picked up the victory despite allowing 16 hits. Jim Williams was the loser.

Rich Plan took a 3-0 lead after one inning, but Oviedo rebounded with a big four-run third inning. The Parts store, however, came back with four in the fifth to snap a 5-5 tie.

In the evening's second game, Chris Frank tossed a four-hitter and struck out two as Sunniland dropped Seminole Hospital 13-2.

Steve Ferrell tripled and singled twice to lead the Sunniland 17-hit attack. Chuck McMullan slugged a home run and singled. Danny Horn rapped two singles for Seminole Hospital.

In the "B" League standings, Cooper's Pub, Riggs Healy and Burger Chef are all tied for the second half lead with three games to play.

Snead: Ballplayers Are 'Nuts'

ARDMORE, Pa. (UPI) — Professional golfers pride themselves on being prime examples of free American enterprise. They make only what they earn and aren't guaranteed a dime, so you can imagine how much sympathy the golfers here at the U.S. Open have for the striking major league ballplayers.

The most outspoken is J.C. Snead, who started out as a professional ballplayer 19 years ago in the Washington Senators' chain, then stuck his bat back in the rack in favor of a golf club. The switch didn't work out badly, either, considering he has earned more than $1.1 million since giving up the outfield for the fairway.

"I think they're nuts," Snead said of the striking players. "What do they want? I can't imagine guys making that kind of money and still bitching. They talk about all the traveling they do and how it wears 'em out. Well, I've traveled more than they have since the first of the year and I've worked my ears off and I haven't made what some of them do just for sitting on the bench."

Snead, 39, the Virginia-born nephew of Sammy Snead, has won $46,421 so far this year. He isn't going by anything he reads in the newspapers. He knows first-hand.

"I rode those raggedy buses and made the hamburger circuit on $7 meal money a day," he said. "My salary was $250 a month when I started out and I got up to $500 a month before switching to golf. Guys like me and all the others out here on the circuit get paid on performance only. I'd like to see the ballplayers do that. Once they sign their contracts, a lot of 'em act like they don't give a damn."

O-Twins, Brothers Rains On Display At Sanford Stadium

The fireworks display should start early July 4th when the Orlando Twins invade Sanford Memorial Stadium for an 11 a.m. game with Knoxville.

The O-Twins are moving the game to Wes Rinker's stadium complex due to a conflict with Rock Super Bowl 11, which is being held adjacent to Tinker Field at the Tangerine Bowl.

"We still have a few details to work out," said O-Twins General Manager Bob Willis. "But it looks pretty set. We have to clear it through Billy Hitchcock (Southern League president) and clear the game time with Knoxville."

Rinker plans to have some prizes available for the evening. While the strike lingers on, Montreal left fielder Tim Raines has decided not to let his skills rust.

Raines will join brothers Levi, Ned and Sam Friday night when the Sanford All Stars clash with arch-rivals Orlando Red Caps at 7:30 p.m. at Sanford Memorial Stadium.

Raines, who swiped five bases in an exhibition game last Sunday, said he doesn't worry about getting hurt and jeopardizing his career. "I could get hurt walking across the street," reasoned Tim.

"Besides, I'm unemployed," he joked Tuesday morning referring to the current strike by major league ballplayers. —SAM COOK

Well-Supported Kromy, O-Twins Terrorize Suns 10-0

Orlando Twins hurler Ted Kromy received all the support he needed Wednesday night in Jacksonville.

Kromy spaced six hits and was backed up by four home runs as the O-Twins terrorized Jacksonville 10-0. The Twins complete the two-game set tonight before returning home Friday for "Pepsi Night" at Tinker Field. Fans can receive discounted tickets at Wendy's restaurants.

Steve Douglas started the homer barrage in the first inning when he bashed his third of the season for a 1-0 edge. Gary Gaetti slugged a three-run shot in the third.

Catcher Tim Lauder rapped a lead-off blast in the seventh inning. The blow was his 17th which ties him for the league lead. Lance Halberg duplicated Lauder's lead-off round-tripper to open the ninth inning.

The O-Twins have already clinched the East Division of the Southern League with just two games to play in the first half.

Talks Indicate Lengthy Strike

NEW YORK (UPI) — With all signs indicating a lengthy baseball strike, federal mediator Kenneth Moffett did just about the only thing he could do: told everyone to take a rest.

"I suggested that both sides leave here, rethink their positions and come back Friday at 3 p.m. prepared to move forward, address the issues and try to reach agreement," Moffett said in summing up Wednesday's unproductive session.

The strike entered its seventh day today and the number of canceled games reached 87. Moffett failed to bring the parties together and sensed that continuing the session could do more harm than good.

"After shuffling back and forth for several hours," said Moffett, "I suggested to both sides it would serve no purpose to get together, since neither side had any new proposals."

"I felt if we did get together, the already deadlocked positions would possibly deteriorate into a worse situation."

"I think both sides are interested in resolving their differences but I don't think either side is going to get this resolved if they stand pat."

Despite Moffett's urgings, neither side budged. In fact, both showed signs of more resolve, with the players threatening to remove their proposals for free-agent compensation and the owners making a show of their unity.

The owners released a statement reiterating support of the Players Relations Committee, the group handling the negotiations.

"The Executive Council and an overwhelming majority of club owners consider outrageous and counterproductive to the resolution of the current collective bargaining issues, reports of owner dissatisfaction with the Player Relations Committee and totally disassociate themselves from such views," the statement said.

Miss Ridilla, D.C. Hancock Repeat Vows

Cynthia Ann Ridilla became the bride of David Carlyle Hancock on June 13, in a candlelight ceremony wedding at the Altamonte Chapel, First United Church of Christ, Altamonte Springs. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. P. Paul Ridilla and Mr. and Mrs. Carlyle Hancock III, of Casselberry.

The Rev. Wayne Smith officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white chiffon wedding gown with sweetheart neckline and full length train. Chantilly lace embroidered with iridescent beads and seed pearls covered the bodice and long fitted sleeves, and was applied on the skirt and trim. She wore her sister Linda's lace appliqued illusion veil held by a lace butterfly cap accented with seed pearls. Her bouquet was a cascade of white orchids, stephanotis, pale pink and white sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

Carla Hancock, sister of the groom, was maid of honor; and attending their sister as bridesmaids were: Linda Johnson, Pamela Ridilla, Cathy Ridilla, and Amy Ridilla. Amanda Hendrickson also served as a bridesmaid and Jennifer Ridilla, niece of the bride, was the flower girl.

They wore matching gowns of pale pink, ruffled chiffon and tulle trimmed picture hats. Each carried a white lace basket filled with pink sweetheart roses, miniature carnations, daisies, and baby's breath with pink ribbons.

A path of rose petals leading to the groom was gently dropped by Jennifer as she preceded the bride to the altar.

The bridegroom's father was best man. Ushers were John Ridilla, brother of the bride; Barry Johnson, brother-in-law of the bride; John and Fred Rains, cousins of the groom; Carl Christenberry and Handy Pruitt. All gentlemen in the wedding party were attired in cutaways.

A garden dinner reception followed the ceremony at Seven Oaks, home of the bride. The pink and white theme was repeated in table coverings and centerpieces. The gardens were illuminated by candlelight and twinkle lights in the trees. Mrs. Ernest Johnson served punch to the guests, and Mrs. Harry Gore cut and served the three-tiered wedding cake.

The father of the bride asked guests to join him in proposing a toast to his new son-in-law and for the bride and groom's happiness.

Out-of-town members of the wedding party and guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Ridilla, Jennifer, Clifty and Kevin, Latrobe, Pa.; Amanda and Mrs. Susan Hendrickson, Ft. Lauderdale; Mrs. Harry Gore, Greensburg, Pa.; Mrs. C. C.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID CARLYLE HANCOCK

Hancock Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Steve Pitts, Timothy and David; Fred Rains, Mrs. Jack Rains, all of Birmingham, Ala.; Carl Christenberry of Auburn, Ala., and Mr. and Mrs. George Bell, Foley, Ala.

Prenuptial parties in honor of the couple included a rehearsal dinner hosted by Mr. and Mrs. C. Carlyle Hancock III, at Maison Et Jardin, where the bride and groom were serenaded by a guitarist and toasted to health and happiness by the father of the groom.

Showers for the bride were given by Mrs. Joseph Clark, Mrs. Don Barton and Mrs. Joseph Kariberg; and by Cathy and Amy Ridilla.

The groom was toasted at a bachelor party given by the groomsmen.

The bride attended Troy State University, Troy, Ala., and University of Central Florida, and is employed at Jacobsen's in Winter Park. The groom also attended Troy State University and University of Central Florida, majoring in engineering, and is employed by Airco Welding Supply.

Following a wedding trip to Captiva, Sanibel Island, the newlyweds will be residing in their new home in Genova Woods, Oviedo.

Widower Wants Woman With Health, Not Wealth

DEAR ABBY: I may be the first 60-year-old man to ask you for advice, but I need some help. After 37 years of a good marriage, my dear wife passed away last year. Now I would like to meet a sensible woman to invite out or to my home occasionally.

My friends want to fix me up with women who are much too young for me. (A man who has daughters 53 and 55 years old does not want to go out with a woman who is 40 or even 50. In fact, I don't want a woman who is under 70!)

I'm not interested in any woman's money as I retired with substantial income. I am in good health, play tennis three times a week, and walk no less than five miles every day, rain or shine. I enjoy traveling and can do anything a man half my age can do, but I don't go overboard on anything.

I would like a refined woman with a good sense of humor who doesn't run to doctors every day, and preferably one who can play a good game of gin rummy.

So where is she?

LOOKING IN N.Y. DEAR ABBY: Have you looked in Florida and California? There are more women there who fit your description than in all the other states combined. But I warn you, if your identity ever becomes known, you'll have to give up walking and start running or get a bicycle.

DEAR ABBY: I have neighbors who are very good people and I don't want to get them into trouble, but lately they've been doing something that is terribly wrong, although their intentions are good.

They have an 11-year-old son who started to wet the bed about a year ago. They took him to a doctor who found nothing physically wrong with him, so they took him to a psychiatrist. He said the boy was all right, so they just assumed he could quit wetting the bed if he really wanted to. If he woke up wet, they padded him, and made him wash his own pajamas and sheets every morning.

Now they put a diaper on him and make him play outside in the front yard wearing only a diaper, a T-shirt, shoes and socks! All the kids tease him. He's a nice, polite kid, and I hate to see him humiliated this way.

Maybe if the parents see this in the paper they will change their tactics. I hope so.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

DEAR JACKSONVILLE: Well-meaning or not, those parents are being unspeakably cruel to the boy. Should they miss this column, please suggest that they buy a Wee Alert Wet Buzzer (Sears catalog lists it). I have recommended this inexpensive device for years, and according to my readers, it's worked wonders.

DEAR ABBY: We have no ashtrays in our home as a signal to smokers that we do not want them to smoke. (My wife is allergic to cigarette smoke.)

We recently gave a dinner party. There were four smokers present who lit their cigarettes from the candles on the table and dropped the ashes on their plates! They puffed all through dinner. It was disgusting.

How can a host and hostess keep their guests from smoking, short of asking them not to?

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: Most smokers have become more considerate. They ask if anyone objects before they light up. Those who light up without asking should be told at once that their smoke is offensive.

Singers Set Membership Night

The Sound of Sunshine Chapter of Sweet Adelines Inc. will hold membership night June 26, at 8 p.m., at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, 9913 Bear Lake Road, Orlando.

A wedding theme will be carried out in a hat contest which will feature the bride, bridesmaid and mother of the bride in the prettiest, funniest, largest, smallest, most useful and most unusual hat.

Entertainment will include selections from Elicetra Quartet and Ambrosia Quartet under the direction of Nancy Lewis. Camille Wilcox will be the mistress of ceremonies.

The public is invited. Refreshments will be served.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Friday, June 19, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY June 19, 1981
This cunning year you could be quite lucky and successful with projects or ventures in which you use the very latest techniques and equipment.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23) Much can be accomplished today, provided you don't let old grudges color your thinking.
BAGIATARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The flow from a source from which you're anticipating returns may be shut off today, but you could reap rewards from an area you've never tapped before.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you have to make a choice today between satisfying a self-interest or improving your relationship with a friend, be sure to choose the latter.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Today, if you see that the methods you are using aren't working out, discard them promptly.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Even if asked today, think twice before trying to manage something for another which he or she can't handle individually.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Have alternative ready today.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't be hesitant to seek advice today if you're stymied by something you can't figure out.

Exercise Mind, Body Ward Off Senility

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am an 82-year-old woman and have a great fear of becoming senile. My mother became senile when she was my age. I have read several places that niacin helps prevent senility. When I have tried it, my face gets very red and burns like fire for half an hour, so I'm wondering why and if I should take it. Others have taken it and said they had the same effect. Will you please discuss this in your column? Could it be dangerous?
DEAR READER — I don't recommend it. Niacin is an important vitamin; if you are sufficiently deficient in it you could have pellagra, a disease associated with mental changes. Pellagra was once an important nutritional disease, particularly in the South, where some people subsisted on inadequate diets based primarily on corn and corn products.
Good food sources of niacin include liver, meat, poultry and mature bean seeds. In addition, the body can convert tryptophan found in complete proteins to niacin.
Now, large doses of niacin have been used to try to prevent fatty-cholesterol deposits in arteries that lead to strokes and heart attacks. That is not done so much anymore. It will cause the severe flushing you are complaining about. It can also cause problems with the liver as well as flushing of the rectum which leads to rectal irritation and it irritates the entire digestive tract.
You are wise to consider preventive measures to avoid mental changes with age. I am sending you The Health Letter number 14-2, The Aging Mind, which will help you in this regard. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1581, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.
Stay active, stay lean, stay healthy.

involved. Maintain goals. Use your mind. Protect your health. Keep your eyesight and hearing in the best possible shape so you can continue to interact with your environment and exercise your brain. These measures, including memory training, all help to keep your brain functioning at the best capacity for the longest time. Good nutrition is important but that does not include fads such as taking excess niacin that you don't need.
DEAR DR. LAMB — I have little red veins on my nose and cheeks. Sometime ago I read in your column of a drug that helps. But I don't remember the name of it. I asked my family doctor and he said there is nothing that would help. I would like so much to find something that would.
DEAR READER — You need to be sure of the diagnosis. But most dermatologists agree that tetracycline is useful in many cases. Commonly a full adult dose of one gram a day is used and if the condition begins to improve — usually in about a month — the dosage is gradually reduced to a level that will control the process. Often it requires long-term treatment for months or over a year. Relapses occur after treatment is withdrawn but it is worth the effort.
Hot beverages, including coffee, tea and alcohol, should be avoided. Superficial small vessels can be treated with a fine tip electrocautery. Perhaps your doctor would like to refer you to a dermatologist for a consultation.
Some patients who cannot use or are not affected by tetracycline, will benefit from Erythromycin.

WIN AT BRIDGE

the diamond ace or spade ace is in front of the king-queen he can establish an extra winner for a club discard. Failing that, he can still get off with one club loser with any luck at all in that suit.
Obviously, he should go after spades or diamonds as a starter. Which one? You readers can see that the spade ace is right and that if South starts on diamonds, East can take his ace and lead a club.
From a result standpoint, South must attack spades. From the standpoint of good bridge, he should also attack spades.
Why? Because if the spade ace is wrong, South has time to try diamonds and finally to fall back on clubs if diamonds are wrong also.
There is a further problem in play. Should South draw trumps? No. He wins the first heart with dummy's nine and leads a spade. East ducks and South takes his king. Back to dummy's jack of trumps to lead a second spade. East takes his ace, but now South can discard one of dummy's clubs on the spade queen and be sure of his contract.

Chinese Knew How To Stop Smoking

By FRANK EIDGE

MIAMI (UPI) — The Chinese found a method to stop the smoking habit 3,000 years ago, Dr. Roger F. Palmer says, and now he has proven it works.

"It's nothing new. It's called chemical acupuncture," said Palmer, a big and impatient research scientist with a salt-and-pepper moustache and beard.

Palmer almost shrugs when he says he can halt the physical addiction to cigarettes of a 4-pack-a-day smoker with a simple procedure. And without any appreciable weight gain, too, he adds.

"We've got something here that no other (stop-smoking) program has. We can stop cigarette addiction," he claims. "This approach is the only one that deals with addiction."

Palmer is more interested now in proving to the scientific world why the technique works. Spinoff research from the smoking study, he says, could lead to explanations of certain other addictions, why faith healers sometimes succeed, and maybe a new tool to treat some mental illnesses.

"I don't know why I got into this (smoking experiment). It was an accident. I'm a cardiologist and I've published 70 papers on other research," Palmer said.

"But this is the most fascinating thing I've ever done." Palmer, 50, is a professor of medicine and heads the Department of Pharmacology at the University of Miami. He has an impressive academic and professional background and holds top posts on several national medical boards and committees.

Palmer, who smokes only one or two cigars a week without inhaling, still laughs when recalling how he got hooked into what he first considered a charlatan stunt. Dr. Neill Solomon, who interned under him at Johns Hopkins Hospital, coaxed him into coming to Baltimore in January 1979.

Solomon, a newspaper columnist, had gone to Paris to check out a French physician's use of drug injections in the ear and nose to stop cigarette addiction. Back in the states, Solomon conducted his own experiment with the procedure on 13 patients — 12 of whom quit smoking — wrote about it in his column, and got a stern warning to desist from the Federal Drug Administration, Palmer said.

Solomon then asked Palmer to set up a double-blind research project that would peg the value of the technique, if any.

"I didn't want to do it, but finally agreed because Solomon is a good friend," Palmer said. "I flew to Baltimore with another friend, a lawyer who smoked four packs a day and also drinks a fifth of scotch a day."

Solomon had the Paris doctor on hand to give the lawyer the treatment.

"This Dr. Bicheron was something," Palmer laughed. "He has his head shaved, wears a monocle and carries on with a lot of hocus pocus. It got so bad, I and another friend had to leave the room. We cracked up laughing as soon as we got out."

His lawyer friend's reaction to the shots, however, convinced Palmer to design and conduct the research Solomon requested.

"We were in the Baltimore airport lounge for about two hours waiting for a plane back to Miami," Palmer said. "My friend was drinking, socializing and having a good time, but he didn't touch a cigarette the whole time and didn't smoke at all on the plane back."

"He said he didn't feel like it. In fact, he didn't smoke for two weeks. That convinced me."

What the French physician did to Palmer's friend was inject into the side of his nose and into a part of his outer ear a mixture of pain-numbing Procaine, vitamin B-1, and a compound not authorized in the United States but used widely Europe for treating arthritic pain, Palmer said.

Palmer set up 11 groups of 30 cigarette addicts each to receive shots without anyone, except the nurse preparing them, knowing who got what.

Only one group received the three-item dose used by the Frenchman. The others received different combinations of the three ingredients with saline solution. One group received shots of a saline solution only, one received shots of nothing, and another simply got a lecture on the harmful effects of smoking.

Each test subject was asked to pay $250 to cover the cost of the shots, medical histories, pulmonary and blood tests before treatment and several follow up visits to Palmer's three-room clinic in an aging building at Miami's Jackson Memorial Hospital.

All test participants were promised the full dose later if they had been placed in one of the placebo (saline solution) groups without any positive results.

Now, 1 1/2 years later, Palmer is writing his report on the tests for the medical journals.

"About 30 to 45 percent of all the groups — except two — had stopped smoking after one week," Palmer said. "There were only two significant differences. Only 10 percent of the needle-only group and of the talk-only group succeeded."

"In the saline-only group, 36.1 percent quit smoking after one week."

Palmer considered these results only a little better than some of the commercial and philanthropic stop-smoking programs.

"I realized we were telling everybody they might be receiving a placebo, so many thought they were and continued smoking in a day or two because they knew they would get the full shot later," he said.

"So I decided to do an unblinded study."

The results were dramatic — "86 percent success," he said. Palmer found out other things. "There is no significant weight gain after they stop smoking. The most any one (of the 330) gained was seven pounds."

"And we found there is no difference in the stuff injected. We run out of the other stuff occasionally and use just a saline solution and it works just as well," he said.

Palmer said he and his small staff have refined their techniques and "we're running right now about 96 percent success."

"After they get the shots, people say they have no desire for cigarettes."

"We even found that money makes no difference. Some couldn't pay the $250 but it works with them, too."

Palmer cautioned that: "This is no cure-all."

Three months after the shots, he said, about 50 percent resume smoking. "I estimate the success rate drops to about 33 percent after a year."

The reason is that the shots "remove the physical addiction and withdrawal reactions" that accompany a "cold turkey" halt to smoking.

But the treatment does not cure one's mental afflictions or stresses that might have started them smoking in the first place.

"Everyone has to return to his own ghetto," observed Palmer, who has become an expert on smoking in the past 18 months. "They remember that cigarettes helped them relax."

"They're not going to stay off, because they're people."

Palmer now is referring patients wrestling with the mental aspects of smoking to a psychologist colleague. He says the combined injection-psychological approach can produce cures in most smokers. He offers booster shots for physical addiction problems every three months at a cost of $25.

"Just think of it — clinics all around the country curing cigarette smokers of the habit. How many smokers are there — 60 million? We might put the cigarette factories out of business," he chuckled.

Palmer has already received job offers to set up such clinics, but he says he's only interested in the research — not the commercial aspects.

When U.S. Embassy officials later rejected their application for political asylum, the Siberian Seven took up residence in a storage room in the embassy's basement. There they remain to this day, three years

The Room In The Basement

Political Non-Asylum For The Siberian Seven

WASHINGTON (NEA) — It's no secret that citizens of the Soviet Union have a most difficult time trying to emigrate from that stubborn country. But sometimes the suffering they endure in the attempt is not so well known. The extraordinary case of the "Siberian Seven" may be a noteworthy example.

The seven are members of two Russian families, the Vashchenkos and the Chmykhalovs. They are Christian people, fundamentalist Pentacostals, and some time in the 1960s they decided to leave their birthplace to seek religious freedom in the West. Specifically, they put their hopes on the United States.

To this end, they traveled back and forth between their Siberian community and the U.S. Embassy in Moscow. Each time they were told they would have to apply for Soviet exit permission. When they did that, however, permission was denied, and members of the families were harassed or even imprisoned.

So, in June 1978, the Vashchenkos and Chmykhalovs tried a different tack. They went to the U.S. Embassy to apply for political asylum. When embassy officials said that was impossible, the applicants said they would not leave the building, and then took up residence in a storage room in the basement.

There they remain to this day, three years later. The situation is not altogether unprecedented. U.S. embassies have periodically given shelter to other foreign nationals. A Soviet physician is currently under refuge at the embassy in Malta, for example. And the Hungarian Cardinal, Joseph Mindszenty, once spent 25 years at the embassy in Budapest.

But the Soviet physician has only been protected a few weeks, and Cardinal Mindszenty was given freedom of action and movement. The Siberian Seven, on the other hand, have been confined for more than 1,000 days and nights in one room, furnished with two beds, and their movements are restricted. What's more, the seven are in Moscow. Therefore a solution to their dilemma is all the more complicated. So far Russian authorities have honored the sanctity of the embassy shelter, but they refuse resolutely to just let the families leave the country. They claim the exit visa is a necessity.

The exit visa is also quite elusive. And the penalties for seeking it are often severe. In 1968, one of the Vashchenkos was sentenced to a year in prison for trying to emigrate, and later his wife spent three years in a work camp. They don't want to let the Soviets have another crack at them.

And for all of the Russian contempt for the families, the United States, too, is said on occasion to have treated them badly. A few months after they took asylum in the embassy basement, they were ordered to get out or else. So even after all this time they reportedly still worry about the possibility of eviction.

Olga Hruby also believes it. She is director of the New York-based Research Center for Religion and Human Rights, and she is in regular contact with the Siberian Seven. She says the United States should take immediate steps to separate the families from the "potentially dangerous" Soviet employees.

Mrs. Hruby also thinks the families should be given more room, more freedom in the embassy, and more assurance of U.S. support. With respect to the last she has helped Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., fashion a congressional bill that would grant permanent resident status to the Vashchenkos and Chmykhalovs.

The Levin bill has 56 co-sponsors in the Senate. If passed, it would allow the families to move around the embassy, and even take employment. It would also allow them to apply for U.S. citizenship in two years. Mrs. Hruby feels the measure would give an enormous psychological lift to the families.

Some Women Find Joy In Taking Risks

NEW YORK (UPI) — The ideal "macha" woman does 500 sit-ups in the morning, manages a company of 2,500 people during the day and spends electric evenings laughing with Woody Allen or singing with James Taylor. More often than not, author Grace Lichtenstein says, the macha woman is simply a person who knows what she wants from life and takes risks to get it.

"The woman with 'machisma,' is a woman who has a combination of pride and toughness, one who achieves with style and flair and likes to strut her stuff," she said in an interview recently.

Ms. Lichtenstein, 39, is the author of "Machisma: Women and Daring," published by Doubleday. For the book, she interviewed women athletes, executives, mountain climbers, even prostitutes — highly successful, top of their profession prostitutes, that is — and discovered they all had one common trait: "not only the willingness to take risks, but to delight in risk-taking."

In most cases, she says, the macha woman is a person who possesses the female equivalent of male toughness and aggressiveness.

"It's no longer OK for high-school students to sit around and watch the guys play volleyball and admire their muscles. You've got to go out there and show your muscles," she said.

Wearing a "Native New Yorker" T-shirt, faded blue jeans, and running shoes, Ms. Lichtenstein looks like Sandy Duncan playing an aerobic and totally urbane Peter Pan. She has climbed mountains with macha women and the experiences have "ignited" her own sense of confidence and self-worth.

But men, even many liberated men, often find the macha woman threatening, she says.

"The closer women come to equality, the more threatening they are to men. Not only macha women but ordinary women too. But some understanding men find the macha woman exciting," she said.

Like many women's movement phenomena, reaching machisma often happens late in life.

"In every woman lurks a macha spark and you only need something to touch off that spark. Ignition for Bella Abzug came when she was 50. She didn't run for office until after she was 50 years old," she said.

"I needed one more year of high school."

"For a month or so I just sat. I had an apartment on the upper West Side of New York. I'd ask, 'Why am I the one left?' Especially I felt this about my son."

"It's almost obscene to bury a child. I wallowed in guilt... asking why did you take a young person, when half of my life is over?" Miss Horne is Catholic.

"Alan King came up to visit," she continues. "He told me, 'You can't just sit here moping...'"

"And you're too old to be a whore..." Miss Horne broke into laughter.

"Surely it's lonely, but it seems I've always been a loner, from the time I was a little girl."

But there are daughter Gail and her two children in New York; Gail was married to Sidney Lumet, the director. And in Los Angeles there are three grandsons, Teddy's children, who visit her when she's at home in Santa Barbara.

Lena Horne, born in Brooklyn, got her first major show business start at 16 when she was in the chorus line at the famous old Cotton Club in Harlem. Her beauty and her sultry way with a song soon caught Hollywood's eye.

Miss Horne's mother died three years ago — "She wanted to be a performer. I wish she could have had it instead of me."

Miss Horne is a mellower person today than in the 1950s when Hollywood went through the trauma of blacklisting and in the '60s when she was an outspoken leader in the civil rights movement.

"Hollywood blacklisted me for seven years," she says. "I have yet to learn what I did wrong."

I asked Miss Horne whether she might remarry. "He would have to be very old and very rich," she answers. "It must be wonderful to be rich. But wouldn't it be awful to be obligated to people? I can't bear that."

"I like what I'm doing now more than I ever did."
