Economics, The Prime Mover

One of the prime reasons for moving the Headquarters of the multimillion-dollar Jen's Inc. Italian food firm from Minnesota to central Florida is economics, founder Jen Paulucci said.

Paulucci has based his business ventures in Duluth, Minn., since 1944.

"I felt like I was in a cocoon in northeast Minnesota," said the 65-year-old Paulucci. "We have to go where we can get pros."

He said the move to central Florida is an effort to help the firm attract top executives and improve travel connections.

Florida Gov. Bob Graham officially welcomed Paulucci's business to the state during an announcement Thursday at Sweetwater Country Club filled with Jen's executives, state and county officials, mayors and councilmen from Sanford and other Seminole County cities, as well as several business executives.

Jen's will be housed temporarily in Casselberry until a permanent building is constructed in Heathrow, a $500-million luxury community being built by Paulucci Enterprises in near Lake Mary. But, while earlier estimates were that the development, to consist of homes ranging in value from $250,000 to $10 million, would take about 10 years, Paulucci said it probably would be more like 20 years. Paulucci has brought in Everett Huskey to promote and market the project. Huskey will handle the marketing and sales. Paulucci, in referring to the project, turned to Huskey sitting at a nearby table and reminded him of his promise to "sell them when I build them."

Earlier this year, Paulucci Enterprises was moved to Sanford where Paulucci has owned a summer home since 1947.

Paulucci also announced that J.F.P. & Associates Inc., a wholly-owned advertising agency, will be relocated from Duluth to Orlando.

The move will shift about 500 jobs from Minnesota to central Florida, said Paulucci. He expects 30 percent of the current Duluth personnel will not make the move.

Construction is to begin next spring at Heathrow and Paulucci said he expects the community eventually will reach a population of 10,000.

Paulucci founded Chun King Corp. in 1946 and sold it 20 years later to R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. for $63 million.

Paulucci has set a five-year goal to reach annual sales of $1 billion in the food business, he said. "It can be done, and we are setting out to do it," said Paulucci.

SCC Road Back In Budget

The on-again, off-again, improvements to East Road, the major entranceway to Seminole Community College, is currently on again.

State Sen. Richard Langley, R-Clermont, reinstated the $250,000 for part of the cost of the East Road Improvement in the budget bill approved by the Legislature earlier this week.

The funding when it was included in a different bill was vetoed by Graham two weeks ago.

State Rep. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, said aides of the governor promised legislators during the special session that the governor would not veto any of the items in the latest bill.

If the $250,000 escapes a gubernatorial veto, it will be added to $225,000 approved for the road project two years ago. The $475,000 total is to be used to four-lane East Road from its intersection with U.S. 17-92 to Main Road on the college campus, to modify the intersection with the federal highway and to install a traffic signal at the intersection.

A parallel sidewalk to the divided road into the campus is also to be constructed for walking students as part of the project.

State Rep. Carl Selph, R-Casselberry, sponsored the legislation early in the regular session which Graham vetoed.

At the time of the veto, Graham said he turned the bill down because the project was not approved by the state Department of Transportation.

However, County Engineer Bill Bush in testimony before the Seminole County Legislative delegation lauded the DOT for all its help with the project saying the DOT is doing much of the engineering and planning for the project without additional charge.

Bush said the first priority for the East Road project is to acquire the right-of-way to protect it from development. —Donna Estes

Charles Farnsworth, a mechanic's helper at Sanford's city shop at 800 W. Fulton Ave., works on one of the 125 motorized vehicles which the shop is responsible for keeping in good repair. The shop has been criticized by City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles for "not being cost effective" during budget workshop sessions of the city commission. A study is underway to determine whether the shop should be phased out and part of the work on city vehicles and small equipment farmed out to independent repairmen.

Repair Work Under Fire

Close-Up Shop Knowles Says

By Donna Estes

Sanford's "city shop," at 800 W. Fulton Ave., where vehicles and equipment owned by the city are repaired, may be phased out.

City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles told the Sanford City Commission that a staff team is looking at existing costs and alternative methods of acquiring the service at a lower cost.

Knowles met this morning with Public Works Director Bob Kelly, Leonard Smith, shop superintendent, and others, to discuss the problem.

During budget sessions this week, Knowles pointed to operating costs at the city shop for the 1983-84 fiscal year at $203,000 for keeping in repair 125 motorized vehicles and 100 pieces of small equipment such as mowers and chain saws. The $203,000 does not include the cost of parts, nor the salaries of two of the mechanics, he said.

Obviously upset with the shop work scheduling, Knowles said: "I defy you to get a 4-to-5 hour brake job on city equipment at the shop."

Commissioner David Farr added that the cost is not the only item of contention at the shop. "Sometimes the workmanship leaves a lot to be desired."

Mayor Lee P. Moore said, however, that Knowles' comments indicated that the employees in the shop are not properly trained.

"The people in the city shop are no less able than elsewhere," Moore said.

Knowles said that the city could farm out the work on the vehicles and pay $100 per month for each for repairs and still cut costs by one-third.

"The shop is not cost effective," the manager said, adding some equipment and vehicles are already being sent out of the shop for repair.

The repair shop is a division of the city's public works department.

Knowles noted that the city staff team looking into the feasibility of continuing the shop operation or farming out certain work is headed by Assistant City Manager Steve Harriett.

Nine full time employees and one part time person are employed in the shop. These include a shop superintendent, five mechanics, one mechanic's helper, one maintenance worker and a storekeeper.

One of the mechanics is paid from the fire department budget and one is paid from the utility department budget.

Kelly said today Harriett, he and Smith are gathering information comparing shop costs and performance with the private sector.

He noted that the city has been trying over the years to upgrade the quality of the personnel in the shop.

"Each time we hire someone new we try to get more qualified people. We have upgraded our job descriptions and have been consistently upgrading the quality of the personnel," he said.

County, School Officials Weigh Growth Impact

Coordination is a favorite word in discussions between Seminole County officials and their counterparts on the School Board.

There has been some coordination between the two bodies. They've met together twice in the past three years to discuss ways of cutting costs for both groups.

The County Commission went so far as to establish a voluntary contribution system for developers in the county.

The system gives developers the option of providing a site for a school in their developments or providing funds to pay for its impact on existing schools in the area.

And although the system has existed for 10 years there has been no coordinated way of dispensing the money collected.

Until now, This week, commissioners approved a plan to jointly review proposed developments along with existing and planned school sites to determine which projects have the most severe impact.

According to the plan, reviewed by School Superintendent Robert Hughes, about $144,000 is currently in an account reserved for school impact. All contributions into the account will be reserved on a school zone basis; that is, contributions stemming from developments from within a particular zone will be used on projects within that zone.

Outta Luck School Board Can't Sue Leaky Roof Architect

By Michael Beha
Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County School Board cannot sue the architect who designed three school roofs which failed, the Florida Supreme Court has ruled.

The Supreme Court said Thursday that the School Board's eight-year wait to sue former Sanford architect Eoghan Kelley for damages caused by faulty roof designs was too long. State law requires a property owner to file suit within four years of discovery that a problem exists in the design or construction of a building.

Leaks in the roofs at Idyllwild and Forest City elementary schools and Teague Middle School were discovered during and shortly after construction for the schools in 1969 and 1970. But the school board gave Kelley a chance to correct the problems.

Finally, in 1977, eight years after the initial leaks were discovered, the board filed suit against Kelly. The board lost its case in Seminole Circuit Court but won on appeal to the 5th District Court of Appeal in Daytona.

The 5-1 Supreme Court ruling reinstates the circuit court decision.

The decision by the Supreme Court will cost the district $5,000. Kelley had already reached a settlement with the district for liability for other school roofs he designed in the county. That settlement totaled $245,000 and cleared him of responsibility for all but the three schools in the suit.

As part of the settlement, the board conditionally accepted a $5,000 settlement on the three schools pending the outcome of the court case. If the high court had ruled in favor of the School Board, the district would have received $5,000.

In its written opinion, the justices said the deadline for filing suit applied to the time the damage was discovered and was not affected by Kelley's efforts to correct the problem.

'Hero' Brantley Helps Save a Life

When state Rep. Bobby Brantley saw a man slumped over in his car turning purple and the man's wife standing there helpless, he didn't hesitate.

Today he's being labeled a hero.

In applying the Heimlich maneuver on the choking man, Brantley was instrumental in saving his life, according to a Live Oak newspaper, which called the Seminole County legislator's deed heroic. The man's wife thought so, too.

"Thank God for you," she wrote in a letter praising the three term representative for his assistance in the evening hours of June 17.

It seems that Brantley, on his way home from a legislative session in Tallahassee that night, stopped at a Live Oak restaurant in Swaine County for a cup of coffee.

As he was leaving the restaurant parking lot he noticed an overwrought woman standing beside her car with the passenger side door open. In the front seat, an her husband, Arthur S. Lawrence Jr., was slumped over and turning purple.

The couple from New Port Richey were on their way to Warner Robbins Air Force Base in

Bobby Brantley

Georgia to see their son.

"Mr. Lawrence, a very big man, was totally purple," Brantley said. "Choking and close to gone."

Finding it impossible to get his arms around Lawrence, who was wedged in a small, compact car, to try the Heimlich maneuver there, Brantley dragged the man out of the car into an open area in the parking lot and administered the maneuver.

'I've never been so nervous'

"I've never been so nervous," Brantley said.

But shortly, "the food was dislodged from his throat and we called an ambulance," Brantley said. "Mrs. Lawrence told me in her letter that he didn't know anything until I grabbed him."

Getting the man out of the car and across the parking lot to an open area was the most difficult part of the whole experience, Brantley said. Lawrence is confined to a wheelchair and is difficult to balance and handle.

Until now, the rescue went unreported in Seminole. Brantley said it didn't occur to him to let the "folks at home" know about the incident.

How did Brantley learn how to administer the Heimlich maneuver?

"By watching television," he said. —Donna Estes

Shooting Probed

A shot was fired into the ceiling and a man was allegedly struck in the head with a stick during a scuffle this morning at the Midway Grocery Store, 2415 Sipee Ave.

Seminole County sheriff's department spokesman John Spolski said that according to a preliminary report, the incident began when Henry Oliver, 27, of Midway Avenue, entered the store at about 10:20 a.m. with a female companion and asked if the woman could use the store's restroom.

The store owner, Larry M. Griffin, reportedly refused the request, an argument ensued between Griffin and Oliver, the two men scuffled and Oliver walked out of the store, Spolski said.

A short time later, Oliver allegedly re-entered the store and began scuffling again with Griffin. Griffin then fired a single shot from a handgun into the ceiling and Oliver claims he was struck on the head with a stick and then left the store, Spolski said.

Oliver was transported to Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford, where he was treated for a cut on his forehead.

Spolski said the investigation into the incident was continuing and no charges had been filed.

NATION IN BRIEF

Some MIAs May Still Be Alive In Vietnam

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Intelligence officers say that a few of the nearly 2,500 American servicemen listed as missing in Vietnam may still be alive.

Testifying before a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee, Lt. Gen. James Williams, director of the Defense Intelligence Agency, said "I've got to believe" that some are still being held prisoner.

Assistant Secretary of State Paul Wolfowitz said U.S. efforts to learn the fate of the missing Americans and to have the remains of the dead returned have been "painfully disappointing and frustrating."

MX Faces Major Test

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, which has plodded through four days of debate on a $200 billion military spending bill, had its first chance today to test the extent of support for the MX nuclear missile.

Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., offered an amendment to the bill to strike all funds for deployment of the giant 10-warhead weapon. The amendment, offered just minutes before the Senate recessed Thursday night, was set to be the first item for discussion.

The military bill includes funding to produce the first 27 MX missiles, which are scheduled for installation in existing Minuteman silos beginning in late 1986 or early 1987 but which opponents say are highly vulnerable to Soviet attack.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: Five-inch rains prompted flash flood watches in Texas where three people died on slick roadways. Rare summer snow inundated the Idaho mountains but stifling heat baked the rest of the nation, with 100-degree temperatures aggravating massive brush fires in the West. The National Weather Service warned it would be another day of temperatures in the 90s or worse except for Washington, Idaho and Montana. Continuing heavy rains in Texas, where up to 3 inches has fallen since Wednesday, were blamed for a head-on collision Thursday in Houston that killed three people and injured three others. A strong cold front moving through the northern Plateau late Thursday dumped locally heavy snow over the higher mountains in west central Idaho, and snow was reported above 7,500 feet across the state. Cold front winds gusting to nearly 50 mph were reported across much of Idaho and western Montana. Temperatures plummeted to the 40s and 50s behind the front, while just ahead of it, readings in the Montana Plains rose into the 90s and low 100s. The temperature dropped 23 degrees in one hour at Salmon, Idaho, and afternoon readings at Boise were in the mid 50s — 40 degrees cooler than the same time a day before.

Wholesale Prices Up; Food Costs Down

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More expensive gasoline and heating oil helped send wholesale prices up 0.5 percent in June, the most in seven months, despite lower food costs, the Labor Department said today.

The slight quickening of inflation was not enough to turn this year's Producer Price Index around to the plus side, however. The January through June wholesale inflation rate, when figured yearly, is still a deflationary minus 1 percent compared to last year's weak 3.7 percent gain.

Gasoline prices climbed 5.1 percent in the report which, because of delayed data collection procedures, mostly reflected May dealers' costs. Home heating oil was up 5.3 percent and natural gas gained 0.2 percent.

The overall energy increase was the most since July 1982.

But the track record for wholesale prices remains a good example of how well inflation at all levels has been kept under wraps. Wholesale prices went up only 1.8 percent in the year ending in June, the slowest increase for any 12-month period since 1967, department analysts said.

Food prices dropped 0.6 percent in June, their biggest decline at the wholesale level since July.

The food and energy components of the index balanced each other so that if they were not included in the index the rest of the 3,400 commodities tracked by the department would still have gone up 0.5 percent.

All figures were seasonally adjusted.

The Labor Department's Producer Price Index for finished goods in June was 285, equivalent to a cost of $2.850 for goods which cost business $1.000 in 1967.

The index had climbed a gentle 0.3 percent in May and dropped 0.1 percent in April. The latest report revised slightly the March decline to make it a slightly steeper 0.3 percent drop but raised February's index to show a 0.2 percent increase instead of no change.

January's 1.1 percent decline was a record.

Within the foods categories prices dropped sharply for fish, pork, eggs, roasted coffee and soft drinks. Fresh fruits, vegetables and beef went up at the wholesale level.

In less major categories of prices, cigarettes, over-the-counter drugs, plastic items, books and leather footwear went up in June. Prices were down for cosmetics, tires and gold jewelry.

The wholesale price trends usually show up on the retail side and the Consumer Price Index after a few weeks or months.

Since the government's Producer Price Index focuses on business costs much of it is influenced by price changes for machinery and general factory and production equipment, a category that moved up 0.2 percent in June, the second consecutive monthly increase.

When broken down into prices all along the supply pipeline, the goods in the middle, between the raw materials and finished goods stage, climbed in price by 0.8 percent, the largest monthly rise in two years, again mostly because of energy cost hikes.

At the beginning of the supply pipeline, raw materials prices went down another 0.1 percent with the decline almost entirely due to price breaks for raw food materials. Other than foods raw materials prices climbed 1.5 percent, about the same as in May.

Volcker Forsees Long-Range Decline In Interest Rates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker told senators nervous about a possible rise in interest rates that the Fed has tightened its monetary policy somewhat but does not have any dramatic plans in store.

Volcker also said during his confirmation hearing Thursday if in the future the Fed found it necessary to tighten money further, which would boost interest rates slightly, such a move could forestall soaring interest rates later.

"Sometimes a restraining action in the short run will be just the thing that's necessary to avert the risks of a much bigger rise in interest rates later," Volcker said. "And that's of course the kind of question we have to raise for ourselves right now."

"If we permit the inflationary process to get started again you're clearly going to have higher interest rates," Volcker told the Senate Banking Committee that must make a recommendation on his nomination for a second four-year term as the Fed's chief.

"Our policy in the last month or so has been slightly less accommodating," said Volcker, first appointed Fed chairman by President Carter in August 1979.

That means the Fed, through buying and selling securities, has been quietly holding down on bank reserves and the money supply.

Volcker declined to discuss policy decisions made in a closed meeting Tuesday and Wednesday by the Federal Open Market Committee, the Fed's main policy-making body. But he said, "I don't think you'll find those decisions terribly dramatic."

He will discuss them next week when he makes a formal semi-annual report to committees of Congress.

Chairman Jake Garn, R-Utah, said the banking committee will not vote on Volcker's confirmation until it receives that full report.

Volcker surprised some members of the committee by announcing he has not committed himself to serving the full four-year term for which President Reagan has nominated him. He said he would serve "a substantial length of time" and might finish his term.

All but one member of the panel who spoke indicated they will support Volcker's nomination. Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., said he will vote against him because, "I believe the monetary policies followed by the Fed since October 1979 have stymied the economic growth of this country and seriously damaged our economy."

Volcker declined to make any prediction for interest rates in the short run. In the long run, he said, "If we maintain progress against inflation, over time interest rates will decline."

The biggest risk to such a long run improvement, he said, is failure by Congress to reduce the $200 billion federal deficit. The government borrows $750 million on the average working day to finance this deficit. When the economy is recovering, this government borrowing competes with private borrowing, raising interest rates.

Reactor Shutdowns Will Cost Millions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission's order to shut down five reactors for inspection and repair of possibly severe pipe cracks will carry a multimillion-dollar price tag for the utility industry.

Disturbed by growing evidence of dangerous corrosion and cracking in crucial reactor cooling water lines, the NRC Thursday ordered the shutdowns within 30 days, at the same time it disclosed at least 11 other plants have experienced similar problems.

Examining and fixing the massive piping systems can take six months or more, forcing utility companies to purchase replacement electric power at a cost of $500,000 to $1 million a day.

The commission was scheduled to meet with industry officials today for further discussion of the situation.

The five plants ordered closed for inspection are: Quad Cities 2, Cordova, Ill., and Dresden 3, Morris, Ill., both owned by Commonwealth Edison; Browns Ferry 3, Decatur, Ala., owned by the Tennessee Valley Authority; Brunswick 2, Southport, N.C., owned by Carolina Power & Light, and Pilgrim 1, Plymouth, Mass., owned by Boston Edison.

The commissioners took the action after a highly technical briefing by staff experts on the pipe-cracking problem, which has long been an item of controversy between the NRC and the nuclear industry.

A major utility group, the Edison Electric Institute, blasted the NRC's order, arguing it would "prove costly to consumers in regions where oil is the only alternative to nuclear-generated electricity."

Longwood Doctor Charged In Attempted Rape

A Longwood doctor accused of attempting to rape a 19-year-old Orange County woman last month, has been released from jail on $2,500 bond.

Orange County deputies arrested Dr. Gregory Allen Marks, 36, of 548 Orange Drive, Altamonte Springs, Wednesday while he was on duty at the Medical Treatment Center at 2650 State Road 434 in Longwood.

Marks was released from the Orange County jail after posting bond early Thursday, according to Orange County detective Ed Worthington.

Marks is accused of trying to rape a 19-year-old woman as she walked on East Colonial Drive in Orlando on June 5.

As the woman walked near Lake Park Drive, a man grabbed her and dragged her into the bushes. The woman hit him with her fist and cut his mouth and

Accused Robber May Not Get To Keep $ After All

ORLANDO (UPI) — A circuit judge changed his mind and said he would review his ruling that would have awarded a robbery suspect the $712 he is accused of stealing from a gas station in 1981.

Circuit Judge James Byrd said Thursday he was not aware of the details of the case when he made his original ruling. He issued a stay on his earlier order and scheduled a hearing for today to determine who deserves the money.

Byrd ruled Wednesday that Jessie Bellamy Jr., 30, is entitled to the money that police took from him two years ago when he was arrested.

Byrd said he made the ruling because the state dropped grand theft charges against the man when the prosecution's chief witness, service station owner Kenneth Anderson, died of a heart attack in January.

Prosecutors refilled charges against Bellamy Thursday after finding another witness.

Ex-Diplomat's Wife Safe

MIAMI (UPI) — FBI agents charged a Washington D.C. phone booth to rescue the wife of a former Salvadoran ambassador from a band of young terrorists who kidnapped her a week ago and demanded a $1.5 million "war tax" from her wealthy husband.

Clella Sol de Quinones, 53, the wife of the former Salvadoran ambassador to the United States, Roberto Quinones Meza, was recuperating from exhaustion in a Washington hospital early today.

Agents arrested four people in the raid to free her Thursday night, most of them Americans and two in their teens. Two others were arrested in Miami and a black woman who was not identified was still being sought. An agent in Miami said the six suspects would be charged today with kidnapping and conspiracy.

FBI officials in Miami said they believe the abduction is the first U.S. kidnapping inspired by international politics.

Lebanese Troops, Moslem Gunmen Battle In Beirut

United Press International
Lebanese army troops and Moslem gunmen fought fierce machine-gun and grenade battles in a Shiite neighborhood of downtown Beirut today and state-run Beirut radio said there were many casualties.

The gunmen opened fire after the army tried to evict squatters from a school in a Shiite neighborhood and battles spread to downtown streets lined with giant posters of Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

The fighting in the Wadi Abu Jmil neighborhood, near the resort hotel district devastated in the 1975-76 civil war, erupted near sunbathers at Beirut beaches.

A spokesman for the Lebanese army confirmed that "some shooting incidents" took place between an army unit and gunmen in the predominantly Shiite area.

Reinforcements were rushed to the area, where repeated machine-gun rounds, sniper fire and rocket-propelled grenades were heard for hours after the fighting started at 10 a.m. (4 a.m. EDT).

Diplomat's Killer Sought

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — Police searched today for Armenian terrorists who claimed responsibility for killing a Turkish diplomat, Belgium's first victim in a bitter vendetta dating back seven decades.

Dursun Aksay, 39, an administrative attache at the Turkish Embassy in Brussels, had just gotten into his car on Avenue Franklin Roosevelt Thursday when a gunman calmly walked up and pumped two shots through the window, authorities said.

In two separate telephone calls to United Press International in Brussels, the Secret Armenian Army for the Liberation of Armenia and the Justice Commandos of the Armenian Genocide claimed to have carried out the attack. Both threatened further killings, but gave no reason for the shooting.

Both groups have claimed responsibility for killings of Turkish diplomats and bomb attacks against Turkish property in Europe to avenge the 1915-17 massacre and deportation of some 1.5 million Armenians in Turkey. They also have sought an independent Armenian state.

Solidarity Nixes Plan

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Solidarity underground leaders said they would not cooperate with a government plan for lifting martial law and vowed to continue to resist the regime of Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski.

Well-informed sources said the government would declare an amnesty next week for several hundred political prisoners and offer safe conduct to all underground members willing to swear a loyalty oath to the regime.

Congressmen Admit Sex With Pages

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House will be asked to reprimand two of its members who admitted they had sex with consenting teenage pages several years ago, one congressman with a male, another with a female.

Rep. Gerry Studds, 46, D-Mass., acknowledged Thursday he had a homosexual relationship with a 17-year-old page in 1973 and made sexual advances to two other pages as reported by the House ethics committee, Rep. Daniel Crane, 47, R-Ill., admitted having sex with a 17-year-old female page in 1980.

The Committee on Standards of Official Conduct voted 11-1 in a private session to recommend reprimands and adopt the report of special counsel

Joseph Califano, who has spent a year investigating charges of sexual misconduct on Capitol Hill.

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill said the report was disturbing but took comfort in the committee's finding that sexual misconduct was not widespread. A vote on the reprimands has not been scheduled but could come next week.

Studds rose on the floor of the House shortly after the ethics committee made its report. In a dignified speech delivered calmly, Studds said he was a homosexual and the affair was a private matter that did not deserve House action. He said he would not fight the charges out of concern for the pages.

Studds, a former prep school teacher who is single, is known in Congress for his fierce anti-war stands.

Crane, a dentist and a bedrock conservative who joined his brother, Phil, in Congress in 1978, left Capitol Hill before the report was made public. He headed home for Danville, Ill., where his wife and six children were waiting, after issuing a terse statement:

"I'm sorry that I made a mistake. It happened three years ago. I'm human, and in no way did I violate my oath of office. I only hope my wife and children will forgive me."

Because the age of consent in Virginia and Washington is 16, Crane and Studds are not guilty of any crime. But Califano said they had violated the rules of the House and added, "No sexual relationship between a member and employee of the House can be regarded as acceptable behavior."

Califano also recommended the ethics committee take disciplinary action against James Howarth, a majority chief page in the House Doorkeeper's Office, who had an affair with a 17-year-old female page under his supervision in 1980. There is evidence Howarth purchased cocaine in the House Democratic cloakroom in 1980, the report said.

The pages have all left Congress and were not identified to protect their privacy. Both expressed admiration for Studds and Crane, saying they were not coerced or offered favors in return for sex.

School Assignments Made

An assistant principal for South Side Elementary School in Sanford has been approved by the Seminole County School Board.

The School Board voted Wednesday to name Barbara Kirby, a Sanford resident and currently a teacher at Lake Orienta Elementary School, as assistant principal. She will take over the new position on Aug. 1.

She has been a mathematics teacher at Lake Orienta since 1975 and is a graduate of Crooms High School, Knoxville College and the University of Central Florida.

The board also made three other appointments:

Karen Coleman, an administrative trainee with the board since 1981, was named coordinator of community relations and public information, a new school position.

In the new job, Mrs. Coleman, who was Florida's Teacher of the Year in 1980, will be responsible for dealing with public inquiries about the school district and its policies.

The School Board voted last month to create the new position by splitting the public information and administrative assistant duties of Ralph Ray, who plans to retire in January. No successor has been named for the administrative assistant post.

Mrs. Coleman is a graduate of Seminole High School, Troy State University in Troy, Ala., and will complete work on her master's degree at the University of Central Florida this month.

The salary range for the new post is $24,789 to $32,227.

Richard C. Wells, currently superintendent of schools in Flagler County, will become the district's director of transportation effective Aug. 1.

Wells has been superintendent in Flagler County since 1980. Prior to that, he was assistant superintendent in Charlotte County for three years and a principal for seven years.

Wells, a graduate of the University of Florida with a master's degree from Florida Atlantic University, will assume the new post Aug. 1.

The salary range for the position is $36,011 to $44,794.

James C. Dawson, currently assistant principal at Lake Brantley High School will become coordinator of the physical education and driver education programs for the district.

Dawson, a Sanford resident, has served as assistant principal at Lake Brantley for two years. Prior to that he was athletic director at the school. He was track coach and assistant football coach at Seminole High School for six years before moving to Lake Brantley.

He is a graduate of Tulane University with a master's degree from Rollins College.

Salary range for that post is $24,789 to $32,227.

...Economics Behind Paulucci Empire Move

Gov. Graham, in welcoming Paulucci's massive corporate move to Central Florida, also took the opportunity to thank the business community for helping him get his education tax package approved. The spectators who filled the room gave the governor a long, loud round of applause, apparently expressing their approval of his efforts to improve the educational standards in Florida. Gov. Graham has pushed long and hard to accomplish that goal, tying it to Florida remaining number one in the eyes of industry and business people as the place to go if you want to expand and relocate a business from other parts of the country.

Paulucci, meanwhile, also capitalized on the governor's presence and comments and asked him for two favors: Interchanges at I-4 and Lake Mary Boulevard and one for 46A, then Paulucci proudly displayed a license plate reading: Chairman, Florida Council of 100. He held it up and turned from left to right so everyone in the audience could see it, then Paulucci turned to Gov. Graham and quipped: "I want to know when you're going to arrange for me to use it again."

Paulucci said he's carried the license plate around with him since 1966 when he held that position.

Although Paulucci is moving much of his empire to Central Florida he expressed a deep affection for Northeast Minnesota and vowed he would do whatever he can to bring some industry to that area to offset the impact of his move.—Tom Giordano

Final Notices Going To 'Deadbeat' Defaulters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government is getting ready to warn 41,000 federal employees for the last time that Uncle Sam will pocket up to 15 percent of their paychecks if they don't start repaying their student loans.

This unprecedented "offsetting" of federal wages could begin within 60 days of receipt of the notices, said Frank Krebs, a member of the Education Department's Student Loan Collection Task Force.

Krebs, a task force management analyst, said the warnings would be issued after a meeting next month between the task force and representatives of each federal department.

The Education Department's collection program was given new muscle last year by the Debt Collection Act of 1982 that authorized the government to offset federal wages and pensions to repay defaulted student loans.

Unlike garnishing wages, which takes a court order, offsetting wages merely requires the government to have a legal document stipulating the debt — in this case the student loan papers.

In addition to final notices to 41,000 federal workers, similar warnings will be sent to about 200 retired federal employees who have also defaulted on student loans.

Unless they agree on a repayment plan with the government within 60 days of receipt of the notice, the government could take up to 15 percent of their wages or pensions until the loan and accumulated interest are settled.

The offset program is just one part of an effort by the federal government to turn the financial screws on an estimated 850,000 people who owe $2.7 billion in defaulted student loans.

"Deadbeats" is the word Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., used to describe many of them last year.

Hanoi Should Be Made To Pay

The Paris Peace Accords signed 10 years ago last January pledged Hanoi to return all American prisoners of war, surrender all remains of deceased Americans in communist hands, and cooperate fully in resolving the status of more than 2,400 U.S. servicemen listed as missing in action.

The Vietnamese may or may not have returned all American POWs. There is conflicting evidence, but no proof, on this score. Significantly, however, the Reagan administration has refused to rule out the possibility that some Americans may still be prisoners in Vietnam or Laos.

But there is no doubt whatsoever that the Vietnamese have callously refused to cooperate in resolving the status of the missing in action. And there is less and less doubt that the Vietnamese are holding the remains of many, perhaps hundreds, of Americans who died in Southeast Asia.

The latest on this came from no less a source than Secretary of State George Shultz. Shultz, in Bangkok recently for meetings with Asian leaders, declared, "we believe that the existence of the remains of several hundred of them (MIAs) are established...the remains of several hundred are being deliberately held in our view by the Vietnamese."

Shultz went on to label Hanoi's duplicity, "a cruel and heartless action." It is that, and more. Vietnam's apparent purpose is to keep a stock of remains on hand to dole out in twos and threes as de facto inducements for the favors Hanoi wants from the United States.

Thus, for example, the Vietnamese hint occasionally that doubts about the MIAs could be quickly resolved if only Washington would establish diplomatic relations with Hanoi, or provide aid in some form. This amounts to diplomatic extortion, with Hanoi viciously exploiting the torment of MIA families.

Yielding to such blackmail is obviously out of the question. Mere appeals to the Vietnamese to honor their word are pointless. What the Reagan administration needs is bargaining leverage of the kind that can only be obtained if Hanoi is made to pay a price for its continuing defiance of solemn international agreements.

The administration might, for example, try pressuring the few Western nations still trading with Vietnam. Alternately, pressure might be brought to bear against the Soviet Union, Vietnam's chief ally and source of aid. Or, the administration might consider encouraging China to tighten the screws on the Vietnamese by providing more aid to Cambodian guerrillas resisting Hanoi's occupation of that country.

Hanoi will abide by its agreements only when the price of violating them is made sufficiently painful. And the families of the 2,494 Americans still unaccounted for have waited far too long already.

Doctored Reports

In reviewing a House Energy and Science Committee report, an aide to Rep. Robert Walker was surprised to see his boss quoted as saying he was "not willing" to participate in "reasonable hearings" to monitor the performance of the Environmental Protection Agency.

The aide had every reason to be surprised. What was printed in the official committee document was the exact opposite of what Walker actually had said. In fact, the Pennsylvania Republican had stated that he is willing to participate in reasonable hearings.

Such a seemingly minor error usually can be attributed to an unintentional mistake by the committee staff. But Walker was not the only House member troubled by committee reports. Six other committee members discovered that they also had been misquoted in a manner that made them appear foolish. Because the misquoted congressmen are all Republicans, there are well-founded suspicions that they were victimized by the committee's Democratic staff.

Doctored reports to embarrass the Republicans may have been intended as a political dirty trick. But doctored official documents of Congress can have a far-reaching impact. Committee reports are not only used in the drafting of legislation, they are used by the courts to determine congressional intent in enactment of a law.

We trust the House Ethics Committee investigation of the doctored documents will lead to the discovery and firing of the culprits. The seriousness of the offense, however, requires additional action.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Please, dear, don't watch TV at the dinner table. It's rude."

By Charles Cobb

Being a new police reporter for the Herald is not always a piece of cake.

For example, reporters are expected to write their copy using designations for the various highways and expressways in Seminole County that the average newspaper reader will understand.

This can lead to problems for a harried reporter - facing a rapidly approaching deadline - sifting through traffic accident reports issued by the Seminole sheriff's department, the Florida Highway Patrol and the Sanford, Altamonte Springs, Longwood and Casselberry police departments.

Specifically, the problem is that these law enforcement agencies don't call our highways what you and I call them. In cop jargon, Interstate 4 becomes State Road 400. U.S. Highway 17-92 appears as State Road 600 - in most police reports. If you happen to be reading a Casselberry police report, Highway 17-92, for some mysterious reason, is called State Road 15.

After trying to decipher a few of these collisions and driving under the influence incidents that take place on these unheard of roadways, it's always reassuring to read about a fender bender at the corner of First Street and Park Avenue.

Glad You Told Me Department:

Mary Cestaro, the regular receptionist at the Seminole County sheriff's department headquarters is on vacation. One of the ladies filling in for Mary found a note that

Mary had thoughtfully left for her which read something like this: "If you get a long distance collect phone call for the sheriff, be sure to accept the call."

Chuckled the new lady: "I'm so glad when Mary leaves me helpful little tid bits like this."

The Seminole County Bar Association will meet July 21 at 5:45 p.m. at the Quality Inn, State Road 434 and Interstate-4. Scheduled on the program is Glenn A. Reppe, president of G. A. Reppe & Co. Reppe has been a financial planner for 13 years and has been active in some of the largest real estate investments in the country. He is considered a national leading financial planner.

Reagan Definitely Is Running

By Helen Thomas

UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan's top aides do not know how to say it louder or more clearly than they have: "He's running."

But the timing for Reagan's announcement to the world that he wants a second term in the White House is what is confusing. He has made all the moves of a candidate, and yet maintained his presidential demeanor.

In a recent interview, pointedly limited to how he views the age factor and how he enjoys his job, Reagan made it plain he will seek re-election, and feels that he is physically up to the job.

Much as he seeks the seclusion and solace of his mountaintop ranch for renewal, he feels he would be bored if he decided to opt for retirement at the age of 73.

When brought into the White House, Republican leaders have been pacified with broad hints from Reagan that they will be happy with his decision.

When the president goes to his Santa Barbara ranch for a vacation in August, he is expected to meet with various GOP state chairmen who will fly in for a chat. He also will huddle with his top political advisers at that time. But even then, aides are expecting Reagan to hold off his formal announcement until around Thanksgiving.

Vice President George Bush has been told by Reagan that he wants him in the No. 2 spot on the ticket, and Bush seems to be happy about that.

In recent weeks, the president has been highly visible on the road and has picked a topic his aides believe will be a hot one in the campaign — promoting excellence in public schools.

There are other signs in the wind. The administration is suddenly moving in the direction of more affirmative action in the civil rights field with the school desegregation suit against Alabama. The proposed amendments to fair housing laws also create a new aura for the administration.

With the economy on the upswing, Reagan feels he has a springboard to seek re-election. Hence he and other administration officials are strongly urging that there be no increase in interest rates, which they feel could inhibit economic recovery.

Reagan still has a problem with the so-called "fairness" issue and the wide perception that he is a "rich man's president." But he is trying to overcome that and feels that his personal acquaintance with the Great Depression make him well aware of economic hardship.

Reagan also has some fence mending to do with women voters. The polls show that women do not feel that he is sympathetic to their concerns, and his opposition to the Equal Rights Amendment has hurt him with women activists.

Although he has appointed two women in the Cabinet and one on the Supreme Court, he has a hard time convincing women that he has given them the same break as some of his predecessors.

So far, none of Reagan's political supporters feels that he has been hurt politically by the investigation.

JACK ANDERSON

'Strong-Man' Ruler On Shaky Ground

WASHINGTON — Hafez Assad, the Syrian dictator whose intransigence has been the main stumbling block to the pullout of foreign troops from Lebanon, is actively conniving to depose PLO leader Yasser Arafat. Yet Assad himself is in a vulnerable position, according to secret intelligence reports.

Assad's enemies within Syria include senior army officers, the majority Sunni Moslems, elements of his Baath party supported by Iraq, the Moslem Brotherhood and even members of his own minority Alawite sect. He stays in power through the naked repression of a 20,000-man security force run by his corrupt brother, Rifaat.

Secret CIA and State Department reports seen by my associate, Dale Van Atta, suggest the threats to Assad's rule from his many enemies. Any one group has abundant reason to wish for Assad's ouster or assassination — but whether any has the nerve and the skill to get rid of him is debatable. At 53, Assad has ruled Syria for 12 years; like his adversaries Yasser Arafat and Jordan's King Hussein, he is a survivor.

Here's the intelligence rundown on Assad's opposition:

— Moslem Brotherhood: This radical Islamic group has been Assad's most obvious rival, but Rifaat's tank-equipped "defense companies" decimated the brotherhood. They began with an attack on several hundred of its members in Hama in February 1982. Rifaat's thugs then went on a two-week rampage in the city that reportedly left 20,000 dead.

— Sunnis: "As Syria's first non-Sunni Moslem president, Assad has always had to contend with opposition from the country's predominantly Sunni population," the CIA reports. "To placate the Sunnis, he built a team of technicians and economic planners drawn from the educated Sunni elite, (and gave) many Sunnis highly visible and ostensibly important government posts."

Although these posts included the defense and foreign ministries, "the Sunnis remain effectively cut off from real power and are resentful of the domination of Assad's small Alawite sect."

— Baath Party: Assad has stacked the Syrian Baath Party with Alawites, but "some members, and doubtless some military officers as well, would be willing to support an Iraqi-sponsored coup attempt against Assad," the CIA predicts. The Iraqi and Syrian Baath parties have long been at odds, and Baghdad maintains ties with exiled Syrian Baathists in Beirut and elsewhere.

— Alawites: Even this minority Moslem sect is divided into four tribes and four religious subdivisions; in other words Assad is a member of a minority within a minority. "Dissident Alawites confront two choices," a State Department report explains; they "can either remain united with Assad and fight to the last Alawite, or (they) could take it upon themselves to clean out their own community."

Much of the Alawites' anger centers on brother Rifaat, whose venal ways offend the devout and who is held responsible for the 1972 murder of a respected Alawite leader, Muhammad Umrani.

— The army: Assad's most serious opposition, according to the CIA, has been among senior military officers. At least 50 officers were believed to have been involved in an abortive coup attempt in January 1982.

To counter the threat from the military, Assad keeps several senior officers under close surveillance and arbitrarily dismisses or imprisons the most suspect as "an obvious warning to others." The State Department notes that Assad has tried generally to "dominate the military by personally clearing all promotions, transfers and retirements." He also seems to believe that no coup will be attempted as long as an external threat from Israel remains — which helps to explain Assad's persistent efforts to sabotage any overall peace proposals.

Right-Wing Cats Hit Dollar Lid

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The Federal Election Commission is embroiled in a legal battle with two conservative political action committees, and the outcome will have a major effect on President Reagan's re-election campaign.

At issue are so-called "independent expenditures" made on a candidate's behalf by a third party.

Federal election law limits to $1,000 the amount that any individual or organization can contribute to a single candidate for congressional office. This $1,000 limit also applies to contributions to a presidential candidate who has agreed to accept federal campaign funding, as most presidential candidates do.

But as is often the case, the law has a loophole: the independent expenditure.

The courts have ruled that an individual or organization can spend almost any amount for a candidate if the funds are not given directly to the candidate or if the spending is not made in consultation with the candidate or his staff.

Conservative political action committees have made the greatest use of this loophole, spending hundreds of thousands of dollars in congressional and Senate campaigns and millions to help elect Ronald Reagan in 1980. These funds paid for television and newspaper ads, polling, canvassing, telephone campaigns and the like.

But after the 1980 election, the Federal Election Commission ruled that independent expenditures were actually campaign contributions and therefore were subject to the $1,000 limitation.

The ruling's two main targets were the National Conservative Political Action Committee (NCPAC) and the Fund for a Conservative Majority (FCM). Together, NCPAC and FCM made more than $14 million in independent expenditures in 1980, and they've announced plans to spend perhaps twice that amount in 1984 to support conservative candidates and re-elect Reagan.

The conservative organizations immediately challenged the FEC's 1980 ruling in court. A three-judge district court panel ruled in favor of the PACs, saying that the limit imposed by the FEC violated the PACs' freedom of speech. The court ruled that a presidential candidate's decision to accept federal funding "cannot bind his or her supporters outside the campaign."

The district court's ruling was appealed to the Supreme Court, which split 4-4 on the question. Justice Sandra Day O'Connor did not take part in the ruling, since she was not on the court when oral arguments were heard.

The 4-4 vote upheld the lower court's ruling in favor of the PACs, but since it was a tie, it isn't considered a precedent. In effect, then, it can be said that the Supreme Court hasn't ruled on the matter.

This left the FEC up in the air — so, to force a definitive decision, it issued another ruling: Last month, the FEC voted by 5 to 1 that it be a violation of federal election law for any organization or individual to spend more than $1,000 in independent funding on behalf of any presidential candidate in the 1984 campaign.

Those Carter Documents

NEW YORK (NEA) — Has it occurred to anybody that the likeliest source of the Carter briefing papers that wound up in Reagan headquarters during the 1980 campaign was a member of the press?

We are all so mesmerized by the theoretical possibility that the Reagan forces engaged in serious misconduct — e.g. theft or bribery — that we are likely to overlook far more probable explanations. In any event, the sheer range of possibilities ought to serve as a warning against leaping to premature conclusions. It is still very early in this whole investigation, and thoughtful people will wait until all the facts are in before trying to apportion blame, let alone punishment.

What do we know, or at least think we know? It appears that a good many documents emanating from the Carter campaign, or from other sources in and around the Carter White House, wound up in the hands of one or another member of the Reagan campaign staff. They may not have included a copy of the "briefing book" used to prepare President Carter for his debate with Reagan. Thus far, at any rate, none of the documents seem to have been officially "classified," though presumably most of them were, in an informal sense, confidential.

Without more, that state of affairs is hardly very shocking, let alone unprecedented. It's a safe bet that roughly similar documents from the Reagan campaign found their way to the Carter camp, too. In this day and age, when documents can be copied quickly in almost any office, putting anything of interest to anyone else in writing is practically tantamount to ensuring that it will be copied and passed around.

The only thing that might lift the episode of the Carter documents out of the category of the routine would be evidence that they were stolen, or came into the possession of the Reagan staff by some other underhanded means — bribery, for example. So far, there has been no serious suggestion of any such thing.

Moreover, there is a vast number of more plausible (and more innocent) scenarios. Any employee of the Carter

Use Waste Vegetative Materials For Compost

Composting is the term used to describe the partial decomposition or "predigestion" of organic residues. This is done prior to adding organic material to the surface of the soil or incorporating it into the soil as an amendment. Grass clippings, potato peelings, onion tops and other vegetative waste material can be made into a valuable soil conditioner and plant food for fall garden beds by remaining in a compost heap this summer.

Compost can be used in several ways. It provides a good usable soil amendment for the garden and is certainly much less expensive than peat. Incorporated into the soil or around plants it is beneficial in improving soil tilth, friability, water holding capacity and nutrient retention.

Also, compost is used on the soil surface as a mulch to control weeds and conserve moisture. Or, you can mix your compost with soil and use it for potting plants.

As vegetative materials — materials which will rot or decompose — become available, place them in layers between layers of soil in a prepared frame or bin. Materials such as leaves, waste from fresh summer vegetables in the kitchen, straw and sawdust make excellent compost, yet are normally heaped into garbage cans.

Choose an out-of-the-way location for the compost area, since the heap may appear untidy. Choose a location that is convenient to the gardening area and to the kitchen door. Usually, the small area behind the garage or between the utility room and the neighboring fence is ideal for framing and constructing the compost heap.

Decomposition of the plant matter will require heat and moisture for quick breakdown. The summer sun will provide the heat, but it will be the gardener's responsibility to soak the compost area from time to time for the moisture.

A light sprinkling of fertilizer between layers of added compost will aid in decomposition and replace the nitrogen used in breaking down raw materials into compost. Animal manures are rich, valuable garden soil additives and may be used in lieu of soil between the layers of compost. The heat generated by the manures will induce quick decomposition of raw compost.

Some manures, particularly cow manures, may also add undesirable weeds to garden beds when the compost is applied. However, the value it offers the garden soils far outweighs the need to eliminate manure-induced weeds.

The compost should be turned with a garden fork from time to time to aerate and to promote even decomposition.

The summer months, when heat is present, are the best time for decomposition and compost preparation. Usually a compost prepared in the summer is ready for fall gardening or for a spring soil conditioner and plant food.

For those who would like additional information on composting, you can obtain a Soil Science Fact Sheet, SL-2, Composting-Why and How, by contacting the Agricultural Extension Service office. If you are involved in vegetable gardening, Vegetable Crops Fact Sheet, VC-4 may also be helpful.

Wife's Belly Dancing Is Really Art

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for a year to a good, loving man who treats me like a queen. He has a few faults, but nothing serious. He goes out once a week with the boys, comes home drunk and falls into bed. He has never hit me or even called me names.

Dear Abby

I always loved to dance, and if I say so myself, I was very good. Before we were married I used to do "belly-grams." When someone had a birthday, I'd go out and do a belly dance. It wasn't vulgar or anything. It was all in fun. I got paid, but I really did it mostly for fun.

All of a sudden I was asked to teach a course in belly dancing at the "Y." I really want to, but my husband thinks belly dancing is a hootchy-kootchy striptease dance, but it's not. It's really an art.

I'm 29 and my husband is 32, and we have no children yet. I really want to teach this class and have some outlet besides cooking, cleaning and doing the laundry. Do you think I'm wrong?

LOVES TO DANCE

DEAR LOVES: Absolutely not! Teach your husband how to belly dance, too. If he has the stomach for it.

DEAR ABBY: I'm in my early 20s, my husband is in his early 30s. My problem is our sex life. We've been married for three years and our sex life has been pretty bad for most of it. There is no romance in our lovemaking whatsoever. It lasts maybe three minutes, then I'm left frustrated.

I've talked to my husband until I'm blue in the face, but it hasn't helped. I've been to a marriage counselor. (He won't go.) I've even threatened to leave him. Nothing works. He says he loves me but sex is not a very important part of marriage. I think it is.

The rest of our marriage is pretty good, but I'm falling out of love with him awfully fast. What should I do?

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: Try to persuade him in a loving, non-judgmental to get therapy. Almost every university medical school offers sex therapy, which could be enormously helpful to your husband. If he really loves you, he'll agree. If he refuses, you can either settle for a sexually frustrating but otherwise "pretty good" marriage, or make good your threat to leave him. Only you can make that choice.

DEAR ABBY: I'm being married in an informal wedding. It's the second time around for both of us. He's wearing a business suit and I'm wearing a short, dressy dress.

All the guests are wearing informal clothes except my fiancée's mother, who plans to wear an expensive formal gown she bought especially for her daughter's wedding which was canceled last summer at the last minute.

She showed it to me and asked how I liked it. I told her it was beautiful, but I thought she'd be more comfortable in a short dress. I explained that no other woman would be wearing a long gown, and she might feel conspicuous.

She said she had her heart set on wearing it, and if I had no objections, she would wear it.

Now what? I hate to let her make a fool of herself. I've asked my fiancée, and he said, "She's stubborn as a mule. Leave her alone." What should I do?

AUGUST BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: Listen to your fiancée.

DEAR ABBY: About the question of calling first or just dropping in: Nothing annoys a woman as much as having her friends drop in to find her house looking the way it usually does.

RAE IN BUNCOOK, N.H.

DEAR ABBY: I hope you can help me. I've been married almost 23 years, but haven't seen my husband in 21 years. He walked out on me, and I have no idea where he is.

I want to find out if he has divorced me. And if he hasn't, how can I divorce him without having to pay the kind of money a lawyer wants? Also, isn't there a law that says that after a certain number of years of not hearing from your husband, you can just presume he's either dead or has deserted you, and no divorce is necessary?

I've talked to several lawyers and the lowest fee was $350 to free me to marry again. You see, I met this terrific man who wants to marry me, and he offered to pay for my divorce if I need one.

Answer soon. I don't want to lose this guy.

WHERE DO I STAND

DEAR WHERE: I am constantly amazed at the number of people who will gladly pay a physician to cure their physical ills but would begrudge a lawyer a reasonable fee for straightening out their legal woes.

The laws differ from state to state, and I am not qualified to practice law in any of them, so please consult a lawyer and pay him (or her) for what he knows.

'Surprise' On Birthday

Norma and Bob Young of Geneva were able to successfully surprise their son, David Whitacre, on his 17th birthday Wednesday, July 13. When David arrived home at 4:30 in the afternoon with a friend who had "kept him occupied", 20 of his friends surfaced from the patio to yell "surprise!"

The barbecue and pool party refreshments included barbecued chicken, potato salad, baked beans, macaroni salad, deviled eggs, chips and dip, German chocolate cake, and red sherbet punch.

Norma said the festivities started breaking up about 10 p.m. and everyone had a great time.

Mrs. Louise Bartells of Magnolia Towers in Orlando was hostess to a luncheon at Morrison's Cafeteria at the Winter Park Mall Sunday in honor of a visit from her sister, Florida Wulffhorst of Cincinnati, Ohio, and her niece, Wilma Prince of West Covina, Calif.

Others attending the reunion were Charles and Virginia Tifford of Apopka, Edna and Ned Drudruard of Palm Coast, Ron and Joan Hefner and children Joel and Joy of Fern Park, Mary Peterson and son John of Winter Park, and the Dallas Childers family from Geneva. For some members of the family this meeting was the first they had come together for over 30 years!

Mrs. Wulffhorst and her daughter, Wilma Prince, left Monday afternoon for Denver, N. C. where they will visit with other members of the family. Sally Lytle and David Wulffhorst and their respective families.

The reunion was made a little more special because both of the sisters who were reunited were in their 80s. Mrs. Bartells will be 90 her next birthday, and Mrs. Wulffhorst is two years her sister's junior.

A word to the wise from Barbara Childers of Geneva. Be careful of car batteries in hot weather. Barbara was jumping a battery Sunday when it exploded in her face. She was told by an emergency room physician that by keeping a level head and immediately washing her eyes in cool water, she saved her sight. He added that had she come to the hospital before rinsing the battery acid from her eyes, cornea damage could have resulted.

Nationals Wear Out Leesburg, 38-8

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

LEESBURG — After Thursday night's fiasco here, the scoreboard and home plate might have to be replaced. The board and the plate were so worn out, you could have taken 20 runs away from the Sanford Nationals and it still would have been a rout.

The score — Sanford Nationals 38, Leesburg Americans 8.

Sanford erupted for 15 runs in the first inning and never looked back as the offense rapped out 22 hits in a rout of the host team in the State Recreation District 4 Little Major Tournament. The victory, Sanford's sixth straight tournament win, advances the Nationals to the district finals. One more victory and the Nationals go to the state tournament for the second year in a row.

In tonight's loser's bracket final at 7, Ormond Beach, which upended Ocala, 7-5, in Thursday's first game, goes up against the shellshocked Leesburg Americans. The winner of tonight's game goes up against the Nationals on Saturday morning at 10 with a second game, if necessary, scheduled for Saturday night at 6.

Mike Merthle picked up the pitching victory for Sanford with relief help from Jimmy Murphy. Tim Graham had a big day at the plate as he went 4 for 7 with eight RBI. Mike Merthle, Anthony Merthle and Jeff Blake also had four hits for the Nationals while Willie "Sugar Tex" McCloud and Denny Clayton had three hits each.

Clayton got the whole thing started for Sanford as he opened the game with a base hit. Blake followed with a RBI double and Hubert Williams reached on an error.

District 4 Baseball

McCloud then singled to chase home Blake and George Gordon walked to load the bases. Graham then ripped a three-run triple and he scored on an RBI single by Mike Merthle. Anthony Merthle followed with a single and Harry Chibberton, the ninth hitter in the inning, drew a walk. Clayton followed with his second hit of the inning, an RBI single driving in Mike Merthle.

With one out in the first, and Sanford already holding a 8-0 lead, Williams reached on another error and Chibberton scored for a 9-0 Sanford lead. McCloud then drew a walk and Gordon followed with a walk to load the bases. Graham then drilled a two-run single, giving him five RBI for the inning. Gordon then scored on a wild pitch and Mike Merthle lined his second single of the inning. Both Graham and Merthle scored on wild pitches for a 15-0 Sanford lead.

Leesburg's Americans came back with six runs in the bottom of the first, four on a grand-slam homer by Nick Gonatos, but Leesburg couldn't match the firepower of the Nationals.

Sanford took a 20-6 lead with five runs in the top of the second, highlighted by Mike Merthle's two-run homer to center. Leesburg scored its last two runs in the bottom of the second to make it 20-8.

The Nationals then scored six runs in the fourth, fifth and six innings to take a 38-8 lead. In the fourth, McCloud blasted a two-run homer to right center for his fifth homer in six games. "Sugar Tex" made it an even six out of six as he drilled a solo homer in the fifth.

Anthony Merthle added to the fireworks with a solo homer in the sixth. Graham also picked up a two-run single in the sixth to give the Sanford first baseman eight ribbies for the game.

Graham will get the call to start Saturday's game with McCloud as his backup. Graham showed he can do the job as he pitched an excellent game in the Sub-District tournament, won by Sanford. Sanford manager Sylvester "Slick" Franklin, Jr. also found out that Murphy, who pitched the last inning for the Nationals, will come in handy as a relief pitcher.

"I have been looking for a fourth pitcher and Murphy did the job tonight," Franklin said. "Now I know that he'll be there when we need him."

Sanford's substitutes also got a chance to show what they had Thursday night and the Nationals got fine performances off the bench from Leo Ford, Brian "Pee Wee" Howard, Kerry Wiggins, Mitchell Wright, Burnette Washington and Murphy. Ford and Wiggins each scored a pair of runs and Ford made a nice catch in center field. Wright, Howard and Washington each scored a run and Murphy pitched an inning of scoreless ball.

In all likelihood, there will be a rematch of last year's district finals in Saturday's final game. Ormond Beach should be able to get by Leesburg and into the finals against Sanford.

Ormond Beach was the only obstacle in the road to the state tourney for Sanford a year ago. Ormond won the loser's bracket last year, then put on a furious comeback to beat the Nationals in the first game of the finals before Sanford came back to handily win the second game.

Sanford and Ormond Beach met in the first round of this year's tournament and Sanford came away with a 12-7 victory after taking an early 12-1 lead. A grand slam homer by Jeff Grodi put Ormond Beach back in the game but, with the bases loaded in the bottom of the sixth, Mike Merthle came on in relief of McCloud and set down Jacob Story and Grodi to end the game.

Holly Hill's '2-Out Offense' Sends Sanford Back Home

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

PORT ORANGE — The difference between a team which advances to the State Recreation Junior Major Baseball Tournament and the one which goes home is often related to the "two-out offense."

Take Holly Hill, for example. During four of the six innings in which it scored, it did so with runners on base and two out. In each of those innings, Holly Hill was able to come up with the clutch hit or take advantage of its opposition's mistake.

Take Sanford, for example. In four of seven innings, the Juniors had runners in scoring position with two out, but could only convert one time.

Holly Hill 7, Sanford 1.

Holly Hill wins the District 4 Tournament with a perfect 3-0 record. Sanford comes home at 2-2, and shaking its head about missed opportunities. "They weren't together tonight," said manager Al Whitted. "We didn't get any hitting. He (Holly Hill's Mike Ader) stopped our bats cold. He was a good control pitcher."

Ader, a slick righthander, was good, but he wasn't that much better than Sanford's Terry Miller who matched Ader strikeout for strikeout, but not control for control or composure for composure. Ader allowed six hits, struck out seven and walked no one. Miller gave up

Pinckes Giveth, Lisle Taketh Away As Altamonte Knocks Off Eustis, 4-2

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

EUSTIS — Altamonte Senior League All-Stars manager Clayton Garrison is well aware of the power of Mike "Pooh Bear" Pinckes. During the regular season, Pinckes hit a seventh-inning, game-winning home run against Garrison's team. So, when Pinckes came up in the top of the seventh against Eustis here Thursday night, with the game deadlocked at 2-2, Garrison couldn't help but remember what happened during the season.

"I thought back to what he did to our team," Garrison said. "And I hoped that he would do it again."

Garrison's hopes became reality — the "Pooh Bear" did it again. Pinckes led off the seventh by cracking a solo homer over the left center field fence and Altamonte went on to beat Eustis, 4-2, in Little League District 14, Division 2 tournament action.

By virtue of its victory, Altamonte advances to the division finals and will await the outcome of the loser's bracket. Altamonte's next game will be on Monday night at 7:30 in Eustis against either Eustis, Lady Lake, Oviedo or Maitland.

"It was the first time in the tournament we were behind," Garrisson said. "I just told the team not to quit and they didn't."

Eustis broke on top early with a pair of runs off Altamonte starter Kenny Chapdelaine in the bottom of the first inning. "He (Chapdelaine) had some trouble in the first few innings," Garrison said. "It's been a while since he's pitched, but I don't think he threw as many balls during the regular season than he did tonight."

Although he wasn't at his best over the first few innings, Chapdelaine got some help from the defense behind him. In the bottom of the second, Eustis mounted a threat with a runner on second and no outs. The next hitter drilled a long fly to the fence. The ball had enough distance for a homer, but Ryan Lisle caught the ball against the fence, then threw out the runner who had tagged and tried to go to third. Lisle saved at least another run in the bottom of the third when he reached over the fence and robbed Dave Westgate of a home run. Second baseman, Andy Dunn, also turned in a fine defensive game for Altamonte.

The offense came alive in the top of the fourth with a pair of runs to tie the score at 2-2. Lisle drew a walk to lead off the frame and Kevin Bass reached on an error. Mark Coffey then ripped a long fly to right center to move the runners up a base. Lisle then scored on a RBI groundout by Kenny Oswald and Bass came around to tie the score on Dunn's single.

CRESCENT CITY — For the second night in a row, the second inning has been owned by Oviedo's Senior League All-Stars. Wednesday night, in Eustis, Oviedo rallied for 14 runs in the second en route to a 22-7 trouncing of Deltona. And, here Thursday night, Oviedo erupted for nine runs on six hits in the second in a 14-5 rout of St. Johns (Crescent City) in Little League District 14, Division 2 action.

Oviedo goes up against Maitland tonight at 7:30 in Eustis with the winner advancing to Saturday's loser's bracket final.

National A Rips National B, 14-1

Seminole National League A All-Stars broke open a tight game with 12 runs in the fourth inning Thursday night to post a 14-1 victory over Seminole National League B All-Stars in the Bronco District Baseball Tournament at the Seminole Pony Complex near Winter Springs.

The victory for manager Jim Lucas' club advances it to Saturday's final where it will play the winner of tonight's 6:30 game between the National B and Gainesville Saturday morning at 11.

Chris Hudson, the starter and winner for Seminole A, slugged a solo homer in the third to snap the tie. In the fourth, Seminole A routed three B pitchers for the 12 runs. Bobby Moose ignited the outburst with a homer.

In another lopsided contest, manager Ed Suggs' National League A All-Stars used near flawless pitching from Rick Eckstein, Lane Barrow and Kevin Twiggs to hammer the American League All-Stars, 30-2, in the Mustang District Baseball Tournament.

Eckstein struck out all six batters he faced to pick up the win. Brian Albers had the lone hit for the Americans.

The Americans try to regroup tonight against manager Gene Oliver's National League B All-Stars at 6:30.

Weger 1-Hits Ocoee

When Wes Weger is on, he's like a runaway locomotive — extremely hard to stop. Weger relinquished only a sixth-inning bloop single Thursday night as the Altamonte National League All-Stars slipped by Ocoee, 1-0, in Little League District 14, Major Division 1 tournament action at Altamonte's Eastmonte Field.

Altamonte scored its only run in the top of the first and Weger hurled a perfect game until a lead off single in the sixth. Altamonte returns to action tonight at 7:30 at Ocoee against Winter Garden, a 10-0 winner over Windermere on Thursday.

"There wasn't a whole lot of hitting tonight," Nationals manager Wayne Weger said. "But, Wes pitched a heck of a game and the defense did a great job behind him." Weger struck out eight and walk no one.

In the top of the first, Todd Luke led off with a single and Chris Radcliff reached on an error to put runners on first and second with one out. Luke and Radcliff then pulled a double steal to advance to third and second. Luke then home with the only run of the game on a passed ball.

Weger's perfect game was snapped when Ocoee's lead off man in the sixth, catcher Ricky Graham, blooped a single to right.

First baseman Tommy Dearth doubled in the second while Weger and Radcliff singled in the fifth for Altamonte's other hits.

In the other Altamonte Major contest Thursday, DeLand's Nationals used two home runs in the bottom of the fifth inning to overcome a one-run deficit and nip the Altamonte Americans, 7-5, at DeLand.

Manager Don Birle's Americans are 1-1 in District 14. Division 2. They will try to get back on track Saturday night at 7:30 in Eustis against Mount Dora or Eustis behind ace righthander Alex Birle.

Altamonte led three times in the game. Kevin Wainscott opened the game with a single, went to second when Shane Stufflett reached on a fielder's choice before Alex Birle singled to load the bases. Todd Christensen forced Wainscott at the plate with a ground ball back to the pitcher, but Stufflett scored when John Esterby grounded out to first.

DeLand seized a 2-1 lead in the second, only to see the Americans push across a three-spot in the third for a 4-1 edge. Stufflett reached on an error to start the frame and Birle walked. Christensen lifted a deep fly to right on which Stufflett tagged and went to third. When the throw was wild, he scored and Birle went to second. Esterby then unloaded a homer over the right-field fence for two more runs.

Altamonte went ahead for the last time, 5-4, in the fifth. Birle singled and two outs later, Olson ripped a double to center for the run.

Oviedo's Little Majors have seen enough of Archie Murray for one year.

Mount Dora's hard-throwing righthander bailed out starter Ollie Moon in the first inning Thursday night and turned in a 18-strikeout performance to oust the Oviedo squad from the District 14, Division 2 Tournament, 5-2, at Mount Dora.

In Monday's opening round game, Murray fanned 15 Oviedo batters as Mount Dora claimed a 5-4 victory.

Oviedo scored both of its runs in the third when David Cole walked and scored on a double by Rodney Thompson. Thompson later scored on a passed ball.

Joey Beasley and Chad Duncan, the losing pitcher, had a single each for Oviedo.

Letterio Team Will Not Compete In Royal Dutch Tournament

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

A baseball team made up of players from Seminole County, Apopka and Orlando will not go to the Royal Dutch Federation Baseball Tournament in Amsterdam, Holland.

AML International Tours, Inc.'s Jim Aebli, who organized the trip, said manager Gene Letterio, who assembled the 15-member team, told him Wednesday the team would not be able to compete in the eight-team tournament. The team was to leave July 23 and return Aug. 1, playing seven games in eight days in the annual international competition.

When contacted Wednesday, Letterio said a shortage of players and problems with fund-raising made him decide to cancel the trip. "We had four players from Orlando pull out after making their commitments," said Letterio, who selected the team along with coach Rod Metz Sr.

"After talking with some coaches who have played over there, we determined that it would be impossible to compete with 11 players. It was a tough decision, but I feel it was the correct one," Letterio said.

Aebli, in an attempt to salvage the trip, wanted to have tryouts and select four replacements, but Letterio said it was too late to draft any new players. "It was always our intention to take a very representative team to Holland," Letterio said. "I don't think it would be fair to the good players we still have to just take anyone along to fill out the roster."

The four players who withdrew were Orlando Boone's Tim Childers and Orlando Colonial's Johnny Woodward, Steve Boley and Bobby Miller. Childers said he wasn't going for personal reasons, said Letterio while Woodward and Boley said the same. Miller, an all-state second baseman, is playing in the Cape Cod College League and could not get permission to make the trip without jeopardizing his chance to play in the league again, according to Letterio.

"I guess we just tried to do too much too quickly," said Letterio. "We tried to put this team together in 60 days and raise the money, too. It was just too big of a job."

"I'm extremely disappointed that it didn't work out. I'm usually a person that follows through on things, but I didn't do a good job of it this time. I'm sorry for any inconvenience we may have caused anybody," he said.

Seminole County players included Todd Marriot and Derek Livernola from Lyman, Rod Metz, Scott Underwood and Mike Schmitt from Lake Mary and Mark Cochran from Lake Brantley. Rodney Brewer and Billy Johnson were going from Apopka. Orlando Bishop Moore's John Sepnicki, Orlando Edgewater's Eddie Jackson and Orlando Boone's Mark Chapman completed the team.

Although the trip is out for this year, Letterio said he hopes he would be able to put the package together for next year.

After the abrupt withdrawal of this year, however, an invitation may not be offered. It was also learned tickets worth $23,000 had already been purchased by AML International Tours, and hotel reservations had been made in Amsterdam for the team by the Royal Dutch Baseball Federation, which put Aebli in a very precarious position, since no money had been collected from the Letterio group. Twenty-six tickets were purchased for the team at $895 apiece.

An $87 penalty for each ticket will have to be paid, said one source. The estimated cost of the withdrawal is believed to be around $3,000. Also, the source said it would be impossible to recall the 26 seats because of the late cancellation.

Another team from Trinity Preparatory School will make the trip. It was to compete in the club division of the tournament, but now, the Trinity Prep squad may compete in the upper division because of the opening, said an AML spokesman.

Rayford's Homer Drops Giants; Parrish Leads Texas Past Yanks

The pitch was a strike. So Floyd Rayford struck. "I wasn't up there to walk," Rayford said Thursday night after hitting the first pitch for a two-run, pinch hit homer in the ninth inning to cap a three-run rally and give the St. Louis Cardinals a 6-5 victory over the San Francisco Giants. "If the pitch was in the strike zone, I was going to swing."

Trailing 4-3, the Cardinals tied the score 4-4 on a double by pinch hitter David Green and an RBI single by Tom Herr off reliever Gary Lavelle, 6-3. Herr then stole second and, one out later, Rayford hit for Andy Van Slyke and slugged his third home run, to left field.

"I was trying to put it in play," he said. "I wasn't thinking homer. I was thinking base hit. Anything but a strikeout or a popup."

"The pitch that Rayford hit was a slider that was a strike," Giants catcher Bob Brenly said. "We made the right pitch. The guy just hit it."

The winner was Dave LaPoint, 7-6, who worked the first eight innings before giving way to Bruce Sutter's 10th save. San Francisco pulled within 6-5 in the ninth on a leadoff triple by Max Venable and a one-out grounder by pinch hitter Tom O'Malley. Jeff Leonard ended the game by lining out to short with two on.

It was the second straight game the Giants bullpen was victimized by the gopher ball. Wednesday Greg Minton allowed homers to Pittsburgh's Johnny Ray and Mike Easler.

"We're really in trouble if the bullpen doesn't do the job," Giants Manager Frank Robinson said. "It's been the backbone of this club. It has to do the job."

Chili Davis hit his first home run in nearly a month, a two-run, eighth-inning drive, to lift the Giants to a 4-3 lead. The home run, Davis' 10th of the season, came after a walk to Jack Clark and nullified a two-run homer by Darrell Porter in the top of the eighth.

Braves 5, Phillies 2
PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Atlanta's Chris Chambliss sees his team winning games "in all kinds of ways" lately.

A triple to right-center in the ninth inning was the way Chambliss helped the Atlanta Braves Thursday night to a 5-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

"We have a lot of talent," Chambliss said. "We're winning games in all types of ways, and that's what it takes to win a pennant."

Atlanta took the lead in the second inning of the game when Dale Murphy led off with his 20th home run, a 420-foot blow to straightaway center field. Phillies starter Marty Bystrom then blanked the Braves until leaving for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

The Phillies tied the score in the eighth. DeJesus singled and moved up when pinch-hitter Gross walked. Bob Dernier sacrificed the runners along and the Braves replaced starter Pascual Perez with Bedrosian. Pete Rose grounded to second to drive in DeJesus.

Bob Horner led off the ninth inning with a home run to left field on a 3-and-2 pitch, his 15th of the season, off reliever Willie Hernandez, 4-2. Hernandez was removed after Chambliss followed Horner's blast with the triple. "I'm feeling good right now," said Atlanta first-baseman Chambliss, who is on a 21-for-47 hitting tear. "I'm in an excellent groove."

After the triple, Glenn Hubbard greeted Ron Reed with a single to center past a drawn-in infield to score Chambliss. Hubbard advanced to second on a passed ball by Philadelphia catcher Bo Diaz and scored on a single to center by Bruce Benedict.

Steve Bedrosian, who got the win with two innings of relief to improve to 6-3, then sacrificed Benedict to second. Benedict moved to third on a grounder by Brett Butler and came in on an infield single by Rafael Ramirez.

In the Philadelphia ninth, Bedrosian got one out but walked DeJesus and Greg Gross and was replaced by Terry Forster. Forster was greeted by a double by pinch-hitter Tony Perez to score DeJesus, but then retired Rose and Gary Matthews to preserve the victory.

Pirates 8, Padres 6
At San Diego, Johnny Ray doubled in two runs with two out in the ninth inning to cap a four-run rally that lifted the Pirates to their fourth straight triumph. Kurt Bevacqua hit the second grand slam of his career to cap a five-run seventh inning as the Padres had rallied to go ahead 6-3.

Mets 7, Reds 4
At New York, pinch hitter Rusty Staub slugged a tie-breaking two-run homer in the sixth inning to carry Tom Seaver and the Mets. Staub last month tied the major-league record with eight straight pinch hits. Keith Hernandez also had a two-run homer for New York. Former Mets pitcher Charlie Puleo, 3-5, took the loss.

Astros 3, Expos 0
At Houston, Joe Niekro blanked Montreal on three hits and Terry Puhl doubled twice and scored twice to lead the Astros to a three-game series sweep. Niekro, 7-7, struck out three and walked none in posting his fourth complete game. Steve Rogers, 12-4, was the loser. Tim Lincecum missed his third game for the Expos, but he is expected to be in the lineup tonight when they come to Atlanta.

Dodgers 8, Cubs 4
At Los Angeles, Derrel Thomas ignited a three-run fifth inning and a four-run sixth, rallying the Dodgers. Alejandro Pena, 8-4, allowed 10 hits before being lifted in the sixth. Steve Trout, 7-8, took the loss, giving up four runs and 10 hits until being relieved in the fifth. Tom Niedenfuer pitched 2 1/3 innings to notch his second save.

Orioles 5, Angels 1
There were probably many people who were happy when Rich Dauer broke out of a batting slump with two doubles and a single Thursday night. Ken Forsch was not one of them.

"I'm sorry I helped him out," said Forsch, the losing pitcher, after Dauer, who was hitting .204 going into the game, supported the strong pitching of Scott McGregor in leading the Orioles to their fifth win in a row, a 5-1 decision over the California Angels in Baltimore.

Another light hitter, Jim Dwyer, added some punch to the Orioles' attack with a three-run homer.

"He (Dauer) pulled a pair of sliders into the left-field corner for his doubles," Forsch said. "And Dwyer hit a fastball to right field which I tried to get in on his hands but got out over the plate. You can't give anybody anything to pull in this ballpark."

McGregor, 10-4, used only 86 pitches to outduel Forsch, 8-6. The only Angels batter to solve McGregor's crafty speed changes was Fred Lynn, who managed three of the team's seven hits. McGregor is now 16-4 lifetime against California.

Blue Jays 8, White Sox 0
At Chicago, pinch hitter Rance Mulliniks belted a three-run homer and Buck Martinez added a two-run shot in support of Luis Leal's first major-league shutout. Leal, 10-6, allowed only two hits, retiring the final 18 batters in succession. The only hits off Leal were consecutive singles by Greg Luzinski and Harold Baines leading off the fourth.

Rangers 11, Yankees 2
At New York, former Seminole Community College standout Larry Parrish went 4-for-5 with two home runs and five RBI and Charlie Hough pitched a five-hitter for Texas. Shane Rawley, 8-8, started for New York and lasted 2 1/3 innings, allowing five hits and five runs.

Red Sox 9, A's 4
At Boston, Dwight Evans, Tony Armas and Wade Boggs smashed home runs to power the Red Sox. Evans cracked a three-run shot in the first inning to offset a run by Oakland in the top half. Bob Stanley picked up only the final out but got his 17th save.

Brewers 5, Twins 1
At Milwaukee, Don Sutton and Tom Tellmann combined on a seven-hitter and Bill Schroeder hit his first major-league home run for the Brewers. Sutton, 7-5, allowed six hits, struck out five and walked none over the first eight innings.

Indians 4, Royals 3
At Cleveland, Alan Bannister belted a 1-and-1 pitch into the left-field stands leading off the 10th as the Indians snapped a five-game losing streak. Rick Sutcliffe, 11-4, pitched his fifth complete game, striking out a career-high 10 and walking two.

Tigers 4, Mariners 2
At Seattle, Jack Morris threw a six-hitter over 8 1/3 innings and Lou Whitaker drove in two runs to help Detroit extend its winning streak to five games. Morris, 9-8, equaled his career high by striking out 11.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY

JULY 16, 1983

Past preparations of yours will bear fruit this coming year, but not necessarily in the areas you anticipate. Success will have its surprises.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

You could be quite fortunate today in business or financial situations, provided you don't get uptight and put obstacles in your own path. Order now: The NEW Matchmaker wheel and booklet which reveals romantic compatibilities for all signs, tells how to get along with others, finds rising signs, hidden qualities, plus more. Send $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Send an additional $1 for your Cancer Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead. Be sure to give your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

Persons who are in accord with your way of doing things will be recipients of your warmth and generosity today. Challengers may experience your anger.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Your desire to be charitable is a noble aspiration, but be careful you don't obligate yourself beyond your abilities to provide.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)

Being with friends will provide you with a great deal of pleasure today if you don't permit upmanship or competition to enter the picture.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

Even though you may have a number of serious negative influences to overcome, financial arrangements should work for you profitably today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)

Do not allow self-doubts to override your positive thoughts today. Concentrate on your hopes, not on the pebbles in your shoe.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

Benefits are apt to come your way today, but not primarily through your efforts. Unless you acknowledge collaborators, hard feelings may result.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

Follow your urges today which dictate that you do what is best for the largest number, even if your self-interests try to induce you to do otherwise.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

Important objectives are reachable today, but your routes to success may not be as easy as you first surmise. Be tenacious, not timid.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

Be careful about making promises today. Others will hold you to your word. This will be especially true of your mate.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

When solving problems for others today, your logic supercedes your feelings. Where your own interests are concerned, emotions may dominate.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

Your judgment is very keen today, but you may satisfy yourself with easy answers instead of getting to the root of matters. Probe more deeply.

Too Much Medicine Problem For Elderly

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB—This is a plea for help. Our father has become addicted to Percodan and Tylenol-3. We are in the process of trying to decide how to help him, but that is not why I am writing.

How can we stop this pernicious philosophy of doctors who give old people medications so indiscriminately? Is the American Medical Association doing anything about this? I work with the aged and it seems to be a feeling among doctors that they are old so give them what they want to keep them comfortable.

Please help me in alerting a caring public and other caring doctors to expose these doctors and stop this terrible practice.

DEAR READER—

It is always easy to point a finger and not so easy to provide a better solution. Remember that such medications are given usually because the patient has a problem that requires relief. Not all pain relieving medicines, tranquilizers and similar medicines given to patients are given indiscriminately by any means.

Having said that, I must agree that some doctors over-prescribe and don't use the precautions they should. That is not with any malicious intent in most cases but simply from trying to help someone and going about it in the wrong way. And the practice is not limited to treating older people. You have just seen that segment of it. Many people with emotional problems get tranquilizers and never get the emotional problems solved.

Yes, the AMA has educational programs to help. It is really a legislative matter, not under the AMA's control. And there are laws to help control the dispersing of medications but obviously the system needs improvement.

Public awareness of the problem helps. The public can help by asking if any of the medicines they are given have any chance of being habit forming and by reading on what the dangers are.

Many of the medicines that cause problems are listed in The Health Letter 12-2. Sedatives, Hypnotics and Tranquilizers: The Pill Problem, which I am sending you.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am a 64-year-old widow and have venereal warts on my anal and vaginal areas. I had them about a year ago and my doctor burned them off but they are coming back.

I do not have any sexual relations with any man. My doctor informed me a person can pick up these warts that way. I would appreciate any information you can give me.

DEAR READER—

I wish that term could be changed. Warts in those areas are a little different from other warts but they are caused by a virus and they can be transmitted, or they may occur, without sexual relations. A better term would be moist warts.

It is true that they can be transmitted by sexual activity. But it is not true that sex is the only way they can spread. In one study 60 percent of individuals who had sexual relations with another person with warts developed them within two or three months.

Like all other warts, they are often difficult to treat. Most dermatologists apply podophyllin to eliminate them chemically. But like other warts they can recur.

points and a very good five-card club suit.

South was rather disappointed in the dummy. Who wouldn't be? He counted enough possible winners for his contract, but saw one sure loser (the ace of spades) and one potential loser (the king of clubs) to spoil his prospects.

It seemed best to start against the spade ace so he won the heart lead with his ace and played the king of spades.

West took his ace. East signaled with his eight so West returned his four spot.

Now South led his three of hearts. He had every intention of finessing dummy's nine to gain an extra entry to dummy. South wanted to take two club finesses.

West, who had been in the front row when brains were passed out, came up with a brilliant defensive play. He carefully played his 10 spot on South's three. South had to play the king. He finessed the club successfully, but could not get back to dummy to repeat the finesse. East's king of clubs became a winner.

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

North's four no-trump bid was a mild slam try. It also was rather silly, since his six points were not the sort of six points that a bridge banker would want for collateral.

...Summer Travel Buoyed By Foreign Currency Declines

The good news for Americans planning vacations abroad this year is that a strong dollar continues to make most of the main tourist destinations bargains.

sending many more people to Europe than we have in past summers," Painton says.

Charter flights are the least expensive way to fly overseas, but complicating problems scare off some travelers, according to Sanford travel agent Edmond Weber. Price and availability depends on the number of people interested in a particular flight. Weber says that a flight may be canceled or the price raised so close to the day of departure to make it inconvenient to schedule another flight.

More popular are the Super APEX (advance purchase excursion) seats offered by most major airlines. These seats must be booked at least 21 days in advance, but in order to increase the chance of getting the discount, a traveler should try to schedule the flight as early as possible because APEX seats are limited, says Painton.

Painton says that the savings can be substantial — a Super APEX round-trip ticket to Frankfurt is $865, while a regular fare is $958. That $93 savings will buy a lot of souvenirs.

Length of visit is restricted for the Super APEX fares, almost all of which are round-trip. According to Painton, the minimum stay is seven days while the maximum, depending on the deal, ranges from 60 to 180 days.

Another disadvantage of APEX seats is that a $50 fine per ticket is assessed if the flight is missed.

The best European markets for American money this summer, according to a UPI survey, will be Britain, Portugal, Spain, Greece and Italy.

Rome may be a favorite this year for Catholics wishing to visit the Vatican during a holy year. According to UPI, the city is making every effort to accommodate visitors cheaply in tourist class hotels that are considered among the best in Europe.

Spain and Portugal are putting up many tourists in special government-owned, inexpensive hotels, called pousadas in Portugal and paradores in Spain.

"They're less expensive than regular hotels and very nice — a lot of them are castles converted to hotels," says Painton.

Greece is the best buy in Europe, according to UPI, with double rooms in Athens' B-class hotels running $22 and dinner for two in the old Plaka district at $18 with wine. Painton says that Greece is relatively popular, largely because of its ancient ruins, with most visitors traveling with a tour group.

Marroletti says that she finds two of the most popular European destinations to be Germany and Switzerland. These countries are not the best buys in Europe, however, because their currencies have remained relatively strong, but retain their popularity due to beautiful scenery and historical significance.

According to UPI, prices in France have been hiked significantly, counteracting the strength of the dollar, which is at an all-time high. Even so, Marroletti says this has not diminished the popularity of Paris, adding that on a recent trip to the city, things seemed more affordable than in years past.

Austria, and in general, the Netherlands and Belgium are not particularly good buys, according to UPI, because their currencies have remained stable. Scandinavia is also still expensive, but rates in Oslo and Stockholm have come down about 10 percent since last year.

Although Britain in general is a good deal for Americans, the State Department estimates that Ireland is one of the most expensive countries in Europe at $124 a day, compared with London at $98 and the Scottish capital of Edinburgh at $67.

East European countries and the USSR have controlled prices and currencies, so there are no bargains there, according to UPI. Travel permission can sometimes be difficult to obtain, but Marroletti says that problems occur mainly when a current American citizen originally from a country behind the Iron Curtain tries to return for a visit.

Weber says that one of the cheapest and most popular ways to travel in Europe is the Eurail Pass. The pass, which provides unrestricted rail travel in most of free Europe, is available only in the United States and is non-transferrable.

A pass good for two weeks of first-class travel runs $250. Travelers under 26 qualify for the lower rates of the Youthrail pass, with a month of second-class travel for $270. Weber stresses that European trains are much more popular than those of the U.S., as well as cleaner and more prompt.

Among News Satires, HBO's 'NNTN' Is TNT

By Andrew J. Edelstein

Finally, there's a TV news satire show that's actually funny.

It's HBO's "Not Necessarily the News," a half-hour, rapid-fire satire, based on the British series "Not the Nine O'Clock News." Because it's a monthly show, "NNTN" lacks the immediacy of "That Was the Week That Was," but it's far more clever than the news segment of "Saturday Night Live" or NBC's recent lame offering, "The News Is the News."

"NNTN" features an ensemble cast of six relatively obscure comedians (the best-known, Rich Hall, was on ABC's "Fridays"). But they aren't the source of the show's strength. That comes from its pace and editing — especially the imaginative use of news clippings, stock footage and outtakes.

For instance, on a recent edition, news footage of Margaret Thatcher became the material for a parody of the Geritol commercial ("my wife... I think I'll keep her") narrated by a cast member portraying the prime minister's husband. Clips of the recent state dinner for Queen
Elizabeth II aboard the Queen
Mary was turned into an episode of "The Love Boat with Ron and Nancy."

President Reagan is a favorite target. He's featured in at least five sequences. One involved cutting back and forth between film clips of the inaugurations and galas of Presidents Hoover and Reagan and between the soup kitchens and bread lines of the 1930s and 1980s. It was crude, but effective, and about as political as "NNTN" cared to get.

Certainly, Reagan is not the only American personality suitable for lampooning. Of course

Dr. Joyce Brothers Was A $64,000 Champion

DEAR DICK: Some years ago, Dr. Joyce Brothers won a large sum of money on "The $64,000 Question." What was the subject she won it on? — E.M.J., Lake Jackson, Texas Incredible as it may seem, her subject was boxing.

DEAR DICK: Late last November, I heard on TV that Rev. Nutt of "Hee Haw" was killed in a plane crash. But I still see him on "Hee Haw." Was that report a mistake? — C.M.R., Bay City, Mich.

No, it was the tragic truth. What you must understand is that shows like "Hee Haw" often repeat episodes, so you see him from the shows that were made before the unfortunate crash.

DEAR DICK: My cousin said that Edward Herrmann (who played Tommy in the movie, "A Little Sex") also appeared in "Animal House." I said he did not. There's a pair of designer jeans riding on your answer. — L.C.M., Saginaw, Mich.

No, Herrmann was not in "Animal House." You'll look great in those new jeans.

DEAR DICK: Your answer will settle a bet. Who played Blue on the series "High Chaparral"? My friend says he was played by David Soul. I say it was someone else. M., Kalamazoo, Mich.

DEAR DICK: About 15 years ago, there was a show called "High Chaparral." Henry Darrow played in it. What was the name of the character he played? — S.K.S., Warsaw, Ind.

Mark Slade played Billy Blue Cannon on the 1967-1971 series and Henry Darrow played Manolito Montoya.

DEAR DICK: Who is Charlene Tilton married to? I say Eddie Rabbit, but my cousin insists it's someone else. Who's right? — R.P., Springfield, Mo.

One for your cousin. Charlene is Mrs. Johnny Lee. Like Rabbit, he's a singer.

DEAR DICK: About 10 years ago, I lived on Okinawa. There I watched a TV show called "Cowboys In Africa." Please tell me why no one stateside has ever heard of the program? Who were the stars, and will we ever see it again? — M.M., Willingboro, N.J.

Ask Dick

Sure, that was a series. It starred Chuck Connors, and it was on ABC in the '67-'68 season. It probably will never be seen again; there weren't enough made for a syndication package.

DEAR DICK: I always liked Walter Slezak and was saddened when I read that he had killed himself. But I haven't heard one word since, and wondered why he did it? — K.S., Naples, Fla.

Slezak was despondent because of ill health.

DEAR DICK: Can you tell me who sings the "Cheers" theme song? — C.P., Marshfield, Wis.

The song was written by Gary Portnoy and Judy Hart Angelo, and they also sing it on the show each week.

DEAR DICK: Are Richard Chamberlain and Susan Sullivan of "Falcon Crest" brother and sister? They sure do look alike. — D.H., St. Antoine, N.B., Can.

No, they are not related at all.

DEAR DICK: Can you tell me who were the men who played on the "man in the street" part of Steve Allen's show? — T.H., Stuart, Fla.

They were: Louis Nye as Gordon Hathaway; Skitch Henderson as Sidney Ferguson; Don Knotts as Mr. Morrison; Pat Harrington as Guldo Panzini; Bill Dana as Jose Jimenez; Tom Poston as Everyman; and Dayton Allen as — did his character have a name? They weren't all on every week, of course, but that was the group.

DEAR DICK: Please help me settle an argument. Has Robert Foxworth of "Falcon Crest" ever played Mr. Brady on "The Brady Bunch"? He seems to resemble Robert Reed very much. I say that he hasn't, but a friend insists he has. — N.A., Santa Maria, Calif.

No, Brady was always played by Reed.

'Happy Days' Starts Another Happy Year

By Peter Meade

Marion Ross has been playing Marion Cunningham on ABC's "Happy Days" for so long that the two share much more than just a first name.

And now with "M*A*S*H" ended, "Happy Days" is currently the longest running series presently on the air.

"I thought the show would be over after Ron (Howard) left (in 1980)," says Miss Ross, "but after the shock, we survived beautifully. We've stayed together so long because we have five months off each year so we can all do what we want."

While Henry Winkler works on a movie and Tom Bosley does his thing, Miss Ross tries to appear in a play during each hiatus. She says the series' longevity is a matter of many factors.

Bosley and Miss Ross are doubly happy about the new season because their TV children, Joanie and her boyfriend, Chachi, are returning to "Happy Days" after an unsuccessful spinoff attempt.

Erin Moran and Scott Baio (aka Joanie and Chachi) won't be the only familiar faces returning when the cast reassembles later this summer. Miss Ross says that Howard will return for possibly "three to five" shows, plus Anson Williams will also make frequent appearances.

Second Generation Carrying Out Family Tradition At Carlo's Restaurant (Pizzeria)

Entering Carlo's Restaurant is like stepping back into tradition. Paul Balo is a second generation owner-operator of this Italian restaurant located eight years at its 1008 South French Avenue, Sanford, address.

Although steeped in his family's tradition of fine Italian cooking, Paul has picked up a few "trade secrets" as a chef in New York City. His special touches are notable in the many dishes all of which are begun with quality imported foods, oils and seasonings.

The delicacy of the recipes is detectable to the diner's nose as he awaits arrival of his order in the cozy, red-checked atmosphere of the restaurant.

For a 52-seat restaurant, Carlo's menu is lengthy. If your taste runs to veal, whether it be scallopini or parmigiana, you can count on a fresh, select cut of meat properly prepared in a special breading and served with tender cooked peppers and mushrooms. Imported wines bring truth to the flavors.

A blend of three cheeses produces the creamy sauce Alfredo for fettuccini, which, with salad and garlic bread calls for a $7.50 tab.

Paul's antipasto is a combination of Italian spiced meats, provolone cheese, green and black olives on a bed of lettuce with just the right seasoning and the house Italian or another choice dressing.

Carlo's New York style pizza has a thin, crisp crust that is moist. The special sauce is topped with whole milk mozzarella and a choice of garnishes. The restaurant offers both round and the square Sicilian pizzas.

Paul's wife, Debbie, will greet you at the door Monday through Friday beginning at 11 with a choice from six lunch specials and in the evening until 10 through the week and 11 on Fridays. Dinners start at $3.65.
