Children Of Israel Allowed By King To Camp In Moab

And the children of Israel camped in the plains of Moab. And King Ahab of the Moabites sent messengers unto Balaam to say: Behold, there is a great company come out from Egypt: they cover the face of the earth, and are over against me: Come now therefore, curse me, that I may drive them out of the land: for I wot that he whom thou cursest is cursed. And Balaam said unto them: Where here this night, and I will bring you word again, as the Lord shall speak unto me. And they came unto Balaam and said: These shall curse me, that I may drive them out of the land, and Balaam rose in the morning, and said unto the princes of Moab, The Lord hath said, I will curse you, and they went unto Balaam. And Balaam sent yet again messengers, more and more honorable, and they came to Balaam and said: Thus saith Balaam, I will promote thee unto very great honor, and I will do whatsoever thou sayest; come, I pray thee, and curse me this people; And Balaam said unto the servants of Balaam: Tarry ye also here this night, that I may know what the Lord will say. And God came unto Balaam, and said, go with them; but yet the word which I shall say unto thee, do. And Balaam rose in the morning, and went with the princes of Moab. And when Balaam had heard that Balaam was come to be sent out to curse him, and the Moabites also had heard that Balaam was come to curse them, they went to meet him. And Balaam said unto them: Have I now any power at all to curse or to bless? For the word of the Lord hath put me in a hedge, that I shall not go back. And on the morning Balaam took Balaam up unto the high places of Baal, that he might see the utmost part of the people. And Balaam said unto Balaam: Build me here seven altars, and Balaam and Balaam offered on every altar a bullock and a ram. And Balaam went in a hired place. And God met Balaam and said: Return unto Balaam, and thou shalt speak. And he returned unto him, and took up his parable and said: The King of Moab hath brought me from the mountains of the east, saying: Defy Israel, how shall I curse whom God hath not cursed? how shall I defy whom the Lord hath not defied? Lo, the people shall dwell alone, and shall not be reckoned among the nations; Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his. And Balaam said: What hast thou done? I took thee to curse mine enemies, and behold, thou hast blessed them. Ad, he answered: Must I of speak that which the Lord hath put in my mouth? And Balaam said: Come unto me, and I will promote thee unto very great honor, and I will do whatsoever thou shalt say: and he said: I will not go; for I will not transgress the commandment of the Lord. And Balaam brought Balaam to the son of Peor, and saw Israel adding in his tent; and the spirit of God came upon him, and he said: How goodly are thy tents, O Jacob, and thy tabernacles, O Israel; God brought him forth out of Egypt: he hath a right were the strength of an unicorn; he shall eat up the enemies and pierce them through with his arrows; Blessed be he that blesseth thee, and cursed is he that curseth thee. And Balaam's anger was kindled, and he said unto Balaam: Heeded thee to curse mine enemy, and behold, thou hast blessed them: Therefore, now also unto thy place: I will curse thee, and thou shalt be honoured; but lo, the Lord hath kept thee back from honour. And Balaam said unto Balaam: Balaam would give me his house of silver and gold, I cannot go beyond the commandment of the Lord. And now, behold, I go to my people; come therefore, and I will advertise thee what people shall do to thee in the latter days. And he took up his parable, and said: Balaam the son of Peor said, and the man eyes are open that said: See mine, but not now; I shall hide him, but not night; shall come a Star out of Jacob, and a Sceptre shall rise from Israel; and shall smite the corner of Moab, and destroy all the horn of Moab. The venture, reasons labor, many groups, often in following lines.

WCTU Holds Meeting At Fellowship Front

Members of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union met recently in the lobby of the Fellowship Front Hotel at the Municipal Airport, and strong pleas were heard for workers to serve in the battle against "King Alcohol", which was described as "Our American Hitler."
 The meeting was opened with songs. Scripture reading and prayer was given by the Rev. Irving D. Johnston.
 Bob Froelich told of Vigil Peterson of the Chicago Crime Commission placing facts before the editors of the Chicago Daily News and how that newspaper made a close survey of the liquor situation, printing facts and pictures daily beyond fear or favor. Demand for the paper increased 30,000 daily beyond the usual circulation, he declared.
 Bob Davidson, a young college student from Ohio, revealed that he had sold liquor in a night club until one night, seven people to whom he had served liquor were killed in a head-on collision. Shortly after leaving the club, he

AND THERE WAS LIGHT

When God said "Let there be light," He created the conditions under which life could exist on the earth. Without light, the earth would become a frozen ball, barren, desolate, and lifeless.
 It was a great day for the human race when man learned to draw the imprisoned sun-rays from the elements and convert them into heat and light. It marked the beginning of human progress.
 Step by step he has advanced from the brush fire to the marvels of electricity. With more light he has increased his knowledge, added to his safety, and improved his living standard.
 Religion is the light of the spiritual world, and is essential to the growth and well-being of the soul. The Psalmist said, "The Lord is my light and my salvation," and the teachings of Jesus are the "true light" for all who will heed them.
 Wherever the Bible is accepted as the guide of life, darkness disappears and the light of faith shines in the hearts of men.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH
 The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every citizen should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake, (2) For his children's sake, (3) For the sake of his community and nation, (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Growers Expand Farms Despite Big Financial Gamble

Associated Press Farm Reporter
WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Much is heard these days about investors being fearful of taking financial risks. Economic conditions, it is said, are too uncertain. There is one place in America where there's no such timidity. That's down on the farm.

The farmer is going right ahead expanding one of the most hazardous of all enterprises—the production and feeding of livestock for meat. This is a business in which a drop of three or four cents a pound in cattle prices can bring on bankruptcy.

Yet, in face of a general decline in farm prices, a gradual reduction in national income, and some forecasts of recessions and depressions, the farmer is going right ahead building up herd cattle rights, producing more hogs and maintaining a high level of milk production.

Regardless of whether all this results in profit or loss for the farmer, it promises larger supplies of animal products for the consumer.

To get an idea of the risky character of livestock farming, let's take the case of a hypothetical cattle feeder in the Midwest corn belt.

For the most part, such feeders go into the market and buy their cattle and place them on a heavy ration of corn, other grains and weights. This fattening process takes from a few months to a year or longer, depending on the weights and quality to which the feeder desires to bring the animals.

At current prices a feeder would pay about 20 cents a pound for such animals. A herd of 100 head averaging 500 pounds would cost $10,000.

When the feeder buys cattle he has no assurance what the price will be when he gets them ready for the slaughter market. Suppose the weight is 600 pounds. The total tonnage would be 60,000 pounds or 120,000 pounds more than when he bought them.

The feeder would make a little money only if he were able to sell the cattle for more than 20 cents a pound. It would take the revenue from the increased weight to cover cost of his feed, labor, and other outlays.

But suppose prices dropped four cents a pound. A price of 16 cents a pound on 60,000 pounds of cattle would bring only $9,600, or $400 short of the investment. There would be nothing to cover feed, labor and other costs.

church Monday evening. This was the annual Christmas meeting and an appropriate worship service was planned and conducted by Mrs. Lily M. Fuller, president of the organization. Speakers of the evening included Mrs. M. Ducloux, Mrs. Audrey Baumbach, and Mrs. Louis Geisler. Special music was furnished by Marilyn Lowdermilk and Mrs. Frances McDowell, and Mrs. O. E. Weaver. Plans were made to send articles of new clothing to Brewster Hospital in Jacksonville, and a special purpose was raised to be turned over to the treasurer of the local church.

This was also the occasion of Mrs. Fuller's birthday, and following the business session, the social hour was turned into a surprise birthday party in her honor. Several nice gifts were presented to Mrs. Fuller by the society. Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. A. F. Lobb, and Mrs. O. E. Weaver.

A social meeting of the Women's Community Club was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William Tyler, Jr., in Winter Park with Mrs. M. G. Ingalls as co-hostess. A short business meeting was held to discuss plans for the club's Christmas party which will be held on Friday evening, Dec. 10. Mrs. R. L. Hooker, president, appointed Mrs. W. W. Lowdermilk chairman of the committee to arrange the party. A new member, Mrs. Maria G. McLain was introduced to the group. Refreshments were served by the hostesses. Present were: Mrs. W. W. Lowdermilk, Mrs. William Fairchild, Jr., Mrs. J. R. Hillway, Mrs. O. E. Weaver, Mrs. William Otto, Jr., Mrs. A. A. Brooks, Mrs. Henry Hanson, Mrs. Robert Hooker, Mrs. Robert Hester, and Mrs. M. G. McLain.

Weekend guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Weaver were Mr. and Mrs. Buren Cunningham of Labanon, Ind. Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham were en route to St. Petersburg where they expect to spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Vern Bollinger and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Winebrenner moved to Fort Myers for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Baker and daughter Janet of Miami visited the Williams over the weekend. Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Metzendorf from Mt. Dora were Sunday callers of Mr. and Mrs. C. Snyder. Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Blumberg and Mr. and Mrs. E. R. McKay of Mt. Dora were guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Snolly Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Marion Cleveland, Dean of Women of Rollins College, was injured in an automobile accident last Saturday evening in Fern Park at the intersection of Highway 17 and Concord Drive. Mrs. Cleveland was driving North on the highway, en route to a dinner party at the home of Prof. and Mrs. Ralph Huntley, when the accident occurred. A car driven by Chas. A. Reilly of Orlando was also involved in the mishap. Mrs. Cleveland was taken to Orange Memorial Hospital suffering from bruises and lacerations, but was released Tuesday and reported in good condition.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Society for Christian Service of the Community Methodist Church was held in the ment, including 21 of the Sanford area. He further emphasized that this was not a Christmas bonus in the usual sense and was non-recurring.

Germans Send 1st Christmas Parcels To Imprisoned Kin

HAMBURG, Germany, Dec. 2.—(AP)—This Christmas, for the first time since the war, Germans are sending Christmas parcels both East and West.

Parcels sent eastward may contain food and articles for daily use, such as toilet articles and clothing. But any parcel containing printed matter, messages, books, or newspapers used for wrapping material is subject to confiscation.

Parcels sent to the western countries contain mostly small valuables (items). Nothing having trade value—cameras, for instance, is permitted. Anyway, the receiver probably would have to pay heavy duty on the item.

Antiques, souvenirs and needlework are permitted, however, so it is a sure bet that thousands of people will receive such items instead of the usual "Mittens China sets their friends would like to send them.

The German Red Cross and the state radio sponsored a drive to provide Christmas parcels for German prisoners spending their fifth Christmas behind barbed wire. It was a great success. Germans in the three western occupation zones and Berlin gave about 67,000 individually packed parcels. Almost a quarter-million marks ($100,000) in cash was donated. This is being used by the Red Cross to buy additional parcels.

Many German families who cannot afford to send their prisoners relatives parcels have asked the Red Cross to send packages for them and the Red Cross is doing that. Altogether, the organization hopes to send 20,000 parcels to Germans still interned in prisoner camps.

Most of the westbound parcels are destined for the United States. Many go to Australia, South America, South Africa, Britain and other countries.

Foodstuffs are taboo in these parcels. However, when a parcel contains a few Christmas cookies the German customs officials seem suddenly afflicted with poor eyesight.

Nazi literature and cussword clocks are "forbidden." Many senders try to smuggle swastika flags, standards and other military emblems into the parcels, customs officials report. These "souvenirs" are regularly thrown out.

Once in a while, a bar of chocolate finds its way into a Britain-bound parcel. Sweets are still rationed in England, but anybody can buy practically unlimited amounts of chocolate here

Southern Educators To Decide Next Year On New Standards

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 2.—(AP)—Southern educators will decide next year at Richmond, Va., whether to adopt a new set of standards under which colleges and universities are qualified for membership.

But, in winding up their 1942 convention, they adopted for at least a year a proposal to accept Negro schools into full membership in the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

The new standards to be voted on at next year's convention at Richmond call for:

- 1. Increasing the minimum levels for colleges and university faculties.
- 2. Boosting the desired per capita expenditures for instruction from $150 to $200.
- 3. Provisions to strengthen the role of libraries an educational function.

There's a possibility the Negro membership proposal may not receive final consideration next year.

The planning committee of the association recommended that an adequate study of means of improving Negro education in the South be launched immediately so that possible changes could be made in 1950.

Reference to 1950 was deleted by a convention vote after H. M. Levy, superintendent of schools at Meridian, Miss., and next year might be something things to do.

The convention's action was a disapproval of the A. F. F. E. H. Levy, president of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

"The action was a large step," he said. "But it is largely as we had hoped it would come to pass for me to explain the action to the Negro group. They've been waiting for it about 25 years."

Every told the convention Negro education is improving each year. He said the South had 85 Negro schools 22 years ago but only 48 now. Of the 48, he said, 61 have received ratings by the association. Of the 16 Negro secondary schools, he said, 130 are on the

This you tell yourself, is traveling as traveling should be. Comfortable—in the spacious manner of king-size interiors. Easy—in the lightness of controls, which can include even the magic of Dynaflow Drive! if you wish. Pleasurable—in the wide, wide outlook, that's yours, and the inner satisfaction of having a Buick for your very own. And we might add another thing, just by way of being practical. It's frugal, too. Frugal in a first cost that's actually less than for some nixes. Frugal in the surprising way such a sizable car gives the go-by to gas pumps. And if you have Dynaflow, frugal even in many upkeep costs you can forget about—such as clutch troubles, transmission maintenance, even many engine servicing costs. Why not put yourself into one of these jet-lined beauties right now? It's more easily managed than you might imagine—as you'll see by talking to your Buick dealer. *Optional at extra cost.

Chiseling In Jobless Benefits

Criminal cheating by thousands of claimants of jobless benefits, and "shockingly lax" administration of the unemployment insurance laws are today making a mockery of a program that started as a fine social experiment, charges Charles Stevenson in The Reader's Digest for December. Stevenson warns that the entire unemployment insurance plan, which has cost taxpayers $12 billion to date, faces ruin unless public-spirited citizens, employer and employee alike, assert themselves.

The basic idea of jobless pay, conceived more than a decade ago, was to provide temporary aid for persons who became unemployed through no fault of their own, while they searched for new jobs. Today, in many states, pressure groups have so influenced the interpretation of unemployment insurance laws that the original plan has degenerated into a governmental grab for thousands of fraudulent claimants.

Many recipients of insurance checks have been found to be currently employed. Many more are steadily refusing available jobs because the offered work is deemed "unsuitable" or because it pays less than prevailing union wage scales. In Massachusetts a fraud-investigating unit interviewed 5,208 beneficiaries, found that 4,249 had obtained insurance fraudulently. The booty: $88,476. A special New York State inquiry found that, whereas employment offices were able to obtain jobs for half of the persons who asked for work, only 16 percent were ever placed. The rest preferred to loaf and be supported by the state. California investigators, checking records of persons on unemployment insurance rolls for six months or more, found one out of every ten had a job while receiving jobless pay. In the area around Los Banos, Calif., 60 percent of all recipients were being paid contrary to the intent of the law.

Typical of many individual instances cited in the article is the case of a New York stenographer who, while receiving unemployment checks, turned down four jobs paying $40 to $45 a week. She deemed them "unsuitable" because they were not in insurance offices, or did not meet her 35-hour work demand, or paid $1 less than her previous salary.

Federal pressure upon state administrators to interpret the laws liberally has been persistent and widespread. A former administrator for Ohio reported to the author that an official from Washington had said: "We want to get spending power into the hands of the people. If a man walks in and signs a slip, pay him. We will never audit you. Get the money out." Other administrators say that states which accede to such demands get more federal money for their programs, while states which do not are kept on or near a deficit basis.

CIO barred its goals for liberalizing unemployment payments. In its publication, "Economic Outlook," among other things it urged, "Stop cancellations of benefits for refusal of work that is not to a beneficiary's liking, and substitute a two- to four-week postponement of benefits as the severest penalty which can be imposed for any reason."

Average benefits for the nation are now more than $20 a week, but in some states insurance is bolstered by allowance for dependents. In Massachusetts, payments have been as high as $51 a week.

On Ghost-Writing

Members of the United States Supreme Court recently had opinions to offer on the subject of ghost-writing. This is the process in which a speech to be delivered by some prominent person, or a newspaper or magazine article to be published under his signature, actually is written by someone else, usually a professional writer. In many circles this is accepted as normal and harmless practice. In the case before the Supreme Court, however, the inclusion of a ghost-written article in a file submitted to the Patent Office was held to be a fraud against that Office.

Justice Robert H. Jackson, while writing an opinion dissenting from the view that fraud had been established, made it clear that he had nothing but ill to say for ghost-writing. "Ghost-writing has debased the intellectual currency in circulation here and is a type of counterfeiting which invites no defense," he wrote.

A distinction should here be made. When a busy man, in public office or not, calls in his writing assistant and gives him a brief but careful outline of the speech he wants written, then takes in hand the finished product and edits it carefully, amending, rectifying to make sure the written word does express his thought, that is not, strictly speaking, a ghost-written speech. The speaker has done the thinking and has merely been saved a little time.

But it is common knowledge that public speeches of many high figures of government are entirely written by others. The fact that the practice is general does not make it any less distressing to hearers who would like to find in an official's speech an indication of his philosophy and his ways of thought. Instances have been reported in which responsible officials, after making some important speech, had to refer back to written copies to find out what they had said.

Some highly placed people in private life also engage in the practice; it is not good, but may not be important. Government officials, however, are responsible to the people, and when they make speeches not of their own thought and words, they are making counterfeit reports.

THE WORLD TODAY

By DEWITT MAERNSIE AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The allied policy of keeping Germany disarmed indefinitely already seems to be heading into complications. This column the other day called attention to the reiteration in Europe by U. S. Defense Secretary Johnson and U. S. Chief of Staff Bradley that America has no intention of rearming the Reich. I commented that this created a strange situation, since Germany is being made an integral part of the Western European set-up and must be protected, and added: "Should another war develop between West and East Europe (which heaven forbid) Western Germany presumably would be in the front-line defenses of the West. What happens then to the maintenance of German military impotence? It seems a fair guess that the Reich would become not only a vital base for operations of the Western Allies, but might be invited to call German manpower to the colors for defense."

Since that writing, the Socialist-democrat, official newspaper of the Socialist Democratic Party in Western Berlin, has charged that the Communists are creating a peoples army of 350,000 men in the Russian zone to impose their policies even after the Russian military forces withdraw. Such an army would mean one armed Red for every 50 persons in the Soviet Zone—an ominous sounding figure.

The Russian army newspaper Tsvetliche Rundschau made the counter-charge that the Americans and British are creating a 150,000 man police force in their zones, and that the French are recruiting 7,000 German police-weekly. The Western Allies report that the total police force for all three zones is 115,000. Which is one policeman for each 416 persons.

Well, there we have a situation which gives pause for consideration. It is plain enough that there could be a conflict between political and military thought. Not to put too fine a point on it, there are differences of opinion in some circles as to whether Germany should be re-armed in the interests of general peace.

The political viewpoint broadly speaking has been German disarmament is essential to the maintenance of peace. This thesis has been strongly supported by the French who have suffered so grievously from invasion in the two world wars. The military view has been that the Reich wasn't to be trusted again.

The expressed military viewpoint in any country naturally follows the policy of the government. However, there is a large school of military experts among the Western Allies who maintain that from the practical standpoint Germany should be re-armed, at least partially. Such rearmament would be safeguarded by the maintenance of allied military forces, and the Germans wouldn't be allowed again to create a military potential capable of aggression. The arguments for rearming Germany rest mainly on two points: (1) The Germans admit fighting men. (2) If there is any other general European war, Germany is likely to be the cockpit. If the cold war between the Russian bloc and Western Europe could be ended, the German picture would change. There is no doubt or would be need of rearming the country.

But until this unhappy strife between East and West is called off, the rearmament of Germany will remain a moot question.

Family Attacked

"Do you think I'm crazy?" she quoted him. "Well, it happened at that time." He told her he didn't mean to shoot his son and daughter, and asked Mrs. Rice to take care of his children.

Then he stalked off the porch with a .22 rifle in his hand, saying he was going to kill himself. "In a few minutes I heard four or five shots in the direction he had gone, but I was too busy to take much notice," she said.

No charge had been filed against Beatrice.

Chapter 2 HENRY AND MR. DILLY JOIN FORCES

Henry led Mr. Dilly to a very queer shed of a house at the edge of the town. It looked so rickety you would have thought even a spring breeze would send it tumbling to the ground. As they turned in at the gate a woman with fly-away hair opened the door and swept the porch vigorously.

"Is he your mother?" asked Mr. Dilly.

"Oh, no," said Henry. "I don't have a mother. That is Mrs. Snell. She takes care of me, I guess."

"Just then Mrs. Snell caught sight of Henry.

"You! Where have you been? There's work to be done you know. Get in here and scrub the kitchen and fill the wood box and peel the potatoes." Her voice was dreadfully loud and cross.

Henry said, "I went to a Christmas magic show and this—"

"Christmas?" cried Mrs. Snell. "Just forget about Christmas. There won't be any Christmas in this house I can tell you—not for boys like you."

"I don't know," said Mr. Dilly. "I'm Mr. Dilly the Magician. Henry is bringing me to see his talking duck."

Mrs. Snell's mouth dropped open and she stared at Mr. Dilly dumbly. Then her voice flew into her mouth and she cried, "Surely a man as old as you has not been taken in by this foolish story of a talking duck!"

Mr. Dilly looked at Henry as if to say "Have you been fooling me?"

"It's not a story," blurted Henry. "It's true. Serena is in the back yard and she talks to me all the time."

"Not only does the boy do no work, he is silly in the head besides. Why should I have so much trouble?"

"If I could see the duck, perhaps," suggested Mr. Dilly.

"You can't," said Henry quickly. "I keep her in a box out there."

But as he started to lead Mr. Dilly around the house Mrs. Snell whooped, "You won't find your duck out back now, young man!"

Henry stopped and looked at Mrs. Snell. His face was suddenly quite pale. "Where is she, then?" he asked.

"I've tied her up in the kitchen," said Mrs. Snell. "I'm going to cook her for dinner."

Henry gasped. Tears of anger streamed down his cheeks. "I never want to see you again!" he roared.

"Leave me, then!" shouted Mrs. Snell.

Dairy Products Prices Expected To Drop

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Prices of dairy products will be somewhat lower next year unless the government's price-supporting purchases are increased materially over 1949 levels, the Agriculture Department said today.

As for the rest of December, the department's monthly dairy situation report said little change would occur in these prices. Total milk flow, it said, is running larger than a year ago, and sizable purchases of manufactured products are still being made for price support.

The average price received by farmers for all milk at wholesale has been increasing steadily since June, the report said. The average mid-October price, at $4.16 per hundredweight, was 16 percent below the price a year earlier.

The price received by farmers for butterfat has been practically stable since last spring. In mid-October, the price of butterfat at 62.1 cents per pound was eight per cent below the level of October 1949.

The report said output per cow is being made at unprecedented levels for the time of the year.

3 DIE IN FIRE

INER, Ky., Dec. 2.—(AP)—A young mother and her two baby sons, trapped in their beds, died early today in a fire that destroyed their home.

The victims were Mrs. Lucille Moore Kirk, 35, and Jackie, 3, and Robert Kirk, 1.

Jack Kirk, Sr., proprietor of the Silver Bell restaurant here, was seriously burned. The family had shared the home with Mrs. Kirk's sister and her family, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Harmon.

Kirk jumped from a second floor window after flames cut off his escape by a stairway.

Garden Gate

By MRS. L. E. SPENCER

Now that the camellia japonica and the camellia sasanqua are starting to bloom I thought I would try to write some of the important things to know about the standard varieties, and advise buying blooming plants whenever possible because so often if you buy according to a picture, or the description of a plant, it will not bloom satisfactorily. And do not buy a plant just because you think you are getting a bargain because you may be disappointed.

There are some camellia japonica varieties such as 'Methuena', 'Mathuna', 'Alba', 'Sarah Frost', 'Elizabeth', 'Candidissima', 'Heal Rosen', and others that do not open well here, so we would advise you to buy the standard varieties such as 'Alba Plena', 'Pink Perfection', 'Professor Sargent', 'Prince Eugene', 'Napoleon', 'Hermes', 'Monarch', 'Chandler', 'Elegance', or the gold medal variety such as 'Methuena', 'Mathuna', 'Rosa Superior', 'C. M. Harvey', 'Empress', 'Debutante', 'Lauri Leaf', 'K. Sawla', 'Lotus', Mrs. Charles Goulet's 'Marchioness' of Eder.

We have found 'gambella' standard to be very satisfactory if they are not too big before you buy. If you plant them, the larger plants can be moved if they are dug up with a big ball of dirt with them, and burrapped; and then keep them well watered for several weeks until they are established.

When planting a camellia that is balled and burrapped, do not remove burrap. Dig a hole twice as large as the ball of dirt and half fill same with a mixture of equal parts of peat, oak leaves, sawdust, and soil. We consider it desirable to add sheep manure to this mixture, and also recommend the edition of a limited amount of a good camellia and azalea fertilizer.

Then place plant, in half filled hole, being very careful not to plant any deeper than it had been formerly planted. In fact, we recommend that the plant should be one inch or two above the ground to allow for settling, and they very important not to plant too deep. Then pack very firmly, pour of his mixture around the plant to fill hole completely, and be very sure dirt is well packed around the plant so there are no air holes. Then be sure and water well, and if the burrap shows above the ground it will soon rot around the edge and you can lift this off.

The Camellia is a gross feeder and responds well to fertilizer. In our Florida soil it is well to remember to fertilize often and in smaller quantities, because watering and heavy rains will wash fertilizer beyond the reach of all plants. Camellias love a humid atmosphere, so do not neglect watering. This is very important. Frequent spraying of the leaves when the temperature is not above 80 degrees, is very beneficial during the dry summer months.

Camellias are susceptible to various scales and red spider. This can be controlled by using Veck, or Oil of Spassulol mixed with water at the rate of 1 to 50 in the summer and 1 to 40 in the winter; mix one teaspoon of Hark Leaf 40 to every gallon to solution. Thorough spraying, about every 3 or 4 months will control these pests satisfactorily. Avoid spraying in the strong sun in the summer, and in freezing winter temperatures, as that may cause the leaves to burn.

Garden Club To Have Annual Plant Sale

The annual plant sale will be held by the Sanford Garden Club on Dec. 14. Mrs. Charles E. Ginn, president, announced this morning. The sale will be held in the Thorpe building at Second Street and Magnolia Avenue, and all proceeds will be put into the club building fund.

Each table will have space in which to set plants, trays with or miscellaneous articles. Each plant, when brought to the Thorpe building, must be tagged with its name and price.

Add leftover cooked rice to slightly beaten egg, season with salt and pepper, and drop by spoonfuls on a hot, wellgreased griddle. Serve these rice griddle cakes with crisp bacon and curiant jelly, and a green salad, for lunch.

The right way to slice the turkey drumstick meat is to hold the drumstick at an angle, or upright, and cut down—parallel with the bones—turning to get uniform slices.

For a different soup grow up cut luncheon meat in tiny cubes and fry until crisp and brown. Serve as you would bread crumbs.

When making pancakes that cut for each meal and have no extra flour, added, be sure to stir well each time you take a spoonful of batter up for frying.

MRS. FRANK VERNAY will report pupils for kindergarten for the second term beginning January 2, 1941, 207 Oak Avenue or Call 1038 R.

Baseball Minors Begin Convention, Players Swapped

Yanks Want Robinson From Senators, New York Giants Try To Trade For Stanky

BALTIMORE, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Not a single big league trade may be announced at the 48th annual minor league baseball convention that opens up here today and does not close Friday, Dec. 9. But that does not mean that none will be consummated.

It is almost a certainty that at least two, perhaps three, player deals of considerable proportions will be ready to be announced at the Major League session in New York next week.

One concerns the world champion New York Yankees and the American League cellar-sitter Washington Senators. The Yankees, since the close of the 1948 season, have been trying to acquire pitcher Lew Burdick and first baseman Eddie Robinson away from the Mets.

They might as well stop waiting time on Newburgh, if cannot get him. But Robinson is another matter. It would not be at all surprising if the big slugger was a Yankee uniform next season.

It was learned that the Yankees had offered George Stanky, reserve second baseman, and outfielder Johnny Lindell. Both are well liked by Harris and he is holding for another player, preferably one of the young pitchers on the Yankee roster. The young pitcher was not otherwise identified.

The New York Giants have made a cash offer to the Boston Braves for veteran second baseman Eddie Stanky.

A member of the Boston party recalled that Lindell was not including Stanky in his 1949 plans.

"Eddie has played his last ball for the Braves," he said.

The third deal that may be involving the St. Louis Browns and Detroit Tigers with Brownie second baseman Gerry Priddy as the key figure. At present the Browns own Priddy and are offering $200,000 and an infielder to take Priddy's place. The Tigers are willing to go high but not that high.

Brooklyn's second baseman trade talk has slumbered down to a mere whisper. After weeks of deciphering what Branch Rickey, 100, said to one reporter, Rickey said he didn't think the two clubs would ever get to talking.

The ages that minor league head George Trautman was too ill to preside at the convention was a shock to the some 2,000 delegates from 50 minor league clubs, the ages of which are usually well in the 30's.

Grid Mentors Find Varsity Prospects In Own Families

That motto would fit the case of several college football coaches around the country, who have their own sons playing for them.

Probably the finest prospect among the offspring of the grid mentors is Bobby Hank, younger son of Army football coach Earl H. (Red) Hank, and only a sophomore. Young Hank has been playing since the cadet's first year in the military academy. Bobby Hank, young son of Army football coach Earl H. (Red) Hank, and only a sophomore.

Sports Roundup By RUCON FULLERTON, Jr.

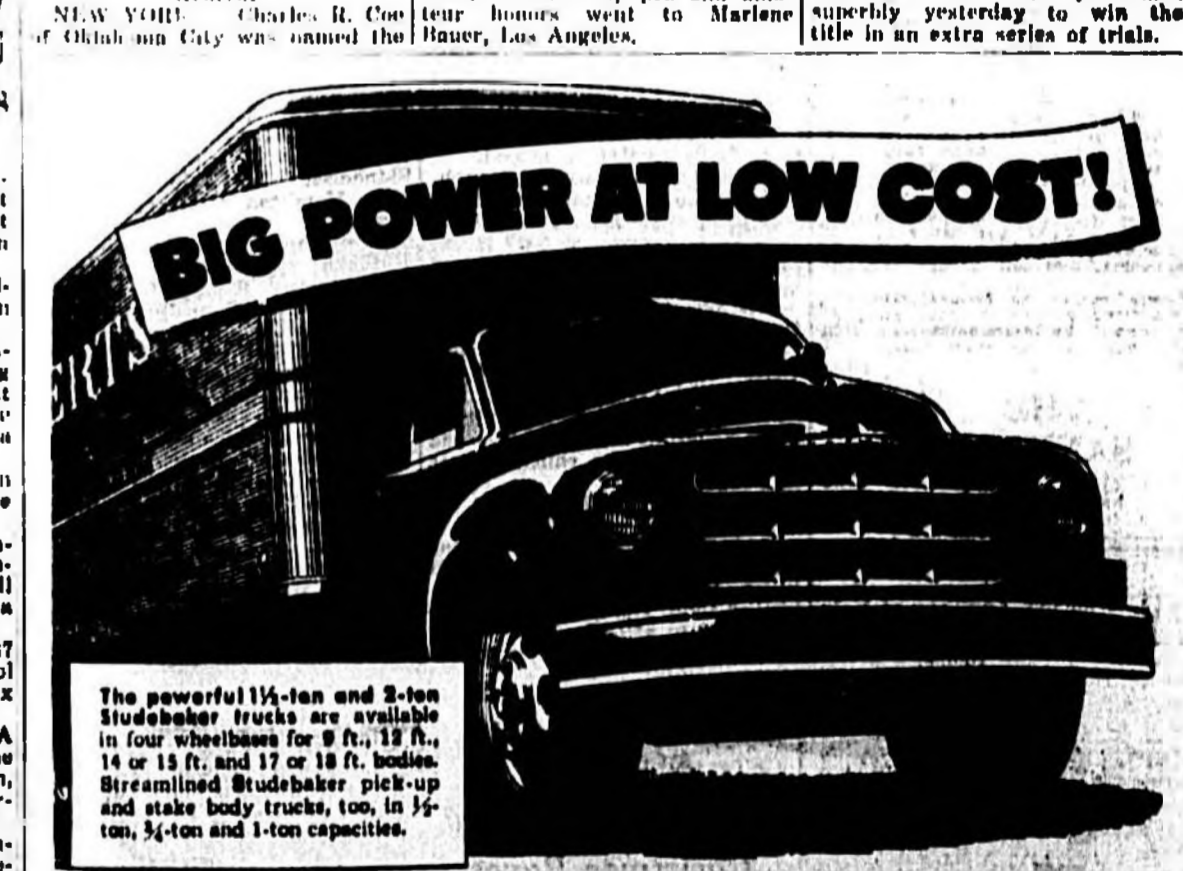

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—(AP)—It may seem a long time ago, but hockey never fulfilled its promise of becoming a real big-league sport, Frank Boucher reluctantly admits. It's because there aren't enough good players to go around. That's not exactly the way Frank puts it, but he can pick out three to five players on each National League team he terms outstanding stars ("and no quotes, please") the other teams might get mad at me. . . . And each team is carrying four or five players just good enough to hang on.
