Kaplan moved to state facility

SANFORD — Two months after being declared incompetent to stand trial, a former state legislative candidate charged with shooting his opponent's wife has been transferred to a state facility for evaluation and treatment.

Eric Kaplan, 29, was moved last week from the John E. Polk Correctional Facility to the Forensic North Florida Evaluation and Treatment Center in Gainesville.

Kaplan is charged with attempted first degree murder with a firearm in the Sept. 27, 1992 shooting of Judy Starks. Kaplan was running for the legislative seat held by Republican representative Robert Starks.

Kaplan is to be treated for "delusional disorder," diagnosed by a court appointed psychiatrist.

Kaplan was declared incompetent Sept. 10 and was transferred to the hospital Nov. 15. A waiting list for available patient beds delayed the transfer.

Openings and closings

All government offices, city as well as county, will be closed today as well as tomorrow, to offer a four-day holiday weekend for employees.

Schools will also be closed for both Thursday and Friday.

At various parts of the county, trash pickups normally scheduled for Thursday will be re-scheduled depending on normal routes.

The Central Florida Zoological Park is closed today, one of only two days the facility closes during the year.

Banks will be closed today, but open Friday during normal hours.

Many businesses will be closed for Thanksgiving, although many restaurants will operate with special holiday meals offered.

Most businesses will be open for regular hours on Friday.

Food banks feel pinch

Thanksgiving: More needy, less food and money

By NICK PFEIFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — With many people looking forward to the annual Thanksgiving meal, some Florida food banks are finding the need great and pantries bare. Locally, donations were not up to previous years.

The third annual Mayor's Soup-R Supper was held at the Sanford Civic Center Wednesday. It was a fund-raising event rather than the direct offering of a meal for the less fortunate. Although the turnout was in keeping with past events, organizers were disappointed at this year's prior cash donations. Proceeds from ticket sales will benefit area needy, but in the past, additional donations from merchants and residents have brought the amount higher.

At the Rescue Outreach Mission where some 300 persons were to be fed today, Mother Blanche Bell Weaver said there was a shortage of hams donated this year. "We had plenty of turkey, but only two hams didn't provide for large helpings," she said.

The Mission was assisted with the help of the Sanford Salvation Army.

Crooms school family hosts feast for needy

By VICKI DeSORMIER

SANFORD — The dreary weather matched Melissa Meeks' mood as she walked meekly into the cafeteria at the Crooms School of Choice this afternoon, but her feelings soon improved.

Inside the brightly lit dining hall at the 13th Street school, a busy contingency of students, teachers, administrators and other volunteers were setting up for the annual Thanksgiving feast for the needy.

The school's annual Thanksgiving feast for the needy took place yesterday afternoon.

Meeks, 14, is about eight months pregnant and living on the street. She has been making her way to Sarasota for a little less than five months. She said her parents kicked her out of the house when SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners decided not to change garbage rates for haul-it-yourselfers, despite a recent rate increase.

In other action, commissioners agreed to match a $1 million state grant to complete Spring Hammock, join with the St. Johns River Water Management District to buy 500 acres on the north shore of Lake Jesup and agreed to a $133,000 annual contribution to a new transit authority.

Longwood robbery suspects nabbed

By NICK PFEIFAUF

LONGWOOD — Three suspects arrested in connection with a Clermont convenience store robbery are also suspects in robberies covering five counties including Seminole, sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough said.

"Our deputy is in Clermont right now. He said the one guy is wearing the same plaid shirt from the Longwood robbery," McDonough said late Wednesday afternoon.

Surveillance cameras from a Cumberland Farms store, S.R. 434, Longwood, allegedly photographed a robbery in progress Monday, showing a man in a plaid shirt holding money in his right hand.

Clermont Police Information Officer Jaue McAllister said the Cumberland Farms robbery in that city was thwarted Wednesday by a clerk who wouldn't give up the money.

Cheerleaders from Midway pep up parade

By VICKI DeSORMIER

SANFORD — Put together at the last moment before the Seminole High School Homecoming Parade earlier this month, the Midway Elementary School cheerleading squad has already been invited to perform out of town.

The Roadrunner cheerleaders will be performing at the Orlando Thanksgiving Parade from 6 to 9 p.m. tonight.

"They were put together pretty quickly just nine days before the Seminole Homecoming Parade," said Mary Conyers, one of the group's choreographers. "But the girls have worked very hard and they are very, very good."

Conyers said there has been an interest among the girls at the school in forming the team for some time.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Sawyer named schools chief for Brevard

ROCKLEDGE — David Sawyer, district schools superintendent in Clovis, Calif., has been named to the same post for Brevard County schools — a system twice as large with four times the budget.

Brevard County school officials selected him from among seven finalists on a 3-2 vote Tuesday night. Sawyer is to begin at the 56,000-student district with a budget of $454 million on Jan. 1. His annual salary will be no higher than $105,000, officials said.

In July 1991, Sawyer replaced Floyd Buchanan, who was Clovis' only superintendent for three decades and who still had support from about half the school board.

But in the Nov. 2 election, board members who voted in favor of ousting Buchanan and hiring Sawyer were replaced by candidates backed by Buchanan. The new Clovis board said constituents liked their district the way it was and that Sawyer tried to change too much too soon.

Sawyer said his 28-month tenure proved that "you could survive in an environment that many people thought was impossible."

Merkle charged in altercation

ST. PETERSBURG — Former U.S. Attorney Robert W. Merkle is facing a criminal charge for punching another motorist in August, although he calls it a shame and a sham. "I and my family are outraged at this trumped-up charge," Merkle said Tuesday.

The charge is a misdemeanor, which means the prosecutor will not be arrested. He will receive a summons to appear in Pinellas County Court. If convicted, Merkle could face a maximum penalty of one year in jail.

"Before this is over, the prosecutor is going to apologize to the people of the state of Florida," said Merkle, who added he may defend himself.

Merkle prosecuted a number of high-profile cases, including Colombian drug lord Carlos Lehder, as top federal prosecutor in the Middle District of Florida. He is now in private practice.

Woman sentenced for rape of 8-year-old

NASHUA, N.H. — A 39-year-old Florida woman was sentenced to 7½ to 15 years in prison for raping a friend's 8-year-old daughter. The woman's ex-husband faces trial on similar charges involving the same girl.

Marie Grant, 39, of Zephyrhills, was convicted in September of molesting the girl three times while she and her ex-husband were babysitting the girl in their Nashua apartment in 1986.

"There are just too many of these cases," Hillsborough County Superior Court Judge Linda Dallanis said at Tuesday's sentencing. "Sometimes I get up in the morning wondering if there is any good left in the world."

In a tape-recorded interview with Nashua police, Grant admitted she sexually assaulted the girl but said her husband made her do it. She told police Lawrence Grant, 45, of Nashua, beat her and ordered her to participate in sexually assaulting the girl.

Chiles signs juvenile gun bill

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles signed into law Wednesday a bill banning anyone under the age of 18 from having a gun, except for hunting or marksmanship.

The issue was added to the agenda of a special session earlier this month in the aftermath of high-profile crimes involving teen-age defendants.

In a case that attracted international attention, four boys ranging in age from 13 to 17 are charged with the first-degree murder of British tourist Gary Colley at a North Florida International rest stop in September.

"The governor recognizes it is a critical tool for law enforcers to have to be able to prevent juveniles from having guns," spokesman Ron Sachs said.

The bill generated a lot of debate among lawmakers, some of whom wanted to enact comprehensive reforms during a week-long special session earlier this month.

But Chiles and legislative leaders refused to expand the agenda, saying there wouldn't be enough time to do a good job. They've pledged to make teen-age crime a top priority in the 60-day session that begins in February.

"It is the first step, not the last step," Sachs said.

Until now, Florida law has banned gun possession under the age of 18 except for hunting and marksmanship.

Under the bill Chiles signed Wednesday, starting Jan. 1, no one under the age of 18 can have a gun unless hunting or engaged in marksmanship. An officer who catches a teen-ager with a gun can seize it and the teen can be found guilty of a first-degree misdemeanor that must be punished by 100 hours of community service.

The penalties climb for an armed teen-ager who has a criminal record. First, the juvenile must be held for 24 hours to see a judge, who can order up to 21 days of detention if the teen is considered dangerous. That's effective April 15.

The new law also provides that after a certain point, teens must be treated as adults unless prosecutors and judges explain in writing why not. To reach that level, teens must be over the age of 14 and be facing their fourth felony charge, with either the latest crime or past crimes involving gun use.

Home Invaders masquerade as police

By Associated Press

TAMPA — A group of Florida men disguised themselves as police, kicked in doors and robbed homes on five occasions, including two in Tampa and three times in North Florida towns, police said.

Authorities say six Florida men hatched the scheme to flash badges, wear caps and jackets with "POLICE" stitched on them, and rough up and handcuff residents. Twice, the men invaded homes with young children.

The men painted a plastic bowl blue and fashioned it into a dashboard-mounted police emergency light to further their disguise.

Only one man has been arrested. 34-year-old Daniel Eugene Crumpton, who was arrested last week at his father's house in Tampa. He was being held in the Hillsborough County Jail, facing a variety of charges

Chiles signs workers' comp bill reducing employer costs

By ADAM YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles signed workers' compensation legislation Wednesday that could reduce employers' costs by about 25 percent or more.

The reforms are expected to cut workers' comp premiums an average of about 10 percent or more after they take effect Jan. 1. Other incentives to help employers reduce medical costs, improve workplace safety, and create safe work environments could increase savings another 17 percent.

"The governor views the workers' comp reforms which we asked for in the special session as one of the most significant economic development and job actions in the state's modern history," Chiles' spokesman Ron Sachs said.

The governor plans to hold a formal signing ceremony next week.

Most employers are required to carry workers' comp insurance to pay the medical expenses and a portion of lost wages for employees hurt at work.

The governor extended the session after legislators were prepared to adjourn the special session Nov. 5 without the 20 percent in premium cuts he demanded. After the governor threatened to veto any bill with less savings than that, lawmakers agreed to his demands.

Sachs called the legislation "one of the governor's crowning achievements."

The law is expected to save employers an average of 10 percent to 13 percent after it takes effect Jan. 1.

Employers also may be able to save an extra 10 percent by sending their injured workers to a managed health care program such as a health-maintenance organization, 5 percent by starting a drug-free workplace program, and 2 percent through safety improvements.

Labor groups criticized the legislation, saying it achieved much of its cost savings by slashing benefits to injured workers. They said the Legislature reneged on its pledge not to reduce benefits after cutting them an average of 34 percent in 1990.

Preaching ban on city's historic plaza may go to court

By Associated Press

ST. AUGUSTINE — Pastor Philip Cochran's church was not looking for controversy when it sought city permission for its children's choir to sing Christmas carols in the downtown plaza.

Then city officials approved the permit with one condition: No preaching.

The caveat touched off a free-speech controversy that Cochran says could land the city in court. Elders and deacons of the church, the Family Worship Center, are discussing whether to file a lawsuit or seek an injunction.

The City Commission refused Monday to overturn the ban issued by City Manager Joe Pomar.

"We were told this is their policy," Cochran said Wednesday. "It has nothing to do with the law. It is a tradition or policy."

Cochran, senior pastor of the 400-member non-denominational church, also said parishioners were told the commission was fearful of precedent, saying "if we let this group do it, we would have to let everyone do it."

"It is an American idea to speak what is on your mind," Cochran said, adding freedom of religion also is an American principle.

"When you're told you cannot proclaim your faith, I believe that is a gag," he said.

Calls made by The Associated Press to Pomar and Mayor Greg Baker were not immediately returned Wednesday.

City laws require groups to get permits to hold events in the plaza, a heavily traveled area in the middle of St. Augustine's historic district. The plaza is across the street from the Cathedral Basilica, a religious landmark in the 428-year-old town.

Baker offered Tuesday to meet with Cochran and other pastors in January to decide on uses of the downtown park, but Cochran said the issue is "too volatile" to put off that long.

He said Baker also told church leaders they wouldn't be arrested if they preached during the caroling.

"But that is not the point," he added. "They are telling us what we are doing is illegal" when it is a fundamental right.

Pomar told The Florida Times-Union he made the decision because of legal rulings that bar what he called "denominational preaching" on public property.

POLICE BRIEFS

Grand theft charged

James Anthony Bradley, age unknown, 2154 Center Street, Sanford was charged with grand theft by Seminole County sheriff's officers on Tuesday.

Deputies said Bradley removed a portable stereo and some Nintendo games from the house in which he lives without the permission of Robert Bradley, the owner of those items.

The items, they said, are worth more than $300.

Deputies said Bradley cooperated fully and helped deputies recover the items.

He was held without bond at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

Drug charges filed

Daniel Lawrence Mattern, 29, 1039 Delle Road, Longwood, was charged with possession of a controlled substance (marijuana), possession of drug paraphernalia, unlawful speed and a safety belt violation by Seminole County sheriff's deputies on Tuesday night.

Deputies said they stopped him for traveling more than 13 miles over the speed limit on Longwood Hills Road.

They said they smelled a strong odor of cannabis coming from the car.

The said they saw a green leaf substance which later tested positive for marijuana in a tray on the center console of the car. They said they also found more of the green leafy substance in a black wallet in his back pocket and in the ashtray of the car.

They also found three partially-smoked marijuana cigarettes in the ashtray.

In addition, they found some cigarette rolling papers in the car.

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility. Bond was not set.

Local prison reform group grows

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Local efforts are continuing toward establishing a stronger STOP organization. Meanwhile, "Stop Turning out Prisoners," has claimed another success in preventing a killer from being released early from prison.

State-wide STOP Chairman Kathleen Finnegan said the group targeted Glen Alday, who was sentenced by a Manatee County Court to life imprisonment in 1979, after he was convicted of murdering his wife. Finnegan said he was almost released on parole after serving 14 years.

She described the incident. "Julie Alday was murdered with a shotgun and left in their home with her two young children, ages five and seven."

In the petition circulated by STOP, it said, "Julie got the death penalty; her family is serving life without her."

She explained, "Our members collected so many signatures, we didn't even have time to count them all before the hearing. I know that without the input of STOP, this killer might have been back on our streets."

Our members collected so many signatures, we didn't even have time to count them all before the hearing. I know that without the input of STOP, this killer might have been back on our streets.

- Kathleen Finnegan

Finnegan continued, "In fact, the Parole Commission Examiner recommended to the Florida Parole Commission that Alday be released. We are pleased that the commissioners did not agree, and I am quite sure that STOP's work was instrumental in keeping this dangerous man behind bars where he belongs."

She added that there are a lot more Aldays in Florida prisons that do get released. "We can't STOP them all, but I am glad that at least this convicted murderer is locked up instead of living in our communities like so many other killers."

While its main headquarters is located in Punta Gorda, the Seminole County Chapter of STOP is headed by Doug Elam, a Seminole County resident who is local citizen coordinator.

At the Seminole County Sheriff's office, Undersheriff Steve Harriett is the law enforcement liaison with STOP. "This isn't strictly law enforcement," Harriett said. "This is a cooperative endeavor allowing the community to interact with the criminal justice system."

Harriett said the local chapter presently has 25 to 30 members, but is in the process of growing rapidly to become a strong organization.

The local STOP is planning an area meeting on Dec. 15, at 7 p.m., to be held in the Lake Mary Community Center. All persons interested in joining STOP are urged to attend.

STOP is supported in its efforts by Florida Prosecuting Attorney's Assoc., Florida Sheriff's Assoc., Strikeforce, MADD, Neighborhood Watch, and Southwest Florida Police Benevolent Association.

In the Sanford and north Seminole County area, Harriett can be reached at the sheriff's office by phoning 330-6601.

Add one name to list of war dead

By JULIAN STENSTROM
Herald Columnist

One more name has to be added to the list of Seminole County's war dead published in the Veterans Day edition of the Herald, Nov. 11.

It will increase the number of names on that list from 99 to an even 100. He is Charles H. Thurston.

The best possible reason his name did not appear on any of the lists researched by the Herald is the fact Thurston for several years following World War II was considered "missing in action" rather than reported as "killed in action."

Thurston was the son of the late westside celery farmer Henry Thurston and a brother of Herbert Thurston, a World War II veteran who now resides in Merritt Island, and the Emmeline Best of Sanford, now the widow of Jacob Shealy Best.

Charles was a tail gunner on a United States Army Air Corps B-29 that was part of a squadron that accomplished the famed December 7, 1944 bombing of Tokyo — three years exactly from the day President Franklin D. Roosevelt said would "live in infamy." — the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, 1941.

After the successful air raid on Tokyo, the aircraft Thurston was aboard was shot down over Mukden, Manchuria. As a result Thurston was listed by the War Department as "missing in action."

The youngster's body was returned to Sanford in December 1948. His remains were buried first in Sanford's Evergreen Cemetery. Later the family acquired a plot in Oaklawn Cemetery and the Thurston lad's grave was moved to the new burial site.

Thurston was a member of the Seminole High School graduating class of 1943 that held its 50th anniversary reunion Oct. 30 and 31 at the Holiday Inn on Sanford's Holiday Isle.

In researching material for this article it was learned the great grandparents of Henry Thurston's three children migrated from Germany in the early 1800s. They became known as "squatters" and farmed on land now a part of New York City's Central Park and also the present site of that city's Museum of Natural History.

Both the grandparents of the three Thurston children were mutes and resided in New Jersey. Their son, Henry, the father of Charles, before coming to Florida to farm, drove his father and mother by horse and buggy once a month from New Jersey to New York City, so they could attend worship services at the Lutheran Church for the Deaf.

Since there was no Lutheran church in Sanford when Henry came to this area, he, his wife Emmeline and his son Herbert (who was born in New Jersey), attended the First Congregational Church located on the northeast corner of Park Avenue and Third Street. The Thurston daughter, also named Emmeline, and Charles were born in Sanford. They, too, attended the same church pastored by the highly esteemed Dr. J.B. Root.

In compiling the list of this county's war dead a list of fatalities in the Korean War and the Vietnam War was provided by the Florida Department of Veteran Affairs. This roll listed the name of Mrs. Ruth Stamm's deceased husband as "Earnest A. Stamm." It has been learned that his first name should have been spelled "Ernest," omitting the letter "a." The Herald reported Stamm's first name as provided by the state agency.

Stamm was a Navy pilot who was shot down over Hanoi, North Vietnam. After hostilities ceased the pilot's body was returned to the United States. His remains are buried in Collinsville, Ill.

The real meaning of Thanksgiving

The Thanksgiving holiday is different things to many people. This year is no different from most in the past.

For the children, the event brings out school pageants and lectures on how the Pilgrims got together with the Indians and ate a banquet. The feast was to celebrate what each hoped would be a new era of cooperation between the races. It was to mark the end of the Indians' objections to the Europeans who were taking over their land.

For many, having a feast, often with family and friends, is the primary way to observe the holiday. Food stores have been packed with customers buying turkey, chicken, ham, and all the trimmings. In some cases, diets are forgotten for the day.

Rather than the feast, some people look at the other purpose of the Pilgrims' gathering. They use this day to give thanks for the many blessings which have been bestowed on them. Even people who may be alone for this day often give thought to the good they have received, and (for this one day) ignore the bad.

As it's an official holiday, government and most businesses are closed. Some employees give thanks for having a day off.

Merchants start to get anxious on Thanksgiving day. Tomorrow normally marks the official start of Christmas shopping, and the invasion of shoppers at stores and malls will begin early in the morning.

In the major cities, Thanksgiving is always parade day, especially in New York, Chicago and Detroit.

Some people however, have no job, no money with which to buy a big meal, and no plans to buy many gifts for Christmas.

For Thanksgiving, 1993, we suggest taking the actual word for what it says. Give "Thanks" for what most of us have, and help those who have not, by "Giving." It will make this a better holiday for everyone. We could not ask for more.

Disciplining kids

How many of you have read the story about the 10-year-old boy who went for a drive in his mother's new car without realizing the consequences. His mother paddled him when he got home and he told the school counselor and she (the counselor) reported it to HRS.

They told the mother, you can't discipline him.

They have kids, how do they do it?

If you don't discipline them, they think they can get away with murder, and at times, that happens.

You spank your child for doing something they shouldn't to keep them from doing something more serious; explain why you are spanking them but tell them you still love them, especially if the child is sensitive.

For instance, if the child doesn't want what they are contemplating to happen to them, don't do it to others.

They think about this when it's too late.

Write your congressman about what the HRS deems "abuse;" discipline is not necessarily "abuse."

HRS has violated their own rules before. This is a known fact.

People ask what is wrong with juveniles of today, lack of discipline is the answer.

If they had enough discipline and information on drugs they wouldn't get into that either.

Give the parents back the right to discipline their children, not "abuse" them.

The story about the boy has been on Channel 2 and in the Sanford Herald Nov. 7, 1993.

Berry's World

"Will you please stop calling your allowance 'WALKING AROUND MONEY'?"

GUEST COLUMNIST

The plight of hungry Americans

David Beckmann is president of Bread for the World, a Christian citizens' movement against hunger. To find out how you can help end hunger write to: Bread for the World, 1100 Wayne Avenue, Suite 1000, Silver Spring, MD 20910.

Many Americans will gather this Thanksgiving for dinner around tables adorned with all the succulent trimmings of a Norman Rockwell holiday feast.

The trimmings, however, will be slim for the 30 million Americans who go hungry each day. The lucky ones will receive their slice of turkey and pumpkin pie generously dished from a community soup kitchen or church-run food pantry.

But Thanksgiving food baskets illustrate precisely why we've failed to end hunger in America. We've grown more comfortable with giving food to hungry people than we are outraged by the policies and practices which create hunger in this country and abroad.

Widespread hunger persists in the world, even in a country as wealthy as the United States, mainly for a lack of political will.

Few soup kitchens and food pantries existed before 1980. But today, more than 150,000 private feeding agencies have emerged distributing $3 billion to $4 billion worth of food annually to hungry people in the United States. Despite these valiant, thankless and much needed efforts, hunger endures. In fact, hunger has grown faster than the private feeding movement and is more widespread now than it was 10 or 15 years ago.

People need to re-examine their contributions to the anti-hunger movement.

Despite Americans' generosity, government policies often affect hungry people on a scale that dwarfs the impact of private assistance. For example, federal food programs currently provide $39 billion annually to low income people in the United States. This far exceeds the nearly $4 billion that the private feeding movement gives away. Private feeding agencies are weak or nonexistent in some places where need is especially great.

Also, private charities can never take the place of publicly-funded school breakfasts and lunches, a fair minimum wage, nutritional supplements for pregnant women and infants, and effective foreign assistance programs carefully destined to empower poor and disenfranchised people overseas.

U.S. government policies are partly to blame for the mushrooming of hunger in the United States during the 1980s. For example, government cut taxes and social spending. It tolerated high levels of unemployment. A "thousand points of light" could not make up for what these economic policies took away. Now, Congress and the Clinton administration have proposed draconian cuts in those parts of the U.S. foreign aid budget that are critical for poor and hungry people.

DAVID BECKMANN

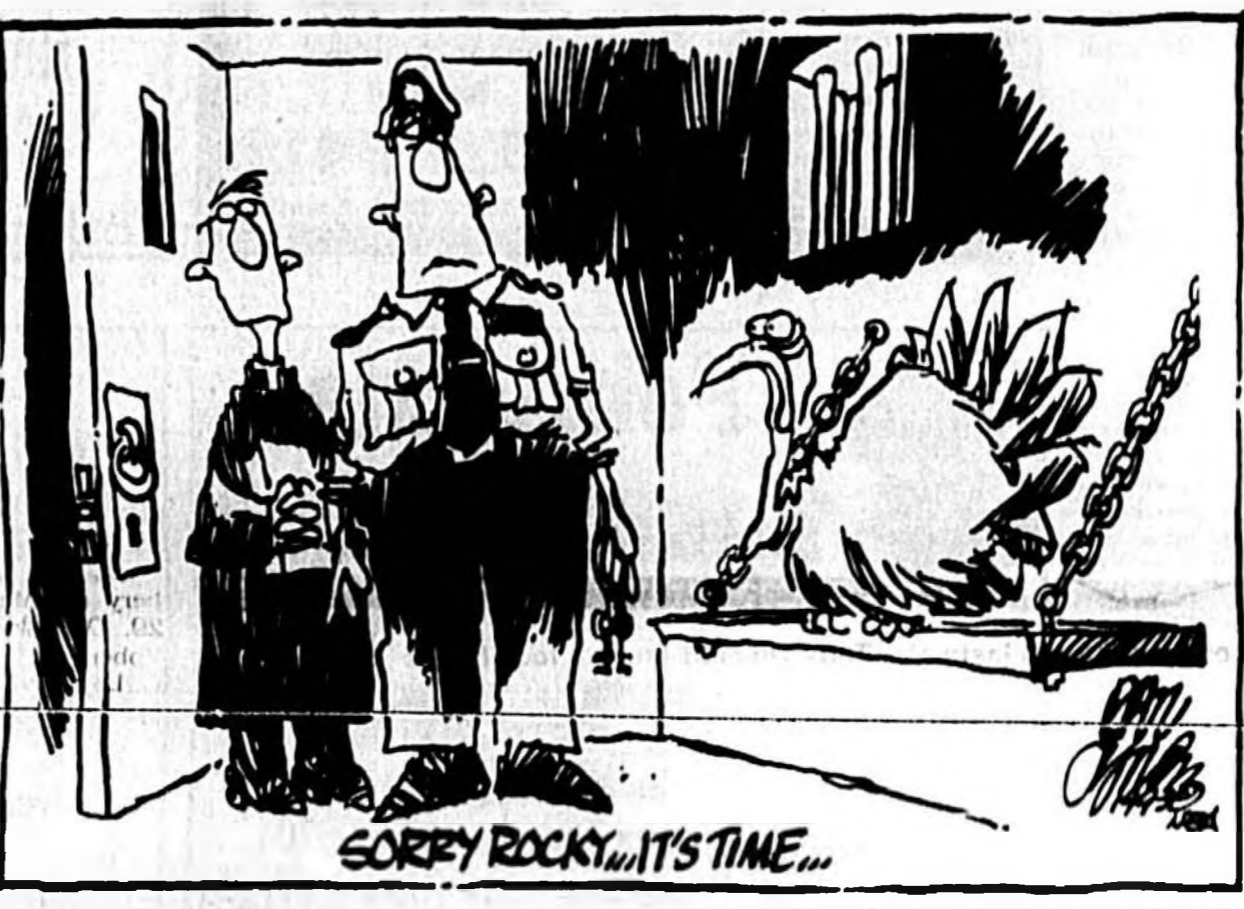

But Thanksgiving food baskets illustrate precisely why we've failed to end hunger in America.

Fortunately, Americans are generous people and care enormously about hunger. Ninety-three percent of U.S. voters say that hunger in our country is a serious problem. Every year, Americans contribute over $2 billion to more than 400 private organizations that provide relief and development assistance overseas. We volunteer millions of hours preparing and providing food in soup kitchens and food pantries across the country. And for most of these organizations and their corps of volunteers, Thanksgiving will be a busy day.

Despite this overwhelming response through charitable giving, more Americans live below the poverty level — 36.9 million — than at any time since 1962. One in four U.S. children lives in poverty and faces hunger. As a result, many of these children suffer permanent learning and health losses. Too many grow up in neighborhoods racked by violence and criminality.

Worldwide, 1.3 billion people are too poor to afford enough food to keep them fully productive. Television brings the U.S. public face to face with their misery. Massive hunger around the world also affects the United States through the violence, forced migrations and environmental destruction it spawns. Our nation has economic and security reasons, as well as reasons of conscience, for reversing the cancerous growth of hunger and poverty.

Private charity needs to be complemented by stronger government efforts. By linking efforts, we can eliminate the need for Thanksgiving food baskets — which may be the most meaningful celebration of all.

Reflections of Thanksgiving

BOSTON — This is when I began to think about faxing Thanksgiving dinner.

I am in San Francisco sharing a radio show with Penn, wishing it were Teller. Penn is praising the electronic ties that now bind people. I am praising the interface that requires faces.

He is expounding eagerly on the brave new intimacy of Internet. I am saying that it's hard to bring dinner to Mom by modem.

He is raving about the worldwide community created by computers. I am explaining how awkward it is to actually touch anyone with a keyboard.

Halfway through this act, I begin to wonder if I am playing the part of nostalgia, lost in the role of technological troglodyte. The truth is that I am thinking about Thanksgiving. I'm far from home and behind the curve, counting down the days before my kitchen is scheduled to turn into Thanksgiving Central.

Penn is speeding down the information highway. My mind is going back over the river and through the woods to grandmother's house. Why not just fax 19 copies of a perfect feast — one for every family member — and be done with it?

This is of course the momentary mad flash of a woman in what I like to think of as the pre-Thanksgiving mode — something approximating holiday meltdown.

I belong to a generation of women who have broken all sorts of traditions. Women who have mastered the art of one-minute managing. Our defining myth is that it isn't the quantity but the quality of time that matters. We do not have enough time to attend a stress workshop.

We are dressed for success as long as you don't notice the nail polish holding back the run in the pantyhose. We are all-business except for the bit of baby food on the blouse under the jacket. Every hour is rush and most of our food is fast.

But every time a holiday comes around, many of us are struck by an almost lethal compulsion to go forward to the past. We share the wistful desire to reproduce a labor intensive, full scale Norman Rockwell event for our postmodern family.

Our microwave generation confronts a 25-pound turkey. Our daughters raised on pizza find us pouring over two-column recipes for onions, cabbage and apples en croute. Our sons raised on Formica tables, find us ironing (!) linen.

For most of the year it is quite enough to fail to live up to Hillary Clinton. At holidays, we get a second chance to fail to live up to Martha Stewart.

Martha Stewart's tablecloth does not have stains from last year's cranberry sauce. Martha Stewart has never in her wildest imaginations used a spoon that was mangled in the garbage disposal. Martha Stewart has never served a store-bought dessert.

And Martha Stewart has never, ever, gone out on Thanksgiving morning scouring the 7-Eleven stores for their last can of gravy.

Why precisely do we get this tradition-attack, along with its side dish of inadequacy? Why am I sitting here stringing words on a computer thinking that I should have planted paperwhite narcissus so they would bloom in the living room on cue?

It may be the curse of the Puritans who started this Thanksgiving tradition. But I suspect that the more life speeds up, the more we daydream about the kind of life lived in the slow lane. The more megabytes we use up, the more we want to download.

The less time spent at home, the more vulnerable we are to binge homemaking.

The holidays become overloaded with what's missing the rest of the year. A take-out generation springs for a whole turkey and nevermind the leftovers. A printout world looks for what is handmade and hands-on. A scattered family pushes home through airports and highways to sit on folding chairs.

Holidays have become our performance art. For women in particular, who still see themselves as the producers and directors of family life, a great deal is riding on the performance. And on the reviews.

So it's a hi-tech and hi-tradition time of year. It's over the river and through the woods and spare me the electronic community. I'll greet the tribe around the table. It's just too hard to get the mince-meat pie through E-Mail.

But every time a holiday comes around, many of us are struck by an almost lethal compulsion to go forward to the past.

JOSEPH SPEAR

Let campaigning take to the air

In the surge of news stories about Somalia, Haiti, NAFTA, wildfires and senatorial sex-capades, you might have missed one of the most important and distressing items of the year.

Campaign finance reform is dead, probably until 1995.

The Senate did its part, passing legislation last June that called for minimal public financing of congressional campaigns. But a task force of House Democrats could not decide how to fund publicly financed congressional races, and the reform effort appears to have breathed its last for the foreseeable future.

So, we wait. Congressional candidates spent nearly $700 million on their campaigns in 1992 and the cost of an average Senate race is climbing toward $5 million — and the special interests are loving it. The word "campaigns" is found under "O" for "opportunity" in their lexicon, as in the opportunity to buy influence with political action committee contributions.

Where were the reformers when the Spear Foundation earlier this year offered the solution to this problem? I mean, a think tank only thinks. Someone else has to do. So I say again, do this, reformers: Make the broadcast industry in this country provide free air time for political candidates. At least half the budget in a typical campaign is spent on commercials. Do away with that expense, and enforce lower spending limits on the candidates and you can probably pay for political races with an improved tax form "check-off" system. Bye-bye PACS.

I know, broadcast industry officials hate the idea because it would reduce their revenues. I say the hell with them. The airwaves they use to make their multimillions are (L) (T) (G) (T) (L) (T) (G) (T) airwaves. It says as much right there in the Communications Act of 1934. We don't charge them a dime for the use of our airwaves, so the least they could do is surrender a few hours of free airtime every election year to further the public process.

Most of the other democracies in the world do this. Why are we so confounded timorous about it?

Under the Truth-in-Columbing Act, I have to confess this is not an exclusive Spear Foundation idea. Several variations have been offered in recent years, including these:

-- In March 1990, a commission appointed by the Senate recommended that broadcasters be required to donate four hours of airtime each year for national and local campaigns. The chairmen of both major parties endorsed the proposal. The late Republican Chairman Lee Atwater told the New York Times that a mere five minutes of free time every night might even result in cleaner campaigns. "To fill five minutes, you'd have to put on substance, and you'd have to be very thoughtful," he said.

-- In April 1990, Washington Post political reporter Paul Taylor thought up what he called the "Five-Minute Fix." He would give five-minute chunks of airtime to opposing parties on alternate nights, ban all pictures and images and require the candidates to be on the air for the entire five minutes.

-- In June 1990, the Markle Foundation offered $5 million to the Public Broadcasting System to fund a "Voter's Channel," which would have aired candidate profiles, advertising analyses and issue discussions, but PBS didn't bite.

Campaign finance reform is dead, probably until 1995.

She said the girls were willing and ready to come together for practice when the invitation to perform at the SHS parade provided the incentive the organizers needed to put the group together.

"They were all very excited by the opportunity," Conyers said. "The squad is the first such group formed at the school since it first opened its doors in 1916."

The Sunnland Corporation is sponsoring the group.

she announced she was pregnant. She is on her way to live with her grandmother who has promised to care for the baby so she can finish school.

"I guess I've been eating OK, as good as I can living like I am," she said. "But this is the best meal I've had in about a month."

Each Thanksgiving Eve, the school prepares, serves and, in some cases, delivers, about 1,200 meals to the needy, the homeless and the lonely in Sanford.

Most of the food is donated and volunteer labor is used to prepare and give out the meals.

"They're a bunch of good people here," said Sid Pollock, a school volunteer who has organized the event each year for the last five years.

Stanley Tesh said he is "down on his luck" right now and working day labor in Sanford and other areas.

"I'd just about given up on people," he said. "There ain't no one who gives a darn about no one else. But these people and the people up at that mission on 13th Street, they give a darn."

He said the students, scurrying about their assigned tasks, seemed "pretty sincere" in their caring.

"And you sure don't see much of that in kids today," he said. "Students, some of them wearing rubber gloves and aprons, helped bring food and drink to their honored guests." "I guess I feel sorry for these people," said one student who didn't want to give her name. "But really, I want to do something to help instead of just feeling sorry for them." Pollock said that nearly 200 meals had been delivered to homebound people, mostly in the Goldsboro area. "We'll feed about 1,000 here," he said of the evening crowd at the school.

Congress passes Brady handgun control bill

By CAROLYN SKORNECK Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Ending years of stalemate, Congress passed the Brady handgun control bill Wednesday and sent it to President Clinton who hailed "a wonderful Thanksgiving present for the American people." With most lawmakers already gone, Congress set adjournment for Friday.

Republican senators gave up their blockade of the bill, which will require a five-day waiting period and background check on handgun buyers, on condition the Democrats agree to take up a GOP proposal to modify it when Congress returns early next year.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell said the bill would be a significant step in fighting violent crime, though he added that supporters were well aware it "will not by itself end violence in America."

The Senate's Republican leader, Bob Dole, had no praise for the bill but said it was bound to pass eventually and he was getting calls from all sides to "get it settled."

Dole, R-Kan., did have kind words for the man whose name the legislation bears. "After a long, long, hard fight, Jim Brady has won," he said.

Press Secretary James Brady was severely wounded in the 1981 assassination attempt on President Reagan and has campaigned for gun control since the mid-1980s with his wife, Sarah.

Senators opposing the bill have expressed sympathy for victims of handgun assaults. But they have argued that the bill would do little or nothing to stop such crimes and would only keep handguns from law-abiding citizens.

Clinton, meeting in the Oval Office with the Bradys, said he hoped to sign the bill next week. It will take effect 90 days after that.

The president had pressed Congress to pass the measure, publicly supporting Mitchell's talk of summoning the Senate back to the Capitol after the holiday weekend if the issue were not settled.

"It is a wonderful Thanksgiving present for the American people," Clinton said. "It will be a beginning — a beginning in what must be a long and relentless assault on the problems of crime and violence in this country."

Democrats were careful not to predict quick victories against street crime. But Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., said,

"Today's action was a recognition that the tide has turned in favor of those who support a common-sense step towards getting guns out of the hands of convicted felons."

"Americans are tired of living their lives in the shadow of violence and they want the Brady bill," he said. "Now we have it."

Passage followed intense negotiations between gun-control advocates and opponents.

Separate versions of the bill had passed both houses of the Democratic-controlled Congress earlier, but Republicans were blocking a final Senate vote on the compromise. The Democrats had been unable to gain the 60 votes needed to force a vote, and most lawmakers had left town.

Only a handful of senators were on the floor at the end. Vice President Al Gore was presiding when Mitchell and Dole announced agreement. Mitchell then asked that the bill be passed by voice vote. No "nays" were heard.

"We can now leave for Thanksgiving and for Christmas and return next year, refreshed and ready to roll," said Mitchell.

The agreement that led to passage requires the House and Senate to consider early next year a Dole proposal to alter portions of the bill. And Dole said Clinton had agreed to sign it if it passes.

Mitchell, D-Maine, said Dole "has not asked for, nor have we given, any promise to support the bill. But we are committing ourselves in good faith to having a product and debating it."

Dole's measure includes, among other things, changing the five-year phase-out of the waiting period to four years, giving the attorney general the option of adding a fifth year.

In addition, the Dole proposal would make it possible for a computerized, instant background check system to replace the waiting period before the bill phases out and possibly as soon as two years after Brady takes effect.

The Brady bill already calls for developing an instant check system, but the waiting period would still be effective for five years.

Senate passage of the bill ends a long and difficult path since it was first introduced in early 1987.

Both chambers approved a version two years ago that gun-control advocates liked more than this year's version. But it was attached to a crime bill that died when Republican senators threatened a filibuster over another issue.

Help

Even major cities such as Miami, Tampa and Jacksonville are feeling the pinch of having not enough food to meet requests. Organizations which have been able to supply a goodly number of meals in the past are finding a lack of donations.

"Dismal," said Dave Krepho, director of the Daily Bread Food Bank in Miami. "We've had a demand that we have not seen before."

"We received 20,000 requests for family food baskets in Dade County alone — then we lost count," he said Tuesday. "There's absolutely no way we can fulfill that kind of request. We may fulfill half that."

"It's a dangerous combination of increased demand, and decreased supply — both volunteer time and food."

In the wake of Hurricane Andrew last year, Dade County received an influx of food and volunteers to meet the increased demand, Krepho said. But now the volunteers and extra food are gone, while the need remains.

"Part of it's the economy," Krepho said. "You hear about it being on a rebound, but in parts of Dade County nothing is happening."

At Tampa's Metropolitan Ministries, volunteers Tuesday were still about 500 turkeys short in their annual scramble to deliver holiday dinners to 1,500 needy families.

"We usually manage to pull through in the end, but this year I don't know," said spokeswoman Catherine Lloyd. "People just aren't giving like they used to."

And since the charity is entirely dependent on donations from the public, uncertainty about the economy is playing a big role, Lloyd said. "We're finding many of the people who gave in the past are going through hard times of their own."

In Pensacola, Julia Rhodes at the Loaves and Fishes soup kitchen said skittishness about looming base closings in the Navy town caused donations to slip.

But all is not bad news.

Jacksonville's City Rescue Mission said it will have no trouble serving 1,200 people Thanksgiving dinner. And Ed Gray at Pensacola's Waterfront Rescue Mission said dinner is on for 2,000 people at four locations along the Panhandle.

The Salvation Army also hopes to feed 1,000 people still recovering from Hurricane Andrew in south Dade County. Last year, they served over 2,000 meals.

Sanford organizations such as Crooms School of Choice and the Mental Health Center also managed to serve their holiday meals successfully this year, through assistance and donations of staff, volunteers and supporters.

Winn-Dixie, which operates grocery stores in 13 Southern states, offers the "Even-It-Up Program," which allows customers to even up their purchases to the next dollar to make a donation to the Salvation Army.

Last year, the donations totaled about $65,000.

"Donations have been relatively low recently in Seminole County stores," said local Winn-Dixie spokesperson Larry Beck. "But I think this is an annual event, and we have found over the years that donations start picking up about this time of the year, when people get more of a feeling of giving."

Beck indicated the program, being conducted year-round, may expand even further shortly after the first of 1994.

Information from the Associated Press is contained in this report.

Robbery

"The clerk said 'No, get out of here. You're not getting any money,'" McAllister said.

With the clerk's description, Clermont police apprehended the three suspects in a second Cumberland Farms parking lot.

Charged with attempted robbery: Mark Tracy Peterson, 29, Orlando; Anthony Dwayne Roberts, 33, Orlando and Duval C. Loyd, 35, Orlando. The three are being held in Lake County jail on no bond.

McAllister said police suspect the men have been on a five-county crime spree since Friday.

In Longwood, according to a deputy's report, a man wearing a brown plaid flannel shirt with red stripes, entered the store at approximately midnight, and asked the clerk for change for a $10 bill.

Deputies said when the female clerk opened the register, he ordered a second clerk to lay on the floor behind the counter. Officers said she did as requested, but activated the store cameras at the same time.

The report says the man then asked the first clerk to give him money from the register. Deputies said he threatened to kill both clerks on two occasions during the incident, and that he kept his right hand behind him, "against the small of his back to insinuate that he had a weapon."

No weapon was actually seen by witnesses according to the incident report.

Deputies said $61 in currency was taken from the cash register, in ones and fives.

He reportedly paused before leaving, to steal 35 packs of cigarettes and 40 cigarette lighters described as having a picture of a clown on the side. He then fled from the store.

Deputies said an unknown witness reported seeing him being picked up just east of the store by a small black vehicle being driven by a black male. The car was reportedly traveling east on S.R. 434.

The robber also removed $8 in food stamps from the register.

Witnesses described the man as approximately 35 years of age, five feet ten inches tall, weighing approximately 150 pounds. He had black short hair done in an Afro style, and was noted to have sunken facial cheeks.

Seminole County sheriff's officers are continuing their investigation.

their own garbage. Those who containerized their garbage actually saw a decrease. Commissioners allowed the residents to unload eight bags or cans for $4, doubling the previous four-bag limit.

But commissioners increased the rate for small-quantity bulk haulers from $5 or $7 per load to $14 and $28 for loads less than a ton. Public Works Director Larry Sellers said at the previous rate, the bulk haulers paid closer to $14 per ton, despite a per ton rate of $36.

Several commissioners said they received complaints ranging from high rates to unfair container counts.

Two commissioners, Daryl McLain and Larry Furlong, supported a $1 per bag charge and weighing all unbagged loads, but other commissioners could not agree on a change. At the urging of acting chairman Dick VanDerWeide, the commission decided not to address the complaints Tuesday.

In other action, commissioners:

• approved a $133,000 payment to help the Central Florida Transportation Authority begin planning for future bus and rail mass transit services. The authority would be created from the merger of the Lynx bus system and the Central Florida Commuter Rail Authority.

Deputy County Manager Kevin Grace said the first-year payment could be as low as $32,600 from savings in Lynx service. The county now pays $1.2 million for the bus service.

Commissioner Pat Warren was reluctant to agree to the payment because it carried with it no increase in bus service for the county. Carlton Henley questioned the amount, but agreed the commitment was needed to assure the county's voice in future transit planning.

• agreed to chip in up to $1.6 million from the voter-approved Natural Lands Program to match a $1 million state grant to complete Spring Hammock Preserve. Since 1927, the 1,500-acre area west of Lake Jesup has been acquired by the state or county and about 400 acres remain to complete the project.

• agreed to join the water district to buy about 500 acres on the north shore of Lake Jesup for a total of $900,000. The county will contribute $345,000 from the lands program. The land was once offered for $13.5 million.

American flights returning to the sky; dispute takes shape at United

By SUSAN HIGHTOWER
AP Business Writer

American Airlines struggled to get passengers where they wanted to go today as mechanics at United staged a slowdown that threatened to cause still more turmoil during the busiest travel period of the year.

United reported no appreciable flight delays from the action Tuesday by ground crews, which followed United's decision to sell kitchens employing 5,200 union members and rejection of a recent employee buyout offer.

American expected to be without almost one-fifth of its flights today — the day before Thanksgiving and traditionally the busiest travel day of the year — and return to its complete schedule Thanksgiving Day following the strike by its flight attendants.

"So passengers should have no problem getting on American Airlines flights," American spokesman John Hotard said today.

The labor difficulties did not appear to be causing any delays today at Chicago's busy O'Hare International Airport, said Lisa Howard, a spokeswoman for Chicago's Aviation Department.

But she said low visibility, wind and drizzle were causing slight problems, as was with a storm spreading snow over parts of the northern and western Plains.

That storm spread snow and cold from the Northwest to the Great Lakes on Monday and Tuesday. Most areas got a couple of inches of snow. Up to a foot was forecast in Colorado by Thanksgiving Day.

Flights at Denver's Stapleton International Airport were delayed 45 minutes to an hour this morning by 2 to 3 inches of snow and the delays were expected to lengthen during the day as the storm continued, said spokesman Greg Baker. He said airport officials noticed no effects from the United slowdown.

Oysters causing illness

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The government is trying to determine what contaminated oysters from two big Louisiana beds and is advising people not to eat them.

The Food and Drug Administration says more than 100 people have gotten stomach ailments in the past 12 days after eating oysters from the Grand Pass and Cabbage Reef areas of Louisiana.

No one has been seriously hurt. All recovered after 24 to 48 hours of stomach upset including nausea, vomiting and diarrhea and in some instances muscle pains.

But with some consumers planning to use oysters in their holiday recipes, the FDA cautioned the public not to use any oysters — in the shell, shucked, fresh or frozen — from those two beds.

The alert was aimed especially at those living in Southeast states along the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts, where the Louisiana oysters were distributed.

"When in doubt, throw it out," said Doug Archer, a deputy director of the FDA's Center for Food Safety and Applied Nutrition.

He said retail stores should be able to tell consumers where the oysters they purchased came from.

Disease experts from the FDA and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta think the problem is caused by a virus, but they are not sure.

Archer said the oyster beds themselves are in a pristine area with no evidence of pollution, and there is no sign the oysters were tainted with any bacteriological contaminant after being harvested.

Some of the people who got sick ate oysters at social events, he said. None ate cooked oysters.

The two Louisiana oyster beds were closed to harvesting Nov. 16.

The FDA advised consumers to discard any oysters from the affected area and any other oysters of unknown origin.

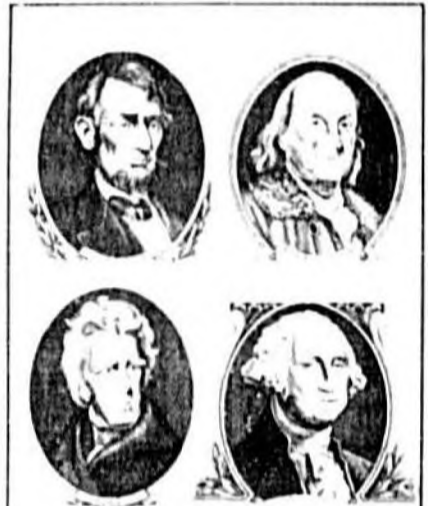

Archer said. "It's the holiday season. A lot of people have oysters as part of Thanksgiving. They put them into stuffing."

But he described the problem as "fairly mild."

Congress wrap-up

Lawmakers finish up business for 1993; Democrats claim they changed Washington

By KAREN BALL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Congress wrapped up business for the year with Democrats claiming they had changed Washington after 12 years of divided government and taken big steps with deficit reduction and people-oriented laws like family leave.

"What a difference a year has made," said House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo. "After sleepwalking through four years of the Bush presidency, gridlock is broken."

Republicans countered that Democrats didn't have much to brag about.

"Most of it is either insignificant or harmful to the American people," Rep. Richard Armitage, R-Texas, the No. 3 House GOP leader, said as congressional leaders took stock of 1993.

Democrats, who control both chambers, said the first year of the Clinton presidency was one of Congress' most productive in recent history.

Foley said the year's successes rivaled the first year of Dwight Eisenhower's presidency and even surpassed that of Lyndon Johnson who pushed through an array of social programs in the 1960s. Republicans just don't like to admit it out loud, Foley said.

"It's been an extraordinary session," Foley said. "In private, if not in public, the Republican leaders will concede that point."

House Minority Whip Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., called it a "joke" to compare Clinton's accomplishments with Johnson's. "You won't find a single bill they passed this year that resembles a medium-sized bill under Lyndon Johnson," Gingrich said.

The year started with Clinton's inaugural promises that he would bring "an end to the era of deadlock and drift" and create "a new season of American renewal."

Ten months later, Democrats claimed big wins, such as Clinton's deficit-reduction bill that is supposed to cut nearly a half-trillion dollars from deficits over the next five years. The measure boosted taxes sharply on the rich and hit everyone with a 4.3-cent increase in the federal gasoline tax. The House and Senate passed it without a single Republican vote.

There was a big bipartisan triumph too. Just last week with more votes from Republicans than Democrats, Congress passed the North American Free Trade Agreement, another Clinton priority that phases out tariffs among the United States, Canada and Mexico.

GOP leaders promised to work even more next year with sympathetic Democrats, particularly on budget issues.

Democrats also scored with bills allowing unpaid family leave for many workers, setting up a national service program that lets college students swap service for tuition and easing voter registration rules. They gave Clinton 70 percent of the billions he wanted to shift from low-priority programs to such "investments" as road-building and education.

Also passed were extra benefits for long-term jobless Americans, the final $18 billion for the savings and loan bailout and $2.5 billion for Russia and other former Soviet states.

Clinton had hoped to push his health care plan through Congress this year. He didn't get it ready in time and it will be Congress' top priority next year.

But the GOP argued that compared with his campaign promises, Clinton didn't achieve too much.

His pledge to cut middle-class taxes was abandoned quickly, they noted. And welfare reform, another priority like health care, was delayed. Clinton's $16 billion jobs bill was killed by a Republican Senate filibuster.

Congress also killed the superconducting super collider, and Clinton had to accept a partial lifting of the ban on homosexuals in the military.

Legislative activism this year contrasted to 1992, when lawmakers were consumed by internal problems, including the House bank and post office scandals, and by the election that turned President Bush out of office.

Those distractions resulted in one of Congress' biggest freshman classes ever: 114 new House members and 14 new senators. The newcomers focused on House reforms, campaign finance overhaul and spending cuts.

The year saw record numbers of women in Congress, and they claimed partial credit for the easy passage of a bill to crack down on abortion clinic violence. Final passage on that won't come until next year.

But 1993, like most other years, had its blemishes for individual members.

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., fought allegations of sexual harassment. And the U.S. attorney was deciding whether to indict House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., over the House post office scandal.

A grand donation

Shaun Briggs, director of Sales for Romance RiverCruise Lines, Sanford, presents a check for $338 to Chris Crantias, president of the Main Street Program, downtown Sanford. Faye Fulton, currently an urban planner in Knoxville, will start as director of the program Dec. 1.

IN BRIEF

LOCALLY

Seminole High playoff tickets

SANFORD — Tickets for the Regional Football Playoff game between Seminole and St. Petersburg Dixie Hollins have gone on sale.

General Admission to the game, which will be played at Thomas F. Whigham Stadium this Friday night at 7:30 p.m., is $4, with Reserve seats going for $5.

You can avoid the long line at the gate by purchasing general admission tickets in advance at William Howard Jewelers (Wal-Mart Plaza) and Touchton's Drug Store (First Street, Downtown Sanford) until 1 p.m. Friday, and at Seminole High School until 3 p.m. Friday. Reserve seats are on sale at the Seminole High School Athletic Office until 3 p.m. Friday.

Sanford Polar Bear softball

SANFORD — The Sanford Recreation Department will hold an organizational meeting for the upcoming Polar Bear Slowpitch Softball Leagues on Wednesday, December 1, at 6 p.m. at the Downtown Youth Center, lower level of Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Avenue.

Leagues start the week of January 3, 1994. In addition to its usual men's and women's class C leagues, the department will also offer Co-Ed and Over-35 leagues if interest is shown. For more information, contact the Sanford Recreation Department at (407) 330-5697.

SOA Softball Tournament

SANFORD — The Sanford Officials Association Annual Softball Tournament will be Dec. 10 & 11 at Chase, Pinehurst and Ft. Mellon parks.

Eligibility is limited to registered ASA (American Softball Association) Class C teams (plus two pickups) only. No tournament teams. ASA Class C rules will apply.

Cost is $125 plus two ASA-47 core softballs. Deadline for entry is December 9th at 5:30 p.m. with drawing at 6 p.m. on the 9th. Sponsor trophies will go to the top three teams with the top two teams getting individual awards. An MVP award will also be given.

For more info, contact Rocky Ellingsworth or Jim Schaefer at 330-5697 during the day or Duane LaFollette at 322-9026 at night.

Lake Mary Polar Bear

LAKE MARY — The City of Lake Mary Department of Parks & Recreation is planning a White Adult Slowpitch Softball League that will start on January 17th and run for 10 weeks at the Lake Mary Sports Complex.

Leagues will be offered for Men's Class C on Monday and Class B on Tuesday.

Registration for current teams will start Dec. 1st. New teams will register first come first serve starting Dec. 17th.

A captain's meeting will be held on Jan. 10th and the league will cost $280, plus $12 ASA registration fee and a $5 non-resident fee. For more information, call 324-3097.

Youth hoops at YMCA

LAKE MARY — The Seminole County YMCA is taking registration for boys and girls interested in participating in its Youth Basketball League.

Leagues are available for children from kindergarten through high school. Also, adult volunteers are needed to coach teams or referee games.

To register your child or volunteer, call the YMCA at 324-8944.

YMCA offers adult basketball

LAKE MARY — Registration is now available for anyone wishing to participate in the Seminole County YMCA's next adult 3-on-3 basketball league.

The league, which will have an eight-week season beginning Sunday, Dec. 4, will be played on Sunday nights at area high schools. A single-elimination tournament will follow the regular season.

Registration fees are $22.50 for YMCA members or $37.50 for non-members. Participants may register as a team for $150. Since space is limited, those interested should sign up early.

For more information or a registration form, call the YMCA at 324-8944.

Referees, scorekeepers needed

SANFORD — The Sanford Officiating Service is in need of referees and scorekeepers for youth basketball. These are paying positions and most games will be played on Saturday's.

For more information, contact Duane LaFollette at (407) 322-9026.

Player, Coach of the Year

Butler spearheads L. Brantley offensive

By TONY DeSORMIER
Herald Sports Editor

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — When it comes to discussing fullback Jeff Butler, Lake Brantley High School football coach Fred Almon minces no words.

"When you talk about a most valuable player, you're talking about a player that is the most valuable to the success of your team, the one you can't do without," said Almon. "If you take Jeff Butler away from us, we're a mediocre football team at best."

With Butler, the Lake Brantley Patriots rumbled their way to the 5A District 4 championship and a share of the Seminole Athletic Conference championship. Last week Butler and the Patriots thumped Jacksonville-Mandarin 36-11 in the first round of the Class 5A state playoffs.

As Butler goes, so go the Patriots. That's why Butler is the 1993 Sanford Herald Player of the Year.

One of two repeaters from the 1992 Sanford Herald All-County Football Team — Seminole placekicker Jason Walraven is the other — Butler was a marked man all season long. Every team that played Lake Brantley knew Butler was going to get the ball a minimum of 15 to 20 times a game.

It didn't matter through the Patriots' win over Jacksonville-Mandarin, Butler, who led the state in rushing, has run for over 1,900 yards, averaging 8.4 yards a carry. He's also scored 19 touchdowns.

See Player, Page 2B

With Sanford Herald Player of the Year Jeff Butler (No. 35, below) leading the county's most effective offense, the Lake Brantley Patriots of Sanford Herald Coach of the Year Fred Almon (right) have posted a 9-2 mark this season, including a 36-11 win over Jacksonville-Mandarin in the first round of the Class 5A state playoffs last Friday. This Friday, Lake Brantley will host Lynn Haven-Moseley in a second-round contest.

Patriots guided by Almon both on, off field

By TONY DeSORMIER
Herald Sports Editor

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Since taking over the Lake Brantley High School football program nine years ago, Fred Almon has molded the Patriots into one of Central Florida's most consistently competitive teams.

This year, Almon took a team with more question marks than exclamation points on its roster and led Lake Brantley to its second district championship in three years. Last Friday, the Patriots opened the state playoffs with a 36-11 romp over Jacksonville-Mandarin.

For performing this act of pigskin presitidgitation, Almon is the 1993 Sanford Herald Coach of the Year.

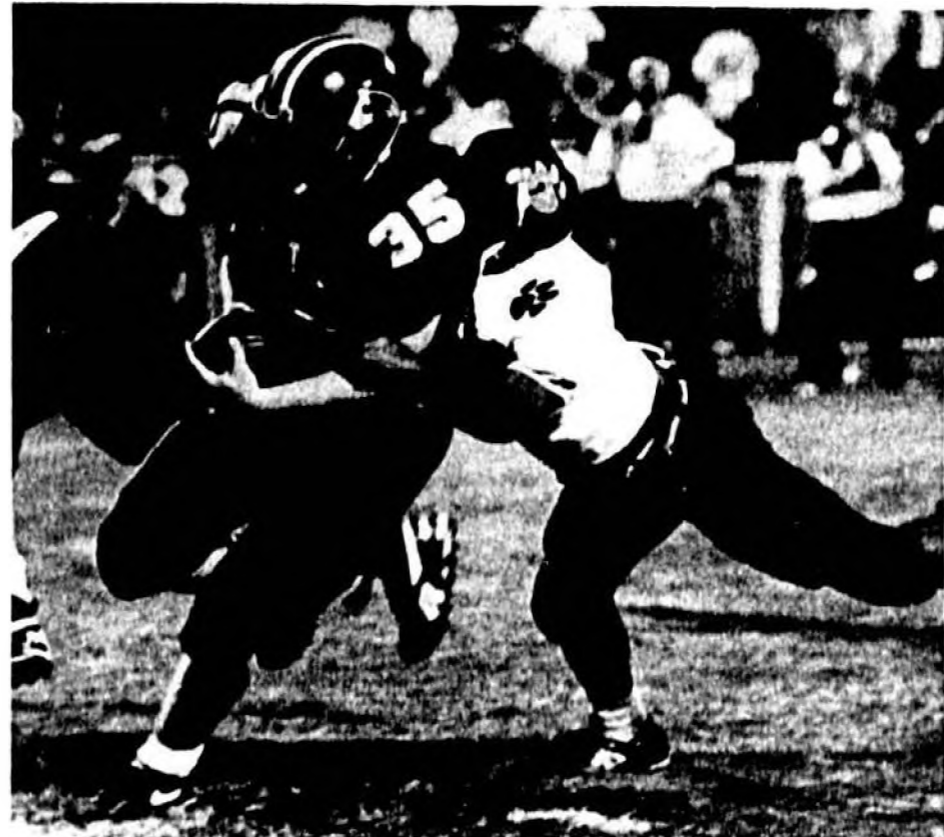

While wins and district titles are nice, Lake Brantley principal Darvin Boothe says that the on-field accomplishments are dwarfed by Almon's contributions off the field.

"Fred is a gentleman who really cares about the young men he works with," said Boothe. "He shows that through the hundreds of unpaid hours he puts in every year, during the summer and during the school year."

He makes a real effort to share with the kids the human values that we hold dear at Lake Brantley and at the other high schools in the county.

Boothe's appreciation of Almon comes on two levels, as an administrator and as a parent.

'No-brainers' few and far between

From Staff Reports

Selecting all-star teams is a favorite past time of most sports fans. Set yourself some arbitrary parameters (The All Left-Handed or All Aquarius Team) and let the debates begin.

But selecting this year's Sanford Herald All-County football team wasn't what you'd describe as a pleasant activity, primarily because it was an extremely difficult task.

Unlike past years, when most selections were fairly obvious, the only two "no-brain" picks this year were at fullback, which is manned for the second year in a row by Lake Brantley's Jeff Butler, and at punter, where Lynnman's Mike Krupa had far and away the county's best per-kick average.

You could find we did argue for and against every other pick in the line-up. As a result, some deserving young men were left off in favor of other deserving young men.

We apologize in advance to those who feel they were slighted and congratulate those who were selected.

The selection process of the Sanford Herald All-County football team follows slightly different format than other all-star squads in that we try to put together what is the best team rather than a collection of the best 24 players.

With that in mind, here is this year's Sanford Herald All-County team:

OFFENSE

Quarterback: Jeff Shaw, Lake Brantley. Shaw's consistency and poise earned him the nod over Seminole's Cliff Branch, who led Seminole County in all passing categories. Shaw, on the other hand, rushed for over 1,000 yards and scored 11 touchdowns while operating Lake Brantley's flexbone attack to perfection.

Second team: Cliff Branch, Seminole.

Fullback: Jeff Butler, Lake Brantley. The Sanford Herald Player of the Year (see related story), Butler led all of Florida in rushing with over 1,700 yards during the regular season. He also scored a county-best 17 touchdowns during the regular season.

Second team: Andre Acevedo, Lake Mary.

Tailback: Oscar Duncan, Oviedo.

Lake Brantley's Butler, Duncan was called on to do much of the dirty work for the Oviedo offense, carrying the ball much of the time between the 20-yard lines. Duncan finished with over 917 yards rushing in 11 games, averaging 6.5 yards a carry.

Second team: Kelym Chisolm, Lake Howell.

Flanker: Robert Ruffin, Seminole.

Other than Butler, no-one in the county handled the ball more often than Ruffin, who had 908 yards on 141 carries and caught 21 passes for 365 yards. Ruffin scored 11 touchdowns, nine rushing and two on pass receptions.

Second team: Antjuan Battle, Oviedo.

Wide receiver: Andre Rawlings, Seminole.

Rawlings tied Seminole teammate Ruffin for most receptions this season, catching 21 passes for a county-leading 462 yards. He was also one of four players to catch three touchdown passes.

Second team: Willie Jones, Lynnman.

Tight end: Fred McCloud, Lake Howell.

Traditionally a rushing-oriented team on offense, the Lake Howell Silver Hawks went to the air a little more often this season. One reason was McCloud, who led the county with an average of 25.8 yards per catch.

Second team: Channing Walton, Seminole.

Offensive line: Darrin McMillon and Jason Deluca, Lake Brantley; Tom Wilk, Seminole; Theron Houston, Lake Howell; Jason Watts, Oviedo.

There's no separating McMillon and Deluca, who pave the way for Butler and Shaw. As Lake Brantley coach Fred Almon said, "We like to run both ways, but when we need yards, we go over McMillon and Deluca."

Wilk has one of the toughest tasks in the county as the center in Seminole's multiple set offense. Houston is the anchor of Lake Howell's offensive line while Watts developed into the leader of Oviedo's young line.

What treats chronic yeast infection?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm an 80-year-old female and believe I have a yeast infection. I've tried over-the-counter GyneLotrimin to no avail, and I am simply too embarrassed to check in with my physician. What is your recommendation?

DEAR READER: Vaginal discharge in an elderly woman may not indicate infection; it may be the consequence of a hormone deficiency. Such a deficiency is common in females past menopause. On the other hand, you could have a bacterial infection that would not be affected by the anti-yeast medication GyneLotrimin.

Therefore, you need to be examined by your physician. In all likelihood, your symptoms are curable with appropriate medication, such as hormone cream. But you won't get the proper treatment unless your physician can diagnose your ailment. Don't let embarrassment prevent you from getting the help you need.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I suffer from phlebitis of my right thigh. What is your suggestion for control?

DEAR READER: Phlebitis (inflamed veins) often occur in veins that are swollen and dilated. Thus, you may be aided by a double-pronged approach: anti-inflammatory drugs, such as Motrin, and elastic support hose.

Ask your physician about this. If non-surgical therapy has not solved your problem, you may need to have the inflamed veins removed. Ordinarily, phlebitis of the thigh isn't a health hazard, but the pain, swelling and redness can be uncomfortable. For this reason, treatment is advisable.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 58 and suffer from fatty tumors on my arms and upper legs. What are they, what causes them and are they dangerous?

DEAR READER: Lipomas, benign fatty tumors, may appear anywhere on the body but are especially common on the thighs, buttocks and trunk. Their cause is unknown, their appearance is characteristic, and they do not need to be removed unless they are large and unsightly, or provide irritation, such as on belt lines or under bra straps.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Even someone who enjoys life and tries to feel permanently happy and debonair cannot be on cloud nine all the time. There will be gray, rain-filled days. But the arrival of the latest issue of Bridge Plus magazine (Editor: Gilles Queran, 6 Rue Pignoniere, 49124 St. Barthelemy, France) made my day — especially when I spotted this deal. It is beautiful.

If you wish to try to find the winning play, look only at the North and West hands. Defending against three no-trump, you lead the spade five: three, nine, ace. Declarer plays a diamond. Plan your defense.

First, what is the spade situation? Right — unless South is playing a subtle game — your partner, East, must have started with the J-9 and declarer with the A-8. However, things are looking grim. There seems to be no chance of establishing your spade suit before your second diamond entry has been dislodged by declarer. If you lead a low spade now, declarer is bound to finesse dummy's 10. Your partner will win with the jack, but he won't have another spade with which to remove dummy's king. And from the point-count, you know there is no future in another suit.

Have you seen the answer? At trick three, you must lead the spade queen. Yes, the queen!

Look at the situation from declarer's point of view. He will think you started with queen-jack-fifth of spades. Hoping you began with only one diamond honor, declarer will duck in the dummy. Don't forget to cast an eye in South's direction to see the expression on his face when your partner plays the jack.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Nov. 26, 1993

Be careful in the year ahead not to reject potential opportunities just because they're presented by a person you dislike. Judge the proposal, not the presenter.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your pet project might not come out the way you envision it today if you're subjected to interference from outsiders. Make it a point to keep the uninvolved out of the picture. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10183. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Basically you're not a bashful person, but you're usually somewhat reserved. Today, however, you might be tempted to upstage your friends in order to focus attention on yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) For the sake of convenience today you might enter into an arrangement with a person who seldom see things from your perspective. He/she isn't apt to change.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Take pride in your work today, even your smallest tasks and assignments. Doing things properly will enhance your feelings self-esteem.

CANCER (June 21-July 21)

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is one of those days when the last person with whom you'd like to be involved might arrange something special that includes you. You may have a hard time trying to wiggle out from under.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today if you make excuses in front of others, it could hurt your image and make you look weak. Face up to your shortcomings or mistakes instead of trying to pretend they're not your fault.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you borrow something today which the lender treasures, treat it with respect. If you're careless, it could hurt your reputation as well as your purse.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be very cautious and prudent in your commercial affairs today. If you miscalculate in business matters, it could deprive you of your profit.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today if you and your mate have a disagreement, it isn't likely to stay small for very long. Situations where you have opposing views could be exaggerated by both parties.

(C)1993, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

Even though you are innately a sociable person, being with a small, intimate group could provide you with greater pleasure today than getting caught in the crush of a crowd.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's imperative you be optimistic today, but you must also strive to be realistic as well. Expectations founded upon impractical premises could collapse.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If someone tells you a tall tale today, don't try to top him/her with a whopper. Your friend might be able to fool others with a story, but you may not have much luck with yours.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be very cautious and prudent in your commercial affairs today. If you miscalculate in business matters, it could deprive you of your profit.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today if you and your mate have a disagreement, it isn't likely to stay small for very long. Situations where you have opposing views could be exaggerated by both parties.

Seniors addressed on insurance

Jim Gunster (right) listens intently while Al Starke, representing President Clinton's health insurance program, addresses the Over 50 Club of Sanford at the recent meeting at the Sanford Senior Center. Starke showed a video and answered questions about how home insurance policies can be cancelled. One guest and six new members were in attendance.

Beating the blues

Hospice of Central Florida will hold a special series of free two-hour workshops in December focusing on "Getting Through the Holidays after the Death of a Loved One."

Topics include normal grief and changing relationships, taking care of yourself, creating new traditions and rituals, children and the holidays.

Workshops will be held in Wednesday, Dec. 1; Monday, Dec. 6 and Tuesday, Dec. 14 at various locations.

For more information, call 875-0028, ext. 464. Advance registration is required.

Bake sale to benefit theatre

A bake sale, scheduled on Saturday Dec. 4, will benefit the Special Spotlight Theatre.

The theatre is designed especially for handicapped children to participate.

The sale will be at Video News on the corner of U.S. Highway 17-92 and 27th Street in Sanford and will take place from noon to 6 p.m.

The local Star Trek fan club dressed in full uniform for the event.

Tree Farm kicks off Christmas

On Saturday, Dec. 4 the Orlando Predators players and cheerleaders along with WDIZ radio personalities will be at the Bissen Christmas Tree Farm in Sanford to kick off the season with the first Christmas Festival at the farm.

The festival will be from 1 to 3 p.m.

The players will be exchanging autographs for Toys for Tots. Santa will be there for photos and to hear wish lists.

There will be giveaways and other events.

The farm is located just north of Lake Jessup at 775 Pine Way in Sanford.

Kyle earns Eagle Scout badge

Designing church playground merits honor

By HERMAN SCHROEDER
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Over 100 friends and relatives attended the Eagle Scout Court of Honor for Steven Kyle of Troop 34 at the First United Methodist Church in Sanford.

Steven joined Cub Scouts in 1984, advanced through all ranks of Cub Scouts, Webelos, Arrow of Light, and crossed the bridge into Boy Scouts in May 1987.

He earned Tenderfoot and Second Class in 1987, First Class and Star ranks in 1988, Life rank in 1990, God and Country, 1991. He was also elected to Order of the Arrow and completed the mile swim in 1988-89.

He has held all patrol leader offices, troop guide, quartermaster, and is currently junior assistant scoutmaster. His Eagle project was to design the playground of the First United Methodist pre-school; also to obtain all materials, supervise construction and installation of all parts.

age seven through 14, all water sports, Deltona High soccer, cross-country and track teams. He is a member of Latin Club, BETA, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Key Club and is currently president of First United Methodist Church Youth Council.

Girl Scouts adopt grandparents

Grandson should clean room, stay straight

DEAR ABBY: Our grandson, who is a high school junior, recently moved in with us. It is our responsibility to see that he completes his education and stays straight.

His grandmother and I disagree on whether he should be expected to keep his room neat and orderly.

I say that it is an essential part of character development that he should have learned years ago. His grandmother maintains that there are other things more important.

Please settle this.

GRANDPA

DEAR GRANDPA: Must your grandson either complete his education and stay straight or keep his room neat and orderly? I say he should complete his education, stay straight, and keep his room neat and orderly.

DEAR ABBY: The lady who carried her own tea bags in her purse when she went to a restaurant reminded me of my own situation.

I own a florist shop, and I have had people come in with a cheap potted plant they bought in a grocery store, asking me to please "wrap it pretty" for them, and also please tell them how to take care of it. Can anybody top that?

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

DEAR BIRMINGHAM: Yes. Another florist wrote to say that he had sent several floral arrangements to a particular funeral home. Two days later a family member of the deceased drove up to his shop with her backseat filled with flowers, asking if he would take the flowers back to sell again — and would he mind giving her credit for the flowers.

DEAR ABBY: Several months ago, a friend of mine took what I consider to be a very unflattering picture of me.

When I saw the picture, I tore it up. My friend became very angry and said it was her picture, but I say the picture was of me, and therefore I had every right to destroy it.

Please settle this so we can remain friends.

TORN UP IN ATLANTA

DEAR TORN UP: Although it was a picture of you, it belonged to your friend. However, if your friend is truly a friend, she will forgive you.

DEAR ABBY: I live in a retirement facility — and please don't call it a "nursing home." We are not sick, we're just getting on in years.

Anyway, we love to swap stories, and every now and then I hear one I've never heard before. Here is is:

A middle-aged woman got a position in a large office. About two weeks into the job, she kept staring at a nice-looking unmarried man about her age.

He felt her eyes on him, and finally asked, "Why are you staring at me?"

She replied, "Because you remind me of my fourth husband."

"Your fourth?" he said, somewhat startled. "How many husbands have you had?"

She smiled and replied, "three."

MILLIE IN MOLINE, ILL.

DEAR ABBY: I have this best friend I'll call Jane. She has been over here asking me what's wrong with her because she and her husband have been fighting a lot. She says he hasn't been coming home for supper lately. He eats out and comes home at bedtime.

I know one thing that is wrong, but I can't find the words to tell her. The minute you walk into Jane's house, you smell this funny smell. It's like food decaying and that's probably what it is, because you never saw such a filthy house. You have to step over boxes and sacks to get from one room to the other.

You can't sit down anywhere because every chair and couch is covered with stuff — books, newspapers, clothes, boxes. Her dining table is loaded with more stuff, and so is her kitchen table.

I noticed she served John his dinner every night on a tray in front of the TV because she's too lazy to clear off space on the table.

Anyway, I think you get the picture. I just hate to hurt Jane's feelings, but I'd like to tell her to clean up her house and keep it that way, and maybe John would feel like coming home more often.

JANE'S BEST FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: A "best" friend should do the friendly thing and tell Jane exactly what she thinks is the matter. What are you waiting for!

Clintons spruce up White House in their own style

By NANCY BENAC
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — One of the first things families seem to tinker with in a new home is the kitchen, and the First Family is no exception.

Hence, this White House announcement Tuesday: Gone is a butler's pantry, replaced with an "everyday kitchen now used for family meals."

That's not all that's new.

The president's office in the residence has a new look, the Lincoln sitting room has been refurbished in more of a Victorian style, and new wallpaper and drapes adorn the third-floor solarium, master bedroom and family room.

It's all part of Phase II of White House renovations undertaken by the new residents of 1600 Pennsylvania Ave.

First, the Oval Office got a bolder, brighter look. Now, the private quarters have gotten their own facelift. Next up: the state rooms — talk is already under way about how to spiff up the Blue Room and the East Room.

So far, the tab is $398,000, all of it from private donations to the White House Historical Association.

Those who chipped in were duly thanked.

"We are grateful to the many Americans whose generous contributions have helped preserve the White House as a proud piece of American history and an ongoing national treasure," the president and Mrs. Clinton said in a joint statement issued as the latest renovations were announced.

The Clintons have held down the price by using the same strategy employed by many Americans when they renovate their homes: They're making do with a lot of what they already have.

Seventy-three pieces of furniture and furnishings have been recovered, 23 pieces conserved, 74 items retrieved from storage.

Design consultant Kaki Hockersmith from Little Rock, Ark., poked through storage facilities at the White House and in Maryland to find promising items, which the Clintons then tried out before deciding which to keep, said Neel Lattimore, a spokesman for the first lady's office.

The results are similar to those in the Oval Office.

Colors are bolder, more historic paintings and furnishings are on display, and the Clintons' personal stamp is more in evidence.

Lattimore called it a very "hands-on" renovation effort for the Clintons.

"The goal of the president and first lady was to bring as many artifacts as possible out of storage," he said. "They take a real interest in showing people around."

The new items include an 1861 program from the Lincoln Inaugural Ball on display in the Lincoln sitting room and the addition to the Treaty Room of the walnut table used at the Israel-PLO peace treaty signing ceremony.

The new kitchen suits the Clintons' desire to preserve a normal family life for 13-year-old daughter Chelsea. In the former butler's pantry, a large wooden island was removed and replaced with an "expandable breakfast table and chairs," the White House said.

The family eats "as many meals there as possible," Lattimore said.

"If you were to walk into that kitchen, you could be walking into any kitchen in America," he said. "If you open up the cabinets, you see the same things as in your own kitchen."

But the Clintons, of course, still rely on the White House cooking staff for most of their meals.

The renovations in Clinton's Treaty Room office have given it a "very masculine and warm" feel, Lattimore says. Pale green walls have given way to vinyl wallpaper simulating red leather.

And in keeping with Clinton's voracious reading habits, the additions include folded walnut bookcases complemented by new stained walnut woodwork.

Like the Oval Office, the Treaty Room offers a mix of the formal and the personal, with plenty of personal photographs and Clinton memorabilia on display along with various art objects.

"It has to be as comfortable for him when he can't sleep at night as it is when a visiting head of state is there," Lattimore said.

The refurbished Lincoln sitting room is another forum for the Clintons' penchant for bold colors. The light, peachy decor has been replaced with a stronger Victorian look featuring burgundy and gold. The new rug is patterned with alternative rosettes and medallions in red, green and gold.

Artifacts include portraits of Ulysses S. Grant and Abraham Lincoln, numerous paintings of members of the Lincoln family, a bronze desk set from the early 19th century, a 1932 mahogany and marble desk and a mahogany and gilded bronze mantel clock from the early 1800s.

The small southeast corner room has come a long way from its early days — an 1825 White House inventory listed the room simply as "empty."
