

Seminole's Tag Shortage Reported By Tax Collector

By JANE CASSELBERRY
County Editor

Although the deadline for purchasing 1974 auto tags was extended to Friday, procrastinators lining up at the Seminole Tax Collector's office this week are apt to find the cupboard is bare.

Tax Collector Troy Ray said today that his supply of the most popular series of license plates is depleted. When the office ran out of tags, validating permit stickers were issued for old plates until they ran out as well.

The situation in Orange and Volusia is not as desperate, however. The Volusia County office in DeLand reported today it still has tags on hand. There has been a steady flow of tag buyers during the extended period, but no long lines. During July it sold 7,000-8,000 last year.

Those coming in now are issued a lost tag permit to tide them over until their new tag is available.

The Orange County tag office in Orlando revealed that it has plenty of plates except for truck and tractor. Business has been slow this week, but they expect another last minute surge on Thursday and Friday.

Ray said that although there have been big lines when the office opens in the morning this week, there has been only a "steady flow" in the afternoons.

Ray said he regrets the inconvenience caused vehicle owners in having to wait for their tags and the double work for his office. He hopes the new three-year so called "permanent" tag to be issued next summer should help alleviate the tag shortage which has plagued many of the counties in the state the last few years.

He said there is some possibility of getting more tags on Thursday. The Seminole tag offices sold 78,000 license plates last year and Ray said he had predicted a 10,000 increase this year and had ordered accordingly, but the state had failed to deliver.

Casselberry Cuts Paid Fire Chief

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

CASSELBERRY — The preliminarily approved $86,923.55 fire department budget for the new year does not include a paid full-time fire chief, the city council in budget session decided Tuesday night.

The position was eliminated after lengthy discussion among the council, City Manager Ron Bergman and Volunteer Fire Chief Roger Rasooli.

Rasooli led the discussion to eliminate Bergman's recommended $12,050 salary for a chief.

He said a paid chief is unnecessary in Casselberry at this time. "If the city had plenty of money, I would say get a $12,000 a year man and a car for him," Rasooli said. He admitted, however, with the probability the city will have its additional Red Bug Road fire station in the 1974-75 fiscal year, a paid chief will be needed then.

Council approved a move to keep the paid section of the fire department. At Rasooli's urging, they agreed to a minimum starting salary for firemen of $7,500 annually.

Approval was given to add another full-time position to the three paid men already on staff. Two additional men are to be hired at mid-year.

The full-time position to begin Oct. 1 will be shared by three volunteers, who are professional firefighters on other departments, to give the city additional coverage during the daytime hours Monday through Friday.

Fireman requested a budget totaling $169,109. Bergman pared it before presentation to the council to $97,346. The preliminarily approved budget was $86,923.55.

But council members made it clear this sum will be gone over again after reviews of other departmental requests are concluded.

The new equipment requests were cut with Rasooli's assistance from $56,053 to $27,188.55.

SANFORD WELCOMES ZAYRE'S

MOST OF the Sanford top brass and thousands of shoppers attended today's grand opening of Zayre's department store. Mayor Lee Moore welcomed the new business on behalf of the city, and store manager Ed Fryer (holding microphone) told the crowd he and his staff are eager to serve the people and the community. Mrs. Walter Gielow, chairman of the Ladies Civic and Community Affairs Committee, said city-wide beautification is her committee's top 1973 project, and commended Zayre's for its success in beautifying the area around the store at the entrance to Sanford. TITUSVILLE — Testimony of the state's key witness is expected late today in the first degree murder trial of a 15-year old New Jersey youth charged with the May 12 slaying of an Orlando chef near Sanford.

Prosecutor Newman Brock told the circuit court jury earlier that Roland Dorval of Woonsocket, R.I., will testify he was picked up on Interstate 4 near the Georgia State Line by Roy Ivan Bissonette Jr., Brown Mills, N.J., three hours after Charles Newell, 31, was shot 10 times in a secluded

Bissonette, a pale youth with collar length brown hair, is under heavy guard as bailiffs keep watchful eyes on spectators and reporters in the courtroom.

Circuit Judge Richard Muldrew ordered Tuesday that Bissonette is not to be photographed anywhere in the Brevard County Courthouse or jail or on the grounds. He promised to hold any photographers violating the order in contempt of court.

The judge's order came after a television cameraman, unnoticed by two bailiffs, reportedly filmed him, witnesses and others during a trial recess outside the fifth floor courtroom where the trial is expected to continue all week.

Muldrew ordered more deputy sheriffs to be on duty today and sources said plans call for sealing off the entire floor so photographers won't glimpse Bissonette during trips to and from the adjoining jail by a long corridor linking the courthouse with the jail.

Seminole medical examiner Dr. G. V. Garay testified Tuesday that Newell had been shot 10 times — five in back of the head, four in the chest and once in the left hand — death was instantly caused by bullets that damaged the brain and spinal column.

Assistant Public Defender Gerald Rutberg told the jury in his opening statement that Newell was a "sick pervert of the worst order." He said the chef was a "rank bisexual who

"The most suspicious grand opening I've ever seen" were the quotes of many who attended today's welcome to Sanford by the folks at Zayre's. Guest estimates ranged all the way up to 4,000 who were there for the ribbon-cutting event.

More than a couple days ago, the wire services were burning the communications lines with reports of those mysterious radio broadcasts from Santa Fe, N.M., supposedly of a boy's voice calling for help.

The search was called off Aug. 12. Authorities complained of interference and citizens band radio operators talking back and forth.

Strange...robbery reported any missing husband and son. It had been reported earlier that the boy had been with his father and that his father had collapsed and died.

Makes you wonder, just a little bit, doesn't it?

Lake Mary Passes First City Ordinance

By J RICHARDS
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY—In a special city council meeting Tuesday night, the newly-incorporated city's first ordinance—a building inspection code—was unanimously approved.

According to acting Mayor Donald Jackson the city must hire a building inspector, but now depends upon the county to provide this service.

The council also heard opinions from County Commissioner John Kimbrough and County Assistant Atty. Howard Marsee about a 1970 Florida statute that provides for a county commission to establish a new fire control district without a referendum.

The building code, which will ultimately provide Lake Mary with its first source of revenues, will be handled by the county inspectors in an "advisory" capacity until October, said Jackson.

According to Marsee, the county will receive any monies from this inspection until Lake Mary is able to perform the job on its own.

Weather

Yesterday's high 94 low this morning 66 and there was .50 of an inch of rain last night. Partly cloudy through Thursday. Highs around 96. Low tonight mid to upper 60s. Thunderstorms lingered over scattered sections of the nation today, greatly weakened following Tuesday's heavy storms.

Terming creation of a new fire control district "mutually beneficial to both Lake Mary and the county," Marsee said that, in his opinion, the new city will probably be given the contract to provide fire protection to the proposed district.

"The new district will run about on the same lines as the unincorporated part of the old Lake Mary district, and the county will probably contract with the city to give the service to an area it had historically provided all along.

"It will probably mean a vast reduction in the money Lake Mary will have to get by borrowing to keep its fire department running," Marsee said.

The county commission reached an informal decision about taking care of Lake Mary building inspections with the new city council in a Saturday morning session last week.

The county agreed to continue inspections on building permits already issued prior to the time the city was incorporated, as well as provide an "interim solution" to the unfilled inspector post created when the first ordinance was passed.

City Clerk Kay Sassman, who has been working out of her home since the incorporation will today move into temporary offices at 124 Country Club Road.

Located at the Johnny Walker Building, Mrs. Sassman said she expects to have a city phone installed this afternoon.

Sanford City Brass Given Pay Boosts

HENRY TAMM
Finance director

By BOB LLOYD
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford city commissioners Monday agreed to pay the police chief, city engineer and finance director $17,000 a year each starting Oct. 1.

Currently, Police Chief Ben Butler is paid $15,242 annually while City Engineer Mack Lazenby's salary is $15,831 and Finance Director Henry Tamm receives $15,326.

The positions are in the top salary range on the city's salary schedules. The setting of an equal salary for the three averaged out the present salaries.

Using this year's salaries and adding 10 per cent as ordered earlier by commissioners the police chief's position would have paid $16,766 next year; city engineer $17,524 and finance director $16,800.

The fire chief's salary was raised to $14,622 a year instead of the $13,915 the position would have paid with the 10 per cent raise.

The city manager's will pay $23,562 starting Oct. 1 — a straight 10 per cent raise.

Other administrative salaries set by commissioners as proposed under the 10 per cent increase theory were: assistant finance director $11,528; licensing official (a new post, presently vacant) $7,500; building official $11,000; director of public works $14,622; director of utilities $14,622; director of parks and recreation $14,622; and personnel director — aid to city manager — $11,550.

Of the city's 296 employees, 111 are getting the full 10 per cent increase for the next fiscal year plus a jump in pay grade.

Twenty-six won't get the full 10 per cent pay increase because their salaries already exceed the levels set in the City Study adopted by the city for their jobs. These positions are expected to fall under the study in regular slots by next year.

Commissioner Gordon Meyer said he wants to consider raising city commissioners' salaries but discussion was delayed until City Atty. Vernon Mize, who wasn't present at Monday's budget hearing, can check the charter and the new Home Rule Law that takes effect Oct. 1.

Mayor Lee Moore said information should be available for the 7 p.m. Wednesday budget hearing so commissioners can decide if water and sewer service rates will be hiked to fund an anticipated $93,000 deficit in utility department operations next year.

Moore said Meyer will be acting mayor for the commission's Aug. 27 regular meeting when a controversial zoning request for a $6 million condominium project on 20 acres of newly annexed grove south of Mayfair Country Club will be decided. Moore said he will be in Philadelphia on a business trip.

Senate Bill Is (Finally) Reasonable

After intensive debate and some harrowing moments, the U.S. Senate has approved a reasonable measure that would permit construction of a 789-mile pipeline across Alaska to help bring oil to an energy-hungry United States of America.

The immediate impact of the Senate action may be to stimulate the House into action. The lower body also has been stalemated over the issue for four years.

Even after the House acts, however, the fight for construction of the pipeline may die a hard death. Extreme environmentalists will comb federal and local statutes to look for tactics to throw on the road of progress. On another front those concerned with the size of the oil industry will pursue their suit to preclude major oil firms from controlling both the transportation and the marketing of oil. The Alaska pipeline offers them a big target.

Unfortunately, as it may be seen from all of this, the Alaska pipeline has developed a character of its own simply as an issue apart from the substance. Few, for example, really question the critical need of the United States for Alaskan oil, which now constitutes at least 25 percent of the proven domestic reserve. We do need the oil, both for fuel our industry and mobility and to relieve some dependence on foreign oil.

In the waning hours of the Senate Alaska pipeline debate, much of the argument centered on peripheral issues. These included such things as an old federal law that limited right-of-way to 50 feet in width, as well as arguments over whether the oil should come to the West or Midwest and whether the pipeline should be constructed along Canada's MacKenzie River Valley.

The fact is that bringing more oil to the Americans who are dismayed at the high price of their favorite cut of beef—or the disappearance from meat counters altogether—can ponder a report from the international League of Red Cross Societies. An estimated 13 million people, half of them children under 15, are facing outright starvation because of a drought in Africa south of the Sahara. Their hunger is not for meat but for food of any kind.

Relief efforts now getting started may avert the catastrophe and can at least diminish the degree of suffering that looms for those unfortunate. The point is, their plight is not an unfamiliar one on this teeming planet.

Price regulations need help of all

RAY CROMLEY
After two years of price controls one sort or another one thing is clear: Price regulations alone are ineffective. They won't work unless government, industry and the consumer show restraint.

Item — Federal and state governments must control their spending. This, of course, is not as easy as it sounds. Both the President and Congress have got to agree on where they're going to hold the line, and thus far this has proved impossible. Congress has found it impractical to agree on limits within its own house.

Item — The Federal Reserve has got to do more to keep the money supply from growing too rapidly. For too much money circulating, in times like these, tends to drive prices up. Again, this solution is easier described than carried out. Too tight a control on the money supply can limit increases in industrial production, commerce and in consumer buying to a degree that advantageous growth is hampered and the danger of a recession is brought closer. An overnight control of money can lead to serious amounts of unemployment.

Item — Government and industry must both take some determined steps to increase production when needed. In part, this means better government data nationally and internationally on such matters for example as the international wheat crop and the probability of drought in Russia. In part it means more rapid government action to relax certain controls — such as farm acreage restrictions and other restraints on output — and more responsive government action in releasing stocks of overpriced basic materials.

This again won't be easy of accomplishment. Government data on economics, commerce, production and purchases — especially international data — is gathered inefficiently, is incomplete, frequently inaccurate and almost always so slow in arriving in the hands of those who need to use it that it frequently is of no much account except to scholars.

The Commerce Department, on which a heavy share of collection, compilation and analysis depends, has one of the most inefficient bureaucracies in Washington (though it has some very good men) and the Agriculture Department's foreign collection system is hardly better.

Item — It will be necessary for both the government and industry to step up on research on substitute materials (for petroleum, as an example), on more efficient means of production, on domestic sources of supply, on improved materials and end products. The problem here is that Congress has a habit of cutting back on research projects in times of inflation when they're most sorely needed.

The fact that this issue can be mediated in an overlapping problem as big as the Alaskan pipeline augurs well for similar resolution of disputes in equally critical areas when environment and need are major factors.

How Will Supreme Court Decide?

COPY NEWS
The Supreme Court in a decision last year may have meant the real meaning which could lead to a requirement that President Nixon comply with the subpoena issued by the grand jury investigating the Watergate matter.

In June, 1972, the court rejected the claim of several reporters that the confidentiality of their sources gave them a privilege not to appear before grand juries.

"The public has a right to every man's evidence," the court said, particularly in grand jury proceedings.

Certainly the tapes of conversations in the President's office and on his telephones about the Watergate investigation could be relevant to the grand jury's inquiry.

The court in a footnote quoted Justice Brandeis to the effect that the government must testify if they are eyewitnesses.

Bentham (1748-1832) was an English philosopher and jurist. "Were the Prince of Wales, the Archbishop of Canterbury, and the Lord High Chancellor, to be passing by in the same coach while a chimney-sweep and a barrow-woman were in dispute about a halfpenny-worth of apples, and the chimney-sweep or the barrow-woman were to think proper to call upon them for their evidence, could they refuse it?" Bentham asked. "No, most certainly," was his answer.

Focus On Watergate

Thoughts About Political Careers

Geoff Strachan, who was 27 when he went to work as a staff assistant in the White House, told senators that from his experience with the Watergate affair he would advise young people to "stay away" from careers in public service. That prompted another Watergate witness, former presidential assistant John Ehrlichman, to expound just the opposite view about young Americans and their government. "I hope they do come and test their ideas and convictions in this marketplace," he said. "I hope they come here and do better."

This exchange might be considered a mere digression from the main focus of the Watergate investigation, but it should not be. The microscopic examination of Watergate does have an impact on our nation's future quite beyond any findings or judgment regarding the conduct of individuals. If it leads to the kind of negative cynicism expressed by young Geoff Strachan, it will compound the damage already done. If it leads to the kind of positive energy and idealism, Watergate will become truly an American tragedy rather than what it really is — a set of mistakes and misjudgments by people in high places who should have known better.

Mr. Ehrlichman points out that there is no reason for Americans to shun the political arena if they enter it with their eyes open. Indeed, some Watergate figures now feeling contrite about their role in the affair have declared that occasional loyalty to a political cause had clouded their view of the moral and legal implications of their behavior.

Any young person who has studied American history should be familiar with the way the system of checks and

The judge ruled Tuesday that since the professor voluntarily resigned from the faculty in June 1972, he had not been denied his right to due process.

Each side in the case was permitted 18 challenges and the prosecution has seven remaining while the defense has six challenges left.

Goodman, the Rev. Mr. Wright and Martin are charged with conspiring to give and receive a bribe in return for a favorable decision in a morals case against William Alton Trotter, a truck driver.

VVAW Witness Recalled

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — An early government witness in the Gainesville Eight conspiracy trial is being recalled to testify in the trial.

The witness, a former U.S. Housing and Urban Development's local office, which he once headed.

U.S. District Judge Winston E. Arrow announced Tuesday that he has agreed to recall Joseph W. Fennell for limited cross-examination at a time not specified.

"That cross-examination will be limited to whether he knew some investigation was going on about HUD and whether any promises were made to him," the judge said.

Arrow rejected protests by U.S. Justice Department attorney Robert Schneider that the jury shouldn't be allowed to hear that an investigation involving a witness was in progress.

"The jury will hear it," the judge sternly told Schneider. Fennell, a Navy veteran with service in Vietnam, testified earlier that defendant Scott Camil of Gainesville showed him a slush fund and fired marbles would shatter on impact and would do harm to a person or animal.

The government charges that Camil and seven other members of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War conspired to create violence with bombs, guns and slingshots in the Miami area during the 1972 Republican National Convention.

Five witnesses paraded before the jury Tuesday afternoon, tracing a shipment of 20 wrist slingshots from Saunders Archery Company of Columbus, Neb. on June 28, 1972 to the Wang Dang Doode store in Gainesville on July 6, 1972. Defendant John K. Briggs was manager of the novelty clothing store, now defunct.

After announcing the change in positions, Askew said "I feel that the Secretary of Commerce should also be chairman of the (manpower) commission. I discussed this with Lt. Gov. Adams and he agreed."

The manpower council coordinates planning for federal manpower programs and advises local planning boards of priorities. Most of the programs involve the Labor Division of the Commerce Department.

Spicer, former St. Petersburg mayor, also succeeded Adams as Commerce Secretary in February.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Tom Adams has been removed as chairman of the Florida Manpower Commission by Gov. Reubin Askew.

Askew made the announcement Tuesday and named Commerce Secretary Don Spicer to succeed Adams.

That leaves Adams with the chairmanship of the Florida Bicentennial Commission as his only state job. The commission is preparing Florida's part in the 200th birthday of the United States in 1976.

In Gulf Of Mexico Halt Asked On Oil Wells

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Florida Department of Pollution Control wants the federal government to delay leasing new oil drilling sites in the Gulf of Mexico until more studies are made.

Tim Stuart, a department section administrator, Tuesday told a U.S. Interior Department panel holding hearings on the environmental impact of offshore drilling that there was not enough information available upon which to base a rational judgment on the effects.

"Our department feels that sale should await development of more advanced quality control, safety and pollution control equipment and procedures," Stuart said.

Stuart said more research was needed on the effects of chronic low-level spills, the amount of oil expected to be spilled, the impact on fish and the effect on air and water quality.

Stuart was one of more than 70 persons scheduled to speak during the three-day hearing. More federal, state and local officials, conservationists, oil men and power company representatives were scheduled to address the panel today.

The Interior Department is holding the hearing to determine whether or not to allow the leasing of 159 submerged tracts in the eastern Gulf of Mexico.

The tracts, totaling 836,548 acres, are located off Florida, Alabama and Mississippi.

Federal geologists estimate the virgin underground crude oil and gas to be 3.9 trillion cubic feet of gas.

A chorus of environmentalists, a state representative and a chamber of commerce vice president joined the pollution control department Tuesday in asking for a delay.

State Rep. Kenneth H. Mackay, D-Ocala and co-chairman of the Florida Energy Committee, said the federal agency should not lease the sites until July 1 of next year in order to allow the state time to set up a policy on growth and offshore drilling.

"We need time to talk with other local states that have had oil drilling," said Mackay. "We've reacted as quickly as possible, but we're in a position to react within the next 90 days."

Julian Bennett, vice president of the Bay County Chamber of Commerce, said the panel should require oil companies to create a fund to be used to clean up oil pollution and require them to post surety bonds to pay for cleanup expenses and damages.

Bennett also asked the agency to require the state time to set up a policy on growth and offshore drilling.

The economic health of Mississippi and the continued well-being of its people demand that we proceed without delay to explore for, produce, transport, and refine the crude oil and natural gas which underlie waters offshore Mississippi, Alabama and Missouri," Walter

Election Law Sans Commission

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida has a new elections law but not a commission to enforce it, and Secretary of State Richard Stone has asked Democratic and Republican party chairmen to correct the situation.

In a recent letter to the chairmen Stone pointed out that, if a violation of the elections law occurred, he would have no one to refer the matter to.

Party officials said they expected to complete their nominations to the new State Elections Commission by about Sept. 1.

The law took effect July 1 and sets up a seven-member board to investigate possible violations of the state election law, and to report to state attorneys if it finds the law was violated.

The governor appoints six members — three from nominations by the Democratic party and three from Republican nominations. These six choose the seventh member.

Republican Executive Director Bill David said the GOP list probably would be completed next week, after State Gov. chairman L.E. "Tommy" Thomas returns from a vacation in Australia.

"Part of the problem is that a lot of people are on vacation and hard to contact," David said.

His Democratic counterpart, John French, said party officials had been carefully screening recommendations from members of the executive committee and others.

"This will be the first opportunity the governor will have to appoint members of the committee and we are being very careful in our selection," French said.

He said he expected the names to be submitted to Gov. Reubin Askew by Sept. 1.

Marines Sue For Wigs

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Two Marine Corps reservists have filed suit in federal court asking they be allowed to wear short-haired wigs to drills.

Steve Whitis of Tampa and Alan K. Fouts of nearby St. Petersburg filed the suit Tuesday, claiming that a Marine antiwig regulation is unconstitutional and violates their rights under the First, Ninth and Fourteenth amendments.

The men say their hair is of "fashionable length."

But they said they've been getting unexcused absences at meetings of the 4th Amphibian Tractor Battalion in Tampa because their locks don't conform to military regulations and they can't wear wigs.

The reservists argue that short wigs would satisfy the appearance requirements and hide their long locks and would "in no way interfere with the performance of duties."

They say their reserve standing will be violated if their attendance record is further impaired, resulting in their induction into active duty.

Fouts said Whitis said they walked off a Tampa Marine drill area last month after they were given an ultimatum to chop their hair to regulation length.

Under military requirements "the hair shall be worn neatly and closely trimmed. It shall be clipped at the sides and back so as to present an evenly graduated appearance. The hair on the top must not be over three inches in length. Long or conspicuous sideburns are prohibited."

O'Malley Probe Widens

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A Florida House subcommittee probe of the office of State Insurance Commissioner Tom O'Malley will be expanded to include O'Malley's conduct, a subcommittee member says.

Rep. George A. Williamson, R-Fort Lauderdale, said Tuesday he believed the panel was authorized to investigate "all phases of the department and the contributors to the commission." He said the subcommittee would investigate the propriety of O'Malley receiving money from representatives of insurance companies and banks — companies his department regulates.

Three television stations reported last Friday that the current report of annual contributions to a fund used to defray O'Malley's expenses included $7,000 from the financial institutions.

"On my $37,000 salary, I can't afford to pay for a lot of things like flowers for my employees who get sick or to take my wife on a lot of these official functions," O'Malley said in response.

After television station WCKT of Miami reported the subcommittee probe Tuesday night, Williamson said the panel would investigate O'Malley's use of state airplanes and whether he received contributions from insurance companies moving into Florida.

But subcommittee chairman Ed Whitson, R-Clearwater, said he could not determine the ultimate scope of the investigation until he spoke with committee chairman William Birchfield, D-Jacksonville.

Antipollution Pendulum Swinging Back

Copley News Service

In 1907 the British Parliament outlawed the burning of coal in London while Parliament was in session and imposed the death penalty for who violated the edict. The members didn't like the sooty air created by coal burning. Things haven't gone that far in the United States, of course, and never could. The best evidence of this is that the pendulum which a few years ago swung far in favor of an environment-minded government and public now is falling back toward a more evenhanded attitude toward the scouring of our air and water.

In some quarters the change amounts almost to a backlash against the stiff antipollution laws, rules and regulations aimed at state and local governments, business, industry and the individual.

Americans have been faddists for generations, but protecting or improving the environment is no passing fancy. Ecologists will be around from now on. The only question is whether they have gone too far toward protecting the environment and how far they will be allowed to go in the future.

Recent developments reflect a growing impatience with environmentalism. Its advocates are being blamed for the energy crisis, chaos in the auto industry, high prices, food shortages, even the falling birthrate. Some of these charges are unfair. But many responsible people echo many of these complaints.

Moreover, events point to a gradual shift away from the Puritan attitude toward a clean new world without a spot of dust in any corner at any cost.

Take a look at some of the pendulum-swinging. Nuclear power plants which industry experts claim are vital to avert an energy crisis are getting the green light from the Atomic Energy Commission in mounting numbers. The courts are throwing out lawsuits aimed at closing atomic power plants and blocking construction of others. A year ago the nuclear power plant program was stymied.

Chairman Jennings Randolph of the Senate Public Works Committee warned that the nation's economy must be considered in the government's drive to fight pollution. We must not in our eagerness to protect the environment, become overzealous to the point of requiring technologies that are not available," he admonished. At one time Randolph was an all-out environmentalist.

Vegetarians Are Finding Price And Work Drawbacks

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Vegetarians who've been snubbing meat for years are finding it's fashionable these days to dine on fruits and vegetables. They're also finding that popularity has its drawbacks—like higher prices and more work.

"I used to answer my mail every day, and there's really too much for one person," says Freya Dimshah, wife of the director of the American Vegan Society.

The society, based in Malaga, N.J., is much stricter than most vegetarian organizations. Members eat no meat or fish; nor do they eat the byproducts of animals, such as dairy products and eggs. They also avoid all items made from animals, including wool, silk and leather. Many vegetarians eat eggs and dairy products and have no prohibition on things like wool.

Mrs. Dimshah said "quite a bit of interest has been expressed" in the society in recent months, partly because of the high cost of meat and short supply of beef.

She said the society has several hundred paid-subscription members, with several formal chapters around the country. In addition, an unknown number of people adopt part or all of the Vegan philosophy after writing for information, Mrs. Dimshah said. The society published a book called "Vegan Kitchen" and a pamphlet titled "Month of Menus."

Discussing the meat shortage and soaring prices, Mrs. Dimshah—who was born in England and was raised as a vegetarian, although not a Vegan—said: "We've seen this coming for a long time. In order to feed all the people in the world, we have to turn to a diet which, if not totally vegetarian, is at least mainly vegetarian."

She said it takes about one-eighth as much land to produce food for a vegetarian as for a meat eater. It's also cheaper for the individual consumer.

Mrs. Dimshah estimated it costs $8 to $10 per week per person for food on the Vegan diet. A typical day's meals, she said, would include fruit and nuts for breakfast; a salad with protein—such as nuts or beans—for lunch, maybe with some soup; and salad with cooked vegetables and a starch for dinner.

The Theosophical Society of America is much less strict than the Vegans. The educational-philosophical organization doesn't require that its members be vegetarians, although many are.

Among the vegetarians is Joy Mills, the group's president. She said the society is dedicated to "promoting the ideals of universal brotherhood of humanity" and believes that "all life is truly derived from one life." From there, it's a short step to opposing the killing of any animal.

Mrs. Mills, who does eat dairy products and eggs, estimated that the society has about 6,000 members in the United States.

Wright Strategy Revealed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Charles Alan Wright leaned back, all elbows and knees, in a swivel chair and talked about preparing an argument for the Supreme Court.

"It's a waste of time really to try counting noses. You simply have to go forward with the best and strongest legal position you can devise."

When in Washington, Wright works in a spare, narrow office in the Executive Office Building within easy hearing distance of President Nixon, whose case for withholding White House tapes he has prepared and will argue in court.

A dozen blocks away sat Archibald Cox, with the same sort of long, bony, angular look, talking about the same thing.

"Some lawyers claim they make one argument for Justice A, and another argument for Justice B, and a third for Justice C. I've never been able to do that. I just try to make the most persuasive, well-reasoned one I can."

As Watergate special prosecutor, Cox asked the White House for the tapes of presidential conversations. President Nixon said no. So Cox subpoenaed the tapes. The President said no, and the legal battle was joined that will take Cox and Wright into federal court Wednesday to debate the constitutional issues.

It will be just the first round in this battle of intellectual heavyweights. For, whatever U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica rules, the loser will appeal. The final court ruling is virtually certain to come from the Supreme Court.

It is the first time Cox and Wright have appeared on opposite sides of a case.

They've warmed up for this one with long written arguments submitted to Sirica. In them, both displayed their talents not only for interpreting constitutional law but for persuasive, colorful argument.

"The issue here is starkly simple: will the presidency be allowed to continue to function?" asked Wright.

"Our response is that the presidency can indeed function," answered Cox.

There is a "paramount need for frank expression and discussion among the President and those consulted by him," Wright argued.

Presidential aides "are not likely to be timid because of this remote danger of disclosure," wrote Cox.

Back and forth they sparred on paper, warily testing each other's arguments in preparation for the more dramatic confrontations in court.

Sheppard-Dixon Nuptials Held At All Souls Church

Miss Cassandra Delores Sheppard, daughter of Mrs. Thelma Sheppard, 619 East 7th Street, Sanford, and Walter Sheppard, 78 Bay Avenue, Sanford, and Leon Dixon Jr., son of Mrs. Laverina Dixon Weaver, Pasadena, Calif., were united in Holy Matrimony June 16, 1973, at 2:30 p.m. at All Souls Catholic Church.

Father William Knuts officiated at the double ring ceremony. Two altar vases of white gladiolus, daisies and baby's breath, potted palms and white satin ribbon marked the family pews with a white aisle runner upon which the bridal party entered.

John Charles Aiken, organist, presented several nuptial selections. The bride, given in marriage by her father, was adorned in a formal-length gown fashioned of sheer silk organza that fell in a soft a-line silhouette with slightly raised waistline. Cluny lace trimmed the bodice and cuffs. A panel of cluny lace and tucking formed a panel down the front of the gown.

The chapel length train was bordered with cluny lace and a satin bow trimmed the back at the waist line. The long veil was tied and bordered in matching cluny lace. She carried a bouquet of white sweetheart roses and baby's breath with white satin streamers.

Following the ceremony, a dinner was held at the Holiday House and, after dinner, a reception was held at the Sanford Civic Center. The tables were overlaid with white and silver cloths. Crystal punch bowls stood at each end of the table. The bridal table, overlaid also with a white and silver table cloth, the four-tier cake was accented with two vases of white gladiolus, yellow chrysanthemums, showered with baby's breath catered by Bon Appetit.

The bride's table was attended by Miss Betty Brown, Mrs. Mildred Wilson and Mrs. Loraine R. Offer. Assistants at the bride's book were Mrs. Margaret Oliver and Mrs. Eliza Pringle. Guests received rice bags of yellow net as the couple departed. After a brief wedding trip to Winter Park, the newlyweds will reside at 1016 Tiverton, West Los Angeles, Calif., where the bride is an intern in pediatrics and the groom is a law student.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. James Lewis, Tampa; Mr. and Mrs. George Sheppard, Barberville; Bernard Lomas and son, Rochester, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Alton Kendrick and Mrs. Sheila Finch, Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Simmons, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Collins, Cocoa; Mr. and Mrs. Verdel Thomas and daughter, Miss Brenda Heath.

For Zayre Grand Opening Fly-In Cashiers Zero In On Sanford

A squadron of "fly-in cashiers" are among the employees of Zayre who will greet and welcome customers to the new store which opened today on Highway 17-92 at Airport Boulevard, Sanford.

These experienced cashiers are flying to Orlando from Zayre stores in surrounding states and then basing in Sanford. The purpose of the "fly-in cashier" program is to provide the Zayre customer the finest possible service at the register. The cashiers are fast and accurate on the registers, which will add efficiency and speed to the extra check-out counters during the special sale now being planned for the store's grand opening.

"Although the fly-in program involves extra planning for the staff, we find that it is worth the additional time and expense," commented Mr. David Kaplan, vice president and director of sales operations. "During the first busy days of our grand opening sale, the customer receives fast, efficient and courteous service. We want the people of Sanford to know that Zayre is a pleasant place to shop. Also, the new cashiers have an opportunity to observe and assist our more experienced employees. Finally, we are able to give the 'fly-in' a special occasion and break for the fine work they have done in their own jobs at home," Mr. Kaplan concluded.

Miss Zayre Visits Sanford For 237th Store Opening

The sky is the limit as to the heights a woman can climb in the Zayre family, which includes 237 stores throughout the United States. Appearing in Sanford this morning on the grand opening at the 237th store was Miss Jackie Henley, the current 22-year-old Miss Zayre, who hails from Washington, D.C., and is also assistant regional personnel manager of the 19 Zayre stores in the greater Washington area. Jackie, a senior at American University in Washington, began her career with Zayre three years ago as a cashier and has worked up to her present position.

Miss Zayre is selected annually by a panel of judges from contestants who have earned the title "Gal of the Month" from each Zayre store. During her reign her prime function is spokesman for Zayre as well as appearing on the scene at the grand opening of each new store. Miss Zayre receives cash awards and merchandise and gets to travel extensively with all expenses paid. To date, Miss Henley has traveled more than 25,000 miles promoting Zayre stores.

Jackie, whose major is Classics and psychology, enjoys staging and coordinating fashion shows for Zayre throughout the U.S. She sews and has a flair for design and creativity. According to Jackie, with inflation on the rise, more women in the higher income levels are discovering discount stores. In breaking the economic barriers, the policy of Zayre is to continue to feature quality merchandise at economical prices.

As for women's liberation, Jackie is glad she is a girl and free to be a girl...that and no more! "What potential does a woman have with Zayre? Each store records a billion dollars in sales annually. To date there are many women store managers and the senior vice president of the Zayre Corporation is a woman."

By FANNETTE EDWARDS
Herald Correspondent

DeBary Business and Professional Women's Club held its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Marie Accardi, 38 Lake Drive, DeBary, with Mrs. Accardi, as hostess, and Miss Patty Wilcox of Orange City, co-hostess. Special on the agenda was the presentation of a $200 scholarship to Miss Mary Jewel Heaves of 19 River Drive. Miss Heaves is 18 years of age and will attend Seminole Junior College this fall.

Mrs. Dominich J. Bartoluzzi, president, made the presentation and extended the wishes of the club for Miss Heaves success in her advanced schooling.

Mrs. Accardi related the pertinent facts of the National Convention she attended in Miami last month, as a delegate from the DeBary BPW Club. She stated that there were 2500 women present. As legislative chairman of this club, Mrs. Accardi was especially interested in the ERA Bill, passed by Congress (Equal Rights Amendment). She announced that the women were asked by the speaker, that day, to raise $500,000 to help ratification of the bill by all states. All but eight states have ratified it to date.

Before the meeting had adjourned, $10,000 was pledged by those present. In addition each president of each club represented, pledged an amount that they would raise when they returned to their respective clubs. Delicious cake, cookies, ice cream and coffee were served at the close of the meeting.

Knit A Sweater Topper To Spark Fall Styles

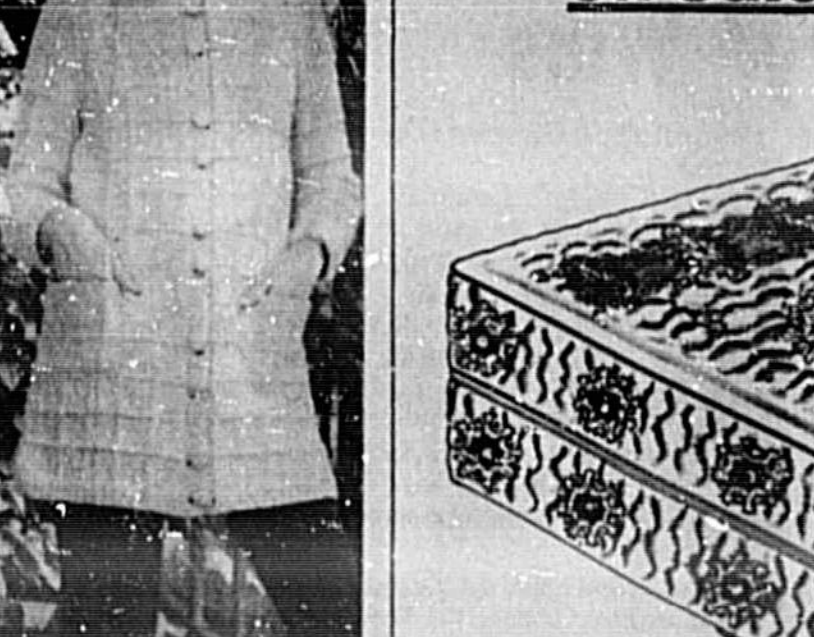

By Judy Love

This fall is going to be the biggest season ever for sweaters. Sweaters are everywhere, in every version. You'll see sweater dresses, coat-sweaters, long, short, big and bulky. It's a fashion heyday for all you knitters. You'll never be more in style!

So, put your knitting cap on and start making some big knitting plans for your fall wardrobe. One of the newest and hottest looks for fall is the big sweater. Big, bulky and beautiful, the big sweaters will travel in great style this fall — to the shopping center, to school, out for a day of fun, even to the P.T.A. at night. Wear your big sweater jacket over pants, with skirts and belted over a dress.

One of the season's sure winners sports a country classic knit feeling, but in fact more trimmer and slimmer. This versatile sweater-topper could be the most important addition to your entire wardrobe. You'll work in Bertha Shakerpun or Big Bertha Bulky, using No. 11 needles. Depending upon the kind of yarn and the size sweater you knit, you'll use from eight to 20-oz. balls to 21-2-oz. skeins. Either way, you'll whip up a smart custom bargain in no time. It's beautifully finished with raglan sleeves, ribbed trim, self button.

The unusual, squared-off pattern expressing country work — a simple series of X's with a slant on the odd rows. You'll knit the first six even rows. Knit, then repeat the 8 to 12 rows for the handsome pattern stitch. Depending on the yarn you choose, this fertile sweater topper will spark up your fall wardrobe in a big way. You can obtain easy-to-follow directions by simply sending 80 cents to Stitchin' Time, c/o this paper, Radio City Station, Box 583, New York, N.Y. 10101. Lansky Continuance Sought

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Attorneys for ailing Meyer Lansky have filed a motion for continuance of his trial scheduled here next month in connection with the alleged skimming of $36 million from a casino.

The motion was filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court, where Lansky is scheduled to go on trial Sept. 14.

Attorney Oscar Goodman, who serves as co-counsel for Lansky, would not comment on the motion, which does not ask that a new date be set.

Goodman filed 150 pages of the transcript from Lansky's income tax evasion trial in Miami last month dealing with the 71-year-old Lansky's best candidate. Another statement from a doctor was filed along with the transcript.

The doctor said it was his opinion that "an excessive amount of travel coupled with tension cannot be endured" by Lansky, who currently is at home in Florida.

Lansky was acquitted of income tax evasion charges in Miami last month by a federal court jury.

He and several other persons were indicted in 1970 on tax evasion charges stemming from the alleged skimming operation at the Flamingo Hotel.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A congressional commission will open a hearing today on proposals to divide the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals into two or more circuits.

The court, which has 15 active judges, is the largest federal appellate court in the nation. It includes Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, Texas and the Canal Zone.

The commission, headed by Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., met Tuesday in Houston, Tex., and will meet in Jackson, Miss., Thursday.

IRS Confirms Status

MIAMI (AP) — A Miami church founded by Watergate burglar Frank Strugis was granted tax exempt status last summer, three days before the Watergate break, officials say.

The Internal Revenue Service here Tuesday confirmed the tax exempt status of the Independent Church of God Inc., a nonprofit organization which listed Strugis as its president.

The articles of incorporation list the purpose of the church as establishing "a spiritual association that will uplift and inspire; to conduct schools, pastorates, and other institutions of a religious, educational, charitable and benevolent character; to study, teach and exemplify... the teachings of Jesus."

Bauman Wins Election

EASTON, Md. (AP) — Robert E. Bauman says his victory in Tuesday's special congressional election is "a repudiation of the Watergate means-ends-for-the-Republicans syndrome."

Complete but unofficial returns from the sprawling 1st District showed Republican Bauman with 26,941 votes and Democrat Frederick C. Malkus with 25,261. Both men were state senators.

"If Watergate had been a big issue in a 340-1 Democratic district, I would have lost the election," Bauman said shortly after his narrow victory. "I can only conclude that Watergate is not the issue nationally that some people think it is."

Jumbo Jet Evacuated

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Passengers and crews were evacuated from a jumbo jet here after a faulty indicator light led the pilot to believe there was a fire in the baggage compartment, officials said.

The 132 persons left the American Airlines Boeing 747 by emergency chute Tuesday night shortly after the plane arrived at Los Angeles International Airport after a flight from Washington, D.C.

Airline officials said belief that a fire had erupted on board apparently stemmed from a defective indicator light in the cockpit.

Mixed Advice Offered Pork, Poultry Bargains Sought

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Shoppers looking for bargains headed for the pork and poultry counters today, after receiving mixed advice about the future of the family food bill.

Decreases in the price of pork chops, chicken and eggs were reported in many areas of the country, but some food industry spokesmen said the decline was only temporary.

At the same time, the price of wheat for future delivery rose to record levels on Tuesday, reflecting increases worldwide demand. Some farmers were holding on to their wheat in the belief that the price would go even higher.

The Cost of Living Council said it would announce new regulations for the food industry today. The regulations—allowing additional prices increases to reflect costs in agricultural costs—will take effect Sept. 12.

Daniel Goodrich, assistant meat manager at a Grand Union supermarket in Albany, N.Y., summed up the situation: "You'll see a lot of poultry and pork specials during the next two weeks," he said. "That will create a demand and the prices will go back up."

Food prices were being raised since they were partially freed from controls on July 18. Only the price of beef remains under a new York City filed a suit in U.S. District Court on Tuesday against Agriculture Secretary

THE CRITTERS are in short supply indeed in this view of the Union Stockyards at Omaha, Neb.

Farrel L. Butz, claiming he has violated the law by refusing to act on the beef shortage that has developed because of the continuing freeze.

The city claimed that Butz could alleviate the situation by taking action under the recently passed farm bill which allows him to certify that a shortage exists and advise the President on possible solutions.

The city asked that Butz be compelled to certify that there is a shortage and to suggest means of ending it. A hearing was set for Friday.

Scattered price decreases turned up around the country. Albany (N.Y.) Public Markets was offering chicken Tuesday at 69 cents a pound, down from 94 to 99 cents, while pork loin cuts cost $1.27, a decrease from $1.45.

Egg prices in Pennsylvania supermarkets dropped by as much as 7 cents a dozen in the last week, chicken prices were 35 cents a pound lower, and pork chops declined 11 cents a pound.

The Labor Department said Tuesday that the Consumer Price Index went up two-tenths of one percent in July, the lowest increase in six months. Food prices, however, went up eight-tenths of one percent in July, more than had been expected.

Wholesale pork and poultry prices have been declining in recent days because of consumer resistance.

Wheat Brings Prosperity

WELLINGTON, Kan. (AP) — A record Kansas wheat crop coupled with all-time high wheat prices have combined to bring unexpected prosperity to wheat farmers.

Sumner County, one of the largest producers of hard winter wheat in the nation, harvested 13.56 million bushels this year for a record average yield of 40 bushels per acre.

After years of selling their wheat for around $1.50 a bushel, or less, the county's farmers are realizing triple that amount. At one point earlier this month, wheat prices passed the $5 a bushel mark.

One small farmer, Elmer Headley, said he had paid all his bills after harvest for the first time in 23 years, and still has a third of his wheat left unsold. Others report they made more money on the first half of their crop this year than they did all last year.

Farmers all over Sumner County are buying expensive equipment, paying off loans and building cash reserves for the bad winter year they know will come somewhere down the line.

When I half-jokingly remarked, "Oh, well, you might not have caught anything anyhow," I was seriously informed that "I never come home without fish." With this positive outlook, it's no wonder another fish-crazed fisherman in California and Oregon, "has been a best seller for many years."

Justice Department Refutes Agnew

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has accused Justice Department officials of "subjecting him to a campaign of smear publicity and trial by headline in a 'clear and outrageous effort' to influence a grand jury investigating him."

But the Justice Department said there is no evidence to support Agnew's claim.

Referring to reports he said he believed were leaked to the news media, Agnew declared Tuesday that he had to assume "that some Justice Department officials have decided to indict me in the press whether or not the evidence supports their position."

Responding to Agnew's charges, U.S. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson said the Justice Department was concerned with unfair and inaccurate publicity about the grand jury in Baltimore which is investigating alleged kickbacks and political corruption in Maryland.

But, in his statement, Richardson said there is no evidence that any of the prosecutors in the case were the sources of news leaks.

Beall is heading the grand jury probe.

"I regret to say that it has become clear that the 'sources' close to the investigation" so frequently quoted were indeed just that—persons involved in the investigatory process," Agnew said.

Facing newsmen for the second time in two weeks, Agnew read a prepared eight-minute statement in which he said that more which is investigating alleged kickbacks and political corruption in Maryland.

Justice Department leaks and speaking prior to Agnew's appearance Tuesday characterized the evidence against him as massive.

The sources told The Associated Press that Agnew never would have been notified he was under investigation if the evidence hadn't been "damned solid."

"It should be obvious that the letter wouldn't have been sent to Agnew if there wasn't sufficient evidence for an indictment in the view of the investigators," one source said.

Another source agreed, saying that the case was tight. "An action of this sort is not taken lightly," he said. "It has to be a damned solid and serious case for it to proceed this far."

Those comments paralleled a news report Agnew cited in his statement as evidence that news leaks were coming from sources actually involved in the Baltimore investigation.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The City Council has unanimously voted to award singer Jimmy Rodgers $200,000 for injuries suffered in 1967 in an alleged beating by an off-duty policeman.

Rodgers had sued the city for $10.2 million, charging mistreatment and lack of medical care. The council voted to approve the $200,000 after the city attorney said the city might have to pay more if the case went to court.

The 1967 incident occurred when Rodgers was stopped by an off-duty policeman, Richard Duffy, at 4:30 a.m. Authorities claimed he had had several drinks and had made a U-turn. Duffy said Rodgers pulled away from him and fell. Rodgers was not arrested and testimony showed he was not given medical attention.

Adams Writes On Wine

By MARY LESTER
Copy News Service

The unbelievable has happened: I am enamored with another wine writer, the highly respected Leon Adams.

Leon doesn't take time to rest on any earned writing laurels and when I phoned to congratulate him on how splendidly his latest book, "The Wines of America," is doing, he furnished me with the recent reports from his publisher and then said, "but now I'm rather upset."

Figuring maybe he was going to confess that at a wine tasting he had guessed only 15 of the 16 wines correctly, I was surprised to hear him say that all was not right with the world because his 18-foot diesel engine seaskiff, the Hilde, was inoperative and he was going to have to forgo a fishing trip.

When I half-jokingly remarked, "Oh, well, you might not have caught anything anyhow," I was seriously informed that "I never come home without fish." With this positive outlook, it's no wonder another fish-crazed fisherman in California and Oregon, "has been a best seller for many years."

New Cookbook Has Healthful Range

Copley News Service

The American Heart Association has just published the 448-page hardcover "American Heart Association Cookbook" offering hundreds of heart-saving recipes tested by the national health agency's nutritionists. It's a collection which can be termed a happy blending of good taste and good health.

The recipes range from hearty breakfasts to gourmet dinners, with imaginative snacks in between. There are simple and economical dishes, wonderfully easy to prepare, and there are special entrees for special occasions.

You may want to try these delicious recipes from this new cookbook:

CHINESE BEEF SKILLET
11-ounce package frozen Chinese pea pods
3 tablespoons oil
1 pound beef tenderloin tips, sliced paper-thin (across the grain)
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 small clove garlic, minced
4 cups thinly sliced raw cauliflower florets (1 one-diameter head)
1 cup condensed beef broth
2 tablespoons cornstarch

Four boiling water over frozen pea pods and carefully separate them with a fork. Drain immediately. Probe electric skillet to about 400 degrees. Heat 2 tablespoons of the oil; add half the beef. Cook briskly, turning meat constantly for one or two minutes, or until just browned. Remove (7:30 at once). Let skillet heat about one minute and repeat with remaining beef. Remove beef. Cook onion and garlic a few seconds in remaining oil. Add cauliflower and broth. Cook, stirring gently, about three minutes until cauliflower is tender-crisp. Mix cornstarch, soy sauce and water. Stir the broth in the skillet. Add beef and pea pods. Cook, stirring constantly, until the sauce thickens. Serve with rice. Yield: six servings, about 1 1/2 quarts.

REFRIGERATOR PINEAPPLE CHEESE CAKE
1/2 cup Graham cracker crumbs
2 tablespoons margarine, melted
1 tablespoon oil
1 1/2-ounce package pineapple-flavored gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 1/2 pounds low-fat cottage cheese
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/2-cup can crushed pineapple in juice, undrained
1 tablespoon water
2 teaspoons cornstarch

Combine the first three ingredients. Press onto bottom of an eight-inch spring form pan. Chill. Dissolve the gelatin in the boiling water and cool to lukewarm. In a blender, thoroughly mix the cheese, sugar and salt. Slowly add the gelatin and blend well. Pour mixture into the chilled crust, and refrigerate until firm.

FRUITED CHICKEN SALAD

1/2 cup tomato juice
4 teaspoon lemon juice
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1/4 teaspoon finely minced garlic
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

2 cups sliced celery
2 cups chilled, diced, cooked chicken
2 oranges, peeled and sliced into rings
1 red apple, cored and diced
8 cherry tomatoes, halved celery leaves

Prepare salad dressing by combining in a small bowl tomato and lemon juice, onion, parsley, garlic, salt, and black pepper. Mix well and chill. Just before serving arrange in a serving bowl clusters of celery, chicken, oranges, apple, and tomatoes. Garnish with celery leaves. Serve with chilled low-calorie dressing. Or, if desired, use vegetable, chicken, and fruits with dressing in a large salad bowl. Garnish with celery leaves. Makes 4 servings.

How To Make Sausage

By CHRIS WALSH ANGELOS
Copley News Service

ELGIN, Ill. — Beverly Ringel likes sausage so much because she makes it herself. It's delicious, cheaper and a family tradition.

Recently Mrs. Bev Ringel, a resident of suburban Palatine, and her mother, Mrs. Jean Krupinski, who lives in nearby Mount Prospect, got together to make 60 pounds of Polish sausage.

Kriebas, as the sausage is called, is a favorite in homes of Polish ancestry. The large batch made at the Ringels' should last about six months.

The first step for making sausage is to gather the ingredients. Needed are pork but, poultry seasonings sage, marjoram and fresh minced garlic. Bev said she doesn't use beef because it makes the sausage too dry.

Pork butt can be purchased from a meat market. Bev usually buys her supply from a meat locker because she gets a much at a time.

Sausage making is a two-day project. First, the meat is cut into one-inch chunks with all the fat and gristle trimmed off. It's then marinated in large cooking pots for 24 hours in the refrigerator. Bev layers about two inches of meat, covered with the spices and then layers with meat until the pot is full.

Once the meat is marinated, it is ready to be made into sausage. The meat must be ground the second day and can't wait until it might be more convenient.

Sausage making is a job for two people—usually a husband and wife. This year, Bev's husband, Tom, was bowling so the helper was Bev's mother.

After the pork has marinated and help enlisted, sausage making begins.

First, to make sure the meat is moist enough for the grinder, Bev boils just a little water and adds a bit of sugar to it. The mixture is mixed in the pot of marinated meat.

When the hog casings must all be checked by running water through them. The water rinses off the salt the casings have been packed in and helps to locate holes.

When a hole is found in the casing, it must be cut since it is strong enough to hold meat.

Casings are ready to be used after they are rinsed and checked. Bev warns it might take some work to find the hog casings at a meat market—it's best just to shop around. Her mother advises that buying several boxes at a time is the only way to make sure there'll be enough 66-d ones for sausage making.

Bev uses a meat grinder that anchors to the table edge and has a funnel attachment for the casings. The grinder setting is placed on coarse.

While one person puts meat in the grinder, the other slides the casing over the funnel edge. As the meat goes into the casing, it is stopped at the end by a pre-tied knot.

At the end of the casing or when a sausage reaches a desired length it is sewn shut. Bev uses white thread, No. 8, wrapped around the casing edge and knotted. White thread works best because it doesn't have any dye that can affect the meat.

If a large batch is being made, the sausage ends can all be sewn shut at the same time. After the sausage is made, Bev usually divides enough for a meal into freezer bags. That way, too much sausage isn't defrosted at one time or wasted.

The best way to cook the sausage is to boil it "just like a hot dog," says Bev. Cooking time per pot is about 40 - 45 minutes. That's sufficient for fresh or frozen sausage no matter how long the piece is.

The sausage can be eaten right after boiling or can be fried, broiled or grilled for even more taste.

Bev also makes Italian sausage. She does it by leaving out the sage and adding crushed hot peppers, fennel seeds and oregano.

The foolproof method that Bev uses was passed down through generations in her family. Even though she doesn't use exact proportions, Bev says the sausage "gets better every year."

But although it's delicious sausage, making it is hard work, too. Mrs. Krupinski says she wouldn't like to do it as a job.

"Your back is breaking when you do so many pounds," her daughter adds "it's good for the stomach muscles."

The sausage is so delicious both families could be in business.

Mrs. Krupinski quickly nixes that idea. "I couldn't stand all that cutting!"

Looks like the only way "outsiders" can taste how good the Ringel-Krupinski sausage really is would be to make some themselves.

Big Eater Researches Salad Secrets For Book

By TOM HORTON
Copley News Service

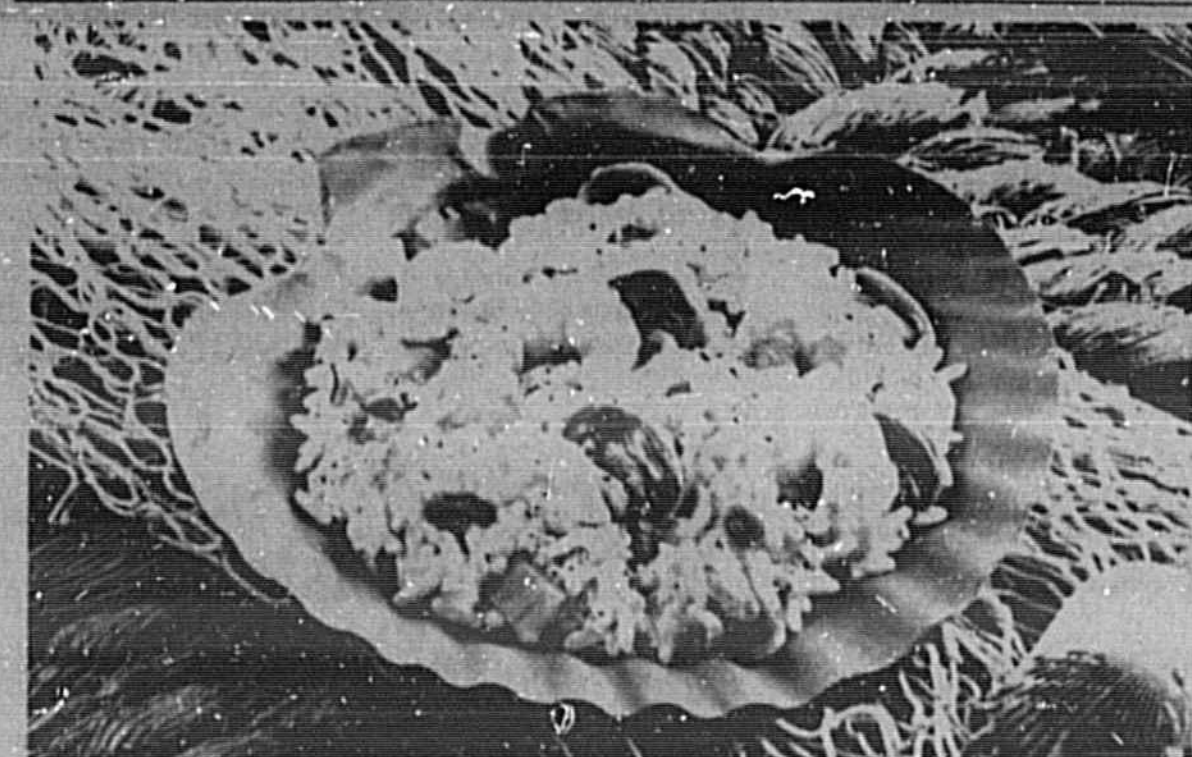

I'm at work on a book which I plan to call, "Secrets of the Salad Bar." It's the first in a series of "First Time" Big Eater is doing the research.

pick up big chunks of the back-row bones as artichoke hearts, mushrooms, fresh fruit and slivered almonds. Big Eater bounces along the salad bar like a dancing Cossack. She long ago analyzed the salad bar logistics and determined that she could get better leverage on the good stuff in the back row by bending it to her knees, instead of trying to maneuver her spoon or fork under the glass while standing straight up. But she works at staying in shape. That's why when the neighbors look out their window late on a Sunday afternoon and see her out in the yard doing deep knee bends, they smile knowingly and nod to each other. "He's taking her to a restaurant with a salad bar again tonight."

1/2 cup mayonnaise
Salt and white pepper to taste
Cook macaroni according to package directions; drain; rinse with cold water. Mix remaining ingredients with macaroni, stirring lightly but thoroughly. Cover and chill. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

This shrimp salad looks like a dish that would cost you a fortune in one of the world's finest restaurants. Really, the salad is quite inexpensive. Canned shrimp are utilized in this cool dish and the other ingredients are standard kitchen cabinet items. It is recommended, however, that you serve the salad on a standard plate instead of the fancy shell shown in the picture.

Cook rice according to package directions. In medium bowl, combine rice, shrimp, celery, onion and mushrooms; cover and refrigerate. At serving time, combine remaining ingredients in small bowl and gently stir into shrimp-rice mixture. If desired, garnish with additional shrimp. Serves 4.

MANICOTTI—This fine Italian meatless dish may be made with thin pancakes, a cheese filling and a tomato sauce.

This Meatless Dish Comes From Italy

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

There's an Italian main dish called Manicotti (Little Man) that may be made without meat. To concoct it, you wrap thin pancakes around a cheese filling and bake the stuffed pancakes with tomato sauce. In the following recipe the tomato sauce is made the easy way — with a package of spaghetti sauce mix and a can of tomato paste as the base. When we tested this recipe, all our tasters were most enthusiastic about it. It's comparatively inexpensive — fine to serve to family and guests for Sunday night supper.

MANICOTTI
Cheese Filling, see below
Tomato Sauce, see below
1/4 cup grated Parmesan Cheese

Prepare Cheese Filling, Tomato Sauce and Thin Pancakes. Spread 1/4 cup Cheese Filling down center of each pancake; roll up and place in a quart oblong glass baking dish (1 1/2 by 7 1/2 by 1 1/2 inches) or similar utensil. Pour Tomato Sauce over pancakes. Sprinkle with Parmesan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until bubbly hot — 35 to 45 minutes. Makes 5 to 6 servings — 2 stuffed pancakes plus sauce per portion.

CHEESE FILLING
1 container (15 to 16 ounces) ricotta cheese
1/2 cup (1/2 of a 3-ounce package) Mozzarella cheese
1/2 cup grated medium-fat cheese
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 cup minced parsley
1 egg
Beat together all the ingredients until well mixed.

TOMATO SAUCE
1 envelope (1 1/2 ounces) spaghetti sauce mix
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 can (6 ounces) tomato paste
1 1/4 cups water
Into a quart saucepan turn all the ingredients. Heat to boiling, stirring often. Simmer 10 minutes, stirring occasionally.

THIN PANCAKES
4 eggs
1/4 cup water
1/4 cup unsifted flour
1/4 cup milk
In a small mixing bowl beat together all the ingredients until smooth. Place a skillet with a rounded bottom (8 inches across top and 5 to 6 1/2 inches across bottom) over low heat until a few drops of water sprinkled in it sizzle and evaporate. For each pancake lightly brush skillet with melted butter or salad oil; pour batter from a 1/4-cup measuring cup filled a little over half full (2 1/2 tablespoons) into hot grased skillet, lifting and rotating pan as you pour in order to spread batter over entire bottom of pan. If batter is too thick to spread easily, stir in a little water. Cook over low heat just long to set — about 20 seconds. Turn and cook pancake just long enough to set other side. As pancakes are cooked (they will not be brown) stack them on a plate. Makes 10 to 12.

MACARONI GARDEN SALAD
2 cups (8 ounces) enriched elbow macaroni cooked according to basic directions
1 cup unseasoned cottage cheese
1 cucumber, thinly sliced
8 radishes, thinly sliced
1 cup diced celery
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1 teaspoon dry mustard
3 tablespoons low calorie French dressing
12 small lettuce leaves

Rinse cooked macaroni with cold water; drain in colander. Combine remaining ingredients except lettuce; toss with macaroni. Chill. Serve salad in lettuce-lined bowl. Makes 4 servings.

Home Cooking On Skylab Menu

Talk about dining out in style, Skylab 3 astronauts have a menu that's out-of-this-world for their record setting two-month space mission. Instead of the limited-menu approach to eating followed aboard the Apollo flights, Skylab 3 astronauts have a wide selection of frozen and canned foods as close to "home cooking" as science can make them. The bill of fare ranges from the All-American hot dog and peanut butter sandwiches, to filet mignon broiled to medium rare and lobster Newburg. The expansion of the menu has been made possible to a great extent by the size of the orbiting vehicle to be used by the astronauts. The Apollo command modules, though spacious in comparison with the earlier Mercury and Gemini spacecraft, were about as roomy as a large family station wagon. For space flights in the Mercury, Gemini and Apollo missions and will continue in that capacity for the upcoming Skylab flights.

Not all the foods will be frozen because the astronauts also will be a selection of thermo-processed (canned) items including almond chutney, turkey and gravy, hot dogs in sauce, and a variety of canned fruit including peaches, applesauce and stewed tomatoes. In addition, the astronauts will have available some intermediate or dehydrated foods including sliced dried beef, pork sausage patties, peanut butter, and bacon. Dr. Pavey considered the favorite food of the astronauts.

"I don't know if bacon will retain its unfluffed taste as favorite food of space travel in the face of what has to be stiff new competition from the filet mignon and the lobster," Dr. Pavey said.

All of the solid food comes packed in easy-open aluminum cans equipped with an inner plastic membrane to prevent contamination or splattering during heating in the weightlessness of space.

"Vacuum packaging ice cream was a technological feat all its own when you realize that ice cream by its very nature is about 50 per cent air," Dr. Pavey explained, and added, "If you remove the air from the container quickly, as is done in normal canning operations, the ice cream 'deflates' into unappetizing frozen-solid mass of cream in the bottom of the can."

But not all the efforts with food are designed solely for the pleasure of the astronauts.

"Since one of the main purposes of Skylab is to determine man's capability of living in space for extended periods of time," the Swift & Company scientist said, "it is necessary to perform extensive nutritional studies with the astronauts when in space—studies which cannot be simulated on earth."

For this reason careful control of the nutritional value of the foods is necessary, and this requires formulation, processing and meal unit proportioning to be extremely accurate—to the nearest 1-10th gram.

"In order to obtain meaningful data from such a study," Dr. Pavey said, "we must know precisely the quantity of protein, carbohydrates, fats, calories, phosphorus, calcium, potassium, chloride, sodium, magnesium, iron, vitamin A, thiamine, niacin, riboflavin, vitamin C, and vitamin D, just to name a few of the nutrients, which each astronaut consumes each day."

The experiments notwithstanding, Dr. Pavey said he believes the astronauts should be happy with the new food program because the diet will be conventional in appearance, superior in taste to anything before, and satisfying both from a taste appeal and nutritional requirement point of view.

The menu will maintain a calorie level between 2,000 and 2,800 per day.

PHASE IV AND

MANY WOMEN USE THE WEEKLY FOOD ADS TO HELP MAKE A SHOPPING LIST BEFORE VISITING THEIR FAVORITE SUPER MARKET. THIS IS HELPFUL IN PREPARING THE WEEK'S MENUS. AND SHOPPING THE SO-CALLED "SPECIALS" CAN SAVE A FEW PENNIES. BUT TIMES CHANGE, AND SO DO FOOD PRICES. IT IS BECOMING INCREASINGLY DIFFICULT TO KNOW WHEN A BARGAIN IS REALLY A BARGAIN. SOMETHING THAT USED TO BE A VALUE AT 29¢ MAY BE AN EVEN GREATER VALUE AT 39¢ TODAY. FOR THIS REASON THE WEEKLY ADS HAVE BECOME LESS HELPFUL AND LESS MEANINGFUL.

IT ALSO IS DISAPPOINTING TO US... AND CERTAINLY TO YOU... THAT SOME OF YOUR FAVORITE FOODS ARE MISSING FROM OUR SHELVES THESE DAYS. WE ALL HOPE THAT THIS WILL NOT LAST LONG BUT AT THE PRESENT TIME THERE IS A SEVERE SHORTAGE OF SOME FOOD PRODUCTS AND AN ERRATIC SUPPLY OF MANY OTHERS. WE DO NOT ADVERTISE SUCH PRODUCTS BECAUSE IT WOULD BE UNFAIR (AND ILLEGAL) TO ADVERTISE AN ITEM KNOWING THAT WE MIGHT NOT HAVE ENOUGH TO MEET YOUR NEEDS.

Dear Abby

Wanted: 1 rich, pretty, intelligent 2d wife

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I would like to find a wealthy woman to marry, but she has to have more than money. She must be well-educated, pretty, and have a good figure. I don't want one with children living with her. She can take a social drink but she should know when to stop. Under no circumstances would I marry a woman who smokes. She can be anywhere from 35 to 40, but she must be in good health and romantically inclined.

I am a 40-year-old widower who was happily married to the same woman for 36 years. I am 6 ft 3 in and weigh 210 pounds. I am in excellent health and work out in the YMCA daily. I have a master's degree and earn $12,000 a year. I work a 40-hour week and have every weekend off, like to dance, swim and travel. I do not smoke or get drunk, and I am definitely romantically inclined.

I think it's just as easy to live a rich woman as a poor one if all the other qualifications are met. Does this make sense to you?

DEAR LOOKING: Yes, and it's just as easy for a rich woman to love a rich man. And a lot easier for her to land one, so don't get your hopes up.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I live directly across the highway from his parents, who are very nice. We have an opportunity to sell our home, which is on a one-acre piece of property given to us by his parents. They say we shouldn't sell because they gave us that land. Now my husband has reconsidered selling, and I am very unhappy.

Abby, we have two sons, 3 and 5 years old, and it is very dangerous living on a busy highway because the boys like to run across it to visit their grandparents. We can't keep them inside all year round, and a fence doesn't help.

We offered to pay his parents for the land, but they refuse to accept anything. Are they selfish? Or am I being hogish?

DEAR WANTS: A gift once given becomes the property of the person to whom it was given. His parents have attached strings to their gift. This is their way of keeping you from being greedy and making your husband a sufficiently wealthy man.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing for suggestions on what to do about a husband who is in the armed forces, stationed in Missouri. He doesn't feel it's necessary to keep in touch.

I've asked him to write: He's too "busy." I've asked him to phone: It's too expensive.

Since he doesn't bother writing to me, I don't write to him, so finally after a long while, he called me. When I tried to explain why I hadn't written he wouldn't listen. I am an employed lady and have two children to look after. I told him I write when I get no word from him, and his response was: "If I die, the service will inform you."

What do you suggest?

DEAR LETTERLESS: Quit playing it safe, and write to him whether you hear from him or not. And write happy, cheerful, interesting letters. And include local newspaper items and amusing cartoons. You can catch more bears with honey than the bait you're throwing out.

Kennedy-Johnson 'Burglaries' Were 'Commonplace': Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon claims burglaries such as the one in the Daniel Ellsberg case occurred "on a very large scale" during the Johnson and Kennedy years.

"No activity was authorized by me and I think we're entitled to know what he's talking about," said former Atty. Gen. Nicholas deB. Katzenbach, who served in the Justice Department in various positions under both Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson.

George Christian, former press secretary to Johnson, said: "I don't know what he is talking about." Nixon, at his press conference Wednesday in San Clemente, Calif., said he was "completely and completely debatable" the burglary of the office of the psychiatrist of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg by a unit directed by White House aides.

But he also noted that under both Kennedy and Johnson, "burglarizing of this type" took place "on a very large scale."

Nixon did not elaborate and Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren refused to give details.

In Washington, a Justice Department spokesman refused to confirm or deny that such burglaries had taken place in the past, saying the information "can only come from the White House."

Nixon last May, in a lengthy statement on Watergate, first mentioned that there may have been burglaries for national security purposes engaged in by the FBI during previous administrations.

But, he said, the FBI had halted such activities in 1966. Nixon also admitted, in the same May 22 statement, that in 1970 he had approved a plan for expanded domestic intelligence gathering that included "surveillance entry—breaking and entering, in effect" in national security situations. But Nixon said the plan, proposed by former presidential aide Tom Charles Huston, never was put into effect because of opposition from the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

Katzenbach, who was deputy attorney general under former Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy and served as attorney general from 1965-1966, said he felt Nixon's accusations were unfair.

"He ought to say who authorized it and who knew about it," said Katzenbach.

President Nixon has declared his continued strong support of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and has personally asked the Justice Department to investigate news leaks about a criminal investigation in which Agnew is involved.

Nixon's request for an investigation was repeated to Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson on Wednesday by White House Chief of Staff Alexander Haig, said a Justice Department spokesman in Washington.

The spokesman, John Hatcher, added that Richardson would take "every reasonable step" to plug the leaks.

But the poll said Wednesday that a survey conducted Aug. 17-20 showed a majority of Americans, 54 per cent, still disapprove of his performance in office.

The survey also showed that the majority of the 1,492 adults questioned are dissatisfied with his Watergate explanation and believe that he either knew or had reached earlier this month.

At-A-Glance

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP)—Here, at a glance, are the major points covered by President Nixon at his Wednesday news conference.

ROGERS—Announced the resignation of William P. Rogers as secretary of state and said he would nominate Henry A. Kissinger to succeed him.

AGNEW—Said his confidence in Vice President Spiro T. Agnew was unshaken, but denounced "outrageous leaks" in the investigation involving Agnew and allegations of political corruption.

WATERGATE IN GENERAL—Defended his actions in the scandal, repeated earlier claims that he had neither advance knowledge of the break-in nor participated in the cover-up, and said he will not resign.

WATERGATE TAPES—Repeated that he would not turn over taped presidential conversations to anyone, even to a select group of officials, unless ordered to do so by the Supreme Court.

WATERGATE WARNING—Said he considered that a directive to former acting FBI chief L. Patrick Gray III to investigate Watergate thoroughly was adequate response to the warning Gray said he gave the President in July 1972.

Sanfordians Reaction Split On President's Conference

By JEAN PATTESON
Herald Staff Writer

Reactions among Downtown Sanfordians to President Nixon's Wednesday news conference are divided according to a Herald survey conducted this morning.

"Those who are for the President, are for him all the way, and his answers at the press conference," said Noah Booth.

"I thought he was most believable," said Mrs. Jean Tamm. "I don't think he should give up the tapes. Something's got to remain sacred." Her opinion was shared by Mrs. Pat Hardin, who commented: "He was pretty good."

The confidence of the tapes should be respected. He's right we should get on with doing something about our economy and at Watergate."

Frankie Dunn thought the press was hounding the President. "They're out for a sensational story. I think he's been sincere all along, and as president has the right to do what he likes."

More philosophical was the comment of Mrs. Ruby Harris: "I feel like this: he's the only one we've got, and I don't want to change right now."

Not everyone found the answers satisfactory however, "I think he's been lying in the past, and he's still lying," said Bill Burden. "He's a cold fish, but he's making a stronger attempt now to use a more emotional line. His coaches are teaching him gestures to bring in a more sympathetic reaction." Burden added he thought the press had put the President, not to put him on a spot, but to get to the bottom of things.

"This Watergate thing is getting burdensome to him. It's getting on his nerves," said Howard Hodges. "He didn't give the impression of sincerity expected during the conference. I believe he's enlarraged about the taping business in his office and isn't likely to give up the tapes."

"He's so involved he'll never give up the tapes," said Larry Blythe. "He thinks he's above the law, and says the same thing over and over."

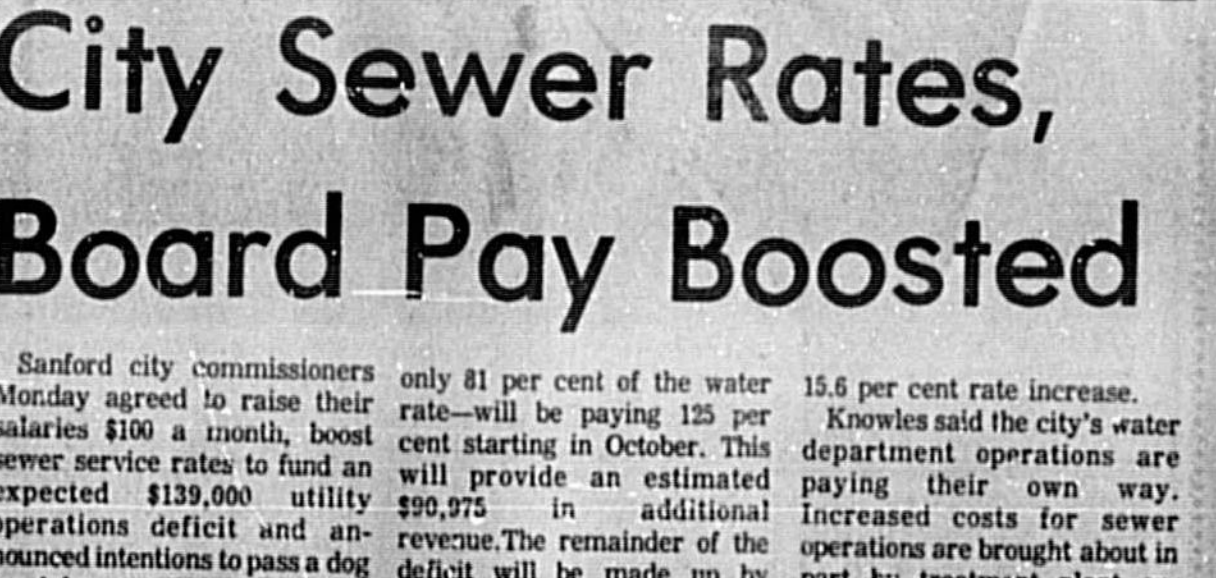

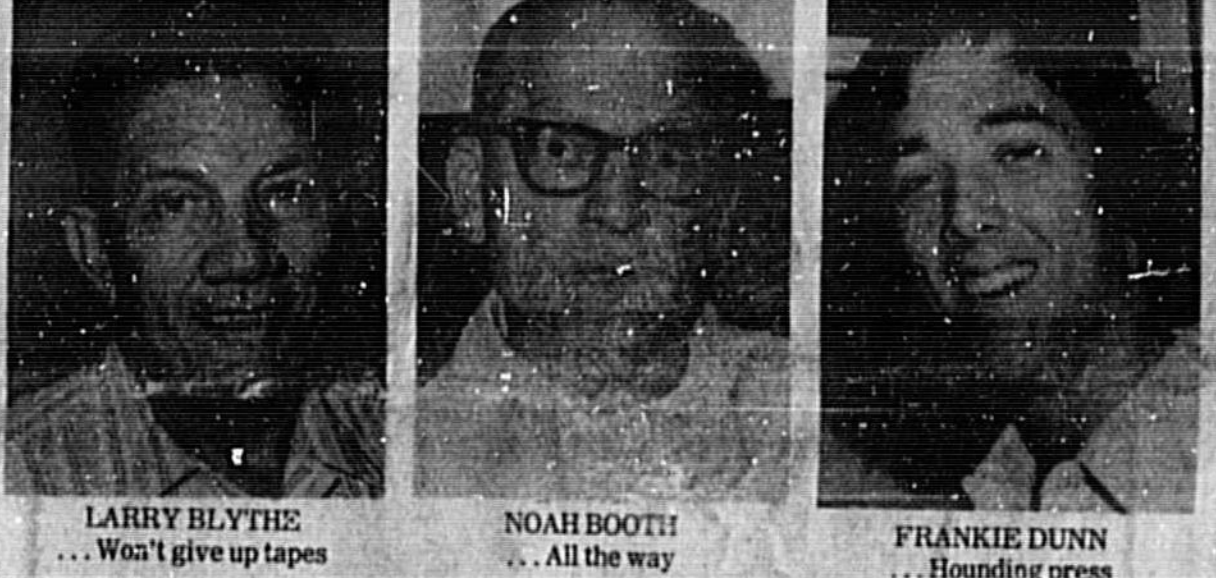

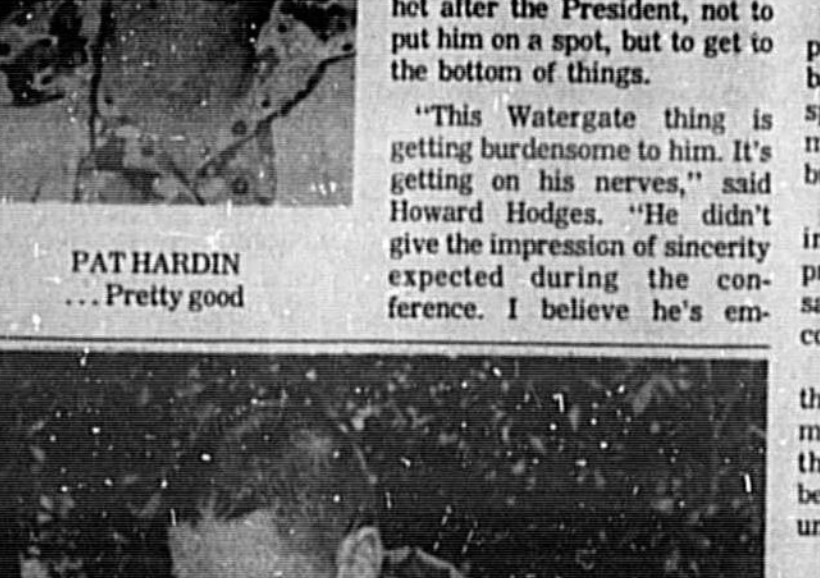

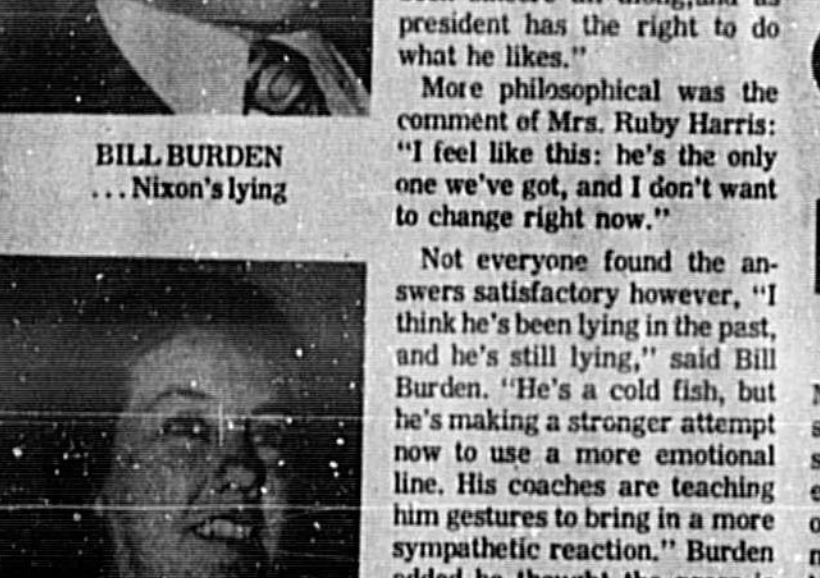

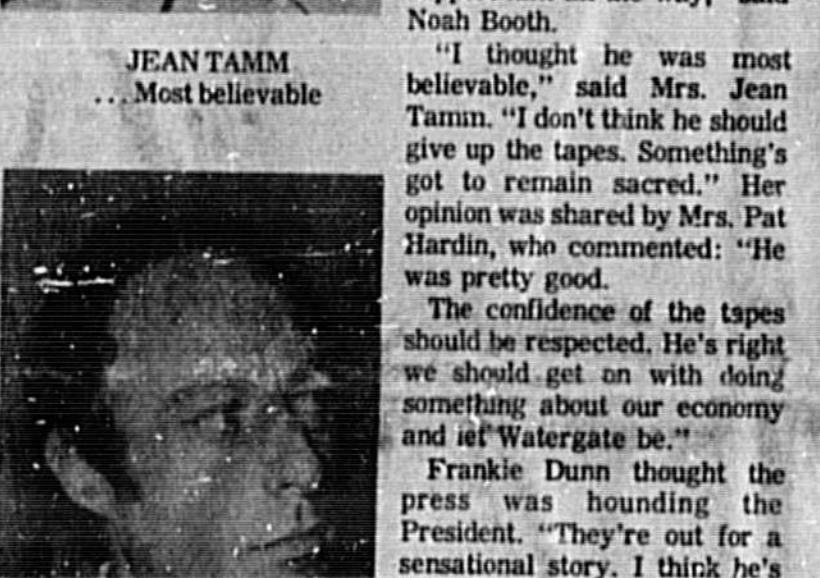

Ted Barker thought the President showed poise in answering the press' questions, but knows more about the situation than has come to light. "These things have been happening in the government all along. Nixon just happened to get caught," he said.

Although no strong increase in favor of the President was apparent in Sanford, across the country the Gallup Poll reports Nixon's popularity rose following his Watergate speech last week.

It had reached earlier this month.

But the poll said Wednesday that a survey conducted Aug. 17-20 showed a majority of Americans, 54 per cent, still disapprove of his performance in office.

The survey also showed that the majority of the 1,492 adults questioned are dissatisfied with his Watergate explanation and believe that he either knew or had reached earlier this month.

3 Corpses Found In Altamonte

By John A. Spolski
Herald Staff Writer

At a stretch-filled dump in Altamonte Springs Wednesday police uncovered the decomposed remains of at least three bodies—one of them a child—but today confusion reigns about the exact number of corpses found in the open air graves and how long they had been there.

Seminole County Pathologist G. V. Garay today said his autopsies showed one of a child dead at least a year, and one of the other bodies was that of a young woman.

Garay said the bodies were so badly decomposed that his examinations will take several days to complete.

At one point, authorities were probing the possibility that a cemetery may have been disturbed because a ring found near one of the bodies had been cut in a manner similar to the way rings are cut at funeral homes.

Confusion on the count exists because they were "in such a bad state of decomposition and animals have scattered the remains over a large area."

Authorities have no clues as to the identities, but apparently have ruled out the possibility that the corpses—which were in the dump approximately a month—are those of a Daytona Beach couple missing since March.

According to authorities, the bodies were discovered by an Estoville man on Tuesday while he was dumping trash. But the man, whom they refused to name, waited until Wednesday to report the discovery because "he was afraid he'd get in trouble for dumping trash in an unauthorized area."

Police are currently checking all missing persons reports that have been filed and Sheriff John Polk has requested that any missing persons that have not been previously reported should be reported.

Among evidence uncovered, according to Polk, is an 18-carat gold ring with an inlaid birthstone.

Polk said the ring had been cut in a manner similar to the way in which a ring is cut at a funeral home when a person is buried wearing a ring.

Altamonte Springs Police are investigating, with cooperation from the Seminole Sheriff's Office.

About the "alleged" gas shortage and its ramifications, after spending a week in the State of Virginia last week, I did not see any signs of a shortage in that area. Not the first service station closed on Sunday due to "gas shortage," nor any talk from the residents of that area indicating that they were concerned about a lack of fuel.

Really now, don't you think that this rumour was a rather clever way of getting all of us (at least in this state) to buy our gasoline needs Monday through Saturday, and permit the station operators a deserved day off on Sunday?

A safety tip, for what it's worth to you, a family discussion about fires may do more to save your children and family than the most heroic rescue effort.

One of the best fire alarms is a 25-cent police whistle. You hang one beside each bed and the first person to be awakened by the fire blows the whistle. Also, keep a flashlight with good batteries next to every bed so you can see where you're going.

FROM THE MAILBAG: "In your column a short time ago, you were talking about the mail. Well, maybe you can solve this one.

"An air mail letter mailed in Louisville, Ky., on August 15 arrived in Deltona, late in the p.m. on August 16, and one mailed in Atlanta, regularly mailed in Atlanta, August 14 also arrived in Deltona at the same time, on the 16th."

"Do you think they could have been hijacked via Cuba or sent via Pony Express?"

"Three days for air mail (80 miles by road) and four days for regular mail (a distance of 40 miles)."

Russell

Dear Russell—Don't knock it. Just imagine—they could have been "door killed" instead of relatives telling you that they're going to surprise you with a visit. (Come to think of it, I'm not sure which is the worse???)

City Sewer Rates, Board Pay Boosted

Sanford city commissioners Monday agreed to raise their salaries $100 a month, boost sewer service rates to fund an operations deficit and authorize intentions to pass a dog leash law.

Commissioner Gordon Meyer pushed through the raise on the basis the elected officials are spending more time in meetings and conducting city business.

Mayor Lee Moore stood alone in opposition, saying the present $200 a month mayor's salary and $150 a month to commissioners is adequate.

Monthly expenses of $175 for the mayor and $150 for commissioners won't be affected by the ordinance which will become effective in January, under city charter provisions.

"Even though I'm running for re-election in December, I agree with Commissioner Meyer, John Morris and A.A. McClanahan," said Commissioner Julian Stenstrom.

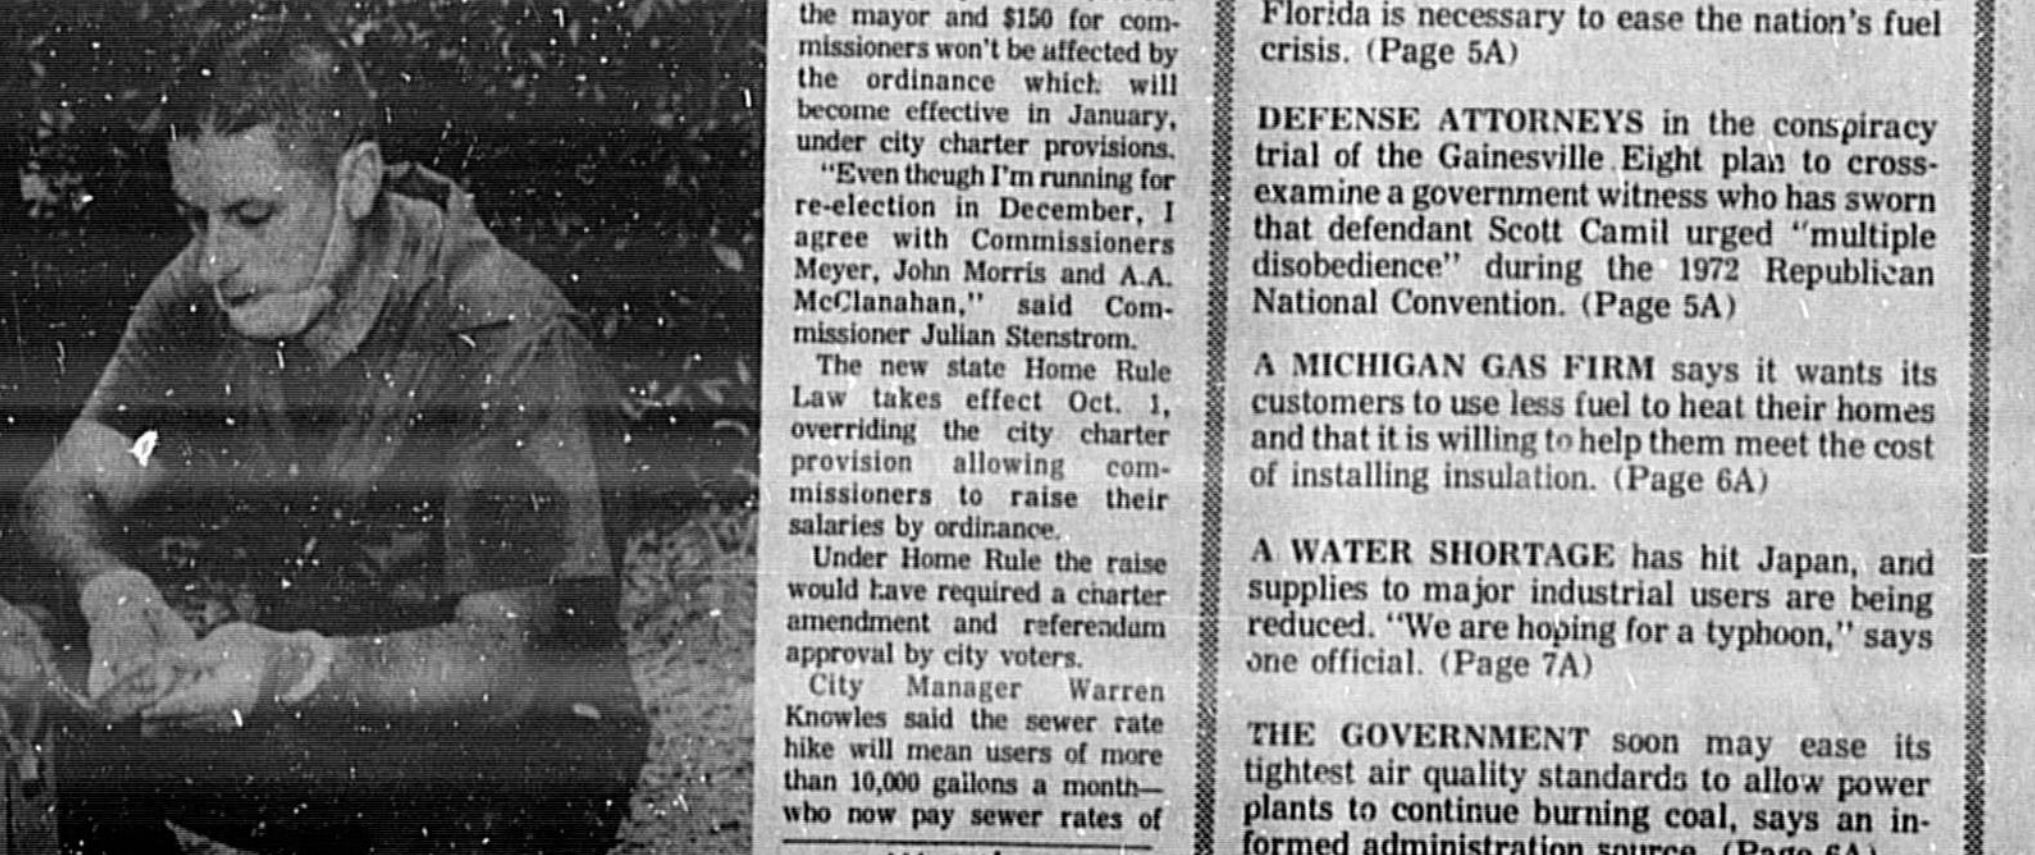

The new state Home Rule Law takes effect Oct. 1, overriding the city charter provision allowing commissioners to raise their salaries by ordinance.

Under Home Rule the raise would have required a charter amendment and referendum approval by city voters.

City Manager Warren Knowles said the sewer rate hike will mean users of more than 10,000 gallons a month—no new sewer rates of only 81 per cent of the water rate—will be paying 125 per cent starting in October. This will provide an estimated $275 in additional revenue. The remainder of the deficit will be made up by spreading additional charges among the 10,000 gallon per month or less customers at a 15.6 per cent rate increase.

Knowles said the city's water department operations are paying their own way. Increased costs for sewer operations are brought about in part by treatment plant expansion and mandatory higher treatment standards by the state and federal governments.
