Business award honors Sturm

SANFORD — On a suggestion from Seminole County commissioner Larry Furlong, the county has created the "Robert J. Sturm Beautification Award," honoring the late commissioner known for his efforts to rid the county of eyesore and clutter.

Furlong said the award will be presented periodically to those businesses which have made commendable strides towards beautifying their grounds and premises. Sturm, who died in September, was often the lone fighter for roadway beautification, reduced sign clutter and other beautification efforts.

"I think it's an appropriate way to honor him," said Furlong.

Candidates will be selected by the county Planning and Development Department.

2 vie for boat racing record

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Robert G. Glasmann, of R&L Marine, Altamonte Springs, and Bud Roberts of RBM, Inc., Athens, Tenn., have announced their intention to set a world record for distance traveled in a solar-electric powered boat off the Southwest Florida coast.

The trip is scheduled to begin Feb. 1, in Flamingo, Fla., and extend northwest through the Everglades, Ten Thousand Islands, then north to Sanibel.

Glasmann is the designer and manufacturer of the WHISPER 10 line of electric boats, used by those seeking an alternative to gas powered crafts.

Roberts is a specialist in solar-electric powered race boats.

School board meets today

The Seminole County school board will meet for the final time this year when it convenes this afternoon at 3:30.

The board will wrap up the year's business with, among other things, discussions on approving the student volunteer services program, which will allow students to earn half an academic credit for community service they complete.

The board is also expected to approve an agreement with the county that will allow a clinic, staffed by a county physician and nurse, to open on the campus of the Crooms School of Choice. The clinic will be used primarily by the students in the Teen Age Parent Program (TAPP) and their infants.

The school board will meet at the district headquarters, 1211 S. Mellonville Ave., Sanford.

Gun sales shoot up

Handguns to fill area Christmas stockings

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Handguns may fill the stockings at many homes this Christmas. Merchants and officials say Floridians are buying more firearms — as well as stun guns and other personal security devices this year.

Bert Nelson, co-owner of A&N Sports, 501 S. French Avenue in Sanford, believes some of the handgun sales are being brought about by media hysteria. "Christmas is always the biggest time of the year for handgun sales," he said. "I believe this is being blown out of proportion in some cases, and causing people to buy guns."

He admitted that the sales of lower priced ammunition were higher than normal for this time of year. "But that Brady Bill isn't going to have any effect on Florida," he added, "so I don't see why there is a drive to buy any more guns than usual at this time of year."

Al's Army Navy Store, 1401 French Avenue is doing well with handgun sales. Neal Crasnow commented, "it's hard to say why people are buying, but I get the feeling they are buying the guns more for themselves rather than as Christmas presents."

Crasnow said handgun sales have been quite heavy for the past three weeks.

Boats vs. manatees

Speed limit may drop on St. Johns

By ROGER HARNACK
Herald Correspondent

Freshwater fisherman could be hurt by Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) Director Virginia Wetherell's decision to remove a negotiated compromise on boat speed limits along the St. Johns River.

Last week, Wetherell moved to erase a seven month old compromise between manatee advocates and boaters regarding the "slow speed" zone.

In a letter to Volusia County officials, Wetherell said that she believed the compromise was not in the best interest of protecting manatees.

Rick Rawlins, owner of Highland Fish Camp located in Volusia County on the St. Johns River, called the move to erase the compromise a move to "some sort of political advantage."

"Because of the confusion and turmoil over the issue the last three years, it has not affected us

Longwood to grapple with land use

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — The land use designation of 5.4 acres on Longwood Hills Road was described as a "powder keg" that the Longwood City Commission will grapple with during its annual review of the city's comprehensive plan.

Monday night the commissioners tabled portions of the ordinance dealing with the properties between Lake Emma and Rangeline roads. The four parcels of land, which are zoned neighborhood limited commercial (C-2) and land use designation of low density residential, have been the subject of controversy before.

Two of the four parcels are owned by Florida Residential Communities which in 1987 applied for a land use change. The land was zoned C-2 since 1976, and the owners claimed they had a right to the land use change.

After angry neighborhood residents opposed the change, going so far as mounting a demonstration at city hall, the city denied the request. The land owners sued but through negotiations with the city withdrew the lawsuit. In 1991 the city, residents and FRC came to a stipulated agreement that the land could be developed for uses such as a beauty parlor or sit down restaurant not a gas station or convenience store. However, the stipulated agreement was never passed.

Land Planning Agency chairman Marvin Meltzer described the matter as a powder keg. The LPA approved the land use change on the property Dec. 8.

During the discussion, acting city administrator Gerald Korman suggested that once the commission changes the land use designation,

County to collect trees from curbs

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Even if you haven't put up your Christmas tree yet, don't worry about how to get rid of it.

Seminole County, Sanford and other local cities will collect discarded trees from curbs beginning a day or two after Christmas and continuing into January. The trees will be ground up and used for mulch for landscaping in public properties. Obviously, the collection applies to trees that were once alive and not artificial ones.

The county will collect Christmas trees placed by the curb on regular collection days between Dec. 26 and Jan. 9. The collection applies to all unincorporated residents, whether they receive regular curbside garbage collection service or not.

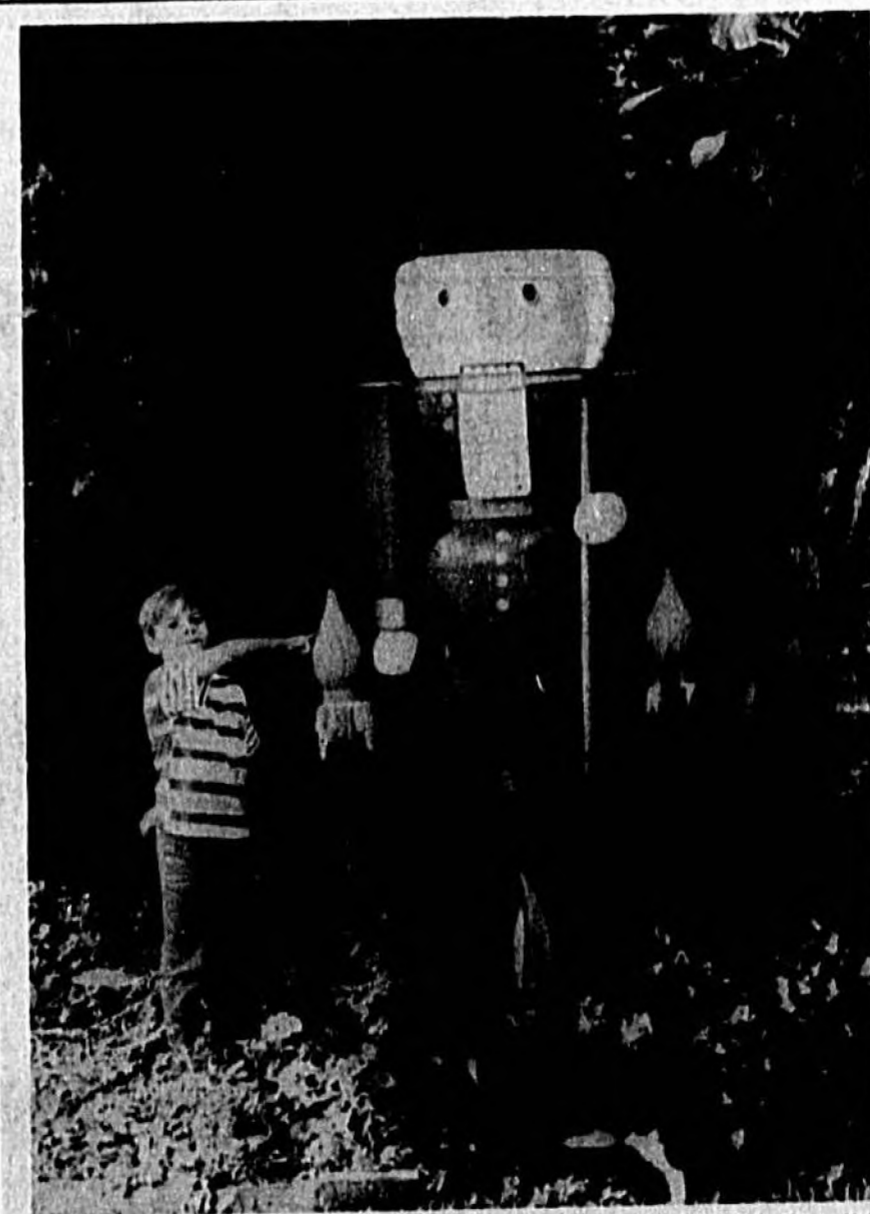

In Sanford, trees will be picked up from curbs during regular collection days from Dec. 27 to Jan. 9. In Lake Mary, trees will be picked up from Dec. 26 to Jan. 9 on regular collection days. In Longwood, trees will be collected from Dec. 27 to Jan. 9 on regular collection days.

If you're looking for a natural alternative to a cut or artificial tree, try a living tree you can reuse. Local nurserymen say a cypress or juniper acclimated for Florida can be grown in a pot for two to three years before they must be transferred to the ground. The trees can be brought in each year, decorated, then returned to the out-of-doors after the holiday season.

Rainfall continues to decline

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Rainfall continued to decline in November, according to the latest report by the St. Johns River Water Management District.

Only 0.47 of an inch of rain was recorded at Central Florida Regional Airport at an official gauge during November, according to the report. The monthly normal established between 1961 and 1990 was 2.52 inches, meaning there was a 2.05-inch deficit for the month. The amount was even 1.65 inches below the drier "normal" established between 1951 and 1980.

Based on the '61-to-'90 normal, Sanford had a 15.18-inch rain deficit for November and the 11 previous months. Based on the wetter '51-to-'80 average, Sanford is suffering a 17.55-inch shortfall.

A portion of Florida's rainfall finds its way underground to drinking water supplies. The district monitors selected wellwater levels to track that natural reservoir. A monitored near the middle of the Geneva Bubble has recorded a 1.23-foot drop during the past 12 months.

A monthly change between October and November Geneva levels could not be established due to a monitoring change between the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and the water district.

A monitored well near Longwood reported a 4.08-foot drop during the past year, including a 0.63-foot drop between October and November.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Pig inspection stuns state auditors

EVERGLADES CITY — Florida taxpayers are dishing out $350,000 a year for inspectors to check the state's few remaining garbage-eating pigs.

The high-cost program exists even though no known public health problems are caused by the operations.

Most of Florida's 285 garbage-feeding farmers have fewer than 50 pigs, but are inspected an average of three times a month. That's triple the rate required by the federal government.

To check Everglades City farmer Homer Cox's pig sties, the state must pay an inspector to make the three-hour round-trip from Fort Lauderdale.

"I love my pigs just like I love my dogs," said Cox, 67. "But I definitely figure the state is spending too much money coming way out here to inspect me."

Inspectors visit Cox twice a month to make sure he meets state regulations by cooking the garbage at 212 degrees Fahrenheit for at least 30 minutes.

Cox collects scraps from a nearby prison for his 20 pigs.

State auditors were stunned recently when they saw the $350,000 price tag on the pig inspections.

To save money, the auditors recommended that the state abolish the program and let the federal government do inspections, or charge a fee for inspections.

Police probe ex-mayor's arrest

BONIFAY, Fla. (AP) — Police were investigating to determine if others helped a former small-town mayor avoid arrest for two years in the fatal shooting of his stepdaughter, who also was his mistress.

Former Westville Mayor Kenneth E. Stripling, 46, was being held Monday in the Holmes County Jail on an open count of murder for the Sept. 22, 1991, shooting of Anita Joyce Cromwell, 33, said Chief Sheriff's Deputy Joe Roberts.

He was arrested last Tuesday in Bennettsville, S.C., and returned to the Florida Panhandle on Friday.

Investigators, who long had suspected he was living in the Bennettsville area, received information that Stripling was living under the name of the late David T. Walters and then were able to track him down through telephone records, Roberts said.

Prosecutors or a grand jury will determine whether the murder charge should stand and, if so, which degree Stripling will be charged with. A warrant for his arrest was issued almost immediately after the shooting.

Workers struck by lightning stable

SANDESTIN, Fla. (AP) — Two construction workers who were struck by lightning were hospitalized in stable condition.

John Quick and Gregory Eligson, both 31 and from nearby Santa Rosa Beach, were jolted Monday as they held a cable attached to a crane that was hit by a lightning bolt, said Walton County Emergency Medical Services supervisor Matt Douglass.

An ambulance responded to the construction site at the Hidden Dunes Resort, but the victims decided to go by private vehicle to Destin Hospital in neighboring Okaloosa County, Douglass said.

3 migrant workers killed, 18 injured

At least three migrant farm workers were killed and 18 others injured, most of them seriously, in two accidents in south Florida on Monday.

In Jupiter, a van carrying 11 migrant workers collided with an 18-wheel tractor-trailer rig in an early-morning wreck, killing one man and injuring 10 others.

Late in the afternoon, two Haitian migrants were killed in a second accident when a tire blew out on their van and it rolled off the road on U.S. 1 in the Upper Keys, about 8 miles south of Florida City.

Four people, including a 9-year-old child, were airlifted to Jackson Memorial Hospital in Miami, where they were listed in critical condition. Four others were taken to two hospitals and treated for minor injuries.

In the Palm Beach County wreck, the injured workers, including a pregnant female, were taken to three hospitals. Two were in critical condition, three were stable and three were fair, according to hospital officials. Two others were released.

The identity of the dead man, a passenger in the van, was not immediately available.

The van was traveling westbound on Indiantown Road when it smashed into the side of the tractor-trailer rig, which was attempting a left-hand turn onto the Florida Turnpike, said Jupiter police spokesman Dan Powers.

"It appears that one of the vehicles failed to yield the right of way at the intersection," Powers said. It was still dark when the accident occurred shortly after 6 a.m.

The impact caused the truck's gas tank to rupture and about 100 gallons of diesel fuel spilled, Powers said. The tractor-trailer was carrying roofing tiles for delivery in Pembroke Pines. The driver, 31-year-old James Biggins of Port St. Lucie, was uninjured.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Lawmakers in agreement

Crime focus of Chiles' $38 billion budget

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Public apprehension makes crime the focus of Gov. Lawton Chiles' proposed $38 billion state budget, lawmakers agreed Monday.

Fears fanned by events such as the arrests of four juveniles in a North Florida tourist slaying also make crime a top issue for 1994 election candidates, and that debate was heating up Monday.

The Democratic governor, seeking reelection next year, had already said the budget he'll propose Tuesday would build 14,000 more prison beds.

A likely Republican gubernatorial contender, Treasurer Tom Gallagher, said he'd go further and back a penny sales tax increase for an anti-crime plan including 40,000 more prison beds.

"It looks like they're pulling in double harness," said Senate Dean W.D. Childers, D-Pensacola, an Appropriations Committee member. "Maybe they're running for the same office."

"I think that's a wise push on their part. It ought to focus on crime and job creation," Senate Appropriations Chairman Ken Jenne, D-Fort Lauderdale, said of Chiles' budget.

But Jenne said he wouldn't take sides on the budget before seeing particulars Tuesday. "I'd like to make sure that it's doing what they say it does," he said.

Chiles' no-new-taxes approach sparked some initial debate. In his first three years, he proposed $2.8 billion in new taxes and got $650 million.

He said rising sales tax revenue in an improving economy, and increases in some state fees, would cover growth from the current $35 billion budget.

Chiles said the election year dictated his stance.

"This will be a first for Chiles," said state Republican Party Chairman Tom Slade. "The closer he gets to the election, the less he relies on his traditional kind of liberalism."

"I don't think that's any surprise," said Democratic Agriculture Commissioner Bob Crawford, who didn't criticize the approach. "It's pretty good to have no new taxes."

Jenne said backing off on taxes in an election year was simply "a reality."

Gallagher's proposal to tie a specific tax to a specific crime-fighting purpose would be the only way to pass an increase, and there would have to be strong guarantees, Jenne said.

"If it goes to fight crime then I'd be very supportive of it. If not, I'd be very leery of it," he said.

Man pleads guilty to charges

Impersonating a Navy officer serious offense

By BILL KACZOR
Associated Press Writer

PENSACOLA — A man who wore a naval officer's uniform to attract women and impress his family and friends has pleaded guilty to impersonating a Navy "Top Gun" pilot.

Michael J. Jacobus reversed an earlier innocent plea Monday. U.S. District Judge Roger Vinson set sentencing for March 1.

Jacobus, 38, who last lived in Willoughby, Ohio, faces a maximum of three years in prison and a $250,000 fine for impersonating a federal employee. His lawyer said he probably will receive no more than six months under sentencing guidelines.

He could face more serious state charges in Ohio.

A former girlfriend, Kate Kussouf of Akron, Ohio, said she gave Jacobus $56,000 to invest for her, but the money disappeared. That case remained under investigation, and no charges had been filed as of Monday, said Akron police detective Lynn Hillegas.

"He was apple pie, the flag and all that," Kussouf said in an earlier interview with the Cleveland Plain Dealer. "He was charming, tall, good looking and exactly what we all wanted to believe he was."

In court, Jacobus had little to say, except for "guilty." "Yes, sir" and "No, sir" in response to procedural questions posed by Vinson.

The prosecution made no promises in exchange for the plea.

"He cooperated with them from the beginning," said Assistant U.S. Public Defender Robert Dennis. "He just wants to get it over with."

He will remain in the Escambia County Jail pending a decision on bail.

New report details how charities spend money

By ADAM YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Consumers can learn how much money nearly 2,000 charitable organizations spent on administration, fund raising and program services in a report released Monday.

The Gift Givers Guide is the first time the state has produced a detailed report about how charities spend the money they solicit. It was compiled by the Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, which started registering charitable groups in 1992.

The guide is designed to provide consumers information they can use to ask questions about expenditures and help them decide whether to contribute to certain organizations. Agriculture Commissioner Bob Crawford said.

"People want to make sure the dollars they give to charities are used in a manner that is acceptable to the giver," he said.

The guide lists 1,954 charities that solicit money in Florida and breaks down their total expenditures from the most recent fiscal year. It gives percentages on the amount each charity spent on administrative costs, such as salaries and office expenses, fund-raising costs, and program services provided by the charities.

Many of the groups reported more than 50 percent of their money was spent on program services, the figures show.

For example, the guide reported the American Cancer Society spent $27.2 million in its latest fiscal year. The organization spent 82 percent on program services, 16 percent on fund raising and 2 percent on administrative costs, the guide said.

Other groups showed a higher percentage of their expenditures were on administrative and fund raising.

The American Association of State Troopers spent $2.6 million in its latest fiscal year, 44 percent of which went on administrative costs and 43 percent on fund raising, the guide reported. Thirteen percent was spent on program services.

The Brevard County Police Benevolent Association spent $194,000 in its latest fiscal year. The group spent all the money on administrative expenses, the guide said.

Crawford said there may be legitimate reasons for some organizations to show a large percentage of administrative or fund-raising costs in one year.

Different faces of homelessness

By SONYA ROSS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — In Los Angeles, a growing number of homeless veterans have taken to living in cars. In Salt Lake City, most avoid federal programs for veterans, turned off by bureaucracy.

In Trenton, N.J., only three to four homeless veterans a month sought help, while a thousand times as many piled into the local veterans shelter in Boston on a monthly basis.

This is part of a portrait of homelessness offered in a study released today by the U.S. Conference of Mayors. It found wide disparities in the nature of homelessness from city to city, suggesting a need for programs tailored to each city's problem.

The reasons for homelessness, however, were consistent: a lack of jobs or marketable skills, substance abuse, mental illness or rent that is too expensive.

The mayors said the demographic disparities stem from several factors, ranging from the types of jobs or shelter space available to the amount of services offered in each city.

Even within a specific population, homeless veterans, the nature of the problem varied greatly.

"The local veterans shelter serves between 40,000 and 50,000 men per year who come to Boston from around the country," Boston officials reported. "The men are veterans of wars that span the century, from World War II to the Gulf War."

In Cleveland, the average homeless veteran is a 39-year-old black man, who fought in the Vietnam War. In Seattle, more than half of the homeless veterans are white men about the same age.

Officials in Los Angeles reported "a small but rising percentage" of its homeless veterans are "mobile homeless." "These are individuals or families who have lost their jobs and homes and are living in their vehicles," the survey said.

Several cities cited successful Department of Veterans Affairs programs for homeless veterans. But officials in Salt Lake City, where veterans are 35 percent of the homeless, said they have trouble getting veterans into the programs.

"They view the (department) as a very bureaucratic organization, and they don't deal well with bureaucracies," Salt Lake City officials said in a statement.

The mayors based their survey on responses from 28 cities, along with data from the Census Bureau and the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The study covered the period from Nov. 1, 1992 to Oct. 31 of this year.

Single men were 43 percent of the overall homeless population, but more than half of the homeless in five cities. "For the first time in many years, we are facing a lack of shelter beds for single men," Denver city officials said.

But single women, 11 percent of the total homeless, were 20 percent or more of the homeless in three cities: New Orleans, Chicago and Santa Monica, Calif.

Families with children, also 43 percent of the homeless, were well over 50 percent of the homeless in seven other cities.

The average amount of time a homeless person spent on the street was seven months. But it ran as long as 18 months in Miami or San Diego, or a year in Louisville, Ky., and New Orleans, the survey said.

"Some shelters now provide housing for up to 24 months," New Orleans officials said. "Previously, it was up to 90 days."

Overall, 56 percent of homeless people are black, 27 percent are white, 13 percent Hispanic, 3 percent American Indian and 1 percent Asian. Twenty-seven percent were considered mentally ill, 45 percent were substance abusers and 9 percent had AIDS or illnesses related to the AIDS virus.

Eighteen percent of homeless people had full or part-time jobs, the study said.

Participating cities were Alexandria, Va.; Boston; Charleston, S.C.; Chicago; Cleveland; Denver; Kansas City, Mo.; Los Angeles; Louisville, Ky.; Miami; Minneapolis; Nashville, Tenn.; New Orleans; New York; Norfolk, Va.; Philadelphia; Phoenix; Portland, Ore.; St. Paul, Minn.; Salt Lake City; San Antonio; San Diego; Santa Monica, Calif.; Seattle and Trenton, N.J.

All good people come to the aid of their city

Now is the time for all good men and women to come to the aid of their city. Six months or several years from now may not only be too late, but cause problems.

In the Sanford area, plans are being worked out toward what are hoped will be improvements to our community and its economy. Unfortunately, people appear to be letting others do all of the work.

Then, if history repeats itself, when plans are finalized, people who just sat around at first, will jump up and demand to be heard. They will object to what has been planned or the way it is to be executed.

Such cases are: work being done by the Waterfront Master Plan Steering Committee on lakefront development; efforts by Main Street and SHDWA to bring about improvements to the downtown commercial area; work done by the city in fine-tuning plans toward establishing restrictions and/or requirements to preserve and protect the historical residential homes of our community.

Saying that these work groups are established committees is not an excuse. All of their meetings are open, and public input and participation is always welcomed.

Just because people serve on a board or committee does not mean they alone have all of the ideas. Many people have suggestions on how to solve problems being worked on. Some may be half-brained, but others may prove to be exactly what the city needs.

While the examples used here are all related to Sanford, the cities of Lake Mary, Longwood, and all of Seminole County have similar needs. They want people with ideas to come forward and speak, not after plans are finalized, but while they are being formulated.

There is a way the average citizen can help the community in which he or she lives. Unfortunately, there are those who need to be coaxed or prodded into getting involved.

If that's what it takes, consider this a prod. Your city and the various boards and committees need your suggestions and input.

If you can join them, contact one of their members or write to them.

Your community needs you.

Crime and punishment

Here we go again, and on network TV to boot. All this "hissing and moaning" by the tourist industry (as reported on TV)...and the "crying in their beer"...and the "wringing of their hands"...all because of the totally senseless ballooning of violent crime. And they claim they don't know how to stop it. One thing's for sure, it does appear to be trying to "talk it to death." I've got news for them, sonny, it won't work. It's been tried time and time again. Dozens — yes, even hundreds of "new and innovative" approaches to "crime control" have and will ultimately fail because of one paramount reason. You can talk till hell freezes over...but absolutely nothing positive will occur until you place the blame and the responsibility where it has always belonged — one one person(s) "doing it," and not on objects.

KISS — that in case you folks don't know, stands for "Keep It Simple, Stupid." It's not the gun, it's not the knife, it's not the car, it's the jerk(s) that use those items (and more) in criminal acts. And it's very long overdue that our legislators and judges at all levels stop blaming the inanimate object(s) and place it squarely where it belongs — on the backs of the person(s) doing the deed.

Secondly, and even more important, is the "swift and sure" application of — look out — here it comes — P-U-N-I-S-H-M-E-N-T, commensurate to the crime committed. Today it is everything but swift (delays of execution in capital felonies for 10-15-20 years), and everything but sure (sentences of six lifetimes plus 200 additional years, to be served consecutively and he or she is out in 15).

I can't help but wonder if any of our legislators (all levels) and our judges (every level) can spell, pronounce or define the words "punishment befitting the crime." I keep right on hollering the same thing over and over again: "Punish the criminal — not the victim; punish the criminal — not the law-abiding; punish the criminal — not society in general."

Overcrowding...hogwash! Good behavior — early out...hogwash! Misbehavior — solitary confinement (in the hole!) Ahhh! Something positive for a change.

Overcrowding: Dad, Mom and six kids living(?) in two rooms...with one toilet...and three of the kids have the trots. Yes, now we agree, that's both overcrowding and inhumane...and they're all innocent victims.

Sorry, but Elders has it all wrong

Joycelyn Elders is unfit to be surgeon general. A person who advocates legalized sale and use of cocaine, heroin, LSD, PCP and other deadly drugs clearly does not have the nation's best health interests at heart.

In an appearance last week at the National Press Club in Washington, D.C., Elders revealed her ignorance of the nature of America's drug problem. "I do feel that we would markedly reduce our crime rate if drugs were legalized," she said.

What was she smoking? All she had to do was call her colleague Louis Freeh, over at the FBI, and he would have told her that 75 percent of crimes in America are committed by substance abusers often to support their habits. Making drugs even more freely available than they are now hardly would make America's streets safer.

Elders also wildly claimed that some of the countries that have legalized drugs have shown no increase in their drug use rate. Yeah? Which ones?

For the surgeon general's information, no country in the world has actually legalized drugs. As to the handful of European nations that have effectively decriminalized drugs, their social experiments have been anything but successful.

In Zurich, Switzerland, for instance, a public park was turned over to drug users in 1989. By 1991, drug-related deaths were up 80 percent.

Half the drug-takers in the park were under age 22. A fifth were infected with the AIDS virus.

Is this a model that Elders would have this country emulate?

President Clinton was right to rebuke his surgeon general for betraying the nation's continuing war on drugs. He is the first man to sit in the Oval Office who has ever had a family member known to be addicted to drugs. Clinton often has noted that if drugs were more widely available — as Elders would have it — his brother Roger probably would be dead by now.

Clearly, there is no pathology that exacts a heavier toll on American society than illegal drug use. This was well-documented in a 1991 tract by Mitchell Rosenthal, in the University of California-Davis Law Review.

"The fastest-rising costs of drug abuse today are associated, not with crime," wrote Rosenthal, "but with homelessness, chronic mental illness, adolescent suicide and runaways, the spread of (AIDS), domestic violence, child abuse and the number of new drug-impaired, addicted and abandoned infants."

Rosenthal presented evidence showing that 60 percent of the nation's homeless are drug abusers. He noted that in such states as New York, up to 50 percent of patients admitted to hospitals through emergency services are mentally ill drug users.

In California, as many as 75 percent of teen-age runaways use drugs. And, in general, drug-abusing youth are three times as likely to commit suicide as kids who do not use drugs.

Largely because of drug abuse, there was a nearly 30 percent rise in the number of foster-care children in the United States between 1987 and 1990. In 1988, more than 10 percent of first-time mothers used drugs during their pregnancies. That means that as many as 375,000 newborn babies experienced prenatal exposure to drugs.

Just what's politically correct?

Quick quiz: What single term recently has been used by The Washington Post to describe Colin Powell, the Microsoft Corp., deficit reduction, "little black girls and boys," beer ads, a mustard-and-guacamole hot dog, a software game and catfish?

What else but "politically correct" — journalism's most overused, underexamined catchword for the '90s. "PC" has become so ingrained in our thinking, so automatic in its usage, so omnipresent in American newspapers, magazines and talk show verbiage that the term itself has become, well, politically correct.

According to William Safire's new political dictionary, "politically correct" has become "an attack phrase" used to describe that which conforms to "liberal or far-left thought on sexual, racial, cultural and environmental issues" — an odd description for most of the aforementioned people and things characterized as PC by The Post.

Increasingly, the term seems inescapable. I asked Post researchers to compile stories in which "politically correct" and "political correctness" have appeared since June. The result: a two-inch sheaf of 238 articles, many featuring the phrase numerous times.

Certainly, the Post is no more addicted to PC than other papers. But a per-section examination of the 121 uses of just the term "politically correct" by Post writers — whose newspaper is regarded as among the nation's best-written — is instructive.

Since June, the use of PC in most sections has been limited, 10 or fewer uses in every section from Food to Foreign. Most avid: Style, with 49 articles citing the phrase.

But hey, I used the hated term myself a few weeks ago.

So why are creative journalists — particularly those whose job it is to examine culture — so dependent on a term whose meaning was, according to one study, unknown to 86 percent of Americans just three years ago?

Because it represents something that scares the hell out of us. Sometimes, PC is frightening — as the hazy words or phrases are vilified or barred; as when mistake-prone humans fear retribution for expressing genuine feelings.

An oft-cited example: the white freshman at the University of Pennsylvania who called several black women "water buffalo" for making a commotion outside his window as he studied. He was charged with racial harassment — a charge the women later dropped, saying the public outcry had made a fair hearing impossible.

Perhaps he did call the women that only because they were black. But I'd be more likely to automatically brand his rudeness as racist if my own mom hadn't once blurted about portly former toothpick Frank Sinatra. "Goodness, he looks like a water buffalo!"

Now this is squishy stuff. Certainly, words can be weapons whose violence we should all hope to minimize; at the same time, any good thing can — and will — be taken too far. One duty of a commentator is to point out when that happens.

Too often, "politically correct" is used dismissively, even perjoratively, to describe individuals or events whose only "flaw" is to reflect cultures or points of view beyond those traditionally Western or male. Examples: From a piece on a female jockey: "And in a small world, not characterized by politically correct attitudes, she had to prove herself fully" before top trainers would trust her in major races. (But don't all jockeys have to prove themselves before competing in the Kentucky Derby or the Belmont?)

From a music review: An artist's "relaxed blues, R&B, reggae, jazz and calypso mood...isn't nearly as politically correct as...rhythmically persuasive." (Since when was versatility a problem?)

Sometimes it seems to defy logic. When reviewers routinely dismiss as PC any art that takes seriously the lives of people of non-European ancestry, they hint that these productions are compromised. They suggest, as critics recently did with the "Lonesome Dove" sequel and two just-released films on the Apache leader Geronimo, that these productions are merely feel-good fiction from Hollywood do-gooders rather than entertainment based on oft-ignored facts.

In America's real history — not the history of any one segment, but of the whole, unwieldy shebang — whites, blacks, Native Americans, Hispanics and Asians of both sexes all contributed, positively and negatively. Truly scary was the pretense — supported for years by the very media now whining about PC — that they did not.

No thinking person would suggest banning "politically correct," or any other term not blatantly offensive. But in a craft limited by deadlines and human frailty, we still need to flex our vocabularies, and honesty; in the interest of true correctness — whatever our politics.

Mental health care has its limits

If I have a problem, I don't like to just sit around saying, "Oh, yipes, I have a problem." If I can't figure out what to do by myself, I go to someone I think will be able to help me figure it out. I have sought treatment from mental health professionals. And when asked for advice by friends, I have, on occasion, suggested they seek the help of a therapist.

I'd like to be able to tell you what I gained in therapy, but I honestly can't. In fact, I'm pretty puzzled about what was going on in a few instances, although the nature of the treatment may make that necessary. I do believe I learned something helpful, but I also believe I received as much helpful information by reading books by insightful professionals.

Sound confusing? Well, it should. Psychology is an inexact science at best. I was somewhat surprised to find that the treatment techniques of two therapists I saw were diametrically opposed; and among the many books I've read by trained therapists, there are as many opinions as there are $24.95 best sellers.

Does this mean I'm anti-therapy? Not at all. But therapy is what it is, and the precise diagnosis of anything but textbook cases of mental illnesses can be extremely difficult.

That said, the mental health part of President Clinton's proposed health coverage is downright scary. It proposes to cover 30 visits per year for outpatient psychotherapy, but does not specify who makes the diagnosis that a patient is eligible for that psychotherapy. And starting at the year 2001, the visits per year would be unlimited for anyone diagnosed with a psychiatric ailment, which would include such disorders as anxiety, depression and substance abuse.

Since the plan as it stands now does not specify who makes the diagnosis of psychiatric ailment, it's reasonable to assume that psychologists treating patients could make the diagnoses.

And just how many diagnoses would they be making?

In USA Today, Towson University Professor Richard E. Vatz points out that the National Institute of Mental Health estimates that 25 percent of all Americans have at least one "psychiatric disorder" within any one-year period; "The Institute's Division of Epidemiology and Services Research claims that 52 million U.S. adults — 52 million! — have a diagnosable mental illness (including substance abuse)."

Imagine the bill if only one-fourth of those of us with a "diagnosable mental illness" — 13 million — received 30 psychotherapy sessions per year at $100 a visit, or $3,000 per year. That's $39 billion a year. Now imagine the possible bill in 2001 when the limits are lifted from numbers of visits per year. You can bet that if the barn door were to come off, the cows would come home, and a lot of people who would make money off the program would begin herding them in.

President Clinton has started us on the road to health reforms by framing the debate and starting national action. But even a learned task force such as he put together can become too focused in one direction and lose focus in another. In this case, they've not only lost their sense of direction, they've plunged the car off the road.

We're never going to have a national health care system that can be all things to all people. The problems we started out to solve are pretty narrow; to find a way to get the estimated 37 million people not covered by health care protection covered, and find a way to fund it.

I'd like to be able to tell you what I gained in therapy, but I honestly can't.

there would be no moratorium on using the land with the C-2 zoning.

"How would you deny it?" Korman asked, if the land use change was approved and the owners immediately requested to develop a convenience store or whatever is allowed in the C-2 zoning.

Assistant city planner Ajmal Jami suggested the land owners might not be able to get a development order.

Meltzer also noted that the city approved a day care center operating on the site.

After a lengthy discussion, the commission tabled the question of the Longwood Hills properties until Feb. 7. The commission approved changes on properties owned by Irene Philpitt on County Road 427 and Northland Community Church on Dog Track Road.

The owners of the Longwood Hills properties are listed as Takvorian, Intcomm Inc. (Florida Residential Communities) and Mae Rae Group, Inc.

In other business, the commissioners approved $103,199 in cuts from city department budgets. The cuts were proposed by Korman due to a decrease in franchise fees from commercial solid waste haulers. The commissioners also approved funding the park and recreation budget to provide restrooms for Reller Park, pumping lift station and sewer piping and lighting Candyland basketball courts.

The commissioners also selected the firm of Kuhn, Raker and Seland as their first choice as auditors for the city. Prior to the regular meeting, the commissioners interviewed representatives from four auditing firms. The other firms listed in order of ranking by the commis-

The city commissioners also approved the selection committee from the Seminole County Bar Association to screen the five applicants for city attorney. The attorneys who applied by the deadline Monday are: Richard Taylor, Longwood, who is acting city attorney; Joseph Galletti, Orlando; James R. Leon, Longwood; T. Gray Squires of the firm of Killgore, Pearl, Shepard and Stamp, Orlando; Stenstrom, McIntosh and Davis firm of Sanford. Further, the commissioners: Approved non-exclusive franchises for the collection of solid waste to: Industrial Waste Services, Jennings Environmental Services and Waste Management of Orlando. Ordinances were introduced for Western Waste Industries, Inc. and Browning-Ferris Industries, Inc. for non-exclusive franchises.

Approved changes in the election canvassing board and amended the city charter providing for three year terms for city commissioners.

Approved a $350 a month car allowance for Korman. The acting administrator opted to receive the allowance and use his own car rather than use a car provided by the city for former administrator James McFellin.

Guns

Hunting type guns such as shotguns and small caliber rifles, have not seen any major increase. The manager of the Kmart Store in Lake Mary commented, "We don't sell handguns, only the hunting type guns, and they haven't been selling to any larger degree than normal during this holiday season."

State officials who do background checks said they were swamped the day after Thanksgiving, traditionally the busiest shopping day of the year.

"It's the busiest time we have," said Martha Wright, chief of the Florida Department of Law Enforcement's Crime Information Bureau. "We are taking more calls than we ever had before."

Gun sales have been soaring, spurred by the start of the fall hunting seasons and a new federal gun control law.

Sanford Police Commander Dennis Whitmire said he believes many of the handgun sales at this time are an attempt to get ahead of any additional waiting periods called for by the Brady Bill, recently passed through Congress.

"Right now we have a three day waiting period here in Florida," Whitmire said, "but that only deals with handguns. There is no waiting period for shotgun or rifle buyers."

Whitmire said all that is required when making a handgun purchase at the present time is to fill out a form and send it in to the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Last month the state checked the background on 34,581 prospective gun buyers. In November 1992 the figure was 28,780 and it was 24,836 in November 1991. No figures were available for the first part of December.

The Department of Law Enforcement has been forced to add 10 temporary workers to its 24-person staff to keep up with the workload. It's bad, humbug, though, for the agency's workers. Wright's staff has been forbidden to go on leave during Christmas season, she said.

Florida Atlantic University criminal justice professor Lynette Feder said the gun craze is linked to the state's crime.

"There is a fear of crime," she said. "(But) the increase in fear of crime is much greater than the increase in likelihood of being a victim."

Most Broward County gun shops, though, attribute the increases to the new federal gun control law that takes effect on March 1. The law will require a five-day waiting period and background check between purchase and delivery of handguns.

But usually for hunters and collectors, merchants say, nothing says Christmas like a gun.

"December is generally your highest month of the year," said Clint Van Der Pool of AA Lock and Gun Shop in Fort Lauderdale, which even sells gun oil and shells as stocking stuffers.

Not all Christmas self-defense cheer is limited to handguns and rifles.

"Pepper spray and stun guns, as gifts, those things are flying," said Jeff Urrea, manager of the Security Works store in Sawgrass Mills in Sunrise. "In November and December we do our best business."

Urrea said each week he is selling about 200 of the disabling pepper sprays and 20 to 30 stun guns.

That's a turnaround from Christmas past for the Spy Shop in Wilton Manors and Miami. The shop, which has experienced slow holiday season in the past, is talking about extending its hours and hiring extra help, said Eliczer Arce, the shop's director of operations.

"The stun guns that we have, the personal alarm that goes on your side, on your belt, your pants clip, they are asking for those a lot," Arce said.

John Joyce, spokesman for the Department of Law Enforcement, doesn't really find the gift-of-choice for some this holiday season a blessing.

"The guns and stun guns that people arm themselves with in their homes usually end up being turned on them and end up making a bad situation worse," Joyce said.

Information from Associated Press is contained in this report.

yet." Rawlins said. "The people are pretty confused already. If her ruling holds true, the people aren't going to comply. They will go other places to fish."

According to Rawlins, erasing the negotiated compromise will return boat speed limits in areas along the St. Johns River in Volusia County to "slow speed," which is approximately five to seven miles per hour.

"I can't understand how a formal agreement between state and county governments can be arbitrarily rescinded by one unelected bureaucrat seeking to gain some sort of political advantage. It shows how badly Florida needs regulatory reform," he said. "What we're fighting is a bureaucratic juggernaut."

Rawlins said that the decision to remove the compromise from the books will not have an immediate effect on Seminole County waterways, but will affect boaters and fisherman, particularly from the Sanford area.

When boaters and fisherman travel north of the powerplant, they will pass through some areas designated as slow speed zones and will be required to slow their speed to less than seven miles per hour or be faced with the possibility of being fined, Rawlins said.

Currently, 13 counties are being targeted with slow speed zone areas, Rawlins said.

"And 17 more counties will be challenged with it," Rawlins said. "I expect Seminole County will be one of the next ones."

Currently, the areas directly affected include Blue Springs, the Norris Dead River, and tributaries and shallow areas of St. Johns River north of Lake Monroe. However, channel areas of the St. Johns River are expected to remain open to high speeds.

Representatives of the Save the Manatee Club, located in Maitland, declined to comment on the issue until they received verification from the DEP.

horticulturist, said a potted tree does best if planted after a year, but with care, can last two to three years. Thomas said a potted tree should not be kept inside more than about two weeks and should not be kept under a heating vent because they can dry out quickly. The soil must be kept damp, but not soggy, so be careful with electric lights. Among the local nurseries which offer potted trees to the public are Fairfield Farms on West State Road 46, Wright Brothers Garden World on Elkam Boulevard in Deltona, and Pell's Citrus and Nursery on East Doyle Road in Osteen. Wal-Mart in Sanford also sells potted trees suitable for decorating.

Immunizations save nearly 4 million children

By DAVID BRISCOE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Nearly 4 million youngsters who would have perished from diseases such as whooping cough and measles under world conditions a decade ago were saved by immunizations in 1993, a U.N. report said today.

The report, "State of the World's Children," appears to be the most optimistic survey ever by the United Nations Children's Fund.

"A momentum has been building up behind a great change for children," UNICEF's executive director, James P. Grant, said Monday.

A copy of the report was being given to President Clinton today in a White House ceremony.

Grant credited international private and government immunization programs, disease research and social reform efforts with helping children survive.

He said an increase in immunizations, from 20 percent in the early 1980s to nearly 80 percent today, represent "the greatest public health achievement of this or any other century."

The report called for more effort to end malnutrition, illiteracy and disease with more focus on women and children. A fifth of the world's families still live in absolute poverty, the report said.

The UNICEF report lists big advances against five diseases that kill 8 million children a year: measles, diarrhea, whooping cough, tetanus and pneumonia.

Measles still kills more children every year than all the world's wars and famines put together, but the toll has dropped from 2.5 million a year a decade ago to 1 million a year now, the report said. Nonfatal measles cases have dropped from 75 million a year to 25 million.

The report also said the toll from dehydration caused by diarrheal disease has been cut from 4 million to 2.9 million, deaths from whooping cough from 700,000 to 400,000 and from neonatal tetanus from 1.1 million to 600,000. Deaths from pneumonia have dropped from 3.3 million to 3.1 million.

These results came despite a 20 percent rise in the world population of children under 5.

No new cases of polio have been reported in the Western Hemisphere for the last two years, the report said, and the number of cases is down from 360,000 in 1983 to 140,000 last year worldwide. "Over 3 million children are running and playing normally who would have been crippled," Grant said.

The report cited several other signs of progress:

— Large-scale programs in Africa and India show that malnutrition among children under 5 years old can be cut in half by the end of the decade. The world has sufficient food supplies, but one in three children still is not properly fed.

— Family planning is spreading, particularly in Asia, but it is practiced by fewer than 10 percent of couples in most of Africa.

— The mid-decade goal of iodizing all salt to be consumed by humans as a way of preventing some mental and physical impairments in children is within reach.

— Even the bad news for children — particularly their abuse in the workplace, on the street and in the home — may be reduced by an emerging ethic that puts children first, protecting them from "the worst evils of the adult world," the report said.

— The notion has been gaining ground that protection for children should be agreed to by all parties in time of war, the report said. It noted successful efforts to protect children from conflicts in El Salvador, Lebanon, Sudan and Bosnia and during the Gulf War.

— Still it said, children rather than soldiers are now the main victims of war, with 1.5 million killed, 4 million disabled, 5 million made refugees and 12 million more uprooted from their communities in the last decade.

FDA approves new treatment for AIDS related disease

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A new treatment has been approved to help AIDS patients and others with damaged immune systems fight off a deadly pneumonia parasite, the Food and Drug Administration said Monday.

The agency informed U.S. Bioscience, Inc., that it can begin marketing trimetrexate glucuronate as an alternative therapy for moderate-to-severe cases of pneumocystic carinii pneumonia (PCP).

The company's brand name for the intravenous drug is Neutrexin. A second drug, leucovorin, must be given at the same time to protect normal cells while trimetrexate attacks the parasite that invades the lungs of patients with PCP.

There are three other drugs already on the market to fight PCP, the most common life-threatening infection associated with AIDS. As many as 80 percent of AIDS patients suffer from at least one bout of PCP during their illness.

"It gives doctors an alternative. This is another weapon in the arsenal," said FDA spokesman Arthur Whitmore.

The company said the candidates for Neutrexin include the estimated one-third to one-half of AIDS patients who stop taking another treatment, trimethoprim-sulfamethoxazole, due to side effects or lack of response.

The other drugs already on the market for PCP are pentamidine and atovaquone.

In the clinical trials, 48 percent of seriously ill patients survived one month after completing "salvage therapy" with trimetrexate and leucovorin. The survival rate was 67 percent in patients intolerant of both trimethoprim and pentamidine.

Twelve percent of patients in the trial discontinued Neutrexin due to problems with its side effects.

The patients taking the new drug must be seen frequently by a physician and have their blood counts monitored twice a week.

The company said the wholesale price for the drug will be $41.65 per 25-milliliter vial, with patients needing three vials a day for 21 days. That puts the total price at $2,624.

The company, based in West Conshohocken, Pa., said it has established programs to help needy patients get access to the drug.

White House admits papers removed from office of dead aide

By TERENCE HUNT
AP White House Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The White House is acknowledging that records of business deals involving President Clinton and his wife were removed from the office of deputy counsel Vincent Foster Jr. by a top administration official two days after Foster's suicide.

The White House said late Monday that White House counsel Bernard Nussbaum on July 22 took control of tax materials and records of the Clintons' dealings with an Arkansas real estate partnership known as Whitewater Development Corp. and sent them to the president's personal attorney in Washington. Foster killed himself July 20.

Investigators probing Whitewater and the operator of a failed Arkansas savings and loan association were not allowed to review the materials.

White House communications director Mark Gearan said the files were in the possession of David Kendall, the president's personal attorney.

In the presence of law enforcement officials, Nussbaum personally examined the documents and decided on their disposition, Gearan said. The law enforcement officials were not given an opportunity to inspect the papers, Gearan said.

"It was just the process," Gearan added. "Bernie categorized them."

"All the files were handled appropriately," Gearan said. "They (the Clintons) are not the subject of any investigation."

Gearan issued a statement on the papers in Foster's office after The Washington Times published a story Monday under the headline, "Clinton papers lifted after aide's suicide."

Quoting two unidentified U.S. Park Police investigators, the newspaper said Foster's office was searched by Nussbaum and two Clinton political operatives less than three hours after Foster's body was found.

The story said the documents taken from Foster's office included files he maintained on Whitewater and on James B. McDougal, a Whitewater partner and owner of a failed Arkansas savings and loan.

Questions about the Whitewater real estate venture emerged when the Justice Department opened a criminal investigation of the Madison Guaranty Savings and Loan owned by McDougal.

Celebrating 40 Years In Sanford

"I scream, you scream, we all scream for ICE CREAM!" Now there's a phrase that really takes you back to a different day and age.

In 1954, drive-up, open restaurants, like Dairy Queen, were common place. They were a place for people to gather and socialize. To relax and kick back.

In 1993 things are certainly different. But in this fast paced world there is still a place to "kick back and relax." The Sanford Dairy Queen is much as it was when it opened in 1954, at 2523 Park Drive, just south of 25th Street. About the only thing that the owner, Cole Reed, has changed is to keep the ice cream shop open during the winter and on holidays, Cole says, "sometimes folks just can't get enough!"

The outside atmosphere of Dairy Queen means that you can visit the store in your bathing suit or your business suit. You can enjoy your treat on an outside bench or take some home to friends and family. It's a nice change of pace to spend some time outdoors in the great Florida weather enjoying your ice cream creation. With the holidays here, customers can stop and get an ice cream while doing their holiday shopping and errands.

On January 1, 1994, the Dairy Queen will turn

40! Cole purchased the Dairy Queen in 1985. It's a family owned business, with Cole, Vikki and their three children, Chelsea, Kaiti and Rebekka taking an active part in the daily running of the restaurant. Soon to arrive in January will be another addition to the family, as Cole and Vikki are expecting their new baby.

Dairy Queen's trademark soft-serve ice cream, vanilla is the only flavor. According to Cole, the rich cream for vanilla is a secret recipe, low in milk fat, so it's naturally lower in calories than ice cream. This also means the prices are lower, too.

Oh but the things that can be done with that vanilla soft-serve! There's banana splits, banana supreme, waffle cones, cones dipped in chocolate, butter scotch or cherry shakes, malts, peanut butter parfait, sundae, floats, Dilly bars, Buster bars and the newest DQ creation, which is actually a few years old, The Blizzard. The Blizzard is soft-serve mixed at high speed with candy, such as Butterfinger, Heath Bar or Snickers, or cookies, such as Oreos. Cole runs various specials. See his ad in today's Business Review section for this week's special.

Or stop in and treat yourself to the taste of the best ice cream in the world. Dairy Queen is open seven days a week, from 11:00 AM to 11:00 PM.

Inman failed to pay housekeeper's social security taxes

By RICHARD KEIL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Bobby Inman received many accolades during his Pentagon years, but two things that detract from his track record have come to light since he was nominated to become secretary of defense.

The White House revealed Monday that Inman didn't pay Social Security taxes on a part-time housekeeper. Then the administration moved quickly to defuse an issue that had derailed the nomination of two women to be attorney general.

After revealing that Inman had paid about $6,000 on Monday to settle the tax issue, the White House said Inman had revealed the tax question when his name first came up for the Pentagon's top job.

At the outset of his discussions with the White House, Admiral Inman fully disclosed this situation and made clear his intent to come into compliance with administration policy on this issue," a statement by White House press secretary Dee Dee Myers said.

Inman had filed appropriate forms with the Internal Revenue Service on Monday and made the payment, Myers' statement said.

Any interest and penalties on the back taxes will be calculated and assessed by the IRS, the statement said. "The exact amount of the back taxes owed was not revealed," the statement said. Inman "has made payment on approximately $6,000 in taxes owed" since the worker was employed in 1986.

The statement said the housekeeper worked between one and three times per week, but offered no further details.

Mark Gearan, the White House communications director, said the administration did not anticipate trouble for Inman, even though that despite the publicity surrounding Zoe Baird's situation in January, Inman did not pay the tax bill until he was up for the Pentagon's top job.

"I think people here are impressed that he was quite clear and straightforward right from the beginning of our conversations," Gearan said. "It's best characterized as a lapse to pay and it's been corrected."

In accepting Clinton's nomination to head the Pentagon, Inman vowed to bring his experience as a private-sector businessman to the Defense Department, where the post-Cold War priorities are running a more efficient and economical national defense system.

However, Inman's stewardship of a defense contracting firm ran into severe financial troubles in part because of a leveraged buyout he helped arrange.

According to records on file with the Securities and Exchange Commission, Inman earned nearly $1 million from Tracor Inc. in 1989, a year in which the defense contractor was struggling under debt service created when the company was taken private in a deal that Inman helped engineer and manage.

SEC documents show Inman received $422,000 in salary from Tracor in 1989, plus $250,000 in deferred compensation and a $300,000 bonus from the previous year.

There are no records for 1988, Inman's first year with the company.

The leveraged buyout came when Westmark Systems Inc., an investment group formed in 1986, purchased Tracor for an amount more than 20 times its earnings during that period. Inman was on the board of Westmark and an executive at Tracor.

The goal was to make Tracor more efficient and then, several years later, return it to the public market at a profit for the investors.

But Tracor went bankrupt. While it has since emerged from Chapter 11 protection and is now considered financially healthy, those connected to the buyout acknowledge that the arrangement was ill-advised.

"I think the issues in Westmark had to do with poor financial timing and a shrinking defense market," recalled David

J. Kearns, a former Xerox executive who served on Westmark's board with Inman. "While the Westmark thing did not work out well, I enjoyed my association with Bobby. I think he is an excellent thinker."

The poor timing Kearns referred to entered on the October 1987 stock market crash, which came just a month after the Tracor transaction was completed. To make matters worse, the deal relied on junk bonds for the bulk of its financing, and in the wake of the market crash, those notes lost much of their value.

It then took a second set of investment bankers — and increased debt service — to make the deal work, but the company was unable to generate the revenue needed to cover its borrowings.

Greatest job in the world

Survivor of cancer loves kids

By SARABECCA ROBIER
Herald Correspondent

LAKE MARY — Francis Newkirk turned 68 years young on Thursday, Dec. 9. Who is Francis Newkirk? To some of you he might be "Red" and to others he is the school crossing guard who stands on the corners of Country Club Road and Broadmoor.

Newkirk moved to Florida from Maryland 25 years ago. Most of his life he was an automobile mechanic. He did lots of "brake jobs where you have to blow the dust off the brakes and the asbestos affecting my lungs." He was employed by the Seminole County School Board as a custodian at Pine Crest Elementary School in Sanford for 10 years before retiring. Newkirk became a crossing guard three years ago and "this is my second year at this location of Broadmoor and Country Club. It's the greatest job in the world. I enjoy the kids. I have several itty-bitty kids in car seats that wave to me everyday and don't want to miss me. I just love kids. Also, seniors like to wave to me and lots of people wave and talk to me. I just love this job."

In 1989 Newkirk was given six months to live when diagnosed with two types of cancer. "But, I beat it and I believe both my radiation treatments and my positive attitude is why I'm here today." He is very dedicated and gets quite concerned when motorists don't keep the 20 mph speed limit or don't stop when he is ready to cross a child. He keeps children and adults on the sidewalk until cars come to a complete stop.

Newkirk is also a retired musician. He has played guitar, banjo and vocals. Mostly of the '40s and '50s music. When in Sanford he played at different lodges and clubs. He had his own band "The Quiet Sounds."

Poem from guest to hostess says it all

DEAR ABBY: The late Ethel Jacobson, whose light verse appeared in Reader's Digest, Good Housekeeping and other publications, was a sometime guest of ours. The day after she left after a visit, I mailed several things she had forgotten to take with her. Shortly after, she sent me the following poem. I don't think it was ever published. I think it should be.

HEA JENSEN
BELLISSE, CHANNEL
ISLANDS, CALIF.
DEAR DOROTHEA: So do I.

ADVICE

and I'm taking care of it right now. Thanks for sending it. Suggested title:

LEFTOVERS
Perennial pest
To haunt our nest
Is the featherbrained
Forgetful guest
Who comes for the day
Or a three-month stay
And leaves behind
When she flits away
A scarf, a veil
Her keys, her kale
Which you must hunt
And wrap and mail.
Her shoes, her comb
Her bubble foam
By post, prepaid,
Must trail her home.
Such folks, in fairness,
Should be branded
Or travel naked
And empty-handed.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have been married six years. Our biggest problem is her two cats. She loves cats and I am not a cat lover. We recently purchased a home for $250,000 and furnished it with new furniture. Both of her cats have long hair and constantly shed everywhere — furniture, floor, counters, etc. They have thrown up and urinated on our new carpeting and furniture, leaving everything permanently stained and discolored. My wife has tried medicine for the hair balls and shedding — nothing works.

I would like to give the cats away, but my wife would not tolerate it. Please help.

CALIFORNIA READER
DEAR READER: According to Dr. Erwin David, my veterinarian consultant: "The hair ball problem can be managed with regular grooming and oral laxative products. Inappropriate urination may be a behavioral problem (your cats may be trying to tell you something), or there could be a bladder problem."

If you haven't consulted a veterinarian, I would advise you to do so. If you have, and the problems are continuing, perhaps a second opinion is in order.

DEAR ABBY: May I put in my two cents' worth about stepmothers? I am one. Last year, my stepdaughter and I overheard a mother loudly reprimanding her son in a busy store.

I commented, "I hope you never make me angry enough to yell at you like that."

She responded, "You can't yell at me — you're not my real mom."

I gently said, "Whew, what a relief...that means I don't have to drive you to and from your swimming class, shop for clothes for you, help you with your homework, or buy you anything for Christmas."

The look on her face was priceless.

MRS. C.R. IN TUSTIN, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: To the birthmother who stated that she had no desire to be found: Please write an open letter to your birth child to let him/her know that you do not want to be found, and have it placed on file at the adoption agency or with the lawyer's office who handled the adoption.

I'd rather find such a letter than to forever wonder if a reunion is possible. You don't owe it to your child, but it's the kind thing to do.

How to detect hypothyroidism

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please discuss hypothyroidism.

DEAR READER: The thyroid, a dumbbell-shaped gland in the neck, regulates metabolism. When the gland over-produces thyroid hormone, metabolism accelerates, leading to nervousness, sweating, rapid pulse, weight loss and a host of other symptoms.

Conversely, when the gland fails to produce enough hormone, patients suffer from lassitude, intolerance to cold, slow pulse, heart afflictions, constipation, depression, dry skin, slowed thinking and many other metabolic derangements.

Such hypothyroidism can result from a deficiency in the pituitary gland (which regulates the thyroid), inflammation (from auto-immune diseases), thyroid surgery, and dietary iodine deficiency.

The diagnosis is made by blood tests that measure both the pituitary thyroid-stimulating hormone and the thyroid hormone itself.

Fortunately, treatment with supplemental thyroid-hormone pills is almost always curative -- and inexpensive. Patients are initially given low doses of the drug. Once their bodies have adjusted to the metabolic changes, the doses are slowly increased until blood tests show that a normal metabolic balance has been achieved.

Advanced cases of hypothyroidism are easy for even a layman to diagnose. But mild forms may be tricky because common symptoms (such as depression and constipation) may be the only manifestation of thyroid deficiency -- and can exist for years without progressing.

For this reason, any patient with depression or chronic constipation should have thyroid blood tests performed. The cost of the test is minor -- compared to the enormous benefit when a case of "hidden" hypothyroidism is diagnosed and treated.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Should bridge teaching be brought up to date or left in the 1950s? The American Contract Bridge League, which organizes tournament bridge in the United States, cannot decide.

two-no-trump opening promising 22-24 points, in North American bridge clubs, the former is an endangered species and the latter is -- rightly -- extinct.

Here is one deal from the third book, which concentrates on defense.

Declarer wins the first trick with dummy's diamond queen. He draws two rounds of trumps and plays the club king. After winning with the ace, what should East lead?

Everyone is taught to return partner's suit. But here that is fruitless. Declarer can collect at least 11 tricks: six spades, two diamonds and three clubs. The only chance for the defense is to cash three heart tricks now. Although it looks dangerous with the queen in the dummy, East must switch to the heart four, hoping partner has the ace. Here West comes through and bid showing 16-18 points, and a

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Dec. 22, 1993

Friends who have proven loyal to you in the past will be your reliable standbys once again in the year ahead. Nurture these associations and be supportive of them whenever you can.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In your involvements with friends today, be extremely careful not to play favorites. If you do, knowingly or unknowingly, you'll have to take the consequences. Capricorn, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4485, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today you might become involved in something important where the real power resides in the hands of others. Don't fight what you can't change. Instead try to derive benefits from it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

Historically when you submit to your impulsive buying inclinations you seldom walk away with a good deal. Today might be one of those days where you repeat this pattern.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Persons who want to be in your corner might become reluctant supporters if they feel you're too self-serving today. To succeed, you must do for others as well as for yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your biggest impediment today could be your own lack of belief in your capabilities. Instead of worrying about things that may never happen, at least give them a try.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Not everyone with whom you'll be involved today will be in accord with your way of doing things. Unfortunately, your antagonist might be very low keyed and difficult to uncover.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today you might find yourself in an unenviable position where others may be making decisions for you. If you lose control, it will be difficult to get it back.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Others who observe you closely today might see you as a better talker than a doer. This can be corrected if you act first and leave the conversation until later.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Exercise restraint in your commercial dealings today and don't jump to conclusions. Study situations thoroughly, both that which is obvious and that which is beneath the surface.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Associates who have to deal with you in critical situations today could become unnerved if you are too indecisive. Make your best judgment and abide by it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Manage persons in your charge with a gentle hand today, because they will respond favorably to kindness. If you're inconsiderate or unreasonable, the opposite will be true.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Instead of managing your resources with prudence at this time, you might succumb to your more extravagant impulses. What you waste now may be needed later.
