State Prepared To Probe Athletics

(Herald Sports Editor Joe DeSantis, Staff Writer Diane Petyk and Correspondent Sam Cook contributed to the following story.)

The executive secretary of the state's governing body for high school athletics said today he would be willing to come to Seminole County to conduct an investigation surrounding student-athletes transfers if that's what the Seminole County School Board requests.

WORLD IN BRIEF

3 Well-Known Figures

Leave Vietnam's Cabinet

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Three founding fathers of modern-day Vietnam, including its war hero Defense Minister Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, have been removed from their Cabinet posts in a major shakeup of the aging government.

The reshuffle, which resulted in the firing of four other senior officials, the transfer of two and the naming of two new premiers, apparently was meant to inject new blood into the government hierarchy.

Western political analysts today called the Cabinet reshuffle "a changing of the old guard" and said Hanoi was engaged in a far-reaching reorganization to resolve problems created by an aging leadership.

Besides Giap, the other founding fathers to be removed from their Cabinet posts were Interior Minister Tran Quoc Hoan 69 and Foreign Minister Nguyen Van Trinh, 78.

Afghans Wait For Thaw

By United Press International

Afghan rebels, some using captured Soviet weapons, have been continuing their fighting to Afghanistan's northeastern provinces, but were poised to step up attacks on Russian forces as soon as the crippling snows melt, a guerrilla leader says.

In an apparent attempt to consolidate rebel ranks, M. Amin Wakkam, secretary general of the Socialist Afghan Mellat Party, said Thursday in New Delhi, India, his group would form a government-in-exile "within the next month" with other guerrilla organizations.

The well-equipped Soviet forces in Afghanistan have been bogged down by the severest winter in many years and a thaw also will put them in a position to strike back fiercely at any rebel assaults.

Arrest In Adamson Murder

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Police have charged a 23-year-old Turkana tribesman with the killing murder of Joy Adamson, the world-famous wildlife conservationist and author.

Mrs. Adamson, 69, was stabbed to death Jan. 3 at her Shaba game camp in the Meru National Park in northern Kenya. First reports said she had been mauled by a lion, but subsequent police investigations revealed she had been stabbed to death.

The tribesman, Paul Nakware Ekai, was brought to a magistrate's court at Nyeri, north of Nairobi, Thursday and charged with killing Mrs. Adamson.

No motive for the slaying was given but the court prosecutor told the magistrate he would call 25 witnesses.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: An unrelenting storm in the Central Plains knocked out electricity, snarled traffic and delayed airline flights, while in Lake Placid, N.Y., site of the 1980 Winter Olympics, there isn't enough snow to build a snowman. (See related story, Page 8A.)

To the south, a thunderstorm knocked out electricity in Santa Rosa, N.M., for several hours and fierce winds toppled two trailer homes and damaged three homes at Mesquite. No injuries were reported. In northeastern New Mexico, three inches of snow fell at Santa Fe and Las Vegas. An Amtrak passenger train derailed 20 miles east of Las Vegas during the storm, but none of the 115 passengers on board was injured.

The storm which hit the Mid-Atlantic states Wednesday moved southeast to the ocean and the big digest began, Tidewater, Va., suffered the biggest snowfall of the century when 15 inches of snow buried the city. The National Weather Service reported 11 inches in Portsmouth, N.C. (UPI) FORECAST: 2-8 in Norfolk. Norfolk had not seen that kind of snow since a blizzard fall in 1862. The storm stranded 1,500 people, forcing them to take refuge in churches, fire houses, businesses and bus terminals. North Carolina also got snowfall in double figure amounts and National Guard troops and volunteers turned out Thursday to help clean up.

Lake Mary Schedules Water Hearing

By HUNNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Reaction of Lake Mary residents to a proposed 20 percent rate hike may determine whether the raise goes into effect.

The Lake Mary City Council Thursday night looked over the increases proposed by City Accountant Roger Bowen and modified by City Manager Phil Kulbes and then set the public hearing for March 8.

General practice is to pass an ordinance on first reading after a public hearing. A second reading, two weeks later, is then required before the ordinance becomes law.

Concerns in recent weeks have indicated reluctance to increase the city water rates by such a high percentage. Mayor Walter Sorenson especially has said he is concerned about whether some senior citizens in the community can afford to pay higher water bills.

Bowen has said the higher rates are necessary to offset "paper losses" of $2,000 in the water department operation last year. He said the additional revenues from a rate increase should be put into a fund to provide replacement of old lines and repairs and to provide sums for depreciation allowance.

...Kelly Scandal

The undercover agents were told that the package for the favor would cost $250,000 and that Kelly was part of the package. The money was to be split three ways: $100,000 for Kelly and $50,000 each for Cluzio, Rosenberg and Weisz. Cluzio also denies that. Agreement on the money and the split was made in the living room of the townhouse, according to Newday.

The agents then asked Kelly to step into the study alone. They explained in the study what they wanted and Kelly agreed, the newspaper reported. The congressman was shown the $25,000 and told it was 10 percent down on the total of $250,000 and that he would be given the balance later, the news account said.

Kelly was asked if he wanted to call in the other three to split the money and he reportedly said, "no," he would take it all. "He stuffed the money in his pockets carefully to divide it equally among pockets, pinnetted, asking if the money showed, walked back out to the living room and left with the others," Newday reported.

The newspaper said Kelly apparently did not want the others to know he had received the $25,000.

Kelly's version, according to his press secretary, Bill Purvis, is that the congressman was introduced in September, 1979, to Cluzio during a luncheon meeting at Lord Chumley's Pub in Altamonte Springs by a mutual acquaintance — Jerry Spicer of the Orlando area.

Spicer, Purvis said, was involved in no other way than through the introduction. Kelly did not meet Rosenberg or Weisz until Jan. 8 when he got the $25,000.

Kelly had heard that Cluzio had experience in direct mail businesses and had contacts in labor union movement. Kelly was particularly interested in tapping Cluzio for information on whether he would have heavy union opposition in the elections this year and if that opposition could be neutralized.

After several meetings, Purvis said Kelly came to regard Cluzio as a "high roller" and became curious about what the Longwood man really had in mind. He suspected Cluzio had more in mind than he was talking about at that time.

Purvis said Cluzio arranged with Kelly to go to the Washington townhouse to talk about the Arab's problem. Cluzio denies it.

Kelly believed the offer of the money was the first in what would be a series of events. He thought the offer was an attempt to compromise him so he could be put to use later through extortion or blackmail.

Kelly did not want to disclose to anyone what had happened but rather to follow the thread and see where it went, the congressman told reporters.

He accepted the money and kept it in the glove compartment of his car overnight and then placed it in a filing cabinet in his congressional office. He spent $174 of the money during the 30 days between the time he accepted it on Jan. 8 until he returned the balance of the money to the FBI Sunday. Kelly believed he was being watched and that is why he spent some of the money, he said.

Kelly believes he and his family have been jeopardized by information leaks to the press by the FBI, especially the leak that he met with agents Sunday, he said.

He has neither been offered nor sought protection. "Considering the way the FBI has handled this situation, I don't know which direction I could expect the danger to come from," he said today.

Current rate is $1.30 per thousand from the present minimum to 7,000 gallons and 90 cents per thousand thereafter.

In other business, the council on the recommendation of Kulbes and Building Inspector Vince Butler ordered the demolition of an unfinished two-story house begun last year by Terry Bennett on Pine Circle Drive and Rinehart Road. Kulbes and Butler told the council they submitted a list to Bennett containing 17 items, at Bennett's request, noting deficiencies in the construction of the house. Kulbes said when he and Butler physically inspected the dwelling earlier this week it rocked from side to side. "It is definitely unsafe," Kulbes said.

Bennett, who had lived on the property early last year with his family in a tent, before beginning to build the house, now plans to sell the structure when completed, Butler said. "Somebody would be ripped off if that happened," Butler said. "Kulbes said one of the items on the check list was that the entire second story should be removed."

Police Accuse Man Of Drilling Hole In Building

By DAVID M. RAZLER
Herald Staff Writer

A man found crouching behind a Sanford furniture store, wearing rubber gloves, a hammer and prybar in his pockets has been arrested on charges of burglary and possession of burglary tools, police say.

David Metzler, 32, address not given, was arrested shortly after midnight today behind Sanford Furniture Salvage, 3416 U.S. Highway 17-92, after he made a hole in the side of the building with the tools he was carrying, police claim.

Metzler, who refused to give much information to police beyond his name and Kansas birthplace, was caught by officers on routine patrol of businesses and taken to the Seminole jail.

STONE FIRE CLUB HOUSE
A house just outside Sanford was severely damaged and its owner burned when his LP gas stove exploded at 7:40 p.m. Thursday, deputies say.

The fire, touched off when Roger Brownfield, 36, tried to light his stove, did an estimated $25,000 damage to his home on Francis Avenue off County Road 427, deputies say.

Brownfield, treated on the scene for burns to his hands and face, had no insurance on the home, police say.

ARRAIGNMENT ON KIDNAPPING
A man accused of abducting a Lake Mary woman Monday night will be arraigned on charges of kidnapping, breaking and entering, aggravated assault and battery today at 3 p.m.

Timothy R. Bollinger, said to be living out of his car by Lake Mary Police, is charged with the abduction of Deborah Clark of Lake Mary and the assault on her two sisters at 11 p.m. Monday.

Bollinger was ordered held without bail Thursday by County Judge Wallace Hill, pending arraignment today. He was arrested at 11 a.m. Thursday, about 15 hours after his. Clark escaped from him, Lake Mary police say.

15-Year-Old Babysitter Charged In Kidnapping

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — A 15-year-old child thought to have been abandoned when found in the laundry room of an apartment complex Sunday was abducted from his home in New York by a 15-year-old babysitter, police said today.

Mike Gould, police information officer, said Gina Lomborg, a runaway from a St. Petersburg, Fla., juvenile home, was arrested early today when she got off a bus in Moultrie, Ga., and was being held on New York kidnapping charges.

Tanker Nears Key West

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI) — The fire-scared oil tanker Aries and eight crewmen still aboard since Wednesday's blaze arrived to a trip to Key West late Thursday.

A commercial tug arrived to tow the 600-foot powerless tanker and its cargo of diesel from its location in the Gulf of Mexico to either Jacksonville, Fla., or Norfolk, Va.

The Coast Guard cutter Diligence was enroute to Key West with another 21 Aries crewmen. Two of the ship's crew members, injured during the fire, were awaiting their fellow sailors.

Carter Policies 'Incoherent': Kennedy

Rose Kennedy Not Hurt In Fall

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Gearing up for Florida's presidential primary next month, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy blasted President Carter's "incoherent and inconsistent policies" at a meeting of the Anti Defamation League of B'nai B'rith Thursday.

Prior to addressing the Anti-Defamation League, Kennedy also talked to a group of campaign workers and other supporters, trying — with his 88-year-old mother Rose at his side — to drum up support for his flagging campaign.

He attended a fund-raiser at his mother's ocean-side home earlier in the day. Some 200 couples were invited, according to Florida campaign finance chairman Marvin Rosen.

Many, but not all, paid $500 a couple, Rosen said. The Kennedy campaign is suffering from lack of money as the candidate's popularity declines at the polls.

During his speech, the Massachusetts Senator outlined the steps he said were needed for the United States to "free itself from its oil addiction in the Persian Gulf."

"Only an energy-secure America can do what is right for the Middle East and the Persian Gulf," Kennedy said.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — The first lady of the Kennedy family, Rose Kennedy, fell to the floor Thursday night while attempting to step up onto a podium at a cocktail reception for her son's presidential campaign workers. She apparently escaped injury.

Mrs. Kennedy, 89, fell backwards to the floor as she attempted to take one step onto the low platform where her son, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., was at the podium. No one was near enough to break her fall, reporters said.

Mrs. Kennedy recovered quickly and was helped to her feet by nearby onlookers. Her son also moved to her aid.

His energy proposals included gasoline rationing, energy conservation, increased domestic oil production and building up the nation's oil reserves.

Kennedy made most of the same proposals in his Georgetown speech last week. An aide said Kennedy's speech Thursday was to "put meat on the Georgetown statement" concerning energy policy and the volatile Mideast situation.

Most of the speech, however, was devoted to criticism of Carter's foreign policies and assurances that he would strongly back Israel.

Kennedy likened the American hostages in Iran to "the general captivity of the American condition." He said, "the economy remains hostage to relentless inflation. Workers are hostage to rising unemployment and to recession. Our oil supply continues hostage to the whim of wealthy sheiks. Neither America nor Israel can afford four more years of captivity to the stops and starts of Mr. Carter."

"The administration is obsessed with the notion that appeasement on the West Bank and the Gaza Strip will somehow rally Islam against the Soviet threat," he said.

"Israel may soon join America as hostage to the incoherent and inconsistent policies of the Carter administration," he said.

Ship Inquiry in 8th Day

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — As a Coast Guard afternoo in Galveston, Texas, homeport of the vessel and the board of inquiry planned to take testimony today from three members of the Capricorn while Coast Guardsmen traveled to Texas for the services.

"At 9 a.m. Saturday, and for the next several days, the board will call as witnesses, the commander of the Blackthorn, the pilot of the Capricorn, the officer of the deck of the Blackthorn, and the master of the Capricorn," Rear Adm. Norman Venzke said late Thursday.

"The witnesses will be called in that order," the chairman of the board said.

Oyster Dealer Shut Down

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — The Department of Natural Resources has shut down an oyster dealer and threatened to close 11 packing houses because of unsanitary conditions in an effort to help the troubled oyster industry.

DNR Elton Gissendammer Thursday shut down Island View Seafood Co. of Eastpoint for operating without a shucking license and failing to refrigerate oysters, and gave 11 packing houses two weeks to clean up or lose their operating certificates.

The tougher penalty for Island View was appropriate because the firm was operating without the proper certificate, in addition to allowing unsanitary conditions, said DNR spokesman Duane Bradford. Island View was a broker and authorized only to deliver unshucked oysters.

Hazards Of Marijuana

The controversy surrounding cannabis, better known as pot or marijuana, continues to make news and not just because former Beate Paul McCartney was arrested in Japan and later deported for trying to smuggle in half pound of the stuff.

Marijuana has become perhaps the most widely used psychoactive drug in history—one in 10 high school youngsters in said to smoke it—for a variety of reasons. There was a wide assumption that pot was no more than a "harmless giggle," as John Lennon, the rock singer described it. And getting high on marijuana became a fashionable form of youthful protest during the anti-social uprising of the 1960s and '70s. Moreover, the drug is readily available, relatively inexpensive and it combines the intoxicating effects of alcohol, hallucinogenic effects akin to those of LSD or mescaline, and sedative effects similar to those of the barbiturates.

But new scientific findings, which are being brought out before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee about the extremely harmful effects of marijuana, have given parents, not to say the American people in general, something to put in their pipes.

Dr. William Pollin, director of the National Institute on Drug Abuse, testified recently that "marijuana does constitute a major and serious public health hazard..."

Here are some of the truly disturbing findings of the Senate Judiciary subcommittee: "Delta-9-tetrahydrocannabinol (THC), the principal psychoactive factor in cannabis tends to accumulate in the brain and...sexual organs and other fatty tissues... causes damage to the entire cellular process... inflicts irreversible damage on the brain, including actual brain atrophy... poses a serious danger of genetic damage and even of genetic mutation..."

It is not surprising, therefore, that Dr. R.G. Heath, chairman of the department of psychiatry and neurology at Tulane University, finds the users of marijuana now account for the largest single category of the mentally ill.

In consequence of new evidence against marijuana, some powerful advocates of decriminalization have reversed themselves. Dr. D. Harvey Powelson, former chief of the psychiatry department of Cowell Memorial Hospital, UC Berkeley—who in 1967 called marijuana "harmless"—is among those who now warn that it is "our most dangerous drug." Dr. Powelson changed his mind after careful observation of thousands of students.

Nevertheless, the trivialization of marijuana goes on apace, especially in California. Although the cultivation of this potent weed is a felony, theoretically punishable by prison sentence, felonious gardening is known to be widespread in Southern California and marijuana is a major cash crop in Mendocino, Humboldt, Del Norte and Lake counties.

And a petition drive began in California recently to place on the November ballot an initiative which would permit adults to possess or cultivate marijuana for personal use. A National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML) is going after 600,000 signatures and sponsoring fund-raising "Marijuanaathons"—statewide running events, film festivals, etc.

Fortunately, the latest effort to decriminalize marijuana completely may be an instance when California is behind rather than being a forerunner in a national movement. For the first time in recent years, marijuana usage is leveling off, according to a national survey conducted by University of Michigan Professor Lloyd Johnston. He attributes this to a growing awareness of marijuana's potential hazards.

Around

The Clock

By DAVID M. RAZLER

When the Seminole Sheriff's office gets its computer system working next year, the county will begin to move into the 20th Century in one of the most important areas of justice today—its filing system.

While Sheriff's department project head Dick Telson says the new machine will alleviate some of the problems in the courthouse, secretaries throughout the county center have no faith that the situation will be fully resolved in the foreseeable future.

The problem is that aside from a few minor conveniences like electric file cabinets which bring a particular drawer of files to the front of the machine and electric typewriters, the court files for the criminal and civil justice systems in Seminole are kept in the same manner they have been since the courts first opened for business.

In addition to the main file on a case, which must be opened and added to by a court clerk everytime a lawyer wants to change a page, each case must be indexed on at least two sets of index cards, one used only when a case is filed and one added to every time a file is changed or a motion filed.

All of the cards for the thousands of cases in five separate court divisions are typed by hand. While the court clerks, trial clerks and judge's staffs do their best to transfer, update and maintain case files as quickly as possible, they are sometimes overwhelmed by the court system.

Last month, an attorney for the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services walked into the civil division of the Circuit Court and filed over 90 suits on one day. It was a week before all of them were cataloged, placed in folders and properly processed by a swamped staff.

In the first two days of this week, 79 people were either scheduled for trial or allowed to plead guilty, dozens were sentenced for their crimes and others went before judges for pre-trial motions. Some of those files were still not back on the shelves Wednesday.

According to Telson, the PROMIS computer system going into the sheriff's office should make life better for the criminal divisions, eliminating some of the need for handtyped paper ledger cards.

But there seem to be no plans for improving the civil court systems even in the distant future. So a legion of dedicated overworked clerks and secretaries will continue fighting a never ending tide of paperwork, attempting to produce files as quickly as cases come before the court.

VIEWPOINT

Libertarian Support Gaining

By ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON—It's the third largest, fastest growing political party in the United States. Its leaders are thoughtful, articulate, enthusiastic people determined to make their mark on this year's presidential election.

Its fundamental philosophy is, at first glance, nothing less than seductive to millions of alienated voters: "Get the government out of our pockets, out of our bedrooms and out of our lives."

It's the Libertarian party, a yeasty and young organization that has successfully shored itself off of earlier passages as a refuge for anarchists, Ayn Rand zealots, utopians and assorted political malcontents.

Backpacks and beards were far out-numbered by three-piece suits and blow-dry hairdos when the Libertarians recently held a reception at their national headquarters here for their 1980 presidential candidate, 69-year-old Los Angeles corporate attorney Edward E. Clark.

Party leaders, refreshingly candid and sincere, admit it wasn't always that way. "In the beginning," explained one Libertarian official at the reception, "we had our share of the who, ah, didn't have both oars in the water."

The party remains a haven for serious political activists from the far right and the far left—those disenfranchised with both Young Americans for Freedom and Students for a Democratic Society—but it also numbers among its followers previously apolitical lawyers, engineers and businessmen.

Although it was founded only eight years ago, the party's 1978 presidential nominee, Roger McBride, received more than 175,000 votes nationally and attracted significant support in Alaska, Hawaii, California, Idaho, Arizona and Nevada.

When Clark ran as an independent in California's 1978 gubernatorial race, he received almost 170,000 votes or 1.5 per cent of all ballots cast. In the same year, more than 200 Libertarian candidates ran for office in 33 states and attracted more than 1.2 million votes.

That's hardly a nationwide landslide, but it qualifies as the fastest growth rate of any political party—including the Republicans and Democrats—in recent years and has propelled the Libertarians ahead of all other minor parties.

The Libertarians' basic credo of maximizing personal freedom and liberty while virtually abolishing government offers an appeal that spans the entire political spectrum.

For liberals, there is the vision of a golden era of civil liberties, unimpeded by the undisciplined FBI and CIA. For conservatives, there beckons the promise of untrammelled free enterprise, following the abolition of OSHA, EPA, FTC and SEC.

In fact, the Libertarians' weakness is a comprehensive program of restructuring society so radical that it offers more laissez faire permissiveness and less government involvement than most people can swallow in a single sitting.

LIGHTER SIDE

An Unsung Hero

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Clause 6 of House Rule XXIV designates the first Tuesday of each month for consideration of "bills and resolutions on the private calendar."

The most recent occurrence was Feb. 5, and I was there. Ordinarily, even by Capitol Hill standards, Private Calendar Tuesday is not one of life's more dramatic moments. It produces about as much suspense as a quorum call.

But I didn't go there looking for cheap thrills. I was hoping to come up with a big award-winning scoop to top off this week's sensational FBI "Arabs" revelation.

As everyone who reads a newspaper knows, this latest congressional bribery scandal evolved from FBI agents posing as wealthy Arabs and attempting to buy favors from lawmakers.

In several instances, the purported deals called for introduction of special immigration bills enabling facilities "Arabs" to enter or remain in the United States.

Since the would-be beneficiaries were mere rascals, it is difficult to say how far through the legislative process these measures might have gone. But had the deception been carried far enough, the legislation undoubtedly would have wound up on the "private calendar."

Private bills customarily begin with the words "For the relief of..." which may explain why they are commonly called "private relief bills." Typically, such a bill compensates a private citizen for some injury or other wrong suffered at the hands of the government. However, other types of relief may be provided.

Hundreds of them pop up during every session of Congress. If you can visualize a giant legislative buffet, private relief bills are the peanuts in the plastic bowls on the coffee table. In short, just the place to slip something over.

That did it. The Commerce Department brass lambasted Brady's testimony "incorrect and irresponsible." He was summarily demoted, barred from high-level meetings and denied access to classified information. According to a special counsel's report, Brady "was slowly eased out of a policymaking role by being excluded from meetings that had a direct bearing on his ability to discharge his responsibilities."

Brady's boss, Stanley Marcus, ordered secret reports prepared that would grease the skids for the troublesome truth-teller's downfall. One such report lambasted Brady as "the most committed to his own agenda, not to positive management; a public enemy over the past, not improvements for the future; to obstructionism, not the furtherance of the administration's export control policies."

VIEWPOINT

Bush To Big Leaguer

By DON DRAFF

Now comes the tough part. On the momentum of the Iowa caucuses, George Bush has taken over the leading role in the Republican presidential scramble.

Not the front-runner yet, he occupies what can be an even better position. He's the contender all the others know they have to beat—including faltering front-runner Ronald Reagan.

This means a lot of things. A quantum jump in media exposure, helped not a little by his rivals' shift from scattered campaigning against each other to concentrating fire on him. There has been a surge in campaign contributions and in the crowds turning out for his appearances.

Also a surge in problems, some of which are actually welcome. Such as the emergency occasioned by the proliferating press corps assigned to his campaign. A new plane has been acquired to accommodate them, nicknamed "Asterisk 1" in recollection of the not-so-long-ago days when Bush was listed below the leading candidates in the polls, among the "also runnings."

(Such are the welcome human touches in America's frenetic politics. Can you imagine a rising member of the Soviet hierarchy flying around in an Ilyushin named "Non-person"?)

All this in the few weeks since some hundred-thousand Iowans gathered in living rooms and community halls to pass judgment on the important outsiders seeking their approval. Who says ordinary citizens can't influence the political process?

Bush, who was traveling the next thing to solo in the long months leading up to Iowa, is now the center of an entourage as he sweeps on to the New Hampshire — yes, always New Hampshire — primary. But for him it is no longer a first testing. He has already passed that.

From being a candidate, George Bush has become the candidate. But that also has its disadvantages. He must now choose his issues and state his position with greater care in the quest for ever broader support.

Campaign funds are a problem for all politicians, with the occasional exception of a John Cornally.

And they are frequently the reason for dropping out of a race. Which is the case with veteran Ohio congressman Charles A. Vanik who is choosing not to run again this year.

The 13-term Cleveland-area Democrat gives campaign funds as a major reason. Not that he could not raise a sufficiency—he has been regarded as a shoo-in for years and in 1978 was returned with 66 percent of the vote. But he simply prefers not to make the effort since they represent obligations he would prefer not to be a party to.

Also, there is his age—66. In the course of his career having defeated two opponents who had reached ages in public office of diminishing returns to the public, he feels he is not exempt.

So Charles Vanik, a credit to representative government for 26 years, is bowing out. His like does not come down political pike often. We are lucky it comes at all.

JACK ANDERSON

Commerce Exec Sunk For Rocking Boat

WASHINGTON—Larry Brady is a 40-year-old New Hampshire man, conservative by nature, who used to run the Commerce Department's export administration office. Then last spring, he made a career-shattering mistake.

He told Congress some unpleasant truths about the department's licensing procedure for U.S. firms doing business with the Russians. U.S. corporations were shipping to Russia high-technology equipment that could be converted to military use, he warned.

"The Soviet Union and other controlled countries are now capable of acquiring some of the most sophisticated Western technology and diverting it to military forces," he testified behind closed doors.

That was enough to upset his bosses in the Commerce Department. But Brady went on to describe the department as basically a lobbying agency for American businessmen. "I think over the past few years," he said, "we have not been able to say 'No' to an exporter... I don't think other agencies are able to rely on... Commerce Department judgment with regard to license applications. There are very, very few cases that we propose a denial."

That did it. The Commerce Department brass lambasted Brady's testimony "incorrect and irresponsible." He was summarily demoted, barred from high-level meetings and denied access to classified information. According to a special counsel's report, Brady "was slowly eased out of a policymaking role by being excluded from meetings that had a direct bearing on his ability to discharge his responsibilities."

Brady's boss, Stanley Marcus, ordered secret reports prepared that would grease the skids for the troublesome truth-teller's downfall. One such report lambasted Brady as "the most committed to his own agenda, not to positive management; a public enemy over the past, not improvements for the future; to obstructionism, not the furtherance of the administration's export control policies."

This hatchet job was written by Vincent Rocque, a Marcus aide, who denied the existence of his handwriting. When my reporter Mark Bowman quoted it to him, Rocque retorted in "No comment."

If Brady was guilty of obstructing the Carter administration's export policies, it's too bad he wasn't more successful. He told the truth behind closed doors to a House committee; I made his warnings public last July. Now his testimony stands as an indictment of the administration.

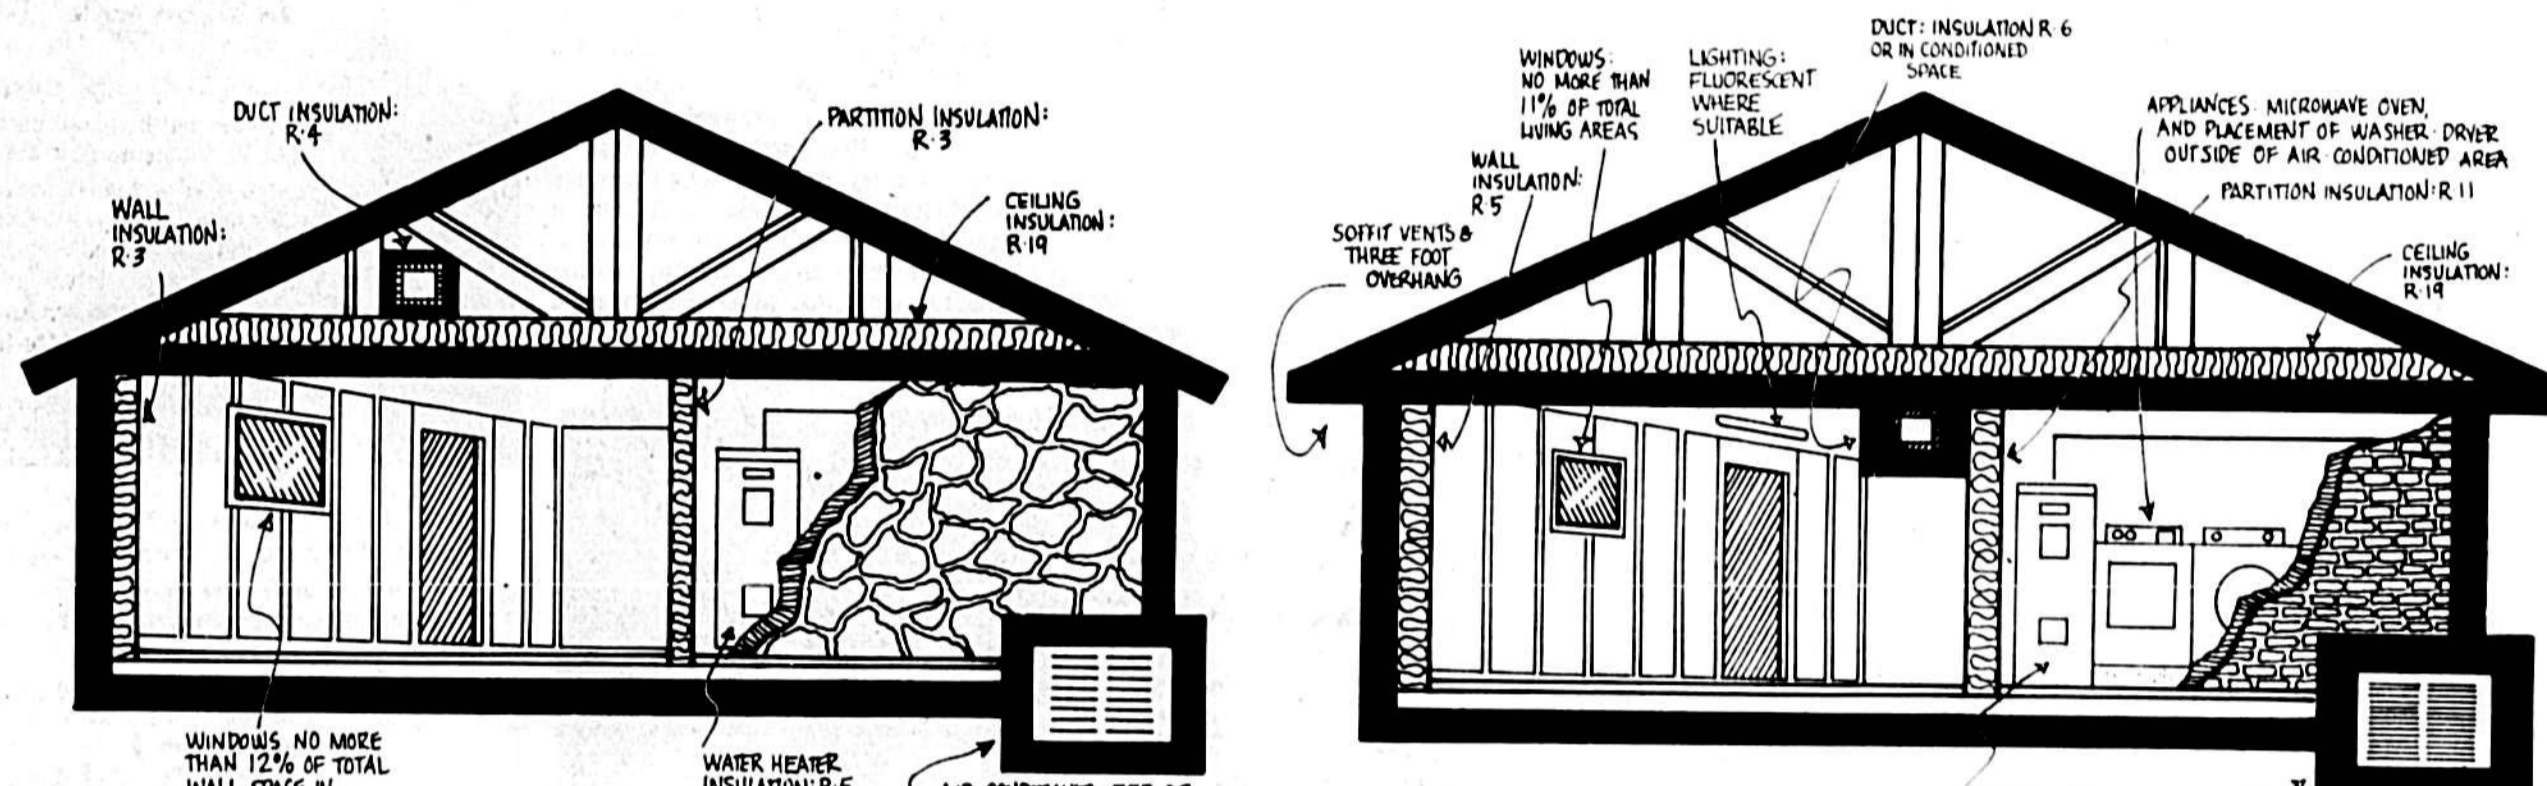

The Russians have turned to military use the sophisticated U.S. computers that they promised would be confined to peaceful projects, just as Brady had warned. What was his reward for being right? He was punished as a delinquent public servant and harassed by his superiors until he quit his job at the Commerce Department in August last month.

There was no help from higher up, either. Despite Jimmy Carter's promise to protect whistleblowers, Brady was ridden out of the government by those who were embarrassed by the accuracy of his warnings.

SOVIET SWIFTEARTH? When Congress passed a law in 1979 limiting diplomatic immunity to only top-level foreign personnel and their families, the State Department quietly arranged an exception: All employees of the Soviet Embassy were upgraded to the special status that makes them exempt from prosecution or damage suits while in the United States.

A sweetheart deal in the name of détente? Not at all. The Russians were given

Sometimes the house that costs more, costs less.

$75,000

The efficient new home above was designed with features to help conserve our energy resources. And it requires less electricity than similar previously built new homes. Why? Because it has better insulation, less heat-welcoming window areas, and more efficient water heating and air conditioning systems.

It'll help its buyer save electricity. But the home on the right will save more.

A Watt-Wise Living™ home initially costs a little more. Why? Because it contains even more energy-saving features. And it's certified by FPL to use less electricity than the home on the left.

But the initial additional cost, when included as part of your mortgage, is more than paid for by the savings on your monthly electric bill. What's more, you're making a wise investment for the future, because the energy-saving features can only enhance its resale value.

In short, the Watt-Wise™ home has additional energy saving options.

These options can include: extra ceiling and wall insulation, solar and heat-recovery units for water heating, a higher-efficiency air conditioner or heat pump, power savers like fluorescent lighting and a microwave oven, and thermally efficient windows and doors, (with glass areas planned to minimize heat build-up).

So before you buy or construct a new home, ask your builder about FPL's Watt-Wise Living Program. Or, stop by your local FPL office and pick up an information brochure.

Borg Says No Big Deal About Big Tennis Payday

BOCA RATON, Fla. (UPI) — Bjorn Borg goes after the biggest check in tennis this weekend, but he says it's no big deal.

"Everybody is talking about money, but it's not so important," said Borg on the eve of the $300,000 Grand Slam tennis.

Borg's current home is the island of Kallio in the Baltic Sea off Sweden's south coast.

Borg opens his drive for a fourth straight Grand Slam title Friday afternoon in a match against Guillermo Vilas.

In another semi-final match in the four-man event, John McEnroe and Vilas Gerulaitis will meet Saturday afternoon.

Borg won two of the qualifying events for the Grand Slam this year, Wimbledon and the French Open.

McEnroe, a loser to Borg in the finals of the last three slam events.

Sanford, Lakeview Post Leads in S.Y.S. League

Sanford and Lakeview are leading the S.Y.S. League in basketball.

The Lake Brantley Patriots surged in the final quarter Thursday night to post an 80-72 victory over New Smyrna Beach.

The Lake Howell Silver Hawks were down by two, 30-18 at the half against Ovidio, but outscored the Lions 14-7 to open the third period and went on to a 54-46 victory.

The Lady Seminoles handed Lake Howell's Lady Silver Hawks a 48-28 setback in women's action.

In Lake Brantley's victory, Barnes was the big man for the Silver Hawks, totaling 18 points on the night.

The win lifted the Lake Howell state to an even 10-10 while the loss dropped the Ovidio Lions to 16-7.

Senior guard Troy Kenninger paced Ovidio with 17 points, 11 of those coming in the final two minutes.

Bob Peterson called for the press against the Barracudas which resulted in several injuries to New Smyrna as they wrap up the Patriots third win against 30 losses.

Kevin Sweet helped the Barracudas stay in the game Thursday night, Sanford's Lady Seminoles improved their season record to 18-7 with a big, 48-28, victory over the Lake Howell Lady Silver Hawks.

Trinity Prep Saints Announce 1980 Women's Tennis Schedule

February 1, Tuesday, Edgewater High School, Home, 2:15 p.m.

February 8, Friday, Seabreeze Senior High School, Home, 3:30 p.m.

February 11, Monday, Colonial High School, Away, 3:30 p.m.

Senior center Rusty Conway, who was named this week's Burger King Co-Player of the Week along with Gary Hays from Lake Brantley, has been coming on strong to give Lake Howell the much needed inside scoring and rebounding that it lacked the first half of the season.

Lynn's Greyhounds hit the coast to tackle one of the two Daytona powerhouses when Tom Lawrence's crew tangles with Daytona Seabreeze.

Lawrence will once again have to contend with a big front line that spelled Lynn's doom against Seminole Tuesday night.

The 'Hounds had a hard time rebounding and will have to overcome that problem against the Sandbar front line that measures off 6-6 and 6-6.

Looking out tonight's prep article, the Ovidio Lions will try to bounce back into the victory column when they host the Leesburg Yellow Jackets in Orange Belt Conference play.

Lion coach Digger Phillips is hoping that hobbled senior forward Horace Roland will be able to return to the starting line-up for tonight's contest.

The Lions would like to return to winning form in view of Tuesday night's impending showdown with Gregg Robinson's streaking Bishop Moore Hornets who currently hold the Orange Belt Conference lead and an 18 game win streak, despite playing the last six games without team scoring leader Paul Mullee.

The last two weeks of the season are critically important to everyone in the Five Star Conference.

Won-loss records determine the pairings for the conference tourney that gets underway at Daytona Mainland on February 27 and runs through March 1.

Bill Payne's Seminoles have twice defeated Lake Howell in regular season play and will be looking to close in on several school and individual records when the Tribe tangles with the Hawks in the Lake Howell gym.

Looking ahead to next week's schedule, the Apopka Blue Darters pay a visit to Lake Brantley, Evans, looking to avenge a light loss to Sanford early in the season travels to the hostile confines of the Seminole gym, Lake Howell hops to 19-20 to meet Lynn while Ovidio travels to Bishop Moore. Those games are slated for Tuesday night.

U.S. Skiers Like No Snow On No Snow

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (UPI) — There isn't enough snow to build a snowman.

Even in the local pubs they're singing parodies about the lack of snowfall. Instead of "Let It Snow," they're singing "Where's the Snow?"

But, just as the athletes in the glamor sport of the Winter Olympics are concerned, they wouldn't have it any other way.

The U.S. alpine team prefers the man-made snow that has been produced. If anything, it gives them the advantage since European skiers aren't used to competing on man-made snow.

"Especially, it would probably be nice if it snowed," said Bill Marolt, the director of the Alpine team. "But the man-made snow does create a fairer competition. They have been spreading man-made snow over the course but there would not be a sufficient amount for the long distance races and therefore the courses would have to be shortened."

Still, the Lake Placid Olympic Committee insists the lack of snow isn't a problem.

"The weather isn't a problem," said Ed Lewi, press director for the Organizing Committee. "We stopped making snow two days ago because we had such a stockpile. The warm sun doesn't affect man-made snow as much as natural snow because of the content of it."

According to Lewi, all that's left before Tuesday's first activity and Wednesday's opening ceremonies is "are the finishing touches, like flagging the town in the next 48 hours so that the festivities of the whole thing comes alive."

On a more serious note, today marks the first meeting of the International Olympic Committee's nine-man Executive Board, where the proposed boycott of the Moscow Olympics will be the principal item on the agenda.

DELAND—Stanton hosts famed basketball powerhouse Oral Roberts University Saturday night in a 7:30 p.m. basketball encounter that is the highlight of Stanton's annual Homecoming festivities. The matchup will be preceded by a women's basketball contest as Stanton faces the Lady Eagles of Georgia Southern at 8:30.

Saturday night's contest features three standout players who were drafted following their junior year by professional basketball teams, but who returned for their senior campaign. Stanton's Dick Ewing (18.3 ppg last year), and Greg Guye (15.8 ppg, 7.9 rpg last year) were both drafted by the Indiana Pacers, while ORU's Calvin Garrett (21.0 ppg and 8.9 rpg) was pegged by the Chicago Bulls in the third round.

Those same three players are again expected to be the keys for either team to be successful, much the way they were last year in the Malone Center in Tulsa, when the Titans defeated the Hatters 126-87. Garrett netted 28 points and grabbed 9 rebounds to stump the Hatters in that contest.

By United Press International Detroit's John Long was the game's top scorer with 24 points and center Kent Benson added 10 in his first game with the Pistons since being traded from Milwaukee for Bob Lanier. Bob McAdoo and Greg Kiser each had 16 points for the Pistons. Dennis Johnson scored 23 points to lead Seattle, which also benefited from Jack Sikma's 18 points.

In other games, Indiana trounced Utah's Adrian Dantley had a game-high 23 points and Terry Furlow added 21.

Seattle held a 61-57 lead at the half and an 82-65 lead at the end of the third quarter, then scored the first nine points of the fourth period to take a 98-85 advantage.

"It was a pretty good effort," said Pistons' Coach Richie Adelman. "We showed a lot of enthusiasm, a lot of desire. But we ran into a red hot team. They're the world champions. That's why they play like that."

Referee Dan Woudridge had a second technical foul for bench conduct on Kirk when the coach said something — neither would reveal what. Woudridge obviously liked Kirk. Kirk then said he would pull his team off the court if Woudridge allowed FSU guard Mory Dillard to shoot his free throws.

Dillard shot, but Kirk didn't leave. Instead, he and his team gathered some chairs and parked in the middle of the court in Tully Gym. There they sat for 30 minutes until Woudridge returned and read an official statement about the incident.

Wet Silas Sparks Sonics Past Pistons

By United Press International Detroit's John Long was the game's top scorer with 24 points and center Kent Benson added 10 in his first game with the Pistons since being traded from Milwaukee for Bob Lanier.

In other games, Indiana trounced Utah's Adrian Dantley had a game-high 23 points and Terry Furlow added 21.

Seattle held a 61-57 lead at the half and an 82-65 lead at the end of the third quarter, then scored the first nine points of the fourth period to take a 98-85 advantage.

"It was a pretty good effort," said Pistons' Coach Richie Adelman. "We showed a lot of enthusiasm, a lot of desire. But we ran into a red hot team. They're the world champions. That's why they play like that."

Allergy To Sun Can Be Treated

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 61 years old and I am allergic to the sun. My daughter wants me to come to Hawaii to live with her and I'm wondering if you know of something I can take or do to help me with this problem. I can tolerate the sun for a few minutes and that is all. I sure would appreciate it if you would help me with this. Thank you.

DEAR READER — Yes, there is such a thing as being allergic to the sun. It can cause hives. Technically, we call this solar urticaria. Even the specific lengths of the sun's rays that cause such reactions have been identified. It's understood to be an allergy. Individuals who have a severe form of this really usually have a stormy course and ends in death in less than one year. Treatment in recent years has altered this picture in many instances.

You must remember that we do not know the exact cause of leukemia although there is a body of evidence that suggests certain forms of leukemia may be related to viral infections that alter basic cell reproductive mechanisms.

To make matters more complex, a chronic form of leukemia can change suddenly into an acute form. A person may live for years in relative comfort with no symptoms at all with chronic leukemia, then suddenly it changes to the acute form and the life expectancy may be very short indeed.

It's not unusual for a person to have leukemia, particularly the chronic form, and have no symptoms. When the doctor examines the patient for the symptoms, he finds out there's an underlying leukemia.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, February 9, 1980

YOUR BIRTHDAY February 9, 1980
This coming year you could surprise others, and even yourself, with your new, ambitious attitude. The desire to get ahead will awaken a strong dynamic drive within you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Things which offer you profitable possibilities will supply you with the necessary motivation today. You'll know how to do what needs doing. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph, Mail Order Dept., P.O. Box 188, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10101. Be sure to specify birth date.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your judgment is exceptionally keen today, you are very good at getting the correct concept over to others whose thoughts may be blurred by a failure to see alternatives.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Thanks to which you put your hand today will be performed skillfully. The pride you'll take in your work will not permit you to do otherwise.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Much can be learned from those with whom you associate today. Be a keen observer and a good listener. This could help you find solutions to your own problems.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't suppress your ingenuity today if you would like to experiment with new methods or techniques. Your ideas are clever and should be tested.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Even if you're doing something with your usual crew, this evening, try to select a different activity. A change of pace will prove fun for all.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Not only will you do well in looking out for your interests today, but you'll also garner advantages for persons you care for. I'd like you on my team.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Being too reluctant to speak your mind today could prove counterproductive. Let others know how you feel about a matter where you stand on important issues.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your instincts are quite keen today in financial matters. Don't sit on ideas which could add to your resources or enhance your security.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) So will not be comfortable with a auto-hispanic role today.

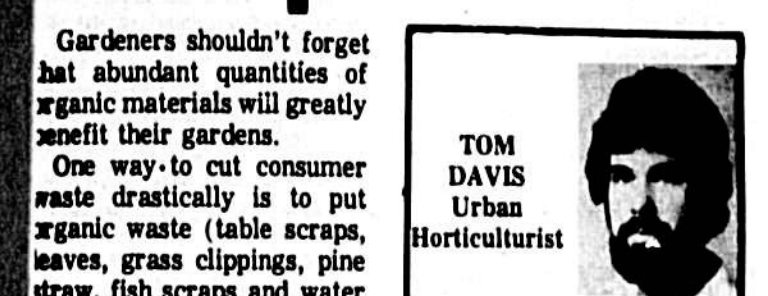

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Developments over an important match some 45 years ago. The bidding was short, sweet and unfortunate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today is one of those rare days when it may be proper to offer unsolicited advice to a friend if you see he or she is doing something wrong which you know how to correct.

Gardening Put Organic Waste Into Compost Pile

TOM DAVIS Horticulturist

Gardeners shouldn't forget that abundant quantities of organic materials will greatly benefit their gardens. One way to cut consumer waste drastically is to put organic waste (table scraps, saws, grass clippings, pine needles, fish scraps and water hyacinths) to good use.

Now is an ideal time to consider taking advantage of organic materials since it is time to prepare your garden soil for spring vegetable plantings. Homeowners who use organic waste can save money, cut down on pollution and provide themselves with their own garden fertilizer all at the same time.

If you start a compost pile with organic waste, you can eventually end up with an organic fertilizer. In addition to fertility, organic waste builds up the moisture-holding capacity of our sandy soils. Organic materials in the form of compost not only add value in vegetable gardens, but it can be used throughout the landscape, whether incorporated into the soil or used as a surface mulch.

Compost is made by alternating layers of organic materials with topsoil, lime, fertilizer, water and air in such a manner that it decomposes, combines and yields artificial manure. The steps involved in making a compost pile are as follows:

First, select a spot for your compost pile as far away as possible from your house or your neighbor's house since the compost pile may smell sometimes. (Usually if you do not include table scraps, this problem is not too bad.)

Next, make a layer of leaves, straw, grass clippings, and other organic materials one foot deep. Wet this down and pack it firmly. Then spread a layer of manure, if available or garden soil four to six inches deep over this layer of wet material. On top of this, spread up to three pounds of superphosphate since organics are low in phosphorus. Then spread one pound of ground limestone or dolomite per 100 square feet.

If you wish, you can use five pounds of a complete fertilizer such as 6-6-6 per 100 square feet instead of superphosphate. A layer of topsoil is often used on top of this.

Repeat this process until the pile has reached three to five feet in height. The compost will begin to heat after two or three days. Keep the pile moist, but not wet, and do not disturb the pile. After three or four weeks, fork the pile over, mixing the parts to get a uniform consistency.

The compost will be ready for use anywhere from two months to one year, depending on the time of the year the pile was started. The type of materials used in the pile and the skill of the composteer.

When no undecomposed materials are seen, the compost is ready. Apply it at the rate of 25 pounds per 100 square feet or one-fourth pound per square foot.

TOI FITZPATRICK Longwood, Winter Springs Correspondent

The Longwood-Winter Springs Area Chamber of Commerce held its Membership Drive Kick-Off breakfast at Quality Inn-North Tuesday at 8 a.m.

Twenty-six members were present to receive their cards from the Membership Chairman Rod Coble who had five team captains: Dick Callahan, David Chace, Walt Lee, Red McCulloch and Jim Ryan.

The Longwood-Winter Springs area has been covered by seemingly tireless workers seeking new members for this rapid growth area Chamber of Commerce.

For all those Eskimos who braved the cold winter air Saturday to attend the "Raiders Day" Carnival at Rock Lake Middle School, a reward of well planned activities awaited them.

The students really had a ball losing pies at their teachers, then competing with teams of students, parents and teachers in sack races, hurdles and obstacle courses.

Since Rock Lake School just opened on Jan. 2, many parents enjoyed the guided tours of the new school conducted by the students in the school's gifted program.

Many years ago, the school's principal, Sal Manfredi, was taught the art of preparing truly fine Italian Spaghetti by his mother. At 7:30 p.m., Sal started preparing his sauce at the Lyman High School Kitchen. After simmering all day, it finally reached the peak of its perfection at 5 p.m. and was transported to Rock Lake.

Divorcee Desperate At Move To Join Ex

DEAR ABBY: I am 49 and have been divorced from my ex-husband for over 20 years. All that time I have been bombarded with letters from him telling me he has never stopped loving me — even during his marriage to his present wife. He has constantly written that he has never known genuine love and sexual satisfaction with any other woman, and I am the only one for him. Abby, such letters would come every day for weeks, and never less than 20 times a week.

I replied with love and friendship — knowing he was living with another woman in Florida. He phoned me two months ago, saying he couldn't live without me, that he would tell the woman he was living with that she would have to leave, and begged me to join him. (I was in North Dakota.)

I quit my job, packed all my belongings in an enormous U-haul, and drove to Florida. It took eight days. I called his home, and a woman answered. I checked into a motel and called him again. He came right over and told me not to worry — the woman was leaving.

He took me one day at a time for two weeks. I finally had to find an apartment because I couldn't afford the daily rate.

Meanwhile, it became clear to me that the woman was not leaving. He would come to see me, professing his love and wanting sex, but I said not as long as that woman was living with him.

I feel like a fool. I asked him why he asked me to come to Florida while he was still living with another woman. He had no answer. Since I'm not a wealthy woman, I must find employment. I have to find activity, interests and friends or I'll go out of my mind.

I've had crying spells and

NATION IN BRIEF

Reagan: Kennedy Muffed Chance To Beat Carter

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Republican presidential contender Ronald Reagan thinks Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., has muffed his chance for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"When the legend became a candidate, suddenly the legend disappeared," Reagan told reporters Thursday in Macon, Ga.

The former California governor campaigned in Georgia and Florida Thursday with stops highlighted by a rally at Rosie O'Grady's in Orlando. During a television interview in Orlando, Reagan said Kennedy has erred "fatally" and he predicted Carter would be the Democratic opponent in the 1980 presidential race.

FTC Told To Drop Issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has told the Federal Trade Commission to drop the issue that has troubled the agency into perhaps the deepest political trouble in its history — children's TV advertising.

In addition, in completing action on a two-year authorization for the agency, the Senate Thursday ordered the FTC:

- To keep its hands off the insurance industry, with both investigations and regulations.
- Not to interfere with the way private industry sets voluntary standards for the safety and performance of its products.

Committee May Hear Miller

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Banking Committee has summoned Treasury Secretary G. William Miller to say whether he lied during his confirmation hearings as Federal Reserve Board chairman about his old company's foreign payoffs.

Chairman William Proxmire, D-Wis., the only member of his committee to oppose Miller's confirmation to that post, asked the secretary to appear today to clear up the committee's record.

The Security and Exchange Commission filed a lawsuit last week against Textron Inc. that revealed a number of inconsistencies in Miller's testimony prior to his confirmation as Federal Reserve chairman in 1978.

More Records in Lance Trial

ATLANTA (UPI) — Defense attorney Nick Chivista says he expects more government-ordered records will be found in bank files introduced as evidence in the bank fraud trial of former federal budget director Bert Lance and three associates.

On Thursday, Justice Department attorneys admitted that documents they attempted to introduce as evidence were prepared at the request of the government and later inserted in bank records.

The records, summaries of loan transactions involving Lance and his family at the Atlanta-based Pullen National Bank, were created by bank employees at the request of FBI agents, according to testimony.

Teachers Face Contempt

CHICAGO (UPI) — Striking public school teachers today faced the threat of a contempt of court citation for defying a back-to-work order intended to end their nearly two-week-old walkout.

As the School Board prepared to ask Cook County Judge Richard L. Curry to issue the contempt citation, leaders of the city's Firefighters Union were trying to make up their minds if the firefighters also should go on strike.

Chicago Teachers Union leaders ordered teachers, who officially went on strike Monday, to continue defying a back-to-work order issued by Curry earlier this week.

'Let Me Pull The Switch'

Dead Girl's Father Reacts To Bundy's Guilty Verdict

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — The father of Kimberly Diane Leach says "let me pull the switch" that electrocutes Theodore Bundy, her convicted murderer.

Bundy was declared guilty of kidnapping and killing Thursday by a circuit jury of five men and seven women. They deliberated more than seven hours.

The second phase of his five-week-old trial starts Saturday morning. Then jurors will begin considering whether Bundy deserves a third death sentence for luring Kim from her Lake City school, murdering the 15-year-old girl and dumping her body in a rusty, old pig sty two years ago. Under Florida law, the jury's decision is not binding on Circuit Judge Wallace M. Jopling, who intends to pass sentence early next week.

Tom Leach, the girl's father, was reluctant to talk about the verdict at first.

"I want to wait until it's over with, and it ain't over with 'til Saturday," Leach told a reporter for the Florida Times-Union. Then he blurted out, "I want him to get the death sentence — the electric chair — and let me pull the switch."

It was Bundy's third conviction for a sex-slaying. The handsome 33-year-old defendant got two death sentences last summer for sneaking into the Chi Omega House in Tallahassee, murdering two sorority sisters and battering three other Florida State students on Jan. 15, 1978.

Three weeks later he stole a white van and left Tallahassee on a "hunting trip" for another victim. Prosecutor Bob Dekle told the jury, Kim Leach became his target.

She disappeared on Feb. 9 from Lake City Junior High School between her physical education class and homeroom. Kim's half-nude body was found two months later beside a pile of bloody, semen-stained clothes dumped in an abandoned hog shed.

Defense attorneys attacked the circumstantial evidence as flimsy. Bundy, a former Utah law student, delivered a last-minute plea for acquittal which Judge Jopling praised as "eloquent" before turning it down.

Bundy claimed to be a victim of circumstance. He said he just happened to be in Lake City the day before Kim vanished. He was expecting a guilty verdict and bet a defense team investigator the jury would come back within three hours.

He was remarkably composed when the verdict was read. The only sign of emotion came from chief defense counsel J. Victor Africano, who bowed his head and closed his eyes for a moment.

Witnesses Testify Against Gacy

CHICAGO (UPI) — In an emotional courtroom scene, the victims of John Wayne Gacy once again became the lost sons, friends and brothers of a dozen witnesses.

The witnesses, Thursday, described 10 of the 33 young men Gacy is accused of sexually assaulting, slaying and burying over a seven-year period.

Gacy, 37, sat solemn and emotionless, his profile to the jury of seven women and five men, as parents identified pictures of the young men prosecutors say Gacy "swatted down like flies."

Only 22 of the victims have been identified. Prosecutors summoned more relatives to testify today.

Beate Stapleton, mother of victim Samuel Dodd, who was 14 when he disappeared May 13, 1976, collapsed as she held a bracelet pulled from the skeletal remains of her son, one of the 29 victims buried in the dirt crawlspaces beneath Gacy's north-west suburban home.

Assistant Cook County State's Attorney Robert Egan removed the bracelet from a manila envelope, placed it over Mrs. Stapleton's outstretched fingers and asked: "Do you recognize this?"

"That's Sam's bracelet," she cried.

Her hands shook uncontrollably as the small bracelet nearly fell from her thin fingers. Her body trembled and she fell limp. Sheriff's deputies caught her and tried to help her from the courtroom but she again collapsed and had to be carried out of the room.

Dolores Vance, mother of Darrell Samson, said she called authorities in several states in searching for her son and "there in Chicago I found myself walking the streets at night looking for him."

"I wore blisters on the bottom of my feet... I burned up four cars trying to find him," she said.

Sanford Flea Market Celebrating Birthday

This weekend would be a good time to stop by the Village Super Flea Market on French Avenue in Sanford and help celebrate its fourth birthday.

Prizes and trips will be given away in addition to birthday cake, and many specials can be found from the numerous dealers who will be on hand.

J. W. "Red" Jones owns the property where Sanford's "one and only flea market" now stands, and he said one day he just decided to open a flea market. Now four years later on Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and Sundays one can find a large concentration of dealers selling everything from fresh fish to hardware and clothing, plus hard to find what-chamacas.

Jones said people come to buy things "old new, antiques, odds and ends, and things they can't find in department stores." Prices for new merchandise are often half the normal retail price, he said. Of course, if one likes to

J.W. 'Red' Jones and his wife, Edna.

Young Quartet Puts Imagination Into Rock

By ROB PATERSON
The Beat embodies all the drive, energy and simplicity that their name implies. A young quartet based in San Francisco and managed by rock impresario Bill Graham, their recent debut album finds them injecting back into rock music the same verve and imagination that made it so exciting in the mid '60s.

Says Paul Collins, the group's leader, singer and songwriter: "Our particular age group (who grew up with '60s rock like the Beatles and Stones) is for the first time asserting itself. The '70s weren't happening at all, it wasn't happening for a lot of people. That's one of the most exciting things about not just the rock 'n' roll scene now, but just the scene in general with young people doing things in entertainment and art."

At 24, Paul has more experience than those many years older. As a youth he lived in Greece, Vietnam and all about Europe (his father was a civilian attached to the military), and he spent his teen years in New York forming bands, going to the Fillmore East and listening to WABC.

After a stint trying to break into the English music scene in London, Paul returned to the States and migrated to San Francisco, where he formed The Nervous. "The time wasn't really right for the group," says Paul, "and we were real headstrong and maybe offended a lot of people."

But they also made some amazing progress on their own. Released in 1978, the band's 1980 copies, they supported acts like The Ramones, Mink DeVille and Eddie Money at concerts and clubs, and one of their songs — "Hanging On The Telephone" — went on to be a hit single for Blondie.

"I thought that coming out with a name like The Beat the first thing anyone would say was 'The Beatles.' It was so obvious, but nobody seemed to notice it."

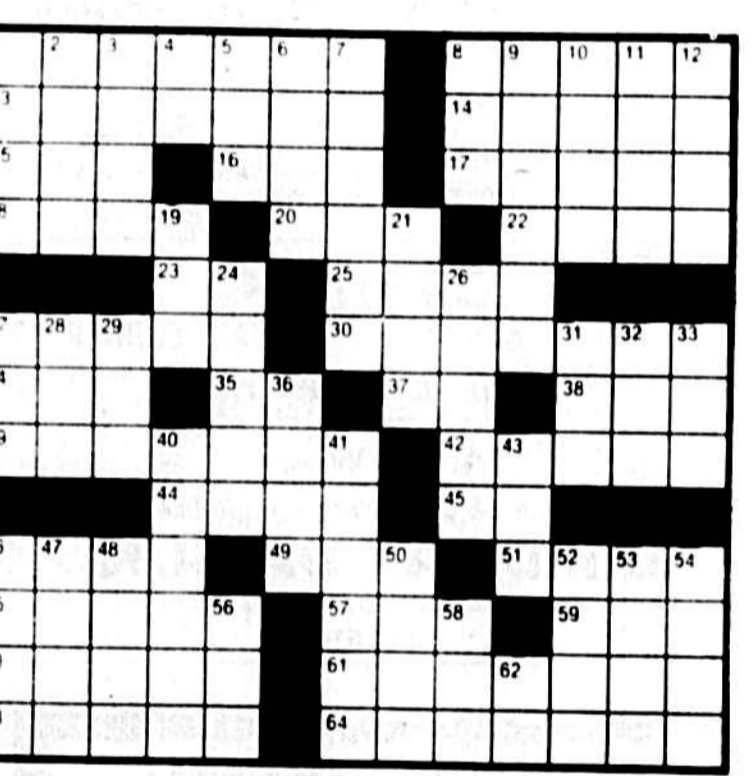

Though Collins claims that "for us it's not that direct an association," the group can be compared favorably with the style and spirit of the Fab Four. From their cooed, catchy songs to their singalong harmonies, The Beat recall the best of hard-edged '60s pop-rock.

"The reason why we chose the name The Beat is because the type of music we play is rock 'n' roll, and the beat is the most important thing about that." Collins finds working with a rock expert like Graham "just great — he really works for us and understands us," and the evidence of that fruitful relationship can be found in the way The Beat has perked-up American ears to what's really good about rock 'n' roll.

"To me rock is a youthful music — music made by young people for young people. If rock is going to be all it can, it has to stay young and energetic. That's what we try to do."

Mariel Sets Sights On Hollywood

By CINDY ADAMS
NEW YORK — Mariel Hemingway, Margaux's kid sister, is vacuuming up so many movie offers that she switched her residence from The Big Apple to The Squeezed Orange, "to be closer to the action." George Abbot, III, is scratching out a second, untitled, "Tryout." The director's first one came out 19 years ago when he was a kid... Hermine Guepfer's looking for a Broadway show...
 Bob Hope's favorite comedian, for some reason, is Steve Martin... All MacGraw, who has gone through a minimum of three husbands, now sleeps with a cat — a male cat, natch... Charles Bronson dragged his mean, macho bones into a pro shop in Beverly Hills to buy golf equipment, and the clerk wouldn't take his check. Asked for identification... Jean Collins is putting her clothes back on to go legit. She'll do a stage revival in London's West End of the classy "Four Poster"... Deborah Raffin co-stars with Jessi Rebers and Lee Remick in the four-hour CBS mini-series, "Haywire."
 Susan Sarandon hired a pianist for when she travels... Elizabeth Taylor is putting up again... Candice was in a camel's hair polo coat. How great it must be to be that occur, right? When he's starving, James Cagney's trick is to look at old family snapshots. "The album with photos of me young and thin keep me from eating!"
 Sarah Vaughan's trick for curing insomnia is needlepoint. "I sometimes actually drop off in the middle of a stitch because the intricacy of the patterns block out all conscious thought from your mind."
 Susan Sarandon hired a pianist for when she travels... Elizabeth Taylor is putting up again...

Travolta's Disco Instructor Revealed

DEAR DICK: I've seen and heard so many advertisements stating that "I taught John Travolta how to dance." Please tell me exactly who did. READER, Lynchburg, Va.

The most reliable information is that Doney Terrio taught John Travolta to dance for "Saturday Night Fever," which I presume is what you mean. Terrio is the handsome young man who has the syndicated TV show, "Dance Fever." Merv Griffin had him on his show and, before he let him on, he got letters from Travolta attesting to the fact that Terrio had been his mentor. That seems to be pretty good proof that Terrio should have the credit. Or the blame.

Ask Dick Kleiner
 By DICK KLEINER

Charles Bronson played a top ranch hand. The ranch owner was an older actress. Whoever I ask anyone if they can recall the name of the series, they can't even remember having seen it. I enjoyed it and would like to see reruns. MRS. IMOGENE BARTON, Vancouver, Wash.

That was called "Empire" and later the title was changed to "Redigo," and it ran from 1962 to 1964. Egan played foreman Jim Redigo, Anne Seymour owned the ranch. Terry Moore and Ryan O'Neal were the kids, and, yes, Bronson was a regular. I think the chances of you ever seeing re-runs range from slim to none.

DEAR DICK: I would like to know who played Little Ricky on the old "I Love Lucy" shows. What is he doing now and how old is he? He sure was a cute little boy. SUSAN KLEIN, Lodi, Calif.

His name was Richard Keith and he would be 29 now. The last I heard about him he returned to his native Louisiana and was working on an oil rig and playing drums on his days off.

DEAR DICK: Would you please comment on our difference of opinion. My husband says Ann-Margret is married to Merlin Olson of "Little House On The Prairie." I say her husband's last name is Moore. M.J.K., Kalamazoo, Mich.

You win again. Ann-Margret is Mrs. Roger Moore, the voice of an ex-actor who has lately devoted himself entirely to her career.

DEAR DICK: Can you tell me who played in two TV westerns of some years back? One was "Colt 45" and the other was "Tomestone Territory." MARY DEMBY, Edgemoor, S.C.

Wayde Preston and Donald May were the two cowpokes on "Colt 45" and Pat Conway and Richard Eastham starred in the other.

DEAR DICK: I'm writing you about the old "Get Smart" series. What was the first name of Agent 99, played by Barbara Feldon? M.F., Yacolt, Wash.

She was just Agent 99, or plain old 99. If you want to be cute you could say her first name was Ninety, and her last name was Nine.

DEAR DICK: Did Paula Prentiss do the Polaroid commercials or have any relation to the girl who does? I say NO: My father says YES: BILL KARBACH, Columbus, N.J.

Always listen to Dad — except this time. Mariette Hartley is the Polaroid girl and she and Paula are unrelated.

'Skag' Creates Flesh-And-Blood Characters

By DAVID HANDLER
 In his weaker moments, "Skag" is "Family" with dirty fingernails—a gang of stereotypes with handy flash throw emotions, sitting around a dining room table in search of somebody else's problems to butt into.

REVIEW

three are much more of the flesh and blood type than we're used to seeing on TV. Its quite refreshing. First of all, we're in Pittsburg, not Pasadena. At the top there's Pete Skag, known as Skag, a hard-nosed steel worker. Series television has never been kind to the workingman. He has always been a sap, a boob — from Chester A. Riley on "The Life of Riley" to Archie Bunker on "All in the Family."

Skag is no dope. He's a hero — a decent, hard-working, gutsy guy who stands up for what he believes in, even if his views aren't particularly popular. He's sore when his youngest son brings a girl home from college, and expects to carry on with her in an upstairs bedroom. "I'm not a square," says Skag. "But I that she finally fesses up. And he's looser. He hates the greedy, the weak, the dishonest. When Skag's union won't raise a stink about unsafe conditions at his plant, he leads a wildcat strike. Felled by a stroke, he slithers across the floor to the toilet rather than call a nurse for a bedpan.

He believes in America's old-fashioned values, particularly in his family. I like Skag, Karl Malden, one of our finest actors, plays the character for all he's worth. I also like his daughter Barbara. Barbara, 15, is an honest-to-God messed-up teenager. She's a fat, ugly oddball, wonderfully played by Leslie Ackerman. Barbara sleeps with any guy who'll ask. "It seems like the only way to get people to like me."

When she gets pregnant she doesn't have the nerve to tell her folks — she tries to get an abortion on her own and when she chickens out at

People Scoff At Kelly's Story

Congressman Richard Kelly said that when he pocketed a $25,000 payoff from undercover FBI agents, he did so with the intention of conducting his own investigation of the "shady characters" and he felt certain his constituents back home would believe him.

Richard Williams, Sanford, child care supervisor: "I don't really believe it. I think he took it for his own profit but got caught in a bind. If he was investigating, he should have told someone, but the way he did it was wrong. There's no way to prove it. He's one of a few people caught in a scandal."

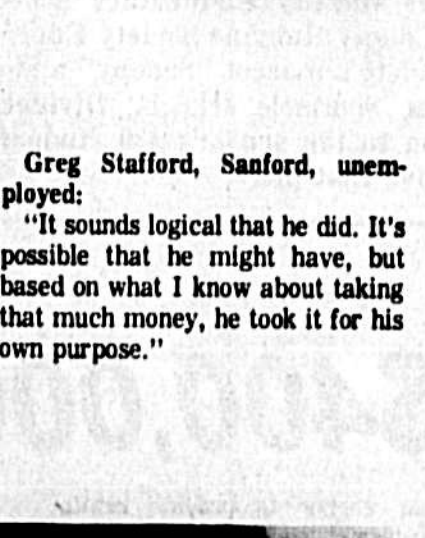

Sharyn Stenstrom, Winter Park, secretary: "If he didn't (take the money for his own use), he should have had someone go with him to back him up. If he was investigating (the men) himself, he would have wanted someone else to know about it so he would have some proof. I don't know why he wouldn't take a polygraph test since they use them in other cases."

C. D. Mayer, New Jersey, retired: "I'm not a constituent, but let me put it this way, I find it a little difficult to believe, but dumb things can happen. As David (Brinkley), the TV newsmen who interviewed Kelly said, 'If you're that dumb you shouldn't be in Congress.'"

Greg Stafford, Sanford, unemployed: "It sounds logical that he did. It's possible that he might have, but based on what I know about taking that much money, he took it for his own purpose."

Bob Barclay, Sanford, sales: "I've seen so much doggone political nonsense, I'm doubtful. I understand he's a good man, but in the back of my mind I wonder maybe or maybe not. It'll probably take a hearing to get the cards out on the table where they belong."

The Draft First Lady Ignores Protesters At Hotel

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — First Lady Rosalynn Carter never mentioned her husband's decision to renew draft registration during her speech Friday night, but thousands of protesters encircling the hotel got their message across. Nearly 1,000 demonstrators, many carrying candles, chanted "No war! No draft!" and "Hell no, we won't go!" as the first lady's motorcade drove into the Beverly Hilton Hotel, where she was scheduled to speak to a $1,000-a-plate, fundraising dinner and to spend the night.

Several hours earlier, when Mrs. Carter flew into Los Angeles after previous stops in San Francisco and the farming center of Fresno, she told reporters she and her husband both favored draft registration but opposed an actual draft as long as the United States remained at peace.

ACLU Considers Challenge In Courts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Civil Liberties Union may take legal action against draft registration, some legislators vow to fight it in Congress, and a major political party is urging young people to resist and not sign up.

Other groups praised President Carter's proposal as a major equal rights step, because he recommended women, as well as men, 18 and 20 years old be required to register for the draft this year.

But Phyllis Schlafly, national chairwoman of Stop ERA, had a quite different point of view. "Carter has stabbed American womanhood in the back in a cowardly attempt to get back the election-year support of the radical feminists," Mrs. Schlafly said. "The American people are not going to stand for letting our girls be sent over to fight in the Persian Gulf or Pakistan."

Carter Won't Send Women Into Combat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House says it will send Congress next week President Carter's proposal for draft registration of men and women aged 18 and older, and 18-year olds starting in 1981.

But Rep. Jim Weaver, D-Ore., said he will propose legislation to limit draft registration to volunteers. And Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Calif., said he opposes peacetime registration in any form.

Registration probably would begin during the summer, assuming early congressional approval of a $20.5 million appropriation for 1980 and $24.5 million for 1981.

Senate Ethics Panel To Begin Bribe Inquiry

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Ethics Committee has voted to begin its own inquiry of the "Arab scam" bribery investigation in which FBI undercover agents implicated one senator and eight House members.

Independent corroborating evidence to substantiate allegations in the media" in both cases, according to Lauren Steele, press secretary of Chairman Howell Heflin, D-Ala.

Rep. John W. Wydler, R-N.Y., said he is asking the House and Senate Judiciary committees to investigate the leaks and use lie detector tests, if necessary, to find out who has been responsible.

Officials Have Doubts About Kidnapping Charge

A man originally arrested on kidnapping charges has been told he may leave jail on posting $1,800 bail because there is probable cause to hold him on only one aggravated assault charge.

Wallace Hall said there was probable cause to hold Timothy Bollinger on aggravated battery, one of four counts leveled against him by Lake Mary police, but not on charges he kidnapped a Lake Mary woman and committed acts of breaking and entering and aggravated assault.

Bollinger could be arraigned. Bollinger was arrested at 1 a.m. Thursday, 13 hours after Deborah Clark, 26, of 881 Fourth St., Lake Mary, his supposed victim, "escaped" while reportedly picking up her purse from her home.

Lake Mary police say Bollinger broke into Mrs. Clark's home Monday and took her away, against her will, after breaking the nose of her sister, Linda Willis.

Bollinger took Ms. Clark, identified by various persons as a former girlfriend of his, to two motels during the time of her abduction, but running about of control, she took to Lake Mary and jumped from his car Wednesday, ordering her will, after breaking the nose of her sister, Linda Willis.

Police arrested him at the Lake Mary Baptist Mission 12 hours later. Mrs. Willis was released Friday from Seminole Memorial Hospital after treatment for her broken nose.
