Monson seeks high adventure

SANFORD — The call of high adventure is apparently stronger than the call of the City Recreation Department. Superintendent of Recreation Jeff Monson has made his decision, he has submitted his resignation effective Aug. 24. Director of Recreation Mike Kirby said, "Jeff has always been interested in mountain climbing, white water rapids rafting and hiking, so he said he is going to New Zealand for seven months to a year and do all of those things. "He'll be a loss to the city and to the recreation department," said Kirby. The City has already started advertising for a replacement for Monson.

Writing Letters

In an age of telephones, faxes and modems it's not surprising that letter-writing is in serious decline. Almost 40 percent of men and over half of the women questioned said they wrote fewer letters than 10 years ago.

Letter from nowhere

PEORIA, Ill. — It's the kind of letter no one wants to get. When Ernie Bain returned home one day last week from work, his wife was holding a letter indicating he owed $144 in child support. Bain said his wife, Marilyn, was more than a little angry, in part because she did not know he had any children to support. Neither did Ernie Bain. Fortunately, the letter — one of 3,300 sent out in Peoria County — was a mistake. Bain, 60, said in his 15 years of marriage he has "never seen my wife as angry as this." Bain had an alimony payment schedule with the county that expired in 1979 and the clerk's office said the names of a number of people on the old rolls accidentally showed up on the list used for the recent letters.

Iraq troops crush Kuwait; U.S. standing by on alert

By LEE STOKES
United Press International

CAIRO, Egypt — Iraqi troops invaded Kuwait, bombed its capital before dawn Thursday and apparently took virtual control of its smaller neighbor after talks between the two Middle East nations broke down over oil and border disputes.

During a brief news conference, U.S. President George Bush said the invasion was "a matter of considerable concern."

Asked if U.S. intervention was possible, he said, "I'm not contemplating such action. I'm not contemplating such action and I would not discuss it if I were."

Bush signed an executive order against the invasion, and pre-

LARGO — Giant grasshoppers up to 8 inches long are marching their way through the foliage in the Tampa Bay area and elsewhere in the state, and experts say there's little anyone can do about it.

Chemicals are virtually useless against the invaders, and predictors shy away from the hard shell bodies of the giant grasshoppers.

"We recommend people carry a big stick, use their pruning shears, bite their heads off whatever works," said Bob Singer, urban horticulturist for Pasco County. "Good-to-bad control is about the only way"

Sturm defends record during election debate

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Control of Seminole County's population and spending growth predominated topics debated between Republican candidates for the District 2 county commission seat.

Incumbent Bob Sturm, seeking a fourth term, said the county has done a good job in making sure developers don't attract more people into the county than taxpayers can comfortably afford, but his opponents Dick Fess and Bob Desmond said more controls are needed on both growth and spending.

Republican primary candidates for the District 2 and District 4 county commission seats responded to questions by media representatives Wednesday night at a forum here hosted by the Seminole County Young Republicans club. As there are no Democrats seeking the District 2 seat, that commissioner will be decided either on Sept. 4 or during an Oct. 2 runoff.

Responding to former Lake Mary Mayor Fess's declaration he would bring a "fresh,

Glenn defends growth decisions

By J. MARK BARFIELD

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Former county commissioner Robert "Bud" Feather attacked incumbent Sandra Glenn's development decisions — and Glenn responded likewise during a debate here last night.

Feather said Glenn supported an apartment complex on Red Bug Lake Road during the early 1980s which attracted more growth and more traffic to the narrow country road. Glenn responded that Feather voted for a commercial development at the intersection of Red Bug Lake and Tusawilla Roads that put much of the congestion on the road. The road is now being widened to four lanes.

The two Republican District 4 candidates met in a forum hosted by the Seminole County Young Republicans club. District 2 Republican commission candidates also responded to questions. Feather or Glenn will face Democrat Larry Furlong Nov. 6.

Successful predawn launch boosts satellite into orbit

By WILLIAM HARWOOD
United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — A Delta 2 rocket successfully boosted a $65 million satellite into orbit today after a spectacular predawn blastoff, completing another link in a global network of space-based military navigation beacons.

The 126-foot, blue-and-white rocket roared to life at 1:39 a.m. EDT and smoothly climbed away from launch pad 17A at the Cape Canaveral Air Force Station, lighting up the night sky for miles around as it streaked through a cloudless night sky.

About 25 minutes later, the $30 million rocket's payload, a $65 million Global Positioning System "Navstar" navigation satellite, was successfully ejected into its planned preliminary orbit.

"With spacecraft separation, everything appears to have gone very well this morning," said an Air Force spokesman in launch control.

It was the eighth in a planned constellation of 21 such high-precision space beacons and like the preceding seven launches, the deployment Thursday went like clockwork.

Once the full "GPS" network is in place, military units around the world will be able to pinpoint their positions to within about 53 feet. Civilians can use the system to pinpoint their locations to within

Soviet rockets may launch here

United Press International

ORLANDO — A Houston company representing Soviet efforts to win commercial launch contracts in the West has asked for permission to launch Russian rockets from Cape Canaveral. The Orlando Sentinel reported Wednesday.

Such a move would not appear to have any economic justification, regardless of whether the Air Force would agree to the company's proposal in the first place, given the high cost of building new launch pads and support facilities at or near the Cape Canaveral Air Force Station.

But such a request was made in a letter to the Spaceport Florida Authority in Cocoa Beach, a state agency in charge of private commercial space development.

The letter was written by Space Commerce Corp. of

School board races stay non-partisan

By VICKI DeBorja
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Circuit Judge Kenneth Leffer this morning reversed his June 29 ruling, saying the Seminole County school board election once again is non-partisan.

In addition, the lawsuit filed by school board candidate William "Bill" Kroll, former candidate Wes Pennington and the Seminole County Republican Executive Committee has been dropped.

The school board candidates will not run until the second primary on Oct. 2.

Some 2,000 absentee ballots which have already been sent out will have the partisan school board races marked, but according to Larry Groot, Seminole County attorney who was representing the supervisor of elections in court, those votes in school board races will not be counted.

The ballots for the Sept. 4 primary have already been counted and will be used. Notices of the court ruling will be placed at the precincts and votes cast in those races will not be counted.

According to Groot the ballots were printed at a cost of between $40,000 and $50,000 and it would be too costly to reprint them.

Based on last week's state Supreme Court decision regarding the case of the Palm Beach County in which it was found that county could

Second mall wins approval for area

By SUSAN LOREN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — An committee for the East Central Florida Regional Planning Council yesterday approved plans for a new mall west of Sanford in the Heathrow area.

Cliff Guillet, executive director of the planning council, said today the vote of approval by the committee with a 7 to 1 vote, means the proposal will be presented to the full 60-member planning council next Wednesday.

Guillet said the committee "recommended approval of the mall subject to conditions — road impact and other considerations. There are considerations that relate to affordable housing." The affordable house would be required for low income residents near the mall.

"I can't tell whether they (the planning council) will approve it," Guillet said. If the council does

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Doctor: McGee felt pain before death

FORT MYERS — A 2-year-old boy repeatedly plunged headfirst into a toilet felt pain before he collapsed into a coma and died, a medical examiner told jurors Wednesday at the sentencing hearing of the toddler's stepfather.

Thomas Coe, 23, was convicted of first-degree murder and aggravated child abuse Monday for the brutal slaying of Bradley McGee, whose death last July led to unprecedented criminal charges against four state social workers and reforms in the way the state handles child abuse cases.

Coe could be sentenced to die in Florida's electric chair for the crime.

"Would a 2-year-old boy who was repeatedly having his head plunged into a hard porcelain toilet be able to feel pain?" prosecutor William Jennings asked Associate Polk County Medical Examiner Alexander Melamud.

"As long as he was conscious, yes," Melamud responded.

Bradley was pulled from a foster home and placed in the custody of his mother Sheryl McGee Coe, 21, and stepfather two months before his death.

Test developed for sugarcane disease

GAINESVILLE — Sugarcane growers soon will have a simple test to screen their crop for a disease that costs Florida farmers millions of dollars each year in lost produce, University of Florida researchers said Wednesday.

The disease, which is known as Ratoon stunting disease, is impossible to detect visually, but ravages an estimated 15 percent of the sugarcane grown in the state, costing growers $36.8 million last year, said Jack Dean, a pathologist at UF's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences.

"A few years ago, nobody believed you could screen for resistance to (Ratoon stunting disease)," said Mike Davis, a co-developer of the technique. "That's why everyone is so excited about this."

The disease is caused by a bacterium called Clavibacter xyli, which infects the interior water-conducting tissues of the sugarcane, stunting its growth and reducing crop yield.

Often, droughts or other stressful crop conditions exacerbate losses due to Ratoon stunting, said UF scientist Nigel Harrison.

Mason: Company was front for Contras

MIAMI — An air transport company sued by a mercenary who survived the downing of a Contra supply plane was a front for the rebel supply effort, but owned no planes or other assets, an executive testified Wednesday.

Robert Mason, senior vice president of Southern Air Transport of Miami, took the stand as part of Eugene Hasenfus's lawsuit against the company and former Air Force Major Gen. Richard Secord.

Hasenfus, the sole survivor of the 1986 crash of a Contra supply plane in Nicaragua, claims Southern Air and Secord failed to properly equip and maintain the plane, or provide workers with survival gear.

Mason testified Wednesday that hundreds of thousands of dollars were routed through Southern Air accounts in Miami, Georgia and Panama.

Florida man dies after beating

ST. MARYS, Ga. — Police said Thursday more charges may be filed against three men accused of beating a Florida man outside a beauty salon.

The beating victim, identified as 26-year-old Troy Roberts of Fernandino Beach, died Wednesday at Baptist Memorial Hospital in Jacksonville. An autopsy was scheduled to determine the cause of death.

Police Chief Ed Wassman said the suspects in the beating could face additional charges if the autopsy shows Roberts died as a result of the beating.

Police said Roberts was beaten with a blunt instrument, possibly a baseball bat.

Three Camden County men have been charged with felony aggravated assault in the Sunday incident outside the Images beauty salon.

Lawyer scolded for showing papers

MIAMI — A federal judge scolded a defense lawyer for one of Manuel Noriega's co-defendants for allowing two journalists posing as aides to review secret Noriega documents held in a Panamanian warehouse.

Journalist Ricardo Sanchez-Borbon recently published an article in Panama's La Prensa about the documents and another unidentified journalist was expected to write an article based on the papers.

Lawyer Michael O'Kane told U.S. District Judge William Hoelver Wednesday that he believed the documents, contained in a heavily guarded warehouse in Panama, were public documents.

Hoelver said the information should be viewed only by lawyers or investigators working for them.

Mercy killer granted clemency

By JEFF SCHWARTZ
United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — In ordering self-described mercy killer Roswell Gilbert released from prison, Gov. Bob Martinez emphasized that he does not condone the elderly man's shooting of his ailing wife, but he added that it is important to "mix compassion with justice."

Gilbert, 81, who was sentenced to life in prison for killing his wife, who was suffering from Alzheimer's disease and osteoporosis, was to be freed Thursday from the maximum-security North Florida Reception Center, where he has spent the last 8½ years.

Martinez and three of his Cabinet members signed a clemency order Wednesday clearing the way for Gilbert's release.

"I don't in any way condone what occurred some five years ago. I don't support that kind of termination of life," Martinez said. Citing Gilbert's advanced age and failing health as the primary reasons for release, Martinez said, "I think you have to mix compassion with justice."

"Gilbert was not an offender in the past, and had no record other than that one incident," Martinez said. "I do not see him as a public threat. It isn't the typical murder by someone who robs a convenience store and kills a clerk."

Gilbert, who had been sentenced to life in prison with no chance of parole for 25 years, is in poor health. He is blind in one eye, suffers from breathing difficulties and circulatory problems, and is losing his hearing. But he is neither the oldest nor the sickest inmate in the state prison system, officials said.

Gilbert was convicted of first-degree murder in 1985 after he admitted shooting his wife Emily, 73, twice in the head as she lay on a sofa in their condominium at Sea Ranch Lakes, near Fort Lauderdale, on March 4, 1985.

Judge won't allow tighter clinic rules

United Press International

FORT LAUDERDALE — A federal judge refused Wednesday to lift a 1982 ruling keeping Florida from imposing tighter controls on abortion clinics.

The state, citing the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling last year in Webster v. Reproductive Health Services, asked U.S. District Judge Jose A. Gonzalez Jr. in June to lift his injunction barring Florida from imposing stricter rules for the operation of abortion clinics.

But Gonzalez said Wednesday: "Contrary to public opinion, Webster does not constitute a significant modification in decisional law, nor would it justify or permit any change in the prior judgment of this court."

In 1982, the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services attempted to impose strict rules on the operation of abortion clinics that did not apply to other medical facilities. Critics charged the state with using that as a pretext to make it more difficult and expensive to obtain an abortion.

"This (Gonzalez ruling) is extremely significant because in many states people have tried to argue that Webster means they can place greater restrictions on abortion than what was in Webster," said Charlene Carra, an American Civil Liberties Union attorney representing Florida Women's Medical Clinic, Inc.

"This is the first time a federal judge has applied the case and ruled that Webster does not give state's the authority to regulate abortion clinics," she said.

HRS officials and state attorneys were not available for comment late Wednesday.

Trailer overturned
An early morning accident on the eastbound lane of Interstate-4 two miles south of the Deltona exit left a tractor trailer overturned today. The trailer left the road and rolled onto its side, tearing down and I-4 boundary fence and striking a palmetto tree. The driver was transported to Central Florida Regional Hospital, where he was listed in satisfactory condition.

Sheriff: 'Charges imminent' against Challenger Foundation in death case

United Press International

Criminal charges will be filed against an outdoor therapy program for troubled teenagers that hosted a trip this summer that resulted in the death of a Florida girl, Kane County Sheriff Max Jackson said Wednesday.

"It's my feeling that charges against the Challenger Foundation are imminent," Jackson said. "As to when the charges will actually be filed, I can't speculate."

Kristen Chase, 16, Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla., collapsed and died June 27 after hiking on a desert plateau in eastern Kane County while participating in the Challenger Foundation program.

Jackson said the investigation is focusing on the entire scope of the Challenger Foundation's operations, adding "we're looking into corporate negligence from the top on down."

Chase's death was the second this summer of a participant in a Utah-based survival program.

Churches refuse to pay garbage, fire service fees

United Press International

OCALA — Ministers angry that Marion County sent their churches tax notices, billing them for fire protection and garbage service, are staging a tax revolt, demanding that they be exempt.

"Churches have always traditionally been considered non-taxable. We've always been that way," the Rev. Walter Smith, pastor of Cedar Creek Baptist Church of Silver Springs, said Wednesday.

The county commission, after 45 minutes of discussion, agreed Tuesday to hold a public hearing on the issue.

A meeting was scheduled Wednesday night for residents angry that they, themselves, would have to pay more for fire and garbage service. The meeting was moved to a livestock auction barn to make room for an expected 1,500 to 2,000 protesters.

In July, county officials mailed residents of unincorporated areas tax bills that included two new annual assessments: a flat $67 charge for garbage service and a fire protection charge of about $50 for most residents.

Churches, which had never before been taxed by the county, were billed for the two new items.

"I believe it was an oversight, and in their zeal to find addi-

POLICE NEWS

Former roommate's return spurs dispute

WINTER SPRINGS — City police here report charging Kent Harry Middleton, 701 Sybilwood St., Winter Springs, with burglary and criminal mischief, after he allegedly forced entry to his former home.

The resident at 1412 Borg St., Winter Springs, reportedly told police entry was forced at about 1:30 p.m. Wednesday. She alleged Middleton grabbed her, held her down, spat in her face and injured her face. She ran to a bedroom and closed the door. Middleton allegedly smashed open the door and threw a television to the floor smashing it. Police said the pair are involved in a civil dispute over utility bills. Middleton moved out of the victim's house June 17, police said. He was arrested at home at 12:18 a.m. today.

Woman, child battered

LONGWOOD — Brian Lee Hudak, 27, 1532 Mockingbird Lane, Longwood, was charged by city police with battery spouse abuse and child abuse at his house at 7:46 p.m. Wednesday. He is accused of attacking his wife and a child during a family disturbance, police said.

Man struggles with police

WINTER SPRINGS — A man who allegedly threatened and struggled with Winter Springs police at his house, when police were taking information from the man's wife, because he had been reported missing earlier last night, has been arrested.

Police charged Michael Dee Folden, 37, 229 Holiday Lane, Winter Springs, awoke at about 1 a.m. today to find and allegedly confront a policeman in his house. The officer, who had been questioning Folden's wife, called for backup. When the second officer arrived, Folden allegedly struggled with both. Folden is charged with two counts of resisting with violence, assault on a policeman and disorderly intoxication.

Woman reports rape at bar

MIDWAY — Seminole County sheriff's deputies are investigating a report by a Sanford woman who said she was raped at about midnight while in the rear parking lot of Whiskey River bar, State Road 46, Midway.

Park on Park ceremonies honor Rigling

By NICK PFEIFER
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — In small but meaningful ceremonies Wednesday, a new fountain was dedicated to the memory of Blanche M. Rigling and the children of Sanford at Park on Park, between 8th and 9th streets off Park Avenue.

J. Lee Rigling, grandson of Blanche Rigling, said, the four grandsons came up with the idea of a fountain in her name, and they financed the entire project. The eldest grandson is Richard Gardiner, who works for Seminole County as head Librarian.

Blanche Rigling died last year, but her grandsons, through the gift of a fountain in her name, say they want her love for all children to stand as an example for all persons.

Firefighters plan weekend festival to benefit charity

By AMY WILSON
Herald intern

LONGWOOD — Fire stations here will no longer have to walk the streets for money.

The Longwood Fire Department is planning the first annual Fireman's Festival to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association. They reserved Reiter Park, located next to Fire Department Number 15, 301 West Warren Ave., for Saturday Aug. 11 and 12 to provide games and entertainment for the Longwood community.

The fire department has raised funds every year for MDA, but this is the first time they planned a benefit where Longwood citizens could get together and have some fun while also helping out a good cause.

Cindy Carbonell of the Longwood Fire Department, who organized the festival, said in previous years they held "boot drives" where firefighters approached cars at traffic intersections to collect donations in their boots.

"Orange County passed an ordinance prohibiting boot drives," Carbonell said, "and it looks like Seminole County will, too. But hopefully it was a blessing in disguise."

Carbonell and Joann Butler, who works in the city personnel office, said most all of the other departments and city employees have become involved in planning the festival.

"It seems like the whole city has gotten involved," Butler said. "To see the employees pull together like this, it's kind of heartwarming."

Scheduled activities include watermelon eating contests, three-legged races, door prizes, cake walks, game booths, and possibly a local radio station will show up.

"We've thought about doing it in the past, as an alternative," Carbonell said. "The past two years we've donated $8,000 to the Labor Day Telethon. This year we'd like to beat Winter Park (fire department), who usually gives around $10,000."

The department got local businesses to donate prizes and advertising.

Second drowning blamed on Bertha

United Press International

DAYTONA BEACH — The body of a Canadian man washed ashore Wednesday, the second Florida drowning in as many days to be blamed on Hurricane Bertha.

Shallan Crittenden, 17, who had a general delivery address in Fenelon Falls, Ontario, got caught in a rip tide or "runout" and was carried out to sea, said lifeguard Willie Alvarez.

Lifeguards had rescued about 40 people on Volusia County beaches by midafternoon Wednesday, said lifeguard Sgt. Kevin Sweat. That compares to 200 who were rescued on Tuesday.

The daily average is about 10, Sweat said.

"We've had a lot of close ones where people are screaming for help, but nobody's drowned yet," Sweat said Wednesday.

"We've had problems, not quite to the extreme as yesterday but the conditions still exist for a dangerous situation at any time," he said.

"Hopefully, the worst is over," said Alvarez.

"Because of all the publicity that Daytona Beach has picked up in the last few days, I believe people are pretty much aware that they need to stay in waist-deep water. It seems to be calming out," he said.

On Tuesday night, a 14-year-old friend swimming with Crittenden tried but failed to save him, Volusia County beach rangers reported.

"It was the first time they had gone in the ocean," said Alvarez. "One was lost in a runout, and he washed up this morning, oh, about three-quarters of a mile from where the runout took him out."

Hurricane Bertha churned up 75 mph winds off the Canadian coast on Wednesday. It developed into a tropical storm off the central Florida coast over the weekend, kicking up waves which tore holes in offshore sandbars and caused the rip tides that were sucking people out to sea.

Nelson LeJune, 59, of Branch, La., drowned Tuesday morning when he tried to rescue his mentally handicapped stepson on an unguarded stretch of beach near New Smyrna Beach, officials said.

The stepson, Robert Perry, 18, also of Branch, La., remained in guarded condition Wednesday at Fish Memorial Hospital in New Smyrna Beach.

Another near-drowning victim injured Tuesday, Bob Heitman, 40, of Eogota, N.J., was released Wednesday from Peninsula Medical Center in Ormond Beach.

Club hosts AIDS course

From staff reports

SANFORD — Youngsters of all ages will hear some important facts on AIDS transmission and prevention during lectures at the West Sanford Boys & Girls Club Aug. 8.

Linda Medeiros, health educator for the Seminole County Health Department, will give the lectures on AIDS. She targeted children ages 6 to 11 at the first lecture yesterday, and youth ages 12 to 18 on Aug. 8. The talk will begin at 10 a.m., at the Boys & Girls Club, located at 919 S. Persimmon Ave., Sanford.

Medeiros' course, called "Basic AIDS 101," is geared toward helping children understand what the illness is and how it is spread.

"It will be a very simple presentation with very basic information for the younger kids," Medeiros said in a release. "We want to let them know that they don't have to worry about playing with other kids who may be infected." There will also be a question and answer period during the lectures.

During the Aug. 8 lecture, the 12 through 18 age group will receive more information utilizing videos and open discussion. Medeiros will focus on what the illness is, how it is contracted, and how to prevent it.

There is no charge for the lectures.

Lab claim-jumping

Do patients have a right to share in the profits of products developed from their discarded tissue?

A generation ago, that was a ghouliah question for hypothetical discussion. But because of the revolution in biotechnology, in which hundreds of university researchers and private companies use thousands of culture cell lines derived from human tissues to study diseases and search for potentially profitable new drugs and therapies, the issue has become real and the stakes, in both dollars and scientific progress, very large. In refusing to grant patients such rights, the California Supreme Court has wisely shielded researchers from a legal intrusion that threatens progress on medicine's most promising frontier.

The question of property rights was raised by a leukemia patient who had his spleen removed in 1976 by a UCLA surgeon. The physician and a researcher used the discarded tissues to cultivate a cell line of white blood cells. Because the genetic material of the cells was infected with a virus, the cell line they developed proved capable of producing abnormal quantities of potentially valuable immune system proteins.

The university patented the cell line and the researchers negotiated agreements with two private firms to use their discovery to develop a drug. When the patient found out this research was proceeding from cells derived from his spleen, he sued to win a share of the potential profits.

That suit can continue, the Supreme Court ruled recently, but only on narrow grounds. Doctors have a duty to inform patients if they have an economic or personal interest in research that may affect their medical judgment in recommending certain treatments, the court said. Thus the patient can try to prove he was wronged by his physician's failure to disclose his research plans.

But the patient cannot assert that the doctor interfered with his property right in his discarded tissues. Neither court decisions nor statutes recognize any such right, Justice Edward Panelli wrote for the court. Most important, the cell line derived from the patient is distinct from his tissues. The potentially valuable proteins the cell line produces are not unique to the patient, but common to every human being, as is their genetic code.

The patent issued to the researchers recognizes that the successful development of a cultured cell line is the result of the researchers' invention, not the raw material with which they worked. The fact that the patient's cells were the source of the cell line was merely happenstance.

To have allowed patients to sue for the fruits of research to which they made no unique contribution would have undermined the economic and legal base of much modern biomedical research. The Supreme Court has found the right balance, protecting both patients' right to informed consent and a key field of scientific inquiry and innovation.

FAA says infant seats don't fly

WASHINGTON — Recently a young couple and their 18-month-old son flew from Washington to Detroit. Normally, they would have carried their son on their laps during the flight. However, wanting to be responsible parents — and believing a proposed government regulation was already in effect — they brought along a safety seat.

However, the airline made them purchase a separate ticket for their son. The plane, it turned out, had at least 11 empty seats in the coach section. On the couple's return trip to Washington there were again empty coach seats, but, again, they had to purchase an extra ticket.

In the future, the couple says, they will drive. Rep. Jim Lightfoot, R-Iowa, says that what happened to the couple shouldn't have happened. The Federal Aviation Administration, however, says that the couple's response was exactly what they expected.

Lightfoot and the FAA are on opposite sides of a growing argument over the National Transportation Safety Board's suggested new rule, which would require that all infants be in safety seats on U.S. commercial flights. Lightfoot is sponsoring legislation to make the rule mandatory; he is opposed by the FAA, which says the rule will kill more children than it saves.

At a recent House hearing, Lightfoot and proponents of the rule — including Susan Coughlin, vice chairman of the Safety Board — argued that airlines will invariably offer sharply discounted seats for infants or offer empty seats on the flight for infant safety seats.

According to the proponents' scenario, the Washington couple "should" not have had to pay for the child's seat, since there were empty seats on both trips. However, the FAA argues that, on a great many flights, there are no empty seats, and that the rule should not be made contingent upon the generosity of airlines, many of which are already losing a million dollars each month. As a result, says the FAA, families with very young "lap" children, faced with having to buy another seat, will opt to drive.

In the future, the couple says, they will drive.

Based on data from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, the FAA concludes that, over the next 10 years, families driving instead of flying will be in accidents resulting in nine deaths, 52 serious injuries and 2,300 minor injuries. In the same period, based on FAA records of aircraft accidents over the last 20 years, one infant's life would be saved by the safety seats in an airline accident.

Lightfoot's response at the hearing: "What's your child worth? Is it worth the price of an airline ticket?"

The Peanut Butter and Nut Processors Association is on the warpath.

Congress is putting the finishing touches on the new Farm Bill. Included is the continuation of the peanut price support and quota program, which has been in existence since 1941. Under this program certain peanut farms are designated quota farms; only peanuts from these farms may be sold in the United States.

The government makes sure that these farmers receive a set price for their peanuts ($631.47 per ton in 1990). If quota farmers cannot sell for that price, the government makes up the difference.

DAVID S. BRODER

In support of David Souter

WASHINGTON — Despite the grumbles from the political extremes, President Bush's appointment of Judge David H. Souter to the Supreme Court has every indication of being a superb choice — both substantively and politically.

What the country should care about is that the New Hampshire jurist — by the unanimous testimony of those who know him — brings a powerful, superbly trained legal intellect, disciplined work habits and genuine independence of judgment to the issues before the high court.

The political fitness of Bush's first Supreme Court appointment is underlined by the array of attractive options now open to him for those who may follow Souter. After naming an easily confirmable conservative who shares his own New England, Yankee, WASP heritage to replace Associate Justice William J. Brennan, Bush has put himself into a position where he can play tough but rewarding ethnic and ideological politics with subsequent Supreme Court choices.

The tip-off to the long-term strategy came in the eagerness with which White House officials aided reporters in learning the identities of those who they said were highest on the list of also-rans behind Souter.

They were, in the White House's publicized order of preference, Circuit Court Judge Edith H. Jones, a Texan and a woman; Clarence Thomas, a black; and Laurence H. Silberman, a Jew — all clearly in the conservative camp.

A Democratic political consultant who looked at the list remarked, "They've got perfect positioning if they want to pick our coalition apart." What he meant was that if Bush gets the opportunity to make additional Court appointments before 1992, he can force the Democrats either to acquiesce in moving the high court much further to the right — or to pay an exceptionally high political price by challenging nominees from important constituencies.

Talking about the politics of the Court appointments in such bald terms may seem offensive, especially when Bush just has acknowledged a President's overriding obligation to give the greatest weight to the quality of the nominee for the high tribunal.

But it would be fatuous to pretend that the political environment was not part of this choice. Bush did not want — and could not afford — a Robert Bork-like confrontation with the Democratic Senate at this moment.

The most important reason is that so much now hangs on the success of his budget summit with Congress. Bush has paid a significant political price by abandoning his "no-new-taxes" pledge in order to keep the Democrats negotiating. He needs to get a return on that investment — a credible deficit-reduction agreement which will allow the Federal Reserve to cut interest rates and help revive a faltering economy.

The urgency of that agreement is underlined by the new Washington Post-ABC News poll's finding that nearly three out of five Americans now think the economy is worsening and that more disapprove than approve Bush's leadership on economic issues. Collapse of the budget talks would damage Bush politically and quite possibly tip the economy into recession.

The negotiations are arduous already, and the venom of an ideological battle over a Supreme Court nomination, would inevitably poison the chances of the budget summit accomplishing its objective.

The second reason Bush did not want a pitched battle now over a clearly ideological appointee is the imminence of the mid-term election. Republican chances of making gains in the Senate depend heavily on states like Illinois and Rhode Island, where Republican women challengers are supporters of abortion rights, and Iowa, where the Democratic incumbent is trying to turn the election into a single-issue referendum on his challenger's anti-abortion views.

The last thing Bush wanted to do was to send up a Supreme Court nominee who would provoke a lengthy confirmation fight centered on the abortion issue.

None of these considerations would apply in 1991, should the opportunity for other appointments arise. In that year, Bush might well find it useful to nail down his conservative base by making a more ideological Court appointment, just as he courted the religious right in pre-election 1987 with a series of speeches and gestures.

A pitched battle in the Senate in 1991 would be a win-win proposition for Bush: Even if the liberals defeated his nominee, he would have made his point, and could come back with a less controversial conservative.

That is why the three names are so intriguing. If Sandra Day O'Connor were to retire, Democrats opposing Judge Jones would find themselves opposing a female and a Southerner on a Court which has had only one woman and no one from Dixie in recent years.

It would be fatuous to pretend that the political environment was not part of this choice.

Congress balks at drug act changes

WASHINGTON — A handful of drug companies have cornered the market on medicines for rare diseases. You can thank the federal government for giving them the monopolies in the first place. Now you can thank George Bush and Dan Quayle for interfering with an attempt to insert some much-needed competition in the market.

Since 1983, the Orphan Drug Act has granted monopolies to drug companies that develop and sell drugs to a limited clientele. The rationale in Congress was that a company might not go to the expense of developing a life-saving drug if only a handful of people needed it. Drug companies needed incentives.

Under the Orphan Drug Act, the Food and Drug Administration approves only one drug for use against a rare disease. The company gets free reign over the market for seven years, plus tax breaks, and there are no price controls. The law did its job well. Before 1983, there were only 10 drugs classified as "orphans" with limited demand. Today there are more than 300 needed drugs because companies have a profit motive to develop them.

But a few of the orphans have abused the government's good will. Their parent companies are reaping millions of dollars and promoting the drugs to treat other conditions that are not so rare. The estimated annual sales of just one orphan drug total some $200 million.

The National Organization of Rare Disorders, which helped write the original orphan law, now charges that some highly profitable drugs taking advantage of the monopoly don't need such protection. To stop the abuses, Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., who sponsored the original orphan drug law and Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, cooked up an amendment. It said that any time there were two or more companies simultaneously developing an orphan drug in a race to be the first to win FDA approval, there would be no monopoly granted. The competition was evidence that there was enough profit motive that the drug could stand on its own.

The House watered down the legislation to continue monopolies for orphan drugs that already have FDA approval or are approved by Aug. 15. Our associate Dean Boyd has learned that the White House put pressure on the House to can the reforms. Bush has received substantial campaign money from Eli Lilly & Co. and Genentech Inc., two drug companies with monopolies on two forms of human growth hormone. In 1977, Bush was on Lilly's board of directors. In 1986, Quayle's Senate campaign got the largest single contribution given by Lilly that year, $8,500. Lilly is based in Quayle's home state of Indiana.

Quayle is chairman of the administration's Council on Competitiveness. In June, the council circulated a letter among drug makers opposing the reform of the Orphan Drug Act. The letter bypassed the normal White House channels, including the Office of Management and Budget. "Quayle was all over this from the beginning," one inside source told us. The Department of Health and Human Services sent a memo to Waxman, tactfully reminding him that Quayle was opposed to the changes. The memo was circulated in the House on the day the language of the bill was finalized. At the same time, the National Organization for Rare Disorders heard through the grapevine that Genentech was threatening to scrap development of a drug to treat cystic fibrosis if the changes went through. Genentech denies it ever made the threat.

The law did its job well.

Bugs

you can stop these guys once they're adults."

Horticulturists from the Tampa Bay area said that the grasshoppers are commonly found in Central Florida. However, they also said that reports of 6-inch grasshoppers were greatly exaggerated.

Steiger said that 6-inch reports probably came from homeowners, "who tend to exaggerate the size." He did say, however, that because of their hard shells, even the 4-inch grasshoppers are hard to kill.

Pinellas County horticulturist Opal Schallmo said the giant insects prefer the warmer climates of southern states, and find Florida foliage particularly delectable.

The critters have changed their usual habit of staying put in one area during the spring and summer months, Schallmo said. This year, they've made their way to the Tampa area.

"We've got people walking in with them in boxes and bags saying, 'What are we supposed to do with these, saddle them up and ride them?'" Schallmo said.

The grasshoppers, which normally live six to eight weeks, hatch in just a few days and mature in about four weeks. Schallmo said it is the first time in 15 years that she's seen the peaky bugs spreading over the county.

One reason they have reached maturity at such an alarming rate is that the extended drought has decreased the number of natural predators, such as birds, owls and lizards, who feed on the young insects, Schallmo said.

If they are not stopped before they develop their hard shells, the voracious insects are hard to kill.

The young grasshoppers, which have not yet developed a protective shell, can be killed with garden sprays bought at any nursery, Schallmo said.

Steiger said the insects begin to die off once the cooler fall weather approaches, or when their food supply runs out.

A.J. Giffberg, a St. Petersburg plant salesman, said he has talked to dozens of frustrated customers who have had the misfortune of purchasing plants just days before the grasshopper picks them clean.

"Usually when people complain about bugs I can show them in my book about the means of control," Giffberg said. "But with the Lubber - the book just says 'Use hard object.'"

"I got two bricks at home myself and I've been giving them a workout."

County Commission candidate Fees, left, Commissioner Sturm, candidate Desmond.

Sturm

record from the start of the forum, saying the county has a "serious" tax problem and accusing Sturm of accepting more than the state limit of $1,000 from a contributor.

Sturm later noted he accepted an individual contribution from a businessman and another contribution from the business itself, legally under state campaign finance laws.

Sturm said while some people have a perception that the county does not regulate growth, the rights of developers as well as those of the citizens are taken into account with every development issue before the commission. Fees said that perception is correct.

"The process is so cumbersome that it wears people down," Fees said.

Desmond said the county's land use plan should be followed and not changed at the request of developers.

Although Sturm defended the current tax rate as the among the lowest in the state, Fees and Desmond criticized the commission's recent proposal to increase the countywide tax rate by about 23 percent. Desmond said he had identified more than $49 million in what he called "fiscal mismanagement" and Fees said commissioners do not pay close enough attention to where county tax dollars are being spent before calling for a tax increase.

"High spending has got to go," Desmond said. "We have got to get spending under control."

Fees said the county needs to concentrate more on attracting more businesses to the county and less on tax increases. "Housing won't pay for services," Fees said.

Sturm said if growth doesn't continue, county services and staff will have to be cut to moderate taxes.

Sturm said although current services offered by the county can't continue without a tax hike, he would continue to find areas where expenses can be cut before the county budget is adopted in September.

In the area of mass transit, all three candidates agreed a commuter railway system connecting Seminole County to Orange County is not needed because of the high cost and low population in the county. All three agreed the current bus system needs to be improved to provide more efficient low-cost transportation to "downtown" from Seminole County.

"We cannot afford to have the big mass-transit system like we have in big cities," Sturm said.

All three candidates split on the county's new sign ordinance which will reduce the number of signs currently allowed, but not as much as a county advisory committee recommended. Sturm said the ordinance was not restrictive enough, saying he offered 11 changes to strengthen the ordinance, but was unable to substantially increase the restrictions.

"I was opposed to the new sign ordinance because I didn't think it was restrictive enough," Sturm said. "Signs are alright if they're the right size and in the right place but we're not obligated to let them be put anywhere."

Fees said a sign ordinance that is too restrictive can deter new businesses.

"To say all signs are bad is wrong," Fees said. "We need to be moderate."

Desmond said the new sign ordinance was acceptable, but he said no limitations should be placed on the use of American flags.

"American flags should be allowed anywhere," Desmond said.

Desmond said all of the candidates - and commissioners and county officials - should take periodic drug tests. Desmond also said candidates' campaign advisors should also be required to take drug tests.

Sturm responded to holding up a drug test he took in May showing negative results for 10 drugs, including cocaine and marijuana.

"Where's your tests?" Sturm asked.

Fees said he and his campaign staff were ready to take the tests.

Glenn

Seminole County as rural, leaving higher densities to the cities.

"Growth has got to slow down," Feather said. "It affects the life of everyone in Central Florida. In 1980, we had a chance to keep the country in the county. But then we passed an ordinance that required subdivision streets to be paved. We do not have to be another city."

Glenn, seeking a fourth term, retorted 52 percent of the county's population lives in the unincorporated areas.

"I don't think we're going to have a county that's rural in character," Glenn said.

Feather said affordable housing is an issue that confronts cities, not the county because of its rural character. Glenn said the county will address affordable housing when a study is complete. She suggested the county might buy foreclosed homes and sell them to first-time homebuyers at a low cost.

The debate continued when Feather said Pickett Downs in the southeastern section of the county was an example of how Glenn supported changes to county requirements to allow substandard streets.

"That place has gotten run down," Feather said.

Glenn responded most of the Pickett Downs streets are private and were allowed to be built less than county requirements so it could be more rural.

"All the things Mr. Feather said he wants for a rural county," Glenn said.

Although both candidates supported reuse of treated sewage to reduce the demand for fresh drinking water, Feather criticized the county's plan to treat wastewater from the Yankee Lake sewage treatment plant west of Sanford and allow it to flow into the St. Johns River.

"That's 40 million gallons per day that we treat to drinkable quality and then we throw it away in the St. Johns River," Feather said. "That's water that could be reused."

The two candidates split on whether the county should have a state-financed underground fuel tank inspection program. Some people believe such a program might have detected deficiencies in a tank in Geneva before it leaked more than 800 gallons of fuel into the ground, threatening the "Geneva Bubble" water supply for the area.

Feather said he "couldn't believe" the county didn't participate in the program because it is paid for by the state. Glenn responded saying although the state often says it will pay for a county program, those payments rarely fully pay for the expenses.

"Then we'll be coming back and asking for more staff and a tax increase to pay for it," Glenn said.

Houston, a marketing group that represents the Soviet Union, The Orlando Sentinel said.

The letter asks the state's permission to allow the Soviets to launch Proton rockets from Cape Canaveral Air Force Station, said Ed O'Connor Jr., executive director of the Spaceport Florida Authority.

"That obviously is not the intent of the Spaceport Florida Authority to go out there and support the Soviets," O'Connor said Tuesday in Miami at a gathering of officials representing U.S. states interested in commercial space development.

He said his agency had no sway over the Air Force and had forwarded the request to Air Force officials.

"I would be very surprised if our Department of Defense would even allow it," said Tom Williams, spokesman for McDonnell Douglas Space Systems Inc. "Besides that, I can't see what advantage it would be to the Russians to launch at Cape Canaveral. I find it hard to believe that they really want to."

He said the Soviets could launch Protons more cheaply at home but Peter Bishop, a University of Houston professor, said there were advantages to Florida launches.

He said the closer a launch pad is to the equator, the less fuel is required to get a rocket payload into orbit.

"(The Soviets) launch pads are located quite a bit farther north than Cape Canaveral," he said.

He said by launching at Cape Canaveral, the Soviets also could bypass a U.S. law that currently bans Soviets from sending American-made satellites into space.

Soviets have been willing to sell their rockets for a fraction of the cost of those produced in the United States and Western Europe...but U.S. laws have prevented owners of American-made satellites from using Russian rockets because of concerns over technology transfers.

"We are concerned about this kind of competition from a non-market economy. A state-owned entity can easily engage in predatory pricing and cause a severe disruption in the market," said a spokesman for the Department of Commerce's Office of Commercial Space Programs.

12-hour orbit 12,500 miles up.

The launching Thursday marked the 19th straight success for rocket-builder McDonnell Douglas Space Systems Co. of Huntington Beach, Calif., the 11th success in a row for the Delta 2 - a perfect record.

The Air Force ordered 20 Delta 2s from McDonnell Douglas in the wake of the Challenger disaster specifically to carry GPS satellites into orbit that are originations valued at up to $669 million. McDonnell Douglas also agreed to build Delta 2s on a commercial basis as part of a national space policy to encourage development of a private sector launch industry.

The first GPS navigation satellite was safely placed in orbit Feb. 14, 1989, in the first flight of a Delta 2 rocket. Six more successful GPS launches in a row were chalked up prior to this week's mission.

In all, the Air Force plans to launch 21 upgraded "block 2" GPS satellites to join seven older and less sophisticated "block 1" spacecraft already in space. The satellites are built by Rockwell International's Satellite Systems Division in Seal Beach, Calif., under a $1.2 billion contract.

Equipped with sensitive atomic clocks, four such satellites will be "visible" at any given time from anywhere on Earth. Military forces on the ground, at sea or in the air will be able to use signals from the satellites to pinpoint their positions to within about 53 feet.

The satellites originally were to be launched from NASA's space shuttle.

But after the 1986 Challenger disaster, which grounded the shuttle program for 32 months, the Pentagon embarked on an unprecedented program.

Emmy nominees named

ABC, NBC both claim 95 nominees for TV awards

United Press International

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — "Twin Peaks," ABC's offbeat cult series about murder and intrigue in a small town in the Northwest, led the pack Thursday as nominations were announced for the 42nd annual primetime Emmy Awards.

"Twin Peaks" took 14 nominations, followed by the oft-honored NBC series "L.A. Law" with 13 nominations.

The "Twin Peaks" nominations included selections for outstanding drama series, outstanding lead actor in a drama series to Kyle MacLachlan and outstanding lead actress to Piper Laurie.

Two comedy series, NBC's "Cheers" and CBS's "Murphy Brown," were nominated in 12 categories each, while ABC's yuppie drama "thirtysomething" followed with 11 nominations. ABC and NBC tied with 95 nominations. CBS shows compiled 73 and the upstart Fox network had 26.

"The Tracey Ullman Show," which Fox dropped this year due to poor ratings, had nine nominations to lead Fox shows.

Joining "Twin Peaks," "L.A. Law," and "thirtysomething" with nominations for outstanding drama were ABC's Vietnam series "China Beach" and NBC's time-travel adventure "Quantum Leap."

Top comedy nominations went to "Designing Women" and "Murphy Brown" on CBS, "The Golden Girls" on NBC, "The Wonder Years" on ABC and last year's winner, "Cheers."

"Roseanne," the ABC series usually camped at the top of the ratings, drew only two nominations, one of them for co-star John Goodman as top comedy actor.

Administration ups clean air cost estimate

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The administration sharply increased its cost estimate for clean air legislation and urged Congress to remove "needless" pollution controls from the bill, especially car emission cuts, documents showed.

Michael Boskin, chairman of the White House Council on Economic Advisors, told lawmakers in a letter the clean air bill passed by the House and Senate earlier this year both cost too much, ranging up to $35 billion a year.

The $35 billion estimate is considerably higher than past administration estimates for the Senate-passed clean air bill, which White House officials said was within the president's cost guidelines and, thus, acceptable.

Bush told Senate leaders in January he would veto any bill that cost 10 percent more than his original clean air proposal, which had an estimated cost of $19 billion a year.

Industry officials charged that the $35 billion estimate represented an admission by the administration that it had deliberately underestimated the cost of the Senate bill for political reasons.

Senate OKs campaign reform

By STEVE GONDEL
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Senate approved a total ban on honoraria and a limit on outside income, cutting deeply into the earnings of many senators and threatening them with an annual salary in January that is $23,000 less than House members receive.

The stiff restrictions on senators' earnings were approved by the Senate Wednesday as part of a comprehensive campaign finance reform bill. That bill passed 59-40 and was sent to the House, which is ready to begin work on its own legislation.

The provisions of the bill would apply to the 1992 Senate elections.

But passage of the bill, which has eluded Congress for years, faces a veto by President Bush because it contains limits on candidate spending and a modified form of taxpayer financing.

After brief debate, without any opposition surfacing, the Senate voted 77-23 to make the ban on honoraria — mainly speaking fees — part of the campaign finance reform bill. The amendment also would limit outside earned income to 15 percent of a senator's salary, or $15,230 as of Jan. 1.

The Senate adopted a second amendment, 51-49, placing the 15 per cent limit on unearned income as well, a move that will affect many senators who make most of their money from trusts, stocks, bonds and other holdings.

The House last year approved legislation raising salaries of its members from $89,500 to $124,400 Jan. 1, 1991. A ban on accepting fees for speeches and for other honoraria, will also go into effect on that date.

The Senate, at the same time, voted to accept cost-of-living increases that will bring their salaries to $101,400 in January but voted to permit senators to keep accepting $23,568 in honoraria.

The amendment adopted by the Senate would eliminate the honoraria, leaving senators $23,000 short in salary compared to members in the House beginning in January.

The bill would establish state-by-state voluntary spending ceilings — from $950,000 for the smallest to $5 million in the largest. The limits could be exceeded by 25 percent that would have to be financed by in-state donations of $100 or less.

Senatorial candidates who abide by the voluntary limits would get taxpayer money to pay for broadcast commercials equal to 20 percent of the ceiling; for countering independent ads costing over $10,000; to make up the difference if an opponent does not abide by the limits; and reduced mail costs.

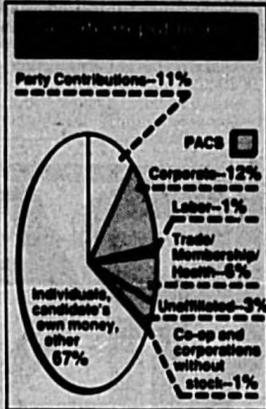

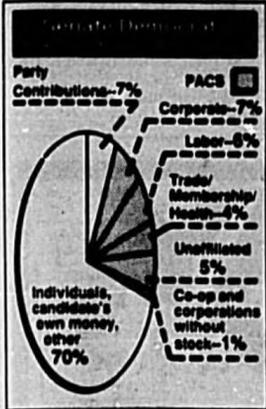

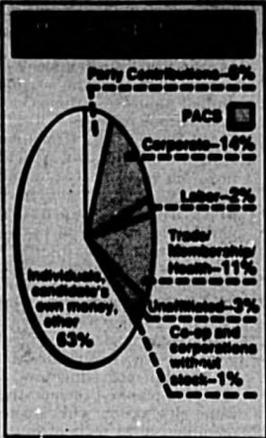

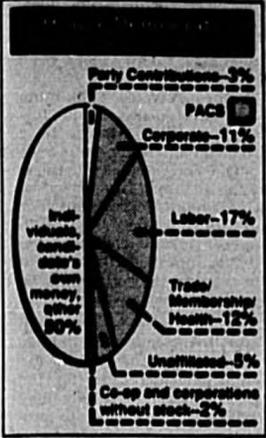

The bill also bans all contributions by political action committees; would restrict the use of "soft" money, such as contributions from labor by parties; limit to $250,000 the amount a candidate can use of his own money; limit out of state contributions to $250; and ban "bundling" of money in excess of contributions limits by political committees and lobbyists or by persons on behalf of corporations, unions or trade associations.

Democrats, who wrote most of the bill, rejected almost every Republican amendment, including a complete counterproposal offered by Senate GOP leader Robert Dole just prior to passage. The vote was 55-44.

Sen. Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., said the Bush administration was "distressed" by the content of the bill and said "this bill clearly will not become law. That was confirmed to me again by the (White House) chief-of-staff (John Sununu)."

"I don't know if this bill is going anywhere," Dole said.

Candidates for the House of Representatives in 1988 received 40 percent of their contributions from political action committees (indicated on the charts by shading). Senate candidates received 22 percent of their funding from PACs. Corporate PACs favored Republicans; labor PACs, more heavily, favored Democrats. ## Achbishop resigned over love

United Press International

ATLANTA — Former Catholic Archbishop Eugene A. Marino resigned last month as the nation's highest-ranking black clergyman because he was romantically involved with a young parishioner, church officials said.

Bishop James P. Lyke confirmed widespread reports Wednesday that Marino, 56, became romantically involved with Vicki Long, who once claimed her daughter was fathered by another priest, shortly after he took over the Atlanta archdiocese in May 1988.

Marino stepped down July 10. Long, a singer and Catholic lay minister, refused to comment. She packed some belongings at her suburban Riverdale home, bundled up her 4-year-old daughter and left her home.

While administration and congressional budget negotiators have made virtually no progress in talks on reducing the deficit, a wide range of options are open for discussion, including cuts in entitlement programs.

Among those options is a proposal to increase Medicare's Part B premium and deductible. Part B is Medicare's optional insurance plan to cover doctors' bills. Other proposals include freezing the Social Security cost-of-living increases for a year or some other time period, and increasing the portion of Social Security income subject to income tax.

Seniors warn Congress about Medicare rates

By JANEY BASS
United Press International

WASHINGTON — A senior citizens group warned budget negotiators Wednesday to forget about raising Medicare premiums or freezing Social Security cost-of-living increases, saying the proposals would push many elderly into poverty.

While administration and congressional budget negotiators have made virtually no progress in talks on reducing the deficit, a wide range of options are open for discussion, including cuts in entitlement programs.

Among those options is a proposal to increase Medicare's Part B premium and deductible. Part B is Medicare's optional insurance plan to cover doctors' bills. Other proposals include freezing the Social Security cost-of-living increases for a year or some other time period, and increasing the portion of Social Security income subject to income tax.

"Many in Congress have recognized that cutting the Social Security COLA (cost of living increase) raises revenue in a regressive manner and has a harmful financial impact on many seniors with low incomes." Families United for Senior Action said in a report titled "The Unkindest Cuts."

"Current proposals to increase beneficiary out-of-pocket costs for Medicare are equally regressive and financially burdensome for many seniors. The Congress should reject such proposals," the report said.

The group said a proposed increase in the Part B premium — to cover 30 percent of program costs by 1995 instead of the current 25 percent — and a proposed increase in the annual deductible, from $75 to $150, would cost beneficiaries 20 percent more in 1995 than a one-year freeze in Social Security cost-of-living increases.

"Nationwide, approximately 84 percent of seniors would lose at least three-quarters of their Social Security COLA."

Active women need iron from meat

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Women who spend 45 minutes or more exercising each day probably need to eat some form of meat or take supplements to get enough iron, a Florida State University researcher said Wednesday.

"The person who is serious about physical activity — whether it's distance running, aerobic dance or cycling — needs to consider whether she has enough iron and particularly whether she has enough of the right kind of iron," said Dr. Emily Haymes, a professor of nutrition, food and movement sciences at FSU.

Haymes compared the diets and blood-iron levels of distance runners, sprinters and moderately active college students. She found that all three groups consumed about the same amount of iron.

But she found that the distance runners — who on the average ate less meat — were almost three times as likely to lack sufficient iron in their blood.

The reason, Haymes said, is that an average of 14 percent of the iron from meat, poultry or fish is absorbed into the blood. Iron from vegetables and grains is absorbed at a rate of 3 to 8 percent.

"It isn't so much the total amount of iron in the diet that is important as it is the form of the iron," Haymes said. "We would suggest that, since 45 percent of the distance runners were iron depleted, a little more meat in their diets would be beneficial."

Haymes' studies also showed that highly active women lose a lot of iron through perspiration. While men lose iron through sweat as well, the loss is more critical among women because they lose a significant amount of the mineral through the menses, she said.

Iron is important in the formation of hemoglobin, which is the main carrier of oxygen in the blood. A lack of iron also can interfere with the use of energy sources stored in the muscles.

City seeking teams for Almost Anything Goes

By NICK PPRIFAU
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — In just a little over two weeks, mirth and madness will be the order of the day at Sanford's Fort Mellon Park on the lakefront as the City Recreation Department stages the second annual Almost Anything Goes Competition Aug. 18.

Jeff Monson, city recreation superintendent, said, "Right now, our main goal is to find teams. We would like to have possibly ten teams to participate in the ten events we have scheduled. It doesn't require any great sports abilities or strength just plain folks can get into this competition. All they have to do is enter and participate." He added, "But they can certainly count on getting wet."

Events planned include the water slide event, where team members carry pails of water on their heads, while going down a slide, attempting to fill a larger bucket faster than their competition. The basketball event also includes a slide, with participants trying to shoot balls while going down the slide. Another event will require participants to carry their team members through a water pit and obstacle course.

"Last year," said Monson, "we had teams from local service clubs, Sanford businesses and clubs, one from Seminole County, and even one sponsored by an Apopka business. We're contacting the same teams again this year, but we always have room for others."

The entry fee per team is $25, and must be received by the Sanford Recreation Office at City Hall by Aug. 13. With an eye toward obtaining ten teams, the entries postmarked or received the earliest will be given first consideration.

Each team must consist of four male and four female members, with one of the eight considered to be the team captain. Hopefully they will be dressed alike to provide not only easier identification, but improve their team spirit.

Starting time for the events is 9 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 18, at Fort Mellon Park. For further details, contact Jim Adams at 330-5697.

Buckey free after 7-year McMartin molestation case

By MICHAEL D. HARRIS
United Press International

LOS ANGELES — Ray Buckey, free of criminal charges in the notorious McMartin Pre-School molestation case for the first time in nearly seven years, said he filed a $20 million lawsuit seeking vindication and the money to rebuild his financially ruined family.

Superior Court Judge Stanley Weisberg formally ended the longest and costliest criminal proceeding in U.S. history Wednesday when he dismissed eight counts against Buckey on which two juries could not reach verdicts.

Despite a prosecution that began in 1984, cost at least $17.2 million, and once involved hundreds of charges, dozens of alleged child victims and seven defendants, not a single conviction was ever obtained.

"The case of People vs. Raymond Buckey is dismissed and the defendant is discharged," Weisberg said, granting a motion by Deputy District Attorney Joseph Martinez to dismiss the final counts against Buckey, a former teacher at his family's preschool in suburban Manhattan Beach.

"That's it. That concludes this case," Weisberg said as Buckey's mother, Peggy McMartin Buckey, and sister, Peggy Ann Buckey — both former defendants in the case — and his father, Charles Buckey, looked on.

Outside the courtroom, Buckey, who spent five years in jail following his 1984 arrest before being released in February 1989 on a $3 million property bond, told reporters that "the ax is no longer over my head. This is finally over and now I have to go on."

Following a trial that lasted almost three years and cost $13.2 million, Buckey, 32, and his mother were acquitted in January of 52 molestation charges stemming from the alleged sexual abuse of 11 children at the Virginia McMartin Pre-School from 1979-83.

Buckey's mother was acquitted of all the charges against her, but jurors deadlocked on 13 counts against Buckey, and he was retried on eight of those counts. But that jury also deadlocked, and prosecutors decided not to try Buckey a third time.

But, while the criminal proceedings formally ended Wednesday, the case is expected to live on in the civil courts for years.

"Money is something that hopefully we can get back," said Buckey, explaining that his family lost everything — their livelihoods and homes — fighting the charges.

"I want to rebuild my family," Buckey said. "They can never give me back five years of my life.... Vindication is something nice to have, but it's not something that's going to feed my family."

Buckey's Superior Court lawsuit accuses the county of Los Angeles, the city of Manhattan Beach, former Los Angeles County District Attorney Robert Philoebosian and others of conspiracy, defamation and violating his civil rights.

Also named are Childrens Institute International, whose controversial videotaped interviews with the alleged victims were cited by most jurors as the main reason they could not convict the Buckeys, CII therapist Kathleen "Kee" MacFarlane, Capital Cities-ABC, and Wayne Satz, the former KABC-TV reporter who broke the story.

Buckey maintained his innocence throughout, arguing that the children were brainwashed into leveling the allegations by over-zealous child therapists at the children's institute.

The case was the largest sex abuse case in U.S. history when the county grand jury handed up its initial indictments in March 1984 and made a national issue of child molestation. But five co-defendants, including Buckey's sister and grandmother, and hundreds of charges were dismissed because of insufficient evidence.

BASKETBALL

Weltlich named FIU coach

MIAMI — Bob Weltlich, former assistant athletic director and coach at the University of Texas, was named head coach of the Golden Panther basketball team, Florida International University said Wednesday.

Weltlich served as head basketball coach at Texas for six seasons from 1982 to 1988, and spent the past two seasons as the school's assistant athletic director.

He also was head coach at University of Mississippi from 1976 to 1982.

Weltlich replaces Rich Walker, who resigned from FIU to take an assistant coaching job at the University of Iowa.

Weltlich, 45, a 20-year coaching veteran, will lead FIU into its 10th season of NCAA basketball competition.

Sec expansion not over

BIRMINGHAM, Alabama — Southeastern Conference Commissioner Roy Kramer flew back from Fayetteville, Ark., Wednesday night and said landing the University of Arkansas was only the first step in the league's expansion plans.

Kramer refused to say which other schools are talking about joining the SEC, which has 11 members, but it has been reported that Florida State is at the top of the list.

"We are still having discussions with a number of other schools and will move forward with expansion," Kramer said. "There will be at least one more since we wish to maintain our membership at 12 or more."

SPBA, RMC remain tied for "D" lead

From staff reports

SANFORD — The Sanford Recreation Department Wednesday Night "D" Slowpitch Softball became a two team race as the Sanford Police Benevolent Association and RMC remained tied for first place with victories but Crazy Wings fell victim to an upset at Chase Park.

SPBA outscored Waddles B/W Market 15-10. RMC hammered Harcar Aluminum Products 11-4 and the Killer Bees hung on to upset Crazy Wings 11-9.

SPBA and RMC remain tied at the top of the standings with 8-1 records followed by Crazy Wings (5-2), the Killer Bees (3-4), Harcar (1-6) and Waddles (0-7).

Next week RMC plays Crazy Wings at 6:30 p.m., Waddles takes on Harcar at 7:30 p.m. and the Killer Bees face SPBA at 8:30 p.m.

A pair of walks and doubles by Tim Waddle and Brian Jones scored three runs in the bottom of the first inning as Waddles was looking not only for their first win of the year but also an upset of the league co-leaders.

But SPBA sent 12 batters to the plate in the top of the second inning and scored eight runs. SPBA collected two triples, a double, two singles and four walks to score the runs.

Aaron Johns led off the big inning with a triple and Tino Fontana walked. Matt Stewart ripped a double to score Johns with Fontana moving over to third. Robbie Shull and Steve Harriett hit consecutive singles for two more runs before Waddles got two outs. But two walks, a triple by Ned Golden and a

West Seminole Pony's take second

From staff reports

TAMPA — The West Seminole Pony League (13-14 year olds) All-Star team from Forest City finished second in the Southeast Regional Qualifying Tournament held in Tampa this past week.

West Seminole (the Florida State Champions) opened the tournament by thrashing Warrior River (the Alabama State Champions) 11-2. West Seminole had the bats booming in this one as they collected 15 hits, including five home runs.

Jeff Butler homered twice and Chris Fuller, Keith

Walsh and Tommy Wilson blasted one home run each. Matt Wood and Jeff Shaw also had big games with the bat.

Sean Goldstein struck out 10 Warrior River batters to get the pitching win for West Seminole.

West Seminole was not as lucky in game two however as they lost to the host Tampa Wellwood team 6-5. Tommy Grigg pitched a super game but was still tagged with the loss. Wood and Walsh provided most of the offense.

All-Star golf tournament opens tomorrow

From staff reports

DeBARY — All summer long, the members of the Junior Golf Association of Central Florida have teed it up against each other in six different tournaments.

But tomorrow, for the first time, they'll be teeing it up with each other as all-star squads from four different age groups take on all-stars from the Volusia County and Space Coast JGA's at DeBary Plantation.

For two members of the 16-18 squad, it will be just like old times. John Toth and Murphy Reynolds played as teammates for three years at Lyman High School, ending when they graduated in 1989. Toth currently holds the hot hand for the CFJGA, winning four of the six tournaments. Reynolds, a sophomore at Houston Baptist, looks to return to his college form which gave him a 75 average for the year.

Oviedo goes for title

An unidentified Oviedo Junior batter takes a pitch during Tuesday night's 6-3 win over Vero Beach at Orange City.

The Junior (13 year olds) Little Leaguers will attempt to take home the State Championship trophy tonight when it plays Seminole (Pinellas County) at 7 p.m. at Southwest Volusia Little League's Bill Thompson Field.

Seminole reached the final with a 10-4 win over Vero Beach in the losers bracket final last night. Oviedo opened the tournament with an 11-3 triumph over Seminole on Monday.

Seminole will have to beat Oviedo twice to take the title. The winner of the tournament will advance to the Southern Regional at Orlando next week.

Zinn Beck Fall Series at Stadium

Bill Korns Herald correspondent

SANFORD — At Sanford Memorial Stadium, a revamped Zinn Beck Fall Series will start play September eighth. According to former Lake Mary City Manager and Commissioner of the new league Charlie Lyle, the play "will be pro-quality ball" to try to "bring baseball back to Sanford".

Many ex-professional ball players and semi-pro's are expected to take part in the league. Among the ex-pro's expected are infielders Jeff Pryor of the Angels, Jeff Pryor of the Royals, and infielder Robert Smith of the Mets.

The Fall Series is open to all players out of high school and college ball. It will feature a ten week, ten game schedule with games on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday.

Ten to twenty teams are expected to participate and Lyle has "many plans" for further expansion. Among the incentives in the league for this year is that a part of the entry fee will be given to the winning team at the conclusion of the season. Whether it will be a winner-take-all pot or a division among the top three teams has not been decided.

Among those teams that have already agreed to compete are the Orlando Dodgers, East Coast All Stars, Sanford All Stars, Sanford Cardinals, and Robare Reds. The Pryor brothers also plan to form a team.

But even greater than the improvements in the quality of play at Sanford Stadium are the improvements in conditions and fun for the fans. Many businesses, clubs, and other organizations plan to

IN BRIEF

Historic Trust to meet

Sanford Historic Trust will meet tonight, August 2, 7 p.m., at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, located at the corner of First Street and Sanford Avenue. Bring a friend.

For more information call Laura Strachla at 330-3220 or Jean Skipper at 330-3961.

Democratic women to hold luncheon

Join the Democratic Women's Club of Seminole County for lunch, after which officers will be installed for the new year, on Saturday, August 11, noon until 2 p.m., at Thursday's Restaurant, Wilshire Plaza Casseberry.

The speaker will be Ms. Kerry McCarthy, family archivist for the Kennedys.

Reservations are $12 per person through any current club member or by calling 327-7612. This is a seated lunch, so all reservations must be in by August 8.

Membership in the club is open to all registered Democrats. The club's purpose is to educate and register all voters, especially women, and to encourage women to seek elected office and to help them win. Annual membership is $10.

Former Florida Representative Bob Hattaway will be Master of Ceremonies. Dorothea Strook, Region Chair of the DWC will be the Installation Officer. Honored guests will include Andrea Dennison, mayor of Casseberry and Noreen Hutton, candidate for Seminole County School Board, Seat 4.

March of Dimes seeks grant requests

The East Central Florida Chapter of the March of Dimes is seeking requests for grant proposals to assist with community projects that impact prenatal care. Requests for proposals must be sent to the March of Dimes office, 714 East Colonial Dr., Orlando, 32803, by August 13. Complete grants will be due in early February of 1991. Grants may be awarded for a maximum of $5,000.

In keeping with the Campaign for Healthier Babies, the grants should focus on programs that: 1) reduce financial obstacles to care 2) improve accessibility and acceptance of prenatal care 3) increase the prenatal care system for low income women 4) identify women in need of prenatal care or 5) provide social support to encourage continuation in prenatal care and smooth transition into parenthood. For more information, contact Cathy Morrison at 849-0790.

Enter our writing contest

The Sanford Herald is searching for two Seminole County high school students who are prospective journalists.

Write us a letter about a person in Seminole County whom you would like to interview. The person need not be famous. He or she could be an unsung hero who volunteers time to those less fortunate. You may choose to interview a politician, community leader, or even someone notorious. Tell us why you wish to write a story about this person.

Your letter will be reviewed by our panel of judges based on originality, clarity of thought and our accessibility to the person to be interviewed. (Remember, the person must be available for an interview.)

Two winners will be selected. Each will write a feature story, assisted by one of our editors, to appear in a future edition of the Herald.

Letters should be typed or printed legibly. Include your name, street address, city and daytime phone number.

Deliver or mail to "Feature Story Contest," Sanford Herald, 300 N. French Ave., Sanford, 32771.

There is no maximum length limit on letters.

Entries are due at the Herald office by 1 p.m., Friday August 10.

Happy August birthday

Every month members of the Pilots Club visit the Good Samaritan Home in Sanford to help residents who were born during that month celebrate birthdays. Punch, cake and ice cream are served. Each resident receives a dollar bill tucked inside a birthday card. Singing "Happy Birthday" from left are: Atha Sanders, Marian Rethwill, Florence Taylor, Betty Sandage, and Mae Pawson.

Child can disappear in split second

DEAR ABBY: I have read your column faithfully for years and have learned a lot from it. After reading today's paper, I just had to write. I have attached an article from this morning's newspaper telling about parents who left their 2-month-old baby asleep in the backseat of their unlocked car at 8 p.m. while they shopped at a mall. They returned half an hour later to find their baby missing. The parents are offering $500 and the local radio station a $10,000 reward for information leading to the safe return of the baby.

Abby, I have stood beside cars watching unattended children until their parents returned. I would never forgive myself if I had left and something happened to those children.

Please print this message for parents: You have an obligation to protect your children from harm — and you have no right to leave them alone for 10 minutes or 10 seconds! If you have shopping to do, take the child with you — or one day you may not have that option.

LOVES CHILDREN: DEAR LOVES CHILDREN: Thanks for caring enough to write. Your message might remind some parents to think twice before leaving their child unattended in a parked car for "only a few minutes."

DEAR ABBY: Several overweight women wrote to tell you of the abuse they took from strangers because they were fat. I, on the other hand, have had my share of humiliation because I am tall — nearly 6 feet without heels, but I'm well-proportioned.

Once when I was wearing a green outfit, I was called The Jolly Green Giant. Another time, I walked into a dress shop and the salesperson looked me up and down and said, "We don't have anything in here to fit you." I was crushed at her tone and left — almost in tears.

I seem to tower over other women who don't even want to stand next to me because, as one said, "You make me feel so short and dumpy." Also, I believe my height intimidates them. I order most of my clothes and shoes from catalogs. I dress in a feminine manner and wear makeup and conspicuous jewelry so as not to look like a man.

My husband is not the most companionable person, and I'd like to have a good female friend to go to lunch, shopping or to the movies with occasionally. Life is lonely at times when one is not average.

the U.S. Marine Corps at the time.)

My mother's bill was $71 I'm told that this was to cover the cost of meals while she was in the hospital — a total of five days. I am enclosing a copy of the receipt.

TARA MATHEWS,
SOUTH ORANGE, N.J.

DEAR TARA: Thus far, you're the winner. If anyone out there can top you, I'm sure we'll hear.

DEAR ABBY: I've never written to you before, but I don't know who else to turn to. My problem is my fiancé. He's hardworking and generous, and I love him, but he has one bad fault. He has a terrible temper. If I do something he doesn't like — or if I'm around him when something goes wrong — he takes it out on me. He swears and hollers at me something terrible. I'm overweight and not a very secure person. He used to hit me, but he hasn't hit me in a long time. He just says, "If you were a man, I'd punch you out!"

I've asked him many times not to threaten me or cuss me out, but he still does it. We're getting married in three weeks, and I'm hoping he will change after we're married, but how can a person be sure? Have you any last-minute advice?

"COLD FEET" IN TEXAS

DEAR COLD FEET: Yes. Postpone your wedding until both you and your fiancé have had marriage counseling — and your feet warm up. He needs to learn how to deal with his anger without verbally abusing you. And you need to understand why you tolerate it.

No one should go into a marriage "hoping" his or her prospective mate will change. (They rarely do without counseling.)

Postponing a marriage may be inconvenient, painful, embarrassing and expensive, but it's preferable to a divorce anytime.

Denial is typical of alcohol abuse

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 32-year-old girlfriend has a problem, but she refuses to discuss it. Each evening, she has three beers with her dinner, and afterward she has two 3-ounce drinks of vodka mixed with diet pop. Her hair breaks off at about six inches, she wakes up with spots on her face and alcohol on her breath. I say she is consuming too much alcohol, and it will affect her health. She disagrees.

DEAR READER: Of course she disagrees. She may not relish giving up her best friend: booze.

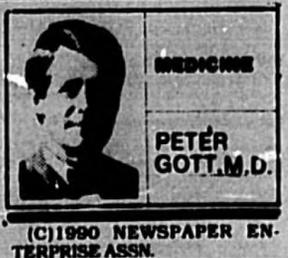

It's not my place (or yours) to decide if your girlfriend is an alcoholic; only she can decide that when she's ready. However, if it looks like a duck, walks like a duck and quacks like a duck... At the very least, she has a problem with alcohol. Six ounces of vodka plus three beers a day is, by any criterion, excessive drinking.

I suspect she knows she has a problem, even though she won't discuss it. One of the alcoholic's most treasured character faults is denial. It sounds to me as though your girlfriend is heavily involved in denial. Of course, this attitude makes it impossible for you to help her. Rather than changing her behavior, your observations about her drinking will more likely lead to arguments and acrimony.

Get some help for yourself. Join Al-Anon, a support group for people whose loved ones are heavy drinkers. You'll find a lot of sympathy, support and wisdom in Al-Anon meetings. With time and knowledge, you may be better able to approach your girlfriend's alcohol problem.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Help II — Mental/Substance Abuse." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

This is the fifth year of the Epson Worldwide Bridge Contest. On June 8, tens of thousands of players from scores of countries participated by simultaneously playing the same hands. The points awarded for the various results on each deal were predetermined, so participants could compute their scores as soon as their particular competition ended. Bridge celebrity expert Omar Sharif wrote an analysis of each deal, and copies of this write-up were available at the end of the game for all the players. Today's deal is board number 1 of the competition. After East's one-heart opening, South has enough high cards to risk a club overall. When West jumps to four hearts, North is justified in saving in five clubs, particularly since the contract may just make. Since the jump to four hearts was pre-emptive rather than showing great strength, East leaves the next decision to West. With a defensive trick (the spade ace), West can double. South ruffs the opening heart lead, plays a club back to his queen and then plays the jack of spades. West wins the ace and plays another heart. Declarer ruffs in dummy, plays a second club and then gets to dummy with a spade to lead diamonds. Since West has shown up with the spade ace, East should hold the diamond ace. But can East hold the A-Q-x of diamonds? Not likely, since West might well have led a singleton diamond. So South should rise with his diamond king, getting out for only down one when the ace and queen next fall together and East takes his high trump.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Cool
YOUR BIRTHDAY
August 3, 1990

In the year ahead you are likely to experience major improvements in several areas of your life. One of them could be your ability to make money.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you want some work you're presently having done for you performed faster or more efficiently it might be wise to offer the performer a little bit more than the going rate. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Endeavors that call for you to be both bold and clever will be the ones you'll be able to perform the best today. The aforementioned attributes will be the most prevalent in your make-up.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In developments today that require tenacity and staying power, the aspects indicate you'll have the edge over your competitors. These qualities will come into play when challenged.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is a good day to get together with a friend you haven't seen much of lately. If you take time to plan something, your friend will find the free time to participate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You could be rather daring today in involvements where there is a possibility for personal gain. To the observer, it might look like you are taking foolish risks, but you'll know what you're doing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It might be necessary for you to take a stance today in a complicated involvement in order to protect your self-interests. This is one of those occasions where you must defend your rights.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll have a better chance of achieving your objectives today if you don't broadcast your intentions in advance. Plan carefully, then carry them out as secretly as possible.

FISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There is a possibility today an that old friend of yours might introduce you to someone you've been very eager to meet. This is a person with whom you'll find you'll have much in common.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you are properly motivated today there isn't much doubt about your getting what you go after. Select objectives that are meaningful to you in material ways.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today you might have to be a bit more assertive than usual in order to get your ideas across to associates. Fortunately, you'll know how to do it in a manner they'll not find offensive.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your greatest asset today is your ability to take sound suggestions from others and use them in ways that are better than what was initially envisioned. Constructive results are likely.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It might be necessary for you to stand up for a friend today who isn't as bold as you are. Don't let someone who always comes on strong get away with intimidating your pal.
