Cemetery prices to increase

SANFORD — The cost of cemetery plots in the Sanford City Cemetery went up Monday night. The Sanford City Commission voted unanimously to increase the cost of spaces by $100.

The cost for the plots has been $350, but Parks Department statistics indicate the average cost throughout the area is $465. Prices per plot shown by the survey range from a high of $750 at Oaklawn in Sanford and the Orlando cemeteries, to a low of $300 at Ocala and Sanford's Restlawn, across from the Sanford cemetery on W. 25th Street.

Director of Parks Jim Jernigan also called for an increase in the cost of baby plots from $15 to $50 and establishment of cremation spaces which will sell for $150. He noted a marked increase of 40 percent in cemetery lot sales between 1989 and 1990, especially during the final quarter of last year.

The demand for cremation spaces has also increased lately. Jernigan said there are some lots at the cemetery area which are of no use, because of their size. He suggested that most of those areas could be designated for cremation sites and sold. The normal cremation space is either 2 1/2 by 2 1/2 feet or 3 by 3 feet in size. With the land available, several hundred could be provided.

Ewwwwwww! Roaches!

NEW YORK — Fashion designer Karen Raus spent hours creating a faux-pearl necklace with simulated diamonds. But she refused to model, or even hold it, for photographers.

The centerpiece is a 1 1/2-inch cockroach — a dead cockroach.

Raus is one of the hundreds of contestants, lured out of the woodwork by cash prizes, who submitted creative cockroach entries to the fifth annual Roach-a-rama.

She's vying for $500 — and a year's free supply of roach poison — in the creative division. Other contestants hope to win $1,000 with the biggest bug.

At a news conference Monday in the basement of the Empire State Building, Raus said she used tweezers to mold her masterpiece. The jewelry design was her second choice.

Chamber OKs sales tax

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The board of directors of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce voted unanimously this morning to support the county's proposed 10-year penny sales tax to help finance a $300 million road improvement program.

The endorsement follows a string of rejections by three cities opposed to sharing their potential share of the $25 million annual tax collections

It was a strong indication our community leaders see a need for those road improvements.

-Jim Young, chamber president with the county. Casselberry commissioners unanimously rejected it last night. Longwood and Oviedo opposed the county proposal earlier this month. County officials sought unified city support to convince voters to support it July 9.

"It was a very important vote," said chamber president Jim Young. "It was a strong indication our community leaders see a need for those road improvements."

Young said he believed the 27 directors supported the plan based on a countywide need, not because it included several road improvements in the Sanford area. The 10-year plan includes improvements to Airport Boulevard. See Tax, Page 5A

James Brooks Jr. presents petitions with 600 Goldsboro names to City Clerk Jan Donahoe.

600 sign petition asking city to solve Goldsboro problem

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — James H. Brooks, Jr. presented petitions containing an estimated 600 names of Goldsboro residents last night, requesting the Sanford City Commission take action to eliminate problems connected with poor drainage in their residential area.

Brooks, who operates First Impression's Early Childhood Development Center, represented the citizens of the Goldsboro community. He told the commissioners, "Some of the problems involve open ditches along our streets, standing full of water with broken glass and metal in the water."

He said there has already been a drowning in the Goldsboro area because of high water in ditches. "I have children from age 7 up who come to my business," he said. "There are no sidewalks and they have to walk in the streets that are deep with water every time it rains, all due to improper drainage."

Mayor Bettye Smith asked City Manager Bill Simmons to relate the action taken by the city since she and Simmons met with Brooks at a gathering of residents in Goldsboro early this month.

Simmons said he has been following the community's problems very closely. "We've already begun some work on the 7th street area," he said, "and right now we are doing a block by block analysis of the whole area so we can make a list of projects." He said city crews had already discovered some sanitary sewers missing. "In the weeks to come," he added, "you will see Public Works vehicles driving in your area." He told Brooks a priority list will be made as soon as the study is over. "We will begin individual ditch work as soon as we know exactly what drainage areas are needed," he said.

Mayor Smith assured Brooks and several Goldsboro residents who were in the audience See Petition, Page 5A

School, county officials tackle growth issues

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — School officials are ready to tackle the goal of pacing schools with new homes, said Seminole County School Board Chairman Joe Williams.

"We're going to have to assume some new roles," Williams said Monday. "But that is something that is happening all around the state. Development creates growth and that's a fact that we all have to live with."

County commissioners and school board members agreed to a set of goals Monday that would enable the county to do what school officials have long demanded — pace new developments with the availability of school space. School officials learned Monday that is not an easy task.

"You can always put a few more cars on a road and traffic will just go a little slower," said school board member Jeanne Morris. "But with schools, you have just so much space for desks and that's it."

"You have to come up with a (school construction plan) that has to be realistic and not 'What would we like?'" said county commissioner Larry Furlong.

County commissioners, though pushed by Furlong, have been reluctant to formally include schools in their development approval process because school officials have not developed a See Issues, Page 5A

National Hospital Week celebrated

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Central Florida Regional Hospital is in the process of observing National Hospital Week with an array of events scheduled for the entire staff. Including part time and pool employees who are called upon as needed. Central Florida Regional Hospital has over 700 people on staff.

Public Relations Coordinator Susan Prather said, "There are so many different weeks during the course of the year including Visiting Nurses Week, Pediatric Nurses Week, Obstetric Nurses Week, and various doctor's weeks. We decided to observe it all at once so we're paying tribute to everyone on the entire staff during this week."

A series of events have been planned for this week. Portraits of staff members and their families were made Saturday and Sunday, while yesterday was "Free Meal Day". Every person received one free meal of their choice depending on their work schedule. Free breakfast was served today for the morning shift and there will be a sub sandwich party for the evening shift.

Tomorrow is popcorn day with free popcorn available to all employees for the entire day. Three stress management seminars will also be offered to hospital staff members as well as other CERH employees. "Many of our people need these seminars," Prather said, "due to the difficult nature of many of their jobs in dealing with patients and their loved ones." The seminars are appropriately titled, "You Do Serve a Break Today." See Hospital, Page 5A

Boat lift helps in unloading Army trucks

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — The National Guard's 1265 Ordnance Company in Longwood received a number of new semi-trailers yesterday. The beige colored trailers arrived at the Lake Monroe Marina in Sanford, on board flat bed trucks.

The trailers, according to one Army man were originally schedule to be sent to Saudi Arabia but the war ended before the trucks could be shipped. Seven of the units were to be shipped from Letter Kenny Army Depot at Cumberland, Pennsylvania to Sanford by riding on flat bed trucks.

Sgt. Kevin Kewley at the Longwood National Guard headquarters on W. Warren Avenue said, "They are new trailers for us. Basically we'll use them for storage vans. By noon yesterday only four had arrived. The fifth one was delivered shortly before 2:30 in the afternoon, and the final two arrived Tuesday."

The unloading was accomplished at the rear of the Monroe Harbour Marina complex using a motorized unit called a marine travel lift normally used to move large boats.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Elderly, child care costs debated

Nursing home costs up an average 8.7 percent

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Higher nurses' salaries, tougher federal requirements and the rising minimum wage may explain an 8.7 percent increase last year for the average cost of a semi-private room at a nursing home, a health care official says.

"I think these are very good and very reasonable explanations," said Erwin Bodo, spokesman for the Florida Health Care Association, which represents 90 percent of Florida's nursing homes.

The Florida Health Care Cost Containment Board on Monday issued the results of a nursing home survey that revealed the cost increase.

"At the median charge of $75 a day for a semi-private room, a one-year stay, which is not unusual, could cost over $27,000," said James Bracher, the board's executive director.

It is the third nursing home cost survey the board has conducted and covers a 15-month period through last September. The panel collects cost data but does not regulate nursing home finances.

Medicaid, the joint federal-state health insurance program for poor people, pays just over half of the nursing home bills in the state. Private insurance pays about 30 percent and Medicare, the federal health program for the elderly, about 12 percent.

But even so, Florida consumers in 1990 paid more than $417 million out of pocket for nursing home care.

The least-expensive semi-private rooms were in the Panhandle, where the median private-pay daily charge was $65. The most-expensive region, for the second straight year, was Palm Beach County, where the median was $85. Dade and Broward counties followed at $84.

"When comparing charges, the citizens of Florida need to realize that the rate at each nursing home may include different services," Bracher said.

"Every facility determines the services it will include in the basic room charge and the services that will cost extra, such as laundry, telephone, television, wheelchair therapies, transportation and medication."

For the first time, the board collected information on laundry charges. It found a Medicaid patient who gets only $35 a month in spending money may have to pay $15 to $20 for laundry.

The 1990 Guide to Nursing Home Charges in Florida, which comes in 10 regional editions, can be obtained by calling 1-800-342-0820.

DAYCARE RANK

The five most expensive and the least expensive metropolitan areas for weekly day-care costs in 1990

1. Boston, MA $209	6. Ogden, UT $39
2. New York, NY 99	7. Mobile, AL 42
3. Anchorage, AK 91	8. Jackson, MS 40
4. Manchester, NH 97	9. Washington, WV 40
5. Washington, DC 97	10. Columbia, SC 40

Note: Costs are based on a 2-year-old who spends 4 hours a week in a for-profit day-care center in a suburban community surrounding the central city.

Infant care may be too expensive under bill

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — A state social services official disputes claims by some day-care owners that legislation on staff-to-children ratios will make infant care too expensive.

Pamela Hutchinson, a day-care licensing specialist with the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, said she doubted the bill, awaiting action by Gov. Lawton Chiles, would kill commercial infant care.

Florida law now says for every six babies less than a year old, a day-care facility must provide one staff member. The legislation would change that to one worker for every four babies.

It also would require more workers for toddlers and increase training requirements for staffers from 20 to 30 hours. Additionally, it would require that day-care centers pay the $4.25 hourly minimum wage that took effect in March.

Some day-care operators say the legislation would increase the average weekly fee for commercial infant day care from $65 to at least $100 a week.

Gays protest over restaurant policy

TALLAHASSEE — Business returned to normal at a Tallahassee restaurant franchise targeted by a gay-rights group as a discriminatory employer.

"There were no incidents today. It was a good Monday," said Rich Bray, associate manager at the Cracker Barrel Old Country Store said Monday.

An estimated 45 people who support gay rights conducted a two-hour sit-in protest Sunday during the height of the Mother's Day dinner rush at the restaurant. At least seven people supporting the company's hiring rights joined in a counter-protest. They ordered meals and stayed in the restaurant until the protesters left shortly before 2 p.m. Sunday.

The gays and their supporters drank coffee, tea or soda during their sit-in to protest Cracker Barrel's national hiring policy they say discriminates against gays.

Woman pauses on road, is killed

FORT LAUDERDALE — A woman was killed when she paused in the middle of highway 880 and her car was rear-ended by a Mobil Oil Co. gasoline tanker, the Florida Highway Patrol and witnesses said.

"For some reason, the lady in the Olds just simply was stopped right in the middle of the lane," FHP Lt. Mike Metz said Monday after the incident. "From the driver's compartment to the rear, everything was burned and crushed."

Metz said the woman, who could not immediately be identified, died at the scene despite efforts to revive her. The tanker truck was empty and its driver, Thomas Bottolshon, 43, of Davie, was not at fault, Metz said.

Man who asked to die is granted wish

LAKE CITY — A Texas man who has asked to die in the electric chair for the murder of a Columbia County teenager was granted his request Monday as a judge imposed the death penalty.

Victor Marcus Farr, 29, ignored his attorney's advice last month and pleaded guilty to first-degree murder of Shirley Bryant, 17, of Lake City and asked for the death penalty.

In December, Farr shot and wounded two women in their car at Tom's Place bar in Lake City. He then abducted Ms. Bryant in her friend's car. After crossing into Hamilton County, Farr drove into a tree, killing Ms. Bryant.

Farr's attorney, William Slaughter, called the case strange and said he could not talk Farr out of seeking the death penalty.

"It's not totally unusual for someone to plead guilty to a murder," Slaughter said. "What was utterly unique is that the state would have to demand the death penalty before he would plead. He stood fast in that throughout."

Second murder trial begins

ST. PETERSBURG — Jury selection began Monday in the trial of a man charged as an accomplice in the execution-style murders of three Domino's Pizza employees in Vero Beach.

Authorities say Michael Gene Lovette and co-defendant Thomas Anthony Wyatt escaped from prison in North Carolina three years ago, stole a car in Jacksonville and made their way south to Vero Beach.

The two men are accused of robbing the pizza store on May 17, 1988, and then fatally shooting the manager-in-training William Edwards, raping and shooting his wife and driver, Frances Edwards, and shooting driver Masoud "Matthew" Boraspan.

Wyatt has been convicted and sentenced to death for his role as the triggerman in the slayings. Lovette faces three counts of first-degree murder as well as sexual battery, kidnapping, armed robbery, grand theft and arson charges.

State Attorney Bruce Colton appeared confident that Lovette would be convicted.

DOT cleans old dumps

FAIRBANKS, Fla. — Residents of this North Florida community were forced to drink bottled water for several years because state highway workers dumped solvents, road paints and liquid asphalt in a nearby maintenance yard.

Wells became contaminated by leaking chemicals from the Department of Transportation facility. More than 1,100 barrels with contaminants were removed in 1983, but much of the chemicals had already leaked out.

It cost the DOT $500,000 to connect 50 homes in Fairbanks to Gainesville city water, and its residents were forced to drink bottled water in the interim between the time the well contamination was discovered and the water line could be extended.

"We just take them one at a time. We don't want another Fairbanks," said Don Quillo Jr., assistant district engineer in Lake City.

DOT environmental specialist Cheryl Murrin and Quillo say the DOT is working hard to right the wrongs of an earlier generation that carelessly disposed of waste, but the search has lacked money and organization.

Florida issues health advisory on shark meat

By BERRY KALISSTAD
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Florida officials say too much shark may be hazardous to your health.

Two state agencies issued a joint health advisory Monday after state scientists found too much poisonous mercury in shark samples.

"For those who continue eating shark, the frequency and amount consumed is directly related to the risk of mercury poisoning," said Dr. Charles Mahan, state health officer.

Officials said adults should eat shark meat no more than once a week and children and women of childbearing age should not eat shark more than once a month.

"At these levels, and with the relatively small amount of shark meat consumed, the current situation does not appear to constitute an acute health hazard," Agriculture Commissioner Bob Crawford said. "However, all consumers, particularly children and pregnant women, should avoid eating shark frequently."

Excessive amounts of methyl mercury can short circuit the central nervous system and impair vision, coordination and in the worst case cause death.

Death appeal procedures may change

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Reforms being studied by a state Supreme Court commission could speed up the handling of death appeals in Florida and reduce the need for multiple death warrants before executions.

The reforms have two objectives: to put an end to the years of waiting that are followed by last-minute scrambles to state and federal courts and to streamline a system that has been dreadfully slow.

But even if the changes are implemented, it could still take six years or more for an average case to wind its way through the courts.

The average now is eight years. Serial killer Ted Bundy sat on death row for a decade before he was executed. One inmate was there from September 1973 until his sentence was vacated by the Supreme Court in January.

Govs. Bob Graham, Bob Martinez and Lawton

Chiles signed 294 death warrants — as many as five times for some inmates — since executions resumed in 1976, but only 26 were carried out.

More than 300 inmates are still on death row, at least 60 of them have been there for more than 10 years.

If reforms suggested by the high court commission succeed, a death warrant signed by the governor will mean what it says.

Bobby Brochin, a lawyer who monitors death penalty cases for the governor, calls the streamlining proposal a step in the right direction. But if the process reverts to its old, slow manner, Chiles may step in, he said.

"The governor might have to look at signing a warrant on a case that's just sitting there," Brochin said.

Some appeals sit untouched for years until a death warrant is signed. Martinez signed 139 death warrants in four years; nine of the defendants were executed.

Doctors divided on legalizing pot to treat AIDS and cancer

Associated Press

WEST PALM BEACH — Nearly half of U.S. cancer specialists responding to a Harvard University questionnaire on medicinal use of marijuana said they would prescribe the drug if it were legal.

A slightly smaller percentage of the specialists said that despite the illegality of the drug, they have recommended it to patients to enhance appetite and to relieve nausea brought on by chemotherapy. The results were published in last week's Annals of Internal Medicine.

In Florida, marijuana is being used by an increasing number of cancer and AIDS patients, although doctors remain reluctant to prescribe it.

Cancer and AIDS specialists in Florida say some of their patients smoke the drug, but they say they don't advocate it and don't see any great need for it to be legalized as a medicine.

"Quite a few of my patients tell me they smoke pot, and it seems to help," said Dr. Ron Wiewora, medical director of the Palm Beach County AIDS clinic. "They use it to control the side effects of AZT and to stimulate appetites."

Yet Wiewora said he sees no need for the drug to be legalized because a synthetic form of marijuana is available in pill form by prescription. "It should work just as well," he said.

A Panama City Beach couple recently won federal approval to use marijuana to alleviate the side effects of AZT, an anti-viral drug used to treat AIDS sufferers.

In April, Kenny and Barbra Jenks won a Tallahassee appeals court ruling overturning a drug-use conviction in view of medical necessity — and that legal ambivalence is reflected in the medical community as well.

Preservation experts share advice

Sanford efforts detailed here, St. Augustine

By VERA BUCHHEIM
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Mayor Bettye Smith announced Monday night that she and three other Sanford residents have been selected to make an address in St. Augustine, May 15. The subject will be "Preservation in the South: A Community-Wide Effort."

In addition to Mayor Smith, others who will speak include Alicia Clarke, president of the Sanford Historic Trust, and S.C. Owslin, of the Sanford Historic Preservation Board.

The four were invited to speak by the Historic St. Augustine Preservation Board as part of its 1991 Spring Lecture Series dealing with current perspectives in historic preservation.

The lectures are free and open to the public beginning at 7:30 p.m. on May 15 in the Government House in St. Augustine.

Mayor Smith announced that on the night prior to the special lecture, Laura Strachia and

Monday night

12-17 National Preservation Week in Sanford, Strachia and Commissioner Len Howell (back) live in the city's historic district.

Lacey, beginning at 8 p.m. on May 15. The slide show, which will be part of the overall St. Augustine presentation, will be open to all interested persons.

School Board weighs offer to buy center

By VERA BUCHHEIM
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Seminole County school board will vote this afternoon on whether or not to accept the offer of $400,000 for its no-longer-used transportation center in Longwood.

The transportation center is located on Timocuan Way in Longwood.

Land being sold by the school board must be assessed every six months and a fair market value must be established. In the most recent assessment, the old transportation facility was valued at $490,000 by two property appraisers and $427,000 by a third.

The fair market value was therefore established at $490,000.

The department of facilities for the school district is presently looking over the offer made by Fausto G. DaSilva, Jose M. Bruno and Joaquim G. DaSilva to see if they want to accept the offer.

If the offer is accepted, the purchasing party has agreed to put $30,000 down. They then have 110 to obtain a loan for the remaining $360,000 if the offer is accepted.

Before the sale can be consummated, the school district must make certain that all the buildings on the property meet with government environmental regulations, including asbestos abatement regulations.

While the contract calls for the closing to be on July 15, the buyers have the option to postpone that date until the district completes all necessary work on the property.

The contract calls specifically for all chemicals and other similar pollutants to be removed from the property before the sale is made. There are currently several gas tanks, used for fueling buses in the past, on the property.

The superintendent has not made a recommendation about accepting or rejecting the offer at this time.

The school board meets in the district board room, 1211 Mellonville Ave. in Sanford, this afternoon at 3:30 p.m.

Special session needed

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles said lawmakers will have to return to the Capitol for a quick special session to approve the transfer of millions of dollars from trust funds to cover a tax shortfall.

"We don't have enough time to really get into saving enough money," Chiles said Monday. "So I think we're going to have a short session."

The regular session, which lasted 59 days, ended May 2.

The governor, who met late Monday with Speaker T.K. Wetherell, didn't say when he would call lawmakers back to town, but the fiscal year ends June 30.

Discovery investigation charges

Thomas David Stevens, 25, of 4027 Nelson Blvd. in Sanford was arrested on Friday and charged with discovery investigation.

He allegedly was standing outside a neighbor's house peering in the windows to see what he could see. When the neighbor, he learned Stevens and his son.

He was transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was held on $100 bond.

Longwood man charged with Stealing

John Alan Smith, 25, of 202 Second St. in Longwood, was arrested on Friday and charged with stealing credit cards, checks and cash from a store in a public place.

According to the arrest report, Smith was seen leaving the store with a credit card, a check and cash. He was charged with stealing a total of $100.

He allegedly refused to cooperate with officers who then arrested him.

As he was being booked at the Longwood facility, he allegedly told the arresting officer, "Just wait. One day we'll see each other again and you won't be in uniform and you'll look."

He was transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was held on $5,000 bond.

Three charged with shoplifting

The following people were charged with retail or petty theft Monday by area police:

• Amanda B. Truband, 47, 2212 W. Mitch Court, Sanford, was charged with retail theft by Sanford police after the manager of the Winn-Dixie grocery store on Airport Boulevard reported seeing her leaving the store without paying for several items she placed in her purse.

• Shelia Yvonne Wright, 25, 23604 Dolar Way, Midway, was charged with petty theft by Alamo Springs police after a Marshall's Department Store security officer reported seeing her stuffing clothes valued at $91 in her handbag.

• Souphachone Viladick, 19, 136 Pineda St., Longwood, was charged with shoplifting by Sanford police after the assistant manager of the Eckerd's Drugstore on South Orlando Drive reported he triggered the anti-theft alarm when he attempted to leave the store Monday afternoon. A hand scanner revealed three pairs of sunglasses valued at $60 in his pockets. Arrest reports state.

Longwood drug raid nets four

A combined Sanford and Longwood Police Investigative unit, with a search warrant, raided a building at 109 Hill Top Drive in Longwood Friday night.

The raid was prompted after undercover agents were able to make two drug buys last Wednesday from a person at the house. The buys for $60 and later $150 were for crack cocaine.

During the Longwood raid, Walter Lee Stevens, 25, of 2661 S. Magnolia Avenue in Sanford was arrested and charged in connection with two sales.

Others arrested included Joseph Michael Crist, 28, Randall Aaron Nellis, 30, and Bradley Paul Jackson, 23, all residents of the home. Police reported finding crack cocaine hidden in both Crist's and Nellis' bedrooms, as well as the bathroom in which Jackson was found hiding. In all three cases, drug paraphernalia was reportedly discovered as well.

In addition to the charges against Stevens, all of the men have been charged with possession of a controlled substance, and possession of paraphernalia.

All four have been confined to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

Gardening fan nabbed

As Lake Mary Police officers were checking the area behind the Oak Plaza early Sunday morning, hours before the store's opening time, they spotted an automobile parked behind the Food Lion store with the trunk open.

They investigated and found a number of items in the trunk similar to those sold by Food Lion. The items included four bags of potting soil, three Boston ferns and one Pathos plant.

As they checked the front of the store area, they found Dennis Keith Clark, 44, of 210 E. Floyd Avenue in Lake Mary, who reportedly told officers he was looking over the store's supply of items.

Clark was arrested and charged with theft. The extent of the theft was still to be determined, following additional reports on the value of the items taken and a further investigation. Clark was placed in the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

NASA declares 8 a.m. May 22 as launch time

By BARBARA DUNN

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — NASA has set May 22 for the launch of space shuttle Columbia with seven astronauts, 30 rats and 2,400 tiny jellyfish.

The nine-day mission, in which the astronauts will conduct medical tests on one another to gauge adaptation to space, will be the third shuttle flight in less than two months. The countdown for the 8 a.m. EDT liftoff begins Saturday.

It will be the 41st flight of a shuttle and the first one since 1985 to use the Spacelab module, a laboratory that fits in the cargo bay. The astronauts will reach the module from the cabin by way of a tunnel.

The rats, which will be in cages in the module, will be used in experiments designed in part to learn how the absence of gravity affects the creatures.

The jellyfish will be stored in flasks, and their metamorphosis will be examined. It will be the first time jellyfish have flown in space.

As Columbia orbits 164 miles above Earth, the astronauts will monitor each other's heart rates, blood pressure and nervous systems. Their muscular and skeletal systems also will be analyzed.

Scientists hope to improve their understanding of space sickness and changes in people's muscle, bones and cells in the weightlessness of space.

Duplicity

The once-bright prospect of sharply reducing the Soviet Union's overseas armaments in Europe has dimmed now that hard-liners have reasserted control over the Kremlin. Moscow's bad-faith dealings on the critical issue of conventional forces is also jeopardizing superpower negotiations on a treaty to cut nuclear arms.

Last November the 23 nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Warsaw Pact signed a sweeping agreement to eliminate tanks, artillery, aircraft, missiles and other weaponry from the Atlantic to the Urals. Now, however, Soviet military leaders are refusing to comply with a key aspect of the treaty. Their voices appear to hold sway in the Kremlin now that Mikhail Gorbachev has turned to reactionary elements to keep his regime in power.

At issue are three Soviet motorized infantry divisions which Moscow insists are not covered by the arms treaty.

These divisions, which include roughly 50,000 troops and thousands of tanks, armored personnel carriers and artillery pieces, were units of the Red Army until only a few months ago. That's when the Soviets assigned them to the coast guard, reclassifying them as naval adjuncts. The stated purpose of this move was to place the divisions outside the scope of the treaty, which does not cover naval forces.

Because of Moscow's duplicity, President Bush has refused to submit the conventional forces treaty to the Senate for ratification. Secretary of State James Baker has said he will not do so until the Soviets acknowledge that the treaty encompasses the three divisions.

But three senior members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee — Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., Joseph Biden, D-Del., and Jesse Helms, R-N.C. — are urging Mr. Bush to send the treaty to the Senate immediately. They believe the best way to induce Soviet compliance is for the Senate to ratify the agreement but attach a condition stipulating that the three divisions must be included in the Soviet force reductions. Meanwhile, leading Democrats on Capitol Hill are urging the administration to complete promptly the negotiations on nuclear armaments.

Under the current situation, sending the treaty to the Senate for ratification would set a very bad precedent.

Moscow literally began cheating on the agreement within weeks of its signing. At stake is a vital matter of principle — namely, whether the Soviet Union is a reliable negotiating partner that can be trusted to observe the terms of the treaties it signs. The sudden resignation of former Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and the ascendant role of hard-line leaders from the military and the KGB have stirred legitimate doubts about whether the Kremlin can be trusted.

If implemented in good faith, the conventional forces accord would make an important contribution to stability in Europe. It would eliminate Moscow's superiority in troops and hardware and codify the Soviet pullback from Central Europe that already is under way.

But a treaty honored by only one party and violated by the other is worse than useless. It is potentially dangerous. Until the Soviet Union demonstrates its intent to comply fully with the treaty it signed in November, the Bush administration should withhold it from Senate ratifications and defer signing any others.

"Let's bury the hatchet!"

Quiet riots ravage our inner cities

There were riotous scenes in the St. Francis center of Washington, D.C., last week, 48-5000 members of the Neighborhood Union Party of the 1980s. Police officers responded to street-level disorders that erupted from the center in a neighborhood that had been in a state of chaos since the 1960s. Mayor Charles Pratt Davis recently resigned a member. The question that immediately arose was whether this was the result of a new cycle of urban violence or simply another instance of the rage which rages just beneath the surface of most big American cities.

The question raises a more important point. Inner-city America has been in a state of continuous violence for more than two decades. While it has been a quiet riot, turned inward for the most part and staged intermittently by small groups and individuals rather than by angry mobs, the toll has been devastating. The burning and looting of the Watts section of Los Angeles a quarter of a century ago did not begin to match its effects. Today, in vast portions of our most depressing cities, the physical terrain is so more blighted than the hopes of those who live there.

But when devastation in the last quarter of the century has not produced a focused response from Washington.

Lyndon Johnson appointed the Kerner Commission to report on the causes and cures of urban violence and primarily tried to blame the Negroes and their institutions. Subsequent commissions have for the most part turned away from the general question, suggesting that the Negroes bear the blame or that the government is primarily responsible for the violence.

They point up the riots and blame for the suburbs.

Government statistics offer compelling evidence. Unemployment rates for blacks are three times higher than for whites; they are twice as high for Hispanics as for whites. Income — what is made each year — is somewhat more lopsided, though the disparities are still coming. The median white household had an income of $9,954 per month, black $1,208 and Hispanic $1,599 in 1986. But white, that majority of all whites within 25 miles showed a huge gap. Median white household income was $28,300 in 1986, according to the Census Bureau. For blacks, the figure was $6,170 and for Hispanics, $5,580.

Even these figures do not tell the whole story of inner-city life. Just as there has been a growing shortage among white Americans along their coast over the past decade or so, there are significant class differences for and among blacks and Hispanics. Those who make it successfully do what Americans of all races and backgrounds have long done: I whose most of the jobs have also migrated. What they have behind are concentrated poverty and a culture fashioned by the despair of its inheritors.

Most of us never have to notice. At issue, however, is not whether rage and despair can be contained, but something far more important. What kind of people are we? What kind of nation do we want? Riots are inescapable, but for a nation with our heritage and prospects, the conditions that spawn the riots — quiet as well as loud — should be no less inescapable.

ROBERT WALTERS Where flag has mixed impact

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — Like the Virgin Islands and Guam, Puerto Rico is empowered to control all immigration in and out of its islands. But the other two offshore jurisdictions where the U.S. flag flies, American Samoa and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, are denied that authority.

Four of the island territories — but not Puerto Rico — are excluded from the U.S. customs union, a beneficial status that allows goods from anywhere in the world to be brought into those jurisdictions without the payment of import taxes and duties to the federal government.

The Jones Act, a federal law that requires ships engaged in domestic commerce to be registered in this country, applies to Guam and Puerto Rico — but not to American Samoa, the Virgin Islands or the Northern Mariana Islands.

The Nicholson Act, another federal law that prohibits the landing of fish in this country's ports by ships registered in other nations, applies to American Samoa, Guam and the Northern Mariana Islands — but not to the Virgin Islands (except for vessels less than 50 feet long) and Puerto Rico.

Confused? Perplexed? So are most of the public officials and many of the residents of the five territories. Indeed, some are disturbed and angered by the inconsistent treatment they receive from all three branches of the federal government.

The legal requirements imposed upon the offshore jurisdictions have "evolved in a patchwork ad hoc fashion, with Congress responding to the unique and individual needs of each territory, sometimes with sensitivity (but) sometimes with indifference or insensitivity," says a recent study.

Executive branch departments and agencies also have "responded in inconsistent ways to the needs of the territories," adds that study, prepared by Jon M. Van Dyke, a law professor at the University of Hawaii.

Van Dyke's report was commissioned by an organization that represents the congress and the White House have devised a complex process that is now underway. President Bush has appointed an eight-member, Senate-confirmed commission, chaired by former New Jersey GOP Rep. Jim Courter and made up of former high-ranking military officers and Pentagon officials.

The commission is now holding public hearings on the Cheney list.

By July 1, it will recommend to Bush what bases to close. It has the power to remove bases from Cheney's list and it can add bases that are not on Cheney's list. Bush then has 15 days to approve the commission's list entirely or send it back for further work. However, he does not have the power to make individual additions or deletions.

Once approved by Bush, the list goes to Congress, which has 45 days to pass a resolution — subject to presidential veto — rejecting the entire list. However, Congress cannot make individual changes.

If Congress votes it down, the whole process would have to start over from square one. That is considered as unlikely as Bush returning the list to the commission. Most insiders believe the bases chosen by the commission will be the ones closed.

According to a source: "The commission has told its staff to start their work assuming that some bases will be deleted from the Cheney list, and others will be added."

"In part, some changes will be made just in order for the commission to show it is politically independent."

"But, in fact, some changes will be made because some members of the panel think Cheney let politics influence some of his choices, and in some others, he is simply wrong on the basis of future military need."

Fort Devens, for example, was the subject of considerable debate during the 1986 round of base-closing decisions. Back then, Devens was spared, and there was even a loose agreement between the original base-closing commission and the Pentagon to expand Devens.

Reportedly, several members of the current commission see Cheney's placing of Devens on the current list as a repudiation of the 1986 commission's work, and they are not happy about this.

Furthermore, the panel is apparently perplexed by the inclusion of two large bases on Cheney's list: the Navy's Orlando (Fla.) Training Center and the Army's Fort McClellan in Anniston, Ala.

Panel members suspect politics played a big role in the inclusion of Orlando. There is general agreement within the Navy and the Pentagon that, consistent with downsizing the fleet, consolidation of training centers is in order. It is well known that the decision came down to a choice between Orlando and the Great Lakes Training Center, just north of Chicago.

Orlando is newer, cheaper to operate, and it has major climate advantages over a training base on the shores of Lake Michigan. Why was Orlando chosen for closing over Great Lakes?

Some are disturbed and angered by the treatment they receive.

JACK ANDERSON

Mum's the word on base closings

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney wants to make sure that everyone in the Pentagon bureaucracy follows the party line on one of the most divisive issues that will come down the pike this year — the closing of dozens of U.S. military bases to save money.

The base-closing process will be a gloomy one that will hurt many states economically, put thousands of people out of work and prompt members of Congress to utter their favorite whine: "Not in my backyard, you don't!"

Cheney can't silence Congress, but he is attempting to silence the people who work for him. Before he announced his list of suggested base closings, he circulated a memo within the Defense Department warning staffers to keep their opinions to themselves.

First he warned them against leaking the information before he made it public, saying Defense Department employees "may not, repeat, may not, publicly release, or comment on the specific bases involved in those recommendations prior to the Secretary of Defense's public announcement."

Then Cheney set the ground rules for the ugly political battle ahead. He said Defense Department workers should "avoid speculation about whether the (base closings) commission will approve or disapprove the list, or any other follow-up actions by the Congress or the president." And they should, "avoid comment or speculation about what impact closure of a specific installation would have upon local area or military capabilities." And "avoid speculation on what savings may be gained by closing specific installations."

And, the most dubious instruction: "Stress that the decision to close certain bases is related to budget reductions and is not being made for political reasons." If Cheney really believes that now, he will not feel the same way when the fight is over.

Cheney's list of suggested base closures will first go to a bipartisan commission for review. Then it will be passed on to George Bush who, if he approves it, will send it to Congress, which must agree before the bases are actually closed. There is plenty of opportunity for derauling along that political track.

Last year, Cheney's original proposal caused an uproar in Congress among those who saw it as a plan to crush the Democrats. More than 90 percent of the bases targeted for closing were in Democratic congressional districts.

Some members of Congress formed a watchdog committee called the "Fairness Network," spearheaded by Rep. Glen Browder, D-Ala., to monitor the process. "There is no question that bases have to be closed," Browder told our associate Melinda Mason. "But our main goal is to make sure that it is done smartly and fairly."

Once burned, Cheney was careful to recommend a more balanced list this year, but there still appear to be more Democratic jobs on the chopping block. The Cheney plan recommends the closure of 31 major bases and 12 minor ones by 1997. He says the cuts will save the military $850 million by 1997 and about $1.7 billion a year after that.

What he isn't boasting about is the cost of closing those bases. Some congressional sources question whether the Defense Department will be able to sell the property at market value, and whether the estimates for environmental cleanup of the land are realistic.

If Cheney's plan is approved, some communities will feel a pinch and others will be hit by a sledgehammer.

The base-closing process will be a gloomy one that will hurt many states.

school construction schedule to accommodate student estimates.

A $630 million bond proposal was soundly defeated at the polls early last year and school officials estimate they will need about $331 million during the next five years to provide adequate schools facilities for children. That represents about $188 million more than schools can raise, including a new school impact fee on housing.

The school's toughest goal is to develop a standard for school capacity and series of reviews that will be taken when that capacity is reached.

County officials told school board members that if a developer wants to build more homes that will send more children to a nearby school, they must be able to show they exhausted every effort to accommodate the new students before the county can tell the developer to revise his construction plans or to drop them until a new school is built.

County Planning Director Tony VanDerwerp said the schools will have to decide whether the school can handle the new students with no changes, with the addition of portables, with an expansion of the school itself or through restricting of areas that are assigned to each school.

"Do we have to do all these options before we can say 'No' to a developer?" asked school board member Sandy Robinson. "That would be a waste."

"You're going to have to be sure in your own mind you can't do all those things you set out as options."

"It's a big thing to say 'No' to a developer," added Fred Streetman, county commission chairman.

Benefactor gives FAU $10 million

Associated Press

BOCA RATON — A retired Boca Raton businessman is honoring his late wife by donating $10 million to Florida Atlantic University for an arts and humanities center.

Charles E. Schmidt, president of the FAU Foundation and a longtime benefactor of the school, donated the money Monday in honor of his late wife, Dorothy.

The gift will be matched by the state — bringing the total to $20 million — and is the largest cash donation ever given to a college for academic programs in Florida's state university system.

Along with $10 million in mandatory state matching funds, the gift nearly doubles the $22 million that Florida Atlantic has raised since the creation of the university 26 years ago.

The money will be used by the newly renamed Schmidt College of Arts and Humanities to create two endowed professorships and build the Dorothy F. Schmidt Center for Arts and Humanities.

Preliminary plans call for a 65,000-square-foot complex with a theatre, and open-air amphitheatre, classrooms, offices and visual arts facilities.

"This truly will allow us to attract the best and the brightest to Florida Atlantic University, and set the standards for academic excellence," said Gov. Lawton Chiles, who came to Boca Raton for the presentation.

School officials noted the gift was unusual in that it was intended for the humanities, not medicine or another scientific field.

"It's pretty hard to find people to support English and history and painting," said FAU President Anthony Catanese.

the city is moving forward on the project.

Brooks concluded, "I just want you to know, I feel that time is of the essence. We want to get rid of any danger we have to our children."

Although the item had not been placed on last night's City Commission agenda, Mayor Smith brought it up early in the evening's proceedings. The meeting, which contained an unusually long agenda of 36 items, lasted only one hour and 6 minutes, with most of the discussion on various items having taken place during a City Commission Workshop held earlier in the day.

Inmate sentenced for threatening Martinez

Associated Press

LAKE BUTLER — A state prison inmate who threatened last September to kill Gov. Bob Martinez for signing death warrants has been given an additional eight years in prison.

Nathaniel Ray, 18, pleaded guilty last month to mailing a letter from Union Correctional Institution in Raiford in which he threatened to kill Martinez, who was governor at the time.

Assistant State Attorney John E. Maines IV said Ray's letter contained a drawing of a pistol and a threat to kill the governor when Ray was released from prison.

Ray was serving a four-year sentence imposed in June 1989 for arson in Okeechobee County.

Public Defender Gregg A. Anderson told Union County Judge David Reimann on Monday that Ray was under stress when he made the threat because a friend on Death Row had received a death warrant from Martinez. Anderson said he did not know the name of the inmate or what became of his case.

Florida's Death Row is located at Florida State Prison, which is across the New River from Union Correctional.

Reimann sentenced Ray as a habitual offender, which let the judge disregard the four-year sentence recommended under sentencing guidelines.

Brian Volk, yard manager at the marina said, "We weren't even notified that we would be doing this until that morning." He said the government acted a great number of questions before agreeing to use the marina travel lift. Volk said, "this is the first time we've used the lift for such an unloading, but it certainly worked well."

Watching one of the transfers at the marina, one army truck driver said, "I wish we had one of those things for unloading."

The work involved using the lift to unload the trailers from the flat bed trucks on which they were delivered, then putting them onto the ground where they could be attached to semi tractors. Each transfer took approximately ten minutes.

of stories," said McIntyre. "I may tell some folk tales, a true story from my life that deals with aging, maybe a 'jack tale' from the Appalachians."

The Friends is a 12-year-old organization devoted to providing assistance to Seminole County libraries and helping their patrons to enjoy the reading experience.

"We try to enhance the availability of library services and encourage the multi-use of the library," explains Friends secretary Bruce Strickler. "We buy things for the library that the county may not have budgeted. We pay for entertainment for kids."

The Friends most noticeable activity is their used bookstore at the Central Branch. Strickler said used books are donated by libraries, dealers and readers which are sold to raise money for Friends projects. The organization has about 450 members who pay dues of $3 for students and seniors, $3 for people that are not either one of those or $6 for families.

"We try to get books out of attics and off bookshelves and back into circulation," Strickler said.

Other Friends projects include their $4,000 "Daycare Connection" which provides children's books to area daycare centers. Another project was to establish a $3,000 reserve account with the federal Superintendent of Documents office to allow the county library to buy federal documents for their federal depository at the Central Branch.

County Road 46-A, County Road 427 and other area roads.

"(County Manager) Ron Rabun put on an excellent presentation," Young said. "There was no parochialism at all. I think anyone who has driven around Seminole County knows the work has to be done."

County officials have said much of the work is required under state "concurrency" rules that require the county to assure adequate roads along with other county services are available when new houses are completed.

The county using an impact fee and gas tax bonding program was prepared to make most of the same improvements during a 20-year period, but state concurrency rules required the county to "catch up" with current needs during the next five years.

Commissioners from Sanford, Lake Mary, Altamonte Springs and Winter Springs have voted to support the plan.

Wilkins Insurance Can Provide All of Your Insurance Needs

There are those few things in life that we all must have, that we don't really want. Insurance, more than not, falls into that category. But what most people do not take the time to consider is that insurance is really peace of mind.

To the homeowner, it is assurance that, in times of worst tragedy, he will not have to go without shelter for himself or his family. For the automobile owner, it is the knowledge, that in most cases, he is protected from the faults of other drivers who share the road with him. For the business owner, it means wide range of coverages, protecting him, his customers and his employees.

"Knowledge is power" the saying goes, and understanding insurance is the key to accepting the necessity of coverage. The key to understanding comes from working with an insurance agency that will take the time to work with you, define your needs and explain all the ramifications of loss and compensation.

Wilkins Insurance is just such an agency. Formerly located in Orlando under the name of Wilkins • This insurance, Wilkins Insurance recently opened an office in Sanford on March 1, 1990, in the First Federal Building, 312 West First Street, Suite 500. Lewis Wilkins, owner, says "our agency sells and services multiple lines of insurance products and services. We have enjoyed steady, continuing growth in our agency and offer a dependable and friendly staff ready to serve your insurance needs, both personal and commercial."

The "dependable and friendly staff" consist of Evelyn Wilkins, Lewis (Chip) Wilkins, Jr., Ragnhild (Ronnie) German and Debi Wilkins Hawkins. The spirit of the Wilkins Insurance Agency is that "bigger isn't always better." If you are with a larger insurance agency and are beginning to feel like a number, maybe you should give Wilkins Insurance a try. Wilkins believes in service after the sale; you shouldn't only see your insurance agent when you have a claim or when it is time to renew. Part of understanding what insurance is all about is knowing that your needs are always changing and your policies may need to be reviewed on a timely basis prior to renewal periods or times of urgent need. Wilkins can also explain the advantages of having multiple policies with one agency, so that one agent can coordinate all of your coverages, so you don't end up spending too much money for too little coverage. For example, if you are married, over the age of 25 and have a clean driving record, Wilkins can insure one automobile and your $70,000 for only $486 (this is a basic rate.) The companies that Wilkins offers are "A" and "A+" rated with the A.M. Best Company.

If you're feeling a little small, lost among all the other people your large insurance agency covers or if you don't have a clue as to how much and what kind of insurance coverage you need, do what Lewis Wilkins asks, "give us a call - we would appreciate an opportunity to serve you." Wilkins Insurance Agency can be reached at 324-1191 or 1-800-574-1191. And remember, Lewis says, "We Love You!"

Administration seeks more rate cuts

By MARTIN GRUTENBERG
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON — With inflation pressures subsiding, the Bush administration hopes the Federal Reserve will accelerate its fight against the recession with another round of interest rate cuts.

Both the administration and U.S. business leaders stepped up the campaign for cheaper credit in advance of a meeting today of the Fed's key policymaking group, the Federal Open Market Committee.

Fed policymakers were awaiting with interest two new reports on how the economy is doing. The Commerce Department today was announcing retail sales during April, while the Labor Department was issuing a report on consumer prices in that month.

Many economists believed the new reports would paint a picture of moderating inflation, caused by falling energy prices, and a consumer sector still in the doldrums and in need of a boost from lower interest rates.

Bush administration officials, anxious to get the recession behind them before the 1992 presidential campaign begins in earnest, have been pressuring the central bank to take more aggressive steps to lower interest rates, a view also shared by many in corporate America.

Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan heard firsthand over the weekend the worries the business community has about the economy's prospects when he attended a closed-door briefing by the Business Council, composed of executives of 100 of the nation's largest businesses.

Members of the Business Council said they saw few signs that the country's first recession in eight years was nearing a bottom and they said even when the recovery does begin, they believe it will be decidedly anemic. They called on the Fed to lower interest rates further to end the recession and boost growth prospects for the upcoming recovery.

The business leaders argued that inflationary pressures, after jumping sharply late last year, were beginning to ease, thus giving the central bank room to cut rates further.

The Labor Department said Friday that its Producer Price Index, which measures inflation before reaching the retail level, rose a modest 0.2 percent in April after having declined for the previous four months.

Many economists believed that today's report on the Consumer Price Index also would edge up about 0.2 percent.

Winnie Mandela ordered jailed

Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — A judge today sentenced Winnie Mandela, wife of African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela, to six years in jail after finding her guilty of kidnapping and being an accessory to assault.

The sentencing, which followed her conviction Monday, ended a three-month trial that could have had political repercussions in South Africa. Two co-defendants were also convicted in the case.

Justice M.S. Stegmann rejected defense appeals for a suspended sentence.

He sentenced Mrs. Mandela to five years in jail for the four counts of kidnapping and one year in jail for being an accessory after the fact to assault. The sentences are to run consecutively.

Stegmann sentenced co-defendant Xoliswa Falati to six years in jail, consisting of four years for kidnapping and two years for assault. He also rejected defense pleas for a suspended sentence.

A third defendant, John Morgan, received a one year suspended sentence for kidnapping.

State Prosecutor Jan Swanepoel earlier had recommended all three defendants be jailed. South Africa has a policy of not jailing first-time offenders for most crimes.

In a scathing judgment that took almost seven hours to deliver, Stegmann on Monday rebuked Mrs. Mandela, 56, as a "calm, unblinking liar" who set out to deceive the court.

Mrs. Mandela's chief lawyer, George Bizos, indicated that he would seek to appeal the conviction.

Nelson Mandela was not in court today for the sentencing hearing.

Swanepoel sought to characterize Mrs. Mandela as a community leader who abused her authority.

"She showed no compassion," he said.

The judge found Mrs. Mandela guilty of four counts of kidnapping but reduced four counts of assault to a lesser charge of accessory to assault before the fact.

Student holds teacher hostage; assistant principal ducks shots

Associated Press

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas — A seventh-grader briefly held a teacher hostage Monday after firing two shots at an assistant principal, and the school was evacuated while police negotiated with the boy.

The student freed the Jackson Middle School teacher about an hour after he entered the administrative office area with a gun, said Katherine Oates of the Grand Prairie Independent School District.

Hundreds of students were evacuated to a gymnasium at a nearby high school, she said.

The standoff began when the student was sent to the assistant principal's office because he was found with matches, said Ms. Oates, adding he had earlier been sent to an alternative school for having set fire to a restroom.

"The student then managed to slip out, returned with a gun and was waiting outside the assistant principal's office," Ms. Oates said.

Two students spotted the gun and alerted administrators, she said. The assistant principal slammed the door to her office before two shots were fired at her, Ms. Oates said.

The assistant principal and the teacher were not injured.

The Church today must clearly recognize that Satan understands how important the family is to God's creation and that it is the primary focus of his attack. For if Satan can separate us from the ties that are most fundamental to our being, then he has succeeded in cutting us off from the Creator Himself.

The Music Ministry of First Baptist Church, Sanford proudly presents "Bind Us Together". It is a gathering of hearts of those concerned with the quality of family relationships. It is our hope that when the last note fades, that you will truly be bound together in His love.

Life goes on amid ruin in Bangladesh

By DILIP GANGULY
Associated Press Writer

ANOWARA, Bangladesh — Half-naked children, some limping from injuries suffered when the cyclone struck, wave violet and blue water hyacinths to welcome visitors to what's left of their village.
 Their parents, meanwhile, work to build new mud-and-bamboo homes to replace those swept away in the April 30 storm and tidal wave that killed more than 139,000 people. They must hurry to finish before summer monsoons.

 Two weeks after the cyclone hit, there are signs of life amid the ruins.
 Patches of green grass spring up from earth hit by tidal waves as high as 22 feet. Lone banana plants that survived winds of up to 140 mph sprout new leaves.
 And hundreds of thousands of survivors are burying their dead, rebuilding huts, eking out a living.
 Most residents of Anowara, a collection of coastal villages 30 miles east of the port city of Chittagong, aren't waiting for government relief that has been slow to come to many areas and has not reached others.

 They know the bureaucracy of this 20-year-old nation moves slowly.
 Women try to dry rotting rice by spreading grains beside a potholed road. When cars and wind scatter the grains, they sweep them back with palm-leaf brooms.
 With crops ruined by the cyclone's winds and salt water blown in from the Bay of Bengal, even a single grain of half-rotten rice is dear.

An estimated 8.9 million people have been affected by the cyclone and its aftermath. The burden is immense for the nation, one of the world's poorest, and the psychological trauma also weighs heavily on the survivors.
 Mohammad Zamaluddin, 30, believes that he, not the cyclone, killed his 1-year-old daughter. He said he held her so tightly, trying to save her from being blown away, that she suffocated.
 "If I had been careful, Sakina may have survived," said Zamaluddin, a village grocer.

Zamaluddin was able to bury his baby, but hundreds of other bodies have rotted in the open. At first there wasn't enough dry land for graves, later people lacked shovels or simply couldn't cope with the enormity of the task.
 In some places, dogs feed on the human bodies as vultures circle overhead. Big, rotting fish, beached by the cyclone, add to the stench.
 Gravediggers, paid about $14 a month by the government, are the only people still trying to bury the remains.

IN BRIEF

SOFTBALL

Mice tie for second

CASSELBERRY — The Advanced Water Systems 'Mice', from Oviedo, tied Crickets for second place with a 9-4 triumph over Crickets in Class "C" Women's Softball action at Red Bug Park Monday night.

Mary Shelton was 3-for-4 and made several outstanding plays at third base and Phyllis Baynes was 4-for-4 and made the big stretches at first base on Shelton's throws.

Contributing two hits to the AWS offense were Terri Mann, Mary Beth McCullough, Karen Kohs and winning pitcher Theresa Walburger. April Lawrence added three RBI with a single and a bases loaded walk.

Next week the Mice, now 5-4 on the season, will play Brand X at 6:30 p.m.

The men's ICP team were not as successful as they dropped an 11-3 decision to league leading Rachel's. A six-run sixth inning spelled the difference.

The runs scored when Kenny Tuttle singled, went to third on a Mike Rix single and scored on a single by John McKay. The runners moved up a base on a fly by Joe Brandon and scored on a two-run double by Ed Norton.

Next week the men (1-8) will play the Oviedo Methodist Church at 8:30 p.m.

COLLEGE BASEBALL

Weger sets hit record

DeLAND — Wes Weger, a junior shortstop from Longwood, collected a single against the Florida Gators last week to raise his season hit total to 87 and establish a Stetson record.

He recently was named player of the year in the Trans America Conference after hitting .380 this season, highest on the Hatter squad this year, and earned all-conference honors for the third straight year.

Among his 87 hits were 20 doubles, three triples and four home runs giving him 125 total bases for the year, the fourth highest total in Stetson history.

In his three years at Stetson the former Lake Mary player has batted out 219 hits placing him fourth on the all-time career list. His career average is .343.

NCAA's come to Florida

TALLAHASSEE — Florida State University and the University of Florida landed NCAA baseball regional tournaments Monday while perennial powerhouse Miami must wait another week to learn where it will play.

Six teams will compete at each of eight sites in double-elimination tournaments beginning May 23 with the winners advancing to the NCAA College World Series in Omaha, Neb., May 31-June 8.

Also selected Monday to host regional tournaments were LSU, Texas, Maine, Wichita State, Southern Cal and Fresno State. The other 42 teams will be selected next Monday after conference tournaments are completed.

FSU wins protest

CINCINNATI — The Metro Conference has upheld a protest by Florida State baseball coach Mike Martin, allowing the Seminoles to replay the last three innings of a loss to the University of Cincinnati.

Martin protested Florida State's 7-6 loss Saturday, the Seminoles' only loss during their three-game series in Cincinnati. Martin contended that UC coach Richard Skeel improperly made two trips to the mound during the same at-bat, a violation of NCAA rules.

Metro commissioner Ralph McFillen agreed Monday and ordered the game replayed from the top of the seventh inning, when the score was tied 5-5. Florida State will be at bat with runners on first and second and none out.

The teams will complete the game Wednesday in Salem, Va., where the Metro Conference tournament is being held.

BASEBALL

Canseco gets verbal with fan

NEW YORK — Jose Canseco doesn't mind a little razzing from the crowd. Just don't make it personal.

Canseco engaged in a heated verbal exchange with a fan taunting him about pop singer Madonna in the first inning of Monday night's game between the Oakland A's and New York Yankees.

After Canseco lined out to left field with one out in the first, the Oakland right fielder walked to box seats to the right of the A's dugout, pointed at the fan and asked him to be quiet. The fan, however, pointed right back at Canseco as they argued.

As Canseco headed back to the dugout, security guards arrived at the scene and escorted the fan from his seat.

Compiled from wire and staff reports.

Cardinals rout Blue Jays

Alphin hurls Redbirds to 13-3 victory

Adam Dryden (on his stomach) looks anxiously for the umpire's call, not knowing that the Blue Jays catcher had dropped the ball. Dryden's run was one of six the Cardinals scored in the bottom of the first inning on route to a 13-3 triumph over the Blue Jays in a Little Major League game at Roy Holler Field Monday.

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Frankie Alphin struck out nine and allowed only two hits in four innings as the First Federal Cardinals clobbered the Fisher, Laurence & Deen Blue Jays 13-3 in a Sanford Recreation Department Little Major League baseball game at Roy Holler Field Monday afternoon.

Today at Ft. Mellon's Roy Holler Field there will be an American Division doubleheader. At 5:45 p.m. the Ace Hardware Orioles will play the First Union Bank A's and at 7:45 p.m. the K & D Trailer Sales Red Sox will take on the Disabled American Veterans Royals.

After Alphin worked out of a two-out, bases loaded jam in the top of the first inning the Cardinals offense took advantage of wildness on the part of the Blue Jays pitcher to score six runs in the bottom of the first.

Patience was a virtue for the Cardinals in the first inning as lead off batter Bart Dixon had the only hit, a single. But the Blue Jays pitcher walked seven and threw several wild pitches and the winners were able to score the six runs despite only nine men coming to the plate.

Four walks after two were out allowed the Blue Jays to score a run in the second inning, but the Cardinals answered with two runs. See Majors, Page 2B

Royals, Orioles triumph

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — The Rotary Club Royals were able to withstand a 12-run Pretty Punch Blue Jays first inning and came back to post a 17-15 triumph in the Sanford Recreation Department Babe Ruth Baseball League at Chase Park Monday night.

In the other game the Kiwanis Club Orioles (3-0) continued their hot play with a 13-6 triumph over the Woodman of the World A's (0-3).

Thursday night's schedule will feature a matchup between the Knights of Columbus Cardinals, who have won eight straight games, and the Prestige Lumber Expos, who have won both games since joining the league, at 6 p.m. The other game has the See Babe Ruth, Page 2B

Pitchers rule in Monday softball

Levi Raines cracks the first of the three two-run, home runs that the Tim Raines Connection would collect on the night as it handed Calico Jacks its first loss of the season 7-2 at Pinehurst Park Monday night.

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Outstanding pitching and tight defense was the story of the night for the winners in Sanford Recreation Department Men's Monday Night Spring/Summer Slowpitch Softball League action at Pinehurst Park.

Joe Ervin limited the Boomtown Boys to four hits as the Lambert Erectors crushed the Boys 17-1. Burnett Washington tossed a five-hitter and the Tim Raines Connection launched three two-run home runs as it handed Calico Jacks its first loss of the season 7-2, and Albert Key came back with an eight-hitter as Calico Jacks rebounded to beat the Orlando Softball Club 14-1.

With one third of the season completed TRC and Calico Jacks are both 5-1 with Lambert Erectors just a game back at 4-2. The leading trio is followed by the Boomtown Boys (1-5) and the Orlando Softball Club (0-6).

Next week TRC will take on Lambert Erectors at 6:30 p.m. and the Boomtown Boys will play the doubleheader, against the Orlando See Softball, Page 2B

Tim Raines confident season will turn around for him

Associated Press

TORONTO — Heathrow resident Tim Raines was the leadoff hitter the Chicago White Sox were looking for. The start of this season was not what Raines wanted.

In 10 seasons with the Montreal Expos, Raines, a 1977 graduate of Seminole High School, was a familiar face among the National League's elite batsmen.

A change of scenery initially put baseball's Rock in a strange position, but he is shaking off a rocky start with the Chicago White Sox.

"Things are going to be alright for me — I know that," Raines said, then adding with a grin, "I just need a 4-for-4 game to get me going."

The going has been rough for the 31-year-old outfielder, who was involved in one of the offseason's most talked-about trades. Raines and minor league pitchers Jeff Carter and Mario Brito were dealt by the Expos to Chicago in exchange for outfielder Ivan Calderon and reliever Barry Jones.

Chicago, which staged a surprising battle with Oakland in the American League West last season, felt it was a leadoff hitter away from overtaking the Athletics. Raines was the logical candidate — a career .301 hitter who stole 634 bases and fancied himself as the NL's version of Rickey Henderson, despite being used in the No. 3 spot by the Expos in recent seasons.

But the Rock's start in the Windy City wouldn't have earned him a cameo appearance on the television series Harry and the Hendersons. Raines went a measly 7-for-52 (.135) in April with two runs batted in and a couple of stolen bases.

Raines admits that the adjustment to American League pitching was more complex than initially thought.

"A lot of guys who went from the National League to the American League say it's a big difference, but until you see it yourself ..." said Raines, whose sculptured physique hasn't changed in 10 major league seasons. "I've been over here a month, and you can see the difference. Maybe having the DH (designated hitter) around and the smaller parks are the reasons."

"Pitchers seldom give in. ... If the count's 3-1 or 2-0, they'll try to get you out with another pitch rather than throw the fastball down the middle."

Nibbling by the AL pitchers has had Raines biting his lip. He may have also stuck his foot in his mouth during spring training when he asked public address announcers to call him Rock Raines. He has since gone back to Tim.

And then there's Calderon, who's off to a white-hot start with the Expos.

"If I get off to this kind of a start in Montreal, it's not that big a deal," he said. "The slump tried my patience, but more than anything I was trying to justify the trade myself.

"This (Chicago) is a team that did well last year and they have high expectations. I started to try and get four hits in one at-bat."

Raines has since stopped worrying about the great expectations of the fans and media, and the hits have started coming.

He had a single and scored two runs in four plate appearances Monday in a 4-3, 10-inning win over the Boston Red Sox and has 19 hits in his last 59 at-bats, a .322 clip, to raise his average to .225. The White Sox took a 1-0 lead when he led off the game with a single, stole second and scored on Ventura's double.

Raines began the third by walking on four pitches. He was running on a 1-2 pitch to Ventura, and scored on a long single off the wall in left. Still, without Raines's reliable bat, Chicago is playing above the .500 level. Long-awaited success and a new Comiskey Park have encouraged White Sox fans to stand up and be counted once again. The Expos, on the other hand, fight to get 10,000 fans to Olympic Stadium and the days of major league baseball in La Belle Province appear limited.

But Raines makes it clear he misses Montreal.

"If I said no, I'd be lying," he said, fingering a pair of gold bracelets, one with a large pendant spelling ROCK and the other weighed down by a thick, gold baseball diamond with a bat.

See a specialist about neuropathy

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been diagnosed with peripheral neuropathy in my feet. My HMO says only medicine will control the pain, but friends indicate the condition can be treated and cured. I need some help.

DEAR READER: Peripheral neuropathy means that the nerves in your feet are not working properly; this can lead to pain, numbness and weakness. Peripheral neuropathy has many causes, the two most common being diabetes and poor circulation. If you have either (or both) of these conditions, you could be helped by methods to improve circulation (such as an operation to unblock the clogged arteries in your legs) or by bringing your diabetes under control.

Health Maintenance Organizations almost always have specialists to help people with complex problems such as yours. I believe you first need an examination by a neurologist to determine which nerves are affected and to what degree. This may require nerve conduction studies and tests to assess nerve function. Also, if appropriate, the neurologist might refer you to a vascular specialist in your HMO.

In the event your HMO does not have the necessary specialists, your doctor can refer you to the appropriate resources outside the HMO. While HMOs don't like to do this (because it reduces profits), such referrals are sometimes necessary for proper patient care. Once you have established the cause(s) of your neuropathy, you and your doctor can decide on which treatment would be most suitable for you. Although medicine may be your best option, your friends are correct that many forms of neuropathy are curable — once the cause of the nerve malfunction is identified.

DEAR DR. GOTT: As a teen-ager I had a rash on my body, in my mouth and above my lips. Now when I open my mouth the skin splits and becomes raw. Could this be lupus?

DEAR READER: Any rash, in theory, could be lupus, a common autoimmune (self-allergy) disease affecting the skin and, often, the joints, lungs, heart and kidneys; lupus is diagnosed by blood tests and biopsy. Symptoms include:

As we saw yesterday, good defense requires efficient signaling. The defenders are allowed to exchange information, not by puffing smoke rings from cigarettes, but by the sequence in which they play their cards. When your partner leads an honor, normally you should give an attitude signal, showing whether you would like him to continue leading the suit. However, if the attitude is known, a key honor being in the dummy, third hand should usually signal count. This will tell the opening leader how many tricks to expect from the suit. Every hand must be treated on its merits, though. Today's hand was played in a team game. The three-diamond response was the modern limit raise, showing 10-12 points and four or five trumps.

Both Wests led the king of spades and both Easts dropped the two. Now the paths diverged. The first West worked out that his partner must have the ace of spades; otherwise declarer would have won the first trick. So he assumed the two was a count signal, showing an odd number of spades. He continued with a low spade, hoping to cash three tricks in the suit. The contract could no longer be defeated. Declarer ruffed the third spade, drew trumps and ran the clubs. The second West trusted his partner and recognized a discouraging signal when he saw one. At trick two, he switched to the nine of hearts. East won with the jack and led a low spade to his partner's queen. Another heart through the king gave the defenders the first five tricks.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
 May 16, 1991

The year ahead could be an extremely active one for you, thanks to several new interests you've never been involved in previously. New places and new faces are in the offing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Take a hard look at your budget today; you should be able to find ways to trim it so you'll be able to save more than you have been. Taurus, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for Taurus' Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Personal matters should not be delegated to surrogates today. You'll be much more effective at handling these critical endeavors.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This could be the time to bring in a second party to accomplish a feat you've been unable to do on your own.

This means, however, that you must be prepared to share dividends.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may find yourself in a very unique position today, bringing two unrelated factions together for something that could be mutually beneficial to all.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In order to achieve an objective you usually reach by rote, you may have to put a slightly different spin on your tactics today. Be imaginative.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your greatest asset at this time is your popularity. Friends will be in a mood to do things for you that they wouldn't even think of doing for others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Two rewarding developments, each of which pertains to an involvement with a different individual, could unexpectedly occur today. You should be able to benefit from both.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You shouldn't have much difficulty today finding a solution to a problem that's been vexing you.

Your prior frustrations may have come from having to choose between too many good answers.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A number of important tasks that you've been putting off could be attended to today — if you apply yourself. If these are your priorities, productivity may amaze you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Try to divide your time equally between two valued friends today, each of whom are bidding for your companionship. Being considerate will avoid hurting feelings.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Sometimes, our best results are attained by getting out of our own way. This could be true for you today. Let events run their course.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This is a good day to focus your efforts on neglected phone calls or letters. There's a strong possibility that someone with whom you should communicate has exciting news for you.
