Galluzzo announces candidacy

SANFORD — A Seminole County attorney has announced his candidacy for judge of the newly created county court.

John Galluzzo will seek election as the county's fifth county court judge. The new court was created during the last legislative session. Preparations for organizing the court are underway. A judge will be elected this fall and take office Jan. 1.

Galluzzo has practiced law in Seminole County for most of his legal career, first as an assistant public defender and later as an assistant state attorney before opening a Winter Park private law office in 1987.

He serves on the Board of Directors of the Seminole County Bar Association where he chaired a number of committees. Galluzzo is also on the Board of Directors of the Seminole County Legal Aid Society and a member of Williams Inns of Court in Seminole County. He received certification by The Florida Bar as an expert in criminal trial law and is a member in good standing of The Florida Bar Association.

His other memberships include American Bar Association, past chairman of the City of Port Orange Chamber of Commerce Economic Development Committee, Leadership Daytona, Daytona Beach Historic Preservation Board, Volusia County Association for Responsible Development. He serves on the Board of Directors of the Hometown Homeowners' Association and Habitat for Humanity in Seminole County.

Galluzzo earned a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Central Florida in 1979 and his Juris Doctor from Nova University in 1982. He and his wife, Beverly and their three sons reside in Oviedo.

Space station needs $2.1 billion

WASHINGTON — As NASA Administrator Daniel Goldin fights to protect the space station, he's not retreating from his agency's stance that the giant orbiting laboratory needs $2.1 billion next year.

"We can't do it for a penny less," he told a House Appropriations subcommittee meeting Tuesday to consider the budget for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Goldin's appearance before the largely friendly panel gave him the chance to counter criticisms leveled by members of Congress intent on killing the $30 billion program this year.

Last year, the space station squeaked through the House by one vote. Since then, NASA has redesigned the station, selected a new prime contractor, signed a partnership with Russia and restructured the project's internal chain of command.

The question is whether the changes will appease lawmakers at a time when the purse strings aren't as loose as they once were.

The Appropriations subcommittee that parcels out funds to NASA has $72.9 billion to allocate next year to the space agency and the other agencies that fall under its umbrella, including the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Wind demolishes apartment under construction

By VICKI DeBORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Two workers were slightly injured yesterday afternoon as they fled from an apartment building under construction when it collapsed under high winds during the afternoon storm.

Town Center Apartments is located at the corner of State Road 46 and Persimmon Avenue in Sanford.

A heavy rainstorm, packing strong winds, rushed through Sanford about 3 on Tuesday afternoon.

According to Gary Wynn, building inspector for the City of Sanford, who saw the site shortly after the collapse, the incident was "a freak accident."

The building, he said, was only in the framing stages when it was hit by the high winds. Most of the safety features that are incorporated into buildings to ensure their safety during storms had not yet been incorporated into the construction.

There are several buildings at the Town Center complex that are complete and almost ready for occupancy.

Wynn said he has "full confidence" in the safety of those buildings.

Lake Mary asks DOT to cut the grass

By NICK PFEIFAU

LAKE MARY — The Lake Mary city staff has determined that the Department of Transportation, not the city, should be responsible for the grounds maintenance at the I-4 interchange at Lake Mary Boulevard.

The City Commission will hear the results of the staff evaluation at tomorrow night's meeting.

"Several years ago," said Parks and Recreation Director John

Holland, "we approached the DOT and tried to determine who would be responsible for the grounds maintenance at the interchange. We thought that with the beautification work along Lake Mary Boulevard, we would want the interchange to look as well kept."

He continued, "But the DOT responded with an offer to pay the city $9,217.04 per year, and have us take care of the property."

Home invasion, robbery thwarted

By NICK PFEIFAU

LAKE MARY — A home invasion and robbery was thwarted yesterday in Lake Mary. Police are searching for two armed men who forced their way into a woman's home, threatened her, and later fired two shots during their getaway.

According to the police report, Patricia Ransbottom, 56, was watering her garden in front of her home on Weldon Boulevard at approximately 6:55 yesterday morning, when she was approached by two black males.

"They apparently came up from behind," said police Capt. Sam Belfiore, "pointed a 25 caliber handgun at the woman's face and struck her, breaking her glasses."

Belfiore said the men then forced the woman into her home where they noticed her diamond wedding band, and demanded to know if there was any other valuables or money in the house.

"The woman's husband was also at home at the time," Belfiore said, "but he was reportedly in the shower, and wasn't aware of what was going on."

The police report said that during the incident, See Invasion, Page 5A

Chiles caught up in case of fowl play

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles avoided legal trouble on a recent hunting trip that left a partner with a game violation citation: hunting turkey in a field baited with corn.

Chiles was with Steve Kelly at the time but wasn't cited. Sgt. Charles Chafin with the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission said the governor didn't appear to have broken any law.

Kelly, a Capitol police officer and son of state Rep. Everett Kelly, D-Tavares, didn't contest the citation and paid a $250 fine last month for the incident in late March about 25 miles south of Tallahassee.

Chafin said the governor said he wanted to be treated "like any other citizen."

State Attorney Willie Meggs said he reviewed the case and concluded there was no proof the governor knew the field was baited.

"If you go into a place where you have never been before, it's kind of legitimate to say you didn't know about it," Meggs said, adding he's been invited by Kelly to go hunting.

"If that sucker got me off and put me in a baited field, I'd be tempted to shoot him," he said.

Chiles was a little more understanding, saying he thought Kelly was very embarrassed by the incident.

Two nabbed by feds in gorilla smuggling

MIAMI — Two Mexicans who were nabbed by a federal agent in a gorilla suit were convicted of trying to smuggle endangered primates from the United States.

A federal jury convicted Victor Bernal and Eduardo Bergeles of violating the Endangered Species Act in January 1993.

Bernal is the former director of parks and zoos for the state of Mexico. Bergeles is a wildlife dealer. They face up to 17 years in prison and $950,000 in fines.

Both men were ordered jailed pending their sentencing July 18.

Prosecutors say that Bernal, Bergeles and three others tried to pay undercover agents $92,500 for a baby orangutan and a young gorilla, which they intended to ship from Miami to Mexico without proper permits.

But the gorilla turned out to be a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service agent in disguise.

The other defendants pleaded guilty last month to a single misdemeanor count of attempting to export an endangered species. All three were released pending sentencing July 12.

Wife of Cuban pilot arrested

MIAMI — The wife of a Cuban pilot who defected from the island nation in a MIG-23 fighter jet last September has been arrested in Cuba for trying to join her husband here, according to a Cuban exile group.

Claribel Freyre and her two children were with about 40 other Cuban nationals arrested Friday after authorities intercepted their boat in Cuban waters, the Cuban American National Foundation said in a release.

The Foundation, which said Tuesday it talked with Freyre by telephone since her release, reported that authorities "rammed their vessel, destroying it with passengers still on board."

Leonides Basulto, Freyre's husband, considered one of Cuba's top pilots, landed at the U.S. Naval Base in Guantanamo Bay Sept. 23 after completing a practice bombing session some 70 miles away.

A spokesman with the Cuban Interest Section in Washington, D.C., which represents the Cuban government, declined comment on the matter late Tuesday.

Luther Campbell arrested

MIAMI — Rapper Luther Campbell of 2 Live Crew was arrested and charged with aggravated assault for allegedly aiming a gun at a woman and threatening to kill her.

Metro-Dade police responded to his home in suburban Miami Lakes after Tina Barnett called police.

"They were having a verbal altercation over their relationship and the altercation escalated to Mr. Campbell pointing a gun at her and saying 'I swear I will kill you and dump you in a lake somewhere,'" said police spokesman Patrick Brickman.

Rewarding merit

State lags in need-based scholarships to students

By Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Florida leads the nation in handing out scholarships based on academic and athletic merit, but lags behind in granting financial aid to those most in need, a study shows.

Those were part of a study prepared by consultant Brian Zucker. The report, prepared for the Postsecondary Education Planning Commission, offers the first comprehensive look at how Floridians pay for public and private colleges.

For the last several years, the state has been trying to keep Florida's best and brightest from going elsewhere for college.

"When I came here in 1985, 65 percent of our best students were leaving the state," said Charles Reed, chancellor of the state university system. "Now about 70 percent of them are staying in Florida to attend our universities. ... We made merit scholarships a priority."

But Reed agreed it may be time to study how financial aid dollars are distributed and put more emphasis on need-based grants.

Florida is one of only five states that gives more scholarships based on merit than need, according to Zucker's research. About 17 percent of students from families making more than $45,000 annually receive grants of $2,200 to attend Florida's public universities.

By comparison, the maximum need-based state grant is $978, which covers only 57 percent of annual tuition at Florida's public universities.

Florida ranks 42nd in the country in tuition rates, charging a full-time, in-state student $1,706, compared to a national average of $2,627.

The research also showed that student debt — the total borrowed to attend college — has doubled, from $168 million to $347 million since 1990.

However, the report showed that Florida's Prepaid College Program can save money for those planning to pay ahead for their children's college education. The program allows purchasers to pay for future tuition and dormitory costs at today's rates.

Researchers polled more than 5,100 students in the yearlong project.

How residents pay for college

By Associated Press

The study on how Floridians pay for college has several findings and recommendations:

Findings:

• Florida ranks first nationally in awarding financial aid based on merit.

• Florida ranks 30th nationally in awarding financial aid based on need.

• About 17 percent of students from families making more than $45,000 receive grants of $2,200 to attend a state university.

• One-third of eligible students with family incomes of less than $15,000 didn't apply for financial aid.

• One-third of the more than 5,100 survey respondents with children in college indicated that they had saved for college.

• The amount of money students borrowed to pay for college in the state has doubled from $168 million in 1990 to $347 million in 1993.

Recommendations

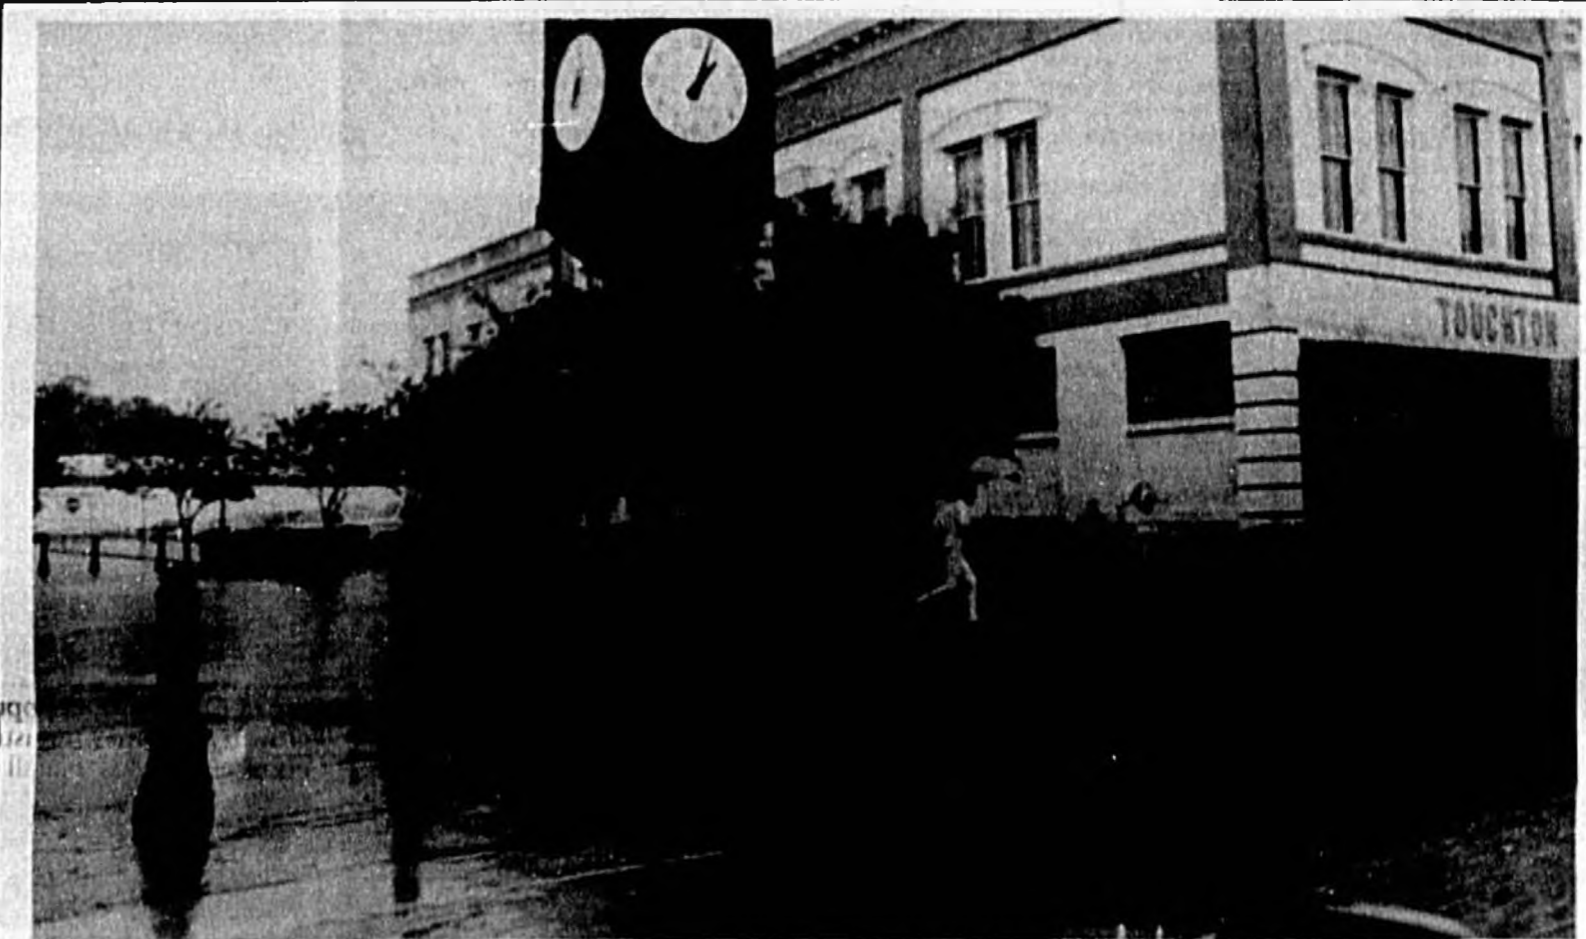

• Highest priority should be to increase awards in the Florida Student Assistance Grant, a program based on need.

• Funding to the Undergraduate Scholars Program, which is not based on need, should be decreased.

• Steps should be taken to increase financial aid to minorities and poor students.

• A statewide campaign should be conducted to educate students and parents about financial aid opportunities.

• The Florida Prepaid College Program should continue to be promoted to help families save in advance for college costs.

Sigh of relief

After a week of sweltering heat and arid streets, the city exhaled a sigh of relief as a quarter of an inch of rain dampened the streets and washed the dust from the trees. A lone customer streaks toward shelter in downtown Sanford as the rain pour from the clouds. Temps are again expected to reach the lower 90s with a 40 percent chance of afternoon showers and thunderstorms.

Florida lemon law nets car buyers $50 million since 1989

By ADAM YEOMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's lemon law resulted in almost $13 million in refunds and new vehicles for consumers in 1993, the best performance in the program's five-year history.

But officials said Tuesday they were happier with the overall results of the program since 1989, which surpassed the $50 million mark this year. That makes Florida second only to New York in the effectiveness of its lemon law.

"It is really the number one consumer program operating right now in state of Florida," said Attorney General Bob Butterworth, whose office handles lemon law cases.

Beverly Jones' case pushed the state over $50 million.

The day Jones drove her new Mazda MX3 off the dealership's lot in 1992, the car stalled. It happened repeatedly over several months, but Jones couldn't get the dealership to solve the problem.

Then she sought relief under the lemon law.

In February, a state arbitration panel ruled she was entitled to a refund of nearly $17,000 because the dealer failed to fix the problem after four attempts.

Jones was the 2,316th consumer to win since the state enacted the lemon law in 1989. Jones said she had mechanical problems that were life-threatening. She said the car engine stalled when she downshifted. In addition, the steering wheel locked, and she couldn't control the vehicle.

"You just don't need a car that's going to stall out on you in the middle of traffic," said the Tampa mortgage processor.

Car dealer sues over kickbacks

By The Associated Press

ORLANDO — A Toyota distributor has been charged with forcing a dealer to provide kickbacks and prostitutes in return for a good supply of new cars.

Jimmy Bryan, who owns five dealerships in the Orlando area, says Jim Moran of Southeast Toyota Distributors Inc. forced him to arrange call girl services for his co-workers.

Deerfield Beach-based Southeast Toyota holds exclusive rights to the Toyota market in the Southeast.

Bryan's accusations about call girl services are "outrageous," said Colin Brown, general counsel for Moran's holding company, JM Family Enterprises Inc.

But he acknowledged the company has settled 12 of 17 lawsuits on other allegations made by many other Toyota dealers since 1989. One or two of the suits made similar allegations about call girl services, Brown said.

Southeast Toyota pressured Toyota dealerships in Winter Park and Fort Lauderdale to falsely report sales and accept financing services and other products from the company, according to the lawsuit.

Bryan said Southeast Toyota's activities forced him to sell his Fort Lauderdale dealership below market value.

Bryan approached company officials a year ago about selling his dealerships and is using the call girl allegations in hopes of winning a lucrative cash settlement, Brown said Monday.

"The guy is banking on a lot of negative press, that we will know to his demands," Brown said. "We're just not going to play that game. These are unsubstantiated allegations."

Cops seek 3 armed robbers

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

DELTONA — Volusia County Sheriff Robert Vogel has issued an advisory regarding the search for three armed bank robbers. The trio reportedly robbed SouthTrust Bank, 1220 Providence Blvd., escaping with an undetermined amount of money Tuesday.

According to sheriff's Investigator Mike Dye, "At about 10 a.m., two men walked into the SouthTrust Bank and, after displaying an unknown type of handgun, demanded money from a teller."

Dye continued, "The teller handed over an undetermined amount of cash and the suspects fled from the bank in a pickup truck driven by a third suspect. The truck soon was spotted by Sheriff's Air One helicopter, abandoned, near the corner of Alexander and Outlook Drives, approximately three miles from the bank." (in a southerly direction).

Dye said the three suspects were described as white or Hispanic, 20 to 30 years of age, and between 5 feet 8 inches and 6 feet tall. All three had dark hair and wore dark sunglasses.

The vehicle, which was recovered, was a white 1984 Nissan pickup truck with red trim.

Dye said no one was injured during the bank robbery, and the investigation is continuing.

Sheriff Vogel said he urged anyone who has any information concerning this case to call Sheriff's Investigator Mike Dye, at (904) 574-5239, Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m., or (904) 736-5999 at anytime.

Federal Bureau of Investigation special agent Tim Donovan is also involved in the investigation. He may be reached by phoning 252-0463.

Tighten up on water conservation

The days when there was an endless supply of cheap fresh water have long since passed. Statewide, Florida's fresh water supply is dwindling at an alarming rate due to rapid population growth and heavy industrial build-up. It quickly becomes obvious that all of us must do everything we can to help preserve Florida's precious water supply.

What can you do? Plenty! Numerous water-saving devices are available for homes and businesses that will help cut consumption. You also can save enormous amounts of potable water by reducing lawn sprinkling and by replacing flowers, shrubs and trees that gulp water with those that require much less. Such simple things as not letting the water run constantly while brushing your teeth can save hundreds of gallons a month. These are just a few examples of what can be done.

For more information on how you can conserve water and practice wise conservation, call SSU's Communications Department

Give generously to Jail N Bail

What is becoming a relatively common event is underway in Sanford and Lake Mary today and tomorrow. The American Cancer Society is holding a Jail & Bail event.

For those unfamiliar with the fund raiser, prominent persons are taken to specific locations where they are outfitted in a prison-style striped shirt and cap. They are then handed a telephone, and the goal is to phone friends and acquaintances seeking pledges to the Cancer Society.

Off duty police officers from the two cities will take part in transporting the "criminals" to jails which have been set up at the Rand Alley on E. First Street in downtown Sanford, and at Radio Shack in Lake Mary Center.

Individuals are given the job of being the bail officer, and will place specific charges against the person taken to jail. Charges of course are generally of a humorous nature. They may include "imitating a human being," "breathing in public," or "being too nice."

While persons participating in the event have a great deal of fun, the goal is serious. Cancer continues to be one of the most dangerous killers in our society. There are so many different types of cancer that research projects are going on across the nation and throughout the world. Each of these projects needs funds with which to operate.

Cancer victims also receive financial assistance in some cases. Medical equipment which attempts to reduce cancerous growths is costly to obtain and expensive to use.

Today and tomorrow have been designated in Sanford and Lake Mary for the Cancer Society.

When one of the persons who has been "jailed" in this drive phones asking for support, give whatever is possible. Certainly you will be helping that individual obtain a fund raising goal, but after the fun is over, your money will be going to help cancer research and cancer victims.

It's a worthwhile project. Give generously.

Clinton can't waffle on quotas

Some straws in the wind came floating into the legal community on April 26 regarding the most important new law of our era.

By a vote of 8-1 the Supreme Court ruled against retroactively applying the Civil Rights Act of 1991. This means that the law will throw out thousands of cases that had already been filed prior to the passage of the highly controversial and ambiguous act, originally described by George Bush as "a quota law."

The one dissenting justice was Harry Blackmun, who has shown a strong tendency to decide matters on the basis of what he wishes the law was, rather than what the law says, or seems to say. No surprise there.

Of far greater interest was the fact that the Clinton administration's position, expressed to the court by Solicitor General Drew S. Days 3d, reversed the position on the matter previously taken by the Bush administration.

Now, the ruling about retroactivity is a complex one and has antecedents that concern more than just the 1991 act. However, the switch of position by the Clintonites takes one more big step toward answering the question "how do you stand on quotas?"

The central rulings on the 1991 law are yet to come, and revolve around the question of how the phrase "disparate impact" will be interpreted. Roughly, the "proportionalists" maintain that if the numbers of blacks, Latinos, women and other protected groups don't generally match the population involved in jobs or education, then discrimination is in the air.

The other side of the argument, pushed by "meritocrats," says that accomplishment, not race, gender or ethnicity is what should count in jobs or education. Otherwise, they say, it's "reverse discrimination."

Clinton campaigned against quotas, and for merit. That was one of the ways he informed the voters that he was a "New Democrat."

But he has not governed that way. His political appointments have been doled out quota-style: a black for this job, a Latino for that one, a "skirt" here. He has supported gerrymandered black congressional districts. Clinton's health plan calls for quota advancement for minority doctors seeking specialty training. (Won't that give you confidence when you've got a serious medical problem?) The crime bill may founder because liberals, with no opposition from Team Clinton, are demanding that the death penalty be doled out according to racial proportion, or not at all.

The relevant appointments at the Department of Justice, and elsewhere, are almost without exception from the Proportional Team.

Clinton's policy is wrong and politically dangerous.

Proportionalism sets race against race. It implies that various groups are inferior and can't make it on their own. It discredits the achievements of the legitimately successful.

The political danger is that quotas are a national firestorm waiting to happen.

The switch by Clintonites takes one more big step toward answering "how do you stand on quotas?"

ELLEN GOODMAN

The furor over the end of life

BOSTON — For the past few weeks, while the country waited to hear who would be nominated to the Supreme Court, a series of lower court decisions was being laid down, one case after another, like stepping stones leading directly to the door of the Courthouse.

Now, if the president has his way, Judge Stephen G. Breyer will be on the highest bench when one of the most sensitive issues arrives: the issue of doctor-assisted suicide. The question will come bearing all the moral weight and political heat of the issue of abortion. The decision may be as famous as Roe v. Wade.

Two courts now have now issued absolutely opposite opinions about the constitutional right to assisted suicide.

One of these courts was in Michigan where the Jack Kevorkian story is the longest running saga of our public ethics class.

On May 2, Kevorkian was acquitted of breaking a law specifically written to stop him. After watching an emotional videotape that showed Thomas Hyde, in advanced stages of amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, pleading to die, the jury refused to convict Kevorkian of wrongdoing for heeding that plea.

Days later, the state appeals court struck down the so-called Kevorkian law, on a technicality. But the same 2-to-1 majority on the appeals court went on to declare that there is no constitutional right to suicide or to assisted suicide. "Liberty and justice will not cease to exist if a right to commit suicide is not recognized," wrote Judge Thomas Fitzgerald.

This is the exact opposite of what a federal district court judge in Seattle had decided days earlier. There, Judge Barbara J. Rothstein struck down a 140-year-old state ban on assisted suicide, saying that the law violated the 14th Amendment by restricting a person's liberty.

"There is no more profoundly personal decision," she wrote "nor one which is closer to the heart of personal liberty than the choice which a terminally ill person makes to end his or her suffering and hasten an inevitable death." So the sides are joined with more cases to come.

There are some 30 states that make it illegal to help someone commit suicide. In opinion polls, the public is in favor of letting doctors aid the terminally, painfully ill who want to die. But at the voting polls, they have publicly rejected initiatives that would make it legal.

Indeed, in Washington state some of the same people who brought their case to the ballot in 1991 and lost, brought their case to the court in 1994 and won.

Judge Rothstein's opinion leaned heavily on the Supreme Court's abortion decisions. But the analogy to abortion is not just a legal one. It's a political one.

Americans are at the same point in the debate over suicide, assisted suicide, the right-to-die, and euthanasia, that we were in the debate over abortion in the early 1970s. We're at the beginning.

Two decades ago, the Supreme Court issued the abortion decision. But Harry Blackmun's compromise didn't mute the controversy. We entered into a 20-year abortion war in which a scorched earth policy replaced the search for common ground.

Now we are about to scrutinize Blackmun's successor. In the days ahead, measure the humanity as carefully as his mind. Because there are cases making their way inexorably to his docket. And the furor over the end of life could be every bit as intense as the furor over the beginning of life.

The question will come bearing all the moral weight and political heat of the issue of abortion.

The dark side of gambling

If I didn't know better I would think that the media was supporting legalized casino gambling in Florida.

Real reporting gives both sides of a story...so why is there only media coverage on the gambling industry proponents? We have yet to see or hear any report, much less an accurate and in-depth one, showing the dark side of gambling.

The introduction of casino gambling, in any form, would have serious ramifications for Florida. People need to know the full story. For example:

- Compulsive gambling is the fastest-growing addiction today. (Fulcher, Gerry T., "The Dark Side of a Trip to the Track," Industry Week 5 August 1991.)

- It is estimated that 8 to 9 million people across the invisible line from normal, social gambling to abnormal pathological gambling. (Fulcher, Gerry T., "The Dark Side of a Trip to the Track," Industry Week 5 August 1991.)

- The American Insurance Institute estimates that 40 percent of all white collar crime is gambling related.

- Pathological gamblers commit $1.3 billion of insurance fraud a year. (Ignon, Lance, "Workers Who Gamble Heavily Often Lose Their Jobs," Investor's Business Daily 26 June 1992.)

- Casinos will prey upon Floridians, not tourists as some gambling proponents claim. The majority (37) of states already have some form of gambling instituted; tourists don't need to come to Florida for that. (Senator John Grant, No Casinos, Inc.)

- Casino complexes are financial "black holes" sucking tourist and resident dollars and leaving less to be spent in the community. (Fishkind and Associates, Inc., Riverboat Gaming Economic Impacts in Florida November 1993.)

The proponents of casino gambling don't see the harm in the addition of one new form of gambling in Florida — after all we have the lottery, bingo, dog racing, and jal alai. This is precisely our point: gambling is losing its stigma. One step leads to another and before we know it, Florida has become Atlantic City South!

We don't need to lay out the welcome mat for this destructive industry — Florida can do better without it.

So how about some unbiased journalism presenting the other side? There's plenty to say about it.

Response to article

On April 17, 1994, the front page headline of the Herald read: "Drugs in the projects" with a subheading, "Lawbreaking tenants rarely evicted from public housing." At least one-fourth page was devoted to this article.

On March 23 & 24, 1994 (3 weeks prior) the Sanford Housing Authority Resident Council (SHARC) sponsored an educational fair held in two different centers at Castle Brewer Court and at Cowan Moughton Terrace.

The following agencies made presentations, sought and obtained applicants they can serve: (1) 4C's of Central Florida, (2) HRS Project Independence, (3) Seminole County Private Industry Council, and (4) Seminole Community College Counseling, Financial Aide, GED, ABE, ESOL, and CORE Lab representatives.

The focus was on the assessment of job skills development and educational needs of SHA residents, their actual enrollment in course studies, and the provision of counseling, financial aid, day care, transportation, etc. for the successful completion of this extremely worthwhile undertaking.

On March 23rd, only three sentences were devoted to this activity on page 2A of the Herald. The significance of this far-reaching effort is exceedingly greater than "Drugs in the projects", and should have been given greater prominence.

The use of the term "project" is typically stereotyped and carries a negative image. We prefer to use "complexes" when referring to SHA residential housing. We invite you to join us. We are determined to make progress, not maintain the status quo, and certainly not regress.

More on Sanford Housing Authority

I notice my letter to the Herald last fall about the Sanford Housing Authority residents who violate the law not being evicted had generated some positive action, at least against cases related to drug activities. I followed up my letter with a call to Executive Director Phyllis Richardson who at that time informed me nothing could be done without a conviction.

I now read in the Herald where she only thought it was necessary to have a conviction on a drug offense. The Herald now states Richardson has been advised by legal counsel only proof is required to evict and that the head of the household is to be considered responsible. This means the entire family is subject to eviction.

This brings us to a second necessary step. According to a Herald story last fall a woman from Castle Brewer Court was arrested and charged with armed robbery and four counts of violating terms of her probation on previous theft charges. The Herald reported she was taken to the county jail.

I called the Housing Authority to find out if she would be evicted. I was told by Ms. Richardson that 1) there would have to be a conviction, and 2) it was next to impossible to evict anyone from a housing authority unit except in a case of child molesting.

About a month ago I called Dave Webster of the State Attorney's office in Sanford to find out if the woman had been tried. He informed me she had been tried and found guilty. At the time she was serving a sentence in the county jail.

My question now is that when she is released will she be allowed to return to Castle Brewer Court? Ms. Richardson said the woman was living there with her mother and was not the responsible tenant. Since armed robbery and theft could be closely related to producing funds for drug activities could she be kept from living with her mother or could the entire family be evicted?

When I served on the Sanford City Commission from 1971 to 1981 the executive director of the housing authority was Tim Wilson. I recall he informed us that there were over 400 qualified families on the waiting list. Earlier this year Ms. Richardson told me that number had increased to more than 600. The Herald now tells us that the housing authority has completely stopped taking applications.

I hope responsible tenants in Sanford's more than 500 units will impress among those who reside with them illegal actions could lead to the entire family being evicted.

The Sanford Housing Authority board, when it meets May 19, ought to set eviction policies not only in cases of drug involvement but also on convictions of armed robbery, theft or any other charge of breaking the law.

Julian Stenstrom
Sanford

P.S. It is evident I strongly support the Herald's editorial opinion of "Kick lawbreaking tenants out." The only responsibility the city commission has is to name members of the authority's directorate. But, if the commissioners have the authority to appoint they also have the authority to remove. Consequently, I suggest Mayor Bettye Smith and our four city commissioners take a real close look at what policies housing authority directors take May 19.

Dart

is a former U.S. deputy clerk and retired U.S. Marine Corps serviceman. Dart has no party affiliation.

Mica, a Republican, is seeking a second term in Washington D.C. Longwood investment broker Ed Goddard, a Democrat, is also seeking the seat.

Dart says he would represent District 7 unfettered by lobbyist ties. Dart says Mica, himself a former lobbyist, is too wedded to special interests to be responsive to the needs of local constituents.

"Let's do the right thing for the people, not just what the lobbyists want," says Dart.

Dart served as a marine for 12 years and received back injuries while in Honduras. Weeks later, he was in Kuwait and he said his back injuries were magnified as he and his Second Division advanced on Kuwait City. He received the Combat Action Medal for his Middle East service.

Dart returned to his parent's home in Altamonte Springs and he began work as a federal court deputy clerk before resigning to run for office.

Dart is married to Linda Dart. Dart has one son, Sean.

Locally, Dart chaired a March of Dimes "Bikers for Babies" fundraiser. Dart has also helped with Heart of Florida United Way, Coalition for the Homeless and Disabled American Veterans.

Dart says he would like to see a national Community Health

Purchasing Alliance similar to one which is being established in central Florida. A national network of CHPAs could offer a solution to the national health-care access problems. The CHPAs allow regional purchases of healthcare insurance and services at lower rates.

"I'd like to see that tried on the national level," says Dart. "It might possibly make health care available to everyone."

Dart says he would also like to return national attention to the federal debt problem.

Maintain

Holland said the city's current landscape maintenance contractor offered to do the mowing and litter pickup eight times per year for a charge of $9,000, but it would require a great deal more work than that, and we just don't have the equipment, manpower, or money to pay for the additional work."

Holland said a closer study of the area revealed the city would not only have to keep the grass mowed and area cleaned, but have to clean any graffiti, fill in holes caused by cars leaving the pavement or in an accident, and have the liability over the property as well.

"It just isn't practical," Holland said, "so for the time being, we are telling the DOT that we aren't interested."

Steve Homan, spokesman for the Department of Transportation said the DOT makes similar proposals on upkeep and maintenance to other municipalities in which interchange areas occur. "Some have accepted our offer while others haven't," he said. "If they don't, then we will just continue taking care of it ourselves, although I suspect in some cases, a municipality may not think we are keeping it as well groomed as they may want." "If Lake Mary says no to our proposal," Homan said, "We'll just do what we have to, and do the best we can with the funds available."

The report from Holland is being presented for information during tomorrow night's Lake Mary City Commission meeting. No commission vote is expected on the staff report.

The Lake Mary City Commission meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. tomorrow night, in the commission chambers of Lake Mary City Hall, 100 N. Country Club Road.

Collapse

"They are meeting all the new codes for wind resistance," said Wynn. "We've been real happy with the construction."

An employee of Town Center who did not want to be identified said she planned to move into one of the apartments as soon as the first buildings were ready for occupancy. She said she was confident the buildings were safe.

Officials of OSHA (Occupational Safety and Health Administration) are expected to look over the site this afternoon. According to Wynn, that is standard operating procedure when an accident like this occurs.

"I don't think that it is an indicator of anything," he said.

Sanford Fire Chief Tom Hickson said his department would not be following up on the collapse with any investigation.

"Our job ended in this situation when our trucks came back to the station," he said.

Hickson said he agrees with the assessment that the collapse may have been brought on by high winds which hit some of the Sanford area.

When I left the station en route to the apartments," he said, "there was a lot of small size hail falling at the fire station."

According to the Sanford Police officers stationed at the entrance guarding against any unauthorized persons entering the complex, "a lot of materials have been coming out of there" since before 4 o'clock on Wednesday morning.

While the news media has been banned from entering the accident site, others who have seen the collapse scene describe the building as a total loss.

"It's match sticks now," Wynn said. "It just kinda laid down."

Officials at Town Center were in a meeting this morning and could not be reached for comment.

Penny and Kevin Fletcher drove up in front of the Ransbottom house to drop off their child for babysitting, and was seen by one of the men.

By this time, the report said the men had taken the woman into the garage area of the house.

Responding quickly to the situation, Ransbottom reportedly told the men the back door was unlocked if they wanted to get away. The men then fled through the house, out the rear door and into a nearby wooded area, while Ransbottom fled toward the Fletchers vehicle.

The report said, "Mrs. Ransbottom turned Mrs. Fletcher around and pushed her out of the doorway. Mrs. Ransbottom then ran towards their car, told them to get into their car and get out of here." She added that the men had a gun.

Ransbottom turned Mrs. Fletcher around and pushed her out of the doorway. Mrs. Ransbottom then ran towards their car, told them to get into their car and get out of here." She added that the men had a gun.

As the Fletchers drove off, they reported seeing the white car pull out of the woods and head down Weldon Boulevard, during which time two shots were fired at their vehicle. Only one reportedly struck the Fletcher's car. No one was injured in the shooting.

Lake Mary police said additional information regarding the case was being withheld pending an extensive investigation into the matter.

downtown area but all around the greater Sanford area, including Disney.

"To me, the community is what it is all about," Higgins added. The program is helping foster the small town community atmosphere where people want to be.

This is the second year for the Main Street fund raiser and organizers hope to raise between $12,000 to $15,000. Chris Cranias said money raised goes to support the Main Street program. The funds help pay for matching grants for qualified applicants to upgrade building facades by painting or adding awnings and to do market research on the types of businesses which will succeed downtown.

The fun begins at 10 a.m. Saturday until 5 p.m. Sunday hours are 11 a.m. until 5 p.m.

A number of merchants have donated items for the silent auction. Bids will be taken on items ranging from a 1990 Cadillac valued at $15,000 to several items ranging from dry cleaning services, food at local restaurants, five tuxedo rentals to a golf outing for four at Timacauan Country Club.

Tickets will also be drawn for prizes given away throughout the festival.

A wide variety of singers and dancers will perform during the two day festival.

Idyllwild Elementary Chorus, Heathrow Elementary Chorus, Seminole Community College Jazz Band, Hollywood East Dancers, Kayli Lytle (vocalist), and Budapest String Band are scheduled to perform Saturday.

On Sunday entertainment will be provided by Rumble Seat (50's band), Longwood Elementary Minnie Men Band, School of Dance Arts (SODA POPPS), Memefer's Demo Team, Longwood Elementary Choraliers and Lakeview Middle School Music.

In addition the Celery City Cruisers will be on hand Sunday showing their antique cars.

Lemon law

The lemon law allows consumers to seek a refund or replacement vehicle after a new vehicle has been under repair for at least a month or if the manufacturer fails to repair warranty problems within a reasonable number of attempts.

Any problems must substantially reduce the value of the vehicle or impair its use or safety in order for the vehicle to qualify for protection.

The lemon law applies to new cars with warranty problems reported within the first 18 months or 24,000 miles, whichever comes first. The period may be extended by another six months if a problem is not corrected.

Butterworth said the program has exceeded his expectations and led more auto manufacturers to resolve consumer complaints rather than going through arbitration.

"We knew it was going to be a program that would protect consumers," he said. "But the thing was getting the word out to the consumer."

Jones said it took about six months to resolve the dispute over her car after she contacted the state.

"I feel like the settlement was real fair," she said. "It was definitely worth going through. It wasn't that painful."

The toll-free number for the lemon law program is 1-800-321-5366.

Models with disabilities find work in advertising

By CONNIE FARROW
Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS — Fashion model Cheryl Endicott takes one last look in the mirror at her outfit — cream-colored denim shorts and a short-sleeved blue shirt — and smiles to make sure there's no lipstick on her teeth.

Pleased, she maneuvers her wheelchair outside the Venture Stores Inc. studio where a photographer is waiting.

"We're selling shirts today, so you need to sit up tall," the stylist reminds Endicott as the camera clicks away.

Endicott is one of a growing number of people with disabilities who now model in advertisements for companies such as Venture, McDonald's Corp., Nike Inc. and Anheuser-Busch Cos.

"I think I'm pretty. And I think because I'm pretty and in a wheelchair — that makes me marketable," said the 30-year-old St. Louis native, who recently signed with the DeLain Agency.

A few years ago, there were no pictures of paraplegics or children with Down syndrome on the walls of modeling agencies.

Sandra Gordon, a senior vice president of the National Easter Seal Society, the biggest group serving the disabled, recalled her first efforts to get companies to use people with disabilities in their ads.

"I was told it was a disgusting idea, and that it would turn people off," Gordon said. "They actually thought people wouldn't buy a product for fear they'd end up the same way."

Things changed after Congress passed the Americans with Disabilities Act in 1990. In addition to legislating hefty penalties for discrimination and requiring easy access to public buildings, the law required a more accurate census of people with disabilities.

The figure came to 43 million. Companies also learned the disabled have a total income of close to $700 billion.

"When they started seeing the numbers, they saw it was a huge market," Gordon said.

With no fanfare, Target used a disabled child in a Sunday circular. Spokeswoman Carolyn Brookler said there was no high-level strategy behind the decision.

"It was part of a brainstorming session in advertising, and one of the art directors said, 'We show people of different races and different ages. Why not show someone with a disability?'" Brookler recalled.

A sample ad was made up with a disabled child model and shown to Target's top management.

"The people looking at it didn't even notice the person," Brookler said. "That was the point they were trying to make — it didn't matter."

It mattered to disabled Americans and their families. Target received hundreds of letters praising the move.

Now, dozens of big companies around the country are hiring disabled people to model.

Suzie Stufflebam, a 6-year-old with Down syndrome who has appeared in two Venture ads, tells people in her St. Charles neighborhood, "I'm a star."

A fourth-grader from her church asked to take her picture to school for show and tell. "He wanted to tell everybody he knew somebody famous," Suzie's mother, Dee Stufflebam, said with a laugh.

Penny Bailey is a paraplegic who recently signed with the Talent Plus agency. The 28-year-old has been paralyzed from the waist down since age 17, when the car she was riding in skidded off the road and crashed.

"It's the first agency that's given me hope," said the 6-foot, 125-pound blonde.

Bailey had begun training for a modeling career at 15. She has done billboards and public service announcements. But she nearly gave up after a painful rejection last year by an agency.

"The woman told me, 'Let me put it to you this way: If I had a model with crooked teeth and a model without crooked teeth, I'm going to use the model without crooked teeth,'" Bailey said. "It really hurt my self-esteem."

Although Bailey hasn't had a professional shoot yet, she remains optimistic.

"It's really neat because it shows advertising is becoming more mainstream," she said. "It helps make us all one."

Higher interest rates bring elation, concern

By JAMES N. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Federal Reserve's latest inflation-fighting move to make borrowing more costly is prompting a burst of activity on Wall Street and a jolt of hand-wringing in Congress over concern the economic recovery may evaporate.

Some analysts predicted the central bank now will be content to sit back and watch to see whether the higher interest rates will have the desired effect.

"They will hold here for at least two or three months. The Fed is finished for now," said economist David Jones of Aubrey G. Lanston & Co., a New York City government securities dealer.

The Fed on Tuesday sent a dramatic signal of its determination to hold inflation in check by increasing the discount rate 1/2 percentage point each time.

Major banks moved immediately to raise prime interest rates, guaranteeing the cost of borrowing for millions of consumers and businesses will climb.

The increase in banks' prime lending rate was led by Citicorp, the nation's largest bank, which boosted its prime by one-half percentage point to 7.25 percent.

The increase, which was quickly copied by other major banks, marked the third raise this year in the prime lending rate, a benchmark for many business and consumer loans.

We hope that Main Street is not being sacrificed for Wall Street," said Martin Regalia, chief economist for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

The stock and bond markets welcomed the Federal Reserve move as the Dow Jones industrial average soared 49 points and bond prices also posted an impressive gain. It was a sharp contrast to the three smaller Fed hikes earlier this year, when prices tumbled.

Analysts said while the cost of short-term borrowing will go up — home equity and car loans are examples — mortgage rates could come down because they are pegged to 30-year bonds.

Economists predicted rates on 30-year mortgages, which hit a two-year high of 8.77 percent last week, could retreat to around 8.25 percent. That could mean a monthly savings of about $50 to someone with a $100,000 mortgage.

"Most of the time the Fed waits too long to do anything," said Joe Pralaken of Laurence H. Meyer & Associates, a St. Louis economic forecasting firm. "This time they really did seem to go to great lengths to preempt inflation."

The Fed's calculations prove correct, the current economic expansion could last several more years rather than collapsing amid rising inflation.

But many politicians attacked the rate increases. They said the central bank is ignoring recent unemployment reports that show economic growth slowing from the torrid pace set last year and price pressures abating.

In a letter to Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan, a bipartisan group of seven New England senators led by Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell said their region "has weathered some heavy blows over the last few years" and now thinks to higher interest rates "the economic recovery in our states will suffer."

"The behavior of the Fed is an outrage," added Sen. Byron Dorgan, D-N.D., a frequent Fed critic. "The Fed is responding more to the interests of money center banks than to the interests of the productive sector of the American economy."

While lower interest rates are a cornerstone of the Clinton administration's economic recovery program, the White House put the best face on the Fed's action and offered assurances the economy will withstand the growing credit squeeze.

"The administration believes that the economy is on a path of sustained growth, strong employment and low inflation," said Laura D'Andrea Tyson, head of the White House Council of Economic Advisors. "The administration respects the independence of the Federal Reserve and neither criticizes nor endorses its actions."

Economy is still the key to Clinton political fortunes

By TONY RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The White House may be outwardly quiet about the Fed's latest interest-rate move, but if you listen closely you can hear the grinding of teeth.

And the sound of pages being ripped from presidential speeches — those with the message touting record-low interest rates and a rush of home financing.

Clinton rode into office on a new law to fix a broken economy, but took credit for the current recovery. The economy has been the key to his political fortunes for some time, and it remains so today.

"Now let's get the fundamental facts out here. We have more jobs, lower inflation, and a lower deficit and expectations for high growth this year," he said Tuesday.

But are steeply rising interest rates a sign of a healthy economy, as the administration contends? Or do they portend an unwanted drag on the economy that could turn into a political liability for the president and his party?

Those are questions being weighed by a jittery White House — which hopes the answer is yes to the first question and no to the second, but can't know for sure it won't be the other way around.

Even before Tuesday's action by the Federal Reserve to raise two key interest rates, rates on home mortgages and other long-term consumer loans already had risen to where they were near the end of the Bush administration.

The Fed increased its rate for direct loans to banks from 3 percent to 3.5 percent, and boosted the target for overnight loans between commercial banks from 3.75 percent to 4.25 percent.

Both actions were expected to drive up borrowing costs for millions of Americans in the short term.

While the administration was publicly uncritical of the Fed and tried to explain away the higher interest rates as reflective of continued growth in the economy, presidential advisers harbor lurking concerns.

A Fed miscalculation could have the effect of breaking economic growth too sharply rather than just warding off inflation, leading to a period of stagnation going into the 1996 presidential election.

"I make it a practice generally not to comment on what the Fed does (but) there is clearly some room for short-term interest rates over the long term that won't slow down our economic growth," Clinton said Tuesday.

But White House aides said Clinton has voiced frustration over the recent climb of longer-term interest rates like home mortgages — rates less directly influenced by Fed actions and more governed by financial markets.

And many economists see the steep increase in long term rates as a sign of market eagerness — fueling in part by a fear that the Fed might be overreacting to the threat of inflation.

"I think that economists were privately expressing hope that Tuesday's Fed actions would mark the end of the central bank's round of rate tightening."

"Again, there isn't a lot of evidence of inflationary pressure in the economy now. White House press secretary Dee Dee Myers said after the Fed acted, 'That's about as close as we can get to publicly questioning the Fed moves.'"

Weight gain by age 30 linked with higher risk of breast cancer

By DANIEL G. HANEY
AP Science Writer

DALLAS — Women who put on weight around age 30 — even just an extra 10 or 20 pounds — may substantially increase their risk of breast cancer later in life, researchers say.

Researchers have long noticed that obesity is linked with breast cancer. So they set out to see if there is any particular time of life when gaining weight is especially hazardous.

"We found that the most important decade in a woman's life was the third decade," said Dr. Noreen Aziz. "Of all the decades in which you should lose that extra weight, it's the third."

After lung cancer, breast cancer is the leading cancer killer of U.S. women. An estimated 48,000 people will die from it this year.

Many factors are thought to influence a woman's risk, but most of them, such as a family history of the disease, are beyond an individual's control.

This is why experts are especially eager to find risk factors such as weight that can be changed.

The latest study was conducted by Aziz and colleagues at the H. Lee Moffitt Cancer Center and Research Institute in Tampa, Fla. It was presented Tuesday at a meeting of the American Society for Clinical Oncology.

The researchers studied 218 women with newly diagnosed breast cancer and compared them with 438 healthy women of the same age.

They found that half the cancer patients and one-third of the healthy women had gained more than 15 pounds between ages 18 to 30. Two-thirds of the cancer patients and half of the comparison group had gained this much between age 30 and their current age.

At age 30, the women who went on to get breast cancer weighed an average of 131 pounds, while the comparison group weighed 120 by age 40. The women who got breast cancer weighed 139 pounds, compared with 128 for the healthy women.

They calculated that women who carry 10 pounds more than normal at age 30 increase their risk of breast cancer by 23 percent. With an extra 15 pounds, their risk increases 37 percent, and with 20 pounds, it goes up 52 percent.

"It means a 10-pound difference may be significant," Aziz said.

Dr. Walter Willett of the Harvard School of Public Health noted that many women in their childbearing years neglect their own health, often because they seem outwardly to be in good shape.

"This is one more reason to emphasize the avoidance of substantial weight gain during this period," he said. "This is a good message, because it's an ignored problem."

The link between weight and breast cancer is probably complicated, however. Willett said his own research suggests that being slim may actually increase the risk of breast cancer before menopause, when this disease is rare, while being overweight raises the risk after menopause.

The risk of breast cancer increases with age. Besides a family history of the disease, other factors that appear to increase risk include going through puberty at an unusually early age, reaching menopause late, never having children or starting a family late in life.

One of the few other controllable risk factors is alcohol consumption, which appears to raise the risk of breast cancer somewhat.

High levels of estrogen, the female sex hormone, are thought to increase the risk of breast cancer. Both obesity and drinking may contribute by prompting the body to produce more estrogen.

Students report regrets: Sex started too young

By HOWARD GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — Most sexually active teen-agers in a national poll say they lost their virginity too soon, but not because of pressure from their friends or dates.

Fifty-four percent of those who have had sex said they should have waited, the Roper poll found. The sexually active teens gave, on average, 17 as the "best age" to begin sexual intercourse, two years older than the average age they said they began.

Most said they started not because of pressure from friends (4 percent) or from the partner (6 percent) but because they wanted to (78 percent). Nine in 10 of all the teens in the poll denied they feel pressure from friends or dates to have sex, and 83 percent said they feel no pressure from TV or movies.

"Rolanda," a nationally syndicated talk show, commissioned the poll for a program today with help from the Sexually Information and Education Council of the United States, a New York-based interest group.

"One of the things this poll suggests is how confused young people are in America about sexuality," said Debra Haffner, the group's executive director. "I think there's a lot of contradiction between their attitudes and what they're doing."

Telephone interviews with 503 students in grades nine through 12 were conducted last month by Roper Starch Worldwide. Results have a margin of sampling error of less than 5 percentage points.

Forty-one percent said they engaged in sex with penetration, and almost three-quarters of them said they did it in the homes of their parents or their partners' parents. Six in 10 said they believe their parents know about their sexual behavior.

Eight in 10 of the sexually active said they use condoms all or most of the time, but the bad news for AIDS prevention is that 21 percent reported four or more partners and only 57 percent always use a condom.

The share of those who said they had intercourse, 38 percent, is much lower than the 54 percent in a 1990 survey by the Centers for Disease Control.

That could be good news for those worried about teen pregnancy and AIDS, but teen-agers called at home may be less willing to report sex than those who filled out the federal survey's questionnaire, which went anonymously into a sealed envelope at school.

There was no difference in the average ages the high school students thought best for boys and girls to have their first sexual intercourse, and on average, both sexes started at the same age.

But while 71 percent of the girls said they were in love with their last sexual partner, only 45 percent of the boys said the same. Eighty-one percent of the sexually active boys vs. 50 percent of the sexually active girls said "sex is a pleasurable experience."

The report "Teens Talk About Sex" is available for $12 from SIECUS Publications, 130 W. 42nd St. Suite 2500, New York, N.Y. 10036.

Kids plot revenge claiming sex-abuse

By DEBRA HALE
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO — When 11 fourth-graders accused their substitute teacher of molesting them, authorities were ready to believe them. Even the teacher agreed that children so young rarely lie about such things.

This time, they did lie — prodded, police say, by a classmate who had offered them $1 apiece to accuse the teacher falsely.

"What's so scary — and so sad — is that you've got 9-year-old kids sophisticated enough to know they can get a teacher by saying he fondled them," Chicago Teachers Union spokeswoman Jackie Gallagher said.

"You just don't want to think that our little kids who you're still reading nursery rhymes to are figuring they're going to stick it to their teacher."

Albert Thompson told police his class at Fuller Elementary School on Chicago's South Side became unruly during his May 9 assignment. He said some children ran out of the classroom, and he had to stand by the door to keep others inside.

When Thompson threatened to report their misbehavior, a 9-year-old girl offered to pay 10 classmates — nine girls and a boy — $1 each if they joined her in claiming that Thompson fondled them, police said.

Thompson, 43, never was charged. Police cleared him after some of the children made inconsistent statements and one admitted they had made up the story to get him in trouble. The 9-year-old also recanted, police said.

But he hasn't gotten another teaching assignment.

"We're in a society where you're guilty until proven innocent," Thompson said Tuesday. Political correctness and children's rights "overrode my rights," he said.

At the same time, even Thompson said the case was unusual. "For every case like mine, there are nine cases" where a child really was abused, he said.

"This is really the exception," said Bette L. Bottoms, an assistant psychology professor at the University of Illinois at Chicago who has researched the use of child witnesses in sexual abuse cases. "Let's not use this as an example to discredit children in general."

Lt. Robert Hargesheimer said the children probably had not thought through their actions and how the allegations "could damage this guy personally and professionally."

AROUND THE NATION

Orsulak does in Marlins

NEW YORK — Joe Orsulak, who had earlier hit a game-tying home run, drove in two runs with a two-out, bases-loaded single in the ninth inning Tuesday night to give the New York Mets a 4-3 victory over the Florida Marlins.

Todd Hundley opened the ninth with a walk off Yorkis Perez and John Cangelosi sacrificed him to second. Jeremy Hernandez (2-2) retired one batter, then issued two-out walks to Jose Vizcaino and Jeff McKnight to load the bases. Orsulak has a 1-2 count when he hit his game-winning liner down the right-field line.

Suns eclipse Knoxville

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Jim Gutierrez pitched a six-hitter as the Jacksonville Suns defeated Knoxville 3-0 in the Southern League. Gutierrez (3-3) struck out five and did not walk a batter in going the distance. Jacksonville scored twice in the top of the sixth. Terrel Hansen singled home the first run and Arquimedez Posa scored on an error by Knoxville left fielder Rick Hollifield.

Motta back at Mavericks helm

DALLAS — Dick Motta, the original coach of the Dallas Mavericks, returned to the job, hoping to revive the NBA's worst team. Motta, 62, succeeds Quinn Buckner, fired two weeks ago after a 13-69 record in his only season. Motta, who coached Dallas from 1980-81 to 1986-87, is 856-863 in a record 22 seasons. He led Washington to the NBA title in 1978.

Angels fire Rodgers

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Buck Rodgers was fired as manager of the California Angels and replaced by Marcel Lachemann. Rodgers, 55, was 16-23 in his fourth season with the Angels. Lachemann, 52, was the pitching coach for Florida, managed by his brother, Rene. They became the first brothers to manage in the majors since 1900.

Big Al retires

INDIANAPOLIS — Four-time Indianapolis 500 winner Al Unser Sr., who drove at Indianapolis 27 years, announced his retirement. Only A.J. Foyt, who retired last May after a record 35 straight starts, and Mario Andretti, whose 29th Indy start will be his last, have driven more races at Indianapolis than the 54-year-old Unser.

American Division squads win Little Major openers

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — It was the American Division's day on the opening night of the 1994 Sanford Recreation Department Little Major Baseball League City Championship playoffs at Ft. Mellon Park Tuesday night.

At Roy Holler Field, the American Division champion Sunniland Corporation Red Sox brought out the big gun to blow away the runner-up from the National Division, the Rinker Materials Dodgers, 5-0.

Meanwhile, at Lakeside Field, the American runner-up Disabled American Veterans (DAV) Royals scored a run in the bottom of the sixth inning to edge the National Division champion Railroaders Cubs 10-9 at Lakeside Field.

The best two-out-of-three semifinal series will continue Saturday at Ft. Mellon Park. If the Red Sox and Royals win they would start the City Championship series next Tuesday.

But if the Cubs or Dodgers, or both, win Saturday, the winner-take-all game would be next Tuesday, with the City Championship starting a week from Saturday.

The undefeated Red Sox won their 17th straight game behind the strong right arm of Levi Raines Jr., who hurled a two-hitter while striking out 13, walking two and hitting a batter. The Dodgers only got one runner as far as third base and that was in the first inning.

Offensively, the Red Sox scored two runs in the first inning and added single runs in the second, third and fifth inning.

The Red Sox were led by Bud Bennett (home run, single, two runs, two RBI), Adam Frank (double), Nick Erickson (single, run), Raines (single, RBI), Julius Griffin (RBI) and Matt Mergo and Ken Erickson (one run each).

Brian Porter doubled and Andrew Beatty singled for the Dodgers (12-5).

The Royals (13-3) scored seven runs in the bottom of the first inning of their game with the Cubs and looked like they might end the game quickly.

But the Cubs (14-2) held the Royals scoreless over the next three innings and scored three runs in the third and two in the fourth to cut the lead to 7-5.

Discount Propane splits from pack

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — It looks like a real dogfight for second place in the Sanford Recreation Tuesday Men's Spring Slowpitch Softball League at Chase Park.

With only two weeks gone in the season, Discount Propane already has a full two-game lead, while the other three teams are all tied for second.

Discount Propane used a seven-run third inning to erase a 6-3 deficit and went on to collect its third victory without a loss, 13-7, over the Flames (1-2), who could have moved into a tie for the league lead with a win.

The earlier games were both one-run contests, Wheelch & Howard edging Gager Pest Control, 8-7, in eight innings and the Flames nipping

Carter gets best of Pratt in Limited Late Model run

By PAUL MARZUGLIA
 Special to the Herald

ORLANDO — Melbourne's Glen Carter outduelled some stiff competition to win the Limited Late Model feature event Friday night, May 13, at Orlando Speedworld.

Carter jumped to the early lead, only to loose it on the third lap to Billy Pratt. Two laps later, Carter regained the point and held off repeated challenges by Pratt to register his fifth win of the season.

"The track was a little slick earlier in the race," said Carter, a former FASCAR Modified champion. "Billy lapped me on the third lap, so I moved over and let him get by. A couple of laps later, I was able to move around him for the lead."

Pratt, who works for the sponsor of Carter's racer, told a slightly different story.

"Glen got sideways, so I just moved inside on him," said Pratt, a former Late Model pilot. "When he got by me to take the lead, he cut down on me. When you race, you do what you have to do to win. I don't fault Glen for that move."

Pratt crossed the stripe less than a car length behind Carter. Scott Bramlett took third less than a car length behind Pratt. Michael Williams finished fourth in front of Andy Saffotti.

"This is a good division," said Bramlett, who also races Late Models. "Most of the cars are real close and the racing is very competitive. I feel like I need a lot more seat time in a race car, so when I'm not racing Late Models, I race this class."

Ed Meridith led every circuit to win the 25-lap Sonny King's Orange Buick Late Model feature event handily. Eight car lengths back came Ricky Wood, who was trailed by Tuffy Hester, George Murphy, and Steve Francisco.

"This was one of those nights when everything was just perfect," said Meridith. "I started on the pole, the car was perfect and since Tuffy and Ricky were hooked up in a battle for second, I could just drive my race."

Greg Hughes also went green flag to checkers to notch his fourth Modified win of the season.

Rounding out the top five were, in order of finish, Ed Meridith, Wayne Parker, Ross Eldridge, and Eddie Shedd.

Bobby Sears started the Mini-Stock feature event from the eighth position. Six laps later, Sears got by Rick Maguire for the No. 1 slot. Once in command, Sears had clear sailing to the checkers.

Trailing Sears across the finish line were Maguire, Dave Lecklitter, Keith French, and Mike Nogic.

Bobby Stevens dominated racing action in the Bomber division as he claimed his eight checkered flag of the season. Doug Gould was second followed by Rick Schlimmer, Robert Jenkins, and Dennis Gilliam.

Jeff Rule won the Sportsman feature, finishing in front of Rick Johns, Barbara Pierce, Walt Loggins, and J. Allen Smith.

Other feature events were L.D. Rossiter (Mini-Bombers), Fred Peters (Run-Abouts), Charlie Meyers (Figure Eight), and Brett Weber (Mini-Stock Enduro).

Whelchel & Howard 2-1.

Next week, the Flames (1-2) play a doubleheader against Gager Pest Control (1-2) at 6:30 p.m. and Whelchel & Howard (1-2) at 7:30 p.m. Whelchel & Howard then sticks around to take on Discount Propane (3-0) at 8:30 p.m.

Gager Pest Control broke a 2-2 tie with Whelchel & Howard by scoring three runs in the fifth and one run in the sixth to lead 6-2 entering the seventh inning.

Whelchel & Howard scored four runs after two were out in the seventh to tie the score at 6-6 and force extra innings. Whelchel & Howard took the lead with two runs in the top of the eighth inning, but Gager came back with a run and had runners on first and third with no one out. But three pop ups ended the threat and Whelchel & Howard came away with an 8-7 triumph.

Defense was the name of the game between the Flames and Whelchel & Howard.

Whelchel & Howard took a 1-0 lead in the third inning and had the bases loaded with no one out. But the Flames turned a first base-to-catcher double play before a fly out ended the threat.

The Flames came back to tie the game in the bottom of third, but missed a golden opportunity to take the lead in the fifth as Whelchel & Howard turned a double play with runners on first and third and one out.

The Flames took the lead in the bottom of the sixth inning on an infield grounder and then threw out another runner at the plate in the top of the seventh inning to preserve the 2-1 victory.

Powering Discount Propane were Paul Ingamella (double, three singles, four runs, RBI).

Cook of the Week

Busy retiree dishes up 'Heart Happy Food'

SANFORD — Cook of the Week Dottie Anthony is a true inspiration for anybody of any age group. Her zeal and respect for life is just simply awesome and she will always find the time to get everything that is on her list of things to do for the current day completed.

Anthony is a native Floridian. Currently she is retired and makes her home in Sanford. However, she was self-employed as a re-weaver for 40 years. During her working years as a re-weaver, Anthony has worked on everything from clothing to furniture. "I repaired a tapestry for a museum in Finger County," said Anthony.

She goes on to talk about her greatest accomplishment in this field. "I'll never forget the crocheted tablecloth that was given to the bride and groom when they married in 1925. On their 55th wedding anniversary this same tablecloth was used for the party. Somehow it got rolled up and stored away before it was ever cleaned. Two years later, after the food and drink had eaten holes through it, the tablecloth was found and given to me to repair. I am very proud to say that it looked almost new when I was done with it," she said.

Ballroom dancing is another one of Anthony's passions. She can tell you the times and places where dances are going to be held within the central Florida area. "You can stay home and say nothing ever happens or you can do like I do, go out there and make it happen," she said.

This very impressive lady makes most of her dancing outfits. Be it a skirt and sweater or a lovely dress she will coordinate colors right down to her jewelry and scarfs.

When she speaks of her children and their spouses what daughter or son-in-law would relish with pride hearing his/her mother-in-law say, "Somehow I got lucky with the choices my children made in spouses." With 10 grandchildren (number 11 is on the way) there is no doubt Anthony's four children are making her very happy. Her daughter, Linda Holsclaw lives in Texas with her husband, Rusty, and their two children. Her son, Dottie Anthony serves recipes in this column.

Rob, lives in Orlando with his wife, Donna, and their four children. Jimmy Anthony lives in Kentucky. He and his wife, Lynn, have two children. And son Dan also lives in Kentucky with his wife, Jennie. They have two children and one on the way. The importance and love for all of Anthony's family is fondly displayed throughout her beautiful Sanford home.

Anthony is also a member of the Sanford Woman's Club. She enjoys almost any form of arts and crafts, as well as, "doing yard work." She is currently installing her own fish pond.

Today, Anthony shares some of her favorite recipes. She believes strongly in what she calls "Heart Happy Food."

Savory asparagus-chicken dish can be frozen for later use

Asparagus is a sure sign of spring! My mother had an asparagus patch which produced tender tips which she would cut shortly after they appeared and we enjoyed either steamed or creamed.

In Florida it is almost impossible to grow asparagus but fortunately it is readily available in the produce sections of the grocers.

The microwave oven is ideal for cooking this tender vegetable. The nutritive value is preserved as well as the texture and color. As with other vegetables, 100 percent power is used. The container is covered during cooking and cooking time is approximately 6-8 minutes per pound of vegetable.

MICROWAVE MAGIC

MIDGE MYCOFF

Method for micro-cooking 1 pound of fresh asparagus. Measure ¼ cup water into 12x8-inch glass dish. Snap off leaf tender ends of asparagus. Arrange asparagus in dish with buds toward center. Cover with vented plastic wrap. Microwave 4 minutes. Rearrange so asparagus outside of dish are brought to middle. Keep buds toward center. Cover. Microwave remaining time or until tender.

A chicken breast rolled around cut asparagus with a delicate lemon sauce would make a light lunch or dinner entree.

ASPARAGUS STUFFED CHICKEN

2 whole chicken breasts
¾ lb. asparagus, cut into 1-inch pieces

2 Tbsp. water
Chicken bouillon (instant) or paprika

Sauce for half recipe:
¼ cup mayonnaise
2 Tbsp. milk
1 Tbsp. mayonnaise
2 Tbsp. milk
1 Tbsp. lemon juice
¼ tsp. tarragon leaves.

crumbled or if using fresh, use at least 1 teaspoon finely chopped leaves

Bone and split chicken breasts. Cut each piece in half. Place one piece at a time between plastic wrap and pound with rolling pin until ¼-inch thick. Set aside.

Combine asparagus and water in 1½ quart glass casserole. Cover. Microwave (100 percent) 2½ minutes or until bright green in color. Drain. Chill in ice water; drain again. Arrange about ¼ of the asparagus pieces on the chicken; roll up.

To freeze half: individually wrap each chicken roll. Freeze up to 4 months. To micro-cook: Sprinkle chicken rolls with instant chicken bouillon or paprika and place on meat rack. Cover with wax paper. Microwave on 100 percent power 4-6 minutes or until chicken is tender. Combine sauce ingredients. Spoon over chicken rolls. Microwave on 100 percent power, uncovered 1-1½ minutes or until heated through.

Pull this delicious casserole from the freezer in the fall or winter to remind you of seasons past.

CHEESE SAUCED ASPARAGUS

8 cups cut asparagus
1 Tbsp. water
1 can (10½ oz.) condensed cream of chicken soup
1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
½ cup sour cream

½ cup sliced pimento-stuffed olives
¼ cup crushed cheese crackers
Combine asparagus and water in 2-quart glass casserole. Cover with casserole lid. Microwave on 100 percent power 6-7 minutes or until almost tender, stirring once. Stir in soup, cheese, sour cream and olives.

To freeze half: Spoon half vegetable mixture into a 1-quart glass casserole. Freeze up to 6 months. To cook half: Spoon remaining vegetable mixture into a 1-quart glass casserole. Sprinkle with ¼ cup crushed cheese crackers. Microwave on 100 percent power, uncovered, 5-6 minutes or until heated through.

Exercise and blood pressure levels

DEAR DR. GOTT: If exercise raises your blood pressure, isn't it bad for you? Once the high blood pressure is treated, does any organ damage regress?

DEAR READER: Increased blood pressure is a normal physiologic response to exercise or stress -- the old "fight or flight" phenomenon -- and, as such, is appropriate. Problems develop when the blood pressure constantly remains high, irrespective of a person's activities.

For example, regular exercise will raise the blood pressure, which should return to normal during periods of rest and relaxation. In addition, the more you exercise, the more blunted the blood pressure rise.

Also, it's well known that regular exercise actually lowers the blood pressure during times of inactivity. Therefore, exercise is good for everyone -- in moderation. Those who anticipate a strenuous exercise program, however, should consult with their doctors first.

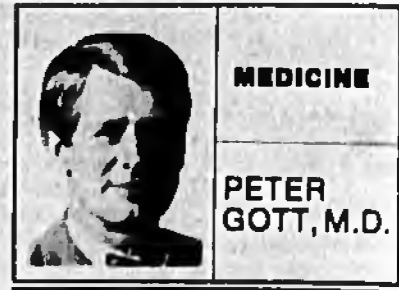

One of the dangerous consequences of persistent hypertension is permanent damage to vital organs, such as the heart and kidneys. If a hypertensive receives effective drug therapy before this damage occurs, the potential for harm is reversible.

However, once the damage has appeared (heart enlargement and decreased renal function), the changes remain.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is the cause of overactive sweat glands? I've been tested for a thyroid condition and my physician has settled on this diagnosis. Your comments?

DEAR READER: People perspire excessively as a consequence of many medical disorders, including fever and hyperthyroidism. Overactive sweat glands are also seen in conjunction with chronic stress and anxiety. Some healthy persons perspire profusely for no known cause. Hyperthyroidism (an overactive thyroid gland) increases sweating because the body's metabolism is accelerated. This glandular disorder is also associated with rapid pulse, nervousness, weight loss despite an increased appetite, weakness, heart disorders and diarrhea. The eyes may be affected, too, leading to a characteristic

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

"pop-eye" appearance that is called Graves' disease. In some cases of hyperthyroidism, profuse sweating may be the earliest sign.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

Today's deal from the Macellan International Pairs Championship, played in London last January, is like a fencing match. Both sides make excellent plays; who will come out on top?

North-South were the winners of the event. Adam Zmudzinski and Cezary Balicki from Poland, East-West were the present World Team Olympic champions, Alain Levy and Herve Mouiel from France.

Balicki opened light in the third position, a common tactic in a pair event, especially at favorable vulnerability. Norths three spades was a splinter bid, showing game values in hearts with a singleton (or void) in spades. East doubled to show a top spade honor.

An initial trump lead kills the contract, but that is hard to find. West led a low spade. Levy won with the ace and accurately switched to a trump.

With the club ace and diamond king inside, declarer had three minor-suit tricks. So he needed seven trump tricks, which would be impossible if the defenders could lead a second trump. South needed a 4-1 trump break. But West read the situation too. When Balicki correctly won trick two in hand and led a club, Mouiel played his queen.

Declarer won with dummies king and played another club. But East went in with his 10 and led a second trump, defeating the contract. Any thoughts?

Balicki could have countered West's brilliancy with a brilliancy of his own: Let West's club queen win trick three! West cannot play a second trump. And later South leads another club toward the king, establishing a discard for his diamond loser. Copyright 1994, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bado Osoi
YOUR BIRTHDAY
May 19, 1994

Take advantage of any opportunities you get in the year ahead to increase your knowledge in your chosen field of endeavor. Finding time to study might be difficult, but it will prove worth your efforts.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your perceptions might not be as crystal clear as usual today. There's a chance you may take trivial things too seriously and treat serious things too indifferently. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10183.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In order to achieve your objectives today you might have to be a bit more thick skinned than usual. If you're just an old "softy" you may not cut it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You won't appreciate being told what to think today, so it's best you avoid associates who always try to impose their ideas and opinions on others.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Someone you know and like socially could turn out to be a pretty tough customer today when doing business. Limit your expectations regarding the good deal you're hoping to get.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you're negotiating a matter of importance today it might be wise to have someone function as a buffer. One-to-one you may not do as well.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today if assignments and responsibilities are being rearranged where your work is concerned, don't volunteer to take on more than you can handle.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Try to avoid a clique whose members make you feel uneasy. The root cause for this discomfort has not yet been eradicated. In fact, today's developments could refuel it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't rely too heavily upon

Lady Luck today to bail you out of rough spots. Instead of rooting for you, she might try to trip you up.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Forego temptations today to boast or exaggerate. Instead of making you look good in the eyes of others, it might accomplish just the opposite.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Business mistakes could carry a heavier than usual price tag today, so be extremely careful in your commercial affairs. Don't pretend to understand things you don't.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Usually you're a person who appreciates the workings of compromises and concessions. Today, however, you might not yield on a position upon which you feel strongly.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Extend a helping hand to others today, but be careful your gesture isn't used to your disadvantage by a manipulator. Time must be devoted to your interests as well.
