Sanford Police Officer Takes Safety Message To Kids

Two local ambassadors have been going door to door in an effort to ensure the safety of Sanford's youngsters.

While Police Lt. Mike Rotundo has offered a security message to students at area elementary schools, John Leaman, National Child Safety Council safety coordinator, has visited local merchants to obtain the funds that finance Rotundo's discussions and presentations.

Both men agree their efforts have paid off in a big way, with Rotundo having seen a good number of Sanford's elmentary school youngsters and Leaman reporting he raised approximately $4,000 from 50 city merchants and businessmen.

Rotundo, head of the Sanford Police crime prevention and community relations department. has provided the safety council program to local children for the last four years. The materials he uses are geared at three different age levels (6-7, 7-9 and 9-12) and offer their safety message in a fun, non-threatening way. This is done through coloring books full of clowns and animals. manuals containing word games that offer safety messages and entertaining story books containing serious security messages.

Also, received by Rotundo just this month, is the safety council's new "Safetypup," a hand puppet superhero who sings his safety message. "Safetypup" tells children the whys and hows of learning phone numbers, reporting emergencies and saying no to strangers, drugs and alcohol.

The council's program "is great, it makes kids aware." said Rotundo, "It's a fun way to provide important information. The kids learn and enjoy at the same time.'

He described the packages' three age groupings as "a terrific way to educate. I'm able to reach the See SAFETY, page 8A

As Sanford Trying To Buy

County Eyes Yankee Lake Site For Own Waste Plant

By Karen Talley Herald Staff Writer

A wastewater treatment plant to service unincorporated northwest Seminole County has been proposed by the county for the same site Sanford is attempting to purchase for an effluent spray-irrigation system.

The county's consulting engineers have begun evaluating the 287-acre Yankee Lake parcel to determine what size plant could be located there and how this facility would be constructed to meet the area's current and future demands. according to County Administrator Ken Hooper. The site is north of State Road 46 and west of Interstate-4. The county, said Hooper, has determined this location to be "the most cost effective" means of serving northwest Seminole and initial engineering studies have ascertained the plant could be operational by 1987. To accommodate area growth, subsequent "phasing-in" of treatment service will necessitate the facility having an ability to process 5-million gallons of effluent a day by 1995 and 10-million by 2005, Hooper

Hooper also said the plant could be built with a capacity to process effluent from Sanford and Lake Mary, in addition to unincorporated northwest Seminole, although the cities "would have to arrange for their Faison termed this statement "surprising," in light of Sanford's existing wastewater management program, which targeted the Yankee Lake property as the city's disposal site.

Faison also said he was "very suprised to hear they might build on the land," and added "The city would be up the creek without a paddle" if the county followed through. Sanford is under a state Department of Environmental Regulation mandate to cease dumping its effluent in Lake Monroe by 1995.

Hooper said the county has already talked with the property's owner regarding a possible purchase, but it will not be making a firm offer until the engineers have completed their study. The owner, according to Hooper, is frozen food king Jeno Palucci, who also developed the Heathrow property located in Seminole County, between I-4 and Lake Mary Boulevard. He is also involved with the county in the joint-operation of the sewage plant servicing that area. Hooper

Ex-Rep. Kelly Arrives Early At Prison Camp

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. (UPI) - Former Rep. Richard Kelly. R-Fla., told to report to a federal prison in northwest Florida by Monday to begin serving time for a bribery conviction in the Abscam stipg, surrendered Friday.

Kelly, who's appealing his conviction, surrendered at 9 a.m. CST to officials at Eglin's Federal Prison Camp, a 28-acre minimum security facility with a wooden "privacy" fence. Superintendent Mike Cooksey said he had "no idea" why Kelly, ordered to report by 2 p.m. Monday. turned himself in before the weekend.

"I haven't talked to him. But I can only hypothesize that he came in early to beat the press that would have been walting at the gate," Cooksey sald.

Secret videotapes taken of the exchange of money were shown at Kelly's trial and showed him stuffing the packets of bills into his coat pockets. Kelly maintains he was his own at the time.

Kelly had been free on appeal, and last month a Washington Judge ordered him to report to prison when a location was selected. Kelly asked Kelly was convicted of bribery in the district court in Washington to ty.

Cooksey said Kelly would be assigned to an old dormitory "that's like a military barracks" for a month or more and do odd jobs before being classified and moved to one of four modern buildings.

Forces Mobilizing On Behalf Of Soviet Would-Be Defector

WASHINGTON (UPI) - An Interpreter has told Congress a young Soviet sailor who jumped ship near New Orleans wanted to defect, and Congress and the White House have ordered investigations of the government's action in returning him to his Soviet superiors.

Rep. Tom Lantos. D-Calif., sent a letter to Reagan Friday asking that the Soviet vessel, still in the Mississippi River, be prohibited from leaving U.S. waters until hearings next week, which Lantos called to investigate the case.

The White House said President Reagan directed Attorney General Edwin Meese to open an inquiry into the government's handling of the incident involving Miroslav Medvid, a Ukrainian-born sailor aboard the Soviet grain ship Marshal Koney.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan asked for the inquiry to review how the case was handled, not because a part-time government interpreter who spoke with the sailor said Medvid wanted to defect and was sent back to his ship unwillingly.

The interpreter, Irene Padoch of New York, said in an affidavit released Friday by Sen. Gordon Humphrey. R-N.H., that she spoke to Medvid in his native Ukrainian and as early as last Thursday said he wanted to defect.

She said an INS agent repeatedly asked the sailor if he wanted political asylum, "and he unhesitatingly said

Bhagwan Remains Behind Bars

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) - Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh will remain in jail until his trial on charges of violating U.S. immigration laws because a federal magistrate decided the bearded guru had "a disposition to flight."

The 53-year-old Rajneesh, who earlier this week claimed he could die in Jail, seemed outwardly unconcerned by Friday's ruling and insisted he is innocent.

"Finally, I am going to win. There's no problem, I am innocent. It is just a question of time," he said.

U.S. Magistrate Barbara Delaney dropped charges of harboring a fugitive against three of the guru's followers and set bail at $25,000 for three other disciples.

But she refused at the conclusion of a two-day hearing to

Reagan Gets Clean Bill Of Health

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Reagan says doctors have given him another clean bill of health and he remains "100 percent" recovered from cancer surgery.

Reagan was relaxing at Camp David, Md., Saturday with both domestic and foreign concerns on his mind — a battle with Congress over a controversial balanced-budget proposal threatening to shut down the government and preparations for his summit Nov. 19-20 with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

The president's interview Thursday with Soviet news media was to be released in Moscow and Washington sometime this weekend amid criticism from Russian news services that the new U.S. arms control proposal delivered to Gorbachev on Friday was inadequate.

Bomb Blast Rocks Johannesburg

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) - A bomb blast that showered home-bound office workers with shards of glass rocked central Johannesburg as hundreds of soldiers and policemen patrolled the streets in a "crime prevention operation." No one claimed responsibility for the explosion.

A police spokesman said there were no injuries, but one woman was treated for shock. The bomb exploded minutes after office workers had left their buildings at 5:30 p.m. Friday.

Police said the explosion caused "severe damage" to the fourth floor of a building where the offices of the Institute of Bankers are located. They said the bomb was left in a hallway opposite elevators.

Police sealed off the area, causing rush-hour chaos.

Social Security Checks Covered By Sale Of Trust Fund Assets

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Treasury Department, with Congress mired in a partisan impasse over lifting the debt ceiling and balancing the budget, dug into Social Security trust fund assets today to cover government checks.

The raid on the assets was necessary because Congress failed in its wrangling Friday night to increase the government's borrowing authority, despite separate efforts to do so by the House and Senate.

The sale of Social Security assets will provide the government enough money to operate through Nov. 14.

The checks will be in the mail," said Senate Republican leader Robert Dole. of Kansas, acknowledging it was no thanks to lawmakers.

"If the Congress hasn't acted by midnight, then we have to take that action." said Treasury spokeswoman Kim Hoggard just before the sale of assets took place. "We had the option up until midnight not to complete

The issue came to a head because the Senate tied its measure for balancing the budget by the end of the decade to a bill that would lift the debt ceiling to a record 82 trillion - enough to last for about another

The Democratic-led House passed its version of a balanced budget measure Friday to counter the Senate's "Gramm-Rudman" balanced budget proposal.

It then approved a bill aimed at giving the government enough borrowing authority to last through next Tuesday night and recessed for the weekend - tossing the fiscal issue back to the Senate.

But the Senate said the House's $17 billion hike in the debt limit was flawed and refused to accept it. Just after midnight Friday - and after the redemption of Social Security assets had begun - the Senate approved a separate $17 billion debt ceiling increase, adding a provision that the Social Security trust fund is paid back, with interest.

"We're not solving any real problems tonight, we're just trying to get ourselves off the hook," complained Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo.

Before passing its short-term debt extension, the House voted 249-180 along part lines to approve a Democratic balanced-budget plan that protects numerous poverty programs from spending cuts and calls for climination of the deficit more

Republicans charged the Democrats were trying to kill the concept with kindness. "The House passed a sham bill and then ran off into the country." complained Sen, Phil Gramm, R-Texas, author of the Senate

Sen. Edward Kennedy. D-Mass., praised the House Democrats' plan as "maintaining the nation's commitment to those who need our help most."

But budget director James Miller called the Democratic proposal "irresponsible," saying the protection of poor people's programs would mean more cuts in defense.

Like the Senate, the House measure would reduce the deficit in steps and requires the president to cut spending if the decreasing deficit targets are not met.

Shuttle Experiments Purr; Fruit Fly Escapes

By William Harwood UPI Science Writer

Shuttle Challenger's Spacelab astronauts. sharing their research module with yet another escaped fruit fly, switched between repair work and exotic experiments today conducting research that could pay rich dividends on Earth.

Despite early problems with several of the sophisticated materials processing systems on board, the shuttle's multinational eight-member crew, a record, has settled down to a busy schedule of pioneering research in a weeklong flight paid for by West Germany.

Basically, all the experiments are under control and the experiments are going well," Hans Jurgen Steimle, the West German project manager, said in a news conference held at the experiment control center near Munich.

Steimle said several materials science experiments were about 50 hours behind schedule, but the crew was quickly makingup lost time. He said more than 100 percent of the medical experiments planned for this phase of the flight had been completed.

Early today. West German physicist Ernst Messerschmid and NASA astronauts Guion relieved their crewmates and continued a series of materials processesing experiments and studies to learn more about how the human body adapts to weightlessness.

The crew members are working in two shifts around the clock to man the instrument-packed Spacelab research module in Challenger's payload bay.

The other crew members, working a noon-to-midnight shift, are commander Henry Hartsfield, co-pilot Steven Nagel, Bonnie Dunbar, Reinhard Furrer of West Germany and Wubbo Ockels of the Netherlands, who stayed up long past his bedtime help out in the Spacelab module.

Messerschmid apparently took a bone saw to a piece of experiment hardware today for some Impromptu salvage work, drawing praise from his colleagues on the ground. "Congratulations that you have fixed the hardware," radioed Ulf Merbold from West Germany, "In your case it's quite noticeable that you were a pipe litter once in your life."

With Buchli keeping watch on the smooth-running shuttle. Messerschmid pressed on with a variety of experiments while Bluford worked to get a navigation experiment up and running.

At one point, a fruit fly escaped from an Bluford and James Buchli — the "red shift" — experiment container, prompting an official at the German news briefing to say: "Maybe it's a fly that speaks Dutch." Another fly escaped earlier in the mission. The insects are on board to study how weightlessness affects their development.

The materials science research is expected to have important industrial applications. The research so far has included making alloys that cannot be formed in Earth's gravity and growing ultrapure crystals that have a variety of applications in fields such as the electronics

The German Aerospace Research Establishment chartered Challenger for the weeklong 22nd shuttle mission for about $67 million. The 76 Spacelab experiments are being controlled from West Germany in a first for the shuttle program.

While the crew's time has been devoted primarily to medical experiments, most of the Spacelah experiments are concerned with materials processing.

Samples of aluminum-indium alloy and others not easily made in gravity have been processed and fluid physics experiments are under way to learn more about the forces that control convection, which interferes with delicate ground experiments.

An 18-year-old Apopka woman allegedly tried to get a Florida driver license to use as identification to buy alcholic beverages by presenting her older sister's voter's registration and drivers license receipt. She said she had lost her license. Altamonte Springs police have charged her with fraud.

The woman allegedly presented the false identification to a clerk at the state drivers license office at the Interstate Mall, Altamonte Springs. When a clerk questioned the woman and compared her appearance to that of a photo of her sister on file with that office, the clerk told police, she gave the woman a chance to withdraw her request.

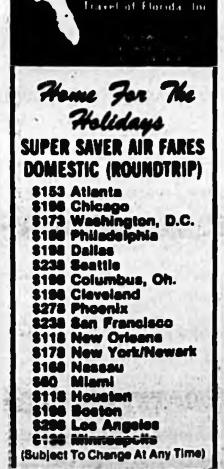

But the suspect reportedly swore the information she had presented was accurate and the clerk called police, a police report said.

Exhibit Of Treasures From British Country Homes Recalls 500 Years Of Extravagant Art Collecting

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A landmark exhibit of furnishings and art treasures from 220 of Britain's country mansions opens Nov. 3 at the National Gallery of Art, offering an instant education in how the other half lived when they had the money.

The two dozen men hired as charter rabbits, selected from a field of several thousand applicants, still are outnumbered 2-to-1 by their female counterparts.

They are the most dramatic change in an ambitious plan to open up the clubs to women. Playboy is counting on female customers to improve the financial health of its clubs, which made $800,000 last year after losing millions in years past.

The Board of Regents has carmarked $15.3 million for construction projects on campus. In last week's action, the Board approved plans for a business administration building. a new communications/fine arts complex and plans to remodel the old engineering build-

The plans must be submitted to the Florida Legislature for should have. approval, but this should be just a mere formality because the construction projects rank very high on the Board's Three Year State University System.

UCF President Trevor Colbourn said he was optimistic that the combination of federal funds and private financing would soon materialize for a non-academic construction prolect: an 800 student apartment style dormitory to be built on Lake Claire. Administration officials realize that the only way to convert UCF from a commuter school to a university where most of the students live on campus, is to increase dorm

There is only room for about 900 students to live in the dorms built so far. UCF's enrollment is just over 17,000 this semester.

UCF may loose $79,000 in state money if more full-time undergraduate students do not enroll. Each year the Board of Project Priority List for the entire Regents sets enrollment figures based on the past year's enrollment and growth projections. The problem may not actually be a lack of students. but a lack of students enrolled full-time.

> A student is considered fulltime if he or she is taking 15 or more credit hours each semester. If one student takes seven hours and another takes eight, they only count as one full-time student.

> The Board requires each university in the State system to give back money if enrollment falls five percent below their projections.

Student morale on campus has been pretty good this year despite a losing 2-5 record by the football team. Why the team keeps losing is a complex problem. First-off, UCF is playing teams of a much higher caliber. This is because NCAA rules stipulate that before a school can move up to a higher division, it must play in that next higher division for three years. UCF is a Division II school and it has been playing division I-AA schools. Also, the division I-AA schools can lure bigger and better players because they can give out twice as many scholarships. To put things in perspective. UCF is facing some of the same teams FSU and UF are facing this year.

Attendance is up at home games. Last week, over 11,000 people showed up to watch UCF get crushed 59-24. Last year, attendance averaged less than 7.000 per game.

Patience though, is the word for UFC football fans. Next year, Head Coach Gene McDowell will be able to recruit better players because UCF will be a Division Il-A school. A winning record will come in time, but not before UCF pays its dues.

House Interest Rates Critical

DALLAS (UPI) — A home mortgage interest rate in the range of 13 to 14 percent seems to be the national "pain threshold" beyond which most people either will fall to qualify for a loan or stop considering a home purchase.

But 81 percent of the 400 real estate brokers across the nation who estimated the pain threshold in a survey, also expect interest rates to remain below that point for the remainder of the year. Nine percent said the rates would go over the limit and the rest either said the rates would stay at the threshold or did not know.

The survey, commissioned by the national Electronic Realty Associates, Inc. and conducted by Opinion Research

ERA President Ed Gresham, in Dallas to discuss the survey, said in some cases a drop of even one-half of one percentage point from the threshold would qualify a buyer or help generate more telephone calls to the brokers.

"The pain threshold varies by region, with East Coast residents apparently able to tolerate slightly higher rates." he said. In the south the tolerance level is about a point below the national average.

threaten the global economy.

Charles L. Schultze, former chairman of President Carter's Council of Economic Advisers, warned Wednesday the deficit could bring to an end the American dream. He spoke at a and elected officials at the 9th annual Symposium on American Capitalism.

The continuation of large federal deficits will lead to changes in the structure of the group of about 335 businessmen. American economy that have been and will in the future penalize our growth. our dynamism and our living standard." he warned.

While the huge federal budget deficit is not pinching the U.S. economy in the short term, it may cause devastating longterm damage, he said.

"The crisis is there is no crisis," he said.

"We will successfully muddle through (the next few years) with neither recession or inflation, with nothing to generate the political support for the steps which are needed." Schultze

He said what is needed to bring down the deficit is a combination of higher taxes and lower Social Security benefits. both of which are politically unpalatable.

He said the recently passed congressional budget resolution is "better than expected and less than needed." and may eventually reduce the deficit slightly. Schultze said the trade deficit is dangerous because it is presently financing 60 percent to 70 percent of the national debt.

"We are borrowing from abroad to finance private and government consumption." he said. "We have penalized by doing so our most dynamic industries."

"Ultimately the dollar is going to fall." Schultze predicted. "Then we will have to finance that 3 to 4 percent of GNP out of our limited domestic savings."

Preston Martin, vice chairman of the Federal Reserve Board. said economic signals are mixed and the United States may be heading into another recession.

He added that the No. 1 problem for the future was not inflation or recession; however, but the challenge of linking with a global economy and fighting the trend toward protectionism both here and abroad. Protectionist sentiment "is the number one threat to continued economic growth on this planet," Martin said. "Protectionist legislation in other countries," he said.

Martin said the Federal Reserve Board cannot control the growth in the nation's money supply or even out cycles of inflation and recession by a simple formula, such as links to the dollar's exchange rate, gold, commodity prices or growth in the gross national product.

"The eclectic approach is likely in the end to be preferable to any of the simple rules," he

The real challenge is "the integration of the U.S. economy into a global economy." he said.

Trucker Accused Of Selling 1,444 Cases of 'Hot' Sauce

WEST PALM BEACH (UPI) - An Indiana trucker accused of embezzling 1.444 cases of Ragu was apparently selling the bottled spagnetti sauce to finance a drug habit. a federal attorney says.

Mark Alan Chandler, 30, of Anderson, Ind., was charged Thursday before U.S. Magistrate Ann Vitunae in the disappearance of the sauce, valued at $29,425, on a run from Kentucky to south Florida.

Investigators think Chandler, who said he was in a prison work release program, was selling the "hot" sauce from the back of his truck to make drug money.

"I have a very severe drug problem," the bleary-eyed Chandler told Vitunac, "I just had a relapse, I don't even remember the last five days."

He was released to the custody of his parents. Vitunac told him another relapse would mean incarceration until

The loud-voiced actor who began his career on vaudeville and then moved to Hollywood before returning to Broadway had made only a few appearances since his stroke in 1972 and had planned to go back to work soon, said his agent Al-Melnick.

Silvers, however, may have suffered a relapse before his death, Melnick said.

"I called him this morning before noon and he said, "I don't feel so good," Melnick said. "He said he had a relapse. You know he had a stroke many years ago and he hurt his back and he never could move around.

State Unemployment Rate Dips

TALLAHASEE (UPI) - Florida's unemployment rate dropped to 4.6 percent in October, the lowest rate since December 1973 and the largest single monthly drop since the state began keeping records in 1970, Gov. Bob Graham said Friday.

In September, joblessness ran at 6.4 percent. The national figure for October was 7.1 percent, the same as for September. Graham said.

"This is extremely good news for Florida. indicating a strong labor market and continued growth in our state's economy." Graham sald.

Only two states among the 11 most populous registered lower unemployment rates: Massachussetts, with 3,8 percent, and North Carolina, with 4.4 percent. Six of the.

11 states showed increased joblessness. The Florida rate over the past 12 months has ranged from October's low to a high of ? percent in July. The national rate fluctuated: between 7 percent and 7.4 percent in the same period.

Lyman 'Fights' Way Into District Showdown Opposite Lake Mary

By Chris Fister Herald Sports Writer

Lyman High's football team is known as the Greyhounds but, Friday night, the offense could have been called the "Groundhounds" and the defense the "Chowhounds."

Lyman improved to 4-3 overall with the win but, more important, ran its district record to 2-1. Spruce Creek fell to 1-6 overall and out of the district picture at 1-2. Lyman and Lake Mary (both 2-1) will meet for the district title on the last week of

Lost End Zone Haunts Hawks

Windom's 4 Touchdowns Run Evans To Easy 29-0 Victory

By Tim Horn Special to the Herald

CASSELBERRY — For the Lake Howell Silver Hawks, finding the end zone has become an unsolved mystery. After dropping a District 5A-5 decision to the Orlando Evans Trojans, 29-0, Friday night before 2.500 fans at Lake Howell High Stadium. the Silver Hawks scoreless streak had reached 10 quarters.

The last time the Silver Hawks got on the scoreboard was in the second quarter against Lake Mary during a 12-7 loss to the Rams a month ago. The Silver Hawks, now 3-4 overall and 1-3 in the district, were mistake-prone throughout the contest against Evans, which in turn led to easy touchdowns for the Trojans. "Fumbles, interceptions, blocked punts, penalties, we certainly gave them the game tonight," said a disappointed Lake Howell coach doubt about that — but all the mistakes made the score so lopsided." The Trojans, who improved to 7-1 overall and 3-1 in the district with the win, were able to do just what they wanted to do against the Silver Hawks, said coach Bill Gierke.

"We made a few mistakes ourselves, but overall we did just what what we wanted to do real well." he said. "We wanted to run the football and play tough defense and we did." Calvin Windom, a 5-11, 195-pound senior running back, scored all four touchdowns runners who helped the Trojans pile up over 200 yards on the ground for the night. "Windom played well." Gierke said. "He has been really consistent for us this year."

The Trojans took a 7-0 lead midway through the first quarter. After a short punt by the Silver Hawks Bill Wasson from out of his own end zone under heavy pressure, the Trojans found themselves with good field position at the Lake Howell 23-yard line. Trojan running back Derrek Alston gained 11 yards on first down to the 12 and then Windom took it in for the touchdown on the next play.

Alan Bishop added the extra point. Early in the second quarter, with the Silver Hawks facing fourth down and 17. Wasson stepped back to punt again. But this time, the rush got to him and the kick was blocked. Defensive end Max Trexler recovered it for the Trojans at the Silver Hawk 4. Windom got the call on first down and ran right up the middle for the score. Bishop's try for the extra point was wide though and the Trojan lead

This score stood up until just before halftime when Trojan quarterback Tony White, facing a third down play from the Silver Hawk 38 with 13 seconds left in the half, connected on a 37-yard pass over the middle to split end Cedric Allen to put the ball at the Silver Hawk 1. And with six seconds now showing on the clock, it was Windom who got the call again and he scored his third touchdown of the half. White then hit wingback Tim Stevens for a 2-point conversion and the Trojan lead was, 21-0.

Lake Mary Travels To Trinity; 'Coach, I Saved A Lot Of Lives'

While the rest of the county cross country teams take the weekend off. Lake Mary's Lady Rams will compete in the Trinity Prep Invitational Saturday at 4 p.m. at Trinity

The meet will not only give the Lady Rams a chance to run on the Trinity course before the district meet, but they will also look for their best team finish of the season. Coach Mike & soon feels he has his strongest team of the year with the top seven of Heather Heikkila. Tabatha Gano, Niki Hays, Debi Smith, Lisa Shelby, Donna Rohr and Marian Stonerock. Heikkila is starting to round into form after coming out late while Gano and Smith have been consistent performers. Rohr, a freshman, ran her first meet of the season at last week's Seminole Athletic Conference meet where she was fifth in the JV meet. In an unusual twist, Hays ran out of gas early in last week's SAC meet not because she went out too fast but because she had donated blood the day before. "She said, but couch, I saved a lot of lives," Gibson said.

"How could I argue with that?" The individual favorite Saturday will be Trinity Prep senior Adrienne Politowicz who has not lost a race on her home course in three years. - Chris Pister

Apopka Zonks Patriots

By Chuck Burgese Special to the Herald

APOPKA - About the only thing the Lake Brantley Patriots beat Friday night in their 32-7 loss to the Apopka Blue Darters at Roger Williams Field was their bedtime curfews. The game was a District 5A-5 matchup between two teams going in opposite directions.
And these opposites didn't attract. Apopka is now

Brantley is 0-4 in district play and 0-7 overall. Lake Brantley hosts Lake Mary next Friday while Apopka entertains Oak Ridge. The Patriots jumped all over the second-ranked team in the state on their first drive with senior quarterback David Delffacco at the helm. Deiffacco ignited the nine-play touchdown ending series with a 38-yard scamper after being forced out of the pocket.

Delflacco, who completed 9 of 23 passes but was intercepted three times for on the night, then hooked up with 6-2 160-pound senior Sam Sears on two passes of nine and 10 yards. The second being a strike in the middle of three defenders. After being stopped on three consecutive pass plays, Delflacco and the Patriots were faced with a tough fourth and one on the Darter 13-yard line. Deiflaceo proceeded to follow offensive tackle Chris Mull for a one yard pickup and a key first

Two plays later, senior offensive back Derrick Guinyard went around left end for a six-vard touchdown strike to put the Patriots up 6-0 with 9:40 left to play in the first quarter. Delflacco's PAT kick was good for a 7-0 lead. The Patriots' lead was short-lived, for on the ensuing kickoff, Blue Darter Danny Daniels scurried 91 yards for six points with 9:23 left of the first quarter. Scott Reynolds' PAT was perfect, bringing the game to a 7-7 deadlock. "We knew at that point that we were in trouble," first-year Patriot coach Fred Almon said after the game. "They've got a good coach (Chip Gierke) and he made the right adjustments at the average, nailed a 38-yarder to give the Darters the ball on the Apopka 42. That was all the Darters needed to take the lead. Quarterback Kelth Ussrey, who completed six of eight passes for 92 yards and one touchdown, drove the Apopka offense with passes of 11, 22 and eight yards. The last being a bullet in the chest of wide receiver Keith Johnson for the go-ahead score. Although the Darters scored rather easily. Patriot defensive back Steve Stark halted the momentum with his blocked extra point after breaking through the large offensive line of Unfortunately for Stark and the Patriots, the stop of momentum was only temporary. Apopka's Earl Clayton intercepted one of three Delfiacco errant passes to give the blue-jerseyed Darters possession of the ball on the Patriot 44. Six plays later, running back Charles Dowdell bulled his way for 10 tough yards and a touchdown to give the Darters a 19-7 lead with 9:36 left in the half.

"That Dowdell kid can run the ball," Almon said. "Of course Gierke's got about 40 guys who can all play just as well as Dowdell."

Senior running back Al Savea, subbing for standout Mike Lowman who was sidelined with a sore ankle, proved Almon right on the next series of downs for the Darters as he rambled four yards making the score, 25-7, at the end of the half. Apopka started quickly in the second half. Dowdell, who carried the ball 16 times for 187 yards and two touchdowns, took the first hand-off from scrimmage and dashed 68 yards for six points and a 31-7 lead only 16 seconds into the half. Reynolds hammered the PAT through the uprights making it 32-7 Apopka. "Dowdell's been playing great all season long."

Apopka coach Gierke said. "Tonight was just a better night for him."

Unlike most of the competitors. Gant's quickest time came on his second lap. If the 45-year-old driver had been forced to go with his first lap speed of 166,107 mph, he would have had the 10th starting spot. "After my first lap, I felt I had nothing to lose on the second," the Taylorsville, N.C., driver sald. "I thought my first lap was as good as I was going to run. The car was really sticking through truns one and two. I got high and as I went into three I cut down on the apron. I was looking at the bottom of the track. I was just lucky." Cale Yarborough's failure to win the pole makes this the first year since 1972 that the Sardis. S.C., driver has not won at least one top starting spot during a season. Yarborough competes on a wmited schedule and said Friday the team would not go to Riverside, Calif., for a Nov. 17 In other developments, of-

WEEK 9 Giants Key On Wilder; Bennett Laments Slate

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) - James Wilder has a lot of fans in New Jersey. Unfortunately for him, most of them play for the New York Giants.

The Giants' admiration for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers' running back goes back to New York's 17-14 victory over Tampa Bay last season. After the game. Giants All-Pro linebacker Lawrence Taylor said Wilder is the best back he's played against. Wilder rushed for 112 yards and gained 65 receiving yards.

Taylor hasn't changed his mind about Wilder. who is the lone shining light on the 0-8

"When the game is over against Wilder, you're physically hurting." Taylor said. "He punishes you when you hit him."

"We prepare for Wilder the same way we prepare for Eric Dickerson. Tony Dorsett or any of the great backs," said defensive end Leonard Marshall, who leads the league with 11 1/2 sacks and intercepted a pass in last week's 21-13 victory over New Orleans. "We think he's as good as anybod."

Wilder, who got off to an exceptional start this year, has been slowed by a sprained ankle. He managed just 62 yards rushing last week against New England, 13 coming in the second half. Wilder has slipped from first to fourth in the NFC in rushing but his 735 yards are just 24 off the lead.

Tampa Bay coach Leeman Bennett said Wilder is ready to go against the Giants. Even with Wilder, Tampa Bay hasn't been able to win although the Bucs have been close. They've lost twice to unbeaten Chicago and fell to the Los Angeles Rams by four points and "to Miami by three.

"A lot of things are involved in being 0-8," said Bennett, in his first season at Tampa Bay. "One of them is, we have the toughest schedule in the league. Our opponents have a combined record of

"We played just about as good as we can against the Bears, Rams and Dolphins in a row. By the time we got to New England (a 32-14 loss). I think it was the first game we were down.

"Now I think we're at rock bottom." Still. Bennett isn't ready to go to high paid quarterback Steve Young, who signed with the Bues six weeks ago after playing two years in the USFL. Bennett will stick with veteran Steve

"My thinking has not changed on him (Young)." Bennett said. "We signed him in the second week of the season, he missed training camp. "Our quarterback coach (Jimmy Raye) works on the next game, not on catching Steve Young up. Maybe I'll play him in 11th, 12th game, right now DeBerg is the starter." The Giants, who are 5-3 and trail Dallas by one game in the NFC East, had their best rushing game of the season last week. Joe Morris gained 104 yards and rookie George Adams added 89 as New York gained 234 on the ground.

New York quarterback Phil Simms has NFChigh 2,000 passing yards, with Lionel Manuel catching 34 passes for 628 yards.

He never missed a losted a picture-perfect spiral to Rape near the left flag. The glue-fingered sentor went up for the ball at the Oviedo 2, caught it with a diving grab and fell into the end zone for the score. Partlow again converted and Seminole had a 14-7 lead with 19 seconds still left in the first quarter.

Oviedo had a good scoring opportunity midway through the second quarter but Lewis broke through the middle and blocked a 28-yard field goal attempt by the strong-footed King. The half ended with Seminole up, 14-7.

The turning point came early In the third quarter. King, facing a fourth-down punt at the Oviedo 23, watched the snap go over his head and roll down to the Oviedo 2 where Brinson covered the pigskin.

Seminole then shifted into its power offense and went on a quick count. Evans followed guard Carl Tipton and fullback Eddie Banks into the end zone for the two-yard score. Partlow was perfect on his boot as Taylor a four-yard run by Smith set up handled the high snap for a 21-7 lead with 9:08 to play in the

He motored 32 yards to the Seminole 35. "Then someone chopped at the ball and it came for Oviedo, Stewart was trailing stride as he scooped up the ball on the bounce and dashed 35 yards for the score. When two penalties moved the PAT try to the 1. Smith went airborne for the two points to cut the Seminole lead to 21-15, with 7:38 left in the quarter.

Neither team threatened again until Oviedo made its last-ditch try in the fourth quarter. The game ended with the Lions 20 yards away from the winning score. Morrow, a junior quarterback who had been hampered by a shoulder injury earlier this year, turned in his best passing game of the year to produce the final drive.

After a 39-yard Sonny Osborn punt pushed the Lions to their 24. Morrow went to work with 5:10 to play. Halfback Smith. who ran for 108 yards on 25 carries, and wingback Simmons. who chipped in 88 on nine tries. combined for 16 yards to the Oviedo 41.

Two plays later, Oviedo faced another crucial first down and Morrow came through. He hit wide receiver Mark Stewart on a quick slant and the 6-4 senior turned it into a 25-yard gain to the Semtnole 27.

Morrow then went for wideout Willie Gainey on the right sideline but Seminole's Dennis Lawrence broke it up. Smith, however, ran for 12 yards on two efforts to give the Lions a first down at the Seminole 15 with just 1:10 to play.

Then the rubberband tightened. Morrow faded to throw again but linebackers Brinson and Lewis combined with tackles Kenny Morris and Mike Luster to maul Morrow for a seven-yard loss to the Seminole 22.

Morrow, however, bounced back with an eight-yard toss to Gainey to the Seminole 14 with 44 seconds remaining and the Lions out of timeouts.

As the clock ticked down to 20 seconds, Morrow faded again. He didn't have a chance. Lewis, a sophomore who leads the county in sacks, engulfed Morrow at the 20 for a six-yard loss. The Lions couldn't get off another play as Seminole secured the win.

"We had to stop them, we had to stop them," Lewis said. "I knew if he waited just a little bit longer, I could get him. (Linebacker) Rick Kelly applied the pressure from the other side and I got him."

Spruce Creek went nowhere on its next possession and Lyman took over at its own 35 after Kyle Wiley's 40-yard punt. Lyman got into Spruce Creek territory as the third quarter ended.

Spruce Creek came back with a nifty 64-yard scoring drive after Lyman tried and failed an onsides kick. Abdo passed for 56 of the 64 yards including a 14-yard touchdown pass to Garcia. Abdo then passed to a diving Kevin Wiley for the two-point conversion, trimming Lyman's lead to 20-11 with 9:33

But two plays later, Silver Hawk quarterback Mark Wainwright was intercepted at the Lake Howell 49 by Trojan linebacker George Hrindich. The Trojans eventually fumbled at the Lake Howell 12, though, and the Silver Hawks recovered.

Now was the time for the Silver Hawks to sustain their first big drive of the game. Alded by a 34-yard completion from Wainwright to Craig Derington and some power running by fullback Mark Schnitker, the Hawks moved the ball to the

Graphoanalyst

Handwriting Tells The Unbiased Truth

Herald Staff Writer Marta Chausee seems an unlikely sleuth until she takes out her magnifying glass for a closer look at a handwriting sample. That's when she can uncover clues, as a handwriting expert, which could lead to jail for a forger or disappointment for a spurned heir who has tried to alter a will. Ms. Chausee, at 32, said the sleuthing aspect of her vocation, which she has practiced for 12 years, is the most exciting. But since her move from California to Central Florida two years ago she has found that handwriting experts, whose testimony is based on scientifically proven analysis scribblings, aren't called to court often in Seminole County. "Perhaps expert witnesses in general aren't used as much in Florida," she said. "Florida is not really known as a criminally active state, except for drugs in South Florida, so perhaps it has something to do with nicer, more honest But Ms. Chausee's sleuthing isn't limited to assisting law enforcement. She is kept busy and, "Each case I work on is an adventure," she said. in addition to ferreting out forgers and other criminal types who leave clues to their bent toward crime in their writing, Ms. Chausee can also trace down the writers of threatening letters or love notes - a mission sometimes commissioned by a wife who has found an anonymous amorous note in her husband's clothing. She also, in the second category of her work, assesses handwriting of employees or potential employees for businesses that want to put the right person in the right slot. Handwriting, Ms. Chausee said, can show the energy level of the writer. It reveals whether or not the person is outgoing. If they have an eye for detail or a broader perspective along with other personality traits, all of which might pinpoint the best position for a worker. About 3,000 U.S. companies have called for this type of screening, she said.

"Of the many tools to evaluate personnel it's one that's totally unprejudiced, 100 percent unblased," Ms. Chausee said. A subject's 9 handwriting without a signature doesn't reveal gender, race, color or creed. "I don't know if I'm looking at a male of female handwriting no matter how beautiful or how illegible," she said.

It was an amateur interest she didn't outgrow and at the University of Southern California Ms. Chausee studied the science of handwriting analysis and was trained by an expert in the things that are old. I noticed how different the field, she said. At first glance, she said, it might seem that most anyone could scan a sample and based on logic come up with a quick handwriting analysis, and some character traits of the writer might be singled out. But to really probe the psychological and psysiological clues that we can't help but leave behind in our handwriting takes the trained eye of one of the 100 or so handwriting experts in the country. Ms.

An amateur in evaluating a tiny, tight script might miscalculate and conclude the writer is stingy, mean, introverted or cramped, but that's not necessarily the case. Ms. Chausee said. "Size indicates the degree to which you can concentrate and to delve in and dig for details," she said. So if you see a very small handwriting that's very precise that's usually someone who is very precise, detail oriented, conscientious, research oriented. Usually a person who is very

It may take many hours to probe the psyche of the writer, but it only takes one varied point to prove forgery. Ms. Chausee said. However, to find that point and to make a solid case for court takes skill. And she added it takes grit and confidence in your findings to stand up under cross examination. "Instinct and feeling don't play into it at all. I definitely do not want to be associated in any way with astrology or voodoo. People always say Will you read my tea leaves? Will you read my palm? Have you got your crystal ball with you? It has absolutely nothing to do with anything like that." Ms. Chausee said.

She's carrying on a tradition which early historical records show goes back to ancient Rome, she said, "Where they were beginning to wonder what so-and-so's handwriting really

Female Entrepreneurs Changing Hue Of Sanford Commercial District

Once again the spirit of competition is in the air.

Once again more than 2,500 senior citizens will converge on Sanford to participate in the Golden Age Games, challenging their peers to friendly, but "serious" competition in their quest for the gold, the silver or bronze.

Last year more than 2,500 men and women 55 and older entered one or several of the more than 40 events. And they came from all over Central Florida, as well as from other parts of the United States. Some even came from Canada and Puerto Rico. Some of the medal winners also came from Sanford and other Seminole County cities.

This year's week-long Golden Age Games is the eleventh annual competition and is sponsored by General Foods' Post Cereals Division and the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce.

The festivities begin Monday and continue daily through Saturday. The familiar faces of John Kane of Sanford and Kay Thomson of Lake Mary will be readily recognized when they kick things off. As torchbearers they'll inguite the "eternal flame" at the 9 a.m. opening ceremonies on the patio at Sanford City Hall following the traditional fallen arches parade scheduled for 8:30 a.m.

Honorary chairman of this year's Games is retired major league baseball player Jack Billingham of Winter Park. The former sports figure pitched in three World Series for the Cincinnati Reds and is expected to speak at the 9 a.m. ceremony.

Since the Games began in 1975, about a quarter of a million senior citizens from all over have come to participate in the true spirit of competition and camaraderie.

To this year's entrants, we welcome you and wish you every success in going for the gold. And to everyone involved in bringing about the Games, we salute you.

Let the Games begin!

Maureen Lectures All: 'Buy American'

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Maureen Reagan was on the Royal Viking Sky, a cruise ship that had left Port Said. Egypt, six hours before the Achille Lauro was hijacked in the Mediterranean.

It caused some people to wonder if the hijackers might have been going after the Royal Viking Sky, rather than the Achille Lauro, with plans to kidnap the president's daughter.

During the cruise, which went to Yugoslavia and Turkey among other places. Maureen gave two lectures - one on the International Conference on Women in Nairobi. Kenya, and the other promoting the trade slogan: "Buy American.

According to some guests aboard, Maureen lectured against those who do not buy American products. She mentioned ABC White House correspondent Sam Donaldson, saying she almost bumped into his Mercedes-Benz in the parking lot.

She did not mention the fact that on West Executive Avenue, the private road between the White House and Executive Avenue that is used by White House officials, many of the cars are foreign made.

And in the world of ironies, she also took a swipe at American tourists who buy in custom-free ports. Guesta said later that her agent was seen carrying aboard a duty-free Turkish rug.

Speaking of cruises, Fred Ryan, head of White House scheduling, will be married Dec. 28. He had planned a honeymoon cruise on an ocean liner that stops in Alexandria. Egypt, but after the hijacking of the Achille Lauro he decided to cancel his trip. However, he had a hard time getting a call through because other passengers were trying to do the same thing.

Now he has decided to take a honeymoon in Italy, but he is wondering if that might not be a President Reagan is sending more and more emissaries on secret missions. But they do not stay secret too long in this world of communications.

He had planned to dispatch Deputy Secretary of State John Whitehead to Italy. Egypt and Tunisia to quietly mend fences in the aftermath of strained relations after the interception of an Egyptian plane carrying the Italian ship hijackers.

But the Whitehead trip leaked out and it was left to the State Department to confirm it. Nevertheless, the State Department said the official word would come from the White House. After cooling their heels outside his office, reporters were told by deputy press secretary Larry Speakes that a statement would be made by the State Department.

Reagan also sent Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., to Manila to warn Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos that his government faced a serious insurgency on the political, economic and military fronts.

The report of Laxait's trip leaked out and only then did the White House confirm it, and then in a very low-key manner. When Laxalt returned and reported to Reagan, he came in the back way and left the same way, avoiding reporters. When he put out a statement in generalities it was from his Senate office.

Reagan's Crash Course

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Reagan is taking a crash course in Kremlinology to prepare for the Nov. 19-20 summit meeting in Geneva with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

But while boning up he also must make momentous decisions that could affect future relations with the USSR for years to come.

One of his toughest decisions is how to respond to Gorbachev's proposal to cut the superpower nuclear arsenals in half if Reagan will give up his dream of building the futuristic "Star Wars" space defense system.

The public relations aspects of the 'run up" to the summit also has White House officials scrambling to raise Reagan's foreign policy profile with a rash of interviews with foreign reporters and a major televised speech a few days before the Geneva meeting

The same officials are telling Reagan to clam up when White House reporters fire questions at him concerning the summit or world affairs. As a result, Reagan refused to answer any questions for three days while at the United Nations in New York last week.

Officials fear that Gorbachev gained the high ground by proposing the 50 percent cut in offensive nuclear arms.

It has taken Reagan five years to get around to what most of his recent predecessors have viewed as a top priority from the moment they stepped into the White House that is the need to ease tensions in superpower relations.

In Reagan's presidency, East-West relations have been conducted in a cold war atmosphere, fueled by Soviet-sponsored adventures in Central America, the occupation of Afghanistan and the downing of an unarmed Korean airliner.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and Assistant Secretary of Defense Richard Perle are the leaders of the group who believe the Soviets have defaulted on arms agreements too often in the past to be trusted now. Weinberger wants to go to Geneva as a member of the summit team and cancelled an Asian tour to press his case. But others in the administration want him to stay The makeup of the U.S. delega-

Not To Manners Born

Etiquette arbiter Letitia Baldridge makes up to $1,000 a session teaching business executives to mind their manners.

Ms. Baldridge, first lady Jacqueline Kennedy's former chief of staff and one-time social secretary to ambassadors, also has a new book out - "Letitia Baldridge's Complete Guide to Executive Manners." It's getting a good read and a positive response from the business community.

I'm not surprised. There's a new interest these days in courtesy and social customs, mostly ignored during 20 years of social revolution. That's when "manners" were tarred with the unpopular connotation of suppression and slavish conformity. They were considered hypocritical affectations that squelched true expression.

So, now we have a hang-loose generation, often unschooled in the finer points of social intercourse. To correct the gap in education and to give them a code for confidence in the business world, some companies are sending their young executives to etiquette seminars. The sessions cover behavior and social amenities and include such subjects as office dress (no sweaters and running shoes, please), and telephone, meeting and dining man-

I hope there's a section on handling introductions. An executive told me of attending a small gathering of his employees where a high-level junior-management type didn't bother to introduce his companion. Only later did the boss learn the couple was engaged.

"Maybe I'm old-fashioned," he said. "but I think it was impolite of him not to introduce her to me.

I can't tell you the number of times I've been at dinners with yupple executives and witnessed scenes out of the Three Stooges. The comic embarrassment begins when someone dives into the salad on the right, instead of the left. It's compounded when another picks up the water glass to the left. instead of the right. Pretty soon, conversation is interrupted with the questions: "Is there a leftover salad?" and "Where's my water?" followed by a good-natured passing of plates and glasses.

I have also observed 30-year-olds waving their forks while talking. shoveling their food and leaving spoons upturned in coffee cups and sherbet glasses. They wear plaid shirts with no ties or jackets to elegant restaurants and reach across the table for their rolls and butter. CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) - Mohammed Patel, 16, is a gentle-spoken Moslem teenager who has yet to start shaving, yet he talks like a veteran of the street wars which he is not.

'We have already lost so much education and so many people have been killed that we cannot go back to classes as if nothing has happened," he says.

His refusal to go back to school and acceptance of the consequence that he won't graduate to the next class - is a decision he is firm about.

So are thousands of his fellow pupils at schools and colleges in the "colored" (mixed-race) townships that surround Cape Town.

The mild-mannered boy serves tea and biscuits to his father's guest and seems far too young to take a stand he hopes will help apartheld.

'It's worth giving up education and dedicating ourselves to change," he said. "We have already made sacrifices and we cannot let them go to waste."

His father Ebrahim Patel runs a large fruit and vegetable business at the Salt River market. Until recently, he said, he was adamant his son should finish school.

But now, "I am honored by what my children are doing. I am proud. I'd rather my child graduated from slavery to liberation than from one grade to another," he said.

A boycott of senior classes at mixed-race schools has been in effect for 13 weeks, while the townships battened down as antirace violence raged in the streets.

"I had this fear that when I sent my five children to school in the morning, not all five would come back in the afternoon," said Ebrahim Patel. "Some didn't. Young children were thrown into jail for no obvious reasons. Some lay injured in hospital. Others were shot dead on the way home from school, caught up in the unrest."

By common agreement, front and back doors of most houses in Athlone township stand open whenever word filters down the streets of police and army riot

Sylvia Patel, Ebrahim's wife: "That way the kids can run inside and hide from the police, run into any house they see for safety. The other day I had 40 children hiding in my house. They were standing on the toilet seat, it was so crowded."

More From The Playground Papers

By Jack Anderson And Joseph Spear

WASHINGTON - The distinguished career diplomat's memo to the secretary of state, stamped secret, was blunt and bitter in describing the Pentagon's feelings toward Foggy Bottom professionals.

"In the minds of the military," he wrote, "the State Department Foreign Service officials are grouped in a single and uncomplimentary category. In their eyes, we are 'slick salesmen,' glib, starry-eyed, tricky, devious, irresponsible, bloodthirsty finaglers, fuzzy thinkers ... the catalog of terms, of course, ends with perverts."

Is this some pre-summit complaint to George Shultz about Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger's super-macho generals and admirals?

Nothing of the sort. The memo was written to the late Secretary of State Dean Acheson in 1950 by a senior career diplomat, G. Lewis Jones, It was in the "Play, ground Papers" we wrote about several months ago - secret and top-secret documents blowing around the playground of an abandoned schoolhouse in Southeast Washington, D.C. They were the deceased diplomat's personal papers, apparently discarded by thieves who broke into the warehouse where they had been stored for many years.

The brass hats believe that it's the State Department's fault if the United States gets involved in "commitments in unpleasant faraway places," Jones wrote. "The military in a grudging way feels that theirs would be a pleasant and peaceful profession if there were no State Department," he went on. In his contacts with "military friends" at the war college, Jones wrote. there was both spoken and unspoken implication that it was the State Department which got them into the unpleasantness of Korea."

Using a homey comparison that aristocratic Acheson, Jones wrote: "The words 'slick salesmen' or 'operators' probably best describe their (the military's) distrust of departmental individuals in the mass. We are classed in much the same unfavorable light as the fasttalking door-to-door salesman who forces unwanted wares on a baffled and inarticulate but honest householder.'

Interestingly, in another secret letter Jones suggested the very kind of manipulative effort that had aroused military distrust of Foggy Bottom. Hoping to get the State Department's views presented favorably to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who was then the de facto emperor of Japan, Jones wrote: "An opportunity may exist to reach the general on a personal basis in circumstances likely to impress him."

Jones' idea was to have George Kennan, the eminent career diplomat and specialist in Soviet affairs. write a personal letter to MacArthur.

who thought highly of Kennan. Jones, who thoughtfully attached a draft of a letter for Kennan, evidently thought that someone who could deal with Stalin and Molotov might at least stand a fighting chance with MacArthur.

In a top-secret document found in the playground, Jones gave a shrewd critique of the Pentagon's methods of estimating Soviet military capabilities. This time he used a sports metaphor that even Acheson would have understood:

"Attempting to foresce lines of Soviet action is like attempting to determine in the first quarter of a football game what the quarterback of the opposition will do in the last quarter. The truth is that the quarterback does not know what he will do in the last quarter. His course of action will be determined by such factors as the score, where he is on the field and the players he has available."

Heads of state and foreign ministers from all over the globe made the pilgrimage to New York in the intervening weeks, putting their best public faces on display. Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze used the occasion to trumpet the Kremlin's "Star Peace" plan, which marked the opening salvo in the Soviets' pre-summit propaganda offensive. Arab delegates denounced Israel, and won a Security Council resolution condemning Israel's bombing of PLO terrorist headquarters in Tunis. Much of the rhetoric, though, was predictable; the same anti-West pablum that has provided food for the thoughtless for much of the U.N.'s lifetime.

After four decades the U.N. has nearly succumbed to the rigor mortis of its frozen agenda. Such exemplary governments as current U.N. Human Rights Commission members Libya. Tanzania, and all three Soviet states that belong to the U.N. go on condemning human rights violations in such places as East Timor and Guatemala. while ignoring them in Syria. Nicaragua. Uganda. Mozambique, the Soviet Union, Poland, and elsewhere, Amusing, in a way. But the distorted mirror the U.N. holds up to the world helps shape reality. In this respect, the United Nations at forty has become much worse than irrelevant.

The ideal of the world body promot-Ing peace and respect for human rights as still worth believing in. But it has long ceased to have anything to do with the piece of expensive New York real estate on First Avenue, where Palestine Liberation Organization chairman Yasser Arafat received a standing ovation after addressing the General Assembly in 1974.

Today in the Assembly the U.S. is the villian -- routinely denounced by name, while the Soviet Union still has not been condemned for shooting down an unarmed civilian airplane that wandered off course. Today at the U.N. the Soviet Union's espionage agents -- equipped with telephones, Xerox machines, I.D.s. and the pretense of international civil servant status -infest the building, using it as a safe haven for their activities. Soviet defector Arkady Shevchenko, former U.N. Under-Secretary General for Political and Security Council Affairs, one of the highest-ranking Soviet officials ever to defect to the West, writes in his autobiography, Breaking With Moscow. that of 28 Soviet-bloc "international civil servants" in his especially sensitive unit in the U.N. Secretariat, at least 21 spent all or part of their time spying for the KGB or KGB-controlled intelligence agencies.

No one should have expected the full spirit of the U.N. Charter to translate into reality, of course. And surely no one can blame the U.N. for some 140 conflicts -- which have resulted in some ten-million dead -- during the past four decades. Nor can an institution located in New York be expected not to be exploited by the KGB. Yet, is It too much to expect a semblance of fairness in an international organization devoted to peace and the improvement of life on this planet?

Politics — not people — has become the name of the U.N. game. The PLO. for example, has gained the status of official U.N. "observer." The PLU participates actively in meetings of the Security Council and the U.N.'s specialized agencies, and even has received U.N. financial support. Israel, meanwhile, is the only U.N. member ever to have been declared, in two 1982 resolutions, a "non-peaceloving" state - paving the way for its possible expulsion from an organization allegedly composed only of preaceloving states. Among them, of course, is the Soviet Union, whose bloody invasion of Afghanistan was not enough to prompt the U.N. majority to condemn it by name in the General Assembly.

... Americans still cling to the hope that something can be done to reverse the U.N.'s dengerous course.

The U.N. had indeed forfeited its claim to moral stature a decade ago. when on November 10, 1975, most of its members voted to condemn Zionism as a form of racism.

Is the U.N. beyond redemption? Most Americans still cling to the hope that something can be done to reverse the U.N.'s dangerous course. The U.S. Congress, for example, recently took a modest step, voting unanaimously to urge the U.S. delegation to the U.N. to take all appropriate actions to reverse the 10-year-old Zionism resolution.

Fair enough. Let's test the willingness of the U.N. to prove the organization's worth. Let those who would oppose performing merciful cuthanasia upon the U.N. put the organization to a test. Let those who insist the U.M. must survive show us that it should survive. I have two specific recommendations.

First: let the U.S. introduce a resolution in the General Assembly to recind the 1975 Zionism resolution, declaring it morally as well as politically void. Let the U.N. majority in 1985 decide again whether it believes Zionism is racism. The U.S., for its part, should make it clear that future American support rests on the U.N.'s ability to say it was wrong to have allowed this political obscenity. Let the U.N. thus repudiate the charges of its terminal politiciza-

Second: if the U.N. sees fit to admit as "observer" an alleged "national liberation movement" such as the PLO, why not also insist that the U.N. give observer status to the heroic Afghan resistance fighters, who are truly struggling for the liberation of their occupied homeland? Let, too, the Afghan children whose hands have been blown off by Soviet bombs hidden in booby-trapped toys appear before the General Assembly. Will delegates from the Third World and Eastern Bloc offer them the same standing ovation they gave Yasser Arafat?

It may be time to take the issue of U.S. participation in the U.N. seriously and stop the charade. We owe it to the victims of genuine racism, whose successors have built a homeland in Israel and wish for peace; we owe it not only to the children of Afghanistan but to all the children of the world that can never be united by lies.

As the U.N. enters its fifth decade, the U.S. may find that it can no longer in good conscience remain in the U.N. Let the members of the U.N. speak with one voice and show us wrong. If they don't have the moral and political courage to do so, let the record clearly show that U.S. tried to save the organization from itself, but failed.

Accepting Dependency

Americans pride themselves on being autonomous and independent - but aging, especially advanced aging, often forces people to become dependent.

Mario Tonti, a family therapist and consultant on aging, says that we place our elders in a double bind "because of the struggle between our society's emphasis on independence and the need of our elders for care.

"They need to be dependent, but, by our national definition, this is an unacceptable state," says Tonti, who is former associate director of the Benjamin Rose Institute's Community and Family Services Division (Cleveland). It's a non-profit agency that serves frail elderly people and their families.

We fear being dependent more than we fear death, says Tonti.

"If you ask people how they want to go, they want to go in their sleep — just like that," he says. "It's lingering death and dependency that we fear. We equate it with a loss of self-worth. We assume that if we have to be dependent, we will be less lovable, less appreciated." Our attitude toward being dependent. he says, is left over from the era in which the average lifespan was 40 or 50 years and the family's purpose was to create independent adults.

"Now, however, with individuals living into their 70s, 80s and 90s, we find that the family has another role." says Tonti. "That role is to support their elders.

'There comes a time in family life when the family must reincorporate its previously independent older members who now need help."

Tonti says this has both physical and emotional aspects. "The physical reality of advanced age." he says. "is that a larger number of older people will require assistance from their families with shopping, household chores and maybe even personal care. Emotionally, each of us has to accept dependency in ourselves.

"I think this is the core issue in successful aging," says Tonti. "If we see dependency as something unacceptable, we think less of ourselves when we require help from others."

The family, as well as the older person, can benefit by accepting and adjusting to dependency.

"A family that can do that will be able to handle many of life's circumstances, such as illness or unemployment - anything that places one or more family members in a dependent state," says Tonti.

"When it's unacceptable," he says. 'we see elders who end up alone. without even one individual they can count on" - or the older person may get physical help, but not the emotional comfort or intimacy he or she is looking

It's very important that we learn to accept dependency as a normal part of our lives, says Tonti, since more families will encounter it as the older population increases.

Preventive Medicine For The Nuclear Threat

By United Press International The Martford (Conn.) Courant

Dwight D. Eisenhower, in his last year as president, predicted that sooner or later people are going to demand peace. ... Two decades later, Mr. Eisenhower's words helped inspire the founders of the International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War. Six doctors — three Americans and three Soviets - met in Geneva in 1980 to discuss mutual concerns about nuclear

The six failed to agree on most political issues. but they reached consensus on the need to educate people of all nations on the need to elimnate the threat of nuclear war.

Two weeks ago, the IPPNW won the Nobel Peace Prize ...

IPPNW's membership has grown from six to 145,000 in 40 countries. The growth is phenomenal. Its recgnition by the Nobel committee is deserved. If only the politicians in Moscow and Washington were also to recognize that it is possible to transcend political and cultural differences and achieve the goal of injecting preventive medicine into the nuclear threat.

Government, given the opportunity, will hide information from the public whenever it can. All too often, its secrets serve only those who might be embarrassed by disclosure.

Don't condemn it completely. There may be hidden benefits in such secrecy madness. Those tons of 'secrets' and million of potential Soviet spy recruits could keep the KGB busy for years sorting through the junk in search of the real secrets. But that still leaves Americans with the uneasy feeling that many unclassified documents hide the imbroglios of government officials rather than fill the needs of national security.

Rep. George Gekas, R-Pa., wants to make it even crueler. For the benefit of the paper flow at the Internal Revenue Service, he wants to deprive American citizens of their one great communal act of misery that can be counted on every year. Instead of facing the tax man together every April 15, taxpayers would be required to file their returns on their birthdays. President Reagan accuses Congress of "inexcusable dithering and delay" over the bill to raise the national debt ceiling to $2.1 trillion. Yet now Defense Secretary Weinberger is dithering too. and with good reason.

U.S. officials are warning that leftist guerrillas are preparing to escalate their terrorist activities to destabilize Central American governments.

There are objections to this proposed orgy of farm spending beyond budgetary considerations. Less than 20 percent of the new subsidies will go to those medium-sized concerns in the most precarious financial condition: the rest will be funneled to large producers.

Ultimately, we must confront the question of how much it is worth to the nation to keep unproductive farms in operation. ...

It's time to take agriculture off the dole. Members of Congress who vote for this latest agricultural boondoggle should be laughed into retirement the very next time they raise their voices to decry the mushrooming federal debt.

The (Flagstaff) Arisona Daily Sun

If the Senate hopes to come to grips with the growing deficit. It will have to do a great deal more than make permanent the federal tax of 16 cents a pack on cigarettes ... Lawmakers turned down an appeal to hike the tax to 24 cents.

The eigarette tax is due to drop to 8 cents a pack Nov. 14 ... The Senate voted tentatively the other day to make the 16-cent tax permanent.

In addition, there would be a new tax of about 2 cents on a tin of snuff or a 3-ounce package of chewing tobacco. These smokeless items are now exempt from any federal tax. It is estimated the tax proposals would bring the government about $5 billion over the next three years.

There is always the possibility the Senate could reconsider tobacco taxes later because enactment of any deficit-reduction package is a long way down the pike.

It also appears lawmakers may be giving only lip service toward solving the mounting deficit.

Dead Sea Scrolls Still Studied

By Wesley G. Pippert United Press International

Thirty years after discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls revolutionized biblical study, more than half of the documents have not yet been published.

Thousands of fragments from nearly 400 documents and almost every book in the Bible remain locked at the Rockefeller Museum, in the custody of six scholars who have not finished their research and are barring access to the treasures until they do

Their custody is so tight that when one scholar dies he can will his rights to the fragments to the scholar of his choice.

"I'd call these six guys in." Hershel Shanks, editor of the Biblical Archaeology Review, said in an interview in Jerusalem. "I'd say, 'Fellows, I want you to give some of these (documents) up. If you have something you're close to finishing. OK. There to the original texts than earlier documents. are young scholars whose mouths are watering to get at these documents."

Pierre Benoit, 79, director-emeritus of Ecole Biblique in Jerusalem, said, however, many of the documents are fingernail-sized fragments difficult to translate and even harder to place in the correct context.

Benoit said he has asked the scholars for a report on their progress.

Until a generation ago, the oldest manuscripts of the Bible dated back to about A.D. 1000. Then, in 1947, an Arab shepherd boy found scrolls in the Qumran caves near the Dead Sea about 20 miles southeast of Jerusalem. Bedouins and archaeologists scoured the Judean hills. They found documents in 11 caves.

The documents date to the first centuries manuscripts were about 1,000 years closer absolutely wrong."

"The discoveries in the Jordan rift. especially at Qumran, have initiated a new era in the study of the history of late biblical religion," said Frank M. Cross of Harvard University, one of the six scholars.

The scrolls revealed no important changes in the Bible as people had known it for hundreds of years, important because it; meant people could have more confidence they had an error-free Bible.

Maggen Broshi, curator of Jerusalem's Shrine of the Book, where the first published Dead Sea Scrolls are housed and on display, said he believes the unpublished; fragments will show the same thing.

"The surprising fact is they are, by and large, identical to the present texts," he said. "It is very significant. Those who before and after Christ, meaning the biblical believe we have a corrupted text are

Devil No Match For Sunday Punch

Mickey Rooney is being considered for the role of Billy Sunday in a movie to be made about the life of the famous evangelist.

It will take an old pro with Mickey's energy and raw talent to capture the quanties Sunday made famous on the revival circuit in the first two decades of this century. Nearly three generations before anyone had heard of the electronic church. Billy was hitting audiences with his Sunday punch, and there hasn't been an evangelist since who could match him.

Now that Rooney has become a born-again Christian, he could add sincerity to his portrayal of the theatrics that made Billy Sunday a fearful sight to behold on the sawdust trail.

Eyes snapping. Sunday would stand before his tabernacle audiences and shout that "cards and dancing are doing more to ruin the spiritual life of this nation then grog shops - and you can't accuse me of being friendly to that stinking, dirty, rotten, hell-soaked business."

According to a newspaper account, when Billy got going on customers during Prohibition.

"I tell you, girls," he said, "I would rather be a wizened. dried-up, nervous, tea-drinking. hatchet-faced old maid, with a houseful of cats and dogs and bric-a-brac, than be married to a whiskey-soaked, red-eyed, shaky, miserable specimen of a jug handle of a husband."

But the famous Billy Sunday revivals in Canton, Ohio, in the winter of 1912 had special designations — Butchers' Night. Mailmen's Night, Milkmen's Night, etc.

It was common knowledge (although vigorously denied by milk - to make it go farther - on his feet running bases for the to perdition.

One evening after Billy had ascended the platform, he asked his soloist, Homer Rodeheaver, "What night is this, Brother Rodeheaver?"

"This is Minimen's Night." replied Homer.

'Then I suggest," said Sunday, "that we all sing, 'Shall We Gather at the River?" It brought the tabernacle down.

Sunday condemned dancing. Then, rising to his feet, but which he called "one long, voluptuous, sensual embrace set to music." But he would get his audiences laughing when added. "Myself, I believe there is more sense sitting out a waltz. I have always considered it a nuisance to gallop a mile just to get a hug

Irving Stone Follows Path Of 19th Century Artist

By John M. Leighty UPI Feature Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) - Novelist Irving Stone. 82. looked over a vista of his hometown of San Francisco and said he was inspired at a young age by the great writers who emerged from the Bay

He said, however, he doesn't know where his talent derived that has resulted in 25 books selling 30 million copies worldwide, the latest being "Depths of Glory" (Doubleday, $19.95) the story of the French Impressionist Camille Pissarro.

"I grew up like every other kid in the world." said Stone, who played rugby at San Francisco's Lowell High School. "I was always fascinated by athletics. I was also ambitious and knew San Francisco created great writers. I read them all." He includes in the area's talents such writers as Jack London and Dashiell Hammett. Stone, who early tried his hand at playwriting without success, was born in 1903 on July 14, France's Bastille Day. In 1926, he went to Paris, arriving the day the newspaper headlines bemouned the death of painter Claude Monet. He also was exposed to the vivid paintings of Vincent Van Gogh and began to research the artist's life. While on Van Gogh's trail, he followed the paths of other late 19th century painters, crossing the life of Pissarro, whom he considers the least known "but one of the greatest and heroic" of the Stone's book on Van Gogh, "Lust of Life," was published in 1934 after 19 rejections and started him on a career that was to make him famous as the father of the biographical novel. He now says the book on Pissarro is the beginning of a story that ends with Van Gogh.

"Depths of Glory' is the first half of the story. except I wrote the second half first," said Stone. whose wife of 51 years, Jean, edits all his manuscripts before he submits them to the

To put realism and life into his novel, the Stones travelled the same French roads as Pissarro did in the late 1800s, visiting the places he lived, the farm lands and rivers he painted "en also did a complete biography of all the characters Pissarro was involved with - Monet. Manet, Degas, Sisley, Renoir, Cezanne, Gauguin, Van Gogh - before starting the book.

"I had a marvelous time finding his homes. living in them, detailing them," said Stone. "I spent time in his studios, measuring the windows

"I wanted to live intimately with Camille and his artist friends, determining their values. finding the qualities that sustained them through brutal hardships."

Stone said her husband had so much material that she had to cut 300 pages from the final manuscript - taking out what amounted to full-blown portraits of many of Pissarro's famous contemporaries.

"I kept him on track, sticking to what was relevant to the story." Jean Stone said of the five years of research, writing and editing that went into the book. "I had to say, 'This is the story of Pissarro,' so the main character wouldn't be

Stone said Pissarro always fascinated him because although impoverished, he painted gallantly and tirelessly despite endless rejection and abuse by critics and established galleries. He sometimes had to sell a painting for as little as $2 just to feed his children - less than the cost of the canvas and oils - paintings that today would

But, said Stone. Pissarro was a binding force that held his artistic group together as a movement, which finally resulted in their triumph as the impressionist school. Alone, said Stone, many of the artists would have failed to be recognized.

"Endurance is a noble human quality and everybody needs it," said Stone, adding that the survival of the artists as a group was important to

"The Impressionists of France in 1855 may be the single greatest movement that ever painted in the history of the world," said Stone. "They had their differences, but they were a fraternity."

Ferraro: Costs Of The Campaign

By United Press International Ferraro: My Story, by Geraldine A. Ferraro with Linda Bird Francke (Bantam, 340 pp., $17.95)

With Ronald Reagan's re-election never really in doubt, the most important thing that happened in the 1984 presidential, campaign was the selection of Rep. Geraldine Ferraro, D.N.Y., as the first woman to run as a major party candidate for vice president.

Her own story about how she became Walter Mondale's nominee, and the trial she endured afterwards as her family, its finances and even her religious beliefs were battered in the nation's headlines is an important part of history. It is even more so because Ferraro, characteristically, is blunt and outspoken in the campaign biography for which she reportedly received a $1 million advance. Long before her nomination, Ferraro established herself as a trailblazing woman charging uphill in a man's world. But she was unprepared for what happened when she became the vice presidential nominee - attention she maintains that no male candidate would have

"I didn't expect the archbishop of New York to single me out on the abortion issue more than male candidates who held the same pro-choice view," she wrote. "I didn't expect so many in the Italian-American community to retreat in the face of all the ethnic slurs. I didn't expect the Democrats, especially in New York, to fail to come forward and help me fight the Republican propaganda. And I certainly did not expect the open warfare against my family,"

Ferraro's account of the price the campaign extracted from her family her daughter was even spit upon during one appearance - could evoke sympathy from even those who believe that a politician gets whatever he or she deserves. But it is not sympathy Ferraro is looking for.

Rightly or wrongly Ferraro paid a high price for being the first woman to run for vice president. She wants the reader to understand that because she was the first, no man will ever again debate whether he can or should choose a woman running mate. And that is the legacy of Geraldine Ferraro.

Charles And Diana Fairytale Intact

Charles and Diana, by Raiph G. Martin (Putnam's, 432 pp., $18.95)

Some of the bubbles are burst, but most of the fairy tale remains intact in this latest detailed account of the ins and outs of the lives of Britain's Prince Charles and his lovely Princess Diana.

Martin, author of a plethora of books on famous and infamous "people of stature," devotes himself to 432 pages of seemingly well researched facts in "Charles and Diana."

A tidbit: The princess is related to eight American presidents, including George Washington, John Adams, Calvin Coolidge and F.D.R. Even President Reagan is connected.

Only the most devoted Diana-watcher could trudge through much of this soon to be fogotten jungle of faces, names and Indeed the book's major problem may well lie in the fact that those who choose to read it aren't very interested in the prince; they are really fans of Lady Di. Too much time is spent dissecting the life and personality of her royal husband. his schooling, friends and adventures. It is distracting and may result in impatient page turning.

Despite this, Martin does a nice job in portraying Diana as the kind of girl everyone thinks and hopes she really is. He describes her faults in the most human, down to earth manner. Even when stating, as he often does in one way or another, that Diana isn't too bright, he couches it in a way that makes it OK.

Anyway, who could go wrong writing a story about the future king of England and his queen?

Death is a Loney Business, by Ray Bradbury (Knopf, 320 pp., $15.95)

Ray Bradbury is out with his first novel since "Something Wicked This Way Comes" more than two decades ago, and it's a murder mystery,

Since this is Bradbury, you keep expecting the supernatural to intrude. and the atmosphere certainly is suitable. "Death Is a Lonely Business" is set in Venice, Calif., a section of Los Angeles that is a haven for eccentries. The area is being invaded by Yuppies who can't afford nearby Santa Monica, but most of its 1985 denizens - street people, the elderly, dope users - would feel right at home in the Venice of 1949, which is when Bradbury's story takes place.

It's fall; crews are wrecking a pier that housed a movie theater, roller coaster and shooting gallery, and someone also is wrecking lives. People are dying before their time, It all seems to start on a bus ride when the crazy writer - Bradbury's nameless hero - encounters a weirdo who tells him, "Death is a lonely business." Then the writer finds a body on his way home to the cheap Venice flat where he writes strange tales for magazines like Black

Those who know their Bradbury might recognize a plot line or two. The writer's friends tell him death follows him and Bradbury makes you believe their premonitions.

Detective Elmo Crumley of the Los Angeles Police Department also comes to believe - especially when he senses someone lurking outside his own door in the dead of night. Crumley and the writer chase, and conquer, the nemesis in this multi-layered and thoroughly satisfying

New Generation Questions Viet Entanglement

In Country, by Bobble Ann Mason (Harper & Row, 245 pp., $15.95)

A new generation of Americans is questioning the nation's long involvement in Vietnam. The children of veterans killed in the war are old enough now to wonder who their fathers were — and why they died. In her new novel, "In Country," Bobbie Ann Mason explores the issue through 17-year-old Sam Hughes, born eight months after her father went to the steamy jungles of Vietnam. The Kentucky teenager lives with her mother's brother, Emmett, a Vietnam veteran who suffers from a horrible case of acne, which Sam blames on Agent Orange. Her mother and father had been married only months when he died and Sam becomes curious about their relationship and what he would have been like as a father.

She begins searching for answers and travels with Uncle Emmett and "Mamaw," her father's mother, to view the black granite Vietnam memorial in Washington. Each has a personal and private reason for making the pilgrimage. After a lot of soul-searching. Sam finally believes she knows the truth about her father - and her country. She tells Emmett: "That's what you were doing in Vietnam. That explains what the whole country was doing over there. The least little threat and America's got to put on its cowboy boots and stomp around and show somebody a thing or two."

Sam has traded places with a nation just beginning to put Vietnam behind it. Mason has created a fictional character who probably is not too unlike thousands of teenagers beginning to wonder why their fathers died and who they were. The book is fairly entertaining, but flawed. In Mason's story, no Vietnam veterans were unscathed physically or emotionally. Mason's book is competing with dozens of others on the same subject published in recent months. Vietnam is in vogue and this novel may not have what it takes to come out on top of the heap. -Sue Allison (UPI)

Milestone In Space Halley's Comet Inspires Myth And Science

Halley's Comet makes its 30th Earth formed. recorded visit to the Earth in the as it heads toward the sun in December and January and as it returns to the outer solar system In March and April.

By Ann Ranard

Most of us will only see Halley's comet once in our lifetime, but for Sam Storch, part of the experience will last forey-

"The comet is a link between generations. My 5-year-old son may see Halley's comet when it returns in 76 years, and I want him to remember that his dad made him get a look at it."

Storch is activities director of the New York-based Amateur Observers Society - one of many groups watching Halley's. In addition to amateur stargazers, scientists worldwide will try to squeeze out every possible bit of Information while the comet is near, in hopes of learning not origin of our solar system. This is the 30th recorded appearance of the comet, which passes closest to Earth on April 11. Depicted as a glowing fireball, its visits have been woven into myths and legends passed down through the years.

Past civilizations imbued Halley's with supernatural power, regarding its appearances as frightening forceasts of death and disaster. Some of these themes have sparked the Imaginations of today's marketing wizards, who hope to immortalize the legends - and fatten their bank accounts - with literally tons of comet parapher-

Some of the myths about the comet were dispelled in the 18th century when Edmund Halley computed its orbit using Isaac Newton's law of gravity. When Halley noted that comets in 1531, 1607 and 1682 had moved across the same part of the sky, he surmised that the three were the same comet and that it would make another appearance in 1758. The comet did indeed exactly how comets formed, and April. most theories connect their orithe same material that was present in the solar nebula, the region of gas and dust in which -but subtle.

One theory is that comets were coming months. It will be visible the building blocks for the outer planets, said Roger Knacke, astronomy professor at the State University of New York at Stony

"There were lots of small lev objects in the outer solar system. Some became planets and those that didn't became comets.' said Knacke.

According to current theory, a cloud of perhaps a billion comets slowly orbits the sun, about 100,000 times farther from the sun than Earth. They would never be noticed if they remained in their communal habitat, called Oort's Cloud after the Dutch astronomer who theorized about it. Gravity from a nearby star sometimes pushes one out of hibernation, sending it hurling toward Earth. Because comets spend most of their time in the deep freeze of outer space, part of the birth only about its mysterious cloud has been preserved in behavior, but also about the their core. Scientist liken this ball of frozen gasses imbedded with bits of primordial rock to a dirty snowball. frontcally, each time a comet streaks though our solar system. putting on a celestial show, it comes closer to its death. Heat from the sun evaporates the snowball, producing a stream of dust and gas. The vapor collects in a coma - a halo around the iceberg. From Earth the glowing gasses look like a hazy patch.

One reason Halley's comet is so big and bright is that it has a relatively large orbit compared with others that get close to Earth. Comets with very short periods have had more exposure to the sun, losing some of their glitter with each orbit.

Halley's comet will be visible often during the next few months, but it probably won't be a glowing fireball streaking across the sky. This time it will be more than twice as far from Earth than in 1910, but judging from early reports. It may be brighter than first suspected. Its movement will be almost imgrace our skies again as Halley perceptible as it makes its way predicted, and it was named in toward the sun in December and January and heads back toward Although no one can be sure the outer solar system in March

Viewers will have to search for gin in one way or another with the comet, as they would to the birth of our solar system, locate a particular star. But it Scientists believe comets contain will be worth looking for, says Storch.
