

Red Atomic Plans Said To Have Been Aided Unwittingly

By ROBERT GOLDENSTEIN
CHICAGO, May 23.—(AP)—An atomic scientist contended today that American political and military leaders unknowingly may have given Russia's atomic strength a bigger boost than did the spies who gave out A-bomb secrets.

Dr. Eugene Rabinowitch, editor of the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, said today that he had advanced the Soviet atomic weapons program by at least 18 months. That was the estimate given by a Congressional Joint Committee on Atomic Energy.

But the biggest factor in the A-bomb race, he said, might well be whether uranium supplies available to Russia are equal to those available to the United States and Canada. He added:

"From this point of view, the most fateful step which has permitted the Soviet Union to achieve its present atomic strength was not the betrayal of our secrets but the decision of American political and military leaders in 1945 to give to the Soviet Union control over the parts of Czechoslovakia and Germany in which important uranium ore deposits were known to exist."

"These regions had been reached by American troops first and abandoned to the Soviet Union in accordance with the demarcation agreement.

"Perhaps if the atomic bomb development in the United States had not been surrounded by such extreme secrecy, those responsible for the drawing of the demarcation line would have known better what they were giving away—or at least would have been exposed to the advice of those who knew."

He said that looking backward, "it seems doubtful whether America has gained anything at all from the immense effort and expense it had invested in keeping the entire wartime atomic bomb development secret."

If instead, he added, strict secrecy had been limited to the mechanism for exploding the bomb, possibly no spies would have slipped through security precautions. He said the exploding mechanism was "the supposedly most important secret."

A things are now, he said, the FBI is "overburdened with investigation of innumerable people, most of whom will never have access to any classified information not to mention information which is really worth keeping secret—and has asked to be relieved of it in order to be able to concentrate on guarding the really important areas."

Rabinowitch said the bottlenecks America faced in turning out A-bombs were not in solving technical problems or establishing basic facts but in actual construction of large production plants.

"There is no reason to assume someone poked a rifle in my face quick.

"Come on in," the fellow said. "We are surrounded and we are glad to have you with us."

"I found out right away that the Chinese were getting ready to attack and anybody could tell it by just listening. They were blowing bugles and I remember one bugle was playing taps. It was about 3 A. M."

"Some Korean carriers that worked for the American Army came down a hill trying to get to the command post and hollering out that they were carriers."

"The Chinese started moving them down with machineguns and the groans of the wounded were pretty terrible to hear."

"We were holding our fire, getting ready for the attack, when a captain said:

"'Fellows I think we had better give the Chinks a banana chase before they give us one.'"

"We waited for a minute watching the black figures of those devils swarming around out there in the dark. Then we charged."

"We charged toward a road that led to the rear. All of us were hollering and whooping and shooting. Some of the Chinks got scared and threw down their weapons and ran."

"But the rest of them turned a hell of a lot of fire on us and a lot of our boys got it. Our boys who went down, those that weren't killed, were screaming for help."

"And some of the soldiers were hollering, 'Let's go back. We can't get out.'"

"I knew we could and I yelled, 'Come on! The hell with it! We can get through 'em!'"

"I found the road and went down it."

About dawn Anderson met five American tanks, accompanied by Dutch soldiers. He guided them back to the command post.

"We started picking up the wounded and the bodies and a lot of unaccounted GIs came out of the brush where they had been hiding," Anderson said. "We didn't see any Chinese."

"But while we were still loading the bodies on the tanks the Chinese opened up on us. They were on the hills all around us."

"I crawled under a wrecked jeep and began shooting and I'll tell you it was a hell of a fight. We really knocked off the Chinks. The fight lasted an hour and then the Chinks quit. There were Chinese bodies all over the place."

"The tanks turned around then and headed back south to our lines."

northeast of Seoul.

In the far west, American armored patrols were catching up with rapid gains forged by South Koreans north of Seoul. There were signs of new Red buildups to the northwest.

But Communists appeared to be losing their offensive drive ever in the eastern sector.

There Allied forces beat off two strong attacks during the night. Each action was fought against 1,000 Chinese southeast of Sokka.

The Reds had cut the main lateral highway near that point 25 miles south of Parallel 38 and 25 miles inland from the Sea of Japan.

But Allies rushed in to check the Red advance in turn cut the Communist supply route Tuesday by seizing a key pass.

One officer said "a hell of a fight" was raging around Sokka. Across the western front warplanes harried Chinese retreating north and east of Seoul. U. N. ground forces gained up to four miles in some places.

That the same was not true of the Soviet progress as well," he said in an article in the Bulletin.

Bradley Testifies

nally (D-Tes) that the United States would have to demand some safeguards if it armed and equipped the Chinese Nationalist forces for operations against the Chinese Communists. Connally had suggested that Chiang Kai Shek, if given arms and a free hand, might use his forces in a way that could lead to war between the United States and Russia.

Several senators were still awaiting a chance for more questioning of Bradley when the inquiry was recessed for lunch. So Chairman Russell (D-Ga) ordered an afternoon session, told reporters he did not know whether Bradley could conclude his testimony at it.

Wiley started his questioning of Bradley today by alluding to his committee argument last week. He said he wanted to explore further the matter of who was present at the several conferences which led to dismissal of MacArthur, and the conclusions reached.

Bradley detailed the dates of the various conferences and told Wiley who attended each.

Wiley asked whether "any of the Allies" were considered at any of the conferences.

"Not that I know of," Bradley replied.

When Wiley wanted to know if any one was "distinctly displeased" by the decision to fire MacArthur, Bradley told him, "I don't know that I care to answer that."

Wiley: "Do you claim that as a personal privilege?"
Bradley: "To answer your question specifically, I would have to tell you what they said."

After several more exchanges like that, Bradley said, yes, he was claiming a personal privilege the right to refuse to answer.

Bradley denied the present situation in Korea is a "stalemate" during the earlier questioning over Korean strategy and the relation of the fighting there to the U. S. position as to possible aggression elsewhere.

MacArthur has declared the Administration policy promises only a "bloody stalemate."

Senator Flanders (R-Vt) raised the question of whether the United Nations forces are "being stabilized and stalemated right now."

Bradley said: "Well, as long as we have certain powers of maneuver which we have at the present time, I would say it is not entirely a stalemate."

When denying MacArthur's program would bring the war to a quick end, Bradley told the Senate:

"We are not prolonging this war just for the fun of it. The only difference is General MacArthur thinks that to do certain additional operations would be decisive and we do not think they would be decisive."

Joint Chiefs of Staff, and by "we" he meant himself and the other members of that top military command.

He testified at hearings by the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees on MacArthur's dismissal from his Far Eastern command.

In response to questions from Senator Brewster (R-Maine), Bradley ticked off Iran, Yugoslavia and Indochina as all points of possible Soviet aggression.

insisted that 40 percent of the company's stock should be turned over to "Boypin interests."

Price said negotiations continued, and the RFC eventually increased the loan to $750,000, while dropping to $250,000 its demand for increased private capital.

"It all was purely a business proposition between the stockholders of the Mobile company, the new investors and the RFC," Price said.

Parent-Teachers Congress Told Of Leadership Need

MIAMI BEACH, May 23.—(AP)—The National Congress of Parents and Teachers was urged today to take the lead in carrying out the pledges to American children and youths made at the mid-century White House conference.

Dr. George D. Stoddard, president of the University of Illinois and vice-chairman of the White House conference, told the PTA at its national convention that it is the organization "to stand at the front in carrying out the pledges."

It will not stand alone or work alone," he said, "but if it fails to pick up the work of this conference with all the enthusiasm for which it is famous, the disappointment will be lasting and deep-seated."

Dr. Stoddard rebuked the 17 pledges made to American young people at the conference last December, briefly, he said, the eventual goal is "a society in which every child will have a fair chance for a healthy personality."

More specifically, he said the purpose was to provide at least partial answers to these two questions:

"How can children be helped to develop the mental, emotional and spiritual qualities essential for individual happiness and responsible citizenship?"

"What physical, economic and social conditions are necessary for this development?"

Earlier Frank Smothers, Chicago journalist and former Chicago Daily News foreign correspondent, said Asia is undergoing a continental revolution and will decide its own future without accepting either Russian or American domination.

He told the educators that a "dangerous temptation" in America is to think about Asia in terms of our own immediate perils.

Living Cost Index May Give Workers Big Pay Increase

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(AP)—A million auto workers were assured today of a three-cent hourly pay increase on the basis of rises in the government's cost of living index since January.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(AP)—The government's cost of living index was due today, and a pay boost of at least two cents an hour was indicated for a million auto workers whose contracts are tied to the price measure.

The Wage Stabilization Board also will take another look at its wage formula, which now limits increases to 10 per cent above Jan. 15, 1950 levels. When that ceiling was adopted, the board said it would review the wage situation on the basis of the Apr. 15 index, which is the figure to be announced today.

While not much change was expected in the index between Mar. 15 and Apr. 15 the auto workers' pay is adjusted only every three months there was enough rise from Jan. 15 to allow them two cents more, or possibly three.

The Mar. 15 index was 1845 per cent of the 1935-39 average. Best indications were that little change occurred in the following month, largely because of the drop in food prices between Mar. 15 and Apr. 15.

General Motors workers were expected to get a three cent increase because that firm has accepted the rent "bias" allowance by the Labor Department to make up for a rent fall in the family budget calculations.

That allowance adds another 0.8 to the index and that would be enough to give the GM employees three cents. Other auto industry employees probably will get the same as the GM workers, but the manufacturers first must accept the rent allowance.

The auto workers also are due to get an additional four-cent hourly pay increase May 29 under their contract clause providing for the annual bonus for improving productivity.

The cost of living increase is automatically okay as far as the wage board is concerned, but the four-cent productivity increase must be acted on after a special hearing here tomorrow.

crashed on another farm. It sounded to me like the motor was stalling."

Stelyn, one of the injured, told a newsmen he was aboard as a civilian and was riding in the tail end.

"It sounded to me like an engine was running away," Stelyn said.

A newsmen at the scene said the plane left "a road of burning" debris for more than a quarter of a mile before it stopped skidding.

He said the pilot apparently was trying to make a forced landing, but the plane lost altitude too fast to make a clearing only a few hundred yards ahead.

The plane was a C-124. Troopers said they understood the plane was on an experimental flight.

The crash was heard in New Castle by William Turner, an announcer for radio station WCTW. New Castle is five miles northwest of New Lisbon.

Embargo Against China

A look at the United Nations embargo on arms and other war supplies to Red China might lead the observer to question whether it can accomplish much good. It is not a legally binding action, but simply a resolution by the General Assembly, requesting member nations to impose the embargo.

China is an agricultural country and is not highly industrialized. An embargo which cuts off vital imports such as oil and rubber does more damage to a country where mechanization is high than to a country such as China. No miracle can be expected from the imposition of the embargo, even if it is fully effective, although it should make some difference to the Chinese Reds perhaps at least enough to make them uncomfortable.

The political significance of the action, however, makes it worth the effort. It places the United Nations on record, once more, in condemnation of aggression and of the condoning of aggression. It reaffirms the fact that the United States and the other freedom-loving nations stand together on that vital issue despite differences of opinion on less basic matters.

We may become impatient with the slowness of action in the United Nations and with the relative ineffectiveness of action once accomplished. But our own Congress moves much more slowly, sometimes, than we think it should; we become impatient with Congress, too, but would not want to exchange its slowness for the smooth speed of a well-oiled dictatorship.

The embargo against China may not have much visible effect on the war in Korea. But it is a signal victory for the cause of freedom.

Playgrounds

Adequate playground facilities are an asset to any community. Playgrounds serve several purposes which are important in the character building and development of children. Money wisely spent on well-supervised playgrounds or swimming pools is an investment in one of the real resources of the community, our children.

At such pools or playgrounds a child learns to get along with other children. He learns the rules of give and take which are a part of living. He learns, when supervisors function properly, a respect for public property and equipment which will always be valuable to him. The various skills and crafts which are taught at many playgrounds are a supplement to his education in the classroom.

A program of recreation which will improve the bodies and minds of our children is particularly important today. In our highly industrialized world men and women do not work as many hours as they did in years gone by. Yet the pressures and worries of life are ever increasing and the need to be able to relax is apparent. Children who learn to use their leisure time to good advantage will grow into adults who can do the same thing.

False Alarms

There is never anything funny about turning in a false fire alarm, but occasionally some misguided child or adult with a twisted sense of humor will do it. The device which works so well to protect the lives and properties of the citizens of a community needs all possible protection against such unthinking pranksters.

Many firemen have been hurt answering false alarms. The waste of valuable time by volunteer or paid firemen and the risk of damage to expensive equipment as it speeds to a fire-fighting mission preclude any humor in false alarms. Most grave of all is the danger that the men and machines called out by a false alarm may be needed at the moment to fight a real fire. The fire alarm box is not a toy.

Scholarship Given To Daughter Of Killed Korean War Pilot

DELAND, May 24.—(Special)—Nancy Jo Hutt, the ten-month old daughter of Lt. Kenneth Hutt, first Stetson alumnus to give his life in Korean fighting, was awarded a full scholarship by Stetson University according to President J. Ollie Edmunds.

Lt. Hutt, 24, a jet pilot stationed in the Philippines, died in a Manila hospital of injuries suffered in a plane crash last Oct. 5. He served three years in the Air forces in World War II and had completed 18 months as a jet pilot before his death.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Hutt of Miami and a graduate of Miami Senior High School, Lt. Hutt received his B. S. degree in 1947 from Stetson.

His wife and their daughter, who was born July 15, have been living with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Wood, in Fort Lauderdale.

Farm Bureau To Hold Meeting In Orlando

WINTER PARK, May 24.—(Special)—The 1951 State Convention of the Florida Farm Bureau will be held in Orlando and Winter Park, Nov. 15 and 16. The announcement of the selection was made today at the organization's state headquarters here.

Each of the 48 county Farm Bureau organizations will send voting delegates to the convention, as in the past. These representatives chart the course which the state organization must follow during the coming year, officials said.

Loring Raoul, Sarasota celery grower, who is president of the big farm group, says: "We have one of the most democratic organizations in the land. It is governed 100 percent from the ground up."

Convention headquarters will be at the Orange Court Hotel in Orlando. The entertainment part of the two-day meet will be held at the bureau's new state headquarters building in Winter Park.

Advocates of grain for India point out that "we (meaning the United States) need friends, we need friends the world around. If this bill fails to pass, I doubt if we will have any friends in India." Someone has said that "whoever is honest because honesty is the best policy is not honest." If we want grain to India because of the "best policy," we should be honest because honesty is the best policy.

THE WORLD TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The opening of Sherlock Holmes' old lodgings in Baker Street, London, to public inspection as a feature of the Festival of Britain, is an odd conception, involving as it does a personality who never existed.

Still, it's a happy idea, for to us old-timers Sherlock Holmes was as real as were the members of our own families. And to Sherlock Holmes enthusiasts of half a century ago (how time does fly) his Baker Street rooms were as familiar a rendezvous as the corner groceries in our home villages.

It was my good fortune to know the detective's creator, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, very well. I spent many intensely interesting hours with him in London between the end of World War I and his death in 1930.

Still, I did hear him speak of the days when he sat in the back room of his doctor's office, writing his Sherlock Holmes stories while he waited for patients. These tales were first published in the Strand Magazine (London), and my understanding was that the idea of writing the short Holmes stories—each complete in itself—was adopted to avoid serial publication. Avid Holmes fans didn't like to wait between issues of the magazine to find out what was happening to the supreme mind of detection.

Incidentally, I also met Sir Arthur's famous brother-in-law, the late E. W. Hornung, who wrote the stories of Raffles, the amateur crackman. I often have heard his name mentioned in connection with the Raffles, the gentleman scoundrel, as the opposite of Holmes, the terror of evil doers.

However, I didn't have a good opportunity to ask Hornung about this, and so don't know the answer.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle was a fine-looking man, and for years was one of the lions of London drawing rooms because of his literary fame. However, in his later years he became wrapped up in spiritualism that he had little time for anything else, and his popularity as a drawing-room lion suffered. I heard him remark once that many old time friends had fallen away because of his views.

That grieved him greatly and he told me that he couldn't understand how anyone could refuse to believe in communication with those who had passed on. He was so wrapped up in the subject that he ran a bookshop under the shadow of Westminster Abbey and there he made available to his literary friends a sort of spiritualism and allied subjects.

Incidentally, Doyle and the late Houdini, the magician, had a running argument about spiritualism, and Sir Arthur maintained to me that Houdini performed his amazing feats through spiritualism but wouldn't admit it. Doyle said that Houdini, in making his escapes from padlocked iron chests denaturalized himself so that he could pass through a crack or keyhole and that once out he materialized himself again.

Doyle told me he had encountered spirit materialization himself, and that a materialized spirit had taddy-marched members of a spiritualist meeting which he was attending in southern England. He believed by the way, in both good and evil spirits.

When Sir Arthur died he was buried in the lovely flower garden of his country home. And the charming and accomplished lady Doyle, who also was a spiritualist, told me that the family had received communications from her husband after his death.

However, as the crowds pass through the Baker Street rooms this summer, most of them will think of Conan Doyle in terms of the creator of the immortal Sherlock Holmes, master detective. They are one and inseparable.

Combat News Suppression

Publication Analysis

Suppression of news has a dangerous sound. The American Society of Newspaper Editors represents a cool and intelligent body. When an intelligent organization cites a dangerous trend, all thinking newsmen should listen.

The ASNE, after careful study, declares that there is a growing trend toward "arrogant suppression of news." Their legal advice finds the trend growing in financial dealings between government and citizen, divorce cases, support actions, family relationship, mandatory rules such as those forbidding publication of welfare rolls, regulations concealing actions of state boards and commissions.

The ASNE urges editors to fight news suppression through their columns and "the courts as well, when necessary." Their legal advice finds the trend growing in financial dealings between government and citizen, divorce cases, support actions, family relationship, mandatory rules such as those forbidding publication of welfare rolls, regulations concealing actions of state boards and commissions.

It is all very well to adopt resolutions decrying censorship abroad. When the attacks begin to strike home, the time for action has arrived.

For the grassroots editor, it is all very well to agree with the ASNE and say there is too much

But, more to the point, is there censorship in your own town? James S. Pope of the Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal, who chaired the ASNE freedom of information committee, said his organization would fight suppression of news on every level in this country.

He got right into the argument by taking exception to a statement by the Yonkers, N. Y. city clerk who said that suppression of news there about marriage licenses was the exception, rather than the rule.

Mr. Pope cited figures from the Yonkers Herald-Statesman to show that the clerk issued 124 marriage licenses in January, with only 3 published; and 40 in February, but only 15 for publication.

The question in this case is not one about the number of licenses involved. Democracy would go on if no marriage licenses were published.

The argument stems about the question of law. The law gives the public the right to know when licenses are issued. Any withdrawal of this right is a rejection of the people's will. Rejection of the public will is a polite expression covering dictatorial actions.

Venezuela was so named because the Spaniards found villages there built on stilts over the water—Venezuela means "little Venice."

Daytona Beach Islanders Defeat Sanford In Twin Bill 10-7 And 15-7

By ED HARPER

A lightning-lashed rain storm which hit the city in the early morning hours came too late for the Sanford Giants who lost both ends of a double header to Daytona Beach 10-7 and 15-7 last night before a slender crowd of 400 people.

Six Sanford hurlers, including Manager Richie Klaus who came in to finish both games, gave up a total of 32 hits to the fence-busting Islanders.

Terry Porter faced but five men in the first game before being relieved by big Carl Swiderski. Four runs crossed in that frame on five walks and a double by Joe Altobelli.

Klaus came in to relieve in the second after the Islanders had added three more on a triple by Truss, a double by Rocky Colavito walks to Parise and Kistler. Again in the 4th the local club surged forward with two runs which came after Bailey, playing third base after Richie went to the mound, walked followed by Thelma. Klaus lashed a double to left center scoring both.

In the second game the Giants took an early lead after pushing across two runs in the second frame on a single by McBride, a triple by pitcher Jerry Schultz and a high fly to right field by Jerry Schultz.

The Giants picked up two more in the fourth when Schultz singled and was driven in by Neville's double. Parise then singled to send Neville in. Sanford got one run in the 6th, another in the 8th and a final tally in the ninth, but in the meantime the roof had fallen in on Terry Schultz who struck out five men in the first two innings.

The Islanders picked up one in the second and another in the 4th, but had been effectively handcuffed by Schultz's blazing fast ball, having gotten only four hits up to the seventh inning.

Mohr led off that frame with a single and rested on first as Jerry forced two pop ups from Truss and Altobelli. Wetterin singled and the ever potent Colavito calmly lined a home run 400 feet over the left center field fence.

With the bases empty Shelia singled and Hoelcher and Gaddis doubled sending Schultz to the showers.

Carl Thies came in to relieve and had little more success with the Islander batsmen. Gross singled, Mohr walked and Truss doubled, but was cut down by Petty's throw from center field for the final out in an inning which saw 11 Islanders come to the plate.

Carl got by the eighth by giving up only one run, but in the ninth the Islanders counted for four more on four singles and a triple before Klaus relieved to finish the inning.

Finest defensive play of the evening was Joe Parise's peg to cut down Joe Altobelli at third base in the fourth. Joe who throws like the inflied he is, split the bag with a perfect strike.

Parise also made an acrobatic stab of Mohr's line drive to right field in the second game. Jerry Schultz continued his hitting rampage batting two for two in the second game and driving across two runs. Al Neville, substituting in left field for Tim Dolan who is laid up with a bad case of conjunctivitis was the big gun offensively for Sanford with five hits in nine trips.

Two for extra bases. Don Bailey made two spectacular saves on foul flies in the second game. The chunky lackstop put his head down, ran like a sprinter to within inches of the Islander dugout on one and stuck out his glove to catch the ball with only perfunctory glance upward.

Seven Boned-Chilled American Golf Stars Survive In British Tourney

PORTHCAWL, Wales, May 24—(AP)—Defending champion Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, was knocked out of the British Amateur Golf championship today by Joe Carr of Ireland, 5 and 4. Stranahan lost the first three holes and never had a chance to get them back. Sammy Urzetta of Rochester, N. Y., the 25-year-old American amateur king, tumbled in the running for his second title with a narrow 2 and 1 victory over Wilbur Mulhead of Scotland. He was behind only once when he caught the rough with his drive and then missed a four foot putt. He came right back with a birdie two on the 11th.

By CHARLES WHITTING

PORTHCAWL, Wales, May 24—(AP)—Seven wind-weary and rain-rumpled American golfers started their fourth day of play in the British Amateur championships today with the possibility that five of them will still be on the scene for Friday's quarter finals.

With two rounds scheduled for today, all of the 32 survivors of a starting field of 190 were hoping that the chill blasts whipping around the 6,658-yard Royal Porthcawl course will go back where they came from—Island judging from their icy touch.

Frank Stranahan, who holds the British title, goes up against Joe Carr, the Irish stringbean who beat the Toledo millionaire in their Walker cup test two weeks ago, 2 and 1.

Carr, who hits the ball with the fury of a suddenly released steel spring, is the remaining major hopes of British golfdom to keep the cup on this side of the Atlantic. He won his third round match easily yesterday, beating

Dubious Records Were Established In Early Contests

NEW YORK, May 24—(AP)—A number of records, many of them somewhat dubious, were made in the National League 57 years ago—and a number of them still stand today.

On the 20th hole of the Scottish club, playing in his first major tournament.

Stranahan and Dick Chapman, twice finalist in this event but never the winner, are in the lower half. Walker cup Captain Willie Turnesa, the highly regarded entry in this half, was eliminated yesterday on the 20th hole by David Reid, 19-year-old Scottish club player in his first major tournament.

Personal To Women With Nagging Backache

Nagging backache, one of the most common ailments of women, may be due to a weakness of the kidney function. Doctors are now recommending a new treatment for this ailment. It is a natural, non-toxic, and safe remedy. It is called "Backache Relief" and is available in all drug stores.

The New York grand jury indictment contains 15 counts. Each carries a jail term of five years or a fine of $10,000, or both.

State Legislature

Beasley said the State needs to be able to increase the tax because it can't be told now what emergencies may arise in the future to require a boost in revenue.

He moved to indefinitely postpone Okell's measure a parliamentary maneuver which would have had the effect of killing it. The attempt failed by a vote of 22 to 40.

The Senate spent its whole morning passing nearly 200 special acts affecting only one county or city apiece.

The hottest questions before the Legislature were being worked out backstage.

Rep. Haley of Sarasota said his committee hopes to have a report of its investigation into alleged political corruption ready to file with the House sometime tomorrow.

He received a telegram from Victor Pritchard, Miami hotel man, denying a Saturday witness testimony that he had passed a fat brown envelope to the president of the Miami Crime Commission.

Pritchard offered to come and deny it under oath, but Haley said there is no time for a hearing. He said the telegram was given to the committee report.

Rep. Okell of Dade said his proposed articles of impeachment by which he seeks to oust Governor Warren from office will not be ready for submission to the House before Saturday.

He has not disclosed the charges he will make, but some of them likely will be based on testimony produced before the Haley committee and a Senate committee that has been investigating the State Beverage Department.

The House and Senate conference committee seeking a compromise of slightly different general appropriations bills started working this morning, but quit for the day after about two hours.

Senate appropriations Chairman Baynard of St. Petersburg and House Chairman Morgan of Duval said they were making progress. Morgan said it may be early next week before they reach agreement.

The chairman of the House Finance Committee, starting late on a tax bill, distributed among House members a proposed sales tax revision measure which will go before his committee later in the week for action.

Aides of Comptroller C. M. Giv said it would produce only about $1,000,000 a year above what the sales tax as now drawn yields. This is perhaps a bit of seven million dollars less than most financial experts say will be needed.

Georgia City

denly was taken over again by the defense effort.

Nearly Camp Gordon already has grown from a few hundred caretaker personnel to a population of 27,000 and rehabilitation work is underway to bring it back to World War II capacity.

Just as Augusta was becoming accustomed to the sight of khaki again, the Veterans' Administration announced it would open the 1,500 bed Oliver General Hospital again.

The State then said it was going to build a $12,000,000 hospital addition to the University of Georgia Medical School.

The ancient Augusta arsenal, founded in 1793 and second oldest in the nation, announced it was putting on another shift, adding 600 employees to the 1,200 already at work. There is talk of a third shift.

All these things mean more people to feed, house, clothe and equip. The present population of slightly more than 72,000 and an industrial establishment of 100 plants employing some 25,000 workers.

Even without the 11-bomb plant the town will need room for around 3,000 more families.

But that isn't all. Displaced tenant farmers arrive in Augusta almost daily in search of work and a place to live. Most of them are Negroes.

At the moment housing for whites is barely sufficient and the Negro population is vastly overcrowded.

The school system, which is combined with that of Richmond county, is bursting at the seams.

Even now there are 3,500 school children who have to attend classes in shifts for lack of space.

Some attend classes in buildings declared unsafe—church basements and old stores.

There are seven parks for whites, four for Negroes and each race has a municipal swimming pool. In either pool in the summer and it gets hot here—it is almost impossible to stir the bathers with a stick.

There are few picture shows and these are crowded at night. Outside the city there are a half dozen good-sized night clubs where a man can smooch his third and gamble a bit.

The in and out traffic flow in the city daily hits 50,000 automobiles. Parking space is at a premium.

Korean War

miles. Often they fought stiff actions with Red rear guards.

Chuncheon is on the western flank of this sector, 45 miles northwest of Seoul. Americans driving into the town reported they captured "more enemy than we could handle." Nevertheless the tank and infantry force in that sector pushed on across the Chong River and headed north.

South Korea's training up the area south of Chuncheon advanced 65 miles.

Americans who had recaptured Kapyong, 32 miles northeast of Seoul, struck north along the highway toward Hanchon in Red Korea. On their western flank British and Canadian advanced nearly six miles without fighting any Reds.

U. N. forces slowed up on the western front where the spreading Allied advance began.

Americans straightened their lines around Uijong, north of Seoul. Tank forces probing northward ran into an ambush less than six miles from the border. Long Tom artillery and 165 millimeter opened up on the Chinese.

South Korea's farther west, only 15 miles from the border, hunted down hiding Reds.

Allied bombers and fighters flying ahead of the advance blasted the Chorwon-Kumhwa-Hwachon triangle in Red Korea.

This was the hubbub for the Red's May 16 offensive. Van Fleet said that offensive ended in "complete failure" but the Communists still have power to strike again.

He said his Eighth Army had retaken the initiative and was "at least" looking along the entire front.

"There is no limitation on its objectives," Van Fleet said, adding the purpose is to kill as many Reds as possible and perhaps force them into another premature offensive.

Communists fell back before the advance even in the western mountains.

An American officer reported Chinese were "reinforcing their screening forces all along the eastern front." And Van Fleet said, "It's impossible to tell what the Chinese are going to do."

premium and jams at peak hours are frequent, even on Board Street.

To take care of just normal expansions, Augusta was figuring that it would take $7,000,000 to rebuild and expand the sewer system. They were getting around to working on that when the 11-bomb plant was announced.

The problems here are the problems all over the seven-county area including and surrounding the 220,000 acre plant site in Alben and Barnwell counties, S. C.

When the announcement of the plant hit Augusta, along with an estimate that it would bring 35,000 construction workers in 1953, there was a strong temptation to head for the nearest hole and stay there for the duration.

After the initial impact, though, the city fathers and leading citizens came out, looked around and went to work. The job ahead is tremendous.

Leveling Off Of Prices Indicated By Special Index

WASHINGTON, May 24—(AP)—The sharp ten-month living cost decline the economic temperature-taking reflected in the index, told a reporter there was no question but that living costs have leveled off.

Ever since the June outbreak of war in Korea, the official cost-of-living index had been leaping upward almost every month. But yesterday's index for mid-April showed only an upward flicker over mid-March. In fact, by one alternate formula it stood stock still.

Evan Clague, commissioner of labor statistics whose agency conducts the economic temperature-taking reflected in the index, told a reporter there was no question but that living costs have leveled off.

"It's relatively quiet on the price front generally, with no signs of a basic shift, even on the basis of later than our mid-April figures," Clague said.

"We'll probably have a stable situation for a while, at least until we see what good prices are going to do as the new crops come in."

That would indicate little change for the next few months, but Clague would make no predictions on how long living costs may stay leveled. He did say there has been a general leveling of prices, and added that the government's price controls have helped stall the living cost spiral.

A period of relative stability could be expected to remove some of the pressures for liberalizing wage and price controls.

Bradley Testifies

was relieved on receipt of his orders and so could not make a farewell statement to his troops.

MacArthur also declared he felt the national interest was jeopardized by his having to turn over his command immediately to Lt. General Matthew Ridgway who was at that time several hundred miles away.

Bradley made the North Atlantic comment under questioning by Senator Wiley (R-Wis.), who, discussing the problem of prolonged war in Korea, asked if it wasn't "dreadfully wrong to give our Allies the idea that we can defend more than we are actually capable of defending."

Bradley replied that "the question of whether or not we can carry out our military commitments to conform to our diplomatic commitments is very much one of opinion." Then he continued:

"It may be that right at this moment, we do have more diplomatic commitments than can carry out militarily."

"Take the North Atlantic Treaty Organization for example. The 12 nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization do not have the capability, right now, of stopping an aggression by Russia."

"I don't see why that should imply, however, that we shouldn't go on and have the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and try to encourage them to build up their security forces, because this is the way you get built up to the commitment; and I think it is perfectly proper in a case like that, to make this commitment, if you want to call it that, of the North Atlantic Treaty, and try to build it up."

"I agree with you that we should not just go around the world making commitments, military commitments, which we can't fulfill; but I think it is perfectly proper, on the other hand, to make some, particularly where you are trying to build up a collective defense, and then build it up."

Bradley's remark about Iran and the possibility of Russia starting trouble also came in response to questions by Wiley.

Wiley noted that Bradley told the committee yesterday there is danger Russia may move into Iran "and start another aggression."

Wiley said Bradley apparently had not felt sure "as to whether the Iran situation was actually more critical than the possibility of satellite invasion of Yugoslavia." Wiley added:

"The British seem to regard the Iranian situation as infinitely more important. According to reports, they may be ready to send parachute troops in order to prevent oil fields from falling into unfriendly hands."

Two Sanford Men Complete Training With 8th Division

Two Sanford men on May 26 will complete their 11-weeks training cycle with Battery "C," 3rd Field Artillery Battalion, of the 8th (Golden Arrow) Infantry Division, garrisoned at Fort Jackson, Columbia, S. C.

Upon completion of their six weeks basic and eight weeks infantry branch training, the soldiers will have fired all the light infantry weapons, engaged in squad and platoon patrol duties, and undergone intensive physical training.

The two are Pvt. Charles Edwards, son of Mrs. W. L. Battle, 1608 South Perimeter Avenue, and Pvt. Willie James Higgins, son of James Willie Higgins, 815 West Ninth Street, Sanford.

Pvt. Edwards, inducted Jan. 18, 1951, is married to Mrs. Willie J. Edwards, Sanford. They have an 18-month-old child. He attended Sanford Junior High School and was employed by Chase and Co., Sanford.

Before his induction, Pvt. Higgins attended Crossroads Academy in Sanford and was employed in the hauling business.

Weyland To Succeed Stratemyer In Japan

WASHINGTON, May 24—(AP)—The two top Air Force commanders in the Far East are being replaced.

General George E. Stratemeyer, who was stricken with a heart attack in Tokyo last week, will be succeeded by Lt. General O. P. Weyland as commander of the Far East Air Force.

Lt. General Frank F. Everest, assistant chief of staff for operations at Air Force headquarters, was named to succeed Lt. General Earl E. Partridge as Fifth Air Force commander in Japan.

Announcing the changes last night, General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force Chief of Staff, said he and the whole Air Force "deeply regret the illness which has made it impossible for General Stratemyer to continue in command of the Far East Air Force."

General Partridge will become commander of the Air Research and Development Command, with headquarters at Wright-Patterson Air Base at Dayton, Ohio.

Wiley said Bradley apparently had not felt sure "as to whether the Iran situation was actually more critical than the possibility of satellite invasion of Yugoslavia." Wiley added:

"The British seem to regard the Iranian situation as infinitely more important. According to reports, they may be ready to send parachute troops in order to prevent oil fields from falling into unfriendly hands."

Presidential Race

Mr. Truman might be inclined to run again if put before the people the issues raised in connection with MacArthur's firing.

While Mr. Truman wouldn't say what he intends to do, he did tell the newsmen he would regard another try, if he made it, as a race for a second, rather than a third term.

Mr. Truman elected as vice president in 1944, took over the presidency in 1945 and was elected President in 1948.

At another point, Mr. Truman remarked that anybody who wants to be a candidate for the Democratic nomination.

The President did nothing to discourage reports he will take a cross-country trip this summer. Asked about the possibility, the President said that if he takes to the road, he will give correspondents plenty of notice so they can go with him.

The objective of such a trip, he added, would be to tell the people the truth and the facts as to his domestic and foreign policies.

surrender."

Backing up his plea, the President declared "a very real and terrible danger would face the American people if they are forced to stand alone against Russia."

"We cannot maintain our civilization," he said, "if the rest of the world is split up, subjugated and organized against us by the Kremlin."

The President said his proposed military-economic aid program was tailored to meet three major characteristics of the Soviet threat:

"First, the Soviet threat is world-wide. . . . Second, the Soviet threat is total. . . . Communist attack may come in the form of armies marching across frontiers or it may come in the form of internal subversion, economic warfare, psychological warfare, political infiltration, sabotage. . . . Third, the Soviet threat is of indefinite duration." The President said.

Of the total $6,500,000,000 requested for Western Europe, the largest chunk — $5,240,000,000 — would be allocated for arms shipments to nine Atlantic Pact countries.

The remaining $1,260,000,000 the President emphasized, would be spent for economic aid to Marshall Plan countries but "primarily to support expanded defense efforts abroad."

Some of the money, however, would go to Yugoslavia to help meet what Mr. Truman called its minimum requirements in maintaining strength against the threat of Soviet imperialism.

To counter Russian threats to the strategic Middle East, the President proposed for the first time setting aside money for aid to Arab countries and Palestine. A total of $125,000,000 was earmarked for this.

The largest slice of funds for that area, however, would be a total of $418,000,000 for continued arms aid to Greece, Turkey and Iran and other Mid-East nations, if it is needed.

Two Die As Naval Launch Capsizes In Heavy Rain Storm

NEWPORT, R. I., May 24—(AP)—A 50-foot navy motor launch carrying possibly 150 men capsized today in Newport Harbor. Two men are known to be dead.

The Navy said that it did not know if any men were missing. It added: "There are 15 known stretcher cases at present," among a total of 24 hospital patients.

First Naval District Headquarters at Boston said the launch capsized between 6 and 7 A.M. EDT, while returning a liberty party to several destroyers in the harbor. Other reports said it was three-quarters of a mile from Long Wharf when the accident occurred in a heavy rainstorm.

The public information office at Third Naval District Headquarters, New York, reported that the launch carried between 120 and 150 men.

Three coast guard vessels, three from the Navy and a Navy helicopter joined in rescue operations.

A Navy account of the accident released in Boston said the launch was followed as it left the wharf by a boat containing the commanding officer of the destroyer Bailey.

"The motor launch was observed to take water over the bow and then capsized about 7:45 A.M. The boat following the motor launch was on the scene immediately and conducted rescue operations. A merchant ship under way nearby threw life preservers and life rafts into the water."

"It is not known at present if there are any missing. A muster of personnel is being conducted on the ships to account for their personnel. This is a lengthy process and until all ships get their reports in it will not be known if there are any missing persons."

A Coast Guard spokesman said "We (the Coast Guard) rescued plenty," but he was unable to give an approximate figure. He said rescue operations continued for two hours after the capsizing.

More than 50 different types of services now employ radio telephone or telegraph.

Mr. Truman told him that if he would read history, he would know that the first term of any president is the term to which he was first elected.

Then someone asked if he did seek re-election would it be for a second or a third term.

A reporter asked whether, if he did go, the purpose would be to recall the American foreign policy or would the trip have "political overtones."

The objective, Mr. Truman said, would be to tell the truth and facts about domestic and foreign policy.

"Do you consider this your second term?" a reporter inquired.

Killing Of Fair Trade Law Not To Cause Price Wars

Heavy Competition Is Unlikely Except In Specialized Fields

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK, May 24—(AP)—Will wide-spread price wars give consumers a break this summer? Now that the fair trade laws of 45 states have been weakened by the Supreme Court, some fair trade advocates contend that without these price-fixing laws "predatory price-cutting" is in sight. They contend that threaten small businessmen "with sudden extinction."

But some manufacturers are confident they can force retailers to hold the present price line by refusing to sell to any merchant who cuts prices. And many retailers say they see no price cutting likely.

Businessmen's first thoughts on the effect of the court action seem to fall down to this: "Where shortages exist and demand is high, manufacturers and retailers can probably hold the price line where it is now on brand-name goods."

Where huge inventories and slow sales plague manufacturers and merchants, it's going to be mighty hard for manufacturers and big retailers to police the entire country and keep dealers from cutting prices to move stock, or to meet the competition from the store across the street.

Manufacturers still have the right to enforce the fixed price on their goods where the retailer has agreed to it. The Supreme Court ruled Monday that the manufacturer no longer can make a dealer do so if he didn't sign the agreement. The laws of the 45 fair trade states had given the manufacturer that right.

People have been getting around the fair trade laws increasingly of late, critics of the law say.

One method was used by large merchandising units who developed personalized brand names on products almost identical with the trade-marked items of the manufacturers — and sometimes made by the same manufacturer. The stores then sold their own brands at lower prices than the advertised articles.

Another method was the "buying club" where members with cards could buy brand name products for less. The clubs were like regular stores. Except that you couldn't walk in off the street without a card.

Still another method, growing of late because of heavy store inventories was the "personal deal." Shoppers paid the fair-trade listed price but they got things thrown in, or other forms of concessions that resulted in bargain prices.

Advocates of the fair trade law contend they are primarily intended to guard the small businessman from cut-throat competition—that is, to thwart the ruthless retailer who deliberately poaches in the red to eliminate competition. So that he can then charge whatever he pleases.

The first fair trade law was in 1931 in California. Twenty-four other states had them by 1937, when the federal Miller-Tydings Law gave them the blessing of being enforceable on goods in interstate commerce. At present the only states who don't have them are Texas, Vermont and Missouri, along with the District of Columbia.

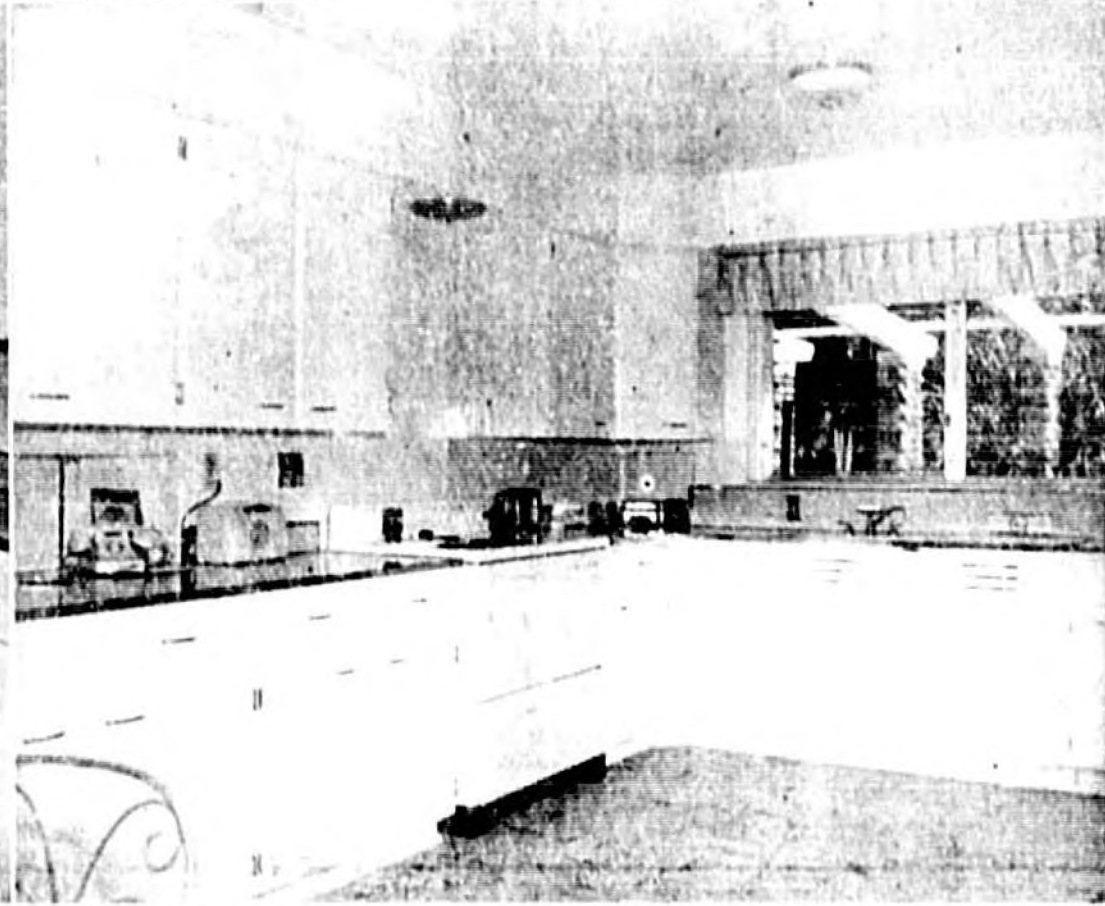

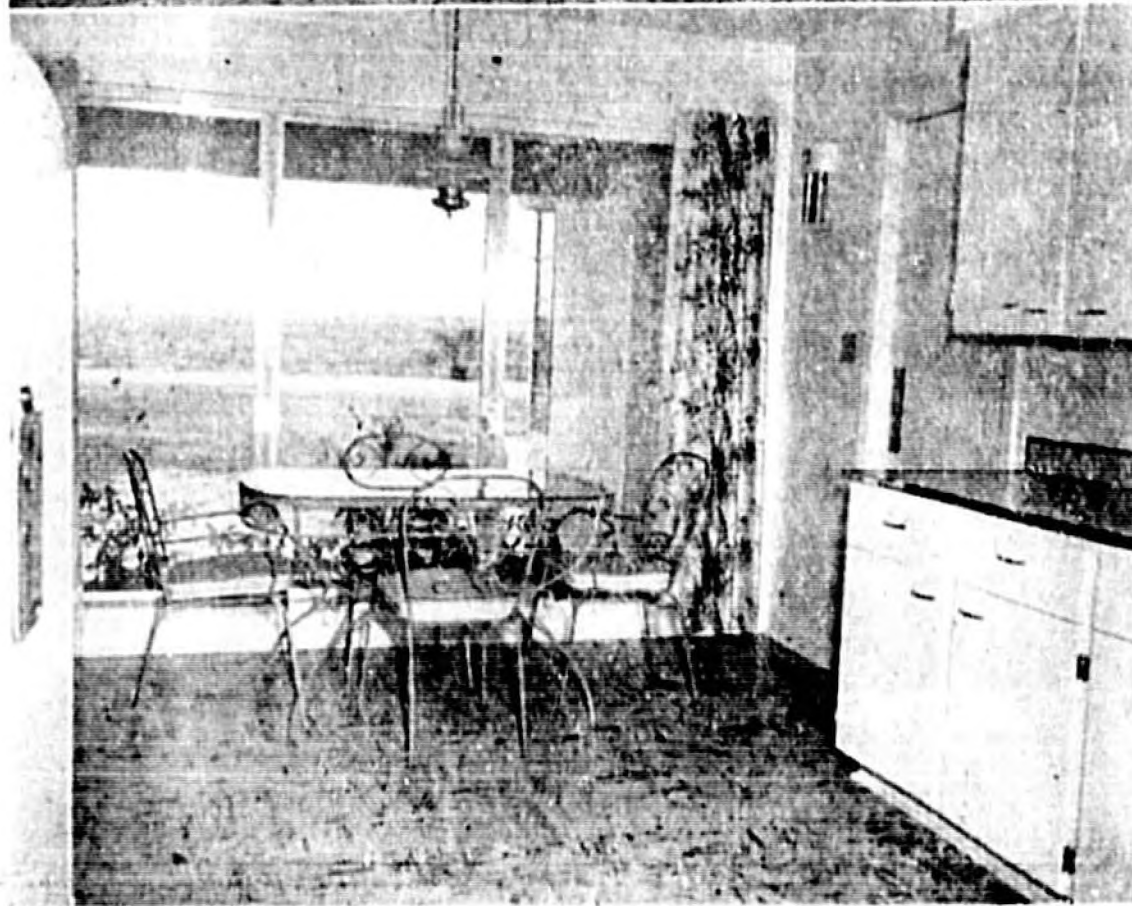

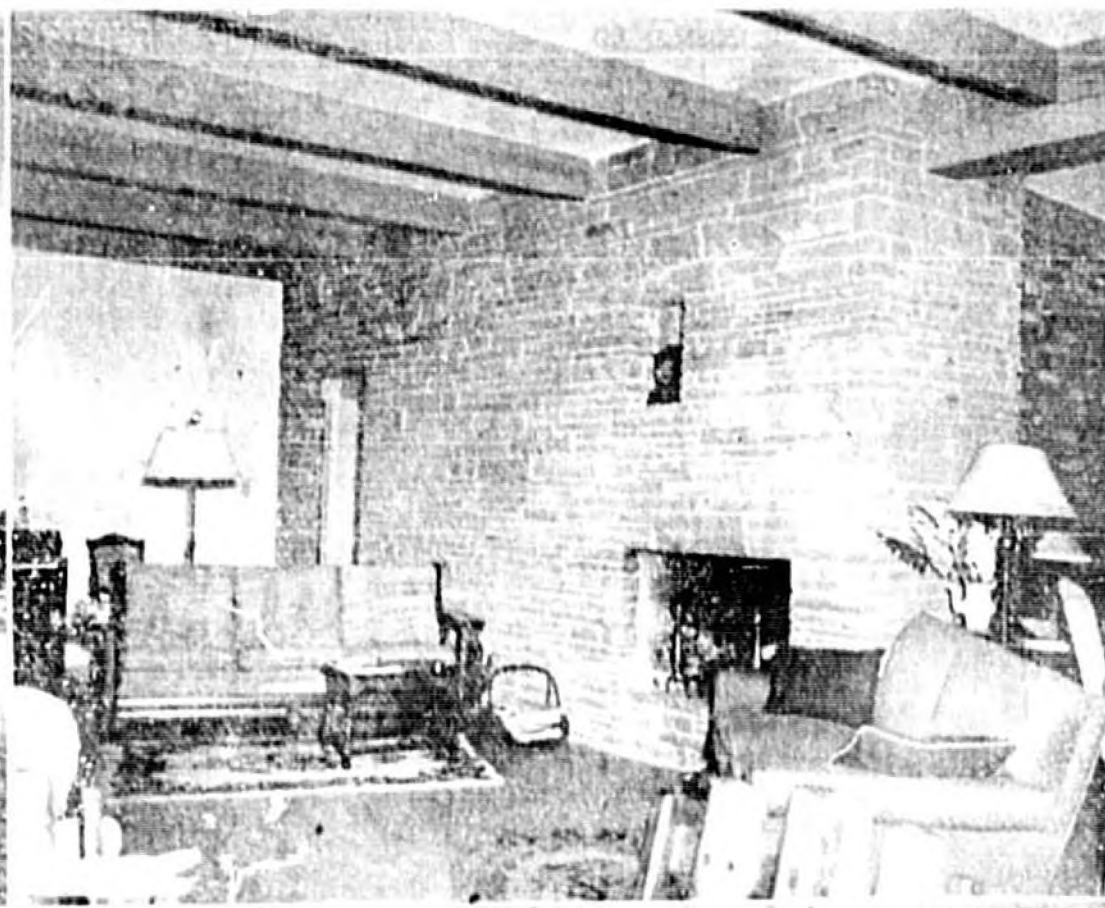

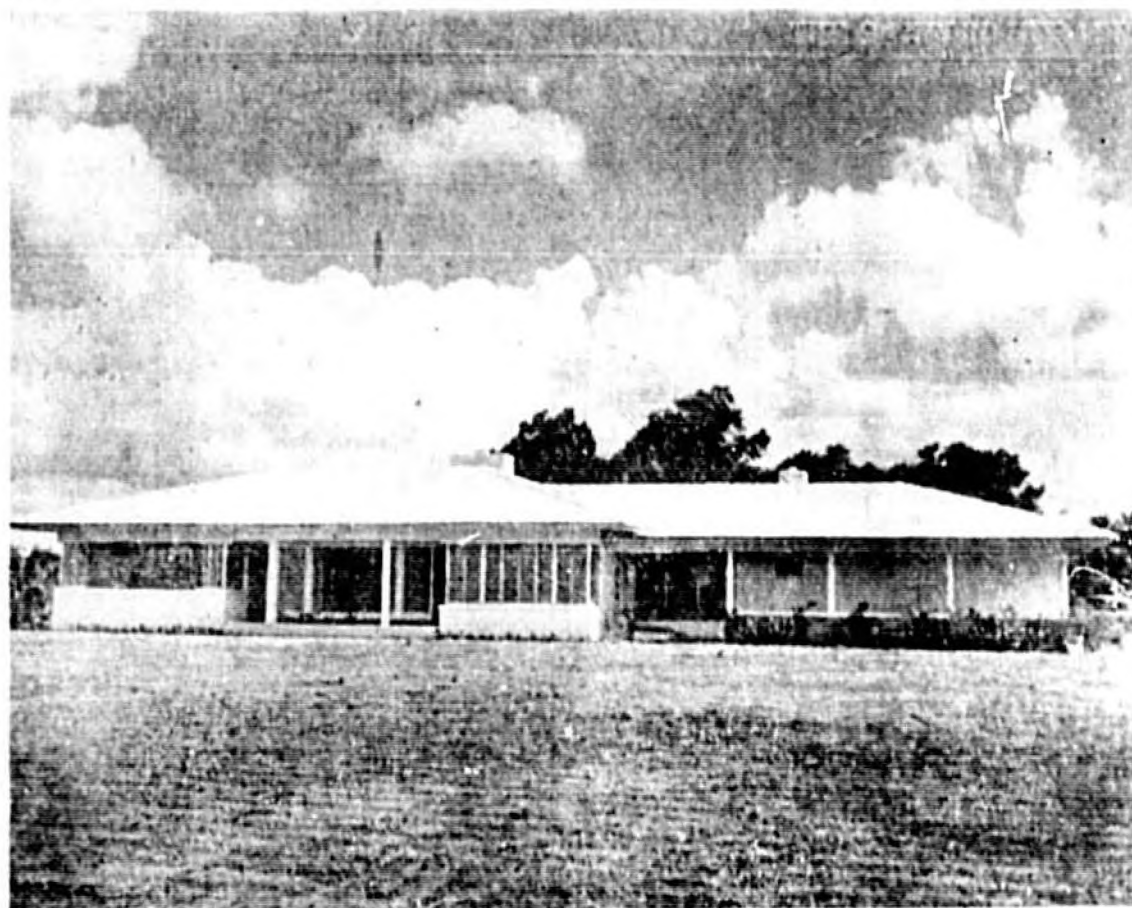

An official in the anti-trust division of the Justice Department says: "The original idea may have been to protect a brand name. Now the idea is strictly a form of price fixing among competing retailers—retailers trying to protect themselves against competition."

But the Bureau of Education on Fair Trade—which is sponsored by the National Association of Retail Druggists—says the Supreme Court ruling heralds "fresh outbreaks of predatory price cutting" and that will "threaten our small business economy once again with sudden extinction."

The Wall Street Journal, however, says editorially today the fair trade laws were a breach in the anti-monopoly laws and that small businessmen can not benefit from a breakdown in anti-monopoly laws.

It adds: "The free enterprise system will break down when enterprise is to be enterprising; whenever they forget that they exist for the benefit of the consumer and begin to think that the consumer exists for their benefit."

MAYFAIR RESIDENCE OF MR. AND MRS. HARRY LEE

At upper left is an exterior view of the Harry Lee home as seen from the shore of Lake Monroe. Extending for more than 45 feet on the right front side of the house is the loggia from which there is an entrance into the living room. Between the two porches on the left front side of the house, and behind a low wall is a built-in garden. At upper right is the living room. The stone wall in the background frames the elevated fireplace. Overhead beams extend through the house and over the patio in the rear, where they are supported by rustic brick pillars. From the living room, a view of the lake is obtained. In the foreground, a view of the lake is obtained. In the foreground, a view of the lake is obtained.

At lower right is another view of the kitchen, showing the elevated fireplace. Sanford's Mayfair Section Boasts Many New And Distinctive Homes

A number of fine homes of distinctive design and construction have been completed during the past two years in the Mayfair section.

Among these, and facing Lake Monroe, is the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lee. Nearby are the recently completed homes of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Tooke, Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Bitting and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jarrell. East of the Lee home is the new dwelling of Dr. and Mrs. Wade Garner, and a short distance south on Sumner Avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Cowan are erecting a two-story concrete block home.

Roominess is the keynote of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Lee. Every room in the house is flooded with light from broad windows, and the house is so planned that with the exception of one of the three bedrooms, a view of Lake Monroe may be had from any room in the house.

Of one story, concrete block construction, the white stucco exterior contrasts with wall portion of old brick, which lend a rustic appearance. This brick, which also encloses the patio on the south side of the house, was obtained from the walls of the warehouse formerly located opposite Chase and Co. on Oak Avenue after that building was demolished last year.

Architect Elton Moughton, who designed the Tooke, Bitting, Jarrell and Cowan homes, has made provision for shading the rooms and shades in this indoor garden. While breakfasting in the kitchen, the Lees can also enjoy the sight of flowers growing in a built-in bin outside of the window. In front of the broad window of the living room is another little garden under the eaves. This is enclosed by a low wall.

A door in the living room leads to a small hall and three large bedrooms. The master bedroom, facing the lake, has its own bath and two large closets. Corridor windows with aluminum casements provide adequate lighting. A second bathroom is accessible from the hall. Walls of the bedrooms are finished in pleasing pastel shades.

The kitchen is well lighted from two sides, and is equipped with modern fixtures and cabinets. A modern in the wall may be used.

Rural Common Sense

By SPUDS JOHNSON

Blaming the farmer for high prices of consumer goods produced on the farm is a popular game. All too seldom does the consumer realize that a good part of the final costs of such goods are processing and handling charges, taxes and profits for those who process and handle. The more you know about the farm, the better you will understand the farmer's position.

Roles Of Employers

It is not only the employer's duty to pay his employees but also to give them joy in their work. I met one sternly grumpy character who says it is all nonsense, and that bosses ought to get back to being old-fashioned bosses again and quit playing nurse. "But you don't shoot at your own employees the way you used to," I said. "You're getting mel-low yourself." "I just don't have the energy to yell at them anymore. Got to spend all my time filling out government forms."

A REPORTER interviews Gen. Omar S. Bradley, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, on his arrival in Los Angeles for several speaking engagements. Commenting on Korea, the five-star general declared that the new Chinese Red offensive "really is on its way." He said that further Allied withdrawal may become necessary. (International)

Legislature Passes Bill To Raise Limit On Jobless Benefits

Senate Rejects House Bill Giving Cabinet Power To Fire Game, Fish Commissioners

TALLAHASSEE, May 25—(AP)—The Senate today passed S.B. 1081 by Senator Boyle's reference amending a charter provision relating to the police pension fund.

TALLAHASSEE, May 25—(AP)—Florida's jobless workers may be able to draw $5 more a week in unemployment compensation under a bill which cleared the Legislature today.

The Senate passed, and sent to Governor Warren, a bill to raise the maximum unemployment compensation payment to $20 a week, from $15. The limit on the number of weeks it will be paid remains at 18 weeks. Labor had wanted as much as $30 a week for 26 weeks.

The payments will come from a $27,000,000 unemployment compensation trust fund which already is on hand, and will call for no extra revenue. On the contrary, the Senate also adopted a House bill which will let employers with good records of keeping their men on the job be exempt from further contributions to the fund.

Senators overwhelmingly rejected a House-approved proposal to change the Constitution to permit the State Cabinet to remove Game and Fresh Water Fish Commissioners.

The House was in a mind-changing mood.

It passed, upon reconsideration and with a compromise amendment, the bill to require inoculation of all dogs against rabies. The bill had been defeated yesterday.

It agreed to reconsider the vote by which it rejected a proposal to increase the number of Supreme Court justices from seven to 10, but it didn't take the new vote immediately.

It also agreed to reconsider the vote by which it rejected a Senate bill cutting off state school fund allocations to counties for new junior colleges and kindergartens and to fund training classes. The new vote on that question also was delayed.

The House Committee which has been investigating charges of Florida political corruption was putting the final touches to its report, which may be filed with the House before the day is over.

The financial dilemma remained unresolved.

Chairman Stewart of the House Finance Committee, made an informal poll of members of his group on sentiment for and against a sales tax revision bill that would add about $1,000,000 a year in general revenue. He wouldn't say what he learned.

He said the committee will meet this afternoon to discuss the bill, and he hoped to get it favorably reported to the House (Continued on Page Eight)

Colored Service Center Is Planned By Citizens Group

In order that the approximately 500 colored men among the enlisted personnel at the Sanford Auxiliary Naval Air Station may enjoy recreation facilities, a colored servicemen's recreation committee headed by Dr. George H. Starks is expected to meet soon to plan the formation of a center for these men.

Dr. Starks said this morning that he had not yet called a meeting of a committee, as he first wishes to confer with other officials of the Service Command before making a decision on the plan.

Dr. Starks said the center would be a place where the colored servicemen could get together and discuss their problems. He stated that a meeting for such a center must be held.

He recommended an active member of his committee, Edna C. Burton, teacher of the adult veterans school for colored men. A former WAC, she is well acquainted with recreational programs, he said.

State Legislature Moves To Fire Rollins Out-Of-State Trustees

TALLAHASSEE, May 25—(AP)—Both houses of the Legislature moved with lightning speed yesterday afternoon to oust the out-of-state trustees of embattled Rollins College. The House passed immediately after its introduction by Rep. Andrews of Orange a bill to take all non-Florida residents off the board of trustees of the privately-endowed institution at Winter Park.

The bill was sent right across to the Senate and the senators dropped everything else to give it their blessing and sent it on to Governor Warren.

The non-resident trustees recently met in New York with some Florida trustees and fired President Paul Wagner. He had been under fire for a series of economy moves that started with abolishing football and were climaxed by the dropping of 23 of the 75 faculty members.

The legislative action stunned the Rollins campus for apparently no one knew of the impending move except the committee and the delegation headed by Rep. Charles O. Andrews who introduced the bill.

The Wagner-Mexican groups now are virtual armed camps. The issue has widely split campus and much of citizenry hereabouts.

Most of the 630 boy and girl students, however, apparently are loyal to McKean for they called off a strike immediately after he was named president. Last night they gave him ovation after ovation when he appeared at a mass meeting attended by 500 faculty, alumni and students in the Annie Russell Theater.

The citizens committee is headed by Clarence H. Cubbage, Winter Park insurance and citrus man. Gary, who owns a home here, is a leading member.

Gard said "maintenance of order is a necessary instrument of democratic operation. Control of Rollins has been turned over to Florida citizens for the first time."

In a joint statement issued by Howard Showalter, Jr. of Winter Park, president of the Alumni Association; Ed Cushing, president of the Student Council, and Prof. Charles Merrill, chairman of the Faculty Committee, it was stated:

"The faculty, students and alumni are horrified. The 11 (resident) trustees are all members of the pro-Wagner Citizens Committee. Hundreds of students say this is the end of the rope. They will not return next fall."

Marian Cleveland, dean of women who also spoke at the meeting, said "I can't think of anything more fantastic than what has happened in the State of Florida today."

A statement issued by acting Rollins President McKean was as follows:

"This unwarranted interference in the private affairs of Rollins College by the State Legislature is a gross misappropriation and misuse of political power and has done a terrible wrong to the college."

"We of the faculty feel that this is a mighty blow which has been struck at the basic freedom and liberty which have been our traditional right."

"This action was railroaded through the Legislature without any opportunity for the college to be represented or to have a fair hearing or to have an opportunity to present its position and the position of the trustees."

"This is a step in the direction of a dictatorship and it proves that 'it can happen here.' We are shocked by the magnitude of this infamous action on the part of the legislative body in America to interfere and dictate the private affairs of an independent liberal college."

"It seems that Mr. Wagner (Continued on Page Eight)

All-Out Attack On Reds Begun By U.N. Forces

Powerful Task Force Slices Across 38th Parallel Cutting Off Chinese Units

BY OLEN CLEMENTS
TOKYO, May 25—(AP)—Allied tanks and troops today slashed across the 38th Parallel at two more points in their officially designated all-out offensive to hunt down the battered and retreating Communists.

The new crossings kept up the pressure on the Reds, who already were battling an Allied spearhead row thrust four miles into North Korea on the east-central front.

Field dispatches said the new crossings were made on the western front north of Seoul and on the central front northeast of Chunchon. Both these tank-infantry teams withdrew to South Korea by nightfall.

"The 38th Parallel means nothing to me," said Lt. General James A. Van Fleet, commander of the U. S. 8th Army.

He showed he meant it by crossing into Red Korea himself. Van Fleet visited a tank and infantry task force. It was sitting idly as a huge road block north of the border straddled the Redo route from the east-central front. He said his Army's tactics of pursuing the Reds into their own territory was a gamble but is paying off.

"The Eighth Army is in an all-out offensive," Van Fleet said. "Considerable progress" has been made.

Field dispatches told of open flight of Chinese toward the 38th Parallel from some fronts, while they fought stubbornly on others. The pursuing Eighth Army, Van Fleet said, will "not be limited by such barriers as the 38th Parallel in chasing them down."

On a tour of the front Van Fleet visited Disturbed Service Crosses on Lt. General Edward M. Almond, 10th Corps commander, and Maj. General Clark L. Ruffner, Second Division commander, for their part in smashing the Reds' second spring offensive.

"It looks like our assault tactics are working well," Van Fleet said. There will be no technical basis on running down the Reds. He said it this way:

"The Eighth Army is in an all-out offensive," Van Fleet said. "Considerable progress" has been made.

Field dispatches told of open flight of Chinese toward the 38th Parallel from some fronts, while they fought stubbornly on others. The pursuing Eighth Army, Van Fleet said, will "not be limited by such barriers as the 38th Parallel in chasing them down."

The whole United Nations line was moving forward at the beginning of the 19th month of the Korean war. Solid gains of 10 to 15 miles were punched out Thursday.

The Reds backed up fast. But they left rear guards who fought bitterly to slow the Allied advance. Communist artillery forced one Allied tank patrol to return to the main body of troops.

The Chinese retreat route in the past was blocked by a huge U. N. armored force astride the main highway, nearly four miles north of 38.

Infantry and artillery with the task force seized the Choyang River crossing near Inje and dug in on both sides after a dramatic 13 mile drive. The bridgehead was reported firmly established at 4 P. M. Friday. Allied tanks patrolled the Inje highway and battled with Reds in the hills.

The action split the Chinese armies and forced shattered remnants of Red forces to take to mountain trails. Three planes and plodding troops hunted them down.

Warplanes battered retreating Chinese and Red Koreans around the clock on all roads leading north. They reported 50 trucks were knocked out during the night by flame-dropping planes.

Nineteen American prisoners of war—18 Marines and one soldier—were rescued in that city where Chinese in hasty flight had abandoned them.

AP correspondent Nate Polowsky said the general U. N. advance met only scattered resistance in the west and west-central sectors. Opposition was stiffer in the central and east-central areas where "used U. S. Second Division fighting men had shattered the Chinese second spring offensive."

CONNECTION
Lester Matthews, Negro, who pleaded guilty Wednesday to a charge of aggravated assault, was fined $500 and costs or one year in prison by Judge Stenstrom and not $100 as stated.

Martina Submits Resignation To City Commission

Necessity Of Moving To Orlando Given As Cause Of Action

Sam Martina, who on Feb. 7 defeated John Kinder incumbent in the race for the City Commission by a vote of 947 to 857 in Group No. 1, today notified the Commission that he is submitting his resignation as a commissioner with deep regret.

He requested that the resignation be approved as effective on June 15, and recommended the appointment in his place of either Roy Haller or James W. Powell.

"Due to the relocation of the business which employs me and the growing inconvenience now imposed upon my family by my relocation, it is our plan to move to Orlando or about that date," he wrote the Commission.

"As you know," he added, "it has been my most ardent endeavor since joining your body, to serve humbly, honestly and in the best interest of the entire populace. For this reason, and believing it to be in the best interest of the people of Sanford, I sincerely hope you find it proper to appoint either of the two gentlemen, which I am (Continued on Page Eight)

Farmer's Auction To Elect New Directors

Stockholders of the Sanford Farmers' Auction, Inc., will meet Monday, June 4, to elect directors for the coming year and to transact business. W. W. Linn, secretary, announced today.

The meeting will be held at the principal office of the corporation at the market one mile south of Sanford on the Orlando Highway.

Those stockholders who have not received stock certificates may get them at the meeting and Mr. Linn. Coffee and cake will be served by W. B. Miller and Jean Miller.

Health Tests Here Attract Statewide Interest, Acclaim

Dr. Frank Quillman, director of the Seminole County Health Department, today announced that his health tests made here Friday through May 3, had attracted statewide attention, and that he and Dr. Ed Smith of the State Board of Health have been asked to speak concerning them in various cities.

The reason for the interest, he pointed out, is the fact that the tests combined for the first time multiple screening. This included chest x-rays to find tuberculosis and blood tests to find diabetes, anemia and syphilis.

Dr. Quillman pointed out that in the talks, he and representatives from the various bureaus of the central office of the State Board of Health have been invited to explain the reaction of the public and the results of the program.

In his quarterly bulletin, the Seminole Chief, he revealed that of 5,800 persons who took x-ray tests, 6,730 were reported negative. Three definite cases of tuberculosis and 28 suspected cases were revealed by the tests.

Six cases were reported of suspected tumors of the lung, 23 were found with heart disease, 17 with other chest pathology, and 5 were declared unsatisfactory.

Of the 5,109 blood specimens taken, there were 54 previously known diabetics. Many had normal blood sugar at the time of testing, others showed abnormal blood sugar. There were 39 reported as suspected of having diabetes, and these were sent to private physicians for further study. A total of 145 persons tested were declared unsatisfactory.

Blood tests also resulted in 39 persons reported as being anemic, and 430 as unsatisfactory. There were 201 positive reports of syphilis, and two doubtful cases were rechecked and both found to have the disease. Of these 107 had been previously reported, had received treatment or were under treatment at the time of the survey. Seventy tests were stated unsatisfactory. On follow up examinations, five of those tested were reported as not infected with the disease.

AEC Announces Experiments On Hydrogen Bomb

Results Of Tests On Eniwetok Atoll Are Classified Secret

WASHINGTON, May 27—(AP)—The United States announced today it had "successfully" carried out atomic tests at Eniwetok, an island in the Pacific Ocean.

The AEC's announcement said "in furtherance of the President's announcement of Jan. 31, 1950, the test program included experiments contributing to thermodynamic weapons research."

"The term 'thermonuclear' refers to reactions involving the fusion of hydrogen atoms."

On Jan. 31 President Truman gave the go-ahead for development of the super hydrogen bomb that the United States may defend itself "against any possible aggressor."

"I have directed the Atomic Energy Commission to continue its work on all forms of atomic weapons, including the so-called hydrogen or super-bomb," the (Continued on Page Two)

Coast Guard Auxiliary Memorial Program

Coast Guard Auxiliary members from Palatka, Deland, Orlando and other Central Florida ports will converge on Sanford tomorrow when the local flotilla will play host to visitors at a rendezvous Saturday and Sunday.

The group will convene Saturday afternoon and evening at the Sanford Boat Works where John Cameron and M. L. Hatorn will give a chicken barbecue.

On Sunday Comdr. L. A. Brumley of the Sanford Coast Guard Auxiliary will be in charge of a corn roast at noon.

Visiting guardsmen will be invited to take their craft out on Lake Monroe for a practice problem in search and sea rescue in the afternoon.

MacArthur Policy Is Hit Vehemently By Army Chief Of Staff At Senate Hearing

WASHINGTON, May 25—(AP)—General J. Lawton Collins said today "we are quite convinced" that Russians are flying some of the Communist planes in Korea.

Collins, Army Chief of Staff, also said that equipment captured from the Chinese Reds is "mostly Russian."

Collins was testifying at the Senate inquiry into foreign policy and the dismissal of General Douglas MacArthur.

He told the Senators "I did object in the decision to relieve MacArthur of the Far Eastern command."

And, he said he felt that MacArthur's proposed Korean strategy "would not be worth the increased risk of getting us now into a major war." This was the same argument made by Secretary of Defense Marshall and General Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who were earlier witnesses in the hearings.

In a general discussion of the situation as to air war, Collins said "The Russian air has never come down below this river up here in my strength."

He was using a map and the river was not immediately identified in the stenographic transcript. Presumably it was the Yalu, the river forming the boundary between Korea and Manchuria.

Then Collins said his use of the word "Russian" was a slip of the tongue "because they have not been in at all."

He added:

"But the Chinese air, some of which we are quite convinced is flown by Russians is what I am talking about."

Collins said the Senators generally on the Korean situation as of this time, Collins said the Allies have moved to the counter-offensive and the Red Chinese "are in a complete retreat along the front."

Collins added that he personally (Continued on Page Eight)

Pricing Problems To Be Explained By OPS Experts

Pricing problems will be explained to local business men by two government experts from the Jacksonville branch of the Office of Price Administration today in a businessmen's clinic Monday at the Court House II James Gut, president of the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, announced today.

The businessmen's clinic is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and is part of a program whereby business executives throughout the county are being afforded an opportunity to unravel knotty price problems said Mr. Gut.

"The latest government regulations will be explained and both of the sessions," he declared, "it is hoped that everyone interested will attend either one or two."

Discussions will be held separately concerning consumer goods and services and on food. W. F. Cox of the OPS's food section will conduct a "clinic" at 3:30 P. M. in the county courtroom. Arthur Hack will lead the evening session starting at 7:30 o'clock in regard to consumer goods and services.

GRAY RESIGNS
The resignation of H. B. Gray as superintendent of county roads was accepted yesterday morning by the County Commission and J. P. Davis, employee of the County Road Department, was appointed in his place.

In making the appointment, it was requested that Mr. Gray be retained as manager of the county road office as well as bookkeeper. Mr. Gray has been recovering from a recent illness.

The Commission met in private discussion at 9:30 o'clock, and at 11:00 o'clock opened the meeting to the public.
