NATION IN BRIEF

Two Former Congressmen May Be Indicted In Scandal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Based on 17 days of questioning of South Korean rice dealer Tungnan Park, the Justice Department will seek indictments of two former congressmen — Otto Passman, D-La., and William Mitchell, R-Ohio, the Washington Post reported today.

In a dispatch from Seoul, the Post quoted U.S. officials as saying Park also implicated former Reps. Edwin Edwards, now governor of Louisiana, and Cornelius Gallagher, D-N.J., in connection with the South Korean influence-buying operation on Capitol Hill.

But neither Edwards nor Gallagher, who both left Congress in 1972, is likely to be indicted because of the statute of limitations, the newspaper said.

Kidnapped Child Released

NEW YORK (UPI) — The 11-year-old daughter of award-winning fashion designer Calvin Klein was kidnapped Friday, but was released unharmed when her father paid a $100,000 ransom.

The FBI and New York City police said they were looking for three persons in the abduction of Marc Klein. The kidnapping occurred as the girl was on her way to school Friday morning and police said she was held for nine hours at an upper East Side apartment.

Influenza Deaths At 1,100

ATLANTA (UPI) — The national Center for Disease Control said Friday the death toll from a month-long epidemic of influenza has passed the 1,100 mark, with outbreaks in 37 states, including Georgia and South Carolina among the hardest hit.

For the week ending Jan. 27, there were 886 deaths attributed to pneumonia and influenza in 122 of the nation's major cities, with 344 of those fatalities blamed on the current epidemic. In the three previous weeks, the number of deaths above the so-called "epidemic threshold" and attributed to the outbreak amounted to 281, for a total of 1,165.

Marston Firing Probed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — What began as an in-house investigation of published "insinuations" that firing of U.S. Attorney David Marston involved a "cover-up" has become part of a full-scale criminal investigation, UPI has learned.

The U.S. attorney's office in Philadelphia is supervising the investigation and the FBI is asking the questions.

The investigation is known to center now on whether Rep. Joshua Ellberg, D-Pa., knew he was "investigative" in firing Marston, then the U.S. attorney in Philadelphia, when Ellberg urged President Carter to "expedite" the Republican prosecutor's replacement.

Price-Fixers Jailed, Fined

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — A federal judge imposed jail sentences on 11 current or former corporate executives Friday and slapped them and their companies with fines totaling nearly $900,000 in a price-fixing case.

One trial attorney said the sentences handed down by U.S. District Judge M. Joseph Blumenfeld were among the harshest ever imposed in an antitrust suit.

The case dealt with pricefixing over a 14-year period in the electrical wire industry.

"I've always loved to work with my hands. I worked with them all my life except when I became a cop, and you get tired of that," he said.

"I was in the three of making a suit of armor when we got divorced," he said.

"I ended them with stainless steel so they looked like they were forged."

Fund Drive Underway For Pfeil Family

A fundraising fund drive to aid the family of slain Sen. George Pfeil has been launched by the Memorial Club of Central Florida. The club, which meets at the Quality Inn North, 604 and 14th, is being joined in the effort by most of the 18 Memorial Clubs in Division 6, according to committee chairman Jerry Schneider.

Each club is making its own plans to aid the George Pfeil Memorial Fund, Schneider said, but the Memorial Club of Central Florida has set up the memorial fund in several area locations. Donations may be sent to the George Pfeil Memorial Fund, P.O. Box 24, when he was unfortunately killed in a robbery in progress at the Longwood Village pharmacy. His assassination, which was planned to take place on Feb. 1, 1974, has not yet been explained.

The fund-raising drive is a public effort to raise money for the Pfeil family. The fund-raising drive is a public effort to raise money for the Pfeil family.

13 Killed In Protests

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — National Guard troops patrolled Granada and Rivas today to guard against guerrilla attacks which killed 13 persons.

The National Guard said three guerrillas were killed in the fighting that started with the strikers occupying in front of the National Palace.

Witnesses said four groups of Nicaraguan women marched through the streets of Managua today, carrying signs and banners, and protesting against the regime of President Anastasio Somoza and in support of a spreading 15-day general strike against the slaying of a newspaper publisher opponent of Somoza.

Army troops waded into the streets in one group, falling at the women with the help of their rifles and with clubs, and used them scurrying for cover.

The witnesses said several women were beaten but there were no reports of deaths or serious injuries.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Vietnam Defies Order To Expel U.N. Ambassador

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Vietnam has defied a U.S. order expelling U.N. Ambassador Diethrich as an alleged Communist spy and says the unprecedented move has harmed the normalization of relations between the two countries.

Hanoi's U.N. Mission said Friday the Washington order was "totally unacceptable and constitutes a serious offense" against Vietnam, which only last September became the 149th and latest member of the United Nations.

State Department spokesman John Tattner announced the expulsion order, saying the U.S. government believes the ambassador "has violated the privileges of U.N. residence and has engaged in activities not consistent with his mission."

Edmonton, Alberta (UPI) — Scientists protected by heavy lead shielding today are flying a radioactive chunk of a fallen Soviet satellite from a frozen lake to a laboratory for tests to see if it was part of the satellite's nuclear core.

Authorities Friday postponed the recovery operation for one day because special tools for handling the brick-sized fragment were not ready.

London (UPI) — Police in 11 English counties are hunting a bogus doctor who visits elderly women, gives them sleeping pills and then makes off with their savings.

The middle-aged man who carefully researches his victims by visiting local shops, health centers and post offices, is wanted on more than 50 counts of fraud, burglary and administering drugs.

Washington (UPI) — The Soviet Union concluded a week of furious grain buying from the United States with wheat and corn purchases totaling 1.14 million metric tons, the Agriculture Department disclosed.

The new sales announced Friday brought the total Soviet purchases in four separate government announcements this week to 2.6 million metric tons of corn and wheat. For the current season, the Soviets have now bought at least 9.4 million metric tons.

Los Angeles (UPI) — Entertainer Sammy Davis Jr. has been hospitalized at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center with a severe case of the Russian flu.

A spokesman said Davis became ill earlier this week in Las Vegas, Nev., where he was winding up a two-week engagement at Caesars Palace. Frank Sinatra filled in Monday for him.

Davis was expected to be in the hospitalized for about three days, a spokesman said.

Macon, Ga. (UPI) — Members of the Allman Brothers Band, which split up about 18 months ago, have been talking about recording again, record company executive Phil Walden says.

Walden, the president of Capricorn Records, said Friday he met recently in Florida with former band members Gregg Allman and Dicky Betts to discuss a new record and a road trip.

Washington (UPI) — Robert McCloskey, a veteran of 30 years in the State Department who served as Henry Kissinger's spokesman during the Nixon administration, will be nominated by President Carter to serve as ambassador to Greece.

The White House announcement Friday said McCloskey would replace Jack Kubisch, who has resigned.

McCloskey currently is U.S. ambassador to The Netherlands. He served as Kissinger's spokesman at the State Department from 1969 until 1973 when he was named ambassador to Cyprus.

Sadat-Carter: A Tough-Talk Get-Together

TRUMBURG, Md. (UPI) — President Carter and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat held a 12-hour session at the isolated Camp David presidential retreat today, far from the war-torn region that prompted their summit meeting.

The two men entered their weekend talks amid indications Egypt will continue to press its Palestinian self-determination.

The private discussions at Camp David, high in Maryland's Catoctin Mountains, were "designed to regulate the momentum that has already been established."

An Egyptian official said Sadat expects the meeting to be "a test of American sincerity ... We expect Carter to use his influence and knock some sense into the heads of the Israelis."

But an American official said the president "hopes to knock a little bit of sense into both sides."

An Israeli diplomat said his nation was hoping Carter would "make Sadat understand that he has to stop dictating terms to Israel and start the real negotiations."

An American official said Carter was telling Sadat that "peace can't be declared. It must be negotiated, and that the Egyptians must understand that (Prime Minister Menachem) Begin's plan for 'self-rule' in the West Bank and Gaza was a responsive gesture that deserves serious consideration by the Egyptians."

Sadat and Carter, and their wives Jillian and Rosalynn, arrived by helicopter at Camp David Friday night in 16-degree weather, with about a foot of snow covering the forested compound. Carter and his guest walked side-by-side about a quarter mile from the helicopter pad to the cabin inside the compound, while their wives rode by car.

Top aides were to join the pair later, including Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and National Security assistant Zbigniew Brzezinski.

"We want to create a new Middle East where all nations, including the Palestinians, live together in harmony and fraternity."

"We will, we shall overcome."

Public diplomacy of recent months clearly was in abeyance with "road" by the forested retreat blocked off and news of talks filtering out only from the White House, 60 miles away.

Despite the March 26, it was evident from the moment Sadat stepped off his plane from Sherwood that public disagreements on Middle East peace would be undiminished in private talks.

Peace efforts are at a "historic and crucial crossroad," Sadat said at an abbreviated welcoming ceremony on the White House lawn Friday. But self-determination for the Palestinians remained essential in any peace accord, said the Egyptian, nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize for his tireless peace overture to Israel in November.

The role of the Palestinians — now living on Arab territory occupied by Israel — is one of more concerns the favored Egyptian leader said. Sadat said he had a long talk with Begin in the West Bank and Gaza was a responsive gesture that deserves serious consideration by the Egyptians.

Seminole: All Ready For Boom

The words of Jim Daniels, head of the Seminole County Industrial Authority (SCIDA), in explaining the allure of our area for new industry while reporting that location here of a new industry will be announced within several days.

"We like the area, because it is ready for a boom. I think the greater Orlando area is moving this way; it's less congested here. Sanford is a clean city and has good streets and services. It has everything a developer would look for."

The words of Monroe Marks, president of Coronado Inc. of Miami, which has purchased 160 lots in Sanford and Sanford South subdivision in Sanford for $738,000. Purpose: to build, according to Mr. Marks, "the first major single-family development in Sanford and north Seminole County in the last four years."

Amen! We echo the enthusiasm expressed by Messrs. Daniels and Marks. It is in theme we have sounded for a long time, while imploring the leaders of our community to step forward, speak out and act fearlessly when an industry expression of interest in becoming a neighbor.

The observations of the two gentlemen were made during the past week and both are just a couple of further signs that our area is ready to take off and reach its potential for growth.

We must do all we can now not to lose the momentum, but, instead, to exploit it and continue moving forward.

While these new plans and projects were being announced, business-oriented plans also were instituted by other agencies in our area.

The Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, for example, is kicking off a three-day annual membership drive on Thursday.

And the Sanford Merchants Association, formerly the Downtown Business Association, is mapping a unique promotion with "motivation" as its theme.

That's precisely what we need now. More motivation, motivation that will lead to action and help us finally to reach that elusive potential here in Seminole County.

All this activity follows on the heels of the plans announced at the end of last year for a $10 million planned unit development that will bring 1,000 new residents to the city of Lake Mary. And then there is the renewed development of the 1,450-acre Greenwood Lake development near Lake Mary.

Meanwhile, back at the Seminole County Commission, commissioners have approved the final draft of their legislative package calling for authority to exercise more control over the operation of SCOPA (Seminole County Port Authority).

The object is to audit the port operations, as a prior step to a possible eventual merger of SCOPA with SCIDA. Such a merger is imperative, indeed, essential. And the sooner the better.

Only with such an arrangement can the county offer a united, unified face and effort to seek out and entice industry to our shores.

So 1979 looks like the year we have awaited. It looks like the year Seminole County takes its place in the industrial life of the state of Florida and the nation.

It looks like the year of growth and expansion. It can't come too quickly.

The City of Water Springs is apparently ready for a new city charter. The city council has approved a new charter, which will be submitted to the voters for their approval.

The city charter is not quite six years old. It was adopted in June, 1973 and at that time the portion of the charter which changed the city's name was given the most attention.

The community had been known as the Village of North Orlando since its incorporation in 1928. The people were confused, thinking that the name meant visitors to the area to believe the village was in Orange County, just north of Orlando.

The 1973 charter was submitted to the Seminole County Legislative Committee and subsequently approved by the voters, before becoming a city was permitted. After the charter was adopted, a motion was made that permitted the city council to include the public and not in executive session, in violation of the sunshine law. The voters approved repeal of that section a few months after replacing the charter.

Everytime I read the charter, I find more loopholes," said Beas, adding that he would like the new charter to include a motion concerning the planning and zoning board.

Councilman John Daniels urged that information be gained from Altamonte Springs and Orlando as how these two cities have worked on charter study.

Seminole Supervisor of Elections Camilla Bruce has been spending her Saturdays and Sundays, after church, calling voters whose names had been on the voter rolls, but whose voter registration cards were returned to her office, marked unobtainable.

ANGLE-WALTERS

Indebted But Still A Success

WASHINGTON — The metropolitan area that occurred within the Republican party in the late 1960s — and the fundamental change that didn't occur within the Democratic party in the mid-1970s — continues to have a profound effect on contemporary American politics.

When Sen. Barry M. Goldwater of Arizona captured the Republican presidential nomination in 1964, the conservative wing of the GOP reeled in surprise. "Eastern establishment" in the battle for control of the national party.

Essentially the same phenomenon occurred within the Democratic party in 1972. When Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota won the presidential nomination, liberals gained the upper hand over conservatives — at least temporarily — in the contest for control of the national party.

Both Goldwater and McGovern were, of course, overwhelmingly defeated in the national election for president, confirming the political status quo in this country's electoral process — but not without leaving a lasting legacy.

Although voters want moderate candidates and policies, the most enthusiastic candidates, contributors and campaign workers in both parties always have been ideologically uncompromising, issue-oriented activists — liberal Democrats and conservative Republicans.

But the same-old-same-old coalition that had imperiled the Democratic party in 1964 and 1972 — business professionals and other white-collar workers — offered little opposition before capitulating these conservative activists.

To this day, the conservatives dominate the party.

On the Democratic side, however, the liberal majority was short-lived. Unlike the business community within the GOP, the latter unions, their members and other blue-collar workers refused to abandon the struggle with the ideological parties. As a result, the party was headed back to the middle of the political road, where it stands today.

That background is of particular importance because it means the next few years will see the Republicans and Democrats will make public their end-of-year 1977 financial reports.

A cursory examination of those reports and the 1978 budgets of parties would suggest that the Democrats are in a much better position than the Republicans are as wealthy they can begin paying dividends.

Last year, for example, the Democratic National Committee (DNC) had a record $1.5 million in surplus, while the Republican National Committee (RNC) collected more than $10 million.

The RNC this year has a $14 million budget, while the DNC will be happy to raise half that amount — and the Democratic side has about $5 million in long-overdue debts to repay, some of them state and telephone bills dating back to the 1978 presidential campaign.

"This year, he pledged, "there will be a much closer allegiance from the White House toward the Democratic National Committee."

Some Democrats have criticized the White House for its seeming aloofness and the lack of inclination on the part of the president to guide the nitty gritty of getting party members elected.

Carter has kept his political appearances to a minimum, except for a few fund raisers and a little personal campaigning.

Starting this year, he has decided to jump into the fray, starting off with a major campaign swing to New England next weekend. Democratic senators running for reelection make no bones about the fact that they want — and expect — more help from him. Whether they want to ride his coattails remains to be seen.

Carter has served notice that he will be more available on the political circuit in addition to his travels Feb. 17-18 to Providence, R.I., Bangor, Maine, and Nashua, N.H., which will be heavily focused on gathering political strength, by will be making another regional swing to the Southwest in March, with more appearances later.

Despite his enthusiasm for helping Democrats, there are some observers who believe that between financial transactions of former budget director Bert Lance and the controversial firing of U.S. Attorney David Marston of Philadelphia, Carter has lost his halo.

THE NEW VIEW — Next, college officials were notified that they had violated federal law and were summoned to appear at an HEW administrative hearing in Denver, 700 miles away.

HEW has also threatened to cut off federal student loans, aggregating some $280,000 (although nearly half of that amount involves only federal guarantees of private bank loans).

THE WORKSHOP — The workshop, to be held at the Kathleen Anderson Comprehensive Work Center, will provide evaluation, job training, job placement — and employment — for students who are physically or otherwise handicapped, or who have become socially handicapped due to not working because of lack of training or job placement opportunities.

Dr. Babey is heading the group which will research the incorporation of handicapped students into the regular curriculum, and will be working with the state to develop a program to help them.

"We can serve students in our schools until they are 21 years old, and then they have nowhere to go for help," Mrs. Wainwright remarked recently. "We could let some of them go to the sheltered workshop in Orlando, but we have no transportation to get them there each year."

"This is a community agency and a community responsibility. Although we will be reviewing once we get started, from products we would create at the workshop, this would never create a self-supporting industry. It would still need community support."

People need to equate the decrease in expenditures of public funds for welfare and other aids which would result from our employing these people at the workshop," Mrs. Wainwright said.

College Versus The HEW

Hillside College in southern Michigan may be small, but it has stopped the federal education juggernaut dead in its tracks.

With only 1,850 students (and a lot of friends who share its views), Hillside has, for all its 124 years, exemplified the highest ideals of liberal arts education. Founded two decades before Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation, Hillside has always been open to blacks as well as whites (and to all races, for that matter). Its enrollment is nearly evenly divided between men and women.

Hillside encourages its students to be independent, inquisitive, individualistic. When it comes to its own independence, Hillside practices what it preaches. It has never taken a nickel of government money.

All of this has made the little college a sort of Typhoid Mary around the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Washington, D.C., where battalions of social engineers spend all their working hours devising new ways to make schools and colleges conform to their view of what education should be (starting with federal control).

FEDERAL MONEY — For several years, the HEW bureaucrats have been trying to find a way to get Hillside to buckle under to its rules and regulations. The nation's largest universities have to accept federal control because they accept federal money. Hillside, on the other hand, has always refused to accept federal money.

WASHINGTON WINDOW

Carter And Politics

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON — President Carter has made the Democratic nomination for 1979. When Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota won the presidential nomination, liberals gained the upper hand over conservatives — at least temporarily — in the contest for control of the national party.

Essentially the same phenomenon occurred within the Democratic party in 1972. When Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota won the presidential nomination, liberals gained the upper hand over conservatives — at least temporarily — in the contest for control of the national party.

Both Goldwater and McGovern were, of course, overwhelmingly defeated in the national election for president, confirming the political status quo in this country's electoral process — but not without leaving a lasting legacy.

Although voters want moderate candidates and policies, the most enthusiastic candidates, contributors and campaign workers in both parties always have been ideologically uncompromising, issue-oriented activists — liberal Democrats and conservative Republicans.

But the same-old-same-old coalition that had imperiled the Democratic party in 1964 and 1972 — business professionals and other white-collar workers — offered little opposition before capitulating these conservative activists.

To this day, the conservatives dominate the party.

On the Democratic side, however, the liberal majority was short-lived. Unlike the business community within the GOP, the latter unions, their members and other blue-collar workers refused to abandon the struggle with the ideological parties. As a result, the party was headed back to the middle of the political road, where it stands today.

That background is of particular importance because it means the next few years will see the Republicans and Democrats will make public their end-of-year 1977 financial reports.

A cursory examination of those reports and the 1978 budgets of parties would suggest that the Democrats are in a much better position than the Republicans are as wealthy they can begin paying dividends.

Last year, for example, the Democratic National Committee (DNC) had a record $1.5 million in surplus, while the Republican National Committee (RNC) collected more than $10 million.

The RNC this year has a $14 million budget, while the DNC will be happy to raise half that amount — and the Democratic side has about $5 million in long-overdue debts to repay, some of them state and telephone bills dating back to the 1978 presidential campaign.

"This year, he pledged, "there will be a much closer allegiance from the White House toward the Democratic National Committee."

Some Democrats have criticized the White House for its seeming aloofness and the lack of inclination on the part of the president to guide the nitty gritty of getting party members elected.

Carter has kept his political appearances to a minimum, except for a few fund raisers and a little personal campaigning.

Starting this year, he has decided to jump into the fray, starting off with a major campaign swing to New England next weekend. Democratic senators running for reelection make no bones about the fact that they want — and expect — more help from him. Whether they want to ride his coattails remains to be seen.

Carter has served notice that he will be more available on the political circuit in addition to his travels Feb. 17-18 to Providence, R.I., Bangor, Maine, and Nashua, N.H., which will be heavily focused on gathering political strength, by will be making another regional swing to the Southwest in March, with more appearances later.

Despite his enthusiasm for helping Democrats, there are some observers who believe that between financial transactions of former budget director Bert Lance and the controversial firing of U.S. Attorney David Marston of Philadelphia, Carter has lost his halo.

THE NEW VIEW — Next, college officials were notified that they had violated federal law and were summoned to appear at an HEW administrative hearing in Denver, 700 miles away.

HEW has also threatened to cut off federal student loans, aggregating some $280,000 (although nearly half of that amount involves only federal guarantees of private bank loans).

THE WORKSHOP — The workshop, to be held at the Kathleen Anderson Comprehensive Work Center, will provide evaluation, job training, job placement — and employment — for students who are physically or otherwise handicapped, or who have become socially handicapped due to not working because of lack of training or job placement opportunities.

Dr. Babey is heading the group which will research the incorporation of handicapped students into the regular curriculum, and will be working with the state to develop a program to help them.

"We can serve students in our schools until they are 21 years old, and then they have nowhere to go for help," Mrs. Wainwright remarked recently. "We could let some of them go to the sheltered workshop in Orlando, but we have no transportation to get them there each year."

"This is a community agency and a community responsibility. Although we will be reviewing once we get started, from products we would create at the workshop, this would never create a self-supporting industry. It would still need community support."

People need to equate the decrease in expenditures of public funds for welfare and other aids which would result from our employing these people at the workshop," Mrs. Wainwright said.

SEMINOLE SCENE

Time To Commend Commissioners

The wheels of government often turn slowly and it is seldom that officials are commended for taking their time in making a final decision on a given issue.

However, such a time is at hand in Seminole County. The county commission's legislative package included a proposal that would give the commission tighter control of the Seminole County Port Authority (SCOPA).

The special act requested by the commission would amend Florida law that forbids the state to name its representatives to the county commission, but to name its representatives to the county commission.

Specifically, the amendment would give the commission:

- Line-item approval of the port authority's budget.
- Power to ratify all contracts and legal agreements entered into by the port authority.
- Power to control all debt and financial obligations of the port authority.
- Authority to conduct in depth management and financial audits of the port authority.

The commission's action was taken in response to the recommendations of an ad-hoc committee established to study the operation of SCOPA and the Seminole County Industrial Development Authority (SCIDA).

That committee recommended the merger of the two authorities, placing the operation of the port under the wing of county government.

To accomplish that goal, legislation amending the law that established the port would be needed. Though the commission may make such a recommendation at next year's meetings of the legislative delegation, they opted to seek only an amendment this year.

Jeff Eickbarger, director of the Office of Management Analysis and Evaluation and his staff drew up an outline of their options the commission might have taken on the merger issue.

Those options included:

- Leaving the two authorities intact as they presently operate.
- Merging the two authorities under one authority.
- Merging the two authorities under one authority, but with the effect of creating a separate authority to handle the operation of the port and industrial development.

A similar proposal would have merged the two authorities under control of the county government. Again, such a move would have the effect of creating a separate authority to handle the operation of the port and industrial development.

"The option which keeps the two authorities separate entities, but gives control of its financial operations to the commission."

By opting for the latter, the commission has decided to take action which can be

Deltona Open Next Stop For Florida PGA

The annual Deltona Open Golf Tournament will be staged at the Deltona Country Club on Feb. 9-12. It is "Ladies First" this year as co-sponsors Pat Larson and Lillian Maxwell are continuing the Mini Tournament inaugurated in 1975 by Kay Jones and Betty Knagmark. Past years have proven this to be a valuable adjunct to the charitable efforts of the Deltona Open.

This year's events include a "Team Driving Party" Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the country club and the Florida Scrabble and Luncheon on Thursday, starting with coffee at 8:45 a.m.

Seminole Community sponsoring lady golfers in the "Ladies First" include Warren A. Patrick, Collins Florist.

In the past the Central Florida Golf Association received the entire proceeds from the Deltona Open. This year Seminoles Memorial Hospital was able to install monitoring equipment in two operating rooms. The Seminoles Youth Ranch and the Seminoles Youth Deputy Program have also been recipients.

A Scholarship Loan Fund has been established and is being added to each year until a point is reached whereby loans will be made from earned interest and the principal will not be diminished. When available, Seminoles County youth will be able to participate in these loans.

Volunteer County sponsors of the "Ladies First" include Callahan Water's Home Right, Hardware Supply Co., Dr. E.H. White, Farm Insurance Agency, Homeowners Protective, Ellen's Dress Shop, P.O.'s Chris Prots, Mrs. S. Interior Design Studio, Dr. Rolf Iverson, Dr. Jerry Robinson, Deltona Corporation Realty, Jim Mathison, Diane Ceramica, Southern Bank of Deltona, Church McCarty, Dr. George Beckman, and Tom Tschicklmann. Also Robert and Gilman, Ben Peters of

Others interested in being a sponsor at $5 may call the country club.

SCC Hosts A Big One

Seminole Community College of Jacksonville comes to Sanford for a 7:30 game which will carry mark the team with the lead track on a top-swinging in the upcoming state tournament, March 1-3 at Deltona's Statton University. SCC is 4-2 in division while

Several other teams are close on the heels of the twice-banished leaders. Lake City, Central Florida and Daytona Beach have three losses each and Valencia still has an outside shot at making the tourney with a 3-4 division mark.

Tonight's game in Sanford features the two top teams in Division 2. Florida Junior

Low-Key Green Up By One Shot

HONOLULU (UPI) — Short Green is going to have difficulty convincing people he's not playing competitive golf. Even after clinching a 6-2 under-par 65 Friday to take the halfway lead by a stroke over Bob Wyman in the 1978 U.S. Open championship, he played his 138 two-round total. "I didn't play fantastic," Green said of his round, which included an eagle, six birdies and a pair of bogeys. "I made some 6-and-6 putts that hit the lips of the cups and fell in, and they didn't have it. "Frankly, my putting has been spotty, but some crucial ones have been falling in."

Despite his low-key approach, he admitted, "I like my position. I can't think of a better place to be."

Green, a consistently high money winner on the PGA Tour the last five years, moved ahead of Wyman, who checked in with a 69 Friday to go with his previous 67.

Bill Kratsert moved into contention at 137 with Gene Littler, the first-round leader with a 68, Eddie Pearce and George Burns were another point back.

Littler and John Schneider, who had an evening 68, both ran into problems at the 7,234-yard Waialae Country Club's par 4, 61-yard fifth hole.

They both triple-bogeyed the hole and it cost them a few notches in the standings. Both

SCC Tennis Just Seems To Get Better, But So Does Opposition

Larry Castle just doesn't have that lean and hungry look. Not until his Seminole Community College tennis team walks onto the court for a match.

The Raiders' coach has the distinction of not having lost a regular season match to a junior college team in two years. The streak extends over 28 matches.

Seminole plays an aggressive schedule, with plenty of opposition against top schools, so the Raiders' overall record isn't quite as impressive. Of course, 2-4 is nothing to sneeze at. Castle's first year at SCC produced a 2-4 record.

Additionally, SCC has finished second in the state tourney each of the last two years in Miami-Dade South. Last year's trip to the national tournament produced a seventh place finish.

"It's hard to say how good we will be this year, but I don't think we will be any worse than last year," said Castle the other afternoon before practice. "The competition here's getting better, so it is really tough to stay on top."

This year's version of Raider tennis debuts Tuesday with a 1:30 p.m. home match against Brevard. The 31-match state also includes dates against opponents in four-year teams like University of Kentucky, University of Indiana, Ohio State, Miami of Ohio, University of Mississippi, Central Michigan, North Carolina, Flagler College, Western Kentucky and Middle Tennessee State.

There will be only one familiar face on this year's team — Cain Davis, who was injured most of last year. Davis plays No. 3 on this year's squad. The sophomore from Melbourne, Australia, is big and has all the state, according to Castle.

No. 1 is still up for grabs, but Mark Emery appears to have the inside track. He is from Ormond Beach, and as a top-ranking junior in Florida, he is hailed as potentially the best player in Seminole's history. In exhibition matches, Emery has beaten No. 1 players from Rollins and Flagler.

Also a strong candidate for No. 1, but temporarily relegated to No. 2 is Robert Hale, of Toronto, Canada. He is in Walter Crane, also of Toronto. A lefty from Dundee, Scotland, Philip Ritchie, plays No. 5 with Toronto's Chris Little handling No. 6. Man 7 is David McCook, star off last year's Seminole High squad.

Walton Vs. Barry Sunday

Through games of last Sunday, Walton was averaging 21.1 points and 13.1 rebounds per game; Gilmore 22.4 and 13.3; and Karum, who had played about 28 less games than the two West centers, was averaging 25.3 points and 12.1 rebounds.

The West will start Golden State's Rich Barry (23.8) and Portland's Maurice Lucas (25.4) at forward and Denver's David Thompson (25.3) and Phoenix's Paul Westphal (25.3) at guard.

East Coach Bill Cunningham of Philadelphia is expected to use Doug Collins (19.5), and Kenton's guard in place of Maravich who was injured the past Tuesday and expected to be out about a week. There was an outside chance that Maravich, who is averaging over 26 points per game, could see limited action.

The other East starters are Philadelphia's Julius Erving (26.9) and San Antonio's Larry Kenon (26.4) at forwards, Boston's Dave Cowens (19.1 points, 11.7 rebounds) at center and San Antonio's George Gervin (27.8) at the other guard.

"It figures to be a high-scoring game because the players are all so good," said Ramsey. "But, you have to have some kind of organization. I don't want them going one-on-one all day and I'm sure Billy doesn't want that either."

Cunningham said he has no doubt that both squads should be able to play as a unit. "All of these all-star players have enough pride to want to do whatever is necessary to win."

Jabbar, Maravich Miss NBA Star Game

In last year's NBA all-star game, played in Milwaukee, the most valuable player award after a 30-point performance, but the West won the game, 126-118.

Thompson and Westphal are the only West starters who also started a year ago. Erving, Maravich and Collins were never let that hinder his play.

There are three other 6-9 all-stars, Lucas and Denver's Bobby Jones for the West and Kaman for the East. The two shortest men in the game, both 6-3, will be Lionel Hollins (15.3) of Portland and Randy Smith (24.3) of Buffalo.

Ramsey has indicated that he'll insert Hollins into the lineup as early as possible because he wants the smooth-handling Trail Blazers' guard to run the West offense.

"It helps with your organization to have as many of your own players in the lineup at one time as you can," said Ramsey. "I think that gives us an advantage. You don't have much opportunity to coach a group of all-stars. After all, we have only one practice session (Saturday afternoon)."

Only rookie playing in Sunday's game will be Phoenix's Walter Davis who played on last year's NCAA runner-up team at North Carolina. Davis, who was known more for his defensive play at North Carolina.

"We didn't need to score at Carolina," he said. "We usually had all five starters in double figures and that was our style."

Lyman Nabs 12th In Row

Next came up with a big play, the three-pointer putting the Gryllons up by two points with 1:05 left in the game. Lyman is 12-0 overall.

Lyman is pointing toward the district tournament, which will be held at Lyman Feb. 25-26. Orlando, Fla. and ranked No. 8 among Class AAA teams in the state, utilized an effective zone defense which held Howard guards to less than 10 shots. Rick Nash was the only player for the Lions in double figures, he scored 12, usually high-scoring ace Gary Ward finished with nine points.

It was a layup by Tony Herr in the closing seconds which handed Lake Howell defeat. Stan Adams passed the Hawks to defeat with 25 points.

Frank Eldson scored 16 points in Trinity's victory, 65 fourth in 15 starts.

Softball Meeting Monday

The program is divided into leagues — ages 8-12 and 13-15. Birthdate deadline is Sept. 1, and must be 9 years of age before the date named on the 16 or on before the same date.

League Leagues (8-12) will play on Tuesdays and Thursdays with try-outs being held March 28. League play begins April 10. Junior League (13-15) will play on Mondays and Wednesdays with try-outs being held April 13 and league play starting May 1. All games and try-outs will be held at Fort Mellon softball field.

Women's League To Meet

There will be an organizational meeting for women's softball Feb. 13 at 7 p.m. in the Youth Wing of the Sanford Civic Center.

This meeting will be to discuss the entry fee, length of the schedule, and deadline for entry. If your group is interested in putting a team into the league please try to make this meeting.

"I think that gives us an advantage. You don't have much opportunity to coach a group of all-stars. After all, we have only one practice session (Saturday afternoon)."

Lyman Hosts Track Meet On Feb. 11

The Central Florida YMCA 16-Y will host pre-season track meet will be held at Lyman High on Feb. 11.

The purpose of the meet will be to create an early season outdoor track competition, utilizing indoor distances. Area schools have been invited to attend, and a large turnout is expected.

OURSELVES

Her Job Is Protecting Consumer Finances

Stakes High: She Deals In Big Money

By MARILEN MCGIBBON
Special Writer

Linda Arnold is a bona fide lady over 27 employees. She heads the Central Florida office of State Comptroller Gerald Levin.

Linda Arnold is a gal who believes in getting things done. "Right now I'm trying to acquire myself in detail with our three departments: banking, insurance, securities, and finance, securities, and insurance," she says.

For an audition appointment and further information call (305)-941-7091 between 1:00 and 4:30 p.m. Costumes should be worn if used in an act.

Married for 20 years to Sheldon Arnold, and mother of two children, Mrs. Arnold is presently doing two things to forward her own interest in public affairs: she is teaching at the Central Florida Technical University in evening courses in political science, and she has just accepted a position as head of the Central Florida office of State Comptroller Gerald Levin.

"There are six areas under the Comptroller, divided more or less by population. This one provides help for the citizens of eight counties: Seminole, Orange, Osceola, Volusia, Brevard, Lake, Sumter, and Polk, she explains.

"I am still trying to formulate specific goals," Mrs. Arnold says. "But the end result is to serve people."

But what exactly does she do for the people?

For example, she is a member of the Women's Committee of the Florida Synagogue; served as 1977 chairman for the Synagogue's "Thank You" PTA Golf Club; is a member and community relations chairman for the Human Rights Advocacy Council, District VII; is a member of the Orange County Mental Health Association, Interfaith Dialogue Commission and League of Women Voters — among others.

Her religious activities are almost as extensive: she is a member of Congregation Oran Shalom; former editor-publisher of COB Bulletin; member of Hadassah; and former publicity chairman for the 1976 Israeli Expedition — among others.

And in her spare time there are bridge, golf and tennis. But her life seems focused on the same things she believes are important for her job in the Comptroller's office.

"I am still trying to formulate specific goals," Mrs. Arnold says. "But the end result is to serve people."

"Last year the Comptroller's office got back $164,884.83 for people," she says.

Charity Ball Coming Up... And Who Will Be Queen?

By DORIS DIETRICH
OURSELVES Editor

Hearts, sweethearts and charity will be the target of Cupid at the Annual Charity Valentine Ball Saturday night at the Sanford Civic Center under the auspices of the City Council of Beta Sigma Phi (BSP).

Strike up the band will begin promptly at 9 p.m. to the music by "Three More." The dress code is formal for the charity event with proceeds going to the Seminole Youth Ranch.

An anonymous donor will match funds raised by BSP for the ranch which will benefit doubly. Sheriff John Polk is the honorary ball king. Dr. Luis Perrez will serve as honorary ball chairman.

The tab for the valentine game is $10 per couple. And it's one of those B.Y.O.B. (bring your own bottle) balls. Set-ups will be available.

Reservations and tickets are being accepted through any BSP member or Marian Farella, 322-5688.

Expect beautiful belles on parade. Each of the seven BSP chapters in addition to City Council has chosen a Valentine Girl to present at the ball. And one will be queen to reign over festivities.

The Pedaling:

The riders ease their bikes to the starting line. Goggles and helmets are given last adjustments. All eyes are on the starter as trucks fence—heads are lowered waiting for the start. The flag drops and bikes and riders tear for it.

Motocross, a cross-country motorcycle race, has been popular in Europe and the United States for years, with riders pushing their bikes over a rough course of jumps, bumps and rugged terrain. The difference is that these riders are pedaling bicycles instead of high-powered motorcycles.

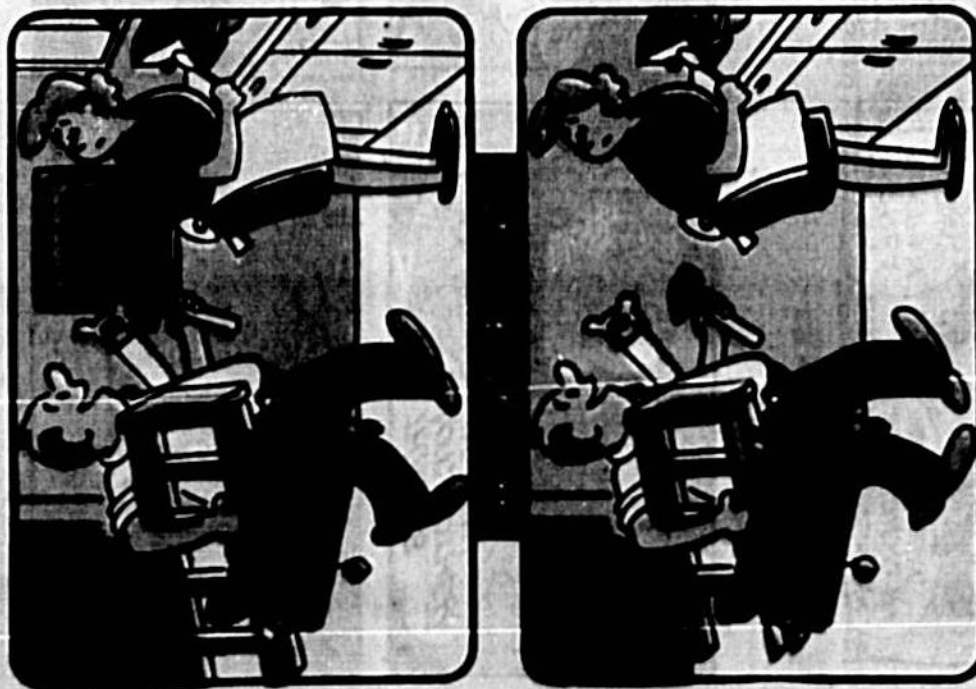

The races are divided into Beginner, Novice and Expert classes. They are held at 6 to 10 a.m. and are sponsored by the Central Florida BMX (Bicycle Motocross) Association. Races are held each Sunday at 2 p.m. on Dog Track Road, next to State City in Longwood. Registration starts at noon.

The races are run on a dirt track complete with jumps, banked turns, and wash board bumps just as in regular motocross. The riders are given the same safety instruction as in regular motocross, and are organized into a non-profit organization which holds local races. Local winners can go on to state, regional and national contests.

Safety is stressed and all contestants must wear helmets, long pants and long-sleeved shirts. Bikes must have proper tires, handlebars, and pedals. The bikes are like pedal bikes, but with the exception of a few levers from the younger riders there are very few real differences.

Numerous trophies and ribbons are awarded each week and competition is keenly felt among the youthful riders. When asked what he liked best about racing, Lee Gordon, 11, said: "Winning!"

CAN YOU TREAT YOUR EYES? These are at least six different ways to do it. The first is to wear glasses. The second is to wear contact lenses. The third is to wear sunglasses. The fourth is to wear eye drops. The fifth is to wear eye cream. The sixth is to wear eye patches.
