OVIEDO - Rep. Marvin Couch, R-Oyledo, will call together the first meeting of his Sentor Citizen's Task Force Thursday. Task force members will review proposed legislation to determine how it will affect central Florida

The group of professionals and sentors will meet at 5:30 p.m. at Lutheran Haven Retirement Center, 2041 W. State Road 426, Oviedo.

"Too often, government makes all these rules and laws without any regards as to how they will affect everyone." Couch remarked in a statement. "Often times the poor are the elderly are left out of the decision making process unless they are fortunate enough to have a lobbyist in Tallahassee. I hope to have a group of advisors residing in my district to help me understand their issues and concerns."

Anyone interested in serving should call Couch's aide, Bryan Beal at 365-7099.

Wekiva GeoPark group to meet

APOPKA - The Citizens for Wekiya Basin GeoPark will hold its monthly meeting Thursday at the Youth Camp Hall in Wekiwa Springs State Park, located on Wekiwa Springs Road west of Miami Springs Drive. The meeting begins at 7:30 p.m. The group was formerly tilled Citizens for Wekiwa Springs State Park, Ray Meyers, an entomologist with the firm Van Water and Rogers, will speak on the control of fire ants.

LAKE MARY - Unless you are interested in seeing young people having a good time celebrating the school spirit of Lake Mary High-School, you'd better avoid Greenway Boulevard this afternoon between 3:30 and 4:30.

The Lake Mary High Homecoming Parade will march down that road between Greenwood Lakes Middle School and Lake Mary High School.

Students, representing various groups, from the freshman class to the thesplans, from the Latin Club to the football team, have created hand-made floats of crepe paper and chicken wire. They've turned ordinary pickup trucks into works of art to transport parade participants along the route.

The potential king and queen and their court will don their finery for the parade in preparation for Friday night's festvities at the football game against Spruce Creek.

Caselano arrested in New Jersey

Police in Scabright, N.J., have arrested a suspect wanted for impersonating an Altamonte Springs police officer.

John Casciano, who is also known as John O'Brien, was taken into custody in New Jersey and is now in the Monmouth County Jail.

Caselano was arrested in Altamonte Springs on July 4, but failed to show for his court appearance after his arrest. According to Seminole County sheriff's department spokesman Ed McDonough, Caselano will be returned to Seminole County to face charges before Oct. 29.

More than murder

Confessed killer faces theft, sex, child abuse counts today

By SANDRA ELLIOTT

Herald Staff Writer SANFORD - A man indicted in the double murder of a Casselberry woman and her granddaughter will appear in court this afternoon to hear additional charges against

A Seminole County grand jury indicted Eddle James, 32, on two counts of first degree murder in the deaths of Elizabeth (Betty) Dick, 58, and her granddaughter. Toni Neuner, 8. In addition, the Jury Indicted the day laborer for kidnapping, attempted sexual battery, aggravated child abuse, and two counts of grand theft for taking jewerly and Dick's ear.

James, who was originally arrested on two murder charges, will appear in court this afternoon on the seven-count indictment. During his first court appearance last week. the public defender was appointed to represent dames.

Assistant state attorney Tom Hastings said the state will determine whether to seek the death penalty. The penalty options for conviction of first degree murder are death in the electric chair or life in prison.

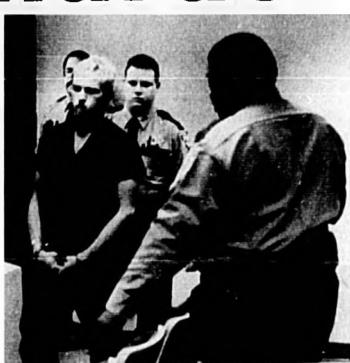

"Basically on any capital case, the death penalty always remains a possibility unless or until we waive it," Hastings explained:

Assistant state attorney Stewart Stone will handle the guilty phase of the prosecution. with Hastings conducting the penalty phase. if James is convicted.

Hastings said the case will be assigned to Judge Alan A. Dickey. After James is informed of the formal charges against him this afternoon, a date for him to enter a pleato the charges will be set.

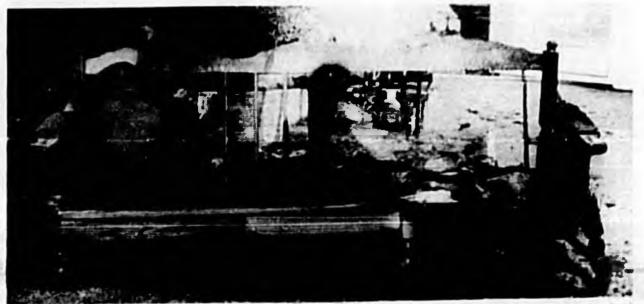

James, who rented a room in Dick's Cloisters Cove home, was the subject of a nationwide search following the murders. He was captured in California after being Contractor wins job after warning

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald Senior Stall Writer

SANFORD - During the three months after a Seminole County Expressway contractor was warned it would be blocked from seeking new state jobs due to delinquency, the company has been awarded a $5.7 million project to build another state road project.

White Construction Co. has the contract to build the three segments of the expressway north of Lake Jesup. On July 14, state transportation Secretary Ben Watts declared White had fallen behind their approved progress schedule by more than 15 percent on one segment. On July 30, Watts issued White two more notices, charging the company was behind schedule on the remaining projects.

Since then. White submitted a revised work schedule indicating they won't done until October 1994, a year late.

With each notice. White was given 10 days to appeal the decision and ask for a hearing officer to review the decision. Failing to request the appeal meant White would be suspended from See White, Page 7A

Officers search for kidnap suspect

MILTON - Authorities searched for a gunman who apparently just wanted a ride to Alabama when he kidnapped a 31-year-old Milton woman.

The woman, who was unharmed, told Santa Rosa County sheriff's deputies she was in a grocery store parking lot in this Florida Panhandle city Monday when the man forced her into her car at gunpoint.

He ordered her to drive him to Riverview, a small community near Brewton, Ala., where he got out, said Chief Deputy Wes Cummings.

"He didn't take anything or do anything to her," Cummings said. "Apparently he just needed a ride."
FBI agents and local authorities in Alabama and Florida had

'I saw bodies flying,' recounts survivor at trial

By JAMES MARTINEZ Associated Press Writer

TAMPA - Thomas Duckett doesn't remember what happened the night last year he vecred off a highway at more than 100 mph and killed five people standing beside their stranded church bus.

But those who survived will never forget. 'I heard a collision and I turned my head and I saw a fire and an explosion," Sharon Calder testified Tuesday. "I saw the bus lurch forward and I saw bodies flying through the air."

Prosecutors allege Duckett's blood-aicohol level was at twice the legal limit and that he was driving with a revoked license because of three previous drunken-driving convictions. Those actions, they say, make him a murderer. "Look at him. Look at his actions that night. Look at the decisions," Assistant State Attorney Ron Hanes said in his opening statement. "Look as to whether those acts show an ill will, a spite, a complete malice, not only for those victims but everyone else on that interstate." Those factors are necessary if jurors are to

Their bus blew a tire on Interstate 75 in south Hillsborough County. As they stood waiting for a mechanic to fix the flat in the late-night darkness, a speeding 1980 Datsun driven by Duckett careened off the road.

Duckett's car roared for more than 400 feet down the road's shoulder before slamming into the mechanic's truck. crashing into the bus and hitting the church group. There were no marks to indicate Duckett hit his brakes.

"Bodies, they were all over the place," said mechanic Victor D'Allesandro, who was working on the bus tire at the time.

Duckett, a 29-year-old Fort Myers resident, wiped tears from his eyes during the emotional testimony.

Joshua Malory, 15, Jason Thweatt, 14, Robert Marks, 17, and chaperone Joan George, 28, were killed. George's son, Jeffrey, died two days later. Eight others were injured.

The case was expected to last through this week.

Battery, domestic violence

 Lake Mary police arrested Chester Aldon Carpenter, 22. 5355 Orange Ave., Sanford at a theater on U.S. Highway 17-92 charging him with battery and disorderly intoxication. Carpenter allegedly grabbed his 17-year-old girlfriend by the hair and threw her against an outside wall. The theater manager said the man had been disorderly and disruptive inside the building. The girl refused medical treatment and pleaded with officers not to arrest Carpenter. She was given a domestic violence package and told to report to the state attorney's office.

Michele Louise Thomas, 23, and Peter Alexander Blunt, 33, 251 S-C-15. Lake Mary were arrested Monday after police went to their residence on a domestic violence complaint. Although there were signs of physical contact, both refused medical treatment.

 Gary Joe Zuyus, 27, 303 Plum Tree Ct., Sanford was charged with battery, domestic violence after he allegedly threw a plastic glass at his wife, cutting her chin. The incident began, according to police, when the two were arguing and the wife threw water at her husband.

A mother and her son, were charged with domestic battery after they fought over the son not attending school. Ramona Patricia Palsgraf, 39, 473 Whittingham Place, Lake Mary, and her juvenile son, were involved in a verbal and physical altercation after she attempted to contact his probation officer because the youth was not going to class. Palsgraf was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and the youth to the Juvenile Detention Center.

Traffic stop

Jock Singelton, 20, 1113 S. Orange Ave., Sanford was stopped around 2 a.m. Tuesday and charged with fleeing and eluding a police officer. A Sanford police officer attempted to stop a vehicle with an old out-of-state license tag in the area of 25th St. and Orange Ave. with reference to a burglary investigation. The suspect drove down several streets before stopping at 24th St. and Mellonville Ave. The police report stated the officer pursued the vehicle with lights and siren

Also arrested in the same incident was Cyntenious Lamar Haws, 19, 1503 W. 13th Place, Sanford who was charged with obstruction by disguise. When the police officer tried to run a computer check on the six occupants of the car. Haws gave the officer a different name and date of birth and claimed to have no identification on his person. When the report on the first name he gave came back as a possible wanted person. Haws admitted he lied and produced a paper from a school identifying him as Haws.

Petit theft

John Doe, 26, 885 Lake Como Drive, Lake Mary was arrested by Altamonte Springs after a store security guard in the Altamonte Mall reported the man had tried to take a pliers set without paying for it. The man gave the store security officers two different names. Later he stated he was in the witness protection program which was why he gave a false name.

Outstanding warrants for failure to appear on charges of grand theft and possession of drug paraphernalia were found during a computer check. The suspect complained of chest pains and was treated at Florida Hospital North. He was charged with petit theft and resisting without violence.

Lake Mary police arrested Walter J. Vakousky, 26, 4904 Kings Meadow Lane. Jacksonville for driving under the influence. Vakousky's vehicle was traveling east in the westbound lane of Lake Mary Boulevard at about 2 a.m. Monday when it crossed the meridian and came to a stop. Police found one-half bottle of vodka in the car. The suspect refused a video or breath test. He was arrested.

Gang, tourist, cop killings push crime atop political agendas

By JOHN KING AP Political Writer

BOSTON — As a top federal prosecutor, Bill Weld opposed banning semiautomatic weapons, thinking it a misguided approach in the war on crime. But the gruesome daily headlines brought a change of heart.

"It was an emotional thing." says Weld, now the Republican governor of Massachusetts, "I'm to minors." reading every single day about innocent people getting shot, bystanders getting shot. ... It doesn't take too many of those to get you to rethink things."

Weld is hardly alone in re-thinking — and debating views on crime. Gang violence in communities large and small. urban and rural, cop killings, the Florida tourist slayings and other tragic turns have pushed crime to the front of the national, state and local political agenda.

Along the way, the terms of the debate have shifted markedly from years past, with Weld and other onetime opponents of gun control now advocating tough restrictions, and politicians of all stripes rushing to take on the National Rifle Association, a onceunbeatable lobbying force. President Clinton now challenges the gun lobby in virtually every speech, as he advocates passage of a federal five-day waiting period on handgun purchases. He also wants the federal government to help put 50,000 more police in Salt Lake City, gang vio-lence prodded the City Council into adopting a five-day waiting period for residents 18 to 25 who want to buy guns. It also created criminal penalties for gun sales

In Colorado, Gov. Roy Romer won rousing applause when he criticized the NRA in a speech opening a special legislative session to deal with crime.

"People are fed up with this business of excessive guns," Romer said in an interview. "The NRA can scream, but there is no reason a 14-year-old should be carrying a gun, and everybody knows that."

In rushing to respond to the public anger, the gun control efforts of politicians often draw the headlines because they attract outspoken opposition from the NRA and others in the gun lobby.

But the explosion of anti-crime efforts also has brought new consensus in other areas. primarily the need for tougher treatment of juveniles.

Heroes come in all shapes, sizes

Sanford Middle School is teaching fire safety. A 8th grader is paying attention to the essons.

Because of it, the life of a 68-year-old Sanford woman was saved earlier this month. Sharonda Moore, 11, knew exactly what to do when she saw her grandmother's house in flames. The woman, confined to a wheelchair, already had her clothing on fire. First reaction for most children (and probably many adults) would have been to try extinguishing the flames with water. Little Sharonda however, placed a cloth over the burning area and extinguished the flames immediately. As a second move, she knew to place a cloth around her grandmother's mouth to prevent the inhalation of smoke or fumes. Hew many would know to do that?

She then summoned a friend to call 9-1-1 and pushed the wheelchair out of the home

Her grandmother received burns on both legs and hands, but is safe because of the prompt action by the youngster.

Sanford Fire inspector Terry Murray asked the girl where she learned fire safety. The response was, she had learned it in school.

Concern for schools

Do you think your Sanford student in getting the best education there is to offer?

Gifted classes smack of elitism and get a disproportionate amount of money. Their low teacher-student ratios and flexible programs allow them to grab every opportunity while other students look on in hunger. It's a self-fulfilling prophecy. The wide sector of the "middle of the road" students get leftovers and second-rate everything. Troublemakers use what time and energy the teacher has for creative programs. You don't believe it? Go visit some other actuoist You don't think it's your problem? Wait till you can't sell your home because people don't like the school or you are forced out of business because you have been because into an army times as an one to be the school or you are forced out of business because you have been broken into so many times or no one is here to buy your products or your child misees out on a scholarship or even worse gets discouraged and

We need a larger area to draw from in order to get more numbers which gets us more dollars which gets us more programs and gives our children equal opportunity, e.g., Lake Mary High School — A/P and Gifted funding 91/92 — $539.387; Seminole High School — $74,000, We have a beautiful city. Help stop Sanford's loser image now. Children really do learn what they live! Go to board meetings (painful as it is), get involved, pray, write a letter, join PTA, visit your child's school, check the washrooms, halls, cafeteris, compare programs and abolish this cancer called apathy and special interests. Grading Clinton after gestation

After "the first 100 days" of the Clinton iministration a bilizzard of unfavorable inside-dope stories appeared in the media. A White House aide protested. "A report card after a 100 days is silly." he said. "Judge the Clinton administration by its first year."

Good idea. We are now at the nine-month mark, Oct.20. Nine months is the gestation period for the human species; we should be able to get a preliminary sonogram on a president. How's Clinton doing? Compared to what he said he'd do? I am less than deliriously happy. From Mount Olympus, completely neutral, above the fray, I grade him now at C-minus.

Listening to candidate Bill Clinton during the campaign, I saw that he could proclaim boldly as a tough "New Democrat," to a point where he called both parties "brain dead." He showed that he understood that certain of "the social issues" were eroding the fiber of the nation. And he revealed passion for a pro-democracy foreign

Now, this much is apparent: It is hard to overn as a tough New Democrat without tough New Democrats. There aren't very many in the Clinton administration. Moreover, even where NDs have important jobs, their underlings and colleagues often come from the activist rabbit warrens of liberalism - environmentalists, consumerists, quota-peddiers, civil libertarians, peaceniks, bleeding hearts of every stripe, still preaching theideanof yesteryear. A senior Clinton side of ND persuasion asked plaintively the other day, "How long does it take for dead liberal ideas to be buried?"

On some key social issues, I grade Clinton as follows:

On welfare, "Incomplete," After months of dithering. a task force was appointed to "end welfare as we know it," a central Clinton campaign promise. So far, we have only seen dithering as we know it. There is a big welfare would cost more money. But no new money is available. The task force should use budgetary adversity to get to the source of the problem: Spend less, by gradually cutting out all welfare for unwed teenage mothers. We may no longer be judgmental about such matters, but we damn well don't have to pay for it.

On crime, Clinton gets a C. He says it's going to be a priority issue, and he is backing a bill that almost passed two years ago. It's not bad. But it purposefully doean't address the central Issue: keeping violent criminals in prison longer. Clinton's proposed budget actually cuts about a half-billion dollars for new prisons.

Or consider the issue of quotas. Clinton gets a D plus. I doubt there is a formal policy, but that only demonstrates the power of the entrenched liberal mindset

Clinton appointed his government "to look like America" - thereby validating quota hiring at the highest level. His selection of Lant Guinier was terrible

The foreign policy situation is mixed, at a difficult time

So, on balance, C-minus. Will it get better? I await, with interest, the next three months, and after that, the next three years.

The cost of turning our backs

BOSTON — It was the pictures. Everybody says so. This is the common wisdom about the common images that intrude into our living rooms and our minds. One picture is worth a thousand pages of foreign policy analysis. One picture is worth a hundred think tanks.

We agreed to go into Somalia when we saw. We agreed to go into Somalia when we saw, literally saw, people starving. We clamored to get out when we saw, literally saw, a soldier a corpse dragged through the streets. It was the pictures that provoked the public, turning opinion as quickly as the focus of a lens.

But pictures do not have a life of their own, some automatic imprinting effect. The impact is not only from the images television brings to us. It's from what we bring to those images.

Our own moral sense and our sense of limits.

The cameras and videotapes that report from the scene also illustrate ancient moral texts. They are a powerful engine of foreign policy in this new world order because foreign policy is often seen as a struggle between moral impulses and practical concerns.

During the Cold War, when the future warlord Aidid was a cabdriver in Washington. when Sovieta and Americans were both arming Somalia. American policy-makers talked in the hard-edged terms of realpolitik. Our policy toward other countries was routinely judged by the conflict between East

Right and wrong was us and them. The moral consideration that trumped all the others was that democracy had to prevail over the "evil empire."

When the Cold War ended, the lid came off old hatreds and ethnic struggles in parts of the world. But here was also a fragile belief that perhaps realpolitik could be replaced by moralpolitik.

We could use our power now as the rescue quad, the Red Cross, the good guys. Our ational interest — what interested our nation - included a humanitarian interest.

In some ways Somalia is a test case for moralpolitik. There was no ambiguity in a U.N. mission to bring food to starving people. Many of us worrled about the moment when missionary soldiers would be seen as an occupying force. But unlike Boania, unlike the Persian Gulf War. Somalia seemed to offer what the stockbrokers call "a pure play" in the humanitarian business. There was a moral arity to the pictures.

Now they are out of focus again. An merican soldier is captured and then research. Addid to unsuccessfully hunted and then invited to make peace. Lives are saved in the country and then lost in the city. The administration struggles to get out without, as Sen: John Glenn put it, "bugging out."

I worry now that Somalia will teach

Americans to turn away from the next set of pictures. Will we learn to avoid looking the world in the eye the way we have learned to avoid looking at the homeless in our streets? There are all sorts of isolationism. One of them is moral isolationism, a cynicism about any moral role in the world.

James Q. Wilson, a UCLA professor and author of "The Moral Sense," says emphatically that "it would be a great mistake if Americana said we ought not allow our feelings to be affected by pictures of starv-ing children. in a democracy, foreign policy should be driven to some de-gree by moral concerns.

When problems here begin to seem intractable, when problems in the world seem overwhelming, when help accems futile, we withdraw. We protect our own peace of mind and our belief in a just world by deciding that the fate of these people is their own fault. We learn to turn our backs — but at a flerce price to ourselves and the world.

This test case is now Clinton's test. We went to Somalis because, as he put it, "our consciences said. Enough." We want to leave because our gut says "Enough." This is a president who has tried to draw connections between values and practical politics in domestic policy. Now he must negotiate a fragile exit route in foreign policy, a way out that leaves the Somelians with "survival rights." And a way that leaves Americans with a set of pictures we can bear to

Rebirth of Jersey City becomes a sign of hope

JERSEY CITY, N.J. - This city is a stone's throw from the Statue of Liberty, but her back is turned from it.

For much of this century, it has been a blue collar factory town on the west bank of the Human River, which was so unenviable to landed Americans that it was long ago ceded to the tired, the poor and the huddled immigrant masses.

Corrupt politicians. drugs in the streets and schools so poor that the state had to take them over neveral years ago made it common for New York-based television stations to cross the Hudson to showers Jerney City an a trugle example of urban decay and despair.

conservatism. Jack Kemp, describes Jersey City Mayor Bret Schundler, who some see as a second coming for inner-city America.

Schundler uses language from street politics to areane sociological treatises, from bond-trading mechanisms to the Bible, to preach to this overflowing melting pot. But this young mayor has a growing congregation that is not the kind normally found in conservative temples: a lower-to-middle-class population that is 30 percent black, 25 percent Hispanic and 10 percent Asian.

In a special election last November — held to finish the term of the last mayor, who went to prison on fraud charges - Schundler emerged victorious in a field of 19 candidates. becoming the city's first Republican mayor in 75 years.

The voters wanted change and they got it. What Schundler and the citizens of his city have already done to turn the place around has been so extraordinary that it bears watching, especially with dozens of other financially beleaguered cities suffering from similar problems.

Schundler has done more than avoid indictment: He has reduced crime, attracted new businesses and Jobs, and brought the nearly bankrupt city from a $40 million deficit in November to a surplus by May. resulting in significantly lower property

Schundler's secret weapon may be the local citizens. For one thing, there is a widely respected newspaper. The Jersey Journal. which keeps the mayor honest with solid investigative reporting and an astute veteran political columnist, Peter Weiss.

The city also happens to be a rap music powerhouse, presided over by Queen Lattfah. whose record label and management company feature some of the hottest names in the business. Both comedian Flip Wilson and Malcolm Jamal-Warner (of "The Cosby Show") hall from here, and Ozzie Nelson was a football coach at a local high school.

In addition, many neighborhoods are still neighborly. All the ethnic groups seem to get along with surprisingly little strife. There was no burning or significant demonstration here in the wake of the Rodney King beating trial. Youth gangs fighting for turf are relatively rare, as are drive-by shootings.

The old canard was to say that the Statue of Liberty had turned her back on the city. The new answers are numerous, and bespeak city pride. "She trusts us to cover her back," one says. Another: "We're always there behind her, supporting her as she faces New York."

If these citizens, these ideas and this mayor can make it a success here, then it really may be a new dawn for urban America.

World's eating habits ignore thousands of edible species

WASHINGTON - The world cats only a tiny portion of the plants and animals that could be used for food, and many of the underused species are disappearing.

Oca, arrachacha, marama beans, adzuki, oliuca and carambola are among plants consumed in limited parts of the world that could become as useful as potatoes or soy beans if they were given more research and attention, said a U.N. study released Tuesday.

Possible important products also include tomatoes that can be partially irrigated with sea water and Chinese pigs that can be ready to reproduce in 64 days, said Jose Esquinas-Alcazar of the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization.

There is even a species of Arctic fish whose genes have been used in experiments with strawberry plants to develop a variety that grows in icy conditions, he said.

"Any living plant, any living animal has potential for agri-culture." Esquinas-Alcazar said in an interview. But he said hundreds of species used in ancient times are gone while others are not being developed or protected.

Bubble task force concludes work

Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD - The state Geneva Freshwater Lens Task Force will be concluding much of its work this week with discussions on major issues affecting the Geneva Bubble: borrow pits and septic tanks.

Task Force chairman Pat Harden has also told the members to establish a policy on "unacceptable adverse impacts" to assure the bubble can supply drinkable water to present and future residents.

The phrase has a flip side though: what will be the maximum allowable adverse impact? That is, how much withdrawal or saltwater intrusion will be allowed before growth is halted or some other wall is erected.

"That's the other side of the coin," says Harden.

The task force must complete their review of existing laws, regulations and ordinances serving to protect the bubble by Dec. 1. That's the due date to estimated 13,000 people within submit their findings and recommendations to the Senate and House of Representitives.

The next meeting will be an all-day seasion Thursday beginning at 9 a.m. at the Seminole County Agricultural Center auditorium.

Harden said she thinks it's unlikely the panel will complete their work this week with the issues still remaining.

"We still have a lot of unanswered questions which could take a lot of time," said Harden. "But we'll have it done by the deadline. We don't have a choice."

Ultimately, the task force is trying to determine whether existing regulations are adequate to protect the drinking water supply. Water managers cetimate about 426 million gallons per year of water is pumped out of the 25-squaremile bubble for homes, businesses and farms.

As the population jumps to an

the next 20 years, usage is expected to increase 860 mgy. Most of the increased pumping will be for homes. The task force has been reluctant to recommend major changes to lawmakers. Earlier this month, they recommended Geneva Bubble homeowners register their wells and that future well-drillers provide moredetailed reports on new household wells. They considered requiring homeowners to have permits and meters, but decided not to ask lawmakers to take on the controversial subject.

Although metering could be required for residential irrigation, typically half of household use, they decided against the

Thursday, the panel will resume discussions on borrow pits' impact to the bubble. Devo Seereeram, a geological engineer who has helped design several pits in the Geneva area, said he believed the county's ordinance was the most stringent in the state and adequate protection for the bubble.

Mike Rich, a research scientist representing the Save Our Bubble citizens group, said more bubble-specific regulation was needed to assure no contaminants that wash into a pit lake can pollute the drinking water supply.

St. Johns Water Management District staff said they did not have an ideal design for the pits. Lawyer Ken Wright, who represents the Excavated Products borrow pit developers, suggested the task force could recommend the district create an ideal pit design.

The task force will also discuss septic tank design. The state requires two feet of sand under new septic tanks to remove bacteria and other harmful elements, but some nitrates and phosphorus still leak through the filter. Secreeram has recommended requiring larger or multiple septic tank systems to reduce the potential for longrange effects.

He resisted arrest violently. McDonough said, kicking and punching as officers tried to

"We're looking at all our options," he said. "but paying $50,000 we don't have is not a good one."

The Florida School Food Services Association has estimated the "advance disposal fee" that took effect Oct. I will cost the state's school districts at least $4 million for the rest of this school Trying to get an exemption is the wrong reaction. Ann Whitfield, FPIRG executive director, said Tuesday. "This is an example of the (advance disposal feel actually working."

"The purpose of the ADF was to highlight to various people including the school districts that they are using hard-torecycle materials and contributing to the solid waste problem in Florida." Whitfield Rather than fight the fee, she said. "There's absolutely no reason they shouldn't be using bulk milk and reusable plastic glasses. It's ridiculous to buy hundreds of thousands of those

He said that bulk milk is being studied as an option, but that the district would have to purchase plastic or styrofoam cups in which to serve the milk and that would, he said, cost far more than a penny apiece.

"And since none of the schools have dishwashing facilties any more we couldn't use reusable cups." Kilpatrick said.

The 1-cent fee is on containers that don't meet state recycling goals. Aluminum and steel containers are exempt because they are recycled at more than a 50-percent rate in Florida.

Most wax paper, plastic and glass containers of five ounces or larger are subject to the fee. And school districts sell thousands of five-ounce cartons of milk each

Kilpatrick said the school district is looking also at the option of soft-pack containers but that he does not know if those vendors with which the district deals have milk and juice in those containers.

"We're still studying our options." he said.

In the Alachua County district, for example, food service director Eldon Chambers told The Gainesville Sun that fees on the cartons will cost $50,000 to $75,000 this year, and that doesn't include other items that come in glass or plastic contain-

"The big ticket items are milk and Juice containers," Chambers

The Alachua schools buy milk from Flav-O-Rich, which must show the fee on its bill to the district. The schools buy about 15,000 containers of milk a day. so daily fees are $150.

We're caught in the middle of it," Flav-O-Rich sales representative Bill Hyder said. "What gets me is the state and federal government give schools so much money to operate and feed children, and then turn around and charge them for the ADF."

Frank Ruud, executive director of the School Food Services Association, said the trade group will propose legislation next year to give schools

An opponent of the fee on the Senate Natural Resources and Conservation Committee, Sen. Curt Kiser, R-Palm Harbor, said he didn't recall any discussion of whether schools would be hurt.

Breast cancer screenings under fire

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - As Namonal Mainmography Day was being officially observed, a published report. reemphasized how strongly many a scarch to led their most women under 50 donot need X ray screening tor breast cancer.

Tuesday was so designaved by President Clinion to call attention to the tircust A rays that offen detect cancer in its early 51.1(10.5)

Hur as his health care plan takes shape, one of the pidmical arguments will be to er whether women of any ner should be covered for humaningrams or just those men life who are at greatest.

clinion proposes that see 50 women would be angible for free breast N tays every two years and that women at particular rosk would be tested more requently. Some organizanons recommend frequent manimograms for women THE PERSON

At an international workship at the National connect hisotopic last Februs sor researchers decided protomation grains are of has benefit for women aged.

The Journal of the Na minus! Cancer Institute, outtoday summarizes that workshop and concludes that for women under 50 candemized controlled mals consistently demonstrated no benefit from screening in the first 5.7

Further it said after 19 12 A follow up none of four trials have found a significant benefit In mortaiity

It was a different matter in women aged 50.69, the article said. Screening reduces breast cancer mortality by about a third.

The manu conclusion, that regular maininography examinations are not accessay for women under 50. was reported at the time

The risk of developing line, streament meteanes mortivelly with age more than 75 percent of breast CHIEFTS OCCUP BE WORCH who are older than 50 said the Journal - The anhand risk of developing breast cancer is approximately one in 3,700 for a woman 30-34 years old, but it is one in 235 for a woman. 11111

Therefore although the Interigrecisk of breast capicit is high one in eight, most women are not at high risk of developing the disease while they are young.

The American Cancer Society recommends annual mammograms for women over 50 and every one or two years for women 40 to

The Cancer Institute's workshop included discussions of eight randomized controlled trials of serrening in women 40 to 74. These trials alone have included nearly 500,000

Reported incidence of breast cancer has been rising steadily since the 1940s in the United States But many doctors believe more widespread use of mainmography, rather than a true increase in incidence. is the cause.

An issue among experts concerns frequency of exannuation. Swedish studies suggest a mammogram as infrequently as every 33 months reduces breast cancer deaths in the 50-69 groups

That raises the possibility, the article says, "that a screening interval of 12 months may not be necessary" in that age group. It and further studies would he useful

Another major question is the most effective way of screening A Canadian study suggests that careful clinical breast examination may be as effective in reducing cancer deaths as X-rays.

And which is better, a single-view manimogram or one that gives two views for the 50-69 women? "Further research should be carried out "says the article

Top students: Casual attitude toward sex, drinking, honesty

One reason the president hasn't focused as much on the economy as he once did is that it. appears to be improving. Slowly but uninistakably. And that's one of the best things Clinton's got going for him

If the economy wasn't in an upturn, he could easily find himself in a real fix - given the other challenges facing him at home and abroad.

Thus, he has a luxury that George Bush didn't He can spend some political capital dealing with foreign policy without it coming back to haunt him.

Interest rates and inflation have remained at their lowest levels to decades. Economic growth appears to be returning after two sluggish quarters.

On Tuesday, the government reported that construction of new homes and apartments jumped to the highest level in more than 31a years in September. Business investment is also on the upswing-

The numbers "indicate that the economy is picking up," Clinton said Tuesday, "And I'm encouraged by that:

Predictably, opinion is divided on whether he had anything to do with the improvements.

"Our reading of the economy suggests a path of low inflation. low interest rates and a steady recovery that is consistent with the administration's objectives of a balanced recovery," boasted Laura Tyson, head of the White House Council of Economic Advisers.

"I think he's going to continue to be fortunate on that front for a while," said Cynthia Latta, an economist with DRI/McGraw-Hill, a forecasting service based in Lexington. Mass. She said no recession is envisioned any time soon, right through the next presidential election

Tribe on three-match win streak

By TONY DeSORMIER Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD - After struggling for most of the season to collect two wins, the Seminole High School girls volleyball team won two matches in one night, bearing both Lake Brantley and Leesburg Tuesday night

The Seminoles opened the evening with a 15-6, 15-8 victory over Lake Brantley in a Seminole Athletic Conference match. Then, after Leesburg won the juntor varsity match 15-8, 15-8, the Tribe swept the Yellow Jackets 16-14, 16-14.

Commed with their victory over Cypress Creek on Monday, the Seminoles have won three matches within 24 hours to improve their record to 5.14, 1.9 in the

"When I talked to the girls last week, when we revamped some things and basically started over, I told them that we were going to take what we did in the Oviedo match (in which Seminole lost but played well) and build on that," said Seminole coach Beth Corso. "We're really starting to pick up steam."

Tuesday night's tractured schedule nearly worked against Seminole After the Lake Brantley match twhich was the make up of a postponed match. the Tribe had to wait through the junior varsity confest before playing again

On top of that, the Seminoles honored their two graduating seniors - co-captains Catherine Fove and Yuleyma Otero - in a brief ceremony before the start of the Leesburg match.

The combination of the wait and the emotion of the evening seemed to have an impact upon on the Seminoles as they tell 9/3 and 13-4 in the first game before rallying to win 16-14.

"We showed how strong we can be by coming back in that first game. said Corso. We have a total team effort that's going on. Our two seniors have really worked hard on pulling this team together. They yo been working at it all season, but this last week everything's coming together.

Bowden and Bowden off to perfect starts

By BRENT KALLESTAD
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Although he's modeled his coaching pattern after his famous daddy. Auburn coach Terry Bowden said Tuesday he wouldn't have his Tigers off to a 7-0 start without borrowing heavily from former coach Pat Dye.

In Tallahassee for a quarterback club meeting and interview with ESPN college football analyst Lee Corso, 37-year-old Terry Bowden and Florida State coach Bobby Bowden talked about their identical 7-0 marks through the first two months of the 1993 season.

"At the best, I thought they might be 5-2 by now if things went their way," said Florida State's Bowden. "But 7-0 — it just doesn't happen."

Bowden, in his first season as a Division I coach, went 8-3 at West Virginia in 1970, when Terry was a 14-year-old high school freshman.

Terry Bowden, the third son in the Bowden household, can better that mark by getting two wins in Auburn's final four games against Arkansus, New Mexico, Georgia and Alabama.

"The key to Auburn was capitalizing on all the good things they had going under coach Dye," said the younger Bowden. "I'd always looked up to what he had done there."

And Dye had scheduled Bowden's Samford team for two games, a move that was a tremendous financial boost for the smaller Birmingham school.

"He didn't have to do that," said Bowden. "And the situation he went through there was in a lot of ways unfair, certainly unfortunate."

The Bowdens prefer offense and want someone they can trust to take care of the defense. At Florida State, the elder Bowden long ago turned that part of the game over to Mickey Andrews.

Although Dye's defensive coordinator Wayne Hall was an unsuccessful candidate for the head coaching job, he was retained by Bowden in part on the advice of his father.

And Terry's brother Tommy was the incumbent offensive coordinator. Any potential discontent was handled immediately when Terry reassigned his older brother by 15 months and took responsibility for the offense.

"I'm calling the plays, I'll take the blame," he said.

"I think they had thought they'd have a Pat Dye defense and a Bobby Bowden offense;" explained the Auburn coach. "But they don't have the talent on offense that my dad has at Florida State. Not yet anyway."

Bowden also wanted to be sure that veteran quarterback Stan White was given an offense where he could be successful.

"We had to give him something we could do," said Bowden. "The key has been a running game. We have done that and Stan can do things now he didn't have an opportunity to do before."

Now dad listens for the Auburn score as he paces his own sidelines on game day, Auburn's 38-35 victory over Florida last weekend drew a huge cheer from the Florida State crowd. Bobby Bowden admitted he had listened for updates on the game during the early part of the Seminoles' game against Virginia.

"I sure didn't think they could get into a scoring contest with Florida and win," said Bobby Bowden. "Gosh, 7-0 — isn't that something?"

there were eight ties and six lead changes, the final coming when Otero served three consecutive points to turn an 11-10 deficit into a 13-10 lead.

Leesburg came back and scored three of the next four points to tie the score at 14-14. After Corso called a timeout. Foye found the floor on a set from Otero to get the serve back for Seminole.

Aubrey Nelson then served out the match for the Tribe.

"Jill Jasewic had a bunch of kills tonight," said Corso. "Both of our setters, Yuleyma and Christina (Campbell), played well. Aubrey Nelson came on and had some big hits. "It was a really good team

RAMS WIN AGAIN

LAKE MARY — Jennifer Greissing collected 14 service points and Diane Duber had 10 service points Tuesday as Lake Mary swept past visiting Lake Howell 15-2, 15-6 in a Seminole Athletic Conference girls volleyball match.

The victory completes a perfect run through the SAC for the Rams, who improve to 19-4 overall and 10-0 in the conference. The Lake Howell Silver Hawks drop to 4-13 overall, 3-7 in the SAC.

"We had 17 kills tonight." said Lake Mary coach Cindy Henry. "They were evenly spread throughout the team. It was very much a team effort."

Lake Mary will wrap up its regular season schedule with a home match against South Lake tonight. Lake Howell will host Deltona in a varsity girls-boys doubleheader.

Cook of the Week She's attracted to the simple things of life

Cook of the Week Laurel Carr makes no qualms about the fact that she is just plain "lovin" life. "This is just how it should be," said Carr. Enjoying each day and making the most out of it has simply become a way of life for Carr.

"Don't get me wrong," said Carr. "I'm by no means rich, I don't drive a big car and I don't live in a mansion," she said. "But, for me, the simpler things just work out the best.

Michigan was home for Carr until 1966. She moved to Florida and currently lives in Longwood. She is the mother of two grown and married daughters. Her daughter Stacey lives in Florida while Andrea lives in North Carolina. Andrea is also the mother of Carr's only grandchild, Zane. He is 8 years old.

Carr explained that when you find you're not required to be mom on a daily basis and you only have yourself to answer to, most things can take on a different light. Maybe then, she says, it's time to get started on that long-awaited project some involvement in the community, possibly — or just doing for yourself. Whatever it might be, Carr said, "Don't let any grass grow under your feet." And she doesn't.

Carr works on a part-time basis for Diversified Business and Tax Services. Her job duties can vary from day to day. She enjoys doing layout and design work but is also responsible for marketing and advertisements

"I made my own prom dress when I was in high school," she said. "I guess that's when I really knew that I had what it took to sew something and be proud enough of it that I'd actually wear it." However, Carr's real love is collectibles/antiques. "Finding a piece

Carr has found that preparing a big meal just isn't a must like it used to be. But she sill likes to break out some of her favorite recipes and have a few people in for dinner.

Wife wants family ties to be bound with blood

DEAR ABBY: My husband of 4 years just received a "Dear Daddy" letter from a 23-year-old girll He said he had slept with the girl's mother one night, three days before her husband returned from the service.

Phil rushed to have dinner with this girl and her flance, and now believes that she is his daughter.

Abby, how does he - or she. for that matter — know this to be a fact without a blood test?

This girl has been told by her mother since she was 13 that Phil is her father, and she believes it! I'm not saying it is not possible that she is his daughter, but I would like proof

Lucky for the girl, my husband is a decent, honorable man, and since he has met with her he doesn't want to hurt her by asking for the blood test right off. He wants our son and me to meet this girl and get to know

I told him I do not want to establish, a relationship with someone who only might be his daughter. Abby, I would accept her willingly if I knew it was a

DEAR ABBY: My husband of 39 years is the Fred Astaire of our club and all the women want to dance with him. That means I sit it out. I don't mind when it's one of our friends. (Their husbands have health problems. so they sit with me while their

What I object to is other women asking him to dance as soon as my back is turned. A new young woman tries to muscle in and he says, "I'd better ask her since she's trying to be friendly." I understand his being flattered by all the atten-tion. But now he's insisting he needs his independence to ask whomever he wants.

Dancing has been our hobby. We took lessons in ballroom dancing for 15 years. When he dances with someone else, he doesn't do the steps we know together.

Amazing Randi debunks the psychics for 'Nova'

By SCOTT WILLIAMS AP Television Writer

NEW YORK - The Amazing Randt, first name James, really is rather amazing.

"Magicians used to be 'Professor' or 'the Great." " said Randt, a compact, energetic cherub with a bushy white beard and eyes that miss nothing.

"I thought it sounded better than 'Professor.' And I wasn't great. I was amazing. Always have been. But I've never really been great." he said. "I've only been amazing. But I'm very good at amazing."

A superb magician, writer, lecturer and recipient of a MacArthur Foundation "gentus" grant. Randi has devoted the past 25 years to investigating - and debunking - psychics. quacks and various supernatural frauds.

On Tuesday night, Randt shows his stuff on PBS in "Secrets of the Psychics" for the "Nova" science series, traveling to Moscow to check out some of the stillest and saddest hokum that Russian psychics can devise.

"An actor goes out on the stage and does Mark Twain," Randt explained, "But he wouldn't tell you he IS Mark Twain. That would insult your intelligence.

"But there are guys who'll east a horoscope for you and tell you that it's true. And there will be guys who'll bend a spoon or a key for you and say that it's powers from heaven."

To illustrate his point, Randi performs the utterly impossible feat of reading the faces of two cards sealed in an envelope. It's a great trick, but he has to perform something like it every time he lectures about psychic hooey.

"Don't think it's the stupid, uneducated, unsophisticated people - the peasants - who fall for this. Oh, they'll fall for it, too. But it's the sophisticated people with huge laboratories ... who get fooled.

Randf's career hasn't been all card tricks. His efforts to demystify the spoon-bending Uri Geller elicited a series of libel lawsuits from the Israelt psychic.

Defending himself in those legal actions ("They've all been thrown out of court or won-- by me," Randi notes) chewed up most of his "genius" grant.

'I'm not complaining," he said, "I took on this territory. I had my eyes open. I knew what could happen. And bang, it happened. So I've got to fight the good fight. I don't run."

Randi took "Nova" to Russia because during the Cold War, the Soviet Union was rumored to be rife with psychies and other wild talents. With the demise of communism, Russian belief in the supernatural has flour(shed.

Randi began his investigation at Moscow's respected Institute of the Brain, where scientists had reported a psychic's ability to influence the brain activity and blood pressure of another person.

Their findings didn't hold up after Randi's double blind experiment isolated the experimenters from the effect they were

"Scientists," Randi observed, "have an uncanny ability to find what they're looking for - whether it's there or not."

If Randi is harshest on faith healers and psychic surgeons, it's because he's dealt with the spiritually "healed." His voice tightens when he talks about one of those interviews:

"You know that it's a dead man sitting infront of you. Just the spark of life. He's as gray. as that rug. And he says, 'No, no, God has saved me. I don't have to go to the hospital any more," "he said.

"And you know that within hours of your leaving, they put him in a body bag."

Randi also interviews two rather sweet. matronly women whose psychic powers letthem analyse a personality in detail simply by looking at their subject's photograph.

Randi provides them with a picture of serial killer Ted Bundy, and they come a cropper.

It's comical, too, when when Randi visits a private Moscow health clinic, where psychies: treat filness with "bio-energy" and psychically "charged" water, which Randl tries, unsuccessfully, to test.

"All of my life I have been faced with these things," he said. "They say, 'This is going to be a great test.' Right up to the last minute. Then they say, 'By the way, this is Thursday It never works on a Thursday.

Researchers find brain proteins that control appetite for fat

AP Science Editor

MILWAUKEE - Researchers have found one natural brain protein that triggers craving for fatty food and a second that blocks the desire and can cut body weight in animals by up to 50 percent.

Blocking the triggering protein also can produce dramatic weight loss, researchers said.

Drug companies are rushing to take advantage of the discoveries, which could lead to drugs that block fat cravings without interfering with appetite for protein and carbohydrates, the researchers said.

It is the first time scientists have identified substances that act specifically on the appetite for fats, the researchers reported Tuesday at the annual meeting of the North American Association for the Study of Obesity

"We are extremely close to linking specific brain areas to specific appetites," said Sarah Letbowitz, a biologist at Rockefeller University in New York City.

Leibowitz identified a proteinin the brain called galanin and throughout the morning to stimulate an appetite for fats at are likely to have a variety of funch and continues to rise until effects throughout the body. In dinner time.

She also has shown that it rises in adolescent girls at puberty, preparing them to take on more fat in anticipation of pregnancy, when they need energy reserves to nourish offspring.

"It's a beautifully designed system, but not for society. unfortunately," Leibowitz said. Because pregnancy in Western societies is often delayed until long past puberty, girls see the weight gain as undestrable and it can lead to the eating disorders common in young women. Leibowitz said.

In another report, David York of Louisiana State University described the discovery of a protein called enterostatin. which cuts fat intake 50 percent to 80 percent when injected intoantinals

York said it might be possible to administer the substance in pill form. Tests with humans are expected to begin early nextyear, but it may be eight to 10 years before the experiments has shown that its level rises lead to a new diet drug, he said.

York said that both proteins addition to their effects on appetite. The trick in developing drugs will be to determine exactly how they regulate appetite, so that process can be controlled without disrupting other things. York said.

But he is optimistic because both are natural substances and are unlikely to have any toxic effects.

"There is no clear behavior that suggests that animals are getting sick or not feeling well" in tests of the substances, he Leibowitz identified galanin by looking at ordinary, white laboratory rats, and separating them into two groups: those that preferred fats, and those that didn't.

She found elevated levels of galanin in the brains of those that preferred fat, compared to the others.

She, like York, expressed hope that the work would lead to a drug to help control fat craying.

"I have tons of letters in my Hie from people looking for that cure," Leibowitz said, "We're very close."

If the neighborhood oak trees aren't big enough in which to build a tree house, improvisation is the key. Just ask Katle Walden, 9, who enjoys her treeless tree house on the front porch of her

Sanford home.
