Ex-Olympian Inspires Aging Athletes

Two-time Olympic decathlon winner Bob Mathias, honorary chairman of the 10th annual Golden Age Games, inspired those attending the Jubilee Dinner-Dance with stories of his athletic experiences and those of other Olympians.

The event, attended by 353 persons from 24 states and Canada, was held Wednesday night at the Sanford Civic Center.

Mathias, 53, told the Golden Age athletes, "I wish I had a medal, it's been a long time since I got one. I would like to come back in a couple of years when I am eligible to compete."

Mathias competed on the U.S. team in the 1948 Olympics in London and 1952 in Helsinki, Finland, and was the first man ever to win two decathlons in the Olympics.

He said he was delighted to discover an old Olympic teammate competing in the Golden Age Games decathlon event. He introduced Boo Morcom of Wilmot Flat, N.H., who was his roommate on the ship going to London in 1948. Morcom was a pole vaulter and being older and more experienced in competition was able to help calm the nerves of 17-year-old Mathias on his way to his first Olympic competition.

Morcom is leading in the Games decathlon for the 55-59 age group. The second phase of the decathlon was scheduled to begin at 1:30 p.m. today at the Seminole High School stadium.

The NBC Nightly News filmed the dance contest and the decathlon Wednesday and is scheduled to cover the pancake race and knitting contest this afternoon. The Games coverage is scheduled to be aired tonight at 6:30 on channel 2.

Mathias attributes the many broken records in the Olympics now to better coaching, better equipment, more opportunities to compete, new styles and techniques.

"But there is one ingredient that they had when Boo and I were competing and that is plain old determination and the will to win. That's the spirit of the Olympics and you have it here. This ain't the Olympic Games, but you still have the same determination," Mathias said.

Emergency personnel at the scene of three-death car train accident wait for investigators to complete their assessment of the collision before removing bodies of the victims. The accident occurred at a signalless crossing when a car, exceeding the 35 mph speed limit, collided with a six-car Seaboard System Railroad train traveling 29 mph. A state safety official says the crossing was scheduled for signal light installation next year.

County OKs $130,000 For Library Site

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

An asking price of $130,000 has been accepted by the Seminole County Commission for three lots and a vacated alleyway north of the library at 1st Street and Palmetto Drive to become the site of a new downtown library.

Three commissioners — Bill Kirchhoff, Sandra Glenn and Robert Sturm — voted Tuesday to approve Marna Hunt's asking price for the parcel. She had originally asked for $150,000 for the tract appraised by county hired appraisers at between $95,000 and $115,000. The county commission two weeks ago offered $125,000.

However, Jean Rhein, county librarian, reported to commissioners that Mrs. Hunt "prefers" $130,000 for the site at Palmetto and Commercial.

Mrs. Glenn said she felt spending the additional $5,000 for the property would serve a better purpose than spending that amount to pay for further negotiations.

Sturm reiterated his stand of two weeks ago that the price of land in downtown Sanford will never be cheaper than it is now.

He said as a man at a recent

Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce meeting said, "Progress will come to Sanford because it is in the way."

Commissioner Barbara Christensen said negotiations should continue and another $2,500 should be offered to Mrs. Hunt rather than the $5,000.

Ms. Rhein said that while the appraised value was $95,000 to $115,000, it was difficult to come up with a correct appraised value because so little property has been recorded as sold in the downtown area in recent years for a comparison.

But Commissioner Robert G. "Bud" Feather said, "If government buys property at a higher price, it will actually be setting higher prices for all downtown property."

Mrs. Christensen and Feather voted against the buy.

Kirchhoff said purchasing the property and building a new library would aid in the improvements in the downtown area.

He said other projects planned downtown including architect Gerald Gross's plan to connect two downtown buildings with a second story ornate bridge.

Deaths May Speed Rail Crossing Signals

A Sanford railroad crossing where three young people died a week ago in a car-train collision was tentatively scheduled to have signal lights installed during the next budget year according to a state safety official. The accident may speed the installation of the lights at the crossing where there have been two accidents in three weeks.

The crossing on Silver Lake Drive in southeast Sanford was 728th on a priority list of 5,200 unsignaled crossings scheduled to be upgraded by the state, said Dick Rosell of the Florida Department of Transportation.

Workcrews are currently improving priorities 1 to 830, Rosell said.

The Silver Lake Drive crossing probably would have been included in next year's budget for upgrading, he said. The budget is submitted annually in either October or November. He said the fatal accident will probably ensure that the grade will be included in the fall 1985 budget or may even be included in a budget submitted this month.

The DOT, with federal and state money, pays railroad companies to signal crossings which cost between $55,000 and $75,000. Usually 100 to 120 crossings on public roads have signals installed each year with the state-allocated money, he said.

Rosell said while the federal and state funds amount to free installation of signals as far as railroad companies are concerned, he said the companies are free at any time to upgrade a crossing at their own expense.

Rosell said railroad crossings are placed on a priority list according to a formula which predicts the probability of an accident at the crossing. Factors used in the formula include a traffic count, the number of trains a day, the type of road and visibility.

It's something like predicting a 100-year rain storm, he said.

The fatal accident at the Silver Lake Drive crossing and a minor fender-bender three weeks ago also involving a train probably has altered the formula placing the crossing higher on the priority list, he said.

The Silver Lake Drive crossing was surveyed within the last three years to determine its

Mother, Friends Agonize At Fatal Crash Scene

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

They were seven women on a death pilgrimage, retracing the route a friend and loved one took the day a train crashed into the car he was in, killing him and two others.

By chance, or maybe fate, they arrived at the Sanford site just after an investigator for the railroad stopped at the crossing. He stopped to ask this reporter why he was taking pictures of the railroad grade.

The mourners, the train owner and the press — inspecting the site where four days earlier four kids heading home after a day at the beach were struck broadside in their El Camino by a six-car train. Only one kid survived.

"Don't take no notes. And don't use our names. And no pictures," said one woman as they roamed around the railroad crossing. The railroad inspector left amid hostile comments and profanity from the women.

The women, who said male members of the families probably could not have emotionally withstood the journey, were angry — animated one moment, subdued the next. They cried. They yelled in eruptions of anger. At least two had eased their pain with alcohol. It was the day after the funeral.

The inspector had said the accident was a tragedy but that there was ample time for the driver of the death car to see the slow-moving train and stop. If the train had been traveling in the opposite direction, where the train would have been obscured until it was the road's right of way, he said he would feel "a bit more chagrined."

It is sad, he said, adding that it happens all the time.

The women didn't care for his opinion. They were concerned about this time.

"Does the railroad care? Who's responsible for what happened," asked one woman?

"We're in mourning," interrupted another woman explaining that was why they were angry.

"Can you understand that? We lost a friend," she said.

"Why isn't there a signal here? How could they stop for a train if there wasn't a light? You can't see a train's front light in the daytime. We're saying this isn't right."

A unsettingly calm woman, 34, soft-voiced without tears, viewed the scene with piercing eyes. She had paid the dearest price. Her 17-year-old son died in the crash, his last act to shove the only survivor of the crash, a 17-year-old girl, to the floor of the vehicle before impact. She was thrown clear and though alert at the accident scene has since lost all recollection of the day from leaving the beach to waking in the hospital.

The grieving mother looked at the scene because she had to, she said. He was her only child. She walked the area looking for a reason, any reason.

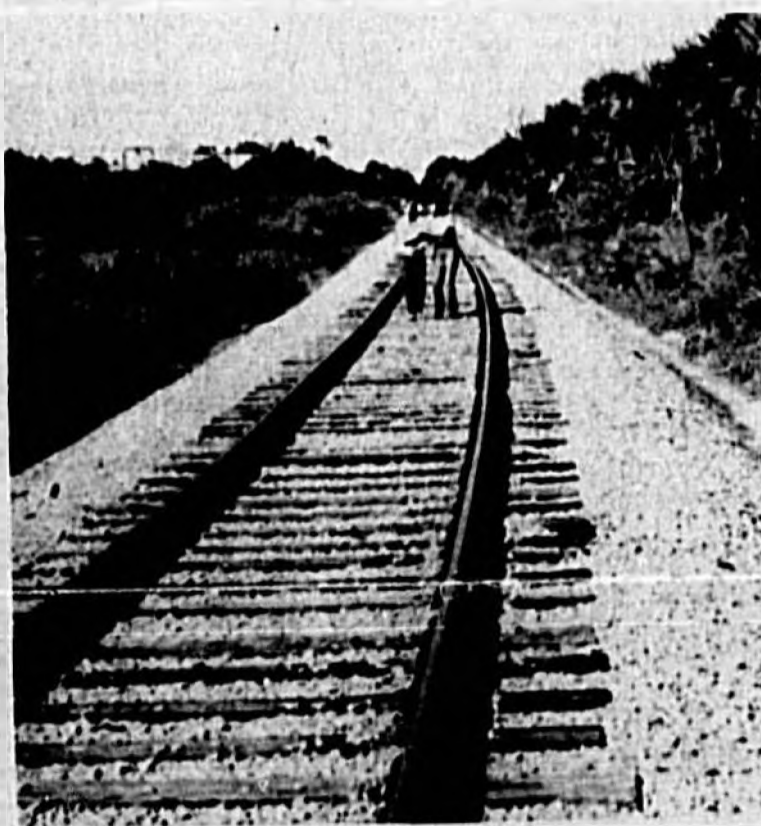

She had to see where her son died, her friends said. To determine for herself what those last moments were like. Who did what? Where was the car? The train? What were her brave son's last few moments like?

Constantly embraced by a friend, she drifted along the road and peered back at the crossing, the tracks, the railroad sign, the lack of flashing lights.

Who was to blame?

Did the driver of the car have enough time to see the train and stop? Was the engineer watching? Did he react fast enough?

She silently inspected the railroad tracks. One by a time, walking the rails where debris still told the story of her dead son and the two others killed, a 15-year-old and a 21-year-old driver.

The mother of a youth who died in a train car accident in Sanford at Silver Lake Drive a week ago walks the track while being consoled by a friend. The 34-year-old woman, who did not want to be identified, said she had to visit the scene to determine for herself what happened and how.

One woman just sat on a rail. Another picked up and threw debris. One clutched a piece of twisted chrome. More than once they had to stop talking and turn away in tears, sobbing.

"She lost her only child. Try to look at it that way. Try feel how she feels. She's 34 and lost her only child."

They wanted to know who was responsible for the fatalities, the lack of lights or other signals at the crossing.

Surely they said, no infraction by the driver was worth the punishment of death by train. Even if the driver may have been speeding, flashing lights would have probably caused him to stop, they said.

"Who decides what crossings get flashing lights. Who decides who will get killed and who won't?" asked a woman whose distraught daughter had to be carried from the funeral.

"This incident is not going to be buried," one said, saying she lives in Sanford and remembers that too many people had to be killed before crossing signals were put up on Airport Boulevard near the airport.

"Why aren't you finding out who is responsible for such crossings," she asked. Slowly, they got in the car, still angry, still swearing, mourning. They had seen enough.

Their dark journey was not over, however. They had to trace the rest of the way home to Altamonte Springs, the route the victims did not have the chance to travel alive.

Shuttle Hot On Trail Of Stranded Satellites

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — The shuttle Discovery thundered into space today on a daring flight to chase down a pair of stranded satellites for rescue by two spacewalking astronauts in the first orbital salvage mission.

Shuttle commander Frederick Hauck, pilot David Walker and crew members Anna Fisher, Dale Gardner and Joseph Allen blasted off at 7:15 a.m. — 23 hours late because of dangerously erratic winds high over the spaceport Wednesday.

The launch was a fitting present for Gardner, who celebrates his 36th birthday today in space.

Hauck and his crew are scheduled to spend eight days in orbit to launch two communications satellites Friday and Saturday and rescue two others left in useless orbits in February when their solid rocket boosters flamed out. The shuttle is scheduled to land back at the Cape Nov. 16.

Before Discovery rocketed away from its ocean-side launch pad, a security helicopter shadowed a sailboat north of the launch area and closed-circuit television from the chopper showed an airman holding an M-16 rifle at the ready. The boat never entered the launch security zone.

Discovery rode into space on familiar streamers of incandescent flame and smoke through partly cloudy skies to begin its second space flight and the 14th in the shuttle program.

Discovery is the space agency's lone operational shuttle. Its sister ship, Challenger, has been grounded until January because of tile problems and Columbia is undergoing extensive modifications in California. A fourth shuttle, Atlantis, is still under construction.

The astronauts faced a tight schedule on their first day in space but on Friday they plan to launch a communications satellite for Telesat Canada and the day after, a military relay station leased by the Navy for $88.8 million over five years.

Time was running out for the space agency to get Discovery into orbit.

Because of the subtleties of the orbits of the two $35 million satellites Discovery's crew hopes to track down, the shuttle had to get off the pad by Sunday or the space agency faced a 45-day delay for another chance.

FLORIDA

IN BRIEF

GOP Gains In Florida House Unlikely To Affect Lawmaking

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Democratic leaders say Republican advances in the Florida House are more symbolic than likely to have an effect on legislation.

The Republicans passed the one-third mark in the House, a longtime goal, gaining at least six seats in the 120-member chamber with the election of at least 42 Republicans.

Only eight races were contested in the 40-member Senate and Democrats held onto their 32.

In theory, one-third control of the House gives the Republicans the muscle to stymie the Democrats on many parliamentary votes that require a two-thirds vote.

But Democratic leaders said this would likely have little impact on control of the floor.

Fresh Citrus Sales To Resume

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has lifted a ban on in-state sales of fresh citrus, but said the fruit would have to be inspected for canker and treated before hitting stands and grocery stores.

State agriculture officials in Tallahassee said the sale of fresh Florida oranges, grapefruit and limes would probably resume Friday.

The government Wednesday offered no opposition to a plan announced last week by Florida agriculture officials that would allow Sunshine State citrus growers to resume selling fruit at certified fruit stands, ornamental nurseries and some grocery stores.

Under the relaxed embargo, only fruit from certified, canker-free groves that have received no seedlings from infected nurseries can be sold. All citrus would have to pass through registered packing houses and be treated with chlorine.

State Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner had banned in-state sales of Florida citrus in September to prevent the spread of canker after the deadly disease was discovered at several central Florida nurseries.

Klaus Probably Won't Hit Land

MIAMI (UPI) — Hurricane Klaus lashed the northern Caribbean islands with gales and flooding rains today, but forecasters said it was unlikely the 75 mph storm would hit land.

Klaus was declared a hurricane in an 11 p.m. advisory Wednesday, after its winds had strengthened to 75 mph, becoming the fourth hurricane of the Atlantic-Caribbean season.

Gale warnings remained in effect for the Virgin Islands and the Netherland Antilles of the Leeward Islands, and the Islands of St. Kitts, Nevis and Anguilla. Warnings had been dropped for Puerto Rico earlier Wednesday, but forecasters said small craft in the area should exercise caution.

An 8 a.m. advisory from the National Hurricane Center said the eye of the hurricane was located near latitude 19.8 north, longitude 62.5 west, about 25 miles northeast of San Juan. The storm was moving toward the northeast at 10 mph.

Seven Others Approved

Voters Kill Legislative Immunity Amendment

MIAMI (UPI) — Florida voters have clobbered a proposal to give legislators special immunity from lawsuits, but approved seven other amendments to the state Constitution.

Supporters of Amendment 4, which proposed legislative immunity from public statements, blamed the news media and "a common misperception" for its defeat. But opponents said the defeat was sensible.

"It got what it deserved — a pine box," said Sen. Joe Carlucci, D-Jacksonville, an opponent. "Florida voters will support us when we're right, but they're smart enough to pick out a bad apple when they see it. That's what they recognized this time."

Voters defeated the proposal by nearly a 2-1 ratio.

The chief sponsor, Sen. Arnett Girardeau, D-Jacksonville, said he had no plans to make another attempt for passage. He said voters and the news media misinterpreted the amendment.

"I believe just the wording frightened them, saying that someone has a special protection from the rest of society ... The news media interpreted this piece of legislation without benefit of a thorough investigation and as a result they advised the people in my opinion erroneously. It does show the power of the media."

Amendments approved Tuesday included:

—Amendment 1, giving all homestead owners an exemption from forced sale of homestead property. Current law limited the exemption to heads of household.

—Amendment 2, letting the state electronically transfer funds and direct-deposit state checks.

—Amendment 3, setting up uniform procedures for judicial nominating commissions throughout the state and opening them to the public.

—Amendment 5, letting counties which do not yet have that option now decide whether their county commissioners should be elected at-large or from single-member districts. This provision was strongly supported by black organizations which contended that at-large voting dilutes minority voting strength.

—Amendment 6, requires that county judgeship candidates in all but small counties have been members of the Florida Bar for five years.

—Amendment 7, provides a new method of funding state construction projects.

—Amendment 8, allowing the state to change its method of collecting utility taxes. This was a technical amendment required because of deregulation of telephone companies.

The most controversial constitutional amendments proposed this year never went before the voters for approval.

The Florida Supreme Court tossed out the "Citizens' Choice" tax-cutting amendment and the "Reason '84" proposal aimed at lowering medical malpractice costs for doctors, saying both were unconstitutional.

Voters found "Reason '84", also known as Amendment 9, still on the ballot, but the votes were not counted. Election officials said the ballots had already been printed when the Supreme Court killed the amendment in September.

Chinese Capitalism?

No communist government has ever relinquished power voluntarily or repudiated the basic economic tenets of Marxism.

Could China's government be the first? This seemingly fanciful question is now worth asking, at least in the abstract, because of the remarkable economic transformation now in progress in China.

Six years ago, China's post-Mao Government effectively abandoned the demonstrably unsuccessful communal agriculture in favor of a household contract system.

Farm families were permitted to cultivate individual plots as they saw fit and then to sell surplus production on a legalized free market.

It was called the "responsibility system" and it worked wonders.

Rural incomes rose dramatically, with some farm families increasing their cash earnings more than tenfold.

Overall growth rates for China's agriculture more than doubled by 1981. And earlier this year, a peasant family became the first to purchase a private automobile in China since the communist takeover in 1949.

Now, the government of Deng Xiaoping has approved a package of breathtaking reforms intended to transform much of the urban, industrial sectors of China's economy along the lines already established for Chinese agriculture. Thus, for example, government subsidies for more than 1 million state-owned enterprises will be phased out and these factories and shops left to compete freely in the marketplace, failing or succeeding on their own.

Managers will be free to set prices for their factories' products based on market competition and the cost of production. Making a profit will be encouraged. Quality and service will count and so will the preferences of consumers. Wages and salaries will be determined at least partially by productivity and the overall success of the enterprise.

For a communist economy, these reforms are genuinely revolutionary. For China, they will mean an end to the failed, Soviet-style system of rigid centralized planning adopted by the Chinese during the 1950s.

China will still be Marxist, of course, with farmers unable to own the land they till and industrial plants and equipment still owned by the state. Indeed, such basic industries as coal, steel and railroads will remain subject to centralized planning and strict government control.

But if Deng and his fellow pragmatists succeed in spreading the discipline and incentives of the marketplace from China's agriculture to its creaking, backward industry, the results could be spectacular.

And is it entirely foolish to wonder whether the next generation of China's leadership, having seen what even partially free markets can accomplish, might not decide that the only way to compete with such Asian successes as capitalist Taiwan, South Korea and Japan is to scrap communism altogether?

Not All Spare Parts Were Scandalous

WASHINGTON — The military spare-parts scandal has shocked taxpayers who want their armed forces to be strong and capable, but who also want a dollar's worth of defense for every dollar spent.

In addition to millions of defense dollars wasted, the disclosures have further undermined whatever faith the public still has in the Pentagon's ability to spend its money frugally — even though defense auditors are often the ones who have uncovered these spending abuses in the first place.

But the question many people are asking is, "Why did it take the administration three years or more to uncover them?"

Perhaps the most outrageous spare-parts overpricing case concerned a tiny white plastic stool cap made from 26 cents' worth of nylon, for which the Pentagon was shelling out $1,118.26 apiece.

Manufactured under a sole-source contract with the Boeing Corp., the plastic component is used on the leg of a folding stool aboard the Air Force's sophisticated AWACS radar plane.

In 1979, Boeing set the price of the cap at $219.19, raising it to $916.55 in 1981 — including a "profit fee" of $119.55 per cap. Boeing said the increase was due to "cost growth." The Pentagon added its own surcharge of $169.22 to the cap's price for handling, packaging and other overhead costs, boosting the delivery price to $1,118.26 for a lump of plastic that Defense officials later admitted should have cost no more than $10.

Of 15,000 spare parts examined, auditors found that prices on two-thirds of them had shot up 50 percent or more within a two-year period, and more than half of them had doubled in price. In a massive understatement of fact, a Pentagon audit concluded that military contracting officers "were not buying engine spare parts in a cost-effective manner."

Yet as wasteful as these and other examples are, it is also important to know that those spare-parts prices that doubled represented only from 2 to 3 percent of the Pentagon's total spare-parts procurement. Thus, they accounted for a very small percentage of the Defense Department's total $80 billion to $100 billion procurement bill.

Moreover, in some of these horror stories, the figures and their true meaning got somewhat distorted as they went through the auditor-to-media translation process.

A good example of this was reported by Aviation Week magazine, which told the story behind the horror story. It concerned a bolt whose price had shot up from 67 cents in 1980 to $17.59 in 1982, according to the inspector general's report.

Technically, both figures were correct, but further study showed that the 67-cent figure came from 1964, not 1980. That was the last time the Air Force had purchased the bolt, buying 1,200 of them. But when the bolts were reordered in 1980 for delivery in 1982, only 83 of them were purchased. Pratt & Whitney, the chief contractor, sent the order to its vendors, who said they could provide the bolts at $11.45 each. The final price shot up to $17.59 after Pratt added their markup to the transaction.

Lost in the uproar over this price was the fact that the military could have bought the bolts for only $1.58 each, or $2.30 with the markup. If 1,200 had been ordered.

The story became terribly distorted because it ended up comparing a price of 67 cents vs. $17.59, but on vastly different quantities.

The truer price comparison would have been between the 67 cents charged for each bolt in 1964 vs. the $2.30 per bolt in 1982, based on the original order — a cost increase that roughly compares with the inflation rate over this period.

Thus, while the Pentagon could have bought more for less, it actually saved money — about $1,300 — by ordering only the bolts it needed at the higher purchase price.

How can such overcharges be avoided in the future? One way to reduce future spare-parts costs: Order more parts directly from the vendors, rather than through the prime contractors, and thus avoid paying exorbitant fees to the middleman.

Approach Close To Anarchism

At the end of each Congress, some congressmen go home — never to return to a legislative post in the nation's capital. They are retired by the voters in primary or general elections.

It's instructive to consider the views of one of these officeholders who lost out in a primary election, U.S. Rep. Ron Paul (R-TX), whose farewell to the House of Representatives was published in The Wall Street Journal. Publication of the farewell message suggests that the Journal is sympathetic to Mr. Paul's ideas.

One of these ideas, as expressed by Rep. Paul, is that "dissipation of power is the objective of those who love liberty." That's a notion that fits in well with Congressman Paul's libertarian philosophy, but it isn't in accord with mainstream conservatism in the United States.

Historically, conservatives have advocated limited government, not the elimination or "dissipation" of government. They have wanted the authority of government, as delineated in the U.S. Constitution, to be used in an intelligent, responsible manner. The libertarian approach comes close to anarchism — the rejection of all government.

Congressman Paul has a good record of opposing welfareism, but he carried his opposition to federal spending to the point of opposing many vital defense programs. He stated in his farewell address, "Instead of debating forever whether or not cuts should be made in domestic welfare or military spending, the answer is simple: Cut both and quit arguing." Well, that is not a responsible conservative position. There is every reason why wasteful domestic programs should be eliminated. But elimination of defense programs could result in disaster for the American people.

Whatever direction the nation's political life takes in the next few years, it's unlikely to be the direction that Congressman Paul favors. The Wall Street Journal described Sen. Paul as a "maverick." He is that. His philosophy doesn't fit the country's mood or the public's view of what is appropriate national policy.

Probe Points Finger

Italian Judge Ilario Martella is almost legendary for his caution and plodding exactitude. The recent indictment in the plot to kill the pope of Bulgarian officials and Turkish terrorists is therefore very impressive. The investigation took almost three years, and produced thousands of pages of evidence. Final judgment must wait the outcome of the trial, and the opportunity for the defense to test the evidence under cross-examination.

But the betting here is on a guilty verdict, with all that this implies. The Turks and the Bulgarian intelligence people are in the foreground of this, but the real defendants are Brezhnev and then KGB boss Andropov. The trigger fingers were Turkish, but the origin of the plot was Soviet.

The case assembled by Judge Martella does not rest on the unsupported word of Mehmet Ali Agca, who has changed his story in several respects and been caught in outright lies. His claim that he met with Bulgarian officials, however, has been substantiated by hard evidence, as has his claim that he was to have escaped in a scaled Bulgarian truck that had already been inspected and cleared through Italian customs. His statement that a second Turkish gunman, Oral Celik, was involved has been borne out in its principal outlines. Judge Martella's case seems solid, and the current Soviet claim that the whole thing is a CIA plot is about as persuasive as their claim that Korean Air Lines Flight 007 was a spy plane.

The CIA, indeed, has all along resisted the idea that there was Soviet involvement in the plot. "No evidence that we know of," a top CIA official told me last year.

There is no one today in the West who is knowledgeable about intelligence matters who thinks the Bulgarians could have acted independently. The Bulgarian secret service is a tightly controlled arm of the KGB; they are not in the business of independent initiatives.

The only possible conclusion to be drawn here is that Brezhnev and Andropov and their colleagues came to regard the pope as a serious political liability, especially as regards Poland, and launched a plot to have him rubbed out.

The chief task should be to underline the meaning of the whole thing, and that meaning is the nature of the Soviet leadership and the Soviet system.

It's not Charlie the Tuna out there in the international water. It's Jaws.

EDWARD J. WALSH

Another Marxist Challenge

It appears likely that the current crisis in the Philippines will present the United States with yet another challenge of dealing with a traditional ally under pressure from Marxist guerilla war, economic stagnation and international vilification over "human rights" policies.

The U.S. record on handling these situations is not good. In the late seventies, President Carter decided that the United States was powerless to halt the radical "forces of change" in Nicaragua and Iran. Both those countries, although very different in nearly every way, were governed by autocratic, anti-communist heads of state who had been in office for many years. Today, Nicaragua and Iran are ruled by anti-American fanatics whose regimes owe their existence to a very great degree to Mr. Carter's refusal to support their former enemies — that is to say, our allies, who while far from ideal, stood with the U.S. rather than against it.

A similar danger now looms in the Philippines, a pathetically poor country of 51 million. President Ferdinand Marcos, 67 years old, has been in power for 19 years. Throughout his tenure he has supported U.S. security interests in the Western Pacific, even when anti-Americanism ran rampant in certain of his Pacific Basin neighbors during the Vietnam War.

The Philippines is America's most important ally in the underdeveloped world.

Despite the accusations of the Left, the United States cannot keep President Marcos in power if his people want him out. Fortunately, most Filipinos are not Marxists. There is room for a smooth transition to a new pro-American government when Marcos retires. The chances of that happening will not be improved if the U.S. retreats behind platitudes about human rights that gratuitously provide the far Left with ammunition. The radicals attacking Marcos, like those that attacked Somoza in Nicaragua and the Shah in Iran are far worse than he is. If they win, it should not be with U.S. help — again.

CIA's Key To Contacts: Polo

WASHINGTON — The problem the CIA spy masters faced was a toughie: How to get their man in Honolulu in a position where he'd be rubbing elbows with foreign potentates and millionaire businessmen.

The answer: polo. According to Ronald Ray Rewald — a Honolulu investment counselor charged with fraud in the failure of what he insists was a CIA-front company — his bosses in the agency ordered him in 1980 "to use polo as a vehicle to cultivate social and business relationships" with prominent foreigners.

As it turned out, their Hawaiian eye did better than expected: He eventually became the owner of the polo club.

It wasn't all Pimm's cups and panettas for Rewald, though. First he had to spend six months learning to ride horseback. This became trickier than usual when he discovered that he was allergic to horses, and had to avoid any skin contact with the critter.

But Rewald rose to the challenge, and soon acquired enough equestrian expertise to qualify as a participating member of the Hawaii Polo Club. Its well-manicured greensward has kissed the mallets of local and international polo pros, as well as titled aristocrats like Prince Charles of Britain and King Edward of Malaysia.

In this exalted company, Rewald was soon mining a rich lode of useful information, useless tips and titillating gossip for the delectation of his superiors in Langley, Va. There were always half a dozen or more CIA agents at the polo club "working the foreign visitors," Rewald confided to a friend.

According to an affidavit filed by Rewald, other documents and intelligence sources interviewed by my associates Dale Van Atta and Indy Badhwar, four contacts made at the polo club were a particular bonanza for the CIA. They were the Guatamas, a wealthy Indonesian family; Saud Mohammed, a crown prince of the United Arab Emirates; Enrique Zobel, a leading Philippine banker, and Sultan Muda Hassanah Bolkiah of Brunei.

The sultan, an avid polo player, was a prestigious coup for Rewald and the CIA. His tiny country on the northern end of Borneo is one of the richest per capita in the world, thanks to its oil.

The friendship Rewald cultivated between chukkers paid off at a time when the United States was competing with other countries for the sultan's attention — and cash. Encouraged by Rewald, the sultan made his first visit to the United States, and the relationship has flourished since.

But it was Zobel, the Filipino banker, who was probably the greatest source of worthwhile information for Rewald and his CIA masters. One of the world's richest men and chairman of the Bank of the Philippine Islands, Zobel was a close friend of President Ferdinand Marcos and his influential wife, Imelda.

Tapping into the Marcoses had been difficult, because of the first lady's hatred and suspicion of the CIA. But it wasn't long before Zobel became, in Rewald's words, "a tremendous source of information on the thoughts and movements of President Marcos and his government."

Rewald told his attorney that Zobel "was not a fan of Marcos, but he had a close relationship with Marcos." He elaborated: "They would have dinner together, entertain other politicians and world leaders together. And he'd come back and tell me about it, with no idea in the world that I was with the CIA."

The two men went into business together, and Zobel even arranged a private meeting between the CIA spy and Marcos, Rewald said. The cost to Rewald of his polo-playing assignment was a bad back from a head-on collision with another horseman, and a 100-count indictment from his collision with the securities laws.

The cost to the investors in Rewald's investment firm was at least $500,000, according to the indictment. Whether it was all worth it, only the CIA knows for sure — and the agency isn't talking.

Tail Wind Helps 10 To Race Walk Win

By Rick Brunson
Herald Staff Writer

Ten men and women caught a good tail wind and hoofed their way to first place finishes Tuesday in the Golden Age Games 2-mile race walk competition at Seminole High School.

The winners competed in nine categories, separated by age and sex.

At the sound of the gun, it was immediately clear that Chris Christiansen of Venus, Fla., the 60-year-old silver medalist of last year's competition, would be the man to beat in the 60-to-64-year-old category. He got off to a speedy start, puffing his way around the track and slapping down his soles at a pace that put him out front early in the race.

The 6-foot Christiansen rounded the quarter mile track eight times and was the winner of his category and outpaced all entrants regardless of age. He finished at 19:03, seven seconds faster than his time last year.

He attributed his win to his rigorous training and competition schedule. He said he runs about seven miles every other day and hits most of the track meets on the senior citizens' circuit. Other runners gathered around him after the race for counsel as to how he trains.

In the 55-to-59-year-old category, Carl Mays, a 58-year-old Bellevue, Ohio resident, led the field. Like Christiansen, he travels the running circuit for golden agers in the Midwest. He said he started running because he was 10 pounds overweight and had high blood pressure. He runs five miles a day and competes nine months out of the year. He said he won because he "had a good tail wind."

In the women's 60-to-64-year-old race, a Lake Mary grandmother scooted her way to first place. Kay Thomson, 61, who won 18 medals at last year's Games, said playing baseball with her sons helped to get her in top shape.

She overcame a wrist injury sustained earlier in the year while skating backwards at a roller rink to win her gold medal. The tan, young-looking Mrs. Thomson said she has signed up for many other events and plans to have a fun, successful week.

"I just can't sit down and knit yet. Maybe when I'm 96," she said.

The race drew cheers and good-natured exhortations from the 60 or so spectators.

"If you ain't gonna go, get it out of the way," one man yelled to a contestant who was poking along the straightaway. "C'mon, get it out of second gear."

The senior trotters were a source of inspiration to the teenagers commissioned to serve as timers and markers by the Fleet Reserve, the race's sponsor.

"You can get a big kick out of watching these folks," said Jerry Hauck, a 16-year-old from Seminole High School. "I couldn't walk that fast," he said pointing to the racers.

One runner, in a class by himself, was 86-year-old Thomas Johnson, of Coral Gables. He waved to the cheering crowd every time he stiffly paced by the grandstand.

He was making good time until the very end when he tumbled to the pavement, scraping his knee and arm.

Later, he said he had overworked himself and just caved in.

"I was trying to catch that woman in front of me and I couldn't quite do it," Johnson said.

The retired attorney said he trained for the race by walking up and down the Smokey Mountains near his summer home in Waynesville, N.C. He said he got his herky-jerky stride that the crowd loved from his younger days. As a boy, he said he walked home from school along a railroad track and tried to step on every wooden tie.

"To hit the railroad ties, you would have to take a big stride."

He said jokingly he could have won if his wife, Lorene, would have walked with him a little more often.

Justices Retain Seats On Supreme Court

MIAMI (UPI) — Florida voters overwhelmingly decided to retain Supreme Court Justices Raymond Ehrlich and Leander Shaw in Tuesday's general election despite a campaign to unseat them for quashing two controversial amendments.

Roughly 72 percent of the state's voters favored keeping both Ehrlich and Shaw. Ehrlich received 1,915,691 votes in favor and 739,230 votes against retention. Some 1,878,678 voted for and 719,834 against Shaw.

Both men were criticized after the high court voted 7-0 in March to remove a state revenue-reducing constitutional amendment from the ballot because it dealt with multiple sections of the Constitution.

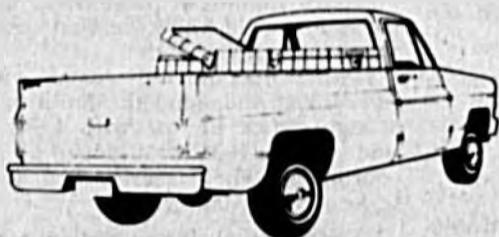

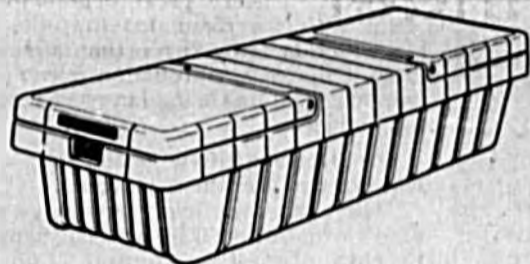

Amendments may deal only with one section of the Constitution.

It was the first time members of the Supreme Court or District Courts of Appeal had faced a serious ouster effort since 1976, when Florida adopted the "Missouri plan" of putting appellate judges to a merit retention vote rather than running two lawyers against each other.

"I think this vindicates our position," Ehrlich said. "It gives us faith that people are able to see through the smoke screen of special interest groups who want to take us out because we vote our convictions."

In addition to the Supreme Court justices, eight members of District Courts of Appeal also were up for merit retention votes. No effort was mounted to deny any of those judges.

All 'Tracks' Lead To Seminole High Friday

I saw in this comic strip the other day where two high school football fans were sitting alone in an empty stadium waiting for the homecoming game to begin.

They had arrived a bit early as the wife said to the husband. "This is interesting, I've never seen them line the field before."

Don't be surprised if there's an audience on hand when they line the field for Friday night's Seminole-Lake Mary clash. The fans will file in early for the second meeting between the intense Seminole County rivals.

Everyone who knows the rivalry knows the two schools don't like each other. And, it is rumored that each fan will be frisked at the gate (just kidding).

A lot of rivals like to make up jokes about each other and here's a few printable ones that I've heard recently.

From Seminole: There were these three Lake Mary High football players walking through the woods when they came upon some tracks. One player said he thought they were bear tracks. The second said he thought they were rabbit tracks. Before the third could say anything the train ran them over.

From Lake Mary: Question — How did the Seminole High football player break his back raking leaves? Answer

— He fell out of the tree.

After a slightly better than mediocre 6-4 mark last week, the Fearless Fister Forecast, not necessarily your favorite forecast but definitely the most imaginative, stands at 60-28-2 for the season.

Lake Mary at Seminole

Lake Mary is headed for the playoffs while Seminole is looking to win its homecoming game and maybe go on to a post-season bowl game. Since Seminole is out of the running for the conference title, it will throw everything but the kitchen sink at the Rams Friday night. When it's over the Rams won't know what hit them. Meanwhile, Fearless Fister's favorites for homecoming queen include Anita Smith and Ria Singleton. In the upset of the week — Seminole by 6

Lake Brantley at DeLand

The Patriots are headed for their second consecutive 8-2 season. DeLand will pose a few problems but not enough to slow Lake Brantley down. — Patriots by 12

Lake Howell at Apopka

Apopka is still among the teams in the honorable mention category of the state rankings even though it has been without the honorable Sammie Smith. But, the Darters will be given a dishonorable discharge in this the

(who cares about prognosticating records) week of upsets. — Lake Howell by 9

Lyman at Mainland

Anyone who saw an upset brewing in this one has had a little too much brew. Mainland's defense is tough and Lyman couldn't even find any holes in the Swiss cheese defense of Spruce Creek. In the non-upset special of the week — Mainland by 10

Oviedo at Ocoola

I guess they play at Silver Spurs Stadium in Kissimmee and everybody named "Tex" gets in free. The Kowboys have been pretty straight shooters this season, but they will have blanks in their guns Friday night.

In another upset — Charles "Pop" Bowers and the Lions by 7
UCF at Furman

Someone said I put the Knights on the spot by picking them to beat

Indiana State. Once they got up to Indiana, though, the Knights couldn't find the spot or the end zone for that matter. One of UCF's homecoming themes was the "Medieval Knights," and last week they played like a team from another century. There was an upset in the making here, but some of the parts are missing. — Farman by 18

Georgia at Florida

The game of the year in the Southeastern Conference. The Gators can spoil it for the Dawgs and nothing smells worse than a spoiled hound, except maybe some spoiled liver. You definitely won't want to miss this one on TV 35, know what I mean Vern? Cover your noses — Gators by 10

Florida State at South Carolina

The Seminoles go hunting Gamecocks in South Carolina Saturday, film at 11. South Carolina and Texas Christian (the Horned Frog) should go up against each other in the "Stupid Mascot Bowl." This might be called a mild upset — FSU by 8

Miami at Maryland

This will be called a wild upset — Maryland by 2

Giants at Bucs

Maybe there's a baboon (not Obed Aritri) waiting in the wings so coach John McKay can get an eye transplant.

Meanwhile, those Tampa Bay fans with 20/20 vision will witness the Bucs snatch defeat out of the jaws of victory one more time. — Giants by 14
Eagles at Dolphins

Somebody is going to beat the Dolphins before the season ends and the Eagles are betting that it will be the LA Raiders. — Dolphins by 21

ALUMNI-FACULTY — The homecoming weekend gets off to a rousing start tonight at 7:30 when the Seminole alumni and faculty get together for their second annual flag football battle. The faculty won last year, 14-12.

The alumni has loaded up with the likes of Tim, Levi and Ned Raines along with Mike Good and big Tom Ball. Brent Carl will run the show as quarterback. Tom Whigham is set to coach.

The faculty is headed up by Assistant Principal Lamarr Richardson, Assistant Principal Bobby Lundquist and baseball coach Mike Ferrell. The alums have been claiming they'll get their revenge all week, but Richardson isn't buying.

"We're going to stomp them again," said Lamarr.

Tickets are $2. Come on out and see the fun. All the proceeds go to the athletic department.

Posey Wants Same Start, Different End

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Seminole football coach Jerry Posey will take the start his team had against Lake Mary a year ago — but he'd just as soon forget the finish.

Seminole jumped on the Rams early, building a 19-12 first-half lead before disintegrating in the second half and losing, 34-19. In the initial meeting between both schools, while the digits on the Seminole side of the scoreboard didn't move in the second half, Lake Mary's rang up like a pinball machine.

"Yeah, we played a real good first half," said the 10-year Seminole coach. "And, we started good in the second half, too. We drove inside their (Lake Mary's) 30 before they stopped us."

"Then, we punted the ball and pinned them on the six-yard line. I thought we were still in good shape, but darned if they didn't drive 84 yards for a touchdown. Nothing went right after that."

The Seminoles and the Rams will meet for the second time Friday night at Seminole High School's stadium. Although Seminole, 3-3 in conference and 4-4 overall, dropped out of the Five Star Conference and District 4A-9 race last week when it lost to Lake Brantley, Posey said there are a number of reasons why he wants to square things with Lake Mary coach Harry Nelson.

"If they win, they're in," said Posey about Lake Mary's conference and district standing. The Rams have a 6-1 conference and district record and a 7-1 mark overall. A victory Friday give the Rams their first conference championship along with an initial appearance in the state playoffs.

"If they lose, then they go back to the drawing board," said Posey. A loss could create a three-way deadlock among Lake Brantley, Apopka or DeLand, Lake Brantley, 5-2 and 6-2, plays DeLand, 4-2 and 5-3, Friday. The loser in that one is out. Apopka plays Lake Howell. If it's a two-way tie, Lake Mary wins no matter who the other team is since Lake Mary has beaten all three. A three-way deadlock forces a tiebreaker playoff, probably Monday, Nov. 19.

"It's a natural rivalry," said Posey. "For us, it's down to nothing but pride. The kids live right there in the same town." Donald Grayson, Lake Mary's standout senior receiver, is the only player to attend Crooms High School. He played with many of the Seminole seniors while a freshman at Crooms. Grayson used measured tones when discussing Friday. "How can I put this?" he said Wednesday night. "I just want to beat them real bad. Let's leave it at that."

"It's homecoming," continued Posey. "This creates a lot of interest. We're had oodles of See DIFFERENT, Page 8A

Two of the backs Seminole defenders need to be wary of Friday night are Lake Mary's Scott Underwood, above, and Charlie Lucarelli, left. Underwood is the Rams' bread-and-butter fullback who runs between the tackles. Lucarelli is dangerous on the sweeps and counter plays.

Gators: Champs Or SEC Spoilers?

United Press International

Champion or spoiler? The role of the University of Florida remains clouded as the Gators, favored to wind up no worse than tied for their first-ever Southeastern Conference football title, continue to delay a decision on whether to appeal pending NCAA probation.

The 11th-ranked Gators, looking very strong in last week's 24-3 win over Auburn, are currently tied, with 15th-ranked LSU, for second place in the SEC, a half game behind the 8th-ranked Georgia Bulldogs, whom they are a 3-point favorite over for Saturday's game in Jacksonville, Fla.

Beat Georgia and only next week's game at Kentucky would stand between the Gators and a likely tie for the league championship with LSU, whom they tied 21-21 in early September.

But with the likelihood that the SEC might block Florida being its representative in the Sugar Bowl if the NCAA probation doesn't begin until January, beating Georgia may serve only to derail the Bulldogs.

The Gators' attitude is that they want to keep winning and take their chances.

"They can take away our rings and say we didn't win, but we'll know what happened," said Florida offensive lineman Lomas Brown. "Auburn knows we beat them and if we beat Georgia, they'll know we beat them. They can't take away our victories."

Florida opened its season with a loss to 6th-ranked, independent Miami but has won six straight since the tie with LSU, five of those under Glen Hall, who moved up from offensive coordinator when Charley Pell was fired in the wake of NCAA charges.

"They have all the ingredients of a championship team," said Georgia coach Vince Dooley. "They were simply dominant against Auburn. It's quite obvious they are using their talent better than ever before. It's probably the best Florida team we've ever seen."

Daytona Beach Wins

DAYTONA BEACH — Daytona Beach Community College successfully opened the 1984-85 basketball season Wednesday night with a resounding 102-60 win over the Flagler College junior varsity.

DBCC skated to a 50-28 first-half lead. Former Seminole High standout Willie Mitchell hit 2 of 6 shots and finished with five points. Ex-Lake Mary High star Fred Miller converted 1 of 5 attempts and had four points.

Burgess, Rams Splash After Individual Honors

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

Although their teams will be trailing the likes of powerful Winter Park, West Orange and Lyman, both Seminole and Lake Mary High have a few individuals with good shots at making it to the 4A State Swimming Meet.

Sixteen teams, from the Five Star and Metro Conferences, will be on hand today through Saturday in the 4A-5 District Swimming Championships at the Sheridan Aquatic Club in Longwood.

The diving competition gets underway today at 5, followed by the swimming prelims Friday at 5 p.m. and the finals Saturday at 1:30 p.m. The top three individuals and top six relays automatically qualify for the state meet (Nov. 15-17).

The fourth, fifth and sixth individuals in each event will be put in a pool with those from throughout the state and the top eight times in each event from that pool will also qualify for state. Since this district is one of the fastest, if not the fastest, in the state, the top six finishers in each event have a good chance to make it to the state meet.

Seminole's Chuck Burgess will look to repeat his Five Star Conference performance as he won both the 50 freestyle and the 100 freestyle. After Burgess, Seminole's best bets include Jamie Bojanowski and diver Marc Kleins on the boys team and Stacy Jiunto on the girls team.

Lake Mary has two individuals on each team who have excellent chances of making the state meet. The Rams also have a shot at qualifying all four relay teams.

"Scott Wise and Todd Stebbins should go in the 100 fly," Lake Mary coach Walt Morgan said. "The main thing in districts is to just get them qualified for the state meet. They (Wise and Stebbins) won't shave down until the state meet."

Wise is looking to qualify for state for the second straight season. Along with Stebbins and Wise on the boys team,

Swimming

Morgan said Joe Rosser has a good chance to qualify in the 100 breaststroke. Also looking for spots in the state meet are the 200 medley and 400 free relay teams. The same four swimmers make up both teams including Wise, Stebbins, Rosser and Mike Kurtz.

"Team-wise I feel we should be in the top six," Morgan said. "Winter Park and West Orange are the favorites."

For the Lady Rams, Sheri Clayton, who made the state meet last year, has performed consistently all season long and is looking to qualify in both the 200 free and 800 free. Morgan said Sherry Purkerson should also qualify in the 100 breaststroke and Amy Maher has a shot in the 100 butterfly.

The Rams will also try to get both relay teams in. The 200 medley team consists of Clayton, Purkerson, Amy Maher and younger sister Elna Maher. The 400 free team includes Purkerson, Jill Buddenhagen, Kelly McKeel and Danielle Poncina.

Coach Don Clark and Lyman, which won both the boys and girls titles at the Five Star Conference, will try to knock off perennial champion Winter Park. Leading the way for Lyman's boys team are Charlie Rose and Billy Cook and leading the Lady Greyhounds are Jane Hall, Karen Long and Shannon Parker.

Here is a look at Seminole County's top performers at district who are strong possibilities to qualify for the state meet:

Boys
200 medley relay — Lake Mary, Lyman; 200 free — Jangvall (Lake Brantley), Cook (Lyman), Plachno (Lyman); 200 IM — Rose (Lyman), Wise (Lake Mary), Gled (Lake Brantley); 50 free — Burgess (Seminole), Barnett (Lyman); 100 fly — Wise (Lake Mary), Stebbins (Lake Mary); 100 free — Burgess (Seminole), Barnett (Lyman), Mooney (Lyman); 500 free — Jangvall (Lake Brantley), Cook (Lyman), Palchob (Lyman); 100 back — Rose (Lyman), Mooney (Lyman); 100 breaststroke — Rosser (Lake Howell), Gled (Lake Brantley); 400 free relay — Lyman, Lake Mary.

Girls

IN BRIEF

Optimists Salute Brian Brooks; Burger King Cites Henley, Mull

The Sanford Optimist Club honored Seminole monster back Brian Brooks at its weekly luncheon Tuesday at Western Sizzlin' in Sanford. Brooks, a senior, collected six tackles, six assists and knocked down two passes in last week's loss to Lake Brantley.

"Brian had a real good game for us," said Seminole coach Jerry Posey. "Unfortunately, we didn't have any strong offensive performances, so we don't have an offensive award winner."

Brooks, Brian Brinson and Dexter Franklin were Headhunter award winners for their defensive play. Tackle Danny Stone was the only Hatcherman winner for offensive while Cliff Campbell picked up a Savage award for his special teams work.

In other awards this week, Lyman's Mike Henley (defense) and Lake Brantley's Curt Mull (offense) earned Burger King Player of the Week honors.

Henley, a senior linebacker, made 10 tackles and scooped up a fumble which he ran 15 yards for a touchdown as Lyman lost to Apopka. Mull, a senior center, graded out at 93 percent as Lake Brantley took care of Seminole, 28-0.

Runner Ineligible, Tribe To 2nd

Inter Park transfer Dorothy Garber was ruled ineligible and therefore disqualified from the 4A-5 District Cross Country meet this past Saturday, according to Seminole athletic director Jerry Posey.

Garber, a transfer from West Virginia, was ineligible for the first nine weeks of the season and the second nine weeks didn't officially begin until this past Monday.

Garber, who finished fourth at the district meet, will be eligible for this Saturday's 4A-3 Regional Championships at Lake Mary High.

Seminole High moved into second place in the district standings with Garber's disqualification and Inter Park wound up in last place.

WKIS To Air Renegades' Games

Orlando's WKIS (740) and the Florida Network have reached an agreement in principal to broadcast the games of the Orlando Renegades, the newest entry in the United States Football League.

WKIS-AM is the flagship station for Florida Network. It has 58 affiliates in Florida and 60-70 other stations across the state. WKIS currently broadcasts Auburn, Central Florida and Miami Dolphin football.

No announcers have been hired, but they will be agreed upon by the station and the Renegades. WKIS will broadcast 18 regular season games and two preseason games. It will also offer a coach Lou Corso pregame and postgame show. Corso will also probably have a show during the week, said station officials.

2 More Scratched At Breeders

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Folk Art and swift Seattle Slew offspring Seattle Song have been scratched from Saturday's $10 million Breeders' Cup program at Hollywood Park because of injuries.

Folk Art, who has romped to easy victories in her last three races, developed swelling in her right hind leg. Co-owner William Farish said the swelling became noticeable early in the day and the decision was made not to take a chance on further damage to the 2-year-old filly.

Her absence throws the $1 million race for juvenile fillies wide open, with Besaraabian or the Eugene Klein entry of Fiesta Lady and Tiltalating now the likely favorites.

Bennett, Hill Are Questionable

MIAMI (UPI) — The Miami Dolphins listed running backs Woody Bennett and Eddie Hill Wednesday as questionable for Sunday's game against the Philadelphia Eagles in the Orange Bowl.

Bennett and Hill both suffered ankle injuries in last Sunday's game against the New York Jets. Defensive end Mike Charles also suffered a severe knee sprain against the Jets and will be lost for the remainder of the regular season.

Coach Don Shula is expected to put Charles on the inactive reserve list later this week and reactivate tight end Joe Rose, who has been out four weeks with a separated shoulder, if Rose continues to perform well in practice.

Teams Shop For Free Agents

Baseball

NEW YORK (UPI) — Major-league teams go shopping today in baseball's annual free agent market and they'll find very few luxury items and hardly any bargains.

A total of 56 free agents — the highest number since 1977 — are available to the highest bidders and they run the gamut from catcher John Stearns, who has caught only two games since 1982, to Rick Sutcliffe, the National League's Cy Young Award winner this season.

The San Francisco Giants will select first in the draft, which is scheduled to begin at 11 a.m. EST. Clubs will draft in reverse order of their 1984 won-lost percentage with the leagues alternating selections. A club can draft as many players as it wants but can sign only three unless it loses more than that many. Teams losing more than three players are eligible to sign a number equal to the total lost.

This year's draft is large in numbers but low in quality. There are fewer than 25 players who would offer something positive to major-league clubs and hardly any who are going to come cheap. The price of a part-time player these days can be anywhere from $300,000-$400,000 so owners are expected to exercise great caution in pursuing a player.

Sutcliffe and relief pitcher Bruce Sutter are the big names in the draft and each will get considerably more than $1 million a year to sign a contract. Yet, the number of teams actively pursuing them will probably be small since not many teams can afford them.

Sutcliffe, seeking to become the highest-paid pitcher in baseball, has expressed an interest in staying with his old team, the Chicago Cubs, but he recently rejected a four-year, $5.2 million offer from them.

Sutter, who tied a major-league record with 45 saves last season, has had no comment about his status with the Cardinals and there should be at least a half-dozen teams interested in making him a millionaire.

After those two, however, there is a marked dropoff in bluechip talent available in the draft. Outfielder Fred Lynn and designated hitters Andre Thornton and Cliff Johnson are the only other Type A players available, meaning they ranked in the top 20 percent statistically among all other players at their position over the last two seasons.

But, Lynn is not the player he once was and Thornton and Johnson are one-dimensional types who have not played in the field for years.

The only other ranked player on the list is outfielder Steve Henderson, who has a Type B ranking. That means he ranked in the top 21-30 percent statistically.

Aside from Sutcliffe, Sutter and possibly Lynn, the players who figure to do best in the draft are outfielder Lee Lacy and pitchers Ed Whitson, Dennis Eckersley and Steve Trout. All are non-ranking players but are coming off good seasons.

Dave Kingman, who hit 35 home runs and drove in 118 runs for Oakland last year, probably won't have that many teams interested in him because his value to a team is largely as a designated hitter.

Fink Does Level Best To Dominate

Since March of this year, 10-year-old Tim Fink has been doing his level best to dominate the 10-novice competition class of BMX racing.

"It was fun, when I first started, but I was a bit nervous the first time I raced," said Tim.

Tim hasn't always raced National Bicycle League (NBL). When he first started racing, he was involved in the National Pedal Sport Association (NPSA). "We decided to try new sanctions," said Tim. "We thought NBL was better."

Fink had quite an exciting time when he first raced novice, because his first novice class race was at the Easter War of the Stars held in Orlando.

"I only made it to the semifinals that time," said Tim. Tim attended two Wars of the Stars later on in the year. He even managed to make the main event and win a sixth place trophy at the Rome, Ga. War of the Stars.

Tim is a fifth grader at Lake Orienta Elementary.

Tim, like many others, names the ever-popular Todd "Orbitt" Corbitt as his favorite area racer. "He's a good racer, and he's really crazy," said Tim.

Gary Slater is Tim's favorite pro.

"We are real proud of what Tim has achieved in such a short time, and we feel he has a lot of potential," said Linda, Tim's mother. "BMX is something the whole family can participate in, and we look forward to it."

Jay Staley and Darby Brown were neck 'n neck in the race for first place in the 7-expert class. Jay won out, and Darby had to settle for second place.

Nine-novices Eric Lucia and Jeff Lane were hot in the action Saturday night. Eric placed third, and Jeff brought home fourth.

First place in the 10-novice class went to Tim Fink.

Ten-expert Colby Brown placed third in his class.

Danny Lombardi was back in action Saturday night after being out with a dislocated shoulder. He beat out the competition to place third.

Also racing the 13-novice class was Scott Lucia. Scott placed fifth.

Mike Deagard and Brian Lane both competed in the 14-novice class. Mike placed fourth, and Brian third. "I've only got to get one more trophy to become expert," said Brian.

Fifteen-expert John Poole wasn't doing too bad in the competition either. He ended the night with a second place finish.

Young Takes Bass Lead

PALATKA (UPI) — Ronnie Young of Wichita Falls, Tex., caught a seven-fish limit weighing 17 pounds, 10 ounces Wednesday for the first-round lead in the $122,000 St. Johns River Invitational bass fishing tournament.

Young, 37, fished a plastic worm to lead a field of 287 anglers from 30 states fishing for a $28,000 first prize in the three-day tourney. High winds hampered many anglers in the contest.

Hank Parker, Denver, N.C., also caught the limit, weighing in 15 pounds, 8 ounces for second place. L.E. Clark, Palatka, was third with five bass weighing 13 pounds, 5 ounces.

Furious Mice Nip 5-Game Tailspin

Angelo's "Mice" broke a five-game losing streak with a flurry this past week as they smacked down the Experts, 6-3, in Longwood Women's Softball League action. Connie Walburger picked up the win, allowing eight hits and only one earned run.

Angelo's came fighting back from a 3-0 first inning deficit with a pair of runs in the bottom of the first on hits by Renee Kelley and Walburger. The Mice then took command in the third, coming up with six big runs. Stephanie Nelson singled, Terri Mann doubled to tie it up and Karen "Boomer" Boehmer smacked a home run to take the lead for good.

Kelley and Mann led the Mice batters with three hits each, both scoring three times. The "Boomer" added a pair of safeties as did hurler Walburger. Boehmer led with 4 RBI. Kelley, Walburger and Terri Coe had two apiece. Other run producers were Riane Richardson and Terri Blaney.

Defensively, Kelley was outstanding behind the plate with lots of hustle, a pair of putouts and an assist.

ICBA Signups Continue

Basketball

Signups for the Inter-County Basketball Association (ICBA) are continuing for all boys and girls who wish to play this coming season. The ICBA has divisions for 8th, 7th, and 8th grade boys and girls with teams formed from South Seminole, Jackson Heights, Tuskawilla, Milwee and Teague-Rock Lake Middle Schools.

The Altamonte Springs Recreation Department will have teams in all ages at both its Westmonte (Teague-Rock Lake) and Eastmonte (Milwee) locations. All boys and girls at those middle schools should contact the recreation department for signup information: Westmonte, 862-0090, and Eastmonte, 830-3880.

The players at South Seminole, Tuskawilla and Jackson Heights may register by calling Mickey Morton at 365-4040, Jim Norton at 365-6434, or Alice Fry at 339-8360.

In addition, there will be another clinic put on by Coach Dale Phillips of Oviedo High School, the Athletic Director and head boys' varsity coach. Coaches Greg Robinson and Dennis Codrey of Lake Howell previously held one last month. This clinic will be held on Nov. 10, at 10 a.m. at Oviedo High School.

Practices for all ICBA teams will begin later this month and a series of practice games, jamboree and pre-Christmas Tournament will all be held.

In addition to the Seminole county schools listed above who will play in the ICBA, there are teams expressing interest from Winter Park Recreation Department, Trin' Prep, Trinity Lutheran School, St. Luke's, Altamonte Christian School, Orangewood School and Southside football association.

...Different

Which has left another alternative. "(Darryl) Edgemon has run real well up the middle," said Posey. "It's been open for him."

And although Edgemon has run well, he doesn't have the explosiveness of Cliff Campbell, Dexter Jones or Jo-Jo McCloud. The home run threat to Seminole's offense has been stymied. The big play has been missing all season.

Falling behind is another area of concern for Posey. "If they score once, it's not going to kill us," he said. "But if they get another quick one, it will hurt. That's what happened against Lake Brantley and then they knew we had to throw. That made it tough."

Posey, nevertheless, was quick to point out that the quick score didn't dampen the Tribe's spirits against Apopka. "They ran that kickoff back (to the nine-yard line) and even though they scored, we never quit," he said. "We didn't lose our composure and we came back and whipped them."

No doubt, he'd settle for a replay of the Apopka game Friday night.

THOMPSON GONE — Posey said Wednesday that defensive back Deron Thompson has been dismissed from the team due to disciplinary reasons. Posey Theron Liggins, who had two interceptions in four games, was lost to poor grades. Fred Brinson is nursing a slight shoulder injury but is expected to be ready for Friday.

requests for reserved tickets. There are some people who don't come all year that come for homecoming, just because it is homecoming."

"We just want to beat them because they're Lake Mary," said Posey. "That would give us a real lift. It would push us closer to a winning season."

Posey said several things need to happen before the above four reasons can be realized. He rates Lake Mary as much-improved over last year, but Lake Mary say the same about his team...yet. "Heck, they have everybody back," Posey said. "They have to be better. Are we? That remains to be seen."

Posey sees the revitalization of the offense as a must. "We haven't been potent on offense since Apopka," said the Chief. "We just haven't moved the ball."

One major reason, he said, is the opposition's overwhelming concentration on stopping the Tribe's pitch play. "The halfback's bread-and-butter play is the pitchout," Posey said. "It just hasn't been there. Everybody concentrates on stopping the pitch. They put two men out there."

Sanford Senior Citizens Club Officers

Officers installed by the Rev. Leo King to serve the Sanford Senior Citizens Club for 1984-85 are, from left, Vera Streeter, corresponding secretary; Edith Flowers, treasurer; Lou Baker, president; Marj Boone, vice president; and Vivian Parreons, secretary. During the annual installation banquet at the Sanford Civic Center, the Central Florida Chorale performed for the 250-member club which was organized in November, 1972.

Dr. Bachman To Lead 19-Day Tour To China

A 19-day tour of China that will take travelers through the cities of Shanghai, Beijing (Peking), Hangzhou, Suzhou, Xi'an, Gullin, Guangzhou and Hong Kong, June 26 through July 14, 1985, is being offered for the first time by Seminole Community College.

This educational tour, fully escorted by Dr. Ann Bachmann, is open to members of the community also, and a knowledge of Chinese is not required.

The group will depart Orlando for Seattle, where it will then fly to Shanghai. After sightseeing in Shanghai, the group will proceed to Hangzhou (described by Marco Polo as "Paradise"), Suzhou, known as the Venice of the East, Beijing, the capital of China for over 700 years, Xi'an (site of the terra cotta army), Gullin (scene of fantasy-like beauty), Guangzhou, and dazzling Hong Kong for three days of incomparable attractions and superb duty-free shopping.

The price of $2,850 includes round trip air fare from Orlando, rooms with private bath or shower at best available hotels designed for Western travelers, three meals daily within China (American breakfasts, Chinese lunches and dinners consisting of many courses) and all sightseeing as described in the flyer.

Low cost optional tours are available on the return trip to Tokyo (only $180), Honolulu ($190), and California. Those interested are asked to make reservations now since the number of the group is limited. All rates are based on double occupancy. For a flyer and more details, call 339-8111 or 647-4034.

The Unsingable National Anthem Apt To Linger On

DEAR ABBY: I think it's time we changed our national anthem because "The Star-Spangled Banner" is practically unsingable. Also the tune was taken from an old English drinking song.

At the last presidential inauguration, Willie Nelson left out "the rocket's red glare, the bombs bursting in air."

Abby, if professional singers goof up, how can we expect school children to remember the words?

Some alternatives: "America the Beautiful." But with all those references to God, I suppose the atheists would object.

"The Battle Hymn of the Republic" would be wonderful; the "Glory, glory, hallelujah" part is very inspirational. Children would love it.

"God Bless America" would be the easiest to sing, but the atheists wouldn't approve of that one either.

How did "The Star-Spangled Banner" get to be our national anthem, anyway? And what would it take to change it?

PATRIOTIC IN SAN ANGELO, TEXAS

DEAR PATRIOTIC: An act of Congress was signed into law by President Hoover in 1931 making "The Star-Spangled Banner" our national anthem.

In order to change it, that law would have to be repealed and another law passed to replace it.

In the past, attempts have been made to oust "The Star-Spangled Banner," but they fell flat, so the melody lingers on.

DEAR ABBY: As the activity director of the Hillcrest Nursing Home in Twin Lakes, Wis., it's my responsibility to provide our 84 residents with entertainment and activities to make their golden years more enjoyable.

Two years ago I started what we call the Dear Abby Hour. It is very popular among our residents since many can no longer read. I turn to your column in the Kenosha (Wis.) News, and first I read aloud the "problem" that was written in. Then the residents take turns supplying the advice.

We discuss all the subjects that come up in your column — politics, sex, marriage, free love, child abuse and whether or not there is a left sock and a right sock. Some of the answers our 80- and 90-year-olds think up are better than yours, and funnier, too.

I thought you might like to know that the attendance at our Dear Abby Hour is higher than our current events sessions.

So thank you, from all of us, for the fun and entertainment your column provides.

K.I. IN TWIN LAKES, WIS.

DEAR K.I.: Thank you, K.I., and all the residents at Hillcrest.

Dear Abby

I just hope none of you decides to start a new career in your golden years.

'Santa' Knocks 'Em Dead In New Movie; Pickets Planned

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — A mother of two says she is organizing a group to picket a film scheduled to open this week because, she says, it portrays Santa Claus as a homicidal maniac.

"Something has to be done," said Kathleen Eberhardt, 32. "I had a call from a woman who said she had to tell her young children there really isn't a Santa Claus so they would not be afraid."

Eberhardt said she normally is not a politically active person, but that she is getting together a group to picket "Silent Night, Deadly Night" at three city theaters when the movie opens Friday.

Commercials promoting the film show Santa chopping open a door with an ax, then chasing people with a knife. He also pulls out a gun and starts shooting people.

One Milwaukee television station said it canceled its contract to show the ads and two others said they would show the commercials only after 11:30 p.m.

David Rosenfelt, vice president of advertising for Tri-Star Pictures, the New York company distributing the movie, said he was disappointed in the stations' decisions.

The ads say the man depicted is not Santa Claus, that he only looks like Santa Claus, Rosenfelt said.

"They (television station managers) didn't complain about the commercials for 'Friday the 13th,' which depicts 13 murders in the space of a minute," he said. "But for some reason we have to protect this revered image of Santa Claus. It doesn't make sense to me. But then again I'm not 4 years old."

"It's so ghoulish to do this near the holidays," Eberhardt said. "The little children are the ones who are hurt."

All You Need To Know To Build Up Muscles

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — What is meant when it is said that in bodybuilding the muscles are "torn" and "repaired"? How do they grow? Is extra protein needed for this? What percent of a professional bodybuilder's total calories should be from protein, fats and carbohydrates? Thanks for your help.

This has not affected his sexual performance, but can it affect his ability to father a child? Would our chances of conception be lower as a result of his accident?

DEAR READER — Probably not. You may have read of the identical twins, one of whom had been born without adequate testicles. He received a transplant of his identical brother's testicle and later became a proud father.

DEAR READER — The common statement that the muscle is "torn down" in strength exercises is wrong. The truth is much more exciting. When you don't use your muscles they do lose protein. Most of your muscle is protein and water, along with some fat. Inactive people lose muscle size and strength because their muscles lose protein.

When you exercise for a sufficient length of time, your body does use an increased amount of protein, but it does not come from the muscles. Protein, which is always broken down to its amino-acid building blocks, is processed in the liver. It is liver protein, not muscle protein, that supports your exercise effort. The liver converts amino acids to glucose to form new glucose. That glucose is supplied to your working muscles so you can continue to exercise. The liver also provides glucose from glycogen stores within the liver. As you continue to exercise, your body starts to mobilize fat, and fatty acids become a major source of energy for your working muscles.

The best way to build a muscle is by contracting it against as much resistance as you can. A few strong contractions — less than 10 — are more important than a large number of less vigorous contractions. Those few strong contractions use muscle glycogen that is already stored in your muscles. You need a day between workouts to permit your muscles to recharge with glycogen.

Be sure and include enough carbohydrate in your diet. You need it for your muscle glycogen.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
As usual with ambitious final contracts that have very little play, the bidding is neither recommended nor admired. South bid four diamonds because he treated the jump to three diamonds as a forcing bid, why North bid five is a mystery to all of us.

He won the heart king, played a low diamond to the 10 and trumped a heart with the diamond ace. Another low diamond to dummy drew the defenders' remaining trumps.

If the defense had started by taking their clubs, there would have been no realistic play for 11 tricks. Instead, West led the heart queen. On the surface, bringing in this contract seems to depend on not losing a spade trick. That can be managed in the normal course of events only if West holds the king doubleton. South saw one additional chance and took it.

Declarer played the heart ace, shedding a club, and ruffed dummy's last heart. Next a spade was played to the jack. When declarer now exited with a club, the defenders were helpless. They could cash two club tricks, but what else? East had no second spade to play, and West would have to play away from the king. If any suit other than spades were played, declarer would simply trump in his hand and discard dummy's low spade.

HOROSCOPE

What The Day Will Bring...

YOUR BIRTHDAY NOVEMBER 9, 1984

An interesting proposal with far-reaching possibilities may be presented to you this coming year. Size it up carefully and get everything in writing before you commit yourself. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you're entering into an important agreement today, be sure to get even the most minute details in writing. Don't sign until you're satisfied. Major changes are in store for Scorpios in the coming year. Send for your predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll get a lot more accomplished today if you do what needs to be done unassisted. People who lack your drive will hold you back rather than spur you on. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Strive to be detail-conscious today. Don't take little things for granted because they could later turn out to be burrs under your saddle. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Follow your compassionate instincts today, rather than the advice of the unfeeling. Help one who needs your aid regardless of what others say. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The tolerance and understanding you show to friends today may not be evident in your dealings with family members or in-laws. ARIES (March 21-April 19) Actions speak louder than words today. Do what needs to be done first, talk about it later. Follow this procedure instead of reversing it. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You are very capable of managing difficult situations today, but don't look to others for praise or pats on the back. Unfortunately, they may not be forthcoming. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Try to keep your business or financial dealings screened from the views of outsiders today. Their input could cause unnecessary complications. CANCER (June 21-July 22) Treat associates with respect today and you'll readily gain their cooperation. But this won't be true of people you play down. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Put the fulfillment of your ambitions above your social interests today. Frivolous pursuits will gain you nothing, but hard work reaps rewards. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be cognizant of your behavior in front of others today. Someone who is a bit resentful of you will jump at the chance to condemn you to your peers. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In critical situations today you'll instinctively know how to make the right moves. Yet, once you've accomplished your purpose, you may later doubt your wisdom.
