SMACK!

Lake Mary Mayor Walter Sorenson paid his $1 and got the opportunity to smack City Councilman Gene McDonald in the face with a pie Thursday night. McDonald is to be out of town and unable to participate as a target in the pie-throwing contest to be held July 1. The contest is to be part of the Lake Mary Rotary Club's Civic Improvement Association effort to raise money for a new civic center. The center is to be built on city property at Grandbend Avenue and Country Club Road. A full day of old-fashioned activities are planned, concluding with giving the highest bidder the opportunity to "tar and feather" the mayor.

Lake Mary Tax Hike Looks Certain, Too

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Property tax hikes look inevitable for Lake Mary residents for the new 1982 fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, but city fathers can't say how much the increase is likely to be.

Earlier this week it was reported that Sanford and Seminole County are also considering tax rate hikes.

Lake Mary Mayor Walter Sorenson said today that the removal of business inventories from the taxrolls, mandated by the Legislature just prior to its recent adjournment, will cost the city about $50,000 annually in revenues. In addition the city will lose another $30,000 in revenues from increased homestead exemptions, he estimated.

But Sorenson at noon today said he just learned from State Rep. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, that the repeal of the inventory tax will not become effective until fiscal 1983.

The Lake Mary City Council, in a workshop session following its regular meeting Thursday night, considered a preliminary budget submitted by City Manager Phil Kulbes.

The preliminary budget, prepared prior to city officials finding out about the lost inventory tax revenues, totaled $507,870 in general fund revenues and expenditures and $198,967 in water and sewer fund revenues and expenditures.

The anticipated tax rate under Kulbes' proposal would have been increased from the current $3.84 per $1,000 assessed property value to $4.68.

"I had thought we would be able to trim the (proposed) $4.68 rate very nicely," Sorenson said. But he said it appears nearly impossible to keep the same tax rate as the current year or to hold the increase to a modest one.

"A tax increase appears inevitable," he said.

Sorenson said the council will hold at least two more intensive budget workshops before coming to a consensus on a final budget to be submitted to the public during a public hearing.

The inclusion of a 10 percent pay raise for city personnel in the proposal was for discussion purposes only the mayor said.

During the current fiscal year the city has budgeted in anticipated revenues and expenditures $496,542 and in proposing $567,870 in the new year. The major increase in revenues anticipated from a higher tax rate is $324,956 up from the current $251,592.

Casselberry Plans To Get Tough

Water Wasted, Officials Charge

Casselberry Mayor Owen Sheppard will ask city council members Monday night to tighten the ban on outside water use since local citizens "are being just plain, old wasteful."

The present restriction forbids use of water outside except for the hours of 8:00 a.m. until 12:00 noon Monday through Friday.

"But," Sheppard said, "I've driven through city neighborhoods and seen unattended sprinklers left on with water running down the street. It's just senseless waste."

Sheppard will ask officials to approve an alternate moratorium plan he has devised to remedy the water system's critically low pressure.

The proposal, if passed, will divide moratorium hours between the city's even and off numbered residences Monday through Saturday. Even addresses would only be allowed to use water outside from 8:00 a.m. until noon on even numbered days.

Odd addresses would use water outside during these same morning hours but only on odd numbered days. No outside usage would be allowed on Sunday.

According to police reports, the present moratorium is being violated despite neighborhood patrols.

Police Records Supervisor Bettie Neal said some 146 case cards have come in during the last four weeks from officers who issued warnings to illegal waterers.

Additionally, Casselberry officials, say, citizens have called to complain about neighbors who are violating the moratorium.

Sheppard said the leniency of police would have to stop if violations continue. "Up to now, we haven't imposed any fines because the violators reported aren't repeaters, the mayor said.

"But our water pressure is so low, we're going to have to take steps in eliminating illegal watering, Sheppard added. "And we're going to start issuing violation citations if this keeps up."

According to the city's utilities division, Casselberry's water tanks can store between 8½-9 million gallons of water a day.

But water usage is so high, the department has been instructed by Sheppard to turn off the water when the level gets too low. An emergency may arise any day, he said.

In addition to asking for increased water restriction Sheppard will ask the moratorium be extended for 30 days past its June 30 deadline. —SYBIL MITCHELL GANDY

Resignation Opening For Woman Justice?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Justice Potter Stewart's surprise decision to retire from the Supreme Court while in good health and — for the court — at the youngish age of 66 was one of Washington's best kept secrets.

Stewart, a registered Republican who regards Cincinnati as his home, will leave at the end of the current court term in July. He has served on the high court nearly 23 years.

His retirement gives President Reagan his first appointment to a bench dominated by men of more than 70 years, and opens the possibility he will fulfill a campaign promise by appointing the court's first woman justice.

Stewart announced his plan Thursday — one month after personally delivering a letter to Reagan saying, "It is time to go."

He gave no reason for his unexpected decision, which remained a secret from the public despite a search by the Justice Department for a successor.

Stewart plans to hold a news conference today — the first such event by a justice since William O. Douglas met with reporters a month before his retirement in 1975.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said the president telephoned Stewart after the justice made his plans public.

In a letter, Reagan said Stewart had shown "unfailing dedication to the court, to the highest standards of the legal profession, and to the fundamental principles and protections of our Constitution."

Reagan later said, "There will be an announcement shortly" on a replacement. "We won't leave that office vacant."

Stewart's secretary Carolyn Sand, said Stewart "is in good health and that's one of the reasons he is retiring."

Stewart is considered in the center on the conservative-liberal spectrum of the nine-man court and has defied attempts to predict his position on key constitutional issues.

Appointed by President Dwight Eisenhower in 1958, Stewart is retiring from a lifetime position that pays $88,700 a year. His most recent financial statement showed him to be the second wealthiest member of the court with assets of up to $2.4 million.

He will retire on full salary and is eligible to be assigned by the chief justice to sit on any federal court.

Stewart, a serious cigarette smoker, is known as a prodigious worker — toiling Saturdays at the office, and nearly every night and Sundays at home.

He once said the Supreme Court "is the best job the American people have to offer."

The somewhat chunky Stewart is fond of quips and often lighthearted oral arguments with offhand comments that brought laughter from fellow justices, counsel and the gallery. But he prepared extensively, often spending two days in preparation for each day of oral argument.

His retirement leaves the first opening on the court since President Gerald Ford appointed Justice John Paul Stevens in 1975 to replace Douglas, long the court's leading liberal.

Reagan Says No Substitute Budget To Be Offered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan will try to amend the Democrats' $37 billion package of federal spending cuts rather than offer his own substitute on the House floor, a White House official said today.

The decision means there probably will be fights on the House floor over six or seven specific budget cuts Reagan wants changed, rather than a massive battle between two bills.

Because only 25 percent of the Democratic proposal is unacceptable to Reagan, the administration decided to try to amend the Democratic version rather than offer a full Republican substitute, according to the official, who declined to be identified.

Deputy press secretary Larry Speakes confirmed that about 65 percent to 75 percent of the Democratic plan is acceptable to the president.

Speakes said the president was "leaning" toward negotiating with the Democrats, but he would not confirm that a decision has been made on what way to approach the Democratic bill.

Discussions were continuing both at the White House and on Capitol Hill, Speakes said, "and it is not yet firmly settled."

The Republicans at first criticized a long list of cuts imposed by Democratic-dominated committees, but some of the proposals have been revised during the past few days, leaving a smaller target for a GOP assault. Speakes denied the White House was trying to run "roughshod" over Congress.

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill said Thursday the White House was orchestrating a new budget fight without giving Republican House leaders a voice.

"That's simply not true," Speakes said. "What we're doing is we are attempting to have Congress hold true to the original budget resolution instead of packing it with phony cuts and ridiculous cuts that will clearly be added on later and will bust the budget."

Democrats on the House Budget Committee moved Thursday to keep Republicans off the battlefield when the full House debates the bill by blocking them from offering their alternative package of cuts.

The budget panel Thursday voted 18-13, basically along party lines, to ask the Rules Committee to prohibit a Republican alternative.

Democrats said they had not seen the GOP proposal, but committee Republicans and conservative Democrat Phil Gramm of Texas complained the Democrats were trying to keep their colleagues from having a choice.

U.S., Iraq Agree On Israel Slap

UNITED NATIONS — The United States informally agreed to a resolution condemning but not punishing Israel for the destruction of an Iraqi nuclear reactor, setting the stage for its adoption by the U.N. Security Council.

The agreement, which says Iraq is entitled to "appropriate redress" for the attack but does not call for sanctions against Israel, was reached Thursday after days of intense backstage negotiations between U.S. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick and Iraqi Foreign Minister Saddam Hammadi.

The U.N. Security Council was expected to adopt the resolution unanimously today, barring any last-minute objections to it by either the United States or Iraq.

If passed it will be the strongest condemnation so far of the Israeli action by the United States, which is seeking to shore up its credibility with Arab states.

Israel's U.S.-built fighterbombers struck the Osirak reactor near Baghdad on June 7, destroying the installation with 2,000 pound bombs.

Did U.S. Agency Give Israelis Information To Destroy Reactor?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Eight months before its successful attack on Iraq's nuclear facility, the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission gave Israel an estimate of how much damage could be done to a nuclear reactor with 2,000-pound bombs.

The implication in the Israeli Embassy's request for the meeting with NRC structure specialists was that Israel was worried about protecting its nuclear facilities from terrorists, NRC spokesman Frank Ingram said Thursday.

The meeting took place Oct. 9, 1980, the same month in which Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin's Cabinet approved in principle bombing the Iraqi nuclear plant outside Baghdad.

In an Oct. 13 memo, NRC specialists who attended the meeting noted the Israeli engineers asked specifically for an assessment of the damage that could be done to a reactor by 2,000-pound bombs that detonate after penetrating concrete barriers.

The Israeli Air Force demolished Iraq's nuclear plant June 7 by dropping 2,000-pound bombs at low levels. The 16 bombs penetrated the cement walls protecting the reactor complex and the plant was demolished.

Ingram said at the end of the meeting the NRC specialists were unsure whether the Israelis were interested in defending or attacking a nuclear plant, but nothing more was said about it.

Councilmen Blast High Bills Of City Attorney, Engineers

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The city of Lake Mary may be looking for a new city attorney and a new consulting engineer.

Councilman Gene McDonald, after buffering his remarks by saying he personally likes the city's six-year veteran attorney, Gary Massey, suggested at a city council meeting Thursday night the city "may not be investing its money wisely" by paying Massey's $5,000 annual fee.

The fee does not include his charges for representing the city in court.

Councilman Ray Fox followed McDonald's remarks by pointing out the engineering firm of Clark, Dietz and Associates are billing the city about $20,000 annually for consulting engineering fees. — "over twice what the attorney is getting."

"We can hire a pretty fine engineer part-time or an average engineer full time at the cost of the fees we are now paying," Fox said. "We could hire a lot of expertise for that money."

Fox also urged a close look be taken at the city's accounting service. However, the city recently changed accountants from the Fitzpatrick and Hartsock firm to Green and Dycus, both of Sanford.

Speaking of Massey, McDonald asked his colleagues not to consider action on his recommendation until a full board is present. Councilman Ken King was absent.

McDonald said he researched legal service costs in other cities in the county. He noted that the city of Oviedo is paying about $8,000 annually while Longwood is paying about $9,000 and Sanford about $13,000.

"We should pursue getting other attorneys involved," he said, adding that Massey often comes to council meetings "less than prepared."

Massey, present at the meeting, did not comment on McDonald's remarks, nor did other councilmen.

Fox, speaking about the cost of engineering fees, said he was not proposing that anyone be fired. To a suggestion from Councilman Dick Fess that the city might look into sharing an engineer with another city, Fox said, "It is hard to serve two masters in adjacent municipalities. But," he added, "when fees get to a certain point, it is time to look for another way."

Clark and Dietz have been the city's consulting engineers since Lake Mary was incorporated nearly eight years ago.

Forget It Florida,

South Africa Has It

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI)— The world's largest orange, weighing 5½ pounds, has been discovered in South Africa's northern citrus region.

The fruit was found by a laborer in the Nelspruit district, 180 miles east of Johannesburg, the Ministry of Agriculture said Thursday.

The giant fruit outweighed the world's previously known record orange, currently listed in the Guinness Book of World Records, by 28.79 ounces. The South African orange weighed 3.31 pounds and was about the size of a man's head.

The Ministry official said the fruit would be put on display in cities throughout South Africa.

WORLD IN BRIEF

China Threatens U.S. Over Weapons To Taiwan

PEKING (UPI) — China threatened today to downgrade Sino-American relations if arms sales to Taiwan continue, dashing Secretary of State Alexander Haig's hopes of a "major expansion" of the relationship.

A commentary by the official Xinhua news agency warned that Sino-American relations "cannot even be preserved" at current levels if the Americans continue selling weapons to Taiwan.

It was the first substantive response to the three-day visit by Haig, who left Wednesday after announcing the Americans were prepared to sell military weapons to the Chinese and expand economic assistance.

Haig told a press conference his visit "foreshadows the prospect... of a major expansion of Sino-American friendship and Sino-American cooperation."

"The Chinese people treasure the relationship established and developed between China and the United States out of their overall strategic considerations," Xinhua said.

"However, if the U.S. side merely pays attention to the pressure of some pro-Taiwan forces and ignores the national feelings of the Chinese people, the Sino-U.S. relations cannot even be preserved as what it is today, to say nothing of any development," the commentary said.

Bani-Sadr On The Run

UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Iranian police manned border posts today in a full alert to prevent fugitive President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr from fleeing the country but Tehran's prosecutor conceded the suddenly powerless chief of state already may have escaped abroad.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, who suddenly turned on the moderate president this month in Bani-Sadr's power struggle with Moslem militants, told the nation Thursday the downfall of "counterrevolutionaries" and "Western-influenced intellectuals" such as Bani-Sadr was near.

Bani-Sadr, 48, who studied, then taught at France's prestigious Sorbonne, was to face impeachment hearings before the clergy-dominated parliament Saturday, as well as two separate charges before the Islamic courts.

A senior official confirmed there had been no contact with the president since Tuesday, when he went underground following the bombing of his house, the arrest of eight key aides and mass demonstrations demanding his death. His office reportedly was occupied by Islamic militants.

DA close relative of the president, contacted by telephone said "he is well," but refused to discuss his whereabouts. Other associates were reported saying "Bani-Sadr intends to fight on, if not as president then as political leader."

U.N. Troops Missing

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — U. N. peacekeeping troops battled presumed leftist militants in a firefight in south Lebanon today and four members of the international force were reported missing and believed captured.

The United Nations said one member of the peacekeeping battalion from Fiji and one of the gunmen were wounded in the brief skirmish near the village of Qana, 8 miles north of the Israeli border.

An in the Bekaa Valley, police said the city of Zahle was tense after a night of heavy fighting between the town's Christian militia defenders and Syrian troops of the Arab peacekeeping force.

The U. N. did not identify the guerrillas in the clash in south Lebanon, but security sources said they were probably Lebanese leftist militia.

The incident came hours after pro-Israeli Rightist militia gunners fired artillery on the southern coastal of Sidon. Beirut radio said three people were injured when a shell hit a gas station, setting it ablaze.

New Laser Offers Better Treatments

BOSTON (UPI) — A new laser that can hit targets in the skin without harming surrounding tissue has performed well in tests and could offer improved treatment for eye and brain disorders and birthmarks, a researcher says.

The new device — known as a dye laser — has a shorter-wavelength energy pulse than other lasers, said Dr. John A. Parrish, a dermatologist and research laboratory director at Massachusetts General Hospital.

That means the heat from its energy will dissipate before it can affect other tissue near the target area, he said.

Parrish said the new laser also could be tuned to a wavelength so that the heat from its pulse was absorbed mostly by the hemoglobin of the blood, itself, and not surrounding tissues.

In contrast, "the amount of radiation it takes to affect a blood vessel with other (argon) lasers is enough to change additional structures," such as sweat glands, hair follicles, and skin cells, Parrish said.

Lasers work by heating tissue to such a high temperature it is evaporated.

Parrish said one of the possible immediate applications of the new device could be the treatment of port wine stains — birthmarks created when spaces in the skin fill with blood.

Parrish, who is also associate professor of dermatology at Harvard Medical School, said other possibilities for the new laser are repair of eye or brain structures.

In the MGH studies, volunteers including Parrish and other researchers exposed their forearms to beams from either the dye laser or the argon laser, which is now commonly used. The target was a tiny portion of superficial blood vessel.

Each treatment took 300 nanoseconds. A nanosecond is one-billionth of a second. The affected tissue reached a temperature of at least 176 degrees Fahrenheit.

Body Identified In DeLand Murder-Suicide

By BRITT SMITH
Herald Staff Writer

The identity of a woman found Wednesday night in a shallow grave east of DeLand has been tentatively identified as that of Linda L. Boyd, 20, of 2930 E. New York, DeLand.

Boyd, who worked as a bartender, was shot once in the back of the head by a high-powered rifle and then dumped in a grave behind her house, according to Volusia County sheriff's detective Lt. Ed Carroll.

Boyd was apparently shot at her home around 6 p.m. Wednesday by Allen Edward Thrasher, 34, of 804 Oakmont Court southwest of DeLand, Carroll said.

After shooting Boyd, Thrasher is believed to have driven back to his house and killed himself with a single shot to the head from another high-powered rifle, Carroll said.

Thrasher had been staying at the Boyd home since separating from his wife. Carroll would not speculate as to a possible motive in the murder-suicide.

DON'T SMOKE DOPE WITH COPS

A 24-year-old Altamonte Springs man was in the Seminole County Jail this morning charged with drug law violations after offering a marijuana cigarette to a uniformed law enforcement officer.

According to Seminole County sheriff's deputy Greg Bare, he was in the Dunkin' Donuts shop on State Road 436 in Altamonte Springs about 3:30 a.m. today when Charles R. Selsor of 308-D Cherokee Court, Altamonte Springs, began talking about his illicit drug use.

Bare, who was in uniform, said he told Selsor he was a cop, but Selsor didn't take the hint. Bare said he decided to play along and asked Selsor if he had any marijuana. Selsor said yes and the two went outside to Selsor's car to smoke a joint.

As Selsor was rolling the illegal cigarette, he was arrested for possession and delivery of a controlled substance. He was jailed under $8,000 bond.

TWO VISITORS DROWN

Two out-of-state visitors to Seminole County drowned in separate incidents Thursday.

The body of Elmer Kaiser, 68, of Penn Yarn, N.Y., was found fully clothed in the deep end of a swimming pool at 147 Holderness Drive in the Wekiva Hunt Club subdivision.

Kaiser, who was visiting at the residence, apparently fell in while watering some plants, according to sheriff's deputies.

The second incident occurred about 7:25 p.m. when George R. Lange, 33, of Humboldt, Tenn., was pulled from a pond near Lake Kathryn in Chuluota.

A youngster who was also swimming in the pond at the time, saw Lange splashing desperately about and went to call help. However, by the time he returned, it was too late. Lange's body was pulled from the bottom of the shallow pond by local residents.

'THE MOLE' NETS CASH, GOODS

A man police have dubbed 'The Mole' got away with $1,400 in cash and merchandise Wednesday after burrowing through five stores in the San Sebastian Square on State Road 436 in Altamonte Springs by knocking holes in walls.

According to police, the burglar began his foray at the Nautilus Fitness Center where he stole an undetermined amount of money from a cash box. He then proceeded to ransack four adjoining stores after knocking holes in the walls.

Airlines Announce Service Cutbacks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Airlines are beginning to limit flights in anticipation of a nationwide air traffic controllers strike Monday.

The controllers, who guide planes into and out of airports, have threatened to go on strike beginning with the day shift Monday if their demands for better pay and working conditions are not met.

Some airlines began advertising Thursday that they are accepting reservations based on limited Federal Aviation Administration plans to handle an as-yet undetermined number of the nation's 800,000 daily air passengers.

"People are going to have to call us to either book or rebook reservations," said Joseph Hopkins of United Air Lines, which began taking contingency reservations today.

United normally operates 1,192 daily flights, but would be confined to about 500 under the FAA's contingency plans.

The White House reaffirmed its intention not to offer the controller union members any more in the way of pay and fringe benefits than what already has been proposed by the FAA — and rejected Wednesday by the union.

Although no new negotiations were scheduled, the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization announced late Thursday it would sign the FAA's proposed contract in return for White House endorsement of amended legislation to be introduced in Congress today.

The union said it was told the House would convene briefly for Rep. William Clay, D-Mo., to sponsor a revised bill permitting a top base pay of $59,200 instead of the $73,400 in the original Clay bill.

That would still be at least $9,000 more than a top Civil Service worker now may earn.

The White House response was not long in coming. "We're not going to support a bill that raises the pay," said Craig Fuller, a deputy assistant to the president.

Under the government's emergency plans, the FAA, using its own personnel, would handle monthly 5,000 commercial flights the first day in a "worst case" situation.

KEEPING

SEMINOLE GREEN

Seminole County Forester Mike Martin presents Mrs. Robert McCaskill with an "American Tree Farm" sign designating approximately 14 acres of the McCaskills' land near the Sanford Airport as a forest management area. The McCaskills recently seeded their property 10,000 slash pine trees provided by the state Forestry Division at cost. The division's tree-planting program is designed to take idle land and convert it to woodlands, thereby creating valuable habitat for various forms of wildlife as well as a source of commercial pulpwood and saw timber products. Also, turning vacant investment property into tree-studded agricultural acreage can lower a landowner's tax liability. Persons interested in the Tree Farm program should contact Martin through the county.

Dramatic Testimony Concludes Abortion Hearing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After hearing from scientists, politicians, constitutional lawyers and theologians, a prolonged congressional hearing on abortions concluded with dramatic testimony from three women.

The victim of a miscarriage, a peace activist who called abortion violence and a lawyer who argued for abortion before the Supreme Court presented their cases Thursday to the Senate Judiciary subcommittee on Separations of Powers.

The panel, which began hearings April 22, is considering a bill that would define human life as starting with conception. By giving the unborn rights, it would negate the 1973

Supreme Court decision that legalized abortions.

Dr. Carolyn Gerster, of Phoenix, Ariz., testified in opposition to abortion.

When Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., an advocate of Women's right to abortions, challenged her position, Dr. Gerster told her own story.

She told of her five children, of four others of her children who died, and of having a miscarriage in her own examination room while 13 weeks pregnant.

Wiping away a tear and her voice breaking, Dr. Gerster said she turned — "a glob is what some people call it" — over in her hand and saw a tiny boy, 3 inches long. "If a mature woman could not handle this, how can a teenager girl?" she asked. "I believe... abortion is a crime with two victims, and the mother is as much a victim as the unborn child."

Mary Meehan, a peace activist, said the political left has always believed government ought to protect the weak and helpless from assault by the strong.

"For reasons I do not fully understand, the largest civil liberties group in our country, which traditionally has championed the defenseless, has turned against abortion," Ms. Meehan said.

Former White House special assistant Sarah Weddington, who successfully argued the Supreme Court case that legalized abortion, noted the long list of eminent witnesses.

But Mrs. Weddington told of persons who had not testified — the 11-year-old girl in Nebraska who recently had an abortion, the pregnant welfare mother of three from Philadelphia who has cancer, the expectant Virginia mother who is watching another of her children die from Tay-Sachs disease.

Sen. John P. East, R-N.C., 50, the panel's chairman, also told a story — the story of his paralysis from the waist down from polio when he was 24, and his staff member, Karen Chapman, who was born deaf.

He said he objected to arguments by singer Judy Collins to an abortion on the grounds the fetus is defective.

"I'm troubled that Karen and I should have had the decision of whether we ought to come into this world and live, be dependent on this vague thing of convenience," East said.

"This has 'Brave New World' overtones to it. Why, it even begins to smack of the Nazi mentality — the disabled, the retarded will be eliminated," he said. "The right to life is not negotiable."

Mrs. Weddington replied that although "I can certainly appreciate your personal interest in the subject," the Constitution as interpreted by the Supreme Court says full legal rights come at birth.

Hispanics Told To Stress Education, Their Voting Power

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Former New Mexico Gov. Jerry Apodaca told the League of United Latin American Citizens' national convention Thursday Hispanics must stress education and the power of their collective vote in the future.

Apodaca's speech to the 6,000 I.U.L.A.C. delegates preceded an afternoon address by Vice President George Bush.

"Instead of looking for aid to materialize magically," Apodaca said, "let us unite behind one single cause: the sure and certain fact that the voice of the Hispanic could be the most important collective vote in the history of American politics."

Apodaca, an announced Democratic candidate for the U.S. senate seat held by Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., said although some studies indicate Hispanics hold less desirable jobs and have a higher unemployment rate than the majority of Americans, there is no reason to despair.

"We spent the decade of the 1960s complaining about our lot in life. We spent the 1970s wondering what to call ourselves: Chicano, Spanish-Americans, Hispanics. Now, in the decade of the 1980s, we are clearly faced with a call to action," Apodaca said.

He said the call to action should be a two-fold process.

"First, of course, is the concentration upon education. We must do everything in our power to see to it that our Hispanic youth is self-actualized in terms of significant positions in the arts and sciences, in the professions, in journalism and communication, in teaching, training, research and development — and, of course, in politics.

"In every community, we should pursue opportunities for collective education, for improving our lot by making certain that our youths graduate from both high school and college, and that they find their way into the graduate schools across the country," he said.

Apodaca said Hispanics also must realize their critical "swing vote" capability, and to exploit it on a national scale.

"When we deal with voting patterns, we must understand that this Hispanic vote could be the voice of decision in the awarding of the all-important electoral votes from the states of California, New York, Texas, Illinois and Florida — not to mention those of Louisiana, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico," he said.

Liddy Starts Counter-Intelligence Agency, Movie

NILES, Ill. (UPI) — G. Gordon Liddy has a new job protecting corporations and businessmen from bugging — the eavesdropping technique which sent him to prison for four years after Watergate.

Liddy, 50, who was convicted of conspiracy, burglary and wiretapping in the scandal that drove Richard M. Nixon from the White House, is a consultant for G. Gordon Liddy Associates Inc. in this Chicago suburb.

The counter-industrial espionage firm sweeps board rooms for surveillance devices, checks executives' children's phones for tapping and protects business leaders and celebrities.

"It is not what is called a rent-a-cop corporation," Liddy said.

"We find that an awful lot of the executives are very much concerned with their personal security. It's an anti-terrorist thing."

Companies want to protect their computer software, pharmaceutical formulas and marketing and design concepts.

"The need that we are filling is that there has been a transference of techniques... the intelligence community into the world of commerce and trade for the purpose of stealing what is called intellectual property," Liddy said.

"It's legal," he said of the firm's methods.

Liddy said a movie of his book "Will" is in the preproduction stage with actor Robert Conrad playing the starring role. He said he hopes the movie, much of which will be filmed in the Chicago area, will be released in September.

IN BRIEF

Another Body Found In Atlanta Creek

ATLANTA (UPI) — Attorneys for a free-lance photographer questioned three times about the murders of 28 young blacks wants a federal judge to bar the news media today from further using his name or calling him a "suspect" in the case.

Attorneys Mary Welcome and Jim White are expected to argue today before U.S. District Judge Orinda Evans that Wayne Williams is a victim of "prejudicial publicity."

Late Thursday two youths playing in a wooded area in northwest Atlanta found a body believed to be that of a black man in a small creek. But police said the death "doesn't appear" to be connected with the slayings.

Spokeswoman Beverly Harvard said the man's body was decomposed to the point it was impossible for investigators to determine the cause of death. It was taken to the Fulton County medical examiners office to await an autopsy, probably today, officials said.

Klan Members Indicted

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — A federal grand jury Thursday indicted six members of a militant splinter group of the Ku Klux Klan on six charges related to an alleged Memorial Day attempt to blow up a Nashville synagogue.

The six were charged with two counts of transporting explosives across state lines, two counts of using the explosives to maliciously destroy property, one count of conspiracy and one count of aiding and abetting.

If convicted, each member of the group could be fined $50,000 and receive a 45-year prison sentence.

Named in the indictment were: Gladys Girgenti, a 50-year-old Madison widow who allegedly ran the bombing plot out of her home; Charles Boyer, a Madison musician; William C. Foutch, a Madison art dealer; Bobby Joe Norton of Murfreesboro; James E. Nelums of Lavergne and David Garrett of Lacey Springs, Ala.

Ads Called Misleading

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader's health researchers Thursday accused the makers of Valium of conducting false and misleading advertising in an effort to pump up sagging sales of the tranquilizer.

The Health Research Group asked the Food and Drug Administration to order Hoffman-La Roche, Inc., of Nutley, N.J., to issue corrective ads. It also urged the FDA to tell doctors not to refill Valium prescriptions.

Dr. Bruce Medd, a company vice president, acknowledged sales have dropped off during the past six years, but "we absolutely deny that our ads are either false or misleading."

Medd said the new ads, run in medical journals and directed at physicians, are based on facts and supported by federal studies.

Navy Blames Pilot Error

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy says pilot error apparently was responsible for the crash of a plane on the carrier Nimitz and drug use by some members of the deck crew played no role in the disaster that killed 14 men.

At a congressional hearing Thursday, the Navy acknowledged six of the victims had used marijuana, but no traces of the drug were found in the bodies of the airmen.

"The data which I have provided confirms my belief that drug use or abuse did not contribute to this tragic crash," Navy Secretary John Lehman said in a letter to Rep. Joseph Addabbo, D-N.Y., a member of the House defense appropriations subcommittee.

Cooke Faces New Charges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Air Force 2nd Lt. Christopher Cooke, who as a college student warned against nuclear war, has been accused of making several additional contacts with Soviet officials and of disclosing military information — including missile data.

The Air Force broadened its case against the missile launch officer Thursday by charging him with contacting Soviet officials 13 times during the past year and giving military information to unauthorized persons.

Cooke was first charged May 28 with visiting the Soviet Embassy in Washington three times between December and May. He was deputy commander of a four-man Titan II missile complex at McConnell Air Force Base, Kan.

The new charges accused Cooke, 25, of Richmond, Va., of contacting Soviet Embassy officials 10 additional times since June 1989 without approval of his superiors.

U.S. Helping Arm Afghans?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States, working with a new "anti-Soviet alliance" of China, Pakistan, Saudi Arabia and Egypt, is supplying Soviet-style weapons to the rebels fighting Soviet troops in Afghanistan, ABC News reports.

The White House declined comment on the report.

On its "20-20" television program Thursday, ABC's Carl Bernstein said the United States enlisted the aid of Saudi Arabia, Pakistan, Egypt and China to covertly supply military weapons to the Afghan rebels shortly after the Soviets invaded Afghanistan in 1979.

"The CIA is coordinating a vastly complicated program of weapons supply in which a new anti-Soviet alliance" is cooperating to arm the Afghans, AEC said.

Gas Consumption Down

UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL
American consumers, reacting to past price hikes, conserved on gasoline and slashed the nation's crude imports by 20.7 percent in May despite a recent decline in U.S. pump prices.

The United States, the world's largest oil-consuming nation, cut its overall petroleum demand by 7.4 percent in May and reduced gasoline use by an estimated 8 percent below year-earlier levels, the American Petroleum Institute reported Thursday.

Gasoline accounts for 43 percent of daily U.S. oil consumption.

Despite Government Veto

Brooke Shield's Anti-Smoking Ads To Appear After All

NEW YORK (UPI) — Teenage starlet Brooke Shields wasn't the government's choice to warn youths about cigarettes, but she says her ads condemning smokers as "real losers" will be televised anyway with private funds.

Miss Shields, 16, said she might not date a man if he smokes, she tells off friends who smoke and she thinks smoking marijuana is the same as smoking cigarettes.

The starlet Thursday gave a press conference to tell what she thought of smoking and announced that $60,000 has been raised to distribute her series of commercials, which were intended for the government's anti-smoking campaign but deemed unsuitable by the U.S. Health and Human Services Department.

The agency said it felt Miss Shields, who played a child prostitute in the movie, "Pretty Baby," and starred in a series of designer jeans ads that were too suggestive for some television stations, was "an inappropriate model for teenagers to follow."

The actress said she was "very much hurt" by the decision. "I think I'm most appropriate because I'm a teenager myself and a lot of teenagers look up to me," she said.

In one of the commercials, Miss Shields tells about how she met "this guy who I thought was really terrific," but how it blew "my whole image of him" when he took out a cigarette. She looks up at the camera, pouts and says: "I think people who smoke are real losers."

"Something like that happened to me," she claimed. "It was a real story."

"I had one cigarette when I was 9 and I hated it," she said.

She said smoking pot is "just the same. What difference does it make if you're smoking marijuana."

The $60,000 needed to distribute the television and print ads — one of which shows Miss Shields with cigarettes in her ears — has been provided by the Rodale Press of Emmaus, Pa., a publisher of health magazines.

Miss Shields did the commercials for free.

BROOKE SHIELDS
The 16-year-old actress says she will not date a man if he smokes in TV ads to be aired thanks to a private fund raising effort.

Space Shuttle Gets Bionic Arm

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — The space shuttle Columbia gets a $100 million Canadian bionic arm next week that will raise its television horizons and give it a grip like King Kong.

The remote manipulator system, designed by the National Research Council of Canada, paid for by the Canadian government and donated to NASA, was put on display Thursday at the Kennedy Space Center.

The 50-foot-long manipulator, 15 feet in diameter, weighs less than 1,000 pounds. It is made largely of graphite and honeycomb metal. The manipulator is so fragile that while on display it had to be braced with a steel support system, but in space it is burly enough to sling 32½-ton loads.

Bruce Aikenhead, manager of the Remote Manipulator System project for the Canadian Research Council, likes to call it an "arm." The comparison is apt in some respects.

Wires controlling the manipulator's six electric motors and its mobile systems run down the top of the round cylinder, like veins and tendons. The outer surface is protected by a skin-like plastic thermal blanket.

There is a rotating "shoulder" joint at the point where the manipulator is linked to Columbia. A flexing "elbow" joint is provided halfway up the shaft and there is a rotating "wrist" joint near the end. But the "arm," manufactured by SPAR Aerospace Ltd., Weston, Ont., lacks a hand. Instead, there's a complicated "grab" system involving wire "snare," and gripping of shafts.

There are two television cameras on the manipulator, one at the elbow, another at the wrist. If the manipulator had been available and working during Columbia's first mission in April, many of the fears aroused by thermal tile fragments at the launch pad would have been eased by TV pictures long before the landing.

NASA also showed seven other experiments assigned to Columbia.

Guardian Angels In Miami

MIAMI (UPI) — The Guardian Angels, red-bereted citizen crime fighters from the subways of New York, have arrived to patrol Miami's mean streets — whether the city wants them or not.

"If the mayor and police chief tell us: 'Pack your bags and leave' — hey, we're not here for them. We're here for the people who need us," said Curtis Silwa, 25, founder of the group, as he announced plans to send a force of 50 to 60 well-trained, unarmed volunteers into the escalating war on Miami crime.

Neither the Dade Metro police force nor Miami police told the group to pack its bags. Neither force had any comment at all. A Metro spokesman said: "It's a wait-and-see-what-develops thing."

Silwa and Lisa Evers, 34, both founders of the citizen group that patrols New York subways and streets and has expanded to Atlanta and other crime-troubled cities, were in Miami Thursday to announce the beginning of a volunteer recruitment drive.

They said two other Angel organizers, Byron Pitts and Jose Bermudez, are scheduled to arrive today from Philadelphia to set up shop on the steps of the Dade County Metro Justice Building, taking names of volunteers.

They hope to get 200 of them — black, white and Latin — and cull out 50 or 60 well-qualified ones for Angel training, which includes martial arts, callisthenics and self-defense against knives, kicks, sticks and other weapons of the street.

The Angels were formed to patrol the streets and either stop crimes they encounter or call police. They carry no weapons. "Never, never," said Silwa.

"Miami is a bang-bang town," Silwa said. "We're totally against the concept of putting more bars on windows, putting more locks on doors, not wearing your jewelry. Our philosophy is: fight back, but within the law."

"Don't just call the great panacea in the sky, 911" — the emergency phone number that summons police — Silwa said.

Neither Miami Police Chief Kenneth Harms — who was out of town — nor Dade Public Safety Director Bobby Jones issued a statement about the Angels, spokesman for both forces said.

"I'm certain the director (Jones) will have something to say on it but he hasn't yet," said Metro Cpl. Ron Sorenson in the department's public information office.

"It's a wait-and-see-what-develops thing," he said. "We've always encouraged citizen participation in crime fighting. Police can't be everywhere. If it works along those lines, great. It's just citizen involvement."

IN BRIEF

Jury Awards Prisoner $26,500 In Brutality Case

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — A Florida State Prison inmate who accused a correctional officer of using excessive force to subdue him during a fight in the prison's main corridor two years ago was awarded $26,500 by a federal court jury Thursday.

John Middleton, attorney for the inmate, Jimmy Lee Leggett, hailed the decision and said it was the first brutality suit against a correctional officer ever won by a Florida prison inmate.

The officer, Frederick L. Badger, testified he was escorting Leggett to a disciplinary confinement cell on July 27, 1979, when Leggett, who had been generally abusive, punched him in the mouth, Badger said he hit Leggett back once.

But Leggett testified that other officers held him while Badger kicked him repeatedly.

The jury of two men and four women found that Badger was right in using force to subdue Leggett, but found the amount of force used to be "unreasonable."

Lightning Sparks Blaze

PANAMA CITY, Fla. (UPI) — Firefighters were battling this morning three large forest fires sparked by lightning in a line of thunderstorms that moved across the Florida Panhandle.

Of at least nine blazes touched off in three north Florida counties, the largest was a 700-acre blaze in heavy woods near Tyndall Air Force Base in Bay County.

Fire officials said none of the blazes posed a threat to any structures.

Ralph Williams, a dispatcher for the state Division of Forestry, said the largest blaze was burning through dense commercial forest land. Seven crews of rangers were battling that fire and one ranger, Ray Delgard, was hospitalized for smoke inhalation.

Tax Appraiser Suspended

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — State detectives investigating allegations that suspended Palm Beach County Appraiser David Reid solicited bribes in exchange for lowered property tax assessments have subpoenaed business records of five companies.

State Attorney spokesman Dave Casey said Thursday the subpoenas were served on J.B. Evans, Inc., a construction company; the Palm Beach Hotel; and three local firms owned by the Shear Group Inc., of Dayton, Ohio.

The firms operated by the Shear Group are Sherbrooke Management Inc., Sherbrooke Development Inc. and Shearbrook Land and Lifestyles Company, Casey said.

Reid was suspended without pay Tuesday while a grand jury investigates the way he ran the office. No charges have been filed against Reid.

In his suspension order, Gov. Bob Graham said one development firm paid Reid $10,000 and saved $48,000 in property taxes over two years. Graham said the investigation by the Florida Department of Law Enforcement uncovered evidence "involving public corruption and solicitation."

License Quota Bill Vetoes

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Gov. Bob Graham has vetoed his first three bills of the 1981 session, each of them affecting only one town or county — Orange and Palm Beach counties and Jupiter Island.

Graham knocked out an Orange County local bill (HB 517) restricting liquor licenses in Orange County which Graham said would "grant a further monopoly of liquor licenses to a small group already owning the scarce commodity."

The bill limited quota licenses to one per 4,000 residents of Orlando and unincorporated Orange County. That would provide nine fewer licenses than the 25 that will be available under current law which also provides for one license per 2,500 residents for other municipalities in the county.

At the same time, the bill grandfathered in all 101 existing quota licenses.

Where The Jobs Are

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Jobs in health care and computers are hot prospects right now, but it won't be enough to have a law degree in the future — law school grads had better specialize in accounting, counseling or business, too, says a leading education consultant.

"The jobs of the future will be in all areas of the medical profession — doctors, dentists, physical therapists, mental health specialists and hospital administrators," Dr. Leonard Krivy, who runs a New Jersey education consulting firm, said Thursday.

Krivy was at the University of Florida to speak to 112 high school honor students from around the country who are participating in the 22nd annual Summer Science Training Program.

Coptic Case A Witchhunt?

MIAMI (UPI) — Prosecutors are ready today to rebut charges by attorneys for nine members of the pot-smoking Ethiopian Zion Coptic Church that the government's drug-smuggling case is a "mad, scrambling witchhunt."

The prosecutors' rebuttal arguments are the last step scheduled in the nine-week federal trial before U.S. District Judge William Hoeverler charges the jury and sends them off to begin deliberations. That could happen today.

"I call this my official conspiracy construction kit," said Douglas Williams, one of eight defense attorneys who paraded before the jury Thursday. He held up a set of toy building blocks.

The prosecution's case, Williams said, "is a mad, scrambling witchhunt. Tell them (prosecutors) to pick up their building blocks and go home."

Other defense attorneys urged jurors not to let defendant's unusual, Jamaica-based religion — which regards marijuana as a sacrament — influence their decision.

Church Deplores Slayings

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — The Presbyterian Church in America general assembly, issuing a pronouncement on a matter unrelated to church business for only the second time in its seven-year history, has deplored the slayings of 28 Atlanta black youths.

The denomination's governing body issued a resolution Thursday saying the church feels "the pain and loss that has occurred in Atlanta over the past months in the killings of 28 men and children."

The killings are "affront to the image of God existing in all men as God's creatures," the assembly said.

The assembly asked the PCA New Covenant Fellowship, an inner-city ministry in Atlanta, "to express the concerns of this assembly to the local friends and families suffering during this time of concern, crisis and tragedy."

'I Thought I'd Seen Everything'

Woman Starves Son Because Of His Resemblance To Philandering Father

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mary Harris claimed she was unable to get her 4-year-old son to eat. Prosecutors said she starved him because he looked like his father, who liked to socialize with other women.

Miss Harris, 28, mother of three other children, was convicted of involuntary manslaughter Thursday in the 1977 starvation death of her son, Henry. Cook County Circuit Judge Fred G.

Robert J. Stein testified the child had no food in his stomach several days before he died. But Miss Harris contended Henry was unable to retain food, and that she had sought help but her pleas were ignored.

Assistant state attorneys Joseph Quirk and Frank Deboni charged Miss Harris intentionally denied her child food because he reminded her of Henry's father, who often went out with other women.

FDA Considers Sodium Shakedown

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government will urge the food industry to reduce sodium use and may require it to list sodium content on product labels, says the new head of the Food and Drug Administration.

Noting the nation's big appetite for salt and other sodiums, as well as health problems associated with the widely used ingredient, Dr. Arthur Hayes said Thursday:

"The government can't change people's taste buds. But there there are some things the government can do to reduce sodium content in foods and to educate people about the need to moderate the sodium content."

Speaking before the Washington Press Club, Hayes said "What we want to do is tell people how much salt there is in food (and) reduce it where we can."

Sodium has been linked to high blood pressure. Consumer groups have been pushing the government to reduce sodium in canned and other prepared foods to give Americans more control over what they eat.

"The problem is real and the pressure ... when you're talking about tens of millions of people (with high blood pressure) is great," Hayes said.

Hayes, a physician and clinical researcher who has done hypertension research, said there are perhaps 50 million Americans with high blood pressure.

"We are also looking into the need for new regulations — to require that sodium content of foods be declared on the label," he added.

Hayes also said he does not foresee the FDA launching many new regulatory programs beyond the one affecting sodium.

Our Rights In Conflict

The case of a suspect in the Atlanta murders who was taken into custody recently and subsequently released for lack of evidence has raised some distressing questions. What are the limits, if any, to society's right to news when it happens in a situation of intense national interest? And what are the rights of an individual who is merely detained but not arrested?

First, the background:

Excited television newscasters interrupted regularly scheduled programs that Wednesday to announce an important break in the Atlanta killings, namely that a suspect had been taken into custody.

The suspect, it soon turned out, was Wayne Williams, a 22-year-old black man. He was taken into custody at his home and, after being questioned by the Federal Bureau of Investigation most of the night, was released early the next morning because there was insufficient evidence to hold him.

Williams had been questioned and released previously on May 21 when he was apprehended after police saw him throw a heavy object from a bridge into the Chattahoochee River, where many of the victims have been discovered. Three days later the body of the 28th victim was found near that very site. Williams was picked up the second time on the basis of court-approved electronic surveillance devices placed in his car and dwelling.

Indeed, Atlanta Public Safety Commissioner Lee P. Brown has publicly declined to rule Williams out as a suspect.

Meanwhile, Williams has gone public with a denunciation of the FBI for what he described as harsh questioning tactics and he is now demanding a public apology from the FBI or whoever was responsible for leaking this information to the news media.

Undeterred by Ed Meese's scathing description of the American Civil Liberties Union as a lobbyist for criminals, that group has taken up the cudgel for Williams, asserting that his rights have been abused, that, in effect, his reputation has been ruined.

Williams and the ACLU make a good point about the devastating impact that publicity about him as a suspect is having. Who can deny it? Whatever suspicious actions have led Williams into these difficulties, he is still an innocent man under our system of justice.

But it must be said that an imperfect world becomes much more imperfect in an extraordinary situation such as that prevailing in Atlanta, which is crawling with FBI agents and newsmen, and where a supremely cunning murderer or murderers continues to stalk victims.

In so charged an atmosphere, it is unreasonable to expect that any suspect could be held and questioned very long without revelation.

Nor should the FBI and Atlanta police be intimidated by the Williams episode from vigorously pursuing every possible suspicion, every possible suspect. It may be impossible to get airtight evidence before a suspect can be taken into custody and, moreover, the FBI knows better than anyone how some difficult cases are broken only after putting a suspect through an ordeal of questioning.

The inescapable conclusion is that Williams can be said to have been dealt a real blow. It is highly unlikely, though, that this is the last time such a hardship will happen in Atlanta before justice is done with these terrible crimes.

Around

The Clock

By JANE CASSELBERY

"I've finally found a foolish young lady willing to come in and help raise my children" — that's the unconventional way Mayor John Hepp of Longwood announced his upcoming wedding at the city commission meeting this week.

The "foolish young lady" is Kathy Taylor and an apt title for this love story could be "John & Kathy Together Again."

Hepp, a widower with six children ranging in age from 2 to 22, and his bride-to-be have a lot in common. Three of the children to be exact. For this will be the second time around for John and Kathy, who were first married in 1958 when they were only 18. Divorced after nearly 10 years of marriage, Hepp later married his second wife, Judy, who was the mother of the other children.

The happy couple will be re-united in marriage at a home wedding on July 12 before a few close friends.

On July 1, 1968, the Sanford Naval Air Station closed its gates to become an industrial park, but this Friday, Saturday and Sunday it will live again in the memories of those who served there over the years. Former personnel and their spouses will be returning to town for the 13th Annual NAS Sanford Reunion, June 26-28.

Actually a lot of the Navy never really left this area as is evidenced by the Fleet Reserve Association on West First Street, which boasts a membership of more than 800 former servicemen, a large percentage of whom are former NAS Sanfordites.

Mayfair Country Club will host a golf tournament for those attending the reunion and their guests on Friday followed by a dinner-dance at the Fleet Reserve Club. At 10 a.m., Saturday morning the club will open to host the reunion, said to resemble a squadron beer party complete with a pool tournament and horse shoe pitching.

Anthony Lee will provide live music during the afternoon.

A farewell breakfast at 10 a.m. on Sunday at the Fleet Reserve will feature traditional Navy chow. The reunion events are open to Fleet Reservists of Seminole and their guests as well as former NAS Sanfordites.

"Save the Animals Day", a benefit for the Humane Society of Seminole County, will be put by AK Productions on Sunday, June 28 at the Lyman High School Stadium on County Road 427 in Longwood. A softball game will be played at 10 a.m. between the WDIZ disc jockeys and members of area bands.

There will be a rock concert from 1 to 7 p.m. featuring Spectre, Axes, Robert Cody Band and Crossfire. Tickets are available at Record Mart in Sanford or Altamonte Mall Ticket Agency or at the gate.

Rescue Plan For The Thrifts

WASHINGTON (NEA) — As reported previously, the nation's savings and loan associations are in bad financial shape. These so-called "thrift institutions" are being forced to pay high interest rates on the money that they borrow from the government and from commercial banks while receiving their income from loans made at earlier, much lower rates. The result has been a continuous flow of red ink that is threatening the whole system of savings and loans.

Dale Riordan, a spokesman for the National Savings and Loan League, says that U.S. thrift institutions lost $688 million in the first three months of 1981. He forecasts losses of about $1.5 billion for the first half of this year. Others are predicting losses closer to $2.5 billion for the first half and $4 billion for the year.

More than 90 percent of the nation's savings and loans are insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. That federal agency is the thrift institutions' counterpart of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which insures most of the nation's commercial banks.

An average of fewer than one FSLIC-insured savings and loan has failed in each of the past 35 years. When a small institution goes under, the agency simply pays off its depositors and sells its loan portfolio to another savings and loan in the area. In other cases, the FSLIC arranges the merger of the failed savings and loan with a stronger one in the area and compensates the acquiring thrift for any losses suffered in the transaction.

This plan works fine when the failure rate is only one or two institutions a year. But now the FSLIC has 251 institutions on its "problem list" of those that must be watched closely because of their financial conditions. The list is said to be larger than ever before and to be growing by the month.

An agency source says that if interest rates continue at or near current levels for the rest of this year — as many forecasters think they will — as many as 150 thrift institutions may lose their entire net worth and be at least technically insolvent by year's end. Another 150 could become insolvent if high interest rates continue into 1982.

The FSLIC is not equipped to handle a problem of such magnitude. Its reserves, which are used to bail out failing institutions and to assist in mergers, amount to about $6.5 billion. Last year alone it used up almost $1 billion to rescue three savings and loans.

Worse still is the near impossibility of finding healthy savings and loans willing to merge with insolvent institutions despite the FSLIC's ability to make up any losses incurred in the transaction.

This problem was until recently compounded by legal restrictions that such mergers occur only between savings and loans in the same state. Although the FSLIC now can go out of state to arrange mergers, few thrift institutions are secure enough to be viable partners for failed institutions, especially those of any size.

The FSLIC has proposed an answer to this problem that could change the whole system of banking in this country. The agency is seeking permission from Congress to sell failing thrifts to commercial banks — even those in other states.

This proposal has drawn fire from many commercial bankers — and especially from the owners of small banks.

Tobacco Industry Wouldn't Tell Smokers

WASHINGTON — Warning: The Federal Trade Commission has determined that cigarette advertising is dangerous to your health.

A recent FTC staff report concluded that the required health warnings on cigarette packages are ineffective because they are largely unread and widely disbelieved. The commission staff's conclusions were buttressed by the tobacco industry's own internal documents.

These revealing documents have been kept from the public by court order, and the section of the FTC report that analyzed them was also suppressed. But my associate Tony Cappacchio has seen the censored material. Consider this example of the way the tobacco industry sticks together in its campaign to hide the truth from the public, even when a potentially valuable competitive advantage is at stake:

A few years ago, the Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. was considering ways to promote Fact cigarettes. Its best feature was a new filter that offered greater protection from gases that may be linked to heart disease. B&W's ad agency recommended that the Fact brand be advertised as offering "more complete health protection through selective gas filtration."

Naively, the ad agency thought the new filter was a marketable feature. B&W quickly set the ad men straight. An internal document dated April 18, 1977, rejected the idea of offering protection from a danger the public wasn't aware of.

"Until the problem of gas becomes public knowledge through government investigation or media coverage, a low gas benefit will remain of little strategic value," the B&W document said.

The ad agency apparently kept trying to push its "better mousetrap" idea. This time the company was more emphatic. Talking about cigarette gases would actually be counterproductive because it "would require overt references to the alleged cardiovascular ill effects of smoking," declared a company memo of March 22, 1978.

"The possible ramifications of this in the Legal, Regulatory and Policy areas are appalling," the B&W memo continued. "(A) likely result of such activity on our part would be the escalation of quitting rates among smokers."

The FTC staff concluded, in the suppressed part of its report, that "despite the potential market advantage it might have obtained over its competitors by advertising the unique gas filtration system of Fact cigarettes, Brown and Williamson chose not to do so in order to avoid educating the public about the presence and hazardous nature of gases in cigarette smoke."

B&W wasn't the only one to deliberately downplay health hazards, according to the censored FTC comments. "Many cigarette advertising techniques appear to denigrate or undercut the health warning," the censored report states. "Information obtained from subpoenaed documents indicates that, at least in the case of several advertising campaigns, these techniques have been carefully planned."

Instead of reminding consumers about the dangers of smoking by stressing their product's safety features, the tobacco companies tried to associate their brands with good health, vigor and independence — supposed characteristics of the tough guy who isn't going to let the government scare him with health warnings.

Thus, R.J. Reynolds' marketing plan for Doral cigarettes sought to project the image of "an independent, self-reliant, self-confident, take-charge kind of person." And Winston's 1970 plan called for depiction of the brand's smoker as "a man's man who is strong, vigorous, confident, experienced, mature."

Cutting Through The IRS

Since we've all recently paid our annual tax bills, this seems a good time to take another look at what's happening to the Internal Revenue Service.

You remember IRS, don't you? It collects taxes. The federal government would have a mighty tough time operating without it.

So it would seem the first thing the Reagan administration would want to do, in line with its pledge to wipe out "waste and fraud," would be to make sure IRS is doing all it can to collect all taxes owed.

Not so, says the National Treasury Employees Union, which represents nearly all the 80,000 IRS employees. Listen to Vincent Conery, the union's president, testifying to a Senate subcommittee:

— About 2.4 million more tax returns will be filed next year but the Reagan folks want to cut 1,558 positions out of the IRS returns processing system. Machine-processing doesn't pick up the load — "most returns must be checked manually...the simple function of math verification produced revenue of $1.2 billion in fiscal 1980 alone."

— IRS "has always lacked the capability" to implement its system of matching dividend and interest income reported by companies and banks against individual taxpayers' returns. This is "a known source of major revenue loss" and will continue to be with Reagan-style IRS funding.

— Taxpayer services are being cut, too, so that 15 of every 100 taxpayers seeking help won't get it.

— Reagan's people are cutting 1,100 positions out of the IRS examinations division and this will result in 200,000 fewer audits next year. That may seem like good news for the taxpayer who's skating on thin ice, but for most of us it means we'll be making up shortfalls. IRS, says Conery, will "assess $236 million less in taxes, penalties and interest" than in 1980, three times the Reagan "savings" in the IRS budget. And for the first time in a decade, audit "coverage" — the proportion of returns audited — will fall below 2 percent, to 1.8 percent.

— IRS this year is supposed to administer the Oil Windfall Profit Tax and check "tax shelter" abuses without any new staff. In essence, that means neither windfall profits nor tax shelters will be monitored effectively.

The bottom line, says Conery, is that Reagan folks at the Office of Management and Budget want to "save" $43 million, giving IRS a $2.56 billion budget next year. Conery's union proposes a budget of $2.84 billion and has stitched together a 3-year program of IRS improvements that it says will cost $1.2 billion and bring an additional $10.3 billion into the treasury.

Roscoe Egger, Reagan's IRS commissioner, naturally defends the administration, but several former commissioners, testifying to a House subcommittee, say the Reagan cuts are penny-wise, pound-foolish. And when you talk to IRS officials, unofficially, they support their former bosses.

A major IRS problem, says the union's legislative director, Jerry Klepner, is that IRS employees are "feeling inordinate pressure to get rid of inventories" — that is, unutilized tax cases.

The idea is that an IRS agent is given a quantitative goal and must close a certain number of cases each month. So if a small businessman is in tax trouble (often because of increases in employee taxes, such as Social Security) and wants to stretch out his payments, the tendency is to crack down and either attach his bank account or seize his assets.

That's bad for the nation and a reversal of previous IRA policy, which was to be "understanding" in such cases. The quantitative goal also increases pressure not to do more extensive work needed on some tax returns, thus benefiting taxpayers trying to cut corners.

Finally, there's the problem of "the underdog economy." Recent studies by IRS and the General Accounting Office estimate that in 1978 $75 billion to $100 billion in legally earned income went unreported — "with a tax loss to the government of $13 billion to $17 billion," says Conery.

A cut-down IRS plainly can't deal with that. The union is obviously self-interested in fighting the Reagan cuts. But they don't make much sense to me, as a taxpayer, either. If you want to register your protest, write the chairman of the two appropriations subcommittees handling the IRS budget in the Senate and House. They are Sen. James Abner, R-S.D., Room 4327, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Washington, DC 20510, and Rep. Edward Roybal, D-Calif., Room 2311, Rayburn House Office Building, Washington, DC 20515.

A Thriving Railroad

ARCADE, N.Y. (UPI) — Can a railroad survive in these days of a struggling economy? If it's the 15-mile-long Arcade and Attica Railroad the answer is yes.

Despite the plight of its mammoth cousins, Conrail and Amtrak, the Arcade and Attica, serving rural Wyoming County just east of Buffalo, has managed to operate successfully a freight and popular passenger service.

The railroad recently marked the 100th anniversary of freight service from the village of Arcade to the community of North Java.

"We seem to be doing very well," says Arcade and Attica general manager Ruth Davis, believed to be the only woman in New York State to manage the operations of a rail line. "We're a freight railroad most of the time."

The line, which began in 1881 as the Tonawanda Valley and Cuba Railroad, employs a 90-ton coal-fueled engine and can even handle the large freight cars for industrial firms and feed mills in the immediate area.

"Conrail brings the cars to us and we deliver them along the way," Mrs. Davis said. New York State chipped in last July with nearly $1 million to help the Arcade and Attica improve its track.

The railway, however, is better known for its weekend and holiday steam locomotive excursions from late May to late October. The passenger service consists of a scenic, 7½ mile run from Arcade to the community of Curters.

"We serve about 25,000 passengers during the six months of service," Mrs. Davis said. "The scenic, rural area adds to the attraction, plus the fact that we use a steam engine built in 1920. The passenger cars were built in 1914 and 1917."

"There are a lot more railroad buffs around than you would think," she added.

Despite its current success, the rail line has had to overcome adversity from time to time. The system became the Buffalo, Attica and Arcade Railroad in 1894 and was later sold to the Buffalo and Susquehanna Railroad in 1914. Financial problems forced the B&A to enter receivership in 1917.

Local businessmen, perhaps realizing the need for a railroad to move freight, formed the Arcade and Attica Corp. on May 23, 1917 and began freight operations in June of the same year.

After surviving the Great Depression, the Arcade and Attica bought the first new locomotive in its history, a 44-ton General Electric diesel engine.

Passenger service was temporarily discontinued in 1959, but resumed in 1962 when Richard Cartwright, Mrs. Davis' father who had served as president of the line, purchased a steam locomotive to pull excursion trains.

The railroad has been a way of life for Mrs. Davis' family.

"My father worked for the railroad for 54 years," she said. "We also have a woman freight agent — my daughter, Sally."

"I can't seem to get away from it," she said of her railroad life. "Sure, there are some days when things are so tough I wish I was working as a bookkeeper somewhere."

Mrs. Davis hopes there are another 100 years in the future of the Arcade and Attica. "I won't be around that long," she says laughing, "but maybe somebody from the family will."

Crape Myrtle A Shrub For All Seasons

Crape myrtle, Lagerstroemia indica, is a deciduous shrub or small tree that has been cultivated in the Southern United States for more than one hundred and fifty years.

Sometimes referred to as the "Lilac of the South", crape myrtle derives its common name from its crepe-like, crinkle and ruffled petals, and the resemblance of its leaves to the true myrtle.

Crape myrtle has landscape merit during all seasons of the year. The flowering season begins in June or July, and continues until the fall. Each long cluster of flowers (panicle) is composed of hundreds of one to two-inch, red, pink, white, lavender or purple flowers.

Crape myrtle is very versatile in the residential landscape. Single-trunked or multi-trunked specimens make ideal shade trees for a sunny deck, terrace, or entrance walkway.

Multi-trunked plants can be used as a visual barrier, a specimen plant in the garden, or a dominant landscape feature when planted singly or in groups. Semi-dwarf and dwarf types are suitable for foundation plantings, use in containers or even as larger groundcovers. Occasional pruning may be required to maintain desired size and form.

There is even a patented, miniature weeping form good for use as bonsai plant or in hanging baskets.

Full sun is necessary for good flowering. Crape myrtle is adaptable to all climatic regions of Florida. The planting site should be slightly elevated and open to allow free air movement to avoid mildew problems.

Crape myrtle tolerates a wide range of soil conditions, but grows best in a heavy loam that is slightly acidic (pH 5.0 to 6.5). Nutrient requirements are minimal; high fertility levels produce excessive vegetative growth and fewer flower panicles.

Applications of 5-6-6 or 8-8-8 fertilizer in early spring at the rate of 1 to 2 pounds per 100 square feet of planting bed may be beneficial to established plants, especially those growing on poor soils.

Mulches of pine bark or hardwood chips are beneficial in retaining soil moisture and minimizing soil temperature fluctuations during the summer.

The ideal time to transplant container grown crape myrtle is late spring or early summer when new shoots are emerging. Balled and burlapped or bare root plants are best transplanted during the dormant period.

Deep soil watering is required periodically during dry periods in summer when the plant is actively growing and producing flowers. Insufficient watering may prevent flower formation and result in premature leaf drop.

Crape myrtle requires little pruning to maintain its naturally graceful form. However, tip pruning to remove old flower clusters will promote more abundant flowers and renewal of new wood. Small, twiggy growth should be thinned out from underneath the canopy to keep the trunk clean and allow free air circulation.

Crape myrtle can also be trained into single-stemmed, tree-like plants by removal of all but the strongest stem while the plant is young.

Crape myrtle is propagated vegetatively by softwood, hardwood, or root cuttings. Softwood cuttings taken in the spring or summer root readily. Hardwood cuttings from dormant plants root relatively easy when a rooting hormone is applied.

Crape myrtle can be one of the most pest-free landscape plants available when located in a good growing site. Full sun and good air movement will preclude problems with powdery mildew. Shady, humid locations encourage mildew which appears as a whitish powder on the surface of leaves, shoots, and flowers.

Wetting the foliage during irrigation also promotes the development of powdery mildew. Leaves and shoots become distorted and stunted with the leaves turning a reddish color underneath the mildew. Severely affected leaves may drop prematurely and flower buds often fall to open properly.

This disease is more prevalent in spring and fall and can be controlled with routine fungicide applications. Funginex or Karathane offer good control.

All Extension Programs are open to anyone regardless of race, color, sex or national origin.

Amputees Make Loving, Active Fathers

DEAR ABBY: This letter is in response to BROKENHEARTED PARENTS, who were concerned because their daughter chose to marry an amputee.

Nearly 40 years ago, a young female volunteer in an Army hospital fell in love with a young soldier who had lost both legs to an enemy mortar shell. The young couple married over her parents' objections. He became an industrial psychologist (with two degrees), has held responsible administrative positions, and became the loving, active father of three. He has no legs, but that doesn't make him an invalid. I should know. He's my father.

My parents have been a loving, devoted couple for 35 years. Last month, Mother graduated from the Boston School of Nursing with her B.S.N. She, too, is a strong and wonderful person. Words cannot adequately express how deeply I love and respect my parents for who they are, and for how they have handled the pain and crises in their life together.

JOANNE SHAW,
ELMIRA, N.Y.
DEAR JOANNE: Thank

Dear Abby

you for a beautiful letter, and thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel L. Barres of Boston for a beautiful daughter. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: This is in reply to BROKENHEARTED PARENTS, whose daughter was marrying a man who had no legs.

Two years ago my twin sister, after being married to a "whole man" who beat and abused her, married a man with only one arm and no legs. He was confined to a wheelchair.

Naturally we were concerned about how much care this man would need, but it was obvious that she loved him so much she didn't consider it a chore, so we supported the marriage wholeheartedly.

She had three children by her previous marriage whom her new husband accepted without question. A year later they had a baby girl of their own.

Six months later, my sister died unexpectedly. The night of her death, that dear man embraced those children and told them that he would like them to stay together as a family, but if they chose to go back to their real father, he would understand. They chose to stay with him.

How much of a man does it take to accept the challenge of raising three children, none of whom were his, along with a 6-month-old baby?

Since then he has adopted the three children. Abby, this man gave my sister more happiness in the year and a half they were married than she had known in the previous 35 years of her life.

HER TWIN IN UTAH

DEAR ABBY: I have been very happily married for several years to a wonderful divorced woman with two fine children. I am 25 and she is 40. She is a first-class woman, but my marriage has created a major problem in my life.

My parents, who live in another state, have refused to acknowledge my marriage.

They are respected civic and church leaders in their community, but they rejected my wife without even meeting her. My father called me a heathen, and my mother asked me never to mention my wife or stepchildren to any family members in my letters home. So far I have honored my mother's request because I love my parents.

My parents still consider me single. It is becoming increasingly difficult for me to not mention my wife and stepchildren in my letters home. Should I continue this policy, or is there an alternative?

HURTING IN TEXAS

DEAR HURTING: The alternative is to assume a more manly posture and tell your parents that if they refuse to acknowledge your wife and stepchildren, they can forget you. The choice is yours.

DEAR ABBY: You told ANONYMOUS in a recent column to resolve her anger, and then you quoted a line from a poem that was written by George Roemisch, a former schoolmate of mine. The quote: "Forgiveness is the fragrance of the violet on the heel of the one who crushed it." That is only part of his poem titled "Forgiveness," which I am enclosing in its entirety.

Thank you, Abby, for using that particular quote, for it reacquainted me with George's poem.

And thank you, George, wherever you are.
DONNA SMITH IN THE BRONX

DEAR DONNA: Unfortunately, space does not permit printing the entire poem, but the following portion merits quoting, and I thank you for it:

"Forgiveness is the broken dream which hides itself within the corner of the mind, oft called forgetfulness so that it will not bring pain to the dreamer.

"Forgiveness is a God who will not leave us after all we've done."

DEAR ABBY: Why is it considered questionable taste for a woman, other than the bride, to wear a white gown at a wedding?

TILLAMOOK, ORE.
DEAR TILLAMOOK: Because it might appear that the white-gowned woman was attempting to compete with the bride.

Korgan-Dixon Rematch Set For Championship Tonight

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

All the big home run hitters will be on hand tonight for the 7:30 Little Major League city championship game between First Federal and Atlantic Bank at Ft. Mellon Park.

Atlantic's one-two punch of Eddie Korgan Jr. and Clay Hickman have accounted for 25 of the Bank's 31 homers. Likewise, Craig Dixon and Kalvin Davis have belted 13 of Federal's 21 circuit clouts.

Don't be too amazed, however, if that game-winning round-tripper comes from not one of the big sluggers, but from one of the little guys. Because, that's just what has determined the first two games of the series.

In Tuesday's opening clash, third baseman Tim Waisanen crashed his first home run of the year with two outs and an 0-2 count on him to lift Atlantic to an 11-4 victory.

Ed Korgan Sr. was more than pleased with Waisanen's clutch home run, but it was something he had been looking for all season. "Scott really belts them in practice," pointed out Korgan. "It was great the way he came around Tuesday. It might have been his first homer, but it was by no means a cheap one," agreed Federal Coach Sid Griffin about his blond-haired opponent's game-winner. The unlikely shot from Waisanen lifted his season average to .200.

Griffin became very familiar with game-winning RBI the next night when his son Andy hit an "All In the Family" shot to right field.

"Andy's home run didn't surprise me that much because he has the power," said Griffin about his son's first HR of the year. "But he usually goes to left field. I told him if he ever pulled the ball, a home run was possible."

With the young Griffin's two-run blast Wednesday, he made more than the 19-11 victory apparent, young Andy knocked a doctor for a loop who said three years ago that it would be impossible for him to ever play the game.

The smooth-awing and fielding first baseman suffers from dyslexia, which is a visual disorder where the sufferer sometimes seems letters and objects in reverse form.

But the only reverse vision Wednesday was the ball sailing backwards at the Atlantic Bank fielders as Griffin slugged three hits to lift his season's average to an impressive .516.

"Andy has worked to overcome his handicap as hard as any kid I've seen," said Sid, his proud father. "It's really taken a lot of practice and concentration, but he's done it."

While the younger Griffin has whipped his handicap, another affliction bothering First Federal is right-hander Dixon's arm troubles. Dixon fired a one-hitter at Poppa Jays midway through the season, but Griffin says he hasn't been the same since.

"Craig pulled a muscle in that game," said Griffin, who feels his 9-1 hurler is just 75 percent of his old self. To remedy the situation, Dixon has been receiving heat treatments.

Griffin feels the game will hinge on whether Dixon can throw the ball over the plate. An excellent control pitcher early in the year, Dixon's location has deteriorated since the injury.

While Griffin has much to be proud of with his son's production, Atlantic Bank's "Korgan Combination" has been terrorizing opponents all year.

Eddie Jr. leads the league in just about every offensive category. The sandy-haired shortstop-pitcher has clubbed 15 homers, batted .603 and won 10 games on the mound including a perfect game.

He went the distance in the Bank's 11-4 opening series victory. "If Eddie's got his control, he's going to hit those outside corners," reminded Korgan Sr.

While Korgan's offensive statistics are impressive, they pale somewhat when compared to his outstanding mound work. In 37 innings, he has struck out a whopping 131 hitters and walked 57. While posting his 10-2 ledger, he has surrendered just 19 hits. Korgan hasn't given up more than five safeties since the season opener.

Griffin feels that seeing Korgan a second time will help the First Federal hitters, but Korgan doesn't think that will make much difference and looks for a low-scoring game in contrast to the 11-4 and 19-11 slugfests.

"I think four or five runs will win the game Friday," predicted Korgan. "I just hope Eddie is on. Eddie can't wait to get going."

Which probably could be said for the rest of the boys too.

TOURNAMENT TIDBITS: While both teams committed just one error Tuesday, the ball was thrown every which way and loose Wednesday with 11 miscues. Atlantic Bank's number nine hitter Brian Benson was turned into a tournament ball player. Benson's two hits in the series doubled his output for the season.

If Owners Don't Produce Today

NEW YORK (UPI) — A spokesman for the owners' Player Relations Committee said Thursday the group was considering whether to put forth a new proposal at the baseball talks scheduled for 3 p.m. EDT, today.

However, the New York Daily News reported in its Friday editions the owners had not followed through on the idea. And that lack just may anger the players, who believe it is the owners' turn to make a move.

"If they don't come up with something Friday, you are going to hear an explosion," the News quoted a source close to the Players Association as saying.

In the meantime the longer the strike continues, the longer it will take to reassemble and prepare the teams to resume play — and the more unpredictable the season will be.

Raines Tonight; Tryout Saturday

The "Itanens Gang" as part of the Sanford All Stars takes on the Orlando Red Caps tonight at 7:30 at Sanford Memorial Stadium.

Montreal Expo Tim along with brothers Levi, Ned and Sam will all be on hand against the Red Caps. Raines is presently waiting out the major league strike.

Saturday, the action continues at the Stadium at 9 a.m. when the Pittsburgh Pirates will hold their tryout camp. American Legion baseball players must have a written release form from their manager or post commander.

Tryouts must be between 16 and 22 years of age.

Jim Thorpe: Alive And Well

ARDMORE, Pa. (UPI) — Jim Thorpe, it turns out, is alive and well, playing such superlative golf in the U.S. Open that he has all those with whom the name rings a bell wondering if he's for real or some apparition out of the past.

But this Jim Thorpe — a husky, curly-haired 32-year-old Roxboro, N.C., native now living in Buffalo, N.Y. — is anything but a ghost.

He's a flesh and blood wizard with his short irons who made eyes blink

Thursday with his spectacular 4-under-par 66 that catapulted him in front of everybody else in the first round at Merion Golf Club.

As soon as he finished, naturally, the first thing he was asked about was his name since it's automatically identified with the late Indian legend who grew up in Carlisle, Pa., only 123 miles away, and still is regarded as the greatest all-around athlete who ever lived.

"I get quite a bit of kidding from a lotta people," said the 6-foot, 190-pound Thorpe, who is about the same size as his namesake but somewhat more outgoing. "When they hear my name, they say, 'Cripes, he's dead!' Then I walk up and they say, 'he's black!'"

Thorpe smiled at that. He could afford to after the magnificent round he shot — including six birdies and two bogeys — in his first appearance in the U.S. Open.

The old Jim Thorpe started in football, baseball and track and the new one tried his hand at football at Morgan State before becoming a golf pro six years ago.

Unknown Thorpe Finds Game, U.S. Open Lead

ARDMORE, Pa. (UPI) — It happens often at the U.S. Open — an unknown struggling to make a living on the professional golf tour suddenly finds his game and leads 156 of the world's top players.

This year's instant celebrity, after his 4-under-par 66 in the first round Thursday at the Merion Golf Club, is Jim Thorpe, 32, an ex-football player from Buffalo, N.Y. whose name has impressed more people than his credentials so far.

Entering today's second round, Thorpe finds himself one shot up on J.C. Snead; two ahead of a quintet of players including David Graham, three better than an impressive group which includes defending champion Jack Nicklaus and former Open winners Johnny Miller and Hubert Green and four up on Tom Watson.

Thorpe, the 146th-ranked player on the PGA money list who missed the cut in his last four tournaments, took advantage of ideal conditions at Merion's tricky 6,544-yard East course with six birdies, including back-to-back birds on 17 and 18.

Apparently not knowing Merion's final two holes are among the toughest in golf, he hit "a great 3-iron" to within 3 feet of the pin and sank the putt for a deuce at the 224-yard 17th and topped it off with a 30-foot putt on the 456-yard 18th.

"I'm very pleased," he said. "I feel I played well and didn't make many mistakes ...."

Snead depended on consistent iron play and overcame what he claimed was overly long grass on the fairways en route to his fine round, which he capped off with a 25-foot chip-in for birdie on 18.

Strange Greyhound Ingredients Stir Up Tonight's $100,000 Super Seminole Grand National Finalists

It takes strange ingredients to come up with the eight finalists in tonight's $100,000 Grand National Race at Super Seminole Greyhound Park beginning at 8.

Like a discarded newspaper advertisement in a Peabody, Mass. fire station. Or a mistaken name on a card submitted to the association which keeps track of greyhound nomenclature.

Or a two-year-old puppy with a mere dozen races under his belt, carrying the name of a popular country and western singer.

All these and more.

The trail from obscurity to centerstage spotlight in the Grand National has eight byways, one for each of the greyhounds racing in tonight's 13th race.

For RJP's Tony, the puppy hadn't even been named when two New England firemen spotted an advertisement which offered greyhounds for sale. Tony Sims and friend Bob Parsons sunk their life savings ($4,000) into purchasing three greyhounds.

We must explain at this point that buying greyhounds can be a risky business. Some greyhound owners can put as many as 100 speedsters on tracks every year for, say, 20 years, and never come up with a staken dog.

That's why most observers figure this Sims-Parsons duo must carry most extraordinary rabbit feet.

RJP's Tony — named for Robert Joseph Parsons (a smiling Irishman) and Tony Sims (presently a member of the Peabody Police force — was a successful marathoner at Hollywood, Fla. before campaigning at Seminole. His record at Hollywood was 6-8-4 in 26 starts. At Seminole RJP's Tony is 5-0-2 in 10 starts.

Another interesting aspect to tonight's Grand National is how GE's El Greco was named. Owner George Wells intended the greyhound to be named GH's El Greco, but it came out GE's through handwriting interpretation on the part of the national association. And once a greyhound is named, he has to live with it.

Wells' middle name is Henry, explaining the GH initials he wanted to use.

If receiving an unwanted name had any effect on old El Greco, it hasn't shown on the racetrack. At Seminole the greyhound has a 5-3-2 record in 11 starts. He was 4-3-2 in 10 starts at St. Petersburg.

Wells indicates he has considerable confidence in GE's El Greco. "They better not make any mistakes in front of him, or they will pay," he says.

The most unlikely hero in the Grand National finale is Waylon's The Name, so-called because of owner D.Q. Williams' respect for singer Waylon Jennings.

Waylon's The Name qualified easily enough, but still ranks as the only finalist without a victory. Overall, this October, the 1979 pup from the G.E.'s Maruder-K's Dona litter has run only a dozen races.

His 13th is going to be a big one, however. It represents a double chance for Williams to pick up the first place check of $37,500.

Because To Bold To Hold is also from Williams' kennel. Handicappers are putting a check by this greyhound's name — partially because the dog likes the rail, and partially because the white ticked and brown brindle entry is showing signs of regaining early season form when she was the Inaugural Champion. To Bold To Hold has a 3-0-2 record in 11 starts. She was 2-2-1 in 18 starts at Hollywood.

Another kennel owner grinning from ear to ear is Steve Merlock. His M-F Kennel has two entries in the Grand National — Robbie Hope and Sleepy Jerry, who have each earned their share of headlines in the first six weeks of the season.

Robbie Hope is owned by Paul Watt, a greyhound breeder and trainer from Elgin, Tex. who leases his proteges out for racing primarily on the New England and South Florida circuits.

Robbie has the distinction of being the first dog to win six races at Seminole. Her record is 6-0-2 in 10 starts. She was 1-2-3 in 19 starts at Hollywood, so it's evident she likes this track.

Sleepy Jerry is owned by Harry Seepersad, of Miami. He is an accountant, who has quite a few greyhounds racing under the M-F banner. Sleepy Jerry is a distance specialist who carries a 4-2-3 record in 11 starts. Jerry was 3-6-3 in 24 starts at Hollywood before coming to Seminole.

One might say it's a good thing RJP's Gym N Trim was indeed "trim" when she ran her last qualifying race for the Grand National, because it was the race of her life.

Railbirds won't soon forget the last-second burst of speed RJP's Gym N Trim put on a week ago in beating K's Spirit in the stretch. And K's Spirit is the versatile greyhound who has compiled the best overall record in eight rounds of qualifying.

To Gym N Trim's credit, owner E.J. Alderson points out that the pup is just coming into her own, and that even he isn't certain just how good she is going to be.

"That was the race of her life," said Alderson, who has spent a lifetime in the racing business and is best known as a top contender at St. Petersburg's Derby Lane. "I bought the dog at an auction in Abilene, Kan. I wanted to change the name — I hate those initials on dog's names — but because of rules, I wasn't able to. So all I can do is say come on RJP's Gym N Trim, whoever RJ is."

Gym N Trim has a record of 2-1-3 in 11 starts. At St. Petersburg, she was 3-4-1 in 30 starts.

K's Spirit, the greyhound everyone fears, is the dog owner Jack Kahn has to put double faith in.

Kahn, of Sarasota, was counting on a double entry, but K's Memory had a pair of fifth and a win in two semifinals and narrowly missed qualifying.

"The best dog didn't make it, but maybe Spirit can still win," said Kahn.

All K's Spirit has done in eight starts in Grand National competition is run first on four occasions, run second three times and run third once.

So to speak, is the Miss Consistency of the pack in this race. Overall Spirit is 5-3-1 in 10 starts, coming off a 2-6-8 record in 26 starts at St. Petersburg.

May the best greyhound win...

Strong, Speedy, Coachable Lions Impress Montgomery

By BENTON WOOD
Herald Sports Writer

Talent may win football games but as far as Oviedo coach Joe Montgomery is concerned, talent isn't at the top of the totem pole.

In fact, if the 1981 Lions are a success, Montgomery will be naming other reasons as the key.

"The attitude these kids had this spring was great," Montgomery bragged. "The attitude factor is the biggest thing. Even if you have a lot of talent you still have to multiply it by attitude. And if you're multiplying it by zero then that's what you've got. A good attitude is the first thing needed."

"The attitude his group has is as good as the 12-1 team," he continued. "It's just that the talent isn't as good."

Don't let Montgomery fool anyone, though. If he wins next fall, it's because he has the horses to go along with the good attitude.

Offensively, first team, all-Orange Belt receiver James Hamilton will loom as a major threat against opposing defenses.

But Montgomery has new plans for Hamilton next fall.

"We're gonna have to switch him from split end to wingback," Montgomery said. "That way we can use him in motion and avoid the double teaming."

Quarterbacks Jody Huggins, Chris Kessinger and Carl Jones all displayed fine springs from the signal-calling slot. Montgomery confirmed that he was pleased with the passing of all three.

The running game is also sound for next fall with Kurt Linder and Lamar Smith looking impressive during the spring jamboree.

"We've got five running backs that'll be able to move the ball," Montgomery observed. "I think we'll be in good shape on offense."

Montgomery was also happy with the progress on defense during the spring. He moved Robert Laner to defensive end from quarterback, Todd Duncan to inside linebacker from center and switched John Quintana from the secondary to an outside linebacker spot.

"Those changes seemed to work out pretty well," he said. "Rob did a fine job in the jamboree."

Although the defense gave up some big gainers during the jamboree, Montgomery insists that they'll be fine in the fall.

"When we reviewed the films, we found seven or eight people around the ball all of the time," he said. "That means somebody is doing something right. Once we make a few adjustments in the fall, we shouldn't have any major problems on defense."

If Montgomery is faced with a problem, it's that he might not be sure whether he is coaching Lions or Cubs. The line up next fall will be flooded with underclassmen.

"There is no substitute for experience," Montgomery agreed. "But this team will be strong. We have 44 kids that bench over 200 pounds. And we have about 10 kids who run the 50 in under five seconds. Those are the three things you need to win football games. Two out of three isn't bad."

Three out of four isn't too shabby either when you consider attitude.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Cooper's Pub, Burger Chef Remain Tied For First Place

Cooper's Pub and Burger Chef each picked up victories Thursday night at Pinehurst to remain tied for first place in the Sanford Men's Softball "B" League.

Cooper's Pub received a six-hit, three-strike out pitching performance from Tommy Szabo en route to dropping Seminole Memorial Hospital 10-5. The Pub picked up three runs in the fourth and four more in the sixth to coast home.

Danny Cannon and Lonnie Taylor led the hit parade with a triple and two singles apiece. Szabo smacked two base hits. Steve Letchworth and Scott Milson had two singles each for Seminole Memorial. Gonzalo Huaman was the losing hurler.

Burger Chef, meanwhile, disposed of Harry's Bar 8-1 as Larry Preeley gave up just five hits in four innings of mound work.

Jim Courtematch slapped three singles to pace the Burger Chef attack, while George Mullins, Bob Montalvo and Stan Shaw stroked two safeties each.

Paul Weil had two singles for Harry's Bar and Steve Sebbelle cranked a triple. Hueben Lopez was the loser. Riggs Realty in one-half game back of the two leaders. There are two games to play in the second half.

Creel Blanks O-Twins 1-0

Coming from Wednesday's 10-0, four-home run barrage the Orlando Twins were ripe for the picking Thursday night.

Jacksonville's Keith Creel thought so anyway. Creel silenced the usually awesome O-Twins 1-0 on three hits Thursday at Jacksonville in Southern League action.

Scott Gleckel was the hard-luck loser, allowing just five hits. Scott Hallberg rapped a double and a single for the Twins who return home tonight for "Pepal Night" against the Suns.

Discount tickets may be purchased at area Wendy's restaurants.

Ex-Lyman Netter Rites Today

Former Lyman High School and Rollins College All-American tennis standout Allen N. "Bucky" Copeland was buried today in Ocala. A funeral service was held at the Knowles Memorial Chapel on the campus of Rollins College.

Copeland, 26, was fatally injured in a motor vehicle accident while returning from a fishing trip Saturday. Copeland, also a graduate of Seminole Community College where he played under Coach Larry Castle, was an assistant pro at the Sweetwater Oaks Country Club.

Young Mother Has Run-Down Feeling

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm 18 years old and married when I was 16 and already three months pregnant. Three months after my first baby I found out I was pregnant again. It came as a total shock and I was depressed for weeks. My second child was born five months ago. Both my children are beautiful.

Things have happened very fast in the last two years of my life. I've handled it very well emotionally but physically I'm having a rough time. I'm tired all the time and feel extremely run down. My family doctor took loads of tests and found nothing. He gave me some vitamins and iron and sent me home. Now, three months later, I'm still tired and just feel awful all the time. Please tell me what to do to get back to my old peppy self again. I love married life and my two girls but I just feel out of it.

DEAR READER — You did the right thing in having an examination. About one in five people who have persistent fatigue do have a medical reason for it. Any number of illnesses can make you tired. Since you have had complete studies it is unlikely that your problem is really medical. You may be tired because you in fact are doing a great deal of work, looking after two small children. When you work hard it is expected that you will be tired.

Beyond that is the problem of growing up too fast and having too many responsibilities before you are emotionally prepared for them. About 80 percent of people who have chronic fatigue have a psychological reason for it. While you think you have done well emotionally but not physically, I would guess that the opposite may be true.

The ways to cope with chronic fatigue are discussed in The Health Letter number 9-6, Fatigue: Feeling Tired and Weary, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Meanwhile, I suggest you arrange to have some psychological counseling and start planning some time away from your responsibilities for some fun. Fun and variety in life do a lot to eliminate that tired feeling that comes from working too hard, too long at the same thing day and night.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 80 years old and have a terrible itching in both of my ears. Sometimes it is so intense that it wakes me up at night. It is not caused by wax, but is in the bony part of the ear. Sometimes there is a formation like dandruff as in ones hair. I think sometimes it will drive me nuts. I have used all kinds of lotions and ointments and doctor's prescriptions but none seem to do any good. What do you suggest?

DEAR READER — There are many causes for itchy ears. It can be from dry scaly skin. It can be from a chronic fungus infection. In someone who has used a lot of medications it may be a chemical irritation.

Proper treatment will depend upon proper diagnosis. Try your doctor again and if he is not successful, ask to have a consultation with an ear, nose and throat specialist. If you have no infection and just have dry skin, the doctor may be able to give you an oily preparation so that you can put drops in your ear to simply lubricate your skin. I would not put anything in my ear, though, not even the tip of a washcloth, without seeing your doctor and getting proper treatment. You might add an infection to the problem in trying self treatment.

YOUR BIRTHDAY June 20, 1981
Lady Luck will be looking out for your interests this coming year in enterprises or ventures which you either originate or manage. She'll put you together with the right people, but after that it's up to you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your philosophical outlook and zest for life makes you a fun person to be around today, except in anything concerning money. Here your judgment is faulty. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail #1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) Involvements where emotional bonds are shared are where you are the luckiest today, but let things happen naturally — don't try to force togetherness.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your judgment is very astute today evaluating major issues, yet for some reason this may be difficult for you to believe. Have faith in yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The chances for a hefty return on your enterprises look exceptionally good today. However, you may have to turn a deaf ear to a kibitzer who'd like you to think your efforts are fruitless.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't let anyone take the reins from your hands in handling any social arrangements today. You're the one who knows how to unobtrusively guide the group.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't lose faith if your rewards are slow in coming today. Those things which take time are generally the largest and most long-lasting.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This will be a happy day if you get out with friends and acquaintances. They'll know all the right things to do to pull you out of your doldrums.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Team up with Lady Luck, don't work against her, and you'll make this a very fortunate day where either finances or your career is involved.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You are able to get a quick grasp of situations today. If left to your own devices you can work them out for the good of all.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're willing to go the extra distance today to be helpful to persons you care for. They feel the same way about you, yet you could stop them from doing so.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Friends and acquaintances are on your side today, although they may have a hard time convincing you. Think positive for super results.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Concentrate your efforts today on goals of real significance. Your chances for success are strong if you don't get off on tangents.

South's jump to four hearts is a typical shoddy bid. It rides rough shod over all sensible partnership consideration in order to score 150 points for honors.

A far more sensible bid would be a jump to just three hearts. In this case, North would go to three notrump and South, with six sure tricks at notrump, could let his partner play the correct game.

Of course, four hearts isn't a bad contract. South is a favorite to make it even after the defense takes the first two diamond tricks.

That is, he is a favorite if he knows enough to try to develop dummy's fourth spade for a club discard. This play will work for him unless East holds both spade honors. This gives South 3-to-1 odds in his favor.

South trumps the third diamond, draws trumps, leads his three of spades and plays dummy's 10. If that 10 holds, South will abandon spades and go after clubs, but the 10 loses to the king.

A fourth diamond is led. South ruffs and proceeds to lead that nine of spades that he was careful to have kept. West plays low and the eight is played from dummy. A third spade is led, the jack is finessed and a club goes on the ace.

You Can Beat Glare With Flair

By SYBIL MITCHELL GANDY
Herald Staff Writer

Be yourself or whoever you want to be ... the handsome mysterious adventurer with an eye for beauty, demure damsel incognito, or stylish sophisticate ... however you've pictured yourself while day-dreaming. How? Simply don a pair of sunglasses.

In every conceivable size, all kinds of shapes, and hues in colors that don't even have a name, sunglasses come as individualistic as the person who wears them.

The sell for as little as $5.00 or as much as $2,800. They come custom-framed, custom-tinted, or any other "custom" conceivable.

But any optometrist in Central Florida will tell you not everything that looks good is good. A routine eye check-up should be made before settling out for shades, doctors say. Eye safety comes first.

Dr. Charles A. Young, of the American Optometric Association, has some suggestions about what to look for when shopping for sunglasses.

"People in Florida have to be especially careful about getting adequate protection since the sun is brighter and hotter here," he said. "And if you're going to spend a good part of the day outside, your choice of shades becomes very important."

Many of the more stylish sunglasses, the Winter Park optometrist said, are not dark enough to do the job, not on a typical Florida day, that is.

"With cheaper sunglasses, fashion is first and foremost — very little of the functional intent of sunglasses goes into the making," Dr. Young said.

What it all boils down to is, "You get what you pay for," he said. The more expensive sunglasses, although probably not as attractive or fashionable as cheaper, more fashionable brands, cost more because they are "optically ground." Cheaper sunglasses are merely stamped out.

Distortion in the optically ground lens is usually eliminated. But it isn't always easy to tell if distortion will be present in a particular brand, say Eyeglass World opticians.

You can easily tell if lenses will distort sight just by trying some glasses on. Objects become further away than they really are or appeared slightly slanted, they said.

But that's because the plastic is what opticians call "sheet plastic." It's stamped out of lens machines and forced into the frame.

They aren't any good, doctors say.

In less expensive brands where no immediate sight distortion is noticeable, a shopper can simply hold the shades up to the ceiling's light in the store to determine lens quality.

If the lens is inferior light will reflect off the middle, but not the outer edges. In such a case, lenses are not optically ground.

These cheaper sheet plastic lenses have been chemically treated to eliminate visible distortion but are still inferior.

Extensive driving or reading in sunlight can cause eyestrain and headaches for someone using chemically treated lenses, said Young. This is because sunlight interacts with the chemicals to cause swelling of the retina.

But with optically ground sunglasses no such problems occur. The darker tints keep out harmful ultra-violet and infra-red rays.

According to opticians, polarized lenses which decrease glare, are especially big sellers. But their quality also ranges as widely as their styles.

The better-made polarized brands always cost considerably more than the $10-$20 lesser-quality styles. The higher quality lenses have polarized, light sensitive film laminated into the lens. They cost between $40-$60 and almost never cause distortion.

Cheaper polarized brands simply have a polarized film pressed on the lens surface and give less protection from the sun's rays although they too eliminated glare. There's nothing wrong with looking stylish, opticians say, but make sure you mix fashion with quality. Your eyes are worth it.

'Terror Out Of The Sky'

Raisins Stand In For Dead Bees

Bee-lovers can relax during the television movie "Terror Out of the Sky," to be rebroadcast Saturday on CBS. What they really will be seeing when piles of supposedly dead bees appear on the screen are bee stand-ins — raisins.

"It's really very difficult to tell the difference between a dead bee and a dried-up grape," says the show's technical adviser, Dr. Norman Gary, a professor in the department of entomology at the University of California at Davis.

Gary is not a foe of so-called "killer bees." They should be called "lifesaving bees," he says, because of the great job they have done in South America adding pep to the lazy local strains there by interbreeding.

Bees are vital to farmers whose fruit and vegetable crops depend on the pollination services of the busy creatures. But honey bees are a dwindling breed, Gary says.

Generally, bees mind their own business. However, even bee enthusiasts admit that bee stings can be painful, and rarely, even fatal.

"If you get stung by a bee," Gary advises, "you can neutralize the bite by immediately scratching out the little bulb structure that the insect has rammed into your skin. That will keep the venom from oozing into your system."

Surprisingly, this advice was not needed on the set while shooting "Terror Out of the Sky." The large cast, headed by Efrem Zimbalist Jr., Dan Haggerty and Tovah Feldshuh, worked in close proximity with the estimated million bees used in the picture, but not one cast member was stung. This, in part, was because of Gary's expertise and in part because of the bees' unaggressive natures. "Bees only sting in defense," the professor notes.

Those on the set were advised that bees are irritable in the morning, especially before their breakfast (they were fed large quantities of sweets before being allowed to work).

His most important aid was synthesized queen bee scent, an artificial lure that kept the bees where they were supposed to be. For more intimate "acting," he momentarily stunned the bees with carbon dioxide, the same gas that gives fizz to carbonated beverages.

But the bees were not killed for the many scenes requiring thousands of the insects to show the effects of their own wars or the actor's pesticides. That called for the stand-ins, the raisins.

Tovah Feldshuh stares as bees gather on her windshield in "Terror Out of the Sky."

Networks Can't Start Before 8 P.M.

DEAR DICK: When "Little Lord Fauntleroy" was on CBS, it was wonderful, but on much too late for children to view. Why is it that so many programs are on so late? Why can't they show them from 7 to 8 p.m.? K. THOMPSON, Vancouver, Wash.

Blame that on the F.C.C. They took the 7:30 to 8 p.m. time period away from the networks some years ago, so the only thing that is aired at that hour is programmed by your local stations. None of the big network shows can start before 8 p.m., except on Sunday.

DEAR DICK: Can you tell me if a soundtrack from the movie, "Rollerball," was ever available? Also, can you tell me the name of the theme used and the composer? I believe it was Bach, but am not sure what composition. TOM LASKER, Joplin, Mo.

There was at least one "Rollerball" album issued. I have it in front of me now, on the UA label, with the soundtrack music conducted by Andre Previn and the London Symphony. There are several themes in the film, based on various compositions by Bach, Shostakovich, Tchaikovsky, plus some original Previn melodies.

DEAR DICK: I haven't seen Van Johnson in movies or on TV for many years. I hope he is still among us. Or did he pass away? If he is alive, what is he doing? MRS. ROD PARKER, Las Vegas, Nev.

Van Johnson is alive and, like so many movie people, abandoned by Hollywood. Mostly he performs in dinner theaters these days, and is a big drawing card on that circuit.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me if the glorious actress Ethel Griffies is alive? When was she born and where? Thanks for being there when us movie buffs need you. You're doing a bang-up job! HATTY IN THE BELFRY, Racine, Wis.

You gave me a nice compliment then signed that whacko name so people will think you're kidding. Anyhow, Ethel Griffies died in '75. She was born in England in 1878, so she lived a long life.

DEAR DICK: A friend and I were discussing the old TV show, "The Green Hornet." And we could remember everything about it except for one thing: What building was on top of the Green Hornet's hide-out? Was it a jewelry store, a church, a warehouse or what? CHUCK LATTY, Freeland, Mich.

This question has half of Hollywood stumped, because I've been asking everybody. Nobody remembers. But the consensus of opinion is that it was never specified what was on top. The Green Hornet and Kato entered the building through their residence, and when they drove their crazy car out, it looked like a garage in a back alley. So most of Hollywood thinks it was simply his home. But maybe some of you Hornetologists out there have better information.

DEAR DICK: On this year's Oscar telecast, they had old film footage of some black dancers. Could you please find out the name of the films and the dancers? WILLIAM WARE, Trenton, N.J.

Those were the fabulous Nicholas Brothers — Harold and Fayard — who were in several films in the '30s and '40s. Among them: "Down Argentine Way," "Tin Pan Alley," "Orchestra Wives."

DEAR DICK: Please settle a question. Who was the friend in "My Favorite Martian," Frank Aletter or Bill Bixby? N.J.H., Cogan Station, Pa. Bill Bixby.

Football kicks off
To the delight of football fans (and the despair of football widows), NBC Sports will broadcast 102 National Football League regular-season games plus four post-season contests during the 1981 NFL season.

Kicking off the 16-week regular-season broadcast schedule will be the season opener on Sunday, Sept. 6, which is an interconference battle between the Houston Oilers and Los Angeles Rams. Eight Sunday afternoon telecasts will be doubleheaders.

Outside of the 79 American Football Conference games and four AFC play-offs, NBC will cover 25 interconference match-ups. The world champion Oakland Raiders will make 11 appearances, while a number of interdivisional rivalries, such as the Cleveland Browns vs. the N.Y. Jets and the Buffalo Bills vs. the Miami Dolphins will also be broadcast.

New Film For Streisand; Stella's Kid Gets A Break

By CINDY ADAMS
NEW YORK — Filming for "Yentl," starring Barbra Streisand, begins in September... My pal Wesley Eure of NBC's "Days of Our Lives" is taping a pilot for another series this month... Stella Stevens' kid, Andrew, is getting groomed for big-time stardom. He's in the Charles Bronson-Lee Marvin flick, "Death Hunt." One of England's wealthiest ladies, Pamela Mason, ex-wife of James Mason and mommy of Morgan Mason, special assistant to President Reagan for political affairs, and herself a hotshot talk-show guest, carried heavy shopping bags up Fifth Avenue the other noon... Willie Nelson, who was also ambling along the Big Apple's streets recently, looked pretty remarkable in New York with his long braid and cowboy duds.

ANDREW STEVENS

A pile of Biggie directors — Francis Ford Coppola, Martin Scorsese, George Lucas, Brian DePalma, Steve Spielberg — glued together a syndicate to buy Europe's Pinewood Studios. The thing has 15 sound stages, 100 acres, 50 cutting rooms, six theaters, 650 employees and why it's up for grabs I dunno... HCA unloaded 1.5 mil for the video rights to 11 James Bond flicks... Our brand new Miss USA, Ohio's Kim Seelbrede, who was crowned last month in Biloxi on prime time TV with 70 million watchers, packed a Bible along with her. She'll carry that same good book this July when she competes in the Miss Universe pageant, which will be televised out of New York.

WILLIE NELSON

Maverick Gets 'Angel' Too

James Garner may be thinking "deja-vu" when Stuart Margolin joins the cast of NBC's "Bret Maverick," a new series about the old smooth-talking gambler, Maverick, which will air on Saturdays this fall. Margolin won an Emmy as best supporting actor in a series for his portrayal of the sleazy Angel in NBC's "The Rockford Files," which also starred Garner. Margolin will again play Garner's fair-weather friend, this time in the new series, as an Indian scout named Standing Bear, who is ready to serve Maverick — for a price.

Pollard goes soap
Noted film actor Michael J. Pollard, who is best known for his role as a gas station attendant in the classic film "Bonnie and Clyde," will be appearing for several weeks on the daytime drama "Search for Tomorrow."

Moving to a new time period, the longest running soap opera will be seen weekdays, 2:30 to 3:00 beginning June 8. Pollard's role as a police detective will start June 12 and he will continue to appear on the show through July.

Taxi fleet

The first fleet of motorized taxis in the United States made its debut in 1907. New Yorkers blinked in amazement as the red, high-seated taximeter cabs imported from Paris drove up in front of the Plaza Hotel to give guests free rides as publicity. The word "taxicab" was coined in New York. "Taxi" came from a French company that made taximeters for horse carriages. Cab abbreviated the French word "cabriolet," a light one-horse carriage.

Sorvino Plays Deaf Lawyer

The Causes Of Behavior Interest This Actor

Paul Sorvino dons a hearing aid. As people speak to him he watches their lips. He appears to have a heightened sense of awareness about him; like an animal that leans into the wind, his body expresses everything from stillness to flight.

Sorvino is portraying a deaf lawyer, Lowell Myers, in "Dummy," a two-hour dramatic special to be rebroadcast Tuesday on CBS. The program is based on a true story about Myers, who defended a deaf, illiterate black youth on a felony charge, forging a trusting relationship with his client.

How did Sorvino prepare for this role? "An actor only is interested in information that turns into behavior," states Sorvino, between filming scenes on location in Chicago.

"I went to deaf people and sought the information I needed to portray this part. I was fortunate enough — although admittedly nervous — to meet the man whom I portray. He is profoundly deaf; that is, he has no sense of sound at all.

"I learned about the elongation of some words," Sorvino says. "It's what they call a 'time envelope' problem, because deaf people cannot gauge how long to hold a vowel sounds. And 's' are difficult — they're blunted because the sibilant quality is of so high a frequency the vibrations cannot be sensed.

"I got a book on sign language, which is a means of communication for the deaf begun over 200 years ago in France." However, he says, "I am called upon to use signs only sparingly in one scene."

Sorvino, known to audiences for his roles in such films as "A Touch of Class," "Made for Each Other" and "Slow Dancing in the Big City," discusses his motivation for accepting his role in "Dummy."

"The inherent quality of a script gets me first. How it strikes me. Do I have a feel for the role? Is it something I can express well?"

"When I met Myers during the making of the film, I was struck immediately by his intellect and sensitivity. Some of my preconceptions about him were wrong.

"However, the speech I devised for the character is remarkably similar to Myers' speech. He is an unprepossessing gentleman and would probably cringe at my saying this, but he is a heroic man. He undertook a difficult case with his handicap; and with the aid of his sister, Mrs. Jean Markin, represented his client in court by lip reading her simultaneous account of the testimony as she heard it.

"It's a challenging and rewarding role."

PAUL SORVINO

Noah Young ran a mile in 8 minutes 30 seconds carrying a 150 pound man on his back. Young weighed 198 pounds. He made the run on April 12, 1915, at Melbourne, Australia.

If you weigh 126 pounds here, in Great Britain you'd weigh nine stone. (A stone equals 14 pounds.)

'Dad' Called An Amazing Book

By JULIA M. EHRESMANN
American Library Assn.

The hype generated for William Wharton's "Dad" (Knopf, $12.95) has to do, partly, with Wharton's status as a mystery personality. ("Wharton" is the pseudonym of an American painter and writer who has lived in France for the last 20 years.) The public is also being reminded that Wharton's first book, "Birdy," was the 1979 American Book Awards' best first novel.

But "Dad," Wharton's second book, is so strong that it soars on its own. It is surpassingly authentic in its treatment of an unglamorous and very common human situation: the drastic illnesses of aged parents and their implications for the next generation.

Wharton avoids sentimentality and health crisis histrionics, and has drawn a highly animate portrait of how two old people react to physical shocks, emotional stress and unwanted change. He has looked at generational differences and similarities. He has integrated fantasy in an uncommonly successful way.

And he has created two of the most ingratiating and complete male characters of recent fiction — the book's main narrator, Jack Tremont, and his father, Dad.

"Dad" opens in 1977 at the Los Angeles bungalow where Jack's parents have lived for 25 years. Jack and his college dropout son, Billy, are saying goodbye to Mom. After two massive heart attacks, she is weepy, pale and shuffling. Dad is a vegetating mental case in a convalescent home down the street.

The narrative unfolds while Jack and Billy drive through a violent interstate landscape toward Philadelphia, where they plan to catch a flight home to France. Jack does most of the storytelling. As if talking one-to-one to the reader, he describes how he had to teach his father the ways of self-sufficiency — almost like teaching a helpless toddler. Mom's lifelong project has been to cow her husband. He doesn't even know where to look for his clean pajamas.

Dad enjoys his new-found mastery. He makes lists, grows a beard, rides behind Jack on an old motorcycle, drinks a little beer. Even Mom's second heart attack doesn't throw him. But when a self-righteous doctor tells him he has bladder cancer — despite Jack and his sister Joan's dire warnings about the old man's profound fear of the disease — Dad goes into a deep state of mental shock. The person who had begun to bloom is suddenly withdrawn, incontinent and sometimes even wild. Jack has to hand-feed him, clean up his excrement, and haul his rigid, withered body out from under the bed.

Mom is a mess — bullying her daughter and whining at her son-in-law. Being a cardiac patient doesn't humble her. Dad goes into a coma. Jack and Joan choose a casket and a headstone. Then, like Lazarus, Dad regains consciousness and is transformed into a euphoric madcap. He's a frisky, dance-stepping and slightly bawdy younger man. Mom is dumbfounded and frightened.

Dad begins to reveal a fantasy life, that is a complete, rich existence as a young truck farmer in Cape May, N.J. It is a perfect, sensuous and harmonious world — a psychiatrist calls it "successful schizophrenia" — and it is so convincing that Jack finds himself wanting to go there.

During Dad's super-lucid weeks before he goes back into shock, Jack comes to recognize himself as the kind of man his father would rather have been. It is a supremely touching revelation which the fantasy device very convincingly supports and which affects Jack's relationship to Billy.

"Dad" is an amazing book: realistic yet deeply imagined, colloquial yet formal, intelligent and wise. Read it and weep. And applaud.

Less Pressure, Big Money, But No Gold

Tai And Randy Finish Season With Ice Capades

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — For Tai Babilonia and Randy Gardner, this isn't exactly what they had in mind, but it is probably the next best thing.

As they grow up, the two beautiful ice dancers dreamed the big dream, the Olympic dream. We all know how that collapsed on the ice at Lake Placid, N.Y., in February 1980, when the injury to Randy's leg forced them to withdraw from the pairs skating competition.

End of dream. Just like that. But they are back now, skating again, thrilling the public again, floating effortlessly across the ice in a graceful swirl. They are part of the Ice Capades company and, while it isn't the Olympics, it is ice skating, it is in front of the public — and it is big money.

They have finished their first season with Ice Capades. That began last September in Duluth, Minn., and ended this May in Anaheim, Calif., close to their home. Tai and Randy now have the summer off before the season begins again next fall.

After their three-year contract is up, they say, they may or may not sign for more. As for their future, they aren't certain.

"I'll probably skate as long as my legs hold out," says Tai. "There are people in our show who have been there nine years."

To a 20-year-old, nine years seems like an eternity. But it goes by as fast as an ice dancer's whirl.

After their skating days are over, whenever that may be, they both think they might like to become commentators. They think they could talk about figure skating on one of the many network sports shows.

Randy might go back to school. He admits that, because of his dedication to skating when he was growing up, "something had to give and that something was my academic work."

"I didn't study very much," he says. "Later, I did take a few courses at USC, mostly in dramatics, but I've never really put together any kind of ambition to do anything, except skate."

But Tai and Randy had never given a pro-skating career much thought. Their eyes were fastened on that one goal — the Olympics — until Randy's leg injury killed the dream.

"At the time," Randy says, "I wasn't sure if the injury was bad enough to prevent me from ever skating again. Fortunately, it responded well to therapy and it doesn't give me any problem today, although I am very careful to warm up very thoroughly before I skate."

They say that pro skating has turned out to be harder work than they anticipated.

"When we used to sit in the audience and watch an ice show," Tai says, "we figured that it was a cinch — you just go out there and skate. But we never thought about how much practicing you have to do, how many interviews you have to do and everything else that you have to do as part of an ice show cast."

They also never thought about how much money they would have. Now that they have money, they indulge themselves a little — Randy bought himself a new BMW, although he hasn't had much time at home to drive it, and Tai admits that she goes shopping for clothes a lot more now.

"The one great thing about being in the show," Randy says, "is that there are no judges. And that means not much pressure on us, either."

Sometimes they are required to skate in rinks that are smaller than they would like, but otherwise they have had no problem moving into the pro ranks. They say the Ice Capades has a woman coach who watches every performance to see they are not getting into any bad skating habits.

They think they are skating as well as ever. And they are enjoying it. But there is no gold medal at the end of the performance.

Entrepreneurship: Some Actors Have It, Some Don't

By RUTH THOMPSON
One often hears the pronouncement (attributed to a director) that all actors, all performers, "are irresponsible children." By extension, that could mean "with no head for business, for investing or entrepreneurship."

Is that true?
The answer — applicable to at least some big names — is no.

A few years ago Fortune magazine printed a list of celebrities, each of whom had a very impressive net worth. They were the late Bing Crosby (his orange juice company was only one of many productive Crosby interests), William Holden (he had a Kenya resort — since sold — and extensive real estate in Hong Kong which was later the subject of a television documentary), Douglas Fairbanks Jr., and sometime actor and big-time television game-show host Art Linkletter.

On a recent morning when I talked to Art he said "Oh, most of these things are exaggerated. Bob Hope and I laughed about a report recently that said he was worth $400 million. One hundred million is probably more like it." But, continued the impish Art, "That's enough to live on, isn't it?"

As Art pointed out, except for rented limousines to save him time when he's rushing around big cities, his away-from-home lifestyle is Spartan. "I don't travel with a retinue the way so many celebrities do. And I don't take suits in hotels. Just a simple room."

Art acknowledged that he had "sold a couple of my Australian sheep ranches for a couple of million," in a phone call only a few minutes earlier.

You might call Art a good-hearted King Midas. For him, everything has been turning to gold for so long it's hard to trace his first con-show business financial bonanza.

Robert Vaughn, however, could pinpoint his big-time financial breakthrough. My old interview notes yield a quote from him that says he made his first million during his stardom in the "Man from U.N.C.L.E." series. But not because of the series — "My natural gas wells just started coming in."

Three successful series ("Bat Masterson," "Burke's Law," and "Name of the Game") as well as television commercials (for Miller beer and Ford Motors) would appear to have provided Gene Barry with luxury for a life-time. But a new business prospect has captured the enthusiasm of Gene and two other investors. They've just launched the pilot store — in his hometown Manhattan called Gene's One-Hour Photo. Television talk shows in the metropolitan area have gobbled him up to talk about it and he spreads out color prints of what attracted him to invest.

"It's a Japanese process, with standardized units that need only 800 square feet of store space. We're starting in high visibility corners of Manhattan, but project an eventual nationwide chain of 500 stores."
