Embassy Guarded While Italians Parade

Student Demonstrators in Rome Disband Before Arriving in Vicinity

Patriotism of Group Is Shown

Move Is Directed At British Efforts To Dismantle Morale

ROME, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Italian troops were drawn up around the United States Embassy today to ward off anticipated student demonstration, but the demonstrators disbanded before reaching that part of town.

Military patrols remained in the vicinity of the embassy, however—the first show of military protection since before Italy's declaration of war against Britain and France last June.

The students scattered as they did yesterday. After demonstrating in the vicinity of the embassy, they moved off to other parts of the city.

Students in the vicinity of the embassy were seen to be in a state of excitement, but no demonstration took place.

Army's Planes Ranked Under British Craft

Navy Flyer Says American Air Force Is Being Stripped For Aid To Britain

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Associate Director Sidney Hillman of the Office of Production Management said today the labor situation "is very satisfactory" as reflected by national defense, and that he saw no need for legislation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Major Al Williams, former Navy flyer, declared today the United States armed forces have no single water fighting plane that can "hold a candle" to British or German pursuit ships clashing over England today.

Opposing the Administration's loan-lease bill before the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee, Williams asserted the nation's air forces are being "stripped" of planes needed for the secondary training of military pilots because such ships are being turned over to Great Britain.

He said he did not believe Britain could win the war. A policy of "no more concessions" on the bill was agreed to by the House Democratic leadership shortly before the fight was over and amendments were resumed on the House floor.

President Roosevelt disclosed today that plans had been undertaken to build up a reservoir of public works projects to take up the slack of defense employment after the war.

He said these projects would consist chiefly of the type that would provide some kind of return of capital to the government, and would include highway construction, hospitals, airports and housing.

The House revealed an unmistakably sizable majority for the lend-lease method of helping Britain yesterday by voting off in almost unanimously good-humored session, all efforts to curtail the powers which the pending bill would yield to President Roosevelt.

Acting quickly on amendment after amendment, with no attempt at any apparent quarrel, the House advanced the measure at such a rate that the Administration leadership was highly confident of final action tonight, leaving the next step to the Senate.

With striking absence of snapping tempers and the shouted repartee usual to the construction of a bill of such importance, the House quickly approved amendments proposed by the Foreign Affairs Committee Democrats to increase support for the measure. They would:

Set a two-year limit upon the period by which President Roosevelt could contract to manufacture arms for the British, and a five-year limit upon the delivery of war items called for in the contracts.

Require that President Roosevelt consult the chief officers of the Army and Navy before sending defense implements abroad. Stipulate that the bill grants no new powers to the President to loan American naval vessels to conveying ships to belligerent ports.

Formerly in the hotel business in West Palm Beach, Mr. Wallman said that he always regretted leaving Florida and hoped some day to be able to return here permanently. He added that Florida has many opportunities for the ambitious business man.

His hotel in New York, the Pinedale, is popular with the West Palm Beach and Mr. Wallman said that he always regretted leaving Florida and hoped some day to be able to return here permanently.

Marines at Guantanamo Bay which is a United States naval base in Cuba eat Sanford celery which was revealed in a letter received here from Richard Maxwell, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Maxwell of this city.

In his letter to The Herald, Mr. Maxwell writes:

"We were unloading a ship of provisions a few days ago—were out a few miles and the cargo nets were swinging over the side and depositing the various items on barges.

"I looked up one time and immediately recognized the celery crates (what Sanford boy wouldn't?) and imagine my surprise when it swung lower and I saw 'Chase and Co., Sanford, Fla. Boy! What a feeling—kind of Nikes a letter from home."

"Most of the fellows knew I was from Sanford," the young marine wrote, "and so I was on the stage for a while, telling them about Sanford and celery."

The fate of 25,000 Fascist troops garrisoned at this important Mediterranean seaport, former headquarters of Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, was not immediately disclosed.

Reports that the Italians in the entire eastern region were capitulating or fleeing, British military quarters in London said.

Italy's position was so bad now that Mussolini might be forced to risk the Italian fleet in an effort to move reinforcements and supplies across the Mediterranean to Libya.

Roosevelt quickly approves ship bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(AP)—President Roosevelt gave quick approval yesterday to a bill appropriating $13,500,000 for construction of 200 new cargo ships.

Congressional action was completed only Wednesday.

The new ships will cost an aggregate of $350,000,000, but $36,500,000 already has been allocated from a special fund by the President to start work on new facilities for building the ships.

As finally passed, the bill also would give the Maritime Commission $65,000,000 of additional contract authority to carry on its regular shipbuilding program.

Badminton players asked to practice.

Badminton players are asked to practice Monday night in preparation for intra-city matches to be scheduled in the near future, Miss Eleanor Morrison of the Recreation Department reported.

Denies Commission Hears Jacksonville Men On Cities' Laws

Legislation Affecting Towns Discussed By Officials

Legislative problems confronting Florida cities were discussed at a special meeting of the City Commission in the City Hall yesterday afternoon by E. P. Owen, secretary of the Florida League of Cities, and William M. Mitchell, attorney for the league.

Both men are from Jacksonville. It was explained that the league maintains a bureau in Tallahassee during sessions of the Legislature to keep cities informed on bills introduced that might affect them.

An important bill comes before the Legislature this week, telegraphs city officials, throughout the state for their opinions on the measure, and these opinions are presented to the lawmakers, Mr. Sawyer said.

Purchase of a 30-volume set of the 1940 edition of the Dictionary of American Biography for the Sanford Library was authorized by the Commission, Mr. Sawyer said. The set, based and revised every 10 years, records the lives of 18,633 prominent American men and women.

Keeler is misquoted in story in Herald.

O. R. Keeler, getting authority, who visited Mr. and Mrs. T. Bradford Byrd at their home on Golden Lake yesterday was misquoted in an article about him in The Sanford Herald yesterday, Mr. Byrd pointed out today.

The article reported that Mrs. Mitchell asked Mr. Keeler to mention "Gone With the Wind" in his column in the Atlanta Journal, but Mr. Byrd explained that when Mr. Keeler said this, "he was referring to 'Mama' or 'Mom' (that's Keeler) to all who know the Keelers" when he said, "She brought a copy to me" and asked me to read it and make mention of it in my column.

"The way it appeared would lead a reader to believe that Margaret Mitchell had made a request of Mr. Keeler, but as a matter of fact Margaret Mitchell never asked anyone to read her book nor did she ever ask for a line of publicity," Mr. Byrd declared.

THE TOURIST BUSINESS

Recognizing the value of advertising, the City Commission of Miami has voted an additional appropriation of $5,000 for a special newspaper campaign in the North to tell the people that there are ample accommodations in Miami and that they can be had at reasonable rates.

It seems that the tourist season in Miami has not quite come up to expectations. At least some of the hotels are reported to be begging for guests and if the clerks, bell boys and waiters didn't spend their time waiting on each other they wouldn't have anything to do.

But with 11 new hotels constructed on the beach alone last summer, what else could have been expected? Miami had more hotels last winter than any city its size is justified in having and they did a very good business. So last summer everybody and his brother decided to put up a new hotel or at least a flock of new houses.

No wonder some of them have not rented. There is a reason to believe, however, that there are as many tourists in Miami this winter as ever before and perhaps more. What Miami is really advertising for is a new crop of tourists to fill up the new hotels and new homes which have been built in recent months.

Other Florida cities seem to be doing pretty well from the standpoint of paying guests. There has been some dearth of visitors in St. Petersburg, largely because of the big Casement colony which usually winters there but which this year on account of the war has been kept at home.

Reports from Orlando indicate that the hotels there are having an excellent season and that there are as many if not more people there than ever before. Sarasota, Bradenton, Fort Myers and Palm Beach also are reported to be enjoying a good season.

On the whole it appears that Florida is doing right well this winter in spite of the war in Europe, the uncertainties in this country and the intensified defense program. There is no convincing evidence that the tourist business has been impaired at all.

Not Entirely Unprepared

If war comes to the New World, enemy bombing planes will find our country not entirely unprepared though we are by nature perhaps almost as pacific as a nation as the Chinese. While not devoting our energies in recent years to warlike efforts, we have nevertheless so planned our large cities and constructed our big buildings that they may be expected to offer remarkable resistance to destructive raids.

Take the skyscrapers of our metropolitan cities for instance. For the most part they are fire proof and so equipped with fire-prevention and fire-fighting apparatus that it would be practically impossible for fire bombs to make any headway among them whatever. Such a fire as destroyed the city of London, built hundreds of years ago, would be out of the question.

This is not to say that enemy raiders could not find certain sections of every city where fire could wreak an awful havoc, but the important nerve centers of financial and industrial life, unlike older European centers of population, are entirely modern and indestructible by fire. Built almost entirely of steel and reinforced concrete they would stand up almost as well under a rain of explosive bombs.

The buildings of London are low, built of stone, mostly without steel. When hit squarely they collapse. One bomb often wrecks an entire building. But when buildings are as high as five stories, rare in London, the bottom floors remain undamaged while only the top floors have been shattered. Consider the number of direct hits it would take to destroy the eighty odd floors of the Empire State Building.

The matter of air raid shelters in a place like New York would not be nearly so difficult as in most foreign centers of population. In Tokyo, for instance, there is practically no place underground for the people to hide. In New York the subway system alone would provide better protection for more people than all the ways and underground shelters which have been built in London since the war began.

Engineers say that New York's subways are deeper and are tunneled through solid rock while London's for the most part are covered with soft earth. New York's subways are constructed with heavy steel beams only five feet apart with about a dozen of reinforced concrete between them. They also have much wider platforms on each of which as many as two thousand persons could take shelter.

And it becomes necessary for the husband to buy away on business occasionally and temporarily, or the wife is faced with a bill of $2,000 or more which she must pay. The relation is not changed, neither is the woman's position forfeited, if either husband or wife is unavailably confined in a hospital. If, however, the husband continuously leaves his home in one place and the wife her home at another, they are not "living together" within the meaning of the Internal Revenue Code.

Writer Declares Riot Reports in Italy Are False

By JACK STINNETT WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Chasing down rumors from the Balkan rumor factory is tougher than riding Junior's tricycle up Mount Everest.

Take, for instance, the latest dither about riots in Milan, and Turin, Italy.

I am in a position to tell you (and my source of information is indisputable) that all these reports up to and including those of Jan. 28 have been checked by your Uncle Sam and found to be false.

According to the word here, there hadn't been even the shadow of a riot in either city before Jan. 28, when I made the last confirming check.

And when I say checked, I mean American eyes trained to observe phenomena of this kind have seen that no riots occurred and so reported to Washington.

What interests the international experts in these parts, however, is whence came reports of riots in Italy, why they came, and who started them.

I've got a line on that, but I want to warn you that from here on out it's hard guess and part fact. All I can tell you is that my source of information is in a position to know.

The rumors came, of course, from Prague. That's because the three big powers of Europe—Great Britain, Germany, and Russia—have the best facilities there for spreading tales that can't be traced to their sources. They all have big diplomatic staffs of front men to harbor their undercover agents. And they all have stacks of cash and rumor makers on hand.

Flower Arranging Is Discussed In Illustrated Book

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 7. (Special)—Of interest to women everywhere is a new book on flower arranging by Mrs. Laura Lee Burroughs whose 1940 volume on this subject proved to be a "best seller", reaching a total distribution of one and a half million copies.
The new book is entitled "Flower Arranging, A Fascinating Hobby" Vol. 2, and its subject is precisely what its title indicates. In a gay and chatty style, profusely illustrated with 48 full-color illustrations, many of them full-page in size, Mrs. Burroughs work glamorizes and glorifies a hobby which is claiming the attention of an ever-increasing number of women.
The subject matter of the book ranges from humble sunflowers and morning glories to rare exotic blooms. Its practical application covers the cottage, the apartment, and the marquee. Explanatory text by Mrs. Burroughs and dramatic sketches accompany the color illustrations of her flower arrangements in order to tell and show just how each one was made. Richardson Wright, editor-in-chief of "House and Garden", has written the introduction.
Like its 1940 predecessor, Volume 2 of "Flower Arranging, A Fascinating Hobby" is being distributed by the Coca-Cola Company, Atlanta, Ga., and copies may be obtained by sending 10 cents in stamps or coin to them.

Pethwick Lawrence, former financial secretary of the treasury, told the House of Commons the United States cash-and-carry principle had been a drain on Britain's resources but that passage of the lend-lease bill would provide relief at any rate for a time.

Public Debate Is Stated Monday At Winter Park High

WINTER PARK, Feb. 7.—(Special)—Charles K. Street, author of "Union Now" and former foreign correspondent, and Hayne Davis, New York attorney and writer on international affairs, will meet in public debate here Monday evening, Feb. 10, at 8:15 o'clock in the High School auditorium on the argument "Resolved, that the United States should form a federal union now with the British Commonwealth of Nations."

Mr. Street will defend the affirmative and Mr. Davis the negative side of the question. They will debate under the auspices of the Rollins College adult education program.

The debate will present the issue of whether such a union is immediately practicable in the form proposed by Mr. Street in his widely discussed book "Union Now" or whether a union of all nations, organized slowly and with regard for the rights of all countries, is the ultimate goal of a university system of law.

The originator of the theory that the nations of the world should unite for peace and security in an amalgamation similar to the federal union of the United States, Mr. Davis does not believe that a union now is feasible.

Mr. Street's book "Union Now" was first published in France in 1933 at his own expense. Later it was published in England, France, Sweden and the United States. By a process of spontaneous combustion it has given rise to an organized movement in all these countries, dedicated to the proposition that such a world Federal Union can be achieved now. In the United States an organization known as Federal Union, Inc., was formed in 1935.

Examinations For Coast Guard Will Be Given In May

Yearly competitive examinations for appointments to cadetships in the United States Coast Guard will be held May 14-15, Senator Charles O. Andrews announced today.

This examination is open to all physically qualified boys throughout the United States, Senator Andrews said, who are between the ages of 17 and 22 years and who have the required moral qualifications and educational preparation.

Successful completion of four years of cadetship leads to a bachelor of science degree, a commission and a career in the United States Coast Guard. While the course is mainly professional, sufficient time is given to purely cultural subjects. In addition to the time given to engineering and such subjects as seamanship and navigation, etc., the cadet specialties in maritime law and studies related to maritime economics and marine transportation, Senator Andrews explained.

The course is designed to fit boys for a commission in the United States Coast Guard whose function is to enforce all federal laws on navigable and territorial waters of the United States and to promote safety and security to vessels that use our waters for legitimate commerce and pleasure; to have its personnel, units and stations prepared for active war time duty and to organize yachts and small craft and train their crews for duty in case of national emergency.

"If any young man in Sanford is interested he should write the Commandant, U. S. Coast Guard, Washington, D. C., for information relative to detailed requirements," the senator said.

The Philippine Islands are the most densely populated of all United States possessions.

Average Payments Under FHA Plan Decrease In 1940

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(Special)—Almost one-half of the families purchasing new homes last year under the FHA plan are paying less than $25 per month to meet interest and amortization of principal on their loans, Federal Housing Administrator Abner H. Ferguson announced today.

Preliminary statistics show that 49 percent of the new single-family homes financed by FHA-insured mortgages in 1939 required monthly payments of less than $25 for interest and amortization of principal. This compares with 40 percent in 1938 and 35 percent in 1937.

For 81 percent of the new small homes purchased under the FHA plan last year, the monthly mortgage payments amounted to less than $20, compared with 75 percent in 1938 and 15 percent in 1937.

The steady downward in the cost of new-home ownership under the FHA plan has thus been maintained, Mr. Ferguson declared. In 1940 the median monthly mortgage payment on new homes financed by FHA-insured loans was $25.30, or approximately 82 cents a day. In other words, one-half of the new single-family home mortgages insured last year involved monthly payments of less than that sum.

In 1939 the median monthly payment was $26.97. In 1938 it was $28.02.

"When the FHA plan of long-term, amortized home mortgages was established in 1934, the result was an immediate sharp reduction in the monthly cost of home ownership as compared with the previous systems of home financing," Mr. Ferguson pointed out.

Donovan's Trip To Syria Is Banned

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Feb. 7.—(Special)—Col. William J. Donovan, the American observer who is traveling extensively in southeastern Europe and the Near East, has been prevented from traveling through Syria by express orders of the French government at Vichy, a reliable informant said yesterday.

The eventual position of the untested French army in Syria, like that in North and West Africa, is nebulous, but both General Weygand in Africa and General Dentz in Syria have called upon soldiers and civilians to obey the Chief of Staff Petain at Vichy, rather than be swayed by "Free French" appeals from London, Syria might become a battlefield if Germany should try to strike at the Suez Canal through southeastern Europe and the Levant.

Col. Donovan is believed to be in New York on a buying mission for Brazil. After conferring with officials in Washington he will purchase planes and aviation equipment for his government.

SKETCH OF OLD FORT MELLON

This picture, a pencil sketch drawn over 100 years ago by John Lee Williams of Pensacola, shows the military post on the St. Johns River which in 1877 as Mellonville was incorporated into Sanford. Established by Colonel Fanning in 1836, the post was successively named Camp Monroe, Fort Mellon, Mellonville, and finally Sanford. Mr. Williams was sent out on horseback by the territorial government of Florida at Pensacola to find a suitable location for a capital, and the drawing was made on his visit to Fort Mellon. The site of the military post is now Second Street and Mellonville Avenue, where a marker has been placed by the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Transients Must Watch For Mail Of Draft Board

Delinquents Caused By Carelessness, Says Headquarters

Sanfordians under the Selective Training and Service Act who change their addresses are required by law to notify their local boards promptly, according to a letter received by the local draft board today from State Director, Col. H. P. Bays, at Tallahassee.

Carelessness on the part of registrants, rather than willful intent on their part, was found to be cause of many violations of the law, according to a report by the national headquarters to Director Bays. Those who fail to report a change of address are liable to severe penalties, he pointed out.

Registrants should follow the following procedure: 1. Notify the local board of the change of address. 2. Notify the local board of the change of address. 3. Notify the local board of the change of address.

It is the duty of each registrant to keep his local board advised of all changes of address. All changes of address should be reported to the local board by mail, and a copy of the report should be sent to the local board by mail.

Registrants should also be advised that the local board will not accept a report of a change of address unless it is accompanied by a copy of the report of the local board of the previous address.

Speer Grove Dedicated As Public Park

Marker Is Unveiled By Descendent Of Sanford Pioneer

Sanford, Feb. 8.—A public park located at Nineteenth Street and Mellonville Avenue became a public park today with the unveiling of a marker by Thomas Algernon Speer, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Speer, Jr., and great-grandson of the planter of the grove.

Dr. Speer came to Sanford, then Mellonville, in 1844 and became Orange county's first representative in the Legislature. This was before Seminole County had been formed. A resident of Georgia before he came here, Dr. Speer placed the first passenger steamboat on the upper St. Johns River between Mellonville and Palatka.

Prof. A. J. Hanna of the department of history and government at Rollins College and president of the P. M. Mellon Chapter of the Sons and Daughters of the Territory of Florida, told some of the early history of the grove.

The Sons and Daughters of the Territory of Florida sponsored the marker with the Ball's Harrison Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Charles Whitner, whose family in this section gave a sketch of the life of Dr. Speer. Following his talk, Mr. Whitner introduced several descendants of Dr. Speer.

Dr. E. D. Browne, minister of the First Presbyterian Church, gave the invocation at the ceremonies, which were scheduled to begin at 10:30 o'clock. Edward Higgins, acting for Mayor W. C. (Bill) Hill, extended greetings for the City.

Following the unveiling of the marker in the grove, a tea was held at the Women's Club house at which Mrs. Abbot L. Dow of Winter Park, daughter of General Alton S. Dow and Mrs. T. C. Maguire of Plant City, state regent of the D. A. R., were honor guests. Dr. Mary Martin, Hoop of the University School of Chiropractic, was also present.

A meeting was held after the tea to discuss the possibility of establishing a public park in the Speer Grove. Mrs. Dow was offered to give the tea, and Mrs. Higgins was offered to give the entertainment.

The unveiling of the marker was a most successful affair and a valuable lesson in civic duty was given to the young people present.

104th Birthday Of Sanford Is Observed Today

City Was Founded On Banks Of Lake During Seminole War

Sanford is 104 years old today. The story of its development from a small log fort known as Camp Monroe to a thriving agricultural and tourist city of 11,000 inhabitants is a colorful one.

Interwoven with tales of light-between fierce Indian tribes and courageous soldiers, of pioneer settlers who hacked farms and roads out of dense forests, of the coming of the railroads and the start of a new era, and of the men and women who built the community into a city.

One old winter day in 1836, Colonel Fanning of the United States Army and a small number of men landed on the south shore of Lake Monroe to establish a government military camp. After clearing a small plot of land, the troops set up their living quarters.

The following year, Colonel William Selby Harney arrived at the camp and immediately ordered it fortified against attack from Indians who were then roaming the vicinity in a warlike mood.

Fierce Battle It was fortunate that Colonel Harney arrived when he did, for two days later a desperate assault was launched against Camp Monroe by a band of Indians. The battle lasted over three hours. One of the officers, Captain Mellon, was killed and 15 were wounded.

In honor of the captain who lost his life in the Indian battle, the name of the camp was changed to Ft. Mellon. According to military records, it became the "healthiest and most important inland military garrison in Florida."

Following the battle at Camp Monroe, one of the fiercest of the Seminole wars, the government saw the necessity for suppressing the Indians and soon 8,000 soldiers were scattered throughout the state. Up to this time no buildings had been erected at Camp Monroe, but a short time later eight two-story frame buildings had been erected.

Sanford residents are losing thousands of dollars by the failure of some beneficiaries to notify the Social Security Board of their claims. Joseph Schuts, assistant manager of the Social Security Board's field office in Orlando, declared yesterday.

Mr. Schuts was in Sanford to assist several persons in filing claims for social security benefits. "Fewer claims are filed in Sanford in proportion to the number of workers than in many, if not most, of the cities in Central Florida," Mr. Schuts asserted.

"Experience indicates that such a low proportion of claims is due to the failure of prospective beneficiaries to notify the Social Security Board of events which might lead to eligibility," the official pointed out. Mr. Schuts said he will be glad to furnish information to inquiries if they will address him at 211 Orange Avenue in Orlando.

Poem Written Long Ago By Sanford's Son Is Published

A poem written by the late Henry B. Sanford, Jr., son of General Henry Sanford, founder of this city, was submitted to The Herald today for publication on the 104th birthday of the City of Sanford. The poem has been in the possession of Mrs. Abbot Dow of Winter Park, daughter of General Sanford.

Mr. Sanford wrote the poem many years ago when he lived here. It is as follows:

The Imps are happy up in the moon. They have nothing to do from midnight to noon. And from noon to midnight they've nothing to do. Except to be happy the whole day through!

At sunset they dip up the great flood of light. And pour it all into the moon for the night. And when the sun rises—what else should they do? They pour it all out to color the dew!

They dance in the ring that is seen cloudy nights. And with little soft clouds they have great pillow-fights. They cut up the old moon into stars, the moon! And fatten the stars that shall mold the new moon!

LOCAL WEATHER

Mostly cloudy tonight and Sunday, with some showers or scattered rain. Heavy clouds in western section.
