HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL
For Saturday, December 18, 1976
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your generous nature is easily imposed upon today. One who is a laborer is aware of this and will use it to her advantage.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your opinions are not as popular as you lead yourself to believe today. Be careful whom you try to foist them upon.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be realistic regarding the value of services for others today. You'll offend them if your price tag is too inflated.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll feel more at ease socially today being with a small, cozy group. Pass up noisy gatherings.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) People who try to impress you with their importance will turn you off today. Let them play their big shot role for someone else.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your focus on details obliterates the big picture today. Stand back a bit so you can take in the entire view.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'd be wise not to try to keep up with the high rollers today. Extravagant companions are the types you're better off without.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't let someone whose judgment is questionable make any important decisions for you today. Regrets will be avoided if you call your own shots.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There is opportunity around you today, but you may not make the most of it because of your attitude. Failure to take advantage of what's offered is your loss.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Usually you're a self-disciplined person, but today you have strong tendencies to overindulge. Don't try to pack all your good living into one experience.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Let others sing your praises today instead of doing it yourself. Bragging is not the way to win admirers.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It's marvelous to be optimistic, provided your views are based upon a realistic premise. However, today your rose-colored outlook may not be anchored in practicality.
YOUR BIRTHDAY Dec. 18, 1976
Keep the channels open this year so that persons you've done favors for will be able to find ways to repay you. They're going to want to try. Let them!

Anemia Problem Is Inherited

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently my daughter was sick, and I advised her to get a blood test to see if she had mononucleosis. Another daughter needed a blood test for college and a third daughter for her job. All three came back with anemia. Further investigation shows they have "traits of Mediterranean anemia." No where can I find any information about this. I was told by a nurse that iron is no good for such cases. Apparently this is passed on by parents, but what does the future hold for my children? I also have three other children. Are there also affected?
DEAR DR. LAMB — My doctor tells me that I have fibroid tumors of the uterus. He says there is no treatment for them. He recommends a hysterectomy if the condition gets worse. Is there any known treatment for these tumors other than surgery?
DEAR READER — Fibroids (leiomyoma) of the uterus are very common. They are benign growths of fibrous tissue, and their location and size determine how much trouble they will cause.
Small ones in some locations cause frequent bleeding. Larger ones may cause pressure symptoms. Moderate sized ones may cause no symptoms at all.
They may regress in size after the menopause. But this is not always the case. The presence of female hormones seems to maintain them or stimulate their growth.
Certainly if they are causing problems in a woman who does not plan to have any more children, and particularly if there is any other disease of the uterus, a hysterectomy is indicated. There is no medical treatment that can make them vanish or reduce them other than the use of female hormone production and that is not a very satisfactory solution.
The disorder is called Mediterranean anemia because it was first noted frequently in people from that part of the world. As many as 20 per cent of some Italian families had blood tests revealing the disorder.
I think it would be a good idea to have all of your children checked to see if they have the same mild form of disorder. If so none will probably have any serious consequences from it.
To give you more information on how anemias occur and how they affect people I am sending you The Health Letter number 43 Understanding the Anemias. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long stamped self-addressed envelope for it. Send Today's hand is one of the classic swindles of all time. At those tables where North played three trumps the declarer would take the spade finesse and make all 13 tricks. However, most declarers everyone opened that singleton six of diamonds whereupon South would go up with dummy's king take that same spade finesse and make all the tricks.

New see if you can figure it out how one declarer managed to go down at four spades. It wasn't really too difficult for him to work out the losing play. He did get a diamond lead, he did hop up with dummy's king, but only after considerable study.
This gave East time to see the potential swindle. He dropped the queen of diamonds under the king. Now South read East, not West for the singleton diamond. He led dummy's queen of spades and East played low. So South went up with his ace in order to try to keep East from ruffing that diamond. Now he led a second spade. East took his king, gave his partner a diamond ruff and two club tricks completed the rout.

HONEY, DO YOU HAVE ANY IDEA HOW ABSURDLY PROBABLY A FIRST-WHO DETAIL KNOWLEDGE OF CHINESE AFFAIRS COULD BE FOR SOMEONE WHO'S SERIOUS ABOUT BOATS?
NOT TO MENTION HEY GOOD CONDUCTING FOR AN IMPORTANT POLICY DIVISION!

Poetic justice, Earlings, is the bigdaddy scale tipper of them all. And over in the county school system, only a poet could have devised what happened to one busdriver — Bobby Braddy.
Bobby, you remember, protested vocally to the school board that coaches shouldn't be allowed to chauffeur players' buses to games. They didn't have proper training on how to back up, how to stop, etc., etc.
Then to and behold, Earlings, it turns out Bobby had two fender-benders — and all on the same day. An official told The Ear first she had a minor "fender bender" out Geneva way. An investigation showed the brakes weren't properly adjusted on her bus. On the way out of the yard, driving a different bus, guess what happened? Earlings, she backed into a staff car. School officials, The Ear hears, are still chuckling over that one... And, The Ear bets, the poet who devised such an ironic scenario is chucking right along with them...

The Ear overheard a "secret" conversation between a county official and Interstate Mall President Mark Grayson. Grayson doesn't want to get out, but he told SCIDA Director Jim Daniel that he knows of a department store manager who would like to locate in Seminole. Grayson says the store would employ 500 workers.

A little bit of furor is in the wind over Youth Programs Inc., about "doctoring" monthly reports. And, The Ear has learned, the furor has reached the hallowed halls of Seminole Community College.
"We're reviewing our relationship with the agency," commented Dr. Richard Loper, a professor of sociology at the school. Loper's sociology classes supply many of the volunteers for the program — which counsels youthful first-timers to get them back on the good side of society and out of the courts and jails.
The "doctoring" consists of turning in inactive volunteers as active. That would make it appear that more volunteers are counseling errand kids than there really are. Well, The Ear did some snooping and found out the "doctoring" was going on — but only on a minor scale, say, about seven inactives were being carried as active.
"I'm not going to stand for any padding. If it's being done, it must be stopped," commented Eugene D. Minietta, the executive director of Youth Programs Inc. Minietta was called in after The Ear kept hearing reports of "padding." Minietta instructed local program coordinator Lee Sterling to get the records up to date — and keep inactives inactive and vice versa.
On the positive side, the agency is well ahead in its counseling program, having handled 233 cases already this year when the grant award only called for about 150. It's a good program, really, to let a little "doctoring" shade the positive image it has in Seminole County. Ears to you, Minietta, for taking prompt action.

SEATTLE (AP) — A child's letter to Santa never reached its destination, but it found its way into hearts all over the city.
Its author is unknown, so the food, toys and Christmas decorations being donated because of it will go to other needy kids.
"Dear santa," the letter says, "momma said you got lost last year and couldn't find your way to our house, we wrilly mist you aspebly my little sisters."
"Please come this year, santa, we are being very good, momma said you'd get lost again maybe so hear is a map."
It's signed, "love Craig," but people are assuming that the real name of the haphazard speller is Craig.
A postscript says, "ps. don't leave any thing for daddy because he isn't hear anymore."
Craig forgot to enclose the map for Santa to follow. His letter bore no return address.
Officials said the letter apparently fell out of the "North Pole" mail pouch the Postal Service maintains at Christmas time and was delivered by mistake to Francisco's Restaurant.
"I don't mind telling you, when I read that letter there were tears," said Arthur Grinbaum, who works at the restaurant.
"We took Craig's letter to the FBI," Grinbaum said. "They said they would trace the postmark and then go through lists of names of kids in the schools in the area. But unfortunately, we had through the envelope away."

For Sanford Commission Seat 2 It's Meyer Vs. Keith ...

MEYER:
"People...can tell when a person is faking it..."

KEITH:
"I am in the run-off because of friends..."

...Where They Stand Analysis

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer
The campaigns waged by E.O. (Eddie) Keith, 59, and incumbent Gordon Meyer for Sanford City Commission Seat two have been lackluster personality contests with no major issues.
Both men have been quietly seeking support from the voters with assistance from friends. Both have posted signs in the community and both are now waiting for Tuesday to get here and the results to be announced while making themselves available to any citizen who wants to talk to them.
Each feels he has the answers to some of the problems facing the city today.
The candidates were interviewed separately and neither was aware of the other's responses to questions.
What is Sanford's greatest need and how would you fulfill this need?
KEITH: "The city needs upgrading and beautification of the downtown area. Lower taxes would help. We need to lure industry to Sanford but the tax structure is higher than most cities of this size. The drainage problem needs to be taken care of. The decision to build a new city hall has already been made."
"The people cannot afford to pay additional taxes to solve the drainage problem. It must be done with federal funds."
MEYER: "The drainage problem is the city's most pressing need and it requires federal funding for the solution. The issue of additional taxes for a drainage solution has twice gone to the voters and both times the voters have said, 'We know there is a problem, but we can't solve it. We don't have the money.'"
"The federal government has placed restrictions on how drainage water must be treated and federal funds must be made available to comply with these restrictions."

Why The Vote On Tuesday
E. O. (Eddie) Keith, 59, is challenging incumbent Gordon Meyer, 49, for a four-year term on the Sanford City Commission in the only contest on Tuesday's election ballot in Sanford.
Polling place for the election is, as usual, the Sanford City Center.
Meyer and Keith came in first and second, respectively, in the original four-man race for the seat in the Dec. 7 city election, but neither was able to garner the required 50 per cent plus-one of the vote to win. Meyer received 720 to 497 for Keith out of the 1,946 ballots cast.
Meyer, who owns and operates an insurance agency, is completing his seventh year in office. Keith, a men's clothing salesman, ran for a city commission seat once before unsuccessfully.
Earlier this month in the election, Lee P. Moore won four more years in the mayor's office by a landslide. He has served a total of nine years as mayor and city commissioner. Julian Stenstrom was re-elected to a third term as city commissioner.
Absentee ballots for Tuesday's election may be obtained from Seminole County Supervisor of Elections Camilla Bruce's courthouse office up to 5 p.m. Monday and must be returned no later than 7 p.m. Tuesday.
The city commission will officially canvass the election at noon Wednesday in the commission chambers at city hall.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Soviets, Chile Swap Political Prisoners

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Two of the world's most prominent political prisoners arrived in neutral Switzerland to be exchanged for each other and begin a life in exile. Soviet dissident Vladimir Bukovsky flew into Zurich airport aboard a Soviet Aeroflot airliner in early afternoon, just five minutes before Chilean Communist party chief Luis Corvalan arrived aboard a Lufthansa flight from Santiago, Chile.

Saudis Please Ford, Carter

By The Associated Press President Ford, President elect Carter and other U.S. officials are pleased that Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates raised their oil prices only 5 per cent while other members of the international oil cartel opted for higher increases. Gasoline is expected to cost about a penny a gallon more in the United States starting in February because of the increases, and airlines will ask permission to increase fares.

NATION IN BRIEF

5 Killed, 50 Injured As Oil Tanker Explodes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Divers and searchers cautiously inspected Saturday the twisted molten remains of a huge oil tanker that exploded into fragments in Los Angeles Harbor, killing at least five and injuring at least 50. But authorities say it may be days before they know how many men died in the blast. The 810-foot tanker was literally lifted out of the water and split into three parts by the force of the blast Friday night, eyewitnesses said. The middle two-thirds of the vessel sunk, while the bow — bearing the name Sasinena — was hurled ashore.

Snow Showers Hit Great Lakes

By The Associated Press Scattered snow showers spattered the lower Great Lakes and light rain fell across parts of northern Washington state, but clear skies and mild temperatures prevailed across most of the country this morning. Cloudy skies lingered along the western Gulf coast and through much of the Northeast. Temperatures around the nation Saturday ranged from 67 at Key West, to zero at Alamosa, Colo. They were in the 20s across the Great Lakes region and the north Atlantic coast states with 30s and 40s elsewhere, except through California, southern Texas and southern Florida, where readings were in the 50s and 60s.

Superport Plans Re-Evaluated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The oil companies that have permission to build the nation's first two superports may take another look at their plans in light of limitations placed on them by Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. Coleman announced Friday that he was granting permission for two consortiums of oil and chemical companies to build two superports in the Gulf of Mexico to handle the massive oil tankers that cannot get into conventional ports.

Girlfriend Adopted

WESTERLY, R.I. (AP) — They didn't want to get married, but they wanted to live together respectfully. So Joseph Cornelli 3rd, 33, adopted Elaine Tattersall, 32, as his daughter. "The daughter can use the name of the father," said their lawyer, Aram K. Berberian. "People will believe they are married because they use the same name. They obtain respectability in the eyes of their peers."

Armed Wallet Thief Guilty; Held In Jail

Action Reports

* Police Beat

A circuit court jury has found Alfred Clayton Rosier, 21, of Bradenton, guilty of robbery in connection with a Sept. 5 incident in which a television production worker's wallet was taken at gunpoint. Circuit Judge J. William Woodson ordered Rosier held in jail during a pre-sentence investigation.

David Varnadoes Jr., of Colquhoun, testified that Rosier was one of two men who robbed him as he escorted a co-worker from WESH-TV, Winter Park, to her residence at a south Seminole apartment complex. A co-defendant in the case, Robert Lee Williams Jr., 22, also of Bradenton, was found guilty of a pistol fired during a struggle at the robbery scene, sheriff's deputies said. Williams is scheduled for trial at a later date.

In other cases before Judge Woodson: — Barry Allen Hockabee, 35, of Greenwood, N.C., pleaded guilty to obtaining merchandise with a worthless $100 check on June 6, 1975, at the Mayfair Country Club, Sanford. He was sentenced recently to six months already served in jail plus five years probation in a similar Orange County case. Judge Woodson ordered an updated pre-sentence investigation (PSI) and Hockabee is being held in jail pending sentencing.

Hockabee also pleaded guilty here to two felony bad check charges in Brevard County and one in Polk County in an agreement with prosecutors in those counties. Defense attorney Irving Gussow said his client will waive extradition to face charges also in two North Carolina cities. — Melvin A. Walker, 46, of 2545 S. Park Dr., Sanford, pleaded guilty to grand larceny of an auto from a local dealership in a case in which the auto was paid for by a worthless $3,539 check. The court ordered a PSI and custody and noted plea negotiations for Walker to receive 18 months in prison plus 3 1/2 years probation.

— Dwight Lee Moody, 49, of Matland, was put on one-year probation on her guilty plea to receive 18 months in prison plus 3 1/2 years probation. — Volusia County jail inmate Russell Dewayne Blake, 23, of Nashville, pleaded guilty to forgery in connection with a clothing purchase using a stolen credit card. A PSI was ordered for Blake who police say was on a spree through the southeast using the credit card stolen at a Nashville party. — Alphonso Hall Sr., 32, of Altamonte Springs, was put on two years probation after he pleaded guilty to battery upon his wife. State Atty. Abbott Herring's office dropped companion charges of aggravated assault and improper exhibition of a firearm. Mark Jay Quirk, 18, of 643 Wheeling Ave., Altamonte Springs, was allowed to remain free on bond pending sentencing after he pleaded guilty to receiving stolen property.

Jimmy Carter's campaign promises in a 110-page book. "The feeling now is that we won't be able to do all of these immediately," said Greg S. Schneider, one of the President-elect's close aides, about the likelihood and timing of carrying out the promises. Schneider said Carter was not surprised about anything in the book. "He's got a pretty good memory and he was pretty cautious. All the promises he made are of a fairly general nature."

No one on the staff has yet put a price tag on the promises. Carter had a busy schedule arranged for after the news conference. He set up meetings with: — Former Defense Secretary James Schlesinger, who may be in line to head a new department of energy and natural resources that would grow out of planned amalgamation of the Federal Energy Administration and the Energy Research and Development Administration. — Theodore R. Sorenson, one-time aide to President Kennedy, mentioned as a potential director of the Central Intelligence Agency. — Griffin Bell, an Atlanta attorney and retired judge of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, who met with Carter and Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., earlier this week. Carter, who continues to seek at least one woman for his cabinet, also met Friday with Joan Manley, vice president in charge of the book division of Time, Inc., and Juanita Kreps, an economist and vice president of Duke University. Mrs. Kreps has been mentioned as a potential secretary of labor or commerce and has met with Carter here twice this month.

Mrs. Manley entered and left Carter's guarded compound with Vice President-elect Mondale and Lane Kirkland, secretary-treasurer of the AFL-CIO. She and Kirkland came and left without talking to reporters. Mrs. Kreps has been mentioned as a potential secretary of labor or commerce and has met with Carter here twice this month.

There are no circuit court criminal trials scheduled at Sanford until the week of Jan. 10, 1977 when Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor, of Geneva, becomes trial judge in Seminole for felony criminal cases. Previously, four judges of the 11th Judicial Circuit's Circuit Court Criminal Division handled trials in the county on a rotating basis.

Seminole Sheriff John Polk has warned any citizen who may find the auto of a Deltona woman missing since Dec. 1, not to approach or touch the vehicle. Polk said investigators in Seminole and Volusia counties are working on the disappearance of Mrs. Marjorie F. Wilson, 66, as that of a person feared to have met with foul play. "If the vehicle is found," he said, "it is to be treated as a crime scene. The public should call the sheriff's department and not either approach or touch the vehicle for fear of inadvertently destroying possible evidence." Polk said Wilson last seen about 9 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 4. Mrs. Wilson was sitting in her 1973 Chevrolet Impala four-door sedan in the parking lot of Lake Monroe Inn, U. S. 17-90 west of Sanford. Her husband, Robert Van Wilson, told deputies he came back out of the inn about 15 minutes later and his wife and car were gone. The brown-over-light yellow or tan auto's license tag was 8W-3270.

Wilson, of 1000 Persian St., Deltona, filed a missing person report and Polk said it has not been disseminated nationwide to other law-enforcement agencies. Investigators have used airplanes to search wooded areas of Seminole and southwest Volusia counties in the two-week hunt for Mrs. Wilson and the car. Polk said the Volusia Sheriff's Department now has an airplane and investigators working on the case. In addition to the air and foot searches of wooded areas officials have used boats and depth-finding devices in searches of Lake Monroe and other lakes, including lakes in south Seminole near Casselberry where deputies widened the search after talking to an area psychic. Detective L. George Abagy described the missing woman as five-foot-two inches tall, 112 pounds, gray hair, brown eyes and wearing dark-rimmed glasses. He said when Mrs. Wilson was last seen she was wearing a lavender-colored pantsuit, flesh-colored blouse and orange pump shoes. Anyone with any possible information on the whereabouts of Mrs. Wilson or her auto should immediately call the Seminole Sheriff's Department. "We're carefully checking out every lead," Polk said, "no

He Gets A 15-Yr. 'Trip'

A 22-year-old San Francisco man with a history of drug addiction has been given a 15-year sentence for robbing a Seminole drive-in food store. John Henry Kreimer was found guilty of robbery and receiving stolen property by a circuit court jury on Dec. 9 and Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor ordered a pre-sentence investigation. But Kreimer later requested immediate sentencing and McGregor granted his wish on Thursday.

Kreimer, who said he was orphaned at age four and traveled the country and became a drug addict who still has hallucinations from long-term drug abuse, claimed he was on a drug "trip" the morning he robbed the 7-Eleven store on SR-434 at Raymond St., west of Longwood, and escaped in a stolen luxury sedan he bought from two juveniles for $30. He got confused trying to get back on Interstate Four headed for St. Petersburg and came back to the robbery scene and was chased down by sheriff's deputies who had found his shoes at the rear of the store. Judge McGregor sentenced Kreimer to 7 1/2 years in prison plus 7 1/2 years probation on the robbery conviction. Five years consecutive probation was meted on the stolen property conviction.

In other sentencing by Judge McGregor: — George R. Huff, 25, of Altamonte Springs, got 2 1/2 years prison plus 2 1/2 years probation for obtaining property by worthless check. Huff was also sentenced to serve 60 days in county jail when probation was revoked in a 1975 case. — Jennifer Jenkins, 20, of Casselberry, was put on five-years probation on her guilty plea to obtaining property by worthless check. — Jimmy L. Cleveland, 27, of Orlando, was sentenced to six-years prison plus nine years probation on his earlier plea of guilty to level assault upon a 13-year-old girl. — Benedict Cavaliere, 31, of Altamonte Springs, was put on three-years probation. He earlier pleaded no contest to possession of cocaine. — Charles A. Stanley Jr., 18, of Longwood, was put on five-years probation on his earlier guilty plea to attempted burglary of a dwelling. — J. D. Syples, 31, of Sanford, was sentenced to five-years prison for violating of probation in a 1974 case and received 15 years consecutive probation on his Sept. 7 guilty plea to level assault in the presence of an eight-year-old child. — Robert Jackson, 29, no address given, was put on 18 months probation on his guilty plea entered earlier to carrying a concealed firearm. — Sally Miller, 19, of Casselberry, was put on two years probation. She earlier pleaded guilty of delivery of a controlled substance to an undercover drug agent. — BOB LLOYD

Carter Campaign Vows -- 110 Pages, 3 Weeks

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — It took several of Jimmy Carter's aides three to four weeks to compile Jimmy Carter's campaign promises in a 110-page book. "The feeling now is that we won't be able to do all of these immediately," said Greg S. Schneider, one of the President-elect's close aides, about the likelihood and timing of carrying out the promises. Schneider said Carter was not surprised about anything in the book. "He's got a pretty good memory and he was pretty cautious. All the promises he made are of a fairly general nature."

No one on the staff has yet put a price tag on the promises. Carter had a busy schedule arranged for after the news conference. He set up meetings with: — Former Defense Secretary James Schlesinger, who may be in line to head a new department of energy and natural resources that would grow out of planned amalgamation of the Federal Energy Administration and the Energy Research and Development Administration. — Theodore R. Sorenson, one-time aide to President Kennedy, mentioned as a potential director of the Central Intelligence Agency. — Griffin Bell, an Atlanta attorney and retired judge of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, who met with Carter and Sen. # FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Askev, Cabinet Vote To Scrap Barge Canal

TALLAHASSEE (AP) — The Florida Cabinet has asked Congress to terminate the Cross-Florida Barge Canal. But the long fight over the $425-million waterway is far from over. Gov. Reubin Askew and the Cabinet voted 6-1 Friday against finishing the canal and recommended that Congress de-authorize the project. They opposed the 110-mile ditch because of possible pollution of mid-state water supplies, destruction of the pristine Oklawaha River and questions about projected economic benefits.

FP&L Earnings Decline MIAMI (AP) — Florida Power and Light Co. says its net income and earnings per share dropped during the fiscal year ending in November. Utility officials said net earnings of $127.8 million for the period were 15 per cent below the $150 million reported last year. Earnings per share, $2.70, were down 26 per cent from $3.56 last year. Revenues dropped slightly this year from $1.17 billion to $1.19 billion while total operating expenses rose to $993.2 million from $957.7 million. FP&L is Florida's largest power producer, serving 36 of 67 counties.

Meyer Vs. Keith: It's A Runoff (Continued From Page 1A) KEITH: "I didn't like the original (horizontal) design but I like the L-shaped design better. I don't know how the commissioners are going to come to a conclusion of what they want, but a new city hall is necessary." MEYER: "Until I see what the architects are going to present Monday, I don't know what my position will be. The L-shape makes a lot of sense to me. It can be treated better and made more attractive. I visualize us using the undeveloped first floor of the administrative wing for cultural things — art shows, concerts. "I'm not hung up on time. We've got time. The new facility is necessary. We ask private enterprise to make safety changes in their buildings, yet the city is operating out of a half-condemned structure." What changes, if any, would you propose in Sanford's city government? KEITH: "I don't think the city government needs any changes. A good job is being done from city hall." MEYER: "The city manager-city commission form of government is operating well here. We (the commission) set policy and have a professionally trained person to run the city according to the policy we set. The key is getting a knowledgeable person like Pete Knowles for the job of city manager." How do you plan to, or how do you keep in touch with the citizens to know their desires? KEITH: "I would be available at any time. If I wouldn't be, I would get out of office. I am in the run-off because of friends. I have a very good chance to win." MEYER: "I am fortunate in being in a business where I am around the public all the time. People call me with their problems and I try to put myself in their shoes. Sometimes it is only a gripe they want to get off their chests." How much time must a city commissioner devote to the job? KEITH: "It's really a 24-hour-a-day job. The people can call me at any time they have a problem or even just to talk. I'll be available 24 hours a day for four years." MEYER: "With meetings, visiting problem areas, looking into various requests, it takes about 30 hours per month." Statewide polling is being given to eliminating second primaries. Would you favor eliminating run-off elections, permitting the candidate pulling the highest number of votes to win? KEITH: "I would not favor eliminating run-off elections, placing in office a man who has received less than a majority of the votes cast. I haven't really thought about whether a change should be made." What is the major qualification a city commissioner should have? KEITH: "Dedication. Without it, a commissioner can't do the job for the people. Sanford is a wonderful place to live. I wouldn't live any place else in the world." MEYER: "A sincere desire and willingness to serve and help people. People are smart and can tell when a person is faking it and when he is not."

Mrs. Manley entered and left Carter's guarded compound with Vice President-elect Mondale and Lane Kirkland, secretary-treasurer of the AFL-CIO. She and Kirkland came and left without talking to reporters. Mrs. Kreps has been mentioned as a potential secretary of labor or commerce and has met with Carter here twice this month.

Guillain-Bare Syndrome? Several Inoculated Floridians Paralyzed

By The Associated Press At least four and possibly eight Florida recipients of the swine-flu vaccine are suffering from a paralysis-causing malady known as Guillain-Bare syndrome, according to a state health official. Dr. Edward Smith of Jacksonville said Friday that the confirmed cases were in Lakeland, Tampa, Miami and St. Petersburg. And he said an additional unconfirmed case had been reported in each location. The national swine-flu inoculation program was suspended Thursday after reports of Guillain-Bare began trickling in. Officials are trying to determine if there is a link between the vaccine and the illness, which usually is not fatal but may cause temporary paralysis. Confirmed cases included those of Judy Roberts, 35, of Lakeland; Deborah O'Hern, 21, of Tampa, and Margaret Toul, 66, of St. Petersburg. Mrs. Roberts, a school administrator vaccinated last month, was reported in serious condition in the intensive-care unit of Lakeland General Hospital. Her physician, Dr. William Malzone, said she received her injection Nov. 21 and was hospitalized Dec. 4 after complaining of numbness in a toe and on one side of her face. He said she was now suffering paralysis in all four extremities and from general and severe weakness. Dr. William Hill, health director for Polk County, said, "This is a disease of unknown causes. We do not know why a person gets it. There is no bacteria, fungus; no identifiable agents."

Miss O'Hern, a Tampa nursing student who had been vaccinated and had been helping in the inoculation program, has been hospitalized since Dec. 8, about a month after she had taken the shot. Doctors at University Community Hospital said Miss O'Hern's paralysis started in her lower extremities and worked up her body, normal for the malady. They said her condition has stabilized and she is in therapy. Mrs. Tow was hospitalized Dec. 6 for what doctors said was a mild case. She was vaccinated Nov. 2 and her legs gradually grew weak. "I couldn't feel anything on the right side of my face, I couldn't chew and I couldn't swallow for a while," said Mrs. Tow of her Dec. 6 condition. "I still don't care whether I eat or not." "It's quite variable," Smith said. "It can be a brief illness and last two weeks and it can last several months before paralysis is fully gone." Dr. Charlton Frather, director of Florida's swine-flu program, asked physicians to immediately report any cases of the malady they discover. He said persons with any disease symptoms should consult a doctor. But Kyle McRoan of the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services said, "There's no necessity to go see the doctor just because you got an inoculation." He said some 1.7 million Floridians — 27 per cent of the population aged 18 and over — have been inoculated.

THE adult trio was booked into the Seminole County Jail at Sanford and the unidentified juvenile was taken to the Juvenile Detention Center. The men were charged with possession and sale of marijuana. Bond for Sopp and Knight was set at $5,000, while Nance, who was also charged with violating probation, was being held without bond. Knight was also charged with carrying a concealed firearm. The arrests took place, according to reports at the Seminole County Jail, after officers Wally B. Mitchell and Fred Johnson observed "a large supply of what appeared to be cannabis." The report said the officers were at the residence as a "continuation of a sale of a controlled substance that took place in Orange County." Meanwhile, in Sanford, fire destroyed a house at 719 Pecan Ave. early Saturday. Police reports said Jesse James Tompkins, who was renting the house, discovered a kerosene heater in a bedroom had caught fire around 3 a.m.

Hattaway: I'll Vote For 2-3¢ Hike In Gas Tax; Eyed For Work On 436 By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer State Rep. Robert Hattaway (D-Altamonte Springs) will be voting in the upcoming session of the Florida Legislature for a two-cent to three-cent increase per gallon of gasoline in state taxes, he told an audience of business and civic leaders Friday. "I'll be looking at the two to three-cent per gallon gas tax in the next session — I'll take a good strong look at it and vote for it," he said at a hearing held at the Altamonte Springs City Hall to bear testimony concerning traffic problems on SR 436 and possible solutions. Hattaway said that in the past Seminole County has not received its fair share of the tax dollars. But, with new funds from the gas tax increase, the possibility of the state allocating the necessary money to correct problems on the highway that carries an average of 50,000 cars daily could be enhanced. Seminole's resident legislator asked Mayor Norman Floyd to present a plan he has formulated as a solution to the problem to the entire Seminole County Legislative delegation at its January meeting. Floyd, showing a series of aerial views of SR 436, suggested a solution could be to provide an overpass near the I-4 SR 436 intersection to Palm Springs Road as its eastern terminus and to Montgomery Road as its western terminus. Wally Fish of the State Department of Transportation (DOT) said that in good faith he could not recommend such use of the I-4 federal right of way, adding the project might be accomplished by use of private or condemnation of new right of way. Meanwhile, Altamonte Fire Chief Tom Siegfried told Hattaway, Fish and L.A. Griffin of the DOT and Clifton Scott, county traffic engineer, that the six-laning of 436, to go to bid early next year, will create as many problems as it solves. Noting that the project will require removal of both the

Pot, Four Suspects Nabbed In County

By AUDIE MURPHY Herald Staff Writer More than 40 pounds of marijuana was seized Friday and four persons were arrested after an investigation that involved the sheriff's departments of both Orange and Seminole counties. A Seminole County Sheriff's Department spokesman said early Saturday that James Michael Nance, 29, of 1110B Americana Boulevard, Orlando, and Dennis Sopp, 29, and Timothy Knight, 18, — both of Canton, Ohio — were arrested with a female juvenile at 237 Colony Drive, Casselberry. The adult trio was booked into the Seminole County Jail at Sanford and the unidentified juvenile was taken to the Juvenile Detention Center. The men were charged with possession and sale of marijuana. Bond for Sopp and Knight was set at $5,000, while Nance, who was also charged with violating probation, was being held without bond. INDIVIDUAL RETIREMENT ACCOUNTS

Many Americans who are not covered by a retirement plan at work may be eligible for a special tax deduction. If you are among those who have no pension or deferred profit-sharing plan at work, then you may be able to set aside savings for retirement with before tax dollars.

Under the Pension Reform Act of 1974, individuals for the first time were given a personal tax shelter in order to encourage systematic savings for retirement. Those eligible may put into an Individual Retirement Account or IRA up to 15 per cent of earned income or $1,500 whichever is less.

The money contributed is a deduction from gross income for tax purposes. That means you can have an IRA and still use the standard deduction. Because you do not have to itemize your deductions in order to claim it, the IRA is not difficult for anyone to administer.

Some checkpoints you need to understand before starting an IRA are:

- What is the minimum contribution? No minimum — the 15 per cent or $1,500 rule limits maximum amounts. An eligible person may contribute any amount up to the maximum.
- How is an IRA established? All monies to be deducted in a calendar year must be deposited with the funding agency no later than Dec. 31. The funding agency furnishes the tax forms to substantiate the amount deposited.
- What investments are available? Certain savings accounts, life insurance policies, variable annuities, as well as mutual funds, common stocks, corporate bonds and authorized funding vehicles. The U.S. Government Retirement Bonds may also be purchased.
- What is the charge for establishing an IRA? Because of the record-keeping requirements, each funding agency has a charge for its services. The charge may be a flat fee, a percentage of the deposit, or reflected in the rate of interest credited to the deposit.
- What if deposits exceed 15 per cent of actual earned income in a year? The excess deposit may not be deducted and is subject to a daily federal fine until corrected. The same penalty applies even if the over contribution is not your fault, such as unexpected unemployment or a new retirement plan put in at work. To be safe, I would ask my employer to write me a letter for record, stating the extent of my eligibility.
- When can the money be withdrawn? Withdrawals must begin by age 72. Any withdrawal before age 59½ is subject to a 10 per cent penalty charge in addition to income tax.
- Is there an IRA for a spouse with no earned income? No, not for 1978 deposits. The new tax act made provision for the "Homemaker IRA" beginning in 1977.

In summary, the IRA is the people's retirement plan that may enable you to save more money than you would otherwise. Like any other tax shelter, certain federal requirements exist which result in substantial penalty if violated. Letters to Frank Arnall are welcomed. Please send them, c/o Evening Herald, Box 1857, Sanford 3277.

South To North: 'Why Are You Saying All...'

BOCA RATON (AP) — For several years, business seems to have agreed with Depression-era singer Jimmie Rodgers. The South's manufacturing employment outpaced the country's, and now population and personal income also are growing faster than the average.

Southern politicians, academics and business leaders eventually organized to try to sustain that growth and steer it in desirable directions.

But when the Southern Growth Policies Board met here last week, it was looking uncomfortably over its shoulder at a newer, very similar group. The southerners might well have asked, "What is the Northeast-Midwest coalition and why is it saying all those bad things about us?"

Some members of the Northeast-Midwest Economic Advancement Coalition charge that the South prospers at the expense of the older industrial states. They say the South is luring away jobs and is favored with a disproportionate share of federal spending.

The Northeast actually lost factory jobs during a generally expansive 15 years. There is understandable concern there about the cause. That concern mounted last May after Business Week published an article entitled, "The Second War Between the States: A bitter struggle for jobs, capital, and people."

The article dramatized the difference in growth rates of the so-called Sun Belt — from Arizona to Virginia — and the historically industrial states of the Northeast and Midwest.

The idea has been growing ever since, but it hasn't captured Nobel prize-winning economist Milton Friedman.

"In one sense, there's always been an economic war between the states," Friedman said in Miami this past week. "But there's no more of one today than there ever has been."

During an Atlanta news conference, President-elect Jimmy Carter also spoke on the subject. "I don't think that you could, with the closest possible analysis, divide the nation into areas of prosperity and that of deprivation," Carter said. "I think our problems are nationwide and that focusing of attention on employment opportunities would be much more on a community-by-community basis than it would North vs. South." Speaking to the Boca Raton conference, Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson also touched on the issue.

Richardson, considering whether to run for office at home in Massachusetts, proposed to change aid formulas for the North to help. It could keep the North's problems from having a national impact, he said, and thus help the South in the long run.

A northern intellectual brought the southerners the most comfort. The South is booming because its people want to work and because its leaders aren't afraid of economic growth, said policy analyst Herman Kahn, director of the Hudson Institute at Croton-on-Hudson, N.Y.

A job with even modest pay is appreciated in the South more than in the older industrial areas, Kahn said. "That's the reason," he said, "for the big welfare and unemployment problems in the big northern cities. There, if a man takes a lousy $6,000-a-year job, he's likely to work at it just long enough to earn enough money to afford to take a rest for a while. Then he quits, goes on welfare and takes a little vacation before looking for another lousy $6,000 job."

...All Those Bad Things About Us...?

Kahn's view wasn't new to his audience at the Conference on the Future of the South's Economy. Some of the 15 states represented already advertise that their workers are more productive than those elsewhere.

If Kahn was the inspiration for the conference, two Ohio economists had the ammunition the southerners wanted against C.L. Jenkins of Ohio State University and L.C. Ledebur of Denison University called their report, "Myth in the Making: The Southern Economic Challenge and Northern Economic Decline."

Their study confirms the southerners to a point — indicating that migration helps explain the southern population growth of 8.9 per cent compared to the north's one per cent in the 1970-75 period. They cite a sampling of workers covered by Social Security.

Nearly 267,000 moved to the northern industrial tier between 1973 and 1974, while some 358,000 went south.

However, Ledebur and Jenkins challenged the belief that northern jobs — not just people — were moving south. Florida Gov. Reubin Askew translated their charts into plain English: "More than 53 per cent of the employment losses in northern states between 1969 and 1972 are traced to the actual demise of many businesses. Another 44 per cent of employment losses in the north are attributed to cutbacks...in various firms...and only 1.5 per cent of the north's employment decline was traced to the migration of firms to other regions."

The Ohioans also argued that it's misleading to dwell on the fact that the South pays less in taxes than Washington spends in the region. Those figures are offset, they said, by lower per capita federal spending in the south.

And even in the camp that worried the southerners here, there are sympathetic northerners. Dr. James M. Howell, senior vice president and chief economist of First National Bank of Boston, heads the Council for Northeast Economic Action.

Howell, Texas-born and educated in the South, says he's concerned about colleagues who put forth the concept of a southern conspiracy. "I don't think there is one," Howell said. "I think the way the money is allocated is right — those who hustle get the bucks."

He also is licensed for property and liability insurance and registered with the National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc.

BY LARRY SAXON

Dear Mr. Saxon,

In your column this week you stated, "I am more and more representing buyers under contract", and they were paying you the commission. How does that make sense to the buyer? Doesn't he really end up paying two commissions just to be represented by his own agent—P.D.

Dear P. D.,

I thought this subject would open up Pandora's box — and so it has.

Obviously, it would be poor business for a buyer to pay two commissions for one transaction, and I haven't had any such clients who were that foolish.

When I represent the buyer under a contract, I receive no commission from the seller and, if he is represented by a broker, he normally pays his broker only that portion of the commission he would receive in a co-broker transaction. In other words, the seller pays less commission when I am paid by my buyer.

The nice part of it is, both the seller and the buyer are represented independently much as two litigants in a law suit are represented independently.

Actually, experience has led me to believe I am able to negotiate a more satisfactory transaction for my buyer when I am truly his agent. Since I have no fiduciary obligation to the seller, and owe him nothing but honesty and full disclosure of material facts, and since my buyer's needs are well understood by me, I am in a position to negotiate the "best deal" for my client.

I believe the Government is going to do something about this in the future anyway, so I'm making the switch now. And I like it!

Henry Kissinger Still Powerful

The term "lame duck" hardly seems appropriate for a man with the driving personality of Henry Kissinger. Nevertheless, it rode with him to his meeting with other foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Brussels — probably his last trip abroad as the U.S. Secretary of State.

Mr. Kissinger will be a little less lame than the imminent close of the Ford administration implies. For one thing, he will doubtless be the bearer of some insights into what Western Europe can expect from the Carter administration. His lengthy meeting with the president-elect soon after the November election probably added to his reading of the likely priorities of a Carter foreign policy. Also, Mr. Carter and his nominee for secretary of state, Cyrus R. Vance, have not repudiated many of Mr. Kissinger's assessments of foreign affairs, even if the Kissinger style of personalized diplomacy is probably on the way out.

Mr. Carter has stated publicly that he wants to strengthen U.S. ties with NATO. While Mr. Kissinger may or may not be able to add to that with any specific hints of how such a policy would be carried out, he will doubtless be able to serve as a messenger in the other direction. That is, his lame duck status will not prevent him from carrying back to Washington, for the ultimate benefit of Mr. Carter, the views of Europe on what the United States can do to make the NATO alliance stronger.

European members of NATO preceded the meeting with a declaration that U.S. and Canadian forces are still indispensable to the defense of Europe. This goes without saying, however, and mentioning it now may have been prompted by Mr. Carter's known inclination to view the cost of maintaining U.S. forces overseas as a possible target for reducing the defense budget.

In fact, the European ministers may have wanted to impress on Mr. Kissinger that they have been managing to increase their defense spending in spite of their economic problems, and that they hope Mr. Carter's first defense budget will reflect the same defense priorities found in Mr. Ford's budget for the current year. Throughout NATO there is a growing awareness that détente with the Soviet Union is not producing the anticipated grounds for reducing force levels in Western Europe's defense.

Indeed, the arms build-up on the eastern side of the Iron Curtain now stands as the most troublesome factor in a NATO strategy which only a few years ago was counting on a mutual reduction of NATO and Warsaw Pact forces to emerge as a parallel with an agreement between the United States and the Soviet Union limiting strategic missile deployments.

While the strategic arms talks may yet bear fruit, the NATO-Warsaw Pact negotiations have shown little or no progress, while the Russians have been investing heavily in conventional arms in the meantime. This development has helped rekindle the spirit of NATO, which had been flagging because of many problems within the alliance.

Token Offering

Britain's Labor government has unveiled its long-promised proposal to grant limited self-rule to Scotland and Wales. If Scottish and Welsh nationalists aren't cheering, it's easy to see why.

As we read it, elected assemblies in Edinburgh and Wales would have powers somewhat analogous to those of our state legislatures. They would provide for schools, health programs, road-building, environmental protection and other local services. In a major respect, however, they would have less power than our states. They could levy no taxes, relying for money on the parliament in London, which also would retain control of police authority, defense and foreign policy.

Especially galling to the Scots is that the plan gives them no share of the revenue from North Sea oil — a plan that has whipped up nationalist fervor in Scotland.

In sum, the bill does not offer Scotland and Wales much more in the way of self-government than what the British used to provide to their colonies. And from the Americans' viewpoint, colonists who felt a national identity were not satisfied with token autonomy.

"I have one rule in this office. If ANYONE with a Southern accent calls, put him right through!"

Carter's Dynamic Assistants

WASHINGTON — The tone of the Carter's presidency will be set in no small measure by the type of men and women he has selected for his transition teams.

Defense may be a typical example. The six top transition posts and one woman have been selected to study have characteristics which combine to form a rather clear picture of what the "new" Pentagon may be like.

They're young. Average age 37.5. The oldest is 44; the youngest, 32.

They're establishment types, with heavy emphasis on "in" universities — Princeton, Harvard Law and Business Schools, Yale Law, Stanford — and the prestigious preparatory school, Andover Academy.

They're bright. Two of the seven were Rhodes scholars. All did extremely well in school. A friend who taught one at Harvard Law School says he was one of the two brightest in his class, whose answers were well thought out, and included material not confined to law cases, which indicated an extremely wide range of reading.

They're aggressive, work hard, demand results from their subordinates. They're very sure of themselves, some arrogantly so, and very verbal. They think things out logically, but aren't prone to question the correctness of their own conclusions. They're sometimes intolerant of those who differ with them. Some use the term "hard nosed." They have a tendency to look down on men whose background and ideas are based in the main on dogma.

The experience of most is heavily freighted with esoteric theory, with a minimum of practical experience on the operational level. In the government, they've been concentrated in Pentagon Systems Analysis, in the National Security Council, the Board of National Estimates, Office of Management and Budget. They're basically "big picture."

In one sense, a number seem to be in the Robert Strangle McNamara mold. That is, they reportedly believe most problems can be solved by computer analysis based on an input of a range of mathematical assumptions and numerical data.

They do not fly by the seat of their pants, but rather by formulae.

Even when out of government, most have concentrated on the grand, over-all — in the Council on Foreign Relations, the Institute of Strategic Studies and similar posts.

As a group, it appears they may favor unconventional approaches based on breakthrough in military hardware which have occurred in the past five to seven years. In some areas this could mean radical change for the better. In other it could mean disaster.

Congress Nix Nix? It's Possible

WASHINGTON — At age 71, Rep. Robert N.C. Nix, D-Pa., is beginning to run down. The years have slowed his pace; his speech is hesitating. Yet he is a decent old gentleman who, in his plodding way, has tried to do right by his Philadelphia constituents.

Now, after 18 years in the House, he is in line to take over the chairmanship of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee. This would give him an important role in helping President-elect Jimmy Carter reorganize the federal government.

His colleagues in Congress, therefore, are reluctant to oppose Nix. Yet they have come to us with evidence that he isn't qualified for the chairmanship. They say he has a drinking problem, which has reduced his effectiveness.

Nix denied the accusation in a pointed interview with our associates, Gary Cohn and Howie Kurtz. The bald, bespectacled, old congressman insisted that he didn't drink any liquor at all. And the suggestion that he is slowing down, he said, was "absurd."

"I've never had any problem with alcohol in my life," he said. "I never frequent any drinking places. I work all day and sleep all night." He denied that he drinks in his office. "No, no, never," he said.

Yet a number of witnesses have given us a different story. They have seen him drunk on many occasions. He starts drinking, they say, in the afternoon, behind the thick oak door of his office.

For these private sorts, he keeps a bottle of Seagram's Seven Crown in his desk. He often spends the afternoon, say, with witnesses, sipping whiskey and puffing on cigars.

Callers and constituents may be held off in-

I had always heard that Christmas is mainly for kids, and now that I have a four-year-old I am learning the profound truth of that statement.

My daughter Barbara overheard — I believe it was in October — that Christmas was coming up, and since that time not a day has gone by that she has not asked about the mysterious and exciting event.

Just what Christmas is remains, I think, a mystery to her. Since she first heard about it, she has formulated various hypotheses about the holiday, all of which have been altered and revamped as she received more information.

At first, Christmas, in her mind, was an entity — perhaps a person.

"When is Christmas going to come over to my house?" she would ask, as if Christmas would come to visit in the same manner as her aunt Stephanie and Uncle Rick.

Later she concluded that Christmas was not a person after all, but a mysterious and perhaps apocryphal happening surrounded by all sorts of ceremonies and rituals.

She knew something was in the wind.

Then symbols of Christmas took on added significance, because she perceived that the adult world was paying a great deal of attention to them.

Christmas trees: she likes them best of all the symbols. While riding in the back seat of the car, she spied the large tree erected by the city over First Street near French Avenue and pronounced it "rather beautiful."

Next to Christmas trees, Santa Claus commands her greatest enthusiasm. It does not bother her one bit that she has seen many different Santa Clauses since the season commenced. Each one is greeted with the same exuberance as the last — no matter if the last one is standing only a block away.

Somewhere along the line she tuned in to the fact that Santa Claus is an easy mark. She regards the Jolly Old Elf as a connoisseur of toys and candy, and looks askance at any suggestion that he might place strings of good conduct on his gift-giving.

Unfortunately, the advertising industry, while doing what it does best, tends to encourage this attitude: those colorful newspaper ads and jangling television commercials never mention that a kid might have to toe the mark to qualify.

But being a kid, she also detected the good vibrations radiating from the Christmas season, and realizes that, despite the frantic activity, the adult world is generally in a better mood.

She listens closely to discussions about which relative should get what on Christmas Eve, and likes to add her two cents worth whenever she can get a word in edge-wise. Also:

— She worries a great deal that the kitty will be left out of everything and come up empty-pawed on Christmas morning.

— She has knocked over the Christmas tree only once — so far.

— She is no good at all at keeping secrets, and has leaked information to a certain reporter about what he is getting for Christmas.

— She repeatedly asks her father not to lock the door on Christmas Eve, so Santa will be able to get in.

— And she goes to sleep at night with what I have reason to believe are sugar plums dancing in her head.

Debunking Anti-Death Argument

WASHINGTON — Memo to opponent of the death penalty: Please spare us the one about capital punishment not deterring crime because in England—back when picking pockets was a capital offense—death-pickpockets used to pick the pockets of those who gathered to watch public executions.

Writing recently in The Wall Street Journal in opposition to the death penalty, E. Donald Shapiro, dean of the New York Law School, declared:

"If the existence of capital punishment served as a deterrent to crime, then 18th century England would have been one of the most crime-free havens in the world since children were hanged for stealing a loaf of bread. But, as Dr. Samuel Johnson observed during that same period many centuries ago, the surest place to find most of the pickpockets in London at that time was at the public execution."

Well, now, I have no doubt that Dr. Johnson made this observation. But is it true? Probably not. According to information provided me on this subject by the Library of Congress, what is perhaps the most definitive work on capital punishment, "The Death Penalty in America," Hugo Adam Bedas writes:

"A classic tale has it that when pick-pocketing was a capital crime in England, pickpockets plied their trade at the foot of the gallows while other spectators watched a pickpocket being hanged. The story is probably apocryphal. . . ."

In his observation that the pickpocket story is of doubtful authenticity, Bedas says it may have started from a chance remark in testimony given before the first Royal Commission on Capital Punishment in 1866. Citing well-known criminologist Leon Radzwinowicz's "History of English Criminal Law and Its Administration from 1750," Bedas quotes Radzwinowicz as reporting that rogues were rarely executed because such a severe penalty discouraged prosecutions. In few cases in which the death sentence was imposed for this crime, says Radzwinowicz, it was usually later commuted.

Another reason that it is highly unlikely that any pickpockets were actually executed for this capital crime — drafted in 1856 — was peculiarly wadded. In order for the convicted pickpocket to be sentenced to death, according to this law, the theft had to be committed without the victim's knowledge. If the pickpocket was observed by the victim — as most pickpockets were who were caught — then the offense was reduced to simple larceny, which was not a capital crime.

Furthermore, the Library of Congress says that the only additional evidence it can find on this subject is a former witness to the Elizabethan statute which made picking pockets a capital offense. Romilly, who studied this matter extensively, says he knows of only one offender actually put to death under this law.

Finally, even if there were solid evidence — that there isn't — that pickpockets picked criminals at the execution of other pickpockets, this would not prove the death penalty does not deter. Because in order to make such an assertion, it would have to be demonstrated that before or after picking pockets was made a capital offense, the rate of pockets being picked remained the same as when the law was in effect. And on this question there is no data whatsoever.

So, to sum up, while picking pockets in 18th century England was a capital offense, there is no substantial information that this law was enforced resulting in the execution of any sizable number of pickpockets.

In fact, according to the Library of Congress, the best available evidence is to the contrary.

Therefore, it comes as no surprise whatever that the death penalty was not enforced as so often is claimed. Why anyone thinks it should have been is puzzling.

Commission Chairman Is Rolling

County government, like Ole Man River, just rolls along. But under the new leadership of Republican Dick Williams the find is turning into a rash. In short, Williams is on the move.

Prior to Williams' selection as chairman, one short work session per week was held. Now, work sessions are held both on Tuesday and on Thursday. And, on either of these days — the agenda is loaded.

"I'm just working out the backload," Williams recently told a reporter. He said he's behind, but there are a lot of important topics that need taking down off the shelf for dusting.

Another plus for Williams is his new press information packet. That means a lot to the average news reporter. And, in the final analysis, it means a lot to Joe Citizen because the better the information provided the news media — the better the information it is that is passed on to the citizen.

Last Tuesday, it was a pleasant surprise to find a thick packet of memoranda, proposals and other items dealing with county business. Prior to Williams, the press packet consisted of a sparse sheet of paper barely outlining the agenda. In essence, it told you nothing. Officials wasted their time printing it out. But Bruce Supervisor Dot Wade was instructed to this type should be monitored. But to turn gather up some additional information for the press packet, and she did. And, in my opinion, everyone is the winner, especially Joe Citizen who depends on his daily newspaper for updates on governmental happenings. The Republican Party is lucky to have people like Williams and John Kimbrough as its representatives.

Officialdom is difficult to understand. One area I find difficult to fathom is the county commissioner's decision last week not to go along with a federal program designed to provide supplemental food to pregnant women, needy infants and children under four.

The federal program would provide about $100,000. But Commissioner John Kimbrough says he wants to see a paper clearly outlining the agenda. In essence, it told you nothing. Officials wasted their time printing it out. But Bruce Supervisor Dot Wade was instructed to this type should be monitored. But to turn down federal dollars when a need has been established doesn't make sense. Health Department officials have identified about 800 Seminole Counties who qualify.

Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff said he'd like to see some additional information. Seems to me once a need has been established, the only information that is needed is how to meet that need.

Commission Chairman Dick Williams said he'd like to see some additional information. Seems to me once a need has been established, the only information that is needed is how to meet that need.

Here's a partial listing:

- A liberal commissioner with the intelligence and perception and ability of Republican Commissioner John Kimbrough.
- More department chiefs with the dedication exhibited by Executive Assistant Roger Neiswander.
- A county non-political attorney period.
- Pay raises for county commission secretaries. They work hard, and they do a good job, and not always are they sufficiently rewarded.
- A Superman cape for Bob Ellis, the director of administrative services.
- A pointer's case for Ashby Jones, Circuit Court Clerk Art Beckwith's able assistant.
- A Red Badge of Courage for former Asst. County Atty. Robert Pierce. A second one, for former county commissioner, Tom Freeman. A third one, also, for the Democratic Party in general, at least as it relates to county government.
- A "Liberal Pill" for Commissioner Chairman Dick Williams. Just for good measure, please bring one also to Republican Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff.
- And last, but not least, some good cheer — everyone who makes his living at the courthouse in Sanford.

No room at the inn.

Biggest Football Victories Won't Show Up On The Books

There are a lot of people in the world who do not like sports.

Every year when football season starts, faithful fans have to suffer through the same old whippers-on-their-whiskers routines about the "widowed" housewives and monopolized airwaves.

And the sad part is that all this repetitive noise comes from an obvious minority. If that weren't the case, the television networks would devote themselves to a regular round of "Heidi" reruns instead of broadcasting the games. If "60 Minutes" drew larger audiences than football, it would quickly become "240 Minutes," or whatever TV moguls felt the market would bear.

It's an obvious fact of modern-day life that minorities have become the dominant force in Space Age society. But since — at least on paper — the majority still has the say, perhaps the Sports-Illicit Victims (SIV) should concentrate on not-watching football games so heavily as to force them off the air.

With militant members of the SIV staying away from their sets in droves all across the country, why TV football might be out of business in no time. All they need is an organized, concerted effort to carry them through. And also, it is greatly to be hoped, a silent one.

While there's no denying the over-emphasis and heavy commercialization of sports today, athletes per se cannot be blamed for this. Guilty instead are the nation's ad men headquartered on Madison Avenue, and the television networks themselves. Together, these forces will kill the golden-egg-laying hen every time.

Athletics as an entity, however, can be of great value in many areas. Conditioning is one. If America has become largely a nation of overweight, sedentary buttocks, increased physical activity would be a ready cure.

Take the clown who derives a certain perverse pride from announcing at every opportunity: "Oh, sports leave me cold." Then it turns out he's paying $500-$1,000 for a two-year membership to some health spa — and why? To keep in shape. While it's played a little tennis or handball regularly, he would possibly stay in even better condition than he does now. He would have a heck of a lot more fun, and he would be piles of dollars ahead, too.

Another area where athletics can exert a profound influence is in the world of youth. Although — thanks to the inescapable influence of adults — many Little League baseball or youth football programs are not what they could be, or what they should be, it still provides an excellent training ground.

Youngsters can start learning about winning and losing, about functioning under pressure, about being gracious in both victory and defeat. They can discover that sports are not a performance the errors of others may run a group effort.

L: Variations On A Theme

Representatives of Watson and Co., architects of the proposed $1.5 million city hall complex, will present variations of the "L-shaped" design for the structure to city commissioners at 4 p.m. Monday.

City commissioners gave tentative approval to the "L-shaped" complex design last week, while leaving the door open to switch back to the horizontal design if they wish.

City Manager W.E. Knowles has stated for the past month his preference for a "legislative" design of the building on the first floor of the complex with administrative offices on the second floor and its ground floor left open for future development, as more space is needed.

Noting that only 25.5 per cent (2,000) of the city's eligible 8,000 voters chose to cast ballots in the first election, Meyer asked, "How do we get the other 6,000 to vote?"

Keith, meanwhile, said he doesn't believe changing the election time will result in a better turnout. "The cost of voting with the general election is even more costly than running a separate city election," he said, "and the statistics show the turnout is better in December."

The party of the week was sponsored by the Seminole County Republican Executive Committee Thursday night at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce building.

County Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff and his pretty wife, Carol, were there meeting and greeting everyone.

Kirchhoff, in office only a month, said he would be willing to go back to November if I were given reason to believe we would have a better turnout. Meyer now says, noting that people may be reluctant to go to the polls for the sixth commission is having a meeting in the blue and red decorated city commission chambers except when a controversial routing matter is on the agenda. The merchants, business and civic leaders, however, were well represented — 70 strong — Friday for a hearing at city hall, called by State Rep. Robert (Bobby) Hattaway (D-Altamonte Springs).

The topic for the legislative hearing was SR 436, its problems and solutions. Hattaway invited the interested public and fellow members of the Seminole County Legislative delegation — Sen. Lari Wilson and Sen. John Vogt (re-elected last month), both of Brevard County, and State Rep. Vince Fechtel of Lake County — to attend.

The three may find that it would have been easier to have been there. Hattaway, the delegation chairman, urged everyone in attendance to appear at the January meeting of the delegation locally to give their testimony anew to his colleagues to advise them of the traffic problem facing motorists that must travel 435 and the merchants who are dependent upon the traffic for their business.

At 6:30 p.m. Sunday (today) the "Our Christmas in the Park" ceremonies will be held in Altamonte Springs and Maitland.

In highridge subdivision, off Orange Road, the residents will gather in the park for the tree and luminary lighting and the choral singing of the 7 p.m. community will start caroling.

Mayor Norman Floyd of Altamonte and Mayor Homer Hough of Maitland have asked the residents of the various subdivisions to participate.

Citizens of Altamonte Springs do not show up in great numbers when their city feels to be the one responsible for the loss of something the whole team wanted. Hopefully, these experiences will breed an understanding of the best way to handle such situations.

Many's the kid, usually at a little older age, who was saved from the wasteland of crime and prison by his involvement in sports. Former heavyweight champion George Foreman is one. When he danced about the ring waving his tiny American flag in Mexico City, it was because he had been lifted from the hellhells and bitterness of just such an existence.

America provided the opportunity for Foreman, an underprivileged kid, to rise from dead-end beginnings to the pinnacle of Olympic achievement. And sport was the vehicle.

Burt Reynolds was another teenager who got back on the right track through athletics. In his old days at Palm Beach High in West Palm Beach, the star of "Gator" and "The Longest Yard" was known as Buddy Reynolds. And he was a typical 1950s punk — the long, greasy hair, the leather jacket, the leather boots turned up collar, the whole Fonze-like syndrome. Only it wasn't very cute in real life.

Some of the teachers and coaches at Palm Beach High tried to get Reynolds interested in football. He was kind of a problem there, too, until one night in a junior varsity game the budding halfback burst off tackle and raced 80 yards for a touchdown. And a transformation took place.

Reynolds mentioned several former Seminole graders, some of them disadvantaged youngsters, who are now enrolled in college and on the road to potentially rewarding futures. He mentioned the four players from the 1976 club who have already signed letters-of-intent with colleges or universities. And he mentioned other promising youngsters from different segments of the athletic program.

For kids to have these opportunities — for them to suddenly or gradually find meaning amidst the turmoil and insecurity of growing up — they need a strong, clean, admirable figure to identify with. Somebody they can observe from their own perspective and say, "Look at him. He's serious about sports, about his life behind bars.

And this is the kind of influence Seminole High School Principal Don Reynolds was talking about last week when the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce held a small luncheon honoring for football coach Jerry Posey.

Well, Since You Asked...

Q. I would like to know if the teams that threw in players for Tampa and Seattle in the NFL got anything in return.—M.R., M.R., Anaheim, Calif.
A. Sure, they got a total of $16.5 million from each team. That was for the privilege of letting the expansion club join the fraternity by picking up the culs from the 25 established teams. It makes it easier for them legally, too, to say they paid all that money for talent.

Q. Vida Blue would have been a free agent had he not signed an A's contract on the condition that he would be sold to the Yankees. What do Blue, Finley and Steinbrenner think about the mess?—C.R., Redsville, N.C.
A. Blue thinks he was unfairly lured into signing the pact and, through his agent, plans to raise hell about getting it voided and new terms drawn up. Finley thinks he should have gotten the $1.5 million from the Yankees and has a suit now coming to trial—he also laments the size of Blue's contract, with which he was struck. Steinbrenner is glad he has Caliph Hunter, Ken Hiltzman and Reggie Jackson from the A's—and enough money left over to have signed free agent Don Gullett, ex-Reds southpaw.

Q. Will you please tell me if there really was a one-armed major league ballplayer who played with the old St. Louis Browns? How long did he stay up and what was his name, and do you have any batting and fielding stats?—G.L.P., Dover Pa.
A. Yes, Pete Gray, who played in 77 games for the Browns in 1945, is part of baseball lore. Pete Wyshner was his real name and he lost his right arm in a truck mishap as a young boy. He batted .218 that one year. When last heard from, he was living back in his home town of Nanticoke, Pa.

Q. Who in your opinion are the outstanding rookies in the NFL this season?—L. S., Oakland, Calif.
A. In the National Football Conference, I think beyond any doubt that Sammy White, the wide receiver of the Minnesota Vikings (via Grambling), has made the greatest impact. In the American conference, there is support for Archie Griffin of the Cincinnati Bengals, but my vote goes to Mike Haynes, the brilliant young defensive back who has helped turn around the New England Patriots.

Q. Who chooses the all-pro team?—A. D., Oakland, Calif.
A. There is no official all-pro team. NFL rules now forbid it, though the league at one time did have its own officials team in the 1930s and early '40s. The wire-services—AP and UPI—compile all-conference teams by balloting their correspondents. The Pro Football Writers Association selects an all-pro team. And NEA picks an All-NFL team on the votes of team captains and player representatives. The PFWA and NEA all-pro teams are published in the Official NFL Record Manual, as are the wire service all-conference teams.

Q. Are there any players in the National Football League without any college experience?—G. M., Tucson, Ariz.
A. Several, if you could include the place-kickers from such exotic locales as Cyprus, Norway, Austria and the Rhineland. Among those who play contact position, I can think of Ralph Nelson, Seattle running back, Willie Spencer, Minnesota running back, and defensive lineman Otis Sistrunk of Oakland.

Baseball $ Score In Trade

CINCINNATI (AP)—A large multi-year contract, a promise to play everyday and competition from young Dan Driessen were the factors that convinced veteran Cincinnati Reds baseman Tony Perez to agree to the trade to Montreal.

"I am both happy and sad," Perez told a news conference after the Reds announced the trade involving four players. Perez and young relief pitcher Will McEnaney went to the last place Expos for pitchers Woodie Fryman and Dale Murray.

Perez refused to say how long the contract was for or how much it will pay, but conceded he has a cut, no trade clause.

Cepeda Hopes Rest On Appeal

SAN JUAN (AP)—Former major league star Orlando Cepeda on Monday is expected to appeal a two-count drug conviction which could put him in a U.S. jail for five years.

Free on bail since his arrest late last year, Cepeda, 39, was ordered to pay a $10,000 fine and serve a concurrent five-year prison sentence for each count after he was convicted of smuggling and possessing 170 pounds of marijuana.

Cepeda, who was sentenced Thursday with his long time friend, Hermino Cortes, immediately appealed the decision which was the maximum allowable under federal law. Cortes faces a 30-month jail sentence and a $5,000 fine.

Anderson has scored 17 goals and 14 assists in 31 games for the Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League. He will replace Bobby Schmautz, who is sidelined with the flu and an injured left knee.

All Prep Titles Go To North

By The Associated Press
 Four schools from the north-west part of the state—Tallahassee Godby, Panama City Bay, Blountstown and Tallahassee FAMU—have been crowned Florida's 1978 high school football champions.

Top-ranked Godby (14-0) lived up to its reputation by capturing Class AAAA honors with a 21-5 victory Friday night over second-ranked Miami Carol City (12-2) at Lakeland.

Quarterback Sammy Knight had a nine-yard run and Chris Hobbs had a 64-yard scamper and one-yard plunge for Godby's touchdowns.

Carol City scored on a 40-yard first quarter pass play involving quarterback Reggie Ogburn and receiver James Gilbert, and on Terry Daniels' 62 yard run on a reverse in the fourth period.

Panama City Bay (12-2) captured its first title, stopping previously unbeaten Delray Atlantic 11-10 in the Class AAA title game at Ocala. Mike Smith's one-yard run in the final period proved the decider.

Atlantic (12-1) also lost title contests in 1973 and 1975. The first quarter was a field goal battle, with Dave Sims booting a 33-yarder for Bay and Mendon McMurrain hitting from 28 yards out for Atlantic.

Journe Burgess caught a 28-yard touchdown pass from Alan Armour to put Atlantic ahead 10-3 at halftime. Bay's defensive line then blocked a third period Atlantic punt for a safety.

Fernando Jackson rushed for 129 yards and host Blountstown's defense forced five turnovers as the Tigers beat Pahokee 13-0 for the Class AA championship.

Jackson ran 23 yards in the second period and quarterback Joey Stone ran four yards in the second half for Blountstown's scores. Blountstown (11-3) held Pahokee (12-2) to nine yards rushing in the second half.

End Henry Marshall caught three touchdown passes to lead host Tallahassee FAMU (10-4) to a 38-0 victory over St. Petersburg Shorecrest (9-5) for the Class A title. Marshall caught scoring passes of 12 and 25 yards from Lewis Wilkerson and a 20-yard TD loss from William Procter, who alternated with Wilkerson at quarterback.

Back Alfred Carter ran 19 yards and added a 33-yard field goal and Renwick Barber had a three-yard run for FAMU scores. Shorecrest was held to 56 yards rushing.

Boxing...Santore Gaining Stature

Lost in the shuffle of Mike Quarry's TV fights; Mad Dog Ross' rush to national prominence; Joey Vincent's emergence as the Southern middleweight champion; Taco Perez's continued popularity; and Milton Owens' sensational win streak, has been Frankie Santore.

That is, Frankie has been lost in the shuffle as far as the news media has been concerned. But not as far as the fans who come out and plank their money down each time he steps into the ring.

In the short span of just over 13 months, the good looking, lightweight has become one of the most popular fighters now showing his talents in the Sunshine State.

After his last win, a six round decision over Freddie Majors on December 7 at the Orlando Sports Stadium, the huge crowd rose to their feet and gave Santore a standing ovation that lasted almost a full minute.

When asked about this Santore replied, "I was really shocked, I didn't think the fight was THAT good, but I am happy that the fans thought it was."

This type of answer might be the reason Santore has been passed by, by the fourth estate, when it comes time to mentioning the many art of self-defense. They might go more for the way a Joey Vincent would have fielded the question and come back with a clever, snappy answer.

But, even if they don't care for Santore's retiring way of talking, they better get used to it. He figures to be around a long time.

Born in Alabama, but reared on Florida's east coast, Frankie started fighting as an amateur at the age of 16. After 10 bouts he joined the Marines and continued his ring career under their banner.

In the four years he was in the service, Santore participated in exactly 100 amateur bouts, while winning the North Carolina Golden Gloves and AAU titles. He also was the U.S. Marine champ and went as far as runner-up to the late Chuck Williams in the National AAU tournament.

Discharged in 1972, Frankie had trouble finding bouts, while living in Melbourne, and finally hung up his gloves and concentrated on construction work.

"I didn't have a place to train," Frankie recalls now, "and I didn't have a place to fight. Anything I did, was all on my own, and it was tough. On top of that, I was working regular on the construction job and I was too tired when I came home at night to do much more of anything, let alone train.

"I did take two fights as a pro during that time. A friend of mine told me I could pick up $125.00 for fighting over in Tampa. It sounded like easy money so I did. I really got whipped that night. A guy named Santiago. I was completely out of shape, and I guess I was lucky I didn't get hurt. Nobody should fight unless they are properly trained."

"I took one other fight. It was in Orlando, at the Sports Stadium. I got in fair shape for that fight, and won it going away. But they called it a draw."

Santore then goes on to explain, "When the bottom fell out of the building trade, I went back to school. That gave me some free time on my hands, and the next thing I knew I was back in training. This time though, I went and talked to Pete Ashlock. He watched me spar. Then we talked some more. I guess he liked what he saw. I know I liked him and his operation. We got together on terms, and here I am as one of his fighters."

Santore is still going to college, at FTU, and hopes to graduate in two years. He recently got his AA Degree in General Education and now is majoring in Physical Education.

Living alone, Frankie spends most of his time either at school or in Ashlock's gym under the watchful eye of trainer Dominick Polo.

"I feel I have really progressed since Polo took over my training," Santore recently stated. "I have much more endurance. I am punching better. Quicker, with more power. And I am not getting hit as much as I used to."

All those things will come in handy the next time he steps into the ring. It will be opposite Miami's Speedy Gonzales, as part of the "Triple Main Event" that matchmaker Bruce Trampler has arranged for December 28th at the Sports Stadium.

The Santore-Gonzales match will be one of three eight rounders. The other two will feature Sanford's Taco Perez against an opponent to be named, and Kip Braden, formally of Sanford, against Slick Mitchell.

Santore's current record is that of 16-2-1, and Gonzales figures to be his toughest test to date.

A walk-in puncher, the South Florida fighter has only lasted defeat once in his career, while winning 11 times, five of those by KO.

Gonzales has headlined shows at Miami Beach, fought all over the north-east and definitely has Santore worried.

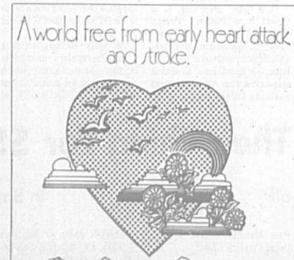

"This is my first big main event and the first time I have been in with a guy that will be all over me from the start. I hope to outbox him, but if I get the chance—I will be looking to knock him out. His only loss was a decision to Daris Hidalgo and if I stop him, that would prove I am a better puncher than Hidalgo."

Win or lose, Santore figures to start getting some of the recognition he so richly deserves.

HOW TO ERASE A GOOD PART OF YOUR FUTURE...

SHOPLIFT

Here it comes again... another shoplifting pitch. We know you've heard it before, but read on. Shoplifting is stealing. It is punishable by law and it labels you a criminal. It can wipe out your hopes for the future. It gets you a court record that can't be erased. Say goodbye to college plans or landing a job. Employers will think twice before they hire a thief. Is that wallet, necklace or lipstick you pocket worth the price you must pay in the end?

Mental Health Program Uses CB

(Editors Note: Ink Dipper (K1Z-3116) is the handle of the editor of The CB Times-Journal. Tractors, hailed as the last of the American cowboys, are in a business that breeds mental problems. For long hours, they're isolated from people, shut up in lonely truck cabs with only their problems to keep them company. But a few of them are beginning to find help while they're out on the road, thanks to a Bowling Green, Ohio, agency that provides mental health counseling and referral services over CB radio channel nine.

The CB hook-ups is through The Link, an agency funded by tax money and private donations to provide mental health counseling and services to area residents. Using a CB radio was the idea of Dr. Harve Meskin, executive of The Link. Meskin, who became director in July, came up with the idea when he moved to Bowling Green from Arkansas, where he had received his doctorate. "I noticed a lot of people communicating over CBs. It seemed like a logical extension of our services," he says. "Hopefully this will someday be expanded into a nationwide network. The program has applied for a federal grant to set up a mental health counseling program for truckers on a broader scale so it is feasible. Right now, The Link is working in a field of mental health that otherwise has been neglected. "Because of their work, truckers haven't been accessible to help," he says. "They're always on the move, and they're cut off. These people need help just like anyone else, and because of the nature of their work they probably need it more. "Since they're always on the move, they can't find out how to get help for personal problems. Maybe they have problems with drugs or alcohol.

converted house in Bowling Green. Because the CB is a sort of public party line, truckers have been reluctant to discuss their problems over the radio, he says. So far, The Link has been receiving a couple of CB calls a day, and its counselors have been telling people where to go for help and how to seek social or mental health services. They've also listened to the trucker's troubles, which is a help for some of the highway cowboys. The calls have come in because of word-of-mouth or a few stories which have appeared in magazines or newspapers. Eventually, Meskin wants to have a sign placed on a nearby interstate giving The Link's call letters and the channel it monitors. The Link has also provided help for people who are not truckers. "One thing we didn't expect," says Meskin, "is a large amount of contact we've had with people out on the highway at night and under stress because their car has broken down or run out of gas. "At the risk of sounding sexist, a lot of these calls are from women who are waiting for the police or a wrecker, and they're scared out there in the dark. It's a great benefit for our counselors just to let them know somebody knows where they are." Meskin says that it's still too early to evaluate how well the CB contact is working. As more truckers find out about it, he expects the CB to become busier. Using the CB in mental health counseling has opened up a new awareness for him about the trucker and his problems. Dr. Meskin says, and he would like to see other mental health programs setting up CB-contact systems. "The truckers have problems and needs that have to be met," he says. "They are, after all, the people who keep this country going, and we owe them the same services available to everyone else."

Maybe a trucker is afraid that his wife is abusing their children, and he needs to know how to get help. Meskin says that The Link, which is open 24 hours a day, hasn't provided much direct counseling over CB, but it has set up counseling for truckers either on the telephone or at the project's office in a

Get CB Permits To Cross Border

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — Americans don't need a passport or a visa to cross the Canadian border, but they do need a special permit to operate their Citizens Band radios there. The same holds true for Canadians who want to use their radios in the U.S. That is the word from the Canadian Department of Telecommunications and the U.S. Federal Communications Commission (FCC). The good news for CBers on both sides of the border is that the permits from both nations are free, issued on request to those with valid licenses from their own nation.

The bad news from the FCC is that the same degree of cooperation does not exist with the United States' other neighbors — Mexico. "Mexico is strictly out of bounds. They want nothing to do with CB, and sets are likely to be confiscated," said John Small of the FCC in a telephone interview from Washington. At Daily, radio inspector at the Canadian Telecommunications Department's Montreal, New Brunswick, office, said that U.S. CBers may get their Canadian permits by writing to any of the five regional offices maintained by his department. The offices are in Montreal, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver. Daily and several Americans who have traveled to Canada recently with their radios said that no check is made at the border to see if CBers have valid Canadian permits. But, Daly warned that operation without a permit could subject an American to a stiff fine. Daly said American would find few differences in CB rules and operating procedures north of the border. One difference, he said, is the name. CB in Canada is officially known as the General Radio Service.

Until July, there was another big difference. Channel 11 has been used regularly in Canada for conversation, said Daly, but in the U.S., it had been restricted by FCC rules for use as a calling channel. When contact was made, the conversation was supposed to move to another channel. The rule was changed by the FCC this summer. In both countries, Channel 9 is restricted to emergency communications. A Canadian traveling with his radio to the U.S. may get his permit by writing to the FCC, Gettysburg, PA, USA, 17236, Small said. Daily said CB radio isn't as organized in Canada as it is in the United States, and "we haven't got the same number of CBers using it as we do here." For this reason, visiting CBers used to hearing a lot of conversation on Channel 19, the unofficial truckers channel in the U.S., may find that in Canada, he said. Daily said that the Canadian government has authorized expansion from 20 to 40 channels for the first of next year, about the same time it takes effect in the United States.

Sounds Of Tomorrow Hark! Seminole 'Angels' Sing

It is truly remarkable, how the traditional music of good old Christmas carols can be dressed up to sound like a song from Tomorrow — rather like taking a Christmas tree angel and putting her into a space-age jump suit. She's still the same angel, still beautiful — but also new and different. That is what Seminole High School's Jazz Rock Ensemble does with carols, and indeed with all the music it sings. With the updated beat of rock rhythm and the forever-new variations of jazz, the group of young singers brings a fresh sound to old songs that makes listening to it an exciting experience. The Jazz Rock Ensemble is an offshoot of the Seminole Chorus. Under the direction of music instructor Robert G. McGuire, and often with innovations of their own, the boys and girls in the Ensemble rehearse every Monday evening at the high school. They perform at area church and club functions, as well as at the school, and recently entertained Sanford working women at the Chamber of Commerce's annual Ladies' Brunch. While McGuire is their chief inspiration, the ensemble members often work out their own, and many of their numbers are not only note-perfect, but interestingly choreographed as well. They reportedly picked up many useful tips at Seminole Community College's recent Chorus Clinic. This is the first year the Ensemble has been in existence (second for the Chorus) and with the talent, verve and enthusiasm shown by the singers, it is likely to endure for many years to come.

Chorale: Today's Yule Message

Rather than resting back on their laurels after their successful trip to Poland in the summer of '75, the Central Florida Chorus has continued to expand its repertoire, and its membership. The group, which works together without a formal instructor, rehearses each Sunday evening at the Sanford home of its accompanist Betty Smith. Their sound is basically traditional, with touches of light and lively zest and humor. Some of their concerts are religious; others have a folksy flavor. But in all, the group's love of singing — its sole reason for getting together — is obvious. During the summer of this year, when Bicentennial fervor was at its peak, the Chorus's emphasis was on patriotic music — and their red, white and blue pant suit outfits reflected the spirit of '76. On more formal occasions, the group wears fetching burgundy gowns, and during the Christmas season their outfits have been holiday-green pants suits with snow white blouses. While the Chorale does not charge for its performances, donations are gratefully accepted to help defray expenses. Chorale members include Mrs. Smith, Jenny Benz, Mary Jean Berrien, Irene Brown, Susan Cann, Barry Ann Graham, Elizabeth Hall, Sylvia Henderson, Lois Sloan, Glynnce Mann, Marilyn Meredith, Jean Metts, Ruth Mickelson, Elizabeth Rice, Bonnie Platt, Mary Reddick, Bobbi Robbins, Dot Waller and Shirley Yon.

Can(e)'t Trim A Tree This Way

"Deck the halls with boughs of holly..." Well, that's easy enough. It was trimming the tree with candy canes that had me fazed. Decorating a Christmas tree was a relatively simple matter back in South Africa where I grew up. A couple of yards of paper chains, a dozen strands of tinsel and some bright glass baubles was all it took. And real candles, which were pretty to be sure, but I shudder now to think of the fire hazard they represented. Here in the U.S., tree trimming has been refined to a fine art. It is a major decision, what style or theme to have for your tree each year. Well, I always thought red and white striped candy canes added a gay touch to a tree, so I bought a bunch, all individually wrapped in cellophane paper. Tree trimming night came, but duty called — while I was out on an assignment, my friend decided to do a good turn and hang the canes on the tree. Trouble is, she unwrapped them first. Next morning, there were no candy canes on the tree. None at all. But there were great puddles of sticky red candy on the floor, and plenty more dripping through the branches! At least I had no problem getting the other decorations to stick. No doubt letters have been written to Santa by the little people in your family, or broad kids dropped at all the lovely new goodies they hope he will bring on Christmas Eve. That leaves a lot of toys in the cupboard that these youngsters won't be playing with much after Dec. 25. Don't let them just lie there, when they could be brightening up Christmas Day for some less fortunate youngster. It's still not too late to take used (but not too raggedy) toys to the X-Change, 307 S. Magnolia Ave., Sanford. The toys can then be sold for a small donation, and the money will go toward the projects of the Seminole County Association for Retarded Children. Congratulations to Janice Springfield, first woman in Sanford to be elected to the board of directors, Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce. Sometimes it takes a woman's touch. After watching the television interviews conducted with Jimmy and Rosalynn Carter in their Plains, Ga. home by both CBS's Walter Cronkite and ABC's Barbara Walters, I couldn't help thinking that with her feminine charm and glee, Ms. Walters got closer to the hearts and souls of the Carter couple. Cronkite, naturally, got opinions, stances, proposals — but we heard all that before.

Christmas Parade 'Biggest, Best'

Surely it was a record number of people from all over Seminole County who turned out to view the annual Winter Springs Christmas Parade on Dec. 11. Sidewalks all along the route were filled with happy holiday crowds.

Happenings at the Winter Springs Elementary School... The Veterans of Foreign Wars Ladies Auxiliary to Post 5485 were on hand at the elementary school Friday to present the school with an auditorium flag, as part of the VFW's Americanism program. The presentation took place during a PTA meeting.

Not content to rest on his richly deserved laurels, Holzman said he intended "to shoot for something a little bit bigger and a little bit better" next year.

Any student requiring assistance and spotting that symbol can approach that home knowing they will receive help.

Friday, when the day school let out for the Christmas vacation, the student body was treated to a variety of entertainment in the school media center.

Under the direction of Janice Papp, the 4th grade students gave a delightful rendition of songs from the Christmas season. That was followed by the 5th grade students, under the direction of John Thomas, putting on a puppet show.

Congratulations to former first grade teacher Maldwin Perry who was recently promoted to curriculum assistant. According to sources from the school, that title stands for "Mr. Sawyer's right arm."

Real Trees On Endangered Species List

Jim Turner, Sanford, said: "We prefer an artificial tree, I guess, so we don't have to go to the trouble of buying a new one each year. You don't have the needles all over the floor, either. We got ours last year. The artificial ones are supposed to be flame proof, also."

Laura Walther, Sanford: "We will use an artificial one. The real ones are so expensive and you get more use out of the artificial ones. We've had a green one for two years. I don't really know which is the safest."

Evelyn Crompton, Sanford: "I like a real tree. They are more realistic and mean more to me at Christmas. We've never had anything but real trees. They smell so good. You might save money on an artificial one, but after packing and unpacking them, they begin to look drab."

Ruth Goble, Lake Mary: "Artificial I have a shag rug which is a very good reason. Sometimes I think you can decorate them better, and they're not as hazardous because they are sprayed with a fire preventative."

Debbie Brown, Lake Mary: "I like an artificial tree. It lasts longer. We have the green kind. In the long run, over the years, you save money by having an artificial tree. We've had ours for five years."

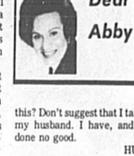

Helen Atherton, Hacienda Village: "I like an artificial tree. It lasts longer. We have the green kind. In the long run, over the years, you save money by having an artificial tree. We've had ours for five years."

Adopts 'Patchwork' Approach

Court Lacks Philosophy On Women's Rights

WASHINGTON (AP)—For seven years, the Supreme Court under Chief Justice Warren E. Burger has studiously avoided developing a guiding doctrine in its consideration of women's rights.

The resulting case-by-case method has yielded decisions hailed by women. It also has recently produced rulings denounced by feminists, although the court's basic approach has remained unchanged.

The court's philosophy, or lack of one, is being examined closely because of the controversy following the court's ruling last week that employers who provide disability programs for their workers are not legally required to include pregnancy benefits.

Justice William Rehnquist, who wrote the majority opinion, acknowledged that "it is true that only women can become pregnant," but he went on to say that discrimination based on pregnancy is not sex discrimination.

Rehnquist said an employer whose disability programs excluded pregnancy benefits did not set pregnant women apart from men but, instead, from nonpregnant workers, including women.

Feminists who had been pleased with many of the court's decisions in recent years reacted with surprise and outrage. The decision a product of the court's patchwork approach to women's issues.

Beginning in 1971, when it ruled that states cannot give a legal preference to men applying to become administrators of welfare benefits, the court has applied a "rational reason" test on a case-by-case basis.

Under this test, a state must have such a reason to differentiate between men and women, the court's majority said then. Lack of that reason violates the 14th Amendment's equal protection clause.

That rationale has been used to uphold a woman's right to equal pay for equal work and equal opportunities in education and business but only on a case-by-case basis.

"The court won't reach outside of the framework of each individual case," said Ruth Bader Ginsburg, a leading women's rights attorney. "There have been no broad assumptions (in women's rights cases) that characterized past court decisions dealing with racial discrimination."

In a 1973 case, known as Frontiero v. Richardson, four justices wanted the court to take such a step and declare that sex discrimination would be treated exactly the same as discrimination based on race or national origin.

All I Want For Christmas...

Mitchell Couple Married 60 Years

Congratulations are in order to Mr. and Mrs. J. C. (Velma and Doc) Mitchell of Sanford who celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary Wednesday.

This delightful couple grew up across the street from each other in Yatesville, Ga. and they were married in America, Ga., on Dec. 15, 1918.

The Mitchells moved to Sanford in 1925 and have lived here since. She is a retired principal of Southside Elementary School. He is a retired office manager of Southward Fruit Co.

On Dec. 19 the couple's daughter and her husband, "Topsy" and Tom Kirkland of Winter Park, will honor them at a family dinner and get together at Orlando County Club. Joining the honor guests will be their four grandchildren, three great-grandchildren and other family members.

Among those attending are young Tom Kirkland, his wife Karen, and Joe's mother, all of Miami. Arriving with Joan (Kirkland) and Ted Thomas will be their sons, Robb and Christopher, and Ted's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sid Thomas of Naples.

Also attending the gala family celebration will be granddaughters Marcia Kirkland, a teacher at Robert E. Lee High School, Winter Park, and Beth Kirkland, a student at University of Florida.

With the season of giving and sharing upon us, here's how they feel about "All I want for Christmas is..."

Kathy Baker: Our daughter's college education. Val Colbert: To thank all who sent in a dollar for the zoo and ask that others keep those dollars pouring in.

Christine Sharples: A billfold that would fit in my pocket. Anne Tolbert: My Christmas shopping and cooking over with, so for once I could relax and enjoy the season without the rush, which I must really enjoy.

JOYCE RUSSELL: Something personal selected by my husband. Anna Mae Wells: To be with my four sisters. I am spending Christmas with my children and grandchildren and it would be complete if my sisters could join us.

Peggy Conrad: Continued good health and happiness. Pila Hughes: To be together again with my mother, five sisters, two brothers and their families. They are all in Mexico except one sister who lives in California. We haven't all been together for years.

Mail Drop At North Pole For Santa

A bicycle, a train set, a race car like Billy's and oh yeah! I've been good all year! Santa Claus received letters from children all over America when a plane flew over the North Pole to make the delivery for the first time.

The pole marking the top of the world was painted in red and white stripes like a candy cane. It stood amidst 5,000 letters addressed to Ole St. Nick.

What do you want for Christmas? Anthropologist Margaret Mead, who just turned 75, has been selected as one of America's most influential women by a World Almanac survey.

A general among the footsoldiers of modern feminism" was how one writer described Dr. Mead. Brought up to believe that women should have a profession, she pursued her career without concern that her sex might hinder her progress. She was born in 1901 into a highly intellectual Philadelphia family; her father was a professor-economist, her mother a sociologist.

In 1927, she wrote a scholarly study of the sexual mores of young Polyneians on the island of Samoa that became immensely popular. Since then, she has studied seven cultures and written 17 books.

A woman of formidable energy, she is forever on the move, lecturing, writing, debating on current issues, always particularly interested in young people's reactions to the strictures of society.

"Deadline U.S.A." was the title of a film Hollywood was preparing to make on newspapermen. Bogart agreed to play the managing editor, a part which required him to wear a crew-cut toupee (no haircut for him).

He'll never do that again! Movie actor Franchot Tone pleaded guilty to a charge of battery. Floribel Mir, a movie columnist said he spat on her. So before a courtroom of 70 people, he apologized to her. It didn't end there however, he was given a suspended 45 day jail sentence, placed on probation for a year, and fined $400.

In the spirit of peace. India and Turkey signed a treaty of "perpetual peace and friendship" at Ankara. In the world of sports...

Joe DiMaggio, veteran New York Yankee outfielder, decided to quit baseball. After 13 years with the club, he said he would always remember the loyalty of the fans and it was for this reason that baseball suited him so much to his life.

Don't neglect to take out your wife just because she isn't as pretty as she used to be... Mrs. Amelia Petrone of Cleveland, got a divorce from her husband on the grounds of cruelty. Married to him for 40 years, she testified that he hadn't taken her out to dinner once in the past 151.

Baby Whoopers? There was a dispute between two states when Louisiana wanted the whooping crane it loathed Texas back. Texas said "Crip" was the male of their bird" and that it would be bringing up a family to separate them. There were only 28 whooping cranes known to exist and naturalists feared the birds would become extinct unless some baby whoopers came along.

You think you have problems with the mail... Griffin went through her mail one morning, she discovered a letter from her son which had been mailed 48 years before. Postal workers said they noticed it because of the old-fashioned stamp and the question nobody could answer was: Where had it been all this time?

DEAR "AUSTIN": Now, in addition, if you could arrange to watch yourselves EAT, you might have it made. (P.S. And should you decide to COOK in the nude, do wear an apron while frying bacon).

DEAR ABBY: My problem may seem small to some, but to me it's very important. My husband and I have been married over 30 years, during which time he has been a good husband and provider. He has only one fault, which really irritates me. He surely must take vitamin "I," because that's his favorite word.

DEAR ABBY: Don't tell him he's too "old" for you — tell him you're too "young" for him. Or tell him that he reminds you of your father. And if that doesn't work, make it your grandfather.
