DEAR DR. GOTT: I have on sleeplessness. I am sending biliary liver disease, or cirrhosis, which I'm told is terminal. What are the four stages of the disease and their symptoms, and how long might I live with this condition?

DEAR READER: Primary biliary cirrhosis, a liver disorder of unknown cause, has four distinct phases.

First, the bile ducts become inflamed. This causes no symptoms but blood tests can detect it.

Second, scar tissue forms around the bile ducts. Called 'periportal fibrosis," this signifies advancing disease and leads to jaundice and worsening liver function.

Next, the scarring becomes denser. At the same time, inflammation recedes, and patients experience fatigue and itching, along with the jaundice. Liver function is severely compromised.

The fourth and final stage is cirrhosis. The liver shrinks and hardens. Vital metabolic reactions are disrupted or halted. The patient becomes progressively sicker and eventually will die unless he or she receives a liver transplant.

Primary biliary cirrhosis is diagnosed by special X-rays and/or biopsy, performed by a hepatologist (a liver specialist). There is no satisfactory cure except liver transplant, for which such patients are excellent candidates.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Several weeks ago our local newspaper indicated that if you can't sleep. take a tablespoon of honey before going to bed. I tried it and it seems to work. Is there any scientific evidence to this?

DEAR READER: No, there isn't. However, if the remedy works for you, it won't harm you, unless you are a diabetic, in which case a glass of warm milk might suffice.

It is fine cashing winners when you're on defense. However, more often than not, early in the play, you need to be establishing tricks for your side, not cashing winners, especially if that establishes tricks for the oppo-

There is an old saying that expresses this point well: When playing in three no-trump, a beginner wins the first eight tricks and loses the last five. whereas an expert loses the first four and wins the last nine.

Today's deal occurred during a round of the Spingold Master Knockout Teams, the premier event of the Summer Nationals.

At both tables, the contract was four hearts. At the first, North was the declarer. East led the diamond king and, despite seeing the South hand as the dummy, East continued with the diamond ace. Now there was no defense. If East switched to a club, declarer would win with the ace, draw trumps ending in the dummy (South) and discard his club loser on the diamond queen. But when East played a third diamond, so that West could ruff away the queen. declarer overruffed, drew trumps and drove out the spade ace. on the spade king.

At the second table, where in the given auction four diamonds was a transfer bid to four hearts. West led a diamond to East's king. Despite being unable to see the South hand, East switched smartly to the club jack. This set up the fourth defensive trick, the club king, before South could obtain a discard.

Timing is often everything in bridge.

Bettye Cobett Chaney, president of the Sanford Housing Authority Resident Council Inc. stated in a letter to The Sanford Herald, the group plans to work with the interim administration for the good of the housing authority.

Initially, some residents challenged the allegations of improprieties against Richardson. Allegations included not following

JACKSONVILLE - A Jacksonville firefighter and department spokesman has decided to retire after his arrest on drunken-driving charges and resisting arrest outside a football

Glenn Domen, 48, who moved from Sanford to Jacksonville in 1991, filed a request for retirement benefits Thursday with the Fire and Rescue Department, said Susie Wiles, an aide to Mayor John Delaney.

The retirement will take effect Oct. 7, she said. Domen has been on administrative leave since Monday, the day after he was arrested near Jacksonville Municipal Stadium during the Jacksonville Jaguars-Green Bay Packers game. Police reported Domen seemed drunk and refused to take a sobriety test when he was stopped behind the wheel of a 1990 Domen's employment was protected by civil service rules, but his position as department spokesman was appointive. Since his arrest, the Mayor's Office had been considering whether to replace him.

Floridians against phone solcitation

TALLAHASSEE - Some 31,000 Floridians have put their names on the state's "no sales solicitation calls" list.

The state Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services gets more complaints about people trying to sell things over the phone than about any other consumer issue, according to Agriculture Commissioner Bob Crawford.

'Florida consumers can help ensure their privacy and avoid many unwanted telephone solicitation calls by registering with our department," Crawford said Thursday.

Under a 1987 law, most commercial telemarketers have to get the "no sales solicitation calls" before hitting the phones. Firms who break the law can be fined by the department. which has collected $44,212 since 1992, including $12,000 fine against one firm. Floridians have to pay $10 to get on the list for the first year and a $5 annual renewal fee. The list is updated quarterly.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Bad food probed Task force reviews food-borne illnesses

By ADAM YEOMANS Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - The state needs to revamp how it inspects restaurants to ensure they are preparing food properly and hire more inspectors to do the job, a top regulator said Thursday.

Rick Farrell, secretary of the Department of Business and Professional Regulation. wants changes in a system that has 165 inspectors responsible for 35,000 restaurants in response to recent food-poisoning outbreaks statewide.

'We have a lot fewer inspectors than the state of Virginia, which has a lot fewer restaurants. Every year we ask for more inspectors and don't get them," Farrell said during the first meeting of a task force he formed to study food-borne illnesses. "It's clear that there are not enough people."

But it isn't just the number of inspectors that concerns Farrell and the task force. Just as crucial are the types of conditions checked by inspectors and how restaurant workers handle food.

Task force members suggested more food-handling training for workers, increased penalties for food-safety violations versus other infractions such as a broken floor tile, and changing how inspectors perform their duties to focus on food safety.

Hand-washing techniques, food temperatures and contamination when different foods are prepared on the same surface are major areas that need attention to prevent food-borne illnesses, said Roberta Hammond, acting environmental administrator at the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

Farrell formed the task force after a salmonella outbreak at Margarita Y Amigas in West Palm Beach last month. About 2,000 people reported symptoms of the illness, 189 cases were confirmed and five people were hospitalized.

The restaurant faces fines totaling up to $10,000 and possible license revocation.

The food-poisoning incident followed a string of others in Orlando and Jacksonville in recent months.

To beef up the inspection system, Farrell said he will request 21 more inspectors next year. Lawmakers rejected the agency's request for 29 new positions this year.

A law that took effect July 1 requires a minimum of three inspections a year for restaurants. The old law required between two and five a year.

Farrell said one idea would reduce the number of inspections, but make one of the visits four to five hours to allow inspectors to observe how food is prepared and question workers about their food handling. The average inspection now lasts from 45 minutes to an hour and 15 minutes.

in West Palm Beach, the restaurant got average reports from inspectors but nothin to indicate it posed a health threat. Farrell said he doesn't have a good answer for consumers who want to know about food-safety conditions at their favorite din-

"I don't have a good answer for How does the public know?" I've got to come out in my job and say, "We're going to make sure every restaurant is safe"," he said.

Simpson jury gets case today

LOS ANGELES - Johnnie Cochran Jr. wan the preacher. Barry Scheck was the teacher.

And when it was over, the judge told jurors in the O.J. npeon trial that by today, after nine months of sequestration, the lawyers will finally stop talking.

"The case," Judge Lance Ito said, "will be yours."

All that remains is the final word from the prosecution today in its rebuttal to the defense's 11/2 days of summations, which on Thursday were part science course, part tent revival meeting.

Scheck provided the technical side, speaking at great length about blood, hair and fiber and a police department so foul that when it's not contaminating evidence, it's planting it.

Cochran provided the flery in what some may call his finest professional hour and what one victim's father denounced as a sickening display, Cochran unlesshed a thundering aummation, imploring the mostly black panel to "do the right thing" and acquit Simpson in the alayings of ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald

An acquittal, Cochran said, would send a powerful message against racism and police misconduct, and place those "twin devile of deception" -Detectives Mark Fuhrman and Philip Vannatter - in their rightful place.

'Stop this cover-up! Stop this cover-up!" Cochran bellowed in the second day of his summation. "You are the consciences of this community."

Vannatter told the Los Angeles Times that Cochran's argument was nonsense, "It's lies, It's ridiculous," he said.

The summation reverberated from the courthouse to the White House, President Clinton said he was concerned about the racial implications of the trial.

'I'm concerned about it and I hope the American people will not let this become some symbol of the larger racial issue in our country," he told NBC-TV in Washington.

Closer to home, Fred Goldman, father of victim Ronald Goldman, went before the TV cameras and lashed out at Cochran.

"This man is sick," he said. This man is a horror walking around amongst us."

Simpson's family responded. "It's wrong, even when you're hurting, for someone to get up and personally attack our lawyers and say that they're liars." said Simpson's sister, Shirley Baker, in a rare public comment.

Summing up the defense portion of the eight-month trial, Cochran invoked biblical texts and quoted poets and a philosopher to make the case that Simpson was a man wrongly accused by authorities who were incompetent, corrupt and racist. Cochran told the spellbound jurors that fate had given them a chance to change history. 'Maybe there is a reason why we're here," he said. "Maybe you're the right people at the right time at the right place to say: 'No more!' "

In his last words to the jury, Cochran implored jurors to acquit Simpson, invoking the image of his two small children. He stood before a wall-size blowup of Simpson and his young daughter, Sydney, and spoke of a father's love.

"Someone has taken these children's mother," he said. "I hope your decision doesn't take their father."

He listed 15 possible sources of reasonable doubt and turned to the Bible in his final moments at the lectern. He cited sections of Proverbs on false witnesses who must be punished and urged jurors to carry out God's will.

"I know you will stay the course, keep your eye on the prize and do the right thing."

Cochran said. Cochran's emotion-packed discourse - often focused on Fuhrman - clearly was designed to rouse feelings of racial solidarity among the nine black members of the 12-person jury.

The jury, which also includes two whites and a Hispanic, sat meamerized through Cochran's arguments. He was interrupted only once when a woman juror asked to go to the bathroom.

"A racist is someone who has power over you," he told them.
"This man would lie and set you up because of the hatred he has in his heart."

He played for jurors the sound of Fuhrman's voice speaking the infamous racial epithet that the now-retired detective swore he had not spoken in 10 years. He, read to jurors every word of a letter from witness Kathleen Bell, who said she heard Fuhrman advocate burning all blacks.

Comparing Fuhrman to Adolf Hitler and conjuring up images of genocide, Cochran said the detective targeted Simpson after learning in the 1980s that the black football star was married

Cochran's impassioned appeal was followed by the cooler, scientific analysis of Schock, who told jurors: "There is a cancer at the heart of this case."

Scheck's involvement in closing arguments illustrated his increased prominence in the case. Brought on originally to hendle the DNA portion of the trial, Scheck's stature on the defense team grew dramatically after his effective crossexamination of police criminalist Dennis Fung.

In his remarks, Schook instated jurors could not trust any of the DNA analysis of blood because the samples were con-taminated and tampered with in the "black hole" of the Los Angeles Police Department crime lab.

"Somebody played with this evidence," he said. "There's no doubt about it."

Using an analogy posed by forensic expert Henry Lee, Schook compared the defence discovery of flawed evidence to discovery of flawed evide finding a cockroach in a bowl of spaghetti — enough of a sign that the whole bowl is infested.

"How many cockrosches do you have to find in the best of epaghetti?" he saked. "This is reasonable doubt."

WARRINGTON — For equilient PLO chairman Yesser Arafat the next goal is a Palestinian state with its capital in Jerusalem.

"Definitely," he said Thursday before signing an accord with Israel to withdraw Israeli troops and give the embryonic Palestinian Authority control over nearly one-third of the West

For Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, the next goal is cementing ties with his one-time blood enemy and other former Arab adversaries to contain terrorism. The security of more than 100,000 Jewish settlers living among the Palestinians could be at stake.

'If all the partners to peacemaking do not unite against the evil of angels of death by terrorism, all that will remain of this ceremony are color snapshots, empty mementos," Rabin said at the glittering White House event.

Volunteer militie forming

KIRYAT ARBA, West Bank - Jewish settlers are forming a volunteer militia to patrol the streets of the West Bank when the Israeli army pulls out. The Palestinian mayor warned that could lead to more violence.

Hundreds of volunteers have signed up for the militis, and plan to take over army installations vacated in the wifindrawal stipulated in the Israel-PLO agreement signed Thursday, said

Zvi Katzover, leader of the Kiryat Arba settlement. "We've opened an office for volunteers to sign up to be prepared to come and help us the moment that the army is withdrawn," he said. "We are counting on all these volunteers to come and help fill the vacuum."

As he spoke, the Muslim call to prayer sounded from mosque minareta in adjacent Hebron.

Servicemen turned over to authorities

TOKYO - Three American servicemen accused of raping a 12-year-old Okinawan girl were turned over to Japanese authorities today after nearly a month of angry protests that have cast a shadow over U.S.-Japanese security ties.

The rape has sparked fury on Okinawa, one of the United States' most important military outposts in the Pacific, and triggered demands that Japan change the terms governing the presence of some 45,000 U.S. troops in this country.

In a speech opening the fall session of Japan's parliament in Tokyo, Prime Minister Tomiichi Murayama called the rape "extremely regrettable." He demanded that the United States take steps to avert any similar violence in the future.

Softening GOP plan

WASHINGTON - Softening a GOP plan to scrap virtually all of Medicaid's federal rules, the Senate Finance Committee retained protections for spouses facing poverty from an ailing mate's nursing home bills.

But the majority Republicana fended off attempts to wrest control of Medicaid back from the states if millions more Americana lose coverage or the infant mortality rate rises under the block grant approach.

The panel was resuming work this morning after a late-night session Thursday on the massive bill to save a half-trillion dollars over seven years from Medicaid, Medicare and tax credits for the working poor.

A lone Republican, Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., sided with the Democrats on several futile efforts to preserve the current federal entitlement to health care for needy children and families, the elderly and disabled.

In therapy or coffee klatch, French philosophy

by BLIZAGETH GAR Associated Préss

PARIS - Sacrifice, home-Sunday mornings at France's first "philosophy cafe."

Once an elite preserve for France's best and brightest, philosophy has gone mainstream at the Cafe des Phares (Lighthouse Cafe) overlooking the fabled Place de la Bastille.

Since 1992, enthusiasts ranging from professionals to the homeless have gathered for spontaneous debates guided by Mark Sautet, a 48-year-old doctor of philosophy.

Historically, cafes in France have been hangouts for intellectuals and philosophers. Jean-Paul Sartre, Simone de Beauvoir, and Albert Camus, among others, gathered to write and talk in Parisian haunts like the Case de Flore, Les Deux Magots and La Coupole.

But Sautet says his debates are completely different.

While Sartre's crowd was exclusive and "spoke among themselves," he said, "I talk to strangers, ordinary people who are not necessarily intellectuals."

Sautet apread this "popphilosophy" concept even further Wednesday night by organizing debates in more than 30 Parisian cafes as part of France's annual, four-day Bistro Festival.

"French people work so much today," said Janine Meunier, 42. who works at an insurance company and was having her first "cafe philo" experience at one of the festival debates.

"It would be great if coming to a cafe was always like this. It reminds me of my hippie days of the 60's," she said. Self-proclaimed philosophers abound in France, quietly penning books or loudly advocating political causes. Bernard-Henri Levy is among the most visible, championing the interests of Vietnamese refugees in the late 1970's and denouncing human rights abuses in Bosnia today.

But Sautet's community discussions have nothing to do with political activism.

On Sundays the Cafe des Phares bursts at the seams with crowds of more than 100 people opening their minds — and their

Illegal drugs

In a television program earlier this week, billed as having historical content, references were made to a number of prominent rock musicians. A number of them spoke of using various types of drugs including marijuana and LSD. They said how the drugs helped give them the lift they sought during hard times in the 1950s. Some admitted that they found nothing wrong with the use of drugs.

The situation may have been true. There is little doubt. Yet we believe it should have never been classified as educational, and probably not carried on a public television

Today, there are many people who still have the same idea. They believe there is nothing wrong with using drugs. Many want a high they apparently are unable to achieve by themselves. Others claim they are using drugs to get away from the world's problems.

There are even organizations in existence around the nation pushing for legislation to make certain types of drugs, such as marijuana, legal.

But we believe drug abuse goes much beyond what people may believe is a lift in life. They also produce death and injury. We have prime examples of that right here in Seminole County.

In what is believed to have been a drug-related incident early this month, a man was shot in the mouth by a person he possibly believed to be a seller. There have been similar incidents of drug deals gone wrong where shootings, beatings and other problems have occurred.

Recently, a man reportedly threatened to shoot three persons he told law enforcement officers were drug sellers. It happened near Sanford. There was no shooting, but it could have been a close call had deputies not arrived on the scene as rapidly as they did.

Time after time, we run into domestic violence cases where persons are identified as having been "high on drugs" at the time of a of motor vehicle accidents where the term "driving under the influence" referred to drugs rather than alcohol as most people may

Thank goodness our lawmakers have denied attempts to have any type of drug made legal. We hope they will continue to do so.

As for the television program, parents, teachers, officials, already have enough problems on their hands trying to convince youngsters to refrain from drug use. This certainly didn't help the situation.

For those who would like to see marijuana or other type drugs legalized, we urge that they not only look at themselves, but what drug abuse is doing to the rest of our people what Wendell Willkie did in 1940. He was 48 years old, a businessman who had never run for elected office and was almost unknown to the American public. He won the Republican nomination for president. He also played a vital role in moving the GOP from isolationism to internationalism.

Might Forbes be Wendell Willkie?

Willkie showed that when the candidate has a serious idea, the act of running for president can create the world's most powerful pulpit, even if that candidate comes from outside the political ranks. In our age of media, that political pulpit for non-politicians has become more powerful yet. Consider Jesse Jackson, Pat Robertson, Ross Perot, Pat Buchanan and quite possibly, uh. what's-his-name, the fellow on all the magazine covers, who beats Clinton in the polls by 10 points -- Powell.

Which leads us to Malcolm "Steve" Forbes Jr., who has recently announced that he will seek the Republican nomination for the presidency. Like Willkie, he is a 48-year-old businessman who has never run for elected office, and is largely unknown to the public. He is very rich, and since he has announced, he has been casually referred to as "Richie Rich" and a "polo populist." Forget it. Anyone who thinks that this is a quinotic effort by a self-funding rich guy on an ego trip is dead wrong.

I've known Steve Forbes since 1965 when he became chairman of the board of Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty, a mostly unsung but important weapon in America's Cold War armenal. I was then the vice chairman of that citisen board. At ita peak, "the Radios" broadcast honest news and an array of opinions in 18 languages within the Soviet Union and into five satellite nations in Eastern Europe, keeping hope alive behind the powerful pulpit. Iron Curtain. During the eight years of Forbes' chair-manahip, the Radios were under attack. The first figure out who they hated more, the Soviets or each other. The second wave came from cach other. The second wave came from congressional and executive branch opponents, and from competing government broadcast bureaucracies. Providing direction, funding and morale for such an embattled operation took time and skill. Forbes gave both unstintingly with quiet strength, seeking no personal aggrandizement. "Mr. Forbes is in Washington," was the accretarial response so many of us stot so was the secretarial response so many of us got so often from his New York office.

During much of this time, he was president and CEO of Forbes, inc. and editor in chief of Forbes magazine, the flagship publication of a highly profitable and burgeoning publishing empire that carries more advertising pages than any other American magazine, and was (appropriately) ranked in 1994 by Advertising Age as one of "America's five best magazines."

Forbes magazine has a point of view, and it is most apparent in Steve's engaging, award-winning and often prescient column. He was an early proponent of the much-maligned "supply-side economics." So was Jack Kemp. When Kemp decided not to run this year, someone had to carry the banner of conservative economic optimism.

MORTON KONDRACKE

Lambasting GOP extremism

President Clinton is staging yet another comeback. As he hits the 1996 campaign trail, polls indicate that his popularity is picking up while that of his Republican adversaries (Colin Powell excepted) slumps.

What's more, foreign policy is going his way; he's raising lots of campaign money; the Republican Congress is falling in the public's esteem; and Clinton's June advocacy of a balanced budget plan and modest Medicare cuts -- much criticized at the time -- now seems a shrewd move.

Polls indicate that if Powell were the Republican candidate for president, he'd beat Clinton by 8 to 10 points. However, Powell ion't yet a candidate. Against declared Republicans, Clinton is consistently ahead, and his approval ratings in various polls are at or above 50 percent.

The current political battle is helping. As White House political chief Harold Ickes put it at a recent press briefing. "The budget fight that is going on now on the Hill presents this (administration) with an opportunity to define where its core values are and to fight for education, the elderly, and investing in Clinton has developed a scrappy -- even Trumanesque - way of characterizing GOP positions, as he did in endorsing the Senate version of welfare reform and threatening a veto if a House-Senate conference moves in the House's direction.

"If the Congress gives in to extremist pressure and walks away from this bipartisan. American common ground, they will kill welfare reform," said the president.

On the budget, Clinton's line in Florida was: "How we decide to balance the budget will tell us a lot about what kind of people we are, what our values are.... So, tell Congress to throw away the partisan, extremist ideology and rhetoric and go to work for America's future."

The public hasn't yet fully bought Clinton's idea that congressional Republicans are "partisan extremists," but it's a line that Clinton can be expected to repeat, and the Republicans persist in providing him with material to pound the point home.

The most ammunition is $182 billion in Medicaid cuts over seven years in a program whose annual budget now is $89 billion. guaranteeing that millions of poor and disabled people will be denied medical care.

Republicans are vulnerable to charges that they are both unfair and ineffective, with House Republicans playing Robin Hood in reverse while Senate Republicans alow down the legislative process.

The net result is a decline in support for the GOP. According to an NBC-Wall Street Journal poll, 45 percent of voters approved of congressional Republican policies in March, as the "Contract With America" was being voted on, and 35 percent disapproved. In July, the score was 41 to 39 percent. In the latest poll, 30 percent approve and 58 percent don't.

Congress' numbers are going down as Clinton's presidential prospects are improving. A Los Angeles Times poli found Clinton would clobber House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., 61 percent to 32 percent. He'd beat con servative Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, by 55 to 35 percent and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., by 51 to 45 percent. Out on the campaign trail, Clinton has raised more than $20 million and, including federal matching funds, expects to raise a total of $43 million by Feb. 15 - none of which he's likely to have to spend fighting a serious primary opponent.

Instead, he can spend the money, as he is already doing on the trail, to get the message across to voters of what his presidency is all about.

President

another

Clinton is

As stated succinctly at a Florida fund-raiser, Sept. 19, Clinton wants the public to think of him and Vice President Al Gore as follows: "They make mistakes, but you've got to give them one thing. They've got a clear vision of what they want America to look like. They've got new ideas and old values. They are committed to working with Democrats and Republicans to find common ground based on those values. And they're doing what's right for the next generation, even if it is politically unpopular.'

Clinton's "vision" is to make America "a high opportunity place" in the 21st century technological economy through education. He's claiming devotion to such old-fashioned values as "family, community, excellence, accountability." He's also taking credit for "new ideas" such as reinventing government, national service and expanded student loans.

He's also claiming responsibility for a steady economic recovery, reductions in the crime and illegitimacy rates, and taking "unpopular" stands on gun control, tobacco and Haiti. And though he doesn't claim credit for progress on Bosnia, he gets it in the press.

Confused? Check Traficantometer

A device I sometimes use to get a quick read on where I should come down on a complicated issue is the Traficantometer.

It's really very simple: I check the record to see where Rep. James Traficant, D-Ohio, stands on the same matter. If the loudmouth legislator from Youngstown favors something, chances are I will be against it, once I have studied up on the subject. If he opposes it, I will likely find it commendable.

The Traficantometer (traf-ee-can-TOM-abter) seldom fails.

Take the Unabomber manifesto and the question of whether the Washington Post and New York Times should have published it.

The Unabomber. as everyone knows by now, is a nut who believes that advancesin technology are strangling the planet. bombs to people he regardsas "techno-nerds." He has dispatched 16 deadly packages since 1978, killing three people and injuring 23. Last April, he sent a letter to the something, chances are I will be against

Times demanding that it or another widely read publication print a forthcoming manuscript in which he would lay out his credo.

"People who willfully and knowingly promote economic growth and technical progress, in our eyes they are criminals," he wrote, "and if they get blown up, they deserve it." In June, the Post and Times received a 56-page paper, not counting addenda, from the Unabomber. They had three months to print it, he said, or he would "start building our next bomb." At the request of the Justice Department and the FBI, the newspapers published the manifesto in the Post on Sept. 19.

Old Rant-and-Rave thought it was a stupid

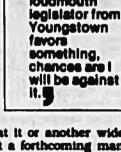

"Sometimes writers labor for years to get their manuscripts published and never get a chance." Traficant thundered. "But in America, if you blow up a few people and terrorize a nation, you become Ernest Hemingway overnight."

The Traffcantometer worked once again. Instinctively, I knew the newspapers were right. I only had to figure out why.

It should be said, before going further, that the news business is itself split on the question. Some argue, as did Traficant, that the papers printed the document with a gun at their heads. Most of the journalistic disacnters seem to think the Post and Times ceded control of their publications to the government. Still others maintain the manuscript had already been excerpted in earlier stories and had no journalistic value. Let's take these arguments one at a time:

1) It is probably true, partially at least, that the Post and Times printed the document because they were under duress. Why does it anger some in our profession when editors and reporters act primarily as human beings, secondarily as journalists? A Justice Department official quoted by the Washington Post put it succinctly: "Although we don't know if (the Unabomber) will stop if the manuscript is published, the odds are that he will continue to kill if you don't." Will the Unabomber's experience encourage other terrorists to murder and maim? I think that's a stretch.

2) The newspapers did not turn over their pages to the government. They agreed to publish of their own free will. This notion that the press should never cooperate with the law, I believe, is loathsome. Where do you draw the line? Should we stop printing photographs of wanted criminals? When our help is needed to solve serious, nonpolitical crimes, we should give it.

What tastes like metal but is better than cold turkey?

By KIM I. MILLS Associated Press Writer

ROCKVILLE, Md. - Habitual smokers may soon be able to chew their way out of addiction, trading cigarettes for nonprescription nicotine gum at about the same cost and without the hassle of seeing a doctor.

A federal drug advisory panel recommended Thursday that Nicorette gum be sold over the Nicorette gum be sold over the counter to adults who want to kick the habit.

The Food and Drug Administration advisers spent nearly a day reviewing arguments, facts and figures before agreeing that nicotine-laced gum can work, has few adverse side effects and in the second second ion't very susceptible to abuse.

For one thing, it tastes like metal, said Jack Ziegler, an executive with SmithKline Beecham, the Philadelphiabased company that markets Nicorette in the United States.

"I would characterize its taste as palstable," he said. Using Nicorette correctly means you can't just chomp and crack away: Nicorette must be masticated slowly to work pro-perly, and given short resting periods up inside the cheeks.

Nicorette would be aimed at the committed quitter, said Ziegler. SmithKline has carmarked "tens of millions of dollars" for advertising and marketing, and plans to set the gum price high enough to scare off impulse buyers, children and people who aren't sure they're ready to stop.

"A personal commitment on the part of the smoker is critical to success," he said. "This is not a magic builet."

Ziegler said SmithKline plans to sell the gum in two kits. The first would be an introductory package, retailing for around $40, that would include a sixweek dosage of gum, a program guide and a user tape. The packet would encourage users to call a toll-free 800 number to join a "committed quitters program." because research has shown a higher success rate for people who use the drug in a controlled program.

The second kit, retailing for about $20, would contain gum and a program guide.

Ziegier stressed that the price for a full 12-week treatment would be about the same as the cost of a pack a cigarettes a day for that period.

The company also argued that the gum has a low potential for abuse, citing research showing that very few people got a "nicotine high" from it. The small number of people who have been found to abuse it included a woman who chewed large amounts and liked the gum so much she even slept with a wad in her mouth.

The worst misuse, SmithKline officials said, appeared to be by people who chewed Nicorette and continued to smoke, or who used it longer than six months.

But Dr. John Hughes, a pro-fessor at the University of Ver-mont who spoke on behalf of the drug's marketers, said no deaths or major negative health effects have been associated with Nicorette.

"The product appears to be resistant to misuse, abuse and dependence," he said.

Nicorette has been sold by prescription in the United States since 1984. It is approved for sale in more than 50 countries, and available without prescrip-tion in 33, according to SmithKline.

The recommendation for over-the-counter sale goes to the FDA for final action. There is no timetable for a decision. The agency usually follows the recommendations of its advisory

FDA panel can't put aside tough decisions to delay or pare tion 2000 program, with another Worries over new diet drug

By LAURAN HERROAA! Associated Press Writer

ROCKVILLE, Md. - A new drug effectively fools obese pa-tients into feeling full so that they will lose weight, scientists told the Food and Drug Adminisration.

But a bitterly divided FDA panel couldn't put aside worries about a theoretical risk that it could cause brain damage, so the government advisers voted 5-3 Thursday to reject the drug's sale in this country.

The issue remains open, however, after a panelist won a

"I cannot live with my con-science tonight," proposess Dr. Nemat Borhani of the University of California, Davis, said after he was outvoted.

His impassioned plea for the first new obesity drug in 22 years prompted the panel to revote - but after three opponents had gone home. The three supporters again voted yes, two opponents voted no, and the ballot remained open today for the three missing panelists to finally decide the issue.

Interneuron Pharmaceuticals inc. said its dexfenfluramine helped 40 percent of patients studied lose up to 10 percent of their body weight, twice that lost with diet alone. The majority lost 5 percent to 10 percent.

But when dexienfluramine is given in ultra-high doses to animals it can permanently alter their brain chemicals. There is no proof that this happens in people and dexfensivramine would only be given to Americans in one-tenth of the dose found to be risky. Still, the finding worried the FDA panel.

Two doctors raised the fear that Redux - the drug's brand name — could hurt patients. Redux given at high doses cripple animals' ability to produce serotonin naturally after the drug is stopped, studies show.

These drugs "should be used with the greatest caution if at all." said Lewis Seiden of the University of Chicago.

was relevant because the animals were given doses 20 to 30 times higher than any person would take. The company said it has seen no sign of brain damage in the 10 million people who have taken Redux in the 65 countries where it is sold.

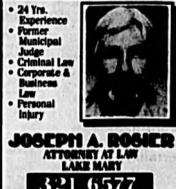

The panel said interneuron should answer the concerns with a well-designed two-year trial of Redux in Americans.

The panel also was more concerned with indications that Redux could cause a fatal lung disease in certain patients. This disease, primary pulmonary hypertension, affects one or two of every million people, but obliterates the lungs' ability to get oxygen to the heart.

But most of the panelists agreed that Redux's risk was very small - and acceptable for this disease. One study shows that at worst Redux could cause 10 deaths in five years from this disease, compared with the hundreds of obesityrelated deaths the drug could prevent in the same time, said Gerald Paich of the University of Pennsylvania.

Not everyone responds to the pill, however, and the company suggested that doctors discontimue therapy for any patient who does not lose four pounds within the first month of taking Redux. Obesity, defined as being more than 20 percent over ideal weight, causes 20 million new illnesses in the United States Some FDA panelists ques- illnesses in the United tioned whether Seiden's concern yearly and kills 300,000.

Support group to meet

CENTRAL FLORIDA - Holiday cheer can seem far removed for those who are struggling with the loss of a loved one. The memories of a lifetime sometimes seem to flood back as people face their first Christmas, Hanukkah or Thanksgiving without that special person sitting across the family table.

Hospice of Central Florida wants people to know they are not alone during the holidays. Although it can feel as though no one in the world understands your pain, talking with others going through similar feelings can help.

These six-week support grops provide a safe, loving environment for people to express and come to understand their grief. With the help of a ounselor specializing in grief and loss, participants help each other heal and see that there is life and laughter still to come.

Groups meet Tuesdays 10 a.m. to noon at Blessed Trinity Catholic Church, 4545 Andersen Rd., Orlando, October 3 through November 7 and Tuesdays from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. at First Baptist Church Sweetwater, 3801 Wekiva Springs Rd., Longwood, October 3 through November 7.

Meetings will also be held Tuesdays from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at Killarney Baptist Church, 701 Formosa Ave., Winter Park, October 17 to November 21 and Fridays from 2 to 3:30 p.m. at Hospice of Central Florida, 2500 Maitland Center Parkway. Suite 300, Maitland, November 3 to December 15.

These support groups are offered free to those families served by Hospice of Central Florida. There is a $30 fee for others which covers the cost of materials. For more information call Mary Meehan at 875-0028 ext.

Workshop held

MAITLAND - An ecumenical workshop, Making a Difference in the Public Arena, will be held on Saturday, October 7 at the First Presbyterian Church of Maitland, located at the intersection of Highway 17-92 and George Avenue, one block north of Horatio Avenue.

The Rev. Jim Watkins, a Presbyterian pastor and former congressional aide, is the workshop leader. The workshop is from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. and is being sponsored by the Peace with Justice Subcommittee of the Central Florida Presbytery.

The session will focus on how to get involved in the public policy process and how to communicate with local, state and national lawmakers and their staffs. All are welcome, whatever their opinion, background or belief. Discussion will not include what to say to elected officials but how to influence them.

The $5 cost includes all materials and a light lunch. To register and for more information, call the Central Florida Presbytery at (407) 422-7125 or Flossic Hellinger at (407) 896-3204.

Baptists combine services

Herald Correspondent

SANFORD - Two Baptist Churches recently combined their services. The Shiloh Missionary Baptist Church and Central Baptist Church worshipped together. The Rev. Coffman made several introductions as did the Rev. Rucker. The service began with the singing of "Bind Us Together," and a moment of friendly greeting with each

The Central Baptist Choir then sang several selections. Services were then turned over to Shiloh Missionary Baptist Church and their children's choir, teen choir, men's choir and full choir.

The singing groups received a standing ovation. Many were impressed with their talent.

A devotion from Romans was presented by the Rev. Coffman. He then introduced the Rev. Rucker as the preacher of the day. His subject was "God has a Recycling Program."

He spoke about how everything is being recycled, including humanity. He said, "Thank God that we are being recycled into better people. Our hands, feet, head and body look the same but we are being recycled on the inside. Our hearts and mind make a complete change from what we used to be."

As he continued he said,"If we fail God he doesn't throw us in the garbage can, he recycles us."

Rucker closed by saying that we are all individuals. We are different but we should try to understand each other, not try to be like somebody else.

Methodist men meet

SANFORD - The men of First United Methodist Church of Sanford held their monthly meeting with the women of the church as guests. Two ambassadors from the Promise Keepers movement were the featured speakers of the night.

They told how Promise Keepers started and in five years how it has grown to over 500,000 men. The men shared of how Promise Keepers has helped them improve family relationships and their walk with the Lord.

place all in one day.

SANFORD - Isn't it amazing the next day experience the how we can go through life on an miracle of birth and rejoice at even keel and then all of a the wonder of God. Trials and sudden your world is turned tribulations can weight us down upside down? The peaks and and then we are blessed finan-

Many times we witness first We can walk through the hand the spiritual warfare that is valley of the shadow of death present in this world. We see the with'a friend or loved one and angels delivering those from addictions and at the same time see others fall prey to Satan.

We are told in Romans 12:12 Rejoicing in hope; patient in tribulation: continuing instant in prayer." Also in Romans 5: 3-5 the Bible tells us, "And not only so, but we glory in tribulation also : knowing that tribulation worketh patience: And patience. experience, and experience, hope : And hope maketh not ashamed; because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost which is given unto us."

How's your patience? It's hard to believe that the more problems we have the more patience we will receive because of it. God tells us this is so.

James 5:16 says,"... The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much!"

Gather the saints for a time of prayer and maybe those troubles and anxieties will fade. If nothing else that fellowship will soothe some tired spirits.

One week, a homeless man came to the cafe and fought his way through the crowd with polite excuses. He was told, "Creve!" (Drop dead).

Christophe Grellety, 26.

For Sautet, a professor at the prestigious Political Studies Institute who specializes in the works of the 19th-century German philosopher Friedrich Wilhelm Nietzsche, questions count more than answers.

"To philosophize does not have the pretension of saying. 'I'll tell you the answer.' For me. it's to look for answers "It turned out to be one of the together." said Sautet, who expounded on this theme in a new book, "Un Cafe Pour Socrate" (A Cafe for Socrates), published by Robert Laffont.

They consult mediums. They find themselves a guru, unaware that what they're really seeking is a philosopher." Sautet wrote.

Sautet and his friends have started similar cafe debates in the French cities of Toulouse and Nice and in Switzerland, and they hope to sell the idea in the United States.

Earnhardt cuts into Gordon's point lead

Associated Press

DAYTONA BEACH - Dale Earnhardt has shaved a few more points off Jeff Gordon's lead in the NASCAR Winston Cup point standings, but knows he needs to do more.

"It's going to be tough," Earnhardt said after winning Sunday's Goody's 500 to take 34 points off Gordon's lead. "They're going to have to have some bad luck. But we're not giving up."

Earnhardt's win, his fourth of the year, moved him to within 275 points of Gordon (4,031-3,756).

Sterling Marlin remained in third place with 3,631. Mark Martin (3,531) and Rusty Wallace (3,427) round out the top five.

The series will travel to North Wilkesboro, N.C., this weekend for the Tyson Holly Farms 400.

The marketing efforts of many businesses and organizations depend on the telephone. But many comments to not like the intrusion of telephone sales calls into their personal lives. Florida was one of the first states to address the matter through address the matter through specific legislation.

Under the Florida Telephone Solicitation Act, the Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services compiles a list of communers who do not wish to receive sales solicitations over the phone. All telephone solicitation firms that are covered by the law must purchase the "No Sales Solicitation Calls List" before engaging in business in the state, and they cannot call consumers who are listed.

The cost to consumers of having a telephone number listed is $10 for the first year, with a yearly renewal fee of $5 to keep a number on the list. The list is updated quarterly.

Some types of calls and businesses are exempt from the provisions of the law. Solicitors may make calls:

In response to an expressed request by the person called.

. In reference to an existing debt, contract, payment or performance.

• To any person with whom the telephone solicitor has a prior or an existing business relationship.

 If they are employed by a newspaper and are calling about newspaper business.

Telephone solicitation firms that are covered by the law also must register and post a bond with the department. All solicitors must identify themselves by true first and last name, and state the name of the firm on whose behalf they are calling.

Many telephone solicitors make use of automated dialing devices that randomly dial telephone numbers. The law permits automated dialing devices under certain circumstances, but prohibits recorded sales messages. The law prohibits random dialing devices from calling unlisted telephone numbers or numbers on the "No Calls List" that receive a prohibited sales solicitation call should report it to the Department by writing.

Parents set rules when live-ins visit home

DEAR ABBIt: I must respond to the letter from "Desperate," whose son was returning from college and bringing his live-in girlfriend. His mother was uncomfortable with the idea of her son sleeping with his girlfriend in the family home.

I also have a son who's had a live-in arrangement with his girlfriend of aix years. They call it "dating," if you can imagine. When I was growing up, we called it "shacking up." Incidentally, I adore the girl and hope they marry someday.

My son knows how his father and I feel about it. I expressed my disapproval only one time, and because of the way he was raised, I don't have to harp on it. He is an adult and has chosen his own standards by which to

When he comes home, there are separate bedrooms prepared for them. Nothing is said. They know what to do. I don't supervise, but both beds are always obviously slept in.

OLD-FASHIONED MOM IN DALLAS EAR OLD-FASHIONED:

Thank you for your letter. The question of where grown children (and their "significant others") should sleep when they return home to visit is one that troubles many parents. I tell them to speak up and state their preferences honestly.

Read on for a similar problem with a different twist:

DEAR ABBY: My father passed away two years ago. Mother has been living in Florida and has had a new boyfriend for about five months.

Three weeks ago, Mom returned to lilinois for her usual summer visit and brought her boyfriend, "Ernie," with her. She usually stays with one of us kids (there are six of us), and this year was my turn to be hostess. After they were here a couple of hours, it was time to retire. My two sons (ages 4 and 7) were already in bed. As Mom and Ernie brought their luggage in. I prepared the two available bedrooms. (One was upstairs and the other was in the basement.) I told them they could decide where they each wanted to sleep.

Mother threw a fit that she and Ernie couldn't sleep together!

(They don't live together in Florida.) I told her that for the sake of the kids. I didn't think it was a good idea. My oldest son knows you are supposed to be married when you are sleeping with someone. Dad would never stay at the home of an unmarried couple because he feit it was morally wrong. This is the way I was raised.

My sister called just then, and while I was on the phone. Mom and Ernie got their things together and left. Mom never even said goodbye. She called my sister and said their "plans had changed" and not to expect her. She called no one else.

She told my sister I treated her unfairly. (She would have been treated the same way at my sister's, because Sissy's children are 13, 11 and 2.)

Abby, did I treat my mother unfairly? Since it is my home, shouldn't she have respected my wishes?

I still haven't heard from Mom.

CONFUSED IN ILLINOIS
DEAR CONFUSED: You did not treat your mother unfairly. It was your right to state your preference. Overnight guests should abide by the rules of the house.

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Rachel Rosenthal, Los Angeles" regarding Ernie, the now neutered dog: I concede your veterinary expert is right, my wife is right, and Rachel Rosenthal is right. Since Ernle has been neutered. he has stopped all of his nasty little habits and is still playful and lovable as ever. Ernie's biological father "Dylan." has also been neutered since you published my wife's letter, and I think that he is starting to behave himself - much to my sister-in-law's delight. Please note that the remaining four pupples, Sadle (the mom), and our three cats have also been neutered or spayed. Sign me ... BRNIE'S DAD

Daughter's weight loss worries Mom

DEAR MARY: I'm worried to death about my 15-year-old daughter. She's always been the perfect daughter — good student, polite to adults, responsible — every mother's dream. She made the junior varsity cheerleading team this year. She decided to go on a diet this summer to get into shape even though she wasn't heavy before.

She's been losing weight all summer and she's still losing weight. She started out weighing about 125 pounds; she's 5 ft. 5 in. tall. I'll bet she weighs less than 100 pounds now, and looks like someone from a third-world country. She still thinks she's too heavy. I think she's got a real problem, but every time I mention it she gets mad and defensive. Where do I go for help?

daughter has many characteristics of a person at risk for anorexia nervosa. You need to have her medically examined immediately since this and other eating disorders can kill up to 10 percent of their victims, and to rule out other physical aliments.

If anorexia is the cause of the weight loss she will need a great deal of support and encouragement in her recovery.

Unfortunately, even when the victim is confronted with her diagnosis, it is common for them to deny that they have the problem and to resist treatment. However, remember that this can be a life or death situation and treatment is essential — the sooner the better. The longer the starvation continues, the more difficult is is to overcome the effects on the body.

New Denzel Washington noir mystery is deliciously sexy

By PATRICIA BIBBY Associated Press Writer

Easy Rawlins is a straightahead, hard-working kind of guy who wears his mechanics' jacket even when he's not working. He lives alone in a tidy, twobedroom house on a clean. manicured street. He's proud that he owns his place and likes nothing more than just coming

It's 1948, a time when most of the nation is flourishing after the war, but Easy has a problem: He's two months behind on his mortgage and he's been fired from his job at Champion Aircraft.

it's this quiet desperation that sets the stage for the deliciously sexy "Devil in a Blue Dress." a noir mystery starring Denzel Washington that seamlessly chronicles one man's descent bribery, graft, corruption and murder.

Carl Franklin, who gave us the gripping thriller "One False the first installment in his Easy Rawlins mystery series.

graffiti and druga defaced the streets and ruined neighborhoods and lives, the town that Easy inhabits is vibrantly alive. And with the superb camera work of Tak Fujimoto, it's a town that fairly pulsates.

"Devil" opens with Easy sitinto the world of blackmail, ting peacefully on his porch. pondering his unemployment and the newspaper headlines about the city's mayoral elections. "Like they was going to Move," directs "Devil," based on change my life," he says Walter Mosley's acclaimed book. cynically, not realizing how prophetic his words would become.

Week Four of NFL season: No time for you to mow the lawn

Well here we are, Week Four of the NFL season, I will be the first to admit these have been a couple surprises. The Rama 4-0? Detroit beating San Francisco? Let's take a quick look at development to this point. Dallas and San Francisco seem poised to battle for the Super Bowl again this year, but it won't be as easy as last year. For the first time in many moons, I can honestly say that the A.F.C. has a genuine chance at winning the Super Bowl. Their best chance lies not only in the arm of Dan Marino, but also in the vicious defense that Shula has built. Free agency has also brought power to other teams like Chicago, Cleveland, and yes, Tampa Bay. The talent in the league is finally distributed to the point that most teams can be competitive on any given day.

Focusing on Florida's teams. let's talk about the Dolphins. Last year Shula made a commitment to build a defense, allowing only nine points a game this season. I'd say he's succeeded. If Bryan Cox can control his mouth, they can be the best in the N.F.L. Offense? Marino hasn't lost a step, as he continues to terrorize opponents with smart solid play that only a real deal quarterback can produce. If Marino and Fryar can stay healthy, I'm not sure they can be beaten.

I've noticed that anytime I bring up the Bucs, people seem to chuckle, then politely walk away. Well that's fine, but here is what they are missing. The Bucs defense has gotten tough. and if you doubt this, just ask the Skins. Hardy "Hulk" Nickerson has this squad so pumped, I'll guarantee they end at least one quarterback's season. For the first time in a decade the "other team from Florida" is playing with confidence. Sam Wyche deserves a lot of the credit, and he's the main reason I'm sticking with the Bucs will make the playoffs. Let's take a look at Sunday's schedule, and find some win-

ODALLAS (-13) at WASHING-TON. I don't care how big a rivalry this is, Cowboys win, but the Skins will keep it closer than the Vegas boys think. Cowboys 28 Redskins 20

OMIAMI (-11) at Cincinnati. Like father, like son? Not yet. Miami is 6-0 after a bye week. Don gives Dave a brutal spanking late in life.

Delphine 31 Bengale 10 ONEW ENGLAND (-4) at ATLANTA. Without Bledsoe, Pats can't beat their way out of a wet paper bag, let alone a hot Jeff George. Take the points and Falcons 31 Patriots 6 ONEW ORLEANS (-1) VO PHILLY. Both coaches should forfeit, and spare fans the disgust of watching this disgraceful matchup.

Saints 27 Engles 18

OINDIANAPOLIS (-3) VS ST. LOUIS. Marchibroda needs his team to win. The Dome will be too loud for Chris Miller's type of offense. The Rams are in for a reality check, and this one will be delivered by Marshall Faulk. Celts 27 Rams 17

OTAMPA BAT (-6) at CAROLDIA. I'll admit the Bucs aren't coming off an impressive win, but it is Carolina. Differ should have a huge day. Bucs 31 Panthers 12

CEAN FRANCISCO (-15) VS NEW YORK. The crowd that thinks the Niners are in trouble my pre-season upset prediction, after the loss to Detroit, are in for a surprise. The Giants stink, the Niners don't, this one will be Nicers 42 Glants 51 70.01

OPITTEBURGH (-1) TO SAN DIEGO. It doesn't look like the Steelers can do it without Woodson and O'Donell. A very Chargers 34 Steelers 18

Brences 31 Seahawks 17 · EANBAS CITY (-8) at ARIZONA. Buddy Ryan will have his team ready, he and his defense need to win. Bono will lose a tooth, and the game. Cardinals 20 Chiefs 13

ONOUSTON (-10) VS JACK-SONVILLE. Both teams have decent defenses, neither has much of an offense. If this is on TV. make sure you have plenty of beer in the fridge.

Ollers 17 Jaguers 3 ODARLAND (-7) at NEW YORK. The Jets are one of the worst in the league, but the Raiders play poorly in the Mead-owlands. Who wants it most? Raiders 27 Jets 14

OCLEVELAND (-8) VO BUF-PALO. Browns are tough to beat in the "Dog Pound," but I think the Bills will put up a fight. Where has Thurman Thomas been?

Browns 22 Bills 16

Every week I will issue what I consider the best pick against the apread in the schedule. This is the game that after research and contemplation. I feel most confident about releasing as my LOCK OF THE WEEK. This season, I am a perfect 4-0, and I'm planning to make it five straight with ATLANTA (+4) OVER NEW ENGLAND. I think the Falcons will actually win the game by a large margin. Good luck, and please don't let me catch you mowing the lawn on

Movie

Easy's troubles begin when a amarmy character. DeWitt Albright (Tom Sizemore), aska him to find a woman named Daphne Monet (Jennifer Beals). who had been romantically linked to one of the mayoral candidates.

For a crisp $100, all Easy has to do is procure an address. It seems too good to be true. And it is. Within days, two people are dead and Easy is a suspect.

What makes the film so irresistible is the slippery, fluid fashion in which Easy finds himself in such a mess.

Washington plays the part with breathless confidence. He completely lives in the skin of Easy Rawlins, who starts off as little more than the chump "fella" that his boss calls him when he's firing him but quickly becomes a slick and cunning force to be reckoned with.

Amid all this is the lethally alluring Duphne, the title's devil with the blue dress.

The TriStar Pictures release is rated R. It was produced by Gary Goetzman, with Jonathan Demme and Edward Saxon as executive producers.

Woman should visit her gynecologist DEAR DR. GOTT: I have not menstruated for two years. In the time prior, my periods were not regular. I'm 21 and a virgin. I have never smoked and don't drink. I don't diet and am not anorexic or bullmic. What's DEAR READER: The cessation of menstruation in a healthy. non-pregnant, young woman could well represent a hormone imbalance. I recommend that you address this issue with your gynecologist, who . after examining you - will probably order blood tests to identify a hormone deficiency, and, if one la present, prescribe an antidote, usually estrogen and other hormones.

On the other hand, as you probably know, well-trained female athletes often stop menetruating: this appears to be a consequence of chronic overexertion. Therefore, if you are an "exercise nut," try reducing your workouts a bit.

DEAR DR. GOTT: For about 1-1/2 years I've had abnormal Pap amears. A biopsy showed a type of cervical virus. Unfortunately, it is not possible to find out which type. Because of this, I am about to have cryosurgery. Could I have contracted this virus from the man I am seeing? if so, can he be treated for the virus?

DEAR READER: Some virus infections (chiefly those causing venereal warts) can cause cancer of the female reproductive tract. Therefore, it is important to discover what type of virus you have, so that you can be treated aggressively if you have the wrong" type of virus.

in the event that the doctors cannot type the virus with certainty, they will have to assume the worst scenario: It is a possible cause of cancer. This is the reason for the cryosurgery, a form of excisional biopsy.

To answer your specific questions: You certainly could have contracted the virus from a sexual partner, and - even though he may show no obvious signs of injection -- he should be meticulously examined by a urologist, and treated, if neces-

Actually, unless you both are treated simultaneously (with anti-viral therapy), you may continue to pass the infection back and forth, with disastrous results. Because this may well be a sexually transmitted disease.

you and your partner must address the issue together. Until this confusing situation is resolved, I advise you to use

Some bridge officials are poor players. Yet they love the game so much that they prefer to be involved on the administrative side, rather than finishing as also-rans at the table. However, there are exceptions to this rule. The president of the New Jersey Bridge League, Eli Schneider, showed that he knows how to maintain communications in this deal from the Red Ribbon Pairs at the Summer Nationals. North. Eli's wife Cynthia. jumped to three no-trump in the hope that her diamond suit would be worth several tricks.

West led the heart five, East playing the six.

It was probable that East held the diamond king. Also, if East had three diamonds, he would hold up the king for one round. Then declarer would need a dummy entry to reach his diamond winners. And there was only one potential entry card in the dummy: the heart queen. So, Schneider made the farsighted play of winning the first trick with the heart ace.

The diamond queen won trick two. Declarer continued with a diamond to dummy's ace and a third diamond to East's king. After cashing the spade king, East switched to a club. Schneider won with his ace and led a heart toward dummy's queen. West couldn't stop declarer from getting into the dummy and collecting 10 tricks: two hearts, six diamonds and two clubs.

Note that if South wins the first trick with the heart 10, West can ensure that dummy's queen never becomes an entry. Finally, next time I expect West will lead his pariner's suit.

After a club lead, the contract goes three down. Phillip Alder's book, "Get
